for more information call 545-2876

LOCAL

Thompson resigns

SAO director Carew to supervise TWA office

By SONDRA SUTTON
Collegian Staff

Director of the Office of Third World Affairs, Sherwood Thompson, resigned his position January 18 at the University of Massachusetts and has accepted the position of director of minority affairs at the University of Kansas.

Irene Carew, director of the Students Activities Office, will temporarily take over the supervision of the OTWA until the position is filled.

She said because of the present hiring freeze at the University, Thompson will not be immediately replaced, but added they will apply for a waiver to the freeze.

The Third World Caucus, the governing board of the OTWA and the internal coordinator of the TWC, Chi Amadi, have expressed a dissatisfaction with the choice of Carew.

"The displeasure with the new supervision is for several reasons, primarily with the directors failure to contact the member of the TWC," Chi said.

"The caucus is also upset at the fact that Carew informed other sources about new plans for the OTWA before contacting the TWC," she said.

"I would like to inform the student body, especially student of color, that the Third World Caucus wants the Office of Third Affairs to remain open and functioning as well as having an official director for supervision," Chi said.

Carew said she hopes to see a resolution to problems at the OTWA.

"There will be a meeting this week with the TWC and everyone who works in the office. The meeting will be used to discuss office hours as well as to discuss the plans for the OTWA," she said.

Collegian file photo
Dr. Irene Carew

■ teach-in

CONTINUED FROM PAGE 1

to attack Saudi Arabia."

Wilson dismissed the notion that Iraq may use nuclear weapons by saying, "if nuclear weapons are used in the Middle East, it will be by us."

At the end of the lectures, the audience was given a chance to ask questions.

Last Thursday night at Hampshire College in the Franklin Patterson Lecture Hall, faculty members from the five college area formed a panel to discuss and explain the events in the Gulf.

The panel consisted of Asoka Bandarage and Vinnie Ferraro of Mount Holyoke College and Ahmad Dallal of Smith College.

■ 'Scud patrols'

CONTINUED FROM PAGE 1

One of the eight-engine, $55 million "Stratofortresses," headed back from a bombing mission, crashed into the Indian Ocean late Saturday on its way to its base at Diego Garcia, a tiny atoll 2,000 miles southest of the gulf.

The U.S. command did not say where the crash occurred or give details of the rescue of three crewman. It said there was "no evidence that the aircraft went down as a result of hostile fire." Twenty-seven Americans are now missing in action in the Gulf War.

American military sources say the Air Force has begun mounting "counter-Scud patrols," warplanes flying over areas where Iraq's ballistic missiles are believed based, ready to swoop down when a launch is detected on radar. One of the patrols apparently scored on Sunday.

One of the Iraqi missiles, fired at Riyadh, was intercepted by U.S. Patriot defense missiles, but debris fell into a residential area of the Saudi capital. The Saudi Press Agency said 29 people suffered minor injuries.

Two other missiles struck center Israel or the occupied West Bank, but no injuries were reported. The U.S. command said one Scud may have landed in Jordan, but Jordanian officials disputed that report.

Two students witness war firsthand in Israel

By ALISON BUCKHOLTZ
Collegian Correspondent

While most were glued to CNN during the first weeks of the war, watching via satellite as reporters scrambled in and out of gas masks, two UMass students were busy with gas masks of their own.

Adina Zarchan, a senior, and Mitchell Kotler, a graduate student, traveled to Israel on separate programs at the end of December and found themselves in the midst of the bombings in January. Kotler, who had never been to Israel before, went primarily as a tourist, but Zarchan's reasons were motivated by loyalty to a country she knew well.

"I thought it was very important to go and show my support, especially when Israel is under siege," she said. "I wanted Israel to know that people weren't deserting it, that people weren't afraid of coming."

The American media, she said, had stirred up her worst fears. "When I left the U.S., the media was hypothesizing about nerve gas, retaliation, every worst-case scenario they could find," she said. "They gave you the idea that Israelis were seized with terror and life had stopped. But I knew Israel through the people, and I knew that couldn't be true. I had to go and find out for myself."

What she said she found was "a country functioning normally." Israelis took the situation seriously, she said, but never allowed it to "make them crazy."

Kotler agreed. "In Israel, there's a lot of humor about Saddam Hussein," he said. "There are jokes, T-shirts, riddles. One night the newscaster even dressed up as Saddam. Life goes on — they're keeping things in perspective."

When war first broke out, for example, there was little fear in Israel, just a sense of relief, according to Kotler. "The fear had come before. This had been building for a long time and no one knew where or when the first strike would be."

Kotler said he found it difficult to remain as calm as his fellow Israelis during the first air raid strike, however. "I didn't even hear the siren the first time," he said. "The hotel staff knocked on my door, so I put my gas mask on and we all went into the shelter. I was confused because I didn't know what to expect. I didn't known anything about the siren system beforehand or what precautions to take."

He had received his gas mask the night before from the hotel staff. "When the soldiers trained us to use it, they said the most important thing was to make sure the canister filter was on tight, and to test it by putting your hand over it to see if you can breathe," he said.

Once inside the shelter, "some people lay down on beds, some walked around, some listened to the radio, all with gas masks on," according to Kotler.

"Everyone was calm," he remembered. "The hotel staff knew exactly what to do — we became a team."

News was slow in coming, and "that first time, I thought it was a gas attack," Kotler said. "I was sure I was safe but was worried about Israel, whether or not everyone had a good shelter or enough gas masks."

A certain terrifying sense of the surreal that many Americans feel in connection with gas masks doesn't exist in Israel, Zarchan said. "In America, we hear the term 'gas mask' and think of it as a terrible object," she explained. "But it's not so terrifying — it can save your life."

Worse for her was the siren that signaled danger. "It's a very eerie sound," she said. "I remembered it from when I lived in Israel during the '73 war. Everyone knows what to do, everyone is efficient, but it's frightening." Siren stations are scattered throughout the city, she said, "so as soon as one stops, another begins."

When sirens finally fall silent, there's no real sense of relief. "On the news, all they say is that people in such-and-such an area can go, or take their gas mask off," Kotler said. "When they tell you to leave, they don't tell you what happened. For all I knew, I was fine but Haifa had been blown up."

The day after the first attack, even though there was no serious damage, "everyone was advised to stay home," Kotler remembered. "I stayed in the area so if a siren went off I could find shelter. That night, I went to bed with my gas mask right beside me."

Linkage between the war and the Israeli-Palestinian conflict is another source of anger for Kotler after witnessing the situation for himself. "Hussein has persuaded some people that this is related to the Palestinian problem, and those people think he's justified in starting a war," Kotler said. "Israelis know that the war won't have much effect on relationships with the Palestinians. The previous problems will still exist. This won't solve it."

Though neither Zarchan nor Kotler had been expecting the attack on Israel, they had coincidentally removed themselves from Tel Aviv before Iraq's first strike. Zarchan had scheduled a visit to Tel Aviv the night it was first bombed, but on a whim went to Jerusalem instead.

"People kept asking me if I was crazy because I went to Israel in the first place, and they because I stayed," she laughed. 'But beside the fact that Jerusalem was relatively safe, I was adamant about remaining in Israel until I had to come back

CONTINUED ON PAGE 4

Collegian photo by Carrie Wyeth

STARS AND STRIPES FOR HALFTIME — Patriotic fans show their support for the U.S. at Saturday's midnight basketball game.

charlie's

1 Pray St., Amherst—549-5403 • Open 11am
7 days a Week
Kitchen open til midnight
Game Room with 2 pool tables

Tonight 10c Mozzarella Sticks
9:00p.m. — 12:00a.m.

Drinks of the Week:
Charlie's Punch $1.50 French Mocha Coffee $1.95

Food Giveaways
Mon. 10 cent Mozzarella Sticks 9pm-12am
Tues. 10 cent Buffalo Wings 9pm-12am
Wed. 25cent Pizza Slices and 99 cent Nachos 9pm-12am
Thurs 10 cent Beer Steamed Baby Franks 9pm-12am
Sunday 10 cent Potato Skins 9pm-12am
WE ACCEPT MC-VISA-AMEX

students see war

CONTINUED FROM PAGE 3

for the semester."

Experiencing the bombings firsthand introduced a sense of immediacy to Zarchan about the Gulf War. "The Middle East isn't 'over there,'" she said, "especially since Hussein will bring everyone down with him. His actions could be devastating to the world, not just Israel."

Within Israel, she said, issues of war are "clear as day. People fight for their survival. It's clear-cut for me, too, after being there."

If we didn't go to war, she explained, "if we sat around and debated about sanctions, things will only get worse. Hussein will bring everyone down with him."

There is a fine line, she said, "between being opposed to war in general and seeing the necessity for preventing a second Hitler. Americans are very naive."

Kotler's experience in Israel made him glad that "the Allies kept their word. They didn't back down," he said. "They created Saddam Hussein's power so they have an obligation to destroy it."

Still, he foresees that "not much will change in the Middle East after the war. When it's over, Israel for one won't have peace — it will still be surrounded by enemies. The West has to look at the unstable countries they're selling weapons to before anything will change."

As of now, Kotler said, Saddam is using Allied technology to kill Americans — and Israelis. "I keep asking myself: why should Israel have to suffer because of that?" he said.

American Express Announces A Great New Travel Program.

Now students can get the Card and get 3 roundtrips on Continental Airlines, for only $129 or $189 each.

There's only one way to cover a lot of territory without spending a lot of money. And that's by getting the American Express® Card. It's the only card that offers an exciting new travel program exclusively for students—including three roundtrip certificates on Continental Airlines.

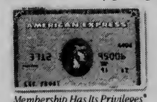
Just look at the map and pick the place you'd like to visit. If it's on your side of the Mississippi River, you can use a certificate to fly for only $129 roundtrip. Or, you can cross the Mississippi for $189 roundtrip.

You have your pick of more than 150 cities in the 48 contiguous states. And you can fly almost anytime—because there are no blackout dates. But you must make your reservations within 14 days of the day you leave. And the maximum stay is 7 days/6 nights and must include a Saturday night.

In addition to this great travel program, you'll also enjoy all the benefits of Cardmembership as well as other exclusive student privileges. They include a quarterly magazine filled with informative articles on summer jobs, careers, campus life. Plus valuable discounts from leading retailers.

But remember, there's only one way to get all this—and that's by getting the American Express Card. Just call us (have your bank address and account number on hand). What's more, with our special student offer, it's easier to get the Card now while you're still in school than it may ever be again.

So get the Card. And get ready to cover new territory on either side of our Great Continental Divide.



Membership Has Its Privileges®

CALL 1-800-942-AMEX

If you're already a Cardmember, there's no need to call. Information about your certificates will be arriving soon.

TRAVEL RELATED SERVICES An American Express company

CONTINENTAL

Complete terms and conditions will arrive with your certificates. Continental Airlines alone is responsible for fulfillment of this offer. American Express assumes no liability for Continental Airlines' performance. © 1991 American Express Travel Related Services Company, Inc.

EDITORIAL/OPINION

The opinions on this page are those of the individual writer or cartoonist and do not necessarily reflect the views of the Collegian or the University unless otherwise noted.

Learning about teamwork

. . .And, at the buzzer, Rafer Giles hit a three-pointer, winning the game and scoring his 1,000th point. What a night.

What a night indeed!

To all those people who didn't get into Saturday night's game. I didn't get in either, despite being there for almost three hours before game-time.

But I got to go to Friday night's. It was definitely better.

First off, there was this weird sense of school spirit, something I thought absolutely off the wall in this place. People wanted Willie Herndon to dunk and others in a corner section had up a sign "Rafer's Corner," posting points for when he reached his 1,000th.

It was a great feeling. Fans were excited. Something in this bitter, awful world was actually right for a change.

Gayle Long

But after the game, when the crowd spilled onto the court and surrounded an excited team, reality set in again.

The nation was still at war.

Actually, throughout the game, there were signs no one would forget. Most sang the National Anthem, instead of standing silently, or trying to look for friends in the crowd.

People have weird ways of showing how they feel. American flags and painted faces were only the beginning.

The crowd has a certain distaste for referees, and, although I always thought the refs were the good guys, I learned a lesson. When it comes to wanting a team to win, the refs are not the guys you put your trust into. It's your teammates.

Consistantly inconsistant. This is a term I learned from my dad, a coach and a ref, about the bad parts of reffing. The refs are human. They don't catch everything, but they should try to. When they don't make the calls or when the calls always go one way, that's inconsistent.

The refs at Friday night's game had the majority of the crowd screaming things like "Hair Club for Men" (for the ref with especially thick hair). The refs kept making bad calls, and then letting the other refs on the floor change the calls because they were so bad. No wonder the crowd was so mad. Not only were the people in the crowd making their own calls, but they also wanted to lynch the guys who were out there.

The refs reminded me of the United States. Not only do the people in government continuingly making "bad calls" in regards to what it should be doing, but everyone wants the people in government to just give it up. It's just like that song the crowd sings at the games: "Nah-nah-nah-nah Hey-hey-hey Goodbye."

But UMass still prevailed on the court that night, despite bad calls and a foul-happy University of Rhode Island squad.

Because they played as a team, they came out on top. Because the refs kept changing their calls and making each other look ridiculous, they didn't do their job effectively.

Maybe the government should take this lesson from the team and not try to police the actions of everybody else.

Maybe the refs will realize they have to work as a team to get the job done.

The basketball team already knows this.

No wonder they are 14-6, and the government can't even win a popularity contest.

The crowd was trying to play for the team and for the government, singing the National Anthem and cheering for the team.

But maybe the people in the crowd were just drunk and obnoxious. Let's just hope they weren't.

But the game was incredible, anyway. Let's hear it for teamwork.

Gayle Long is a Collegian columnist

Behind the push to war

Although the on-going war in the Middle East was widely regarded as inevitable weeks before it started, some of us were hoping that a Congressional vote against it might avert disaster. Our hopes were dashed. You know the story.

M.T.K. Brown

The question, however, remains: Why? Why the Congress voted for war and the administration waged it when the country was clearly divided and most experts, ranging from former Joint Chiefs of Staff, Defense Secretaries, national security advisors, intelligence experts and Middle East specialists, were arguing against it?

There are multiple layers of conflict and a multiplicity of reasons behind the Gulf War. One of them is the process of military build-up prior to the conflict. Focusing on this process and how it influenced the Congress' vote is rather revealing.

Now, in retrospect, there is no question that it was the the massive U.S. military deployment in the Gulf and the prospect of political liabilities and logistical problems of its idle, long-term presence in the area that forced Congress' hand.

When it came to extracting a favorable vote from Congress, the administration argued and the Congress accepted, that the long-term presence of U.S. forces would be politically destabilizing for Saudi Arabia; that such a large force cannot be maintained in the field for long without a rotation program and a partial mobilization of some kind; that the failure to use the troops or reducing their number once the United States, once having assumed an offensive p[illegible]ure, would mean the erosion of U.S. credibility and the collapse of its dominant negotiating position in the area.

Sadly, the force deployment process which led to the infamous Congressional vote had not been questioned by either the media of Congress until the very end, when it was too late. Apparently, everyone bought the argument that the administration was playing a game of chicken with Saddam Hussein. It was no game; Saddam had no option to "Chicken Out." The unconditional surrender that the administration was asking for would have been tantamount to political and physical suicide for Hussein. And, of course, he is not stupid.

The reasons behind the large-scale deployment in the Gulf and the eagerness of the military to wage war, have to do with the institutional momentum of the military/industrial complex in the post cold-war era. This, in turn, has some of its roots in the last wave of arms build-up and massive military expenditures which started under President Carter and accelerated under Reagan.

"The presence of hundreds of thousands of troops in the Gulf area has created its own realities," said Henry Kissinger, a few weeks before the war started. Those realities and the forces that created them, explain the capitulation of Congress.

The Congress is supposedly the foremost institutional manifestation of democracy in this country. That it surrendered to the pressures generated by the military build-up and the forces behind it is deeply disturbing, to say the least. It has some resemblance to the dynamics and politics of not a democracy, but a militarized state.

M.T.K. Brown is a member of the UMass Coalition on the Middle East Crisis

Stand your ground with patience

My roommate's mother called on the telephone last night. She asked if he were home and I responded that he wasn't. She then asked me if I were his roommate as we had never spoken to each other. I said "yes, I am his roommate."

She bluntly stated "You must be the one that is against the war." I answered, "Yes, crazy kook that I am, I believe in peace."

She continued, "This is a just war, and we forgive you for what you think." I was stunned and somewhat angry at her, and at the same time felt saddness for her. As I said I had never talked to this woman before and she is my roommate's mother, so I zipped my lip.

Then she asked me the UMass question of the night. "Are there many peaceniks at school?" Again I was taken aback by the casual manner of her question, and so I asked her if she could please repeat her question, I wanted to hear her ask it again. She repeated, "Are there many peaceniks on campus?"

Biting my tongue I said, "yes, I guess so. Yes, there are quite a few far out people for peace, and do you find it necessary to label people?" she half joked that she was just kidding with me and proceeded to change the subject to something of far greater importance — the weather! But she wasn't kidding and we both knew it.

I thought of asking her, "are there many peaceniks here, you mean as opposed to warmongers like yourself?" But I didn't and I'm glad that I didn't. I'm glad that I noticed that I wanted to put it back in her face, and didn't. Seeing this reaction in myself helped me to understand myself better. By listening to her with an open mind and an open heart, even though I didn't agree with her, I understood her a little better by not judging her.

In these challenging days and weeks ahead, even though many of us disagree with each other, we must be able to listen openly without judgement, to be able to communicate fully. If we look at all of our life situations, including the current Gulf War, as teaching, we can learn and grow.

I thank her for her phone call. My position as a peacenik has never been more solid. I, as a peaceful person who wants peace and will "walk my talk!" I will not attack others, but will state my position clearly from my heart. Instead of being defensive or attacking others who disagree with me, I think it best to just send them love. We will need to face many of our brother's and sister's not on the phone, but face to face. So stay in a space of no judgement and love and hold firm all you "peaceniks."

William J. King
Amherst

Religious traditions offer peace

The war in the Persian Gulf is deeply distressing no matter what our political stance.

Bombs dropped near populated areas, missiles fired at cities, and public calls for terrorism mean that the lives of innocent people will be lost. Many more will continue to live in uncertainty and fear.

Our religious traditions teach us about the sanctity of human life, that humans are created by God, the source of all life. We join in grief at the loss of life that war brings.

Good people of conscience and religious motivation may well disagree about whether this war is advisable or moral. It is a strength of the democratic tradition in this country that we can openly debate these issues. It is part of our religious traditions that we do this with respect and love.

As representatives of different religious traditions, we are aware that people can perceive the word of God differently and understand the call of conscience differently.

As each of us on this campus passionately pursues that which we believe to be right, may we also respect the rights of others to hold differing opinions. It is easy to feel kinship with those who agree with us. May we also have strength to affirm the humanity of those we consider to be wrong.

Our religious traditions affirm the importance of peace and justice whatever our political stance. We hope that a just and enduring Peace/Salaam/Shalom be speedily established. We therefore invite the campus community to join us in a service for life, prayer and peace at noon to 1 p.m. on Tuesday at Memorial Hall.

May life which is holy be preserved for us, our loved ones, and all people.

May our differences be aired in love and respect for the sake of God.

May Shalom/Salaam/Peace and justice endure.

Khaleelah Abdul-Kareem
Muslim Student Association
The Rev. Christopher Carlisle
The Ark Episcopal Chaplaincy at UMass
The Rev. Richard E. Sanner
The United Christian Foundation
Rabbi Saul Perlmutter
B'nai B'rith Hillel Foundation
The Rev. Richard A Bondi
The Rev. J. Joseph Quigley
The Rev. C. Lee Gilbertson
Sr. Mildred Marengo S.S.J.
The Newman Center - Roman Catholic Chaplaincy

Everyone has something to say. The trick is finding a place to say it. 19,000 people read this paper daily and they are waiting to read what you have to say. This page welcomes letters and columns from all members of the community. Letters should be less than than 50 lines and columns should be between 50 and 70 lines. All submissions should be typed, double-spaced (We have a typewriter you can use). Please include a phone number where we can reach you. All submissions should be brought or sent to the Editorial Editor at the* Collegian *office in the basement of the Campus Center.

basketball

CONTINUED FROM PAGE 1

a 3-point play and a jumper during a 13-5 run that sealed it.

Giles sinks URI Giles' 1,000th career point provided the most emotional moment of the season in Friday night's A-10 overtime win over Rhode Island at the Cage.

With the game knotted at 67 and the clock winding down, Giles took a feed from Anton Brown, faked an oncoming defender and launched a 22-foot shot that touched off a wild celebration as fans, teammates and coaches stormed the court.

Giles entered the game needing 15 points to reach the 1,000-point plateau, but bricked his way to a 1 for 6 first half. Giles recovered to score 14 after intermission, and finished with 17.

"In the first half I got down. I was thinking too much about getting 1,000," Giles said. "But in the second half my shot was there . . . in overtime I was feeling it.

Of the game-winner Giles said, "I didn't know there wasn't any time left. It was unbelievable."

"There was no real play," Calipari said. "We spotted up Rafer on one side and Jimmy [McCoy] on the other. They all ran to Jimmy, and Rafer stood there and made the shot. If Rafer's feet are underneath him and he's set, he'll make it."

URI took a lead in the opening minutes of the game and held it until there were four minutes left in regulation, when McCoy punctuated a 13-4 UMass run with a fast break layup to tie it at 54-all.

Mike Brown canned a pair of free throws with :25 left to send the game into overtime.

In overtime, UMass edged to a 63-61 advantage on a Giles 3-pointer and McCoy top-of-the-key jumper. URI tied it twice, at 63- and 65-all, on an Eric Leslie (14 points) running one-hander with :09 on the clock, before Giles sank the game-winner.

STEINBECK COLLISION REPAIR & AUTOBODY

53 So. Prospect — Amherst Center

256-8157 256-1385

- Accepted by all insurance companies for collision repair or glass replacement
- Imports & other unibody vehicles are our specialty

REMEMBER it's your car and your choice of repair facilities

◄◄◄ATTENTION►►►

STUDENTS LOOKING FOR PART TIME NON WORK STUDY, ON OR OFF CAMPUS ATTEND ONE OF THE "JEMS" WORKSHOPS (Job Employee Matching System)

Workshops will be held February 4th in Rm 165 & February 5th in Rm 917 at the Campus Center. Times: 11:30, 2:30, 4:00, & 6:30

Workshops sponsored by the Student Employment Office 243 Whitmore Administration Bldg 545-1951

Graduating Seniors

This Personal Survey May Help You Decide What To Do With The Rest Of Your Life...

As a realistic individual eager for business life, you are probably wrestling with the problem of choosing a career direction. You may find an answer by rating yourself in this quiz.

- Do I have an inquisitive mind that probes beneath the surface of things?
- Do I grasp new concepts quickly and adapt readily to change?
- Am I an analytical problem solver, able to develop innovative solutions?
- Do I want a role that challenges me to do my own thinking, to make independent decisions?
- Am I a strong team player?
- Am I a clear communicator?
- Do I negotiate tactfully and well enough to bring others around to my point of view?
- Is my personality suited to interface with management, clients, peers?
- Am I results-oriented, able to manage resources to achieve objectives?

Positive responses imply that you're a viable candidate for a career in the insurance industry. Particularly with Royal Insurance, a prestigious, historically successful property/casualty leader now writing over $2 billion in coverages each year. We're poised and trim enough to meet the challenge of change in the marketplace and to keep you in view as you progress.

We offer extensive training courses, both in the classroom and on-the-job, to give you good understanding of insurance coverages plus the technical skills and refinements needed to start a career in one of the following areas:

CLAIMS. 9-month program needs BS/BA/Liberal Arts or Business major. Imparts skill in planning and coordinating claims investigations, ability to evaluate insured/insurer positions, and to negotiate equitable settlements.

UNDERWRITING. 9-month program needs BS/BA/Liberal Arts or Business major. Teaches how to identify hazardous situations at client work sites; how to evaluate risks; how to apply rating methodology and pricing techniques; how to interface with management, brokers and agents on underwriting decision.

Candidates must be agreeable both to travel and to relocation after training to any major company office in the U.S.

We provide excellent salaries and benefits.

We will be conducting an INFORMATION SESSION Tuesday, February 5th at 7:00 PM

If you are unable to attend, but would like more information about on-campus interviews Tuesday, February 19th, please visit the Placement Office.

Royal Insurance

Pre-employment drug testing
An equal opportunity employer M/F/H/V

You'd Be Crazy To Go Anywhere Else!

The holidays aren't over...our year end gift to you is here!

6 Months, Plus 6 Months Free!

Offer extended 'till 1/14/91

CALL NOW 586-7503 HAMP PLAZA NORTHAMPTON

The 1991 MCAT Will Be An All New, Completely Revised Test. Stanley H. Kaplan Is Ready.

Students planning on applying to medical school will be facing a completely revised Medical College Admission Test (MCAT) starting in April 1991. The Association of American Medical Colleges has announced that the new MCAT will measure a broader range of skills.

Fortunately, the test makers aren't the only ones making changes. Stanley H. Kaplan, the first name in MCAT prep, has already designed a brand new course to help students get ready for the brand new test. All our lessons, home study notes, practice tests, and review will reflect the latest MCAT format and content.

Does Kaplan preparation work? Over HALF the students in medical school today are Kaplan alumni. New test? No problem.

STANLEY H. KAPLAN
Take Kaplan Or Take Your Chances

Classes begin:

Feb. 16 at Mt. Holyoke
Feb. 17 at Smith College
Feb. 20 in Amherst
549-5780

ARTS & LIVING

Stuff to melt your ears

By MARK STURM
Collegian Staff

January was an extraordinarily tame month for the music industry. When it comes to college radio type stuff, if the industry was a person it would say that January is a dead month and that it's preferable to hold off on some releases until February. This serves to provide a somewhat grey backdrop for a few impressive January releases, as well as give us just the excuse we need to delve into nostalgic, self indulgent retroactive spew. The best record I received over January is called SNUFF JAZZ.

Borbetomagus have been exploding the tender aural facilities of wimpy artsy concert goers for about twelve years now, usually armed with two saxophones and a guitar. For them the thrill of watching audience members literally run from the club clutching their ears has waned considerably, but still makes me clutch my teeth in sadistic pleasure as though it were the first time again. The last time I saw them they were on a bill with Reverb Motherfuckers, Surgery, and the unappreciated but truly beautiful Unsane N.Y.C. Borbetomagus were kicked off the stage within ten minutes. It was the direct consequence of a problematic syndrome they repeatedly encounter, which involves the inability of soundmen to fathom or even stomach the sound these guys produce when they drop the P.A. microphones down the bells of their saxaphones, place the bells together, and blow with a force worthy of updating various Norse myths.

SNUFF JAZZ is the latest effort from these friendly New Yorkers. One side is studio material from 1988 which they recorded at their favorite studio, ABC No Rio. The other side is a live excerpt from an August 1989 performance which they were allowed to complete. That show was at D.C. Space in, of course, Washington, D.C., and featured the now notorious Cop Shoot Cop as part of the stage warming ritual. I was there and can testify to the authenticity of this recording if need be, because you may not believe your own ears. You may sporadically encounter this and other Borbetomagus records at a nearby retail type outfit, no doubt sandwiched in between the Boomtown Rats and Boston.

Torture Garden is the latest and sickest mishmosh of organized and proficient incoherency from New York ohso hipster John Zorn's pet project Naked City. Within a relatively small time span (say, about thirty seconds) you may find yourself enjoying traditionalesque sax oriented jazz, heavy metal and hardcore in between bouts of Boredoms like noise bursts. You can find this sucker in almost any of the three stores worldwide that still capitulate to the special interests of vinyl fans, ur doubtedly in between Nazareth and t. New Kids On The Block.

Self indulgent retro spew you ask? The longest piece-o-wax to date from (yes, another New York act) Of Cabbages And Kings came out in November. It is entitled Basic Pain, Basic Pleasure and, among other attributes, boasts a remix of the skeptical "Of Service" that could be found on the Mondo Stereo compilation a few years back. The record never cuts loose in the same fashion as some songs on earlier Purge Sound League releases did (ref: BUD), but is equally powerful and satisfying. It's on Triple X records.

Smooth rap, hard lyrics

By MARK ANDERSON
Collegian Correspondent

The Devil Made Me Do It
Paris
Tommy Boy/Scarface Records

"Paris is the name. I don't sleep. I drop science and keep the peace."

These two lines, appearing in his debut single "Break the Grip of Shame," probably best describe the rapper Paris and his musical quest. Appearing last spring, the single "Shame" garnered support among critics and rap fans. The clever and spare production combined with some of the best pro-black lyrics in recent memory made it a candidate for rap single of the year. Needless to say, his LP debut was eagerly awaited. Released in November, The Devil Made Me Do It has been lukewarm to tat times) downright cold.

Whyizat? It could be, as Greg Tate of the Village Voice has said, that Paris (aka P. Dog) "sounds too much like Rakim [of the duo Eric B and Rakim]." His pro-black revolutionary rap could also be lost in the scramble of the seemingly endless supply of MCs eager to jump on the Chuck D/KRS One bandwagon. Finally, as a West Coast rapper with traditionally East Coast black revolutionary lyrics, he may have ended up pleasing neither. Whatever the case his debut album finds itself in a league with Public Enemy's It Takes A Nation of A Million To Hold Us Back and Boogie Down Production's, By All Means Necessary with a similar amount of controversy surrounding its content, message, lyrics and even videos. (MTV threatened litigation when they learned that the "Shame" video contained MTV clips of Guns 'n' Roses' Axl Rose interspersed with newsreel footage of KKK rallies. Although the suit would have been dropped had the controversial segments been edited out, Paris opted instead to withdraw the whole video).

An economics major from the University of California, Davis, Paris and his DJ Mad Mike have essentially produced a manifesto of pro-black and Black Panther politics. For those who seek out the punk/postpunk analogies: if NWA are the Sex Pistols and Public Enemy are the Clash, then Paris is an uncompromising Billy Bragg with a beatbox. The P-Dog has indeed been outspoken in interviews about his Islamic beliefs and a desire for the return of the Black Panther party. His lyrics continue to refer to that now defunct party and their 10-point program. In fact the liner notes of the album read like a Black History Month roster of the black power movement. The likes of Huey Newton, Marcus Garvey, Elijah Muhammad and, of course, Malcom X are each profiled in a paragraph or two along with a brief history of the Black Panther movement. Since everybody and his homeboy are rapping nowadays about Black Power and how the System is Wack, this appeal to the history books seems to reek of commercial tokenism.

Yet there are things about this man that make him stand above most of the Chuck D wannabees in the rap world. First off, the liner notes of the first album at least deserve credit for containing more than the typical "Malcolm was the man. Word to The Mother." That is, whether it's tokenism or not, the biographical summaries provide substance in a genre full of hot air and typically devoid of any real information.

Second, throughout the album, Paris displays intelligence while most can only brag about it. As with a lot of recent rap albums, The Devil Made Me Do It takes its message seriously.

But Paris also manages to make the ride

CONTINUED ON PAGE 10

AFRICAN-AMERICAN HISTORY MONTH 1991
University of Massachusetts at Amherst
FRIDAY, FEBRUARY 1
Dance
SATURDAY, FEBRUARY 2
"Putting Women in their place... Beside their Men"
by "Gentle George" Fokes
THURSDAY, FEBRUARY 7 – THURSDAY, MARCH 7
Brenda Jones
Abstract, Figurative Paintings:
Reflection on the Human Condition
THURSDAY, FEBRUARY 14
Lecture by Archbishop Desmond Tutu
THURSDAY, FEBRUARY 14
Magic Triangle Jazz Series presents
An Evening with the Ricky Ford Quartet
THURSDAY, FEBRUARY 21
Career Expo '91 – Job Fair
SATURDAY, FEBRUARY 23
Urban Bush Women in "Praise House"
THURSDAY FEBRUARY 28
An evening with Branford Marsalis

CAMPUS SNOW POLICY ❄ ❄ ❄ 1990 - 1991

The major snow removal objective at times of severe storms is to allow all classes and all campus activities to take place in as routine a way as possible. Since many faculty, staff, and students normally bring cars onto campus, it is important for all concerned to understand clearly what policies and procedures will be followed in the event of a severe snow storm that temporarily limits parking capacity on campus.

Radio and TV Announcements

Classes and all other scheduled activities on campus will be held as usual unless specific announcements to the contrary are made beginning at 6:00 a.m. and continuing periodically throughout the day. Such announcements will be made on the following radio and TV stations:

WTTT-Amherst 1430 AM, WMUA-Amherst 91.1 FM, WRNX-Amherst 100.9 FM, WFCR-Amherst 88.5 FM, WHMP-Northampton 1400 AM, WRSI-Greenfield 95.3, WGAM-Greenfield 1520 AM, WHAI-Greenfield 1240 AM, WARE-Ware 1250 AM, WCAT-Orange 1390 AM, WMAS-Springfield 1470 AM, WHYN-Springfield 560 AM, WACE-Springfield 730 AM, WSPR-Springfield 1270 AM, WGGB-TV Springfield (Channel 40), Springfield, WAQY-Springfield 102.1 FM, WTAG-Worcester 580 AM, WTIC-Hartford 1080 AM, WTSA-Brattleboro VT 1450 AM. It is important to stay tuned to your radio for added information in case of a change.

Snow Day Hotline

As an additional convenience, a "snow day hot-line" has been installed. Taped messages will provide up-to-date information on the status of the campus and may be accessed by dialing 545-3630. This is the only campus number which should be called for such information.

Decision by 4:30 a.m.

The decision to cancel classes will be made at about 4:30 a.m., if the indications are that road travel is/will become hazardous or that insufficient parking capacity will be available. Cancellation of classes includes Continuing Education day classes.

Evening Classes

If evening classes are cancelled (classes beginning after 5:00 p.m.), a separate announcement will be made over the same radio stations listed.

Cancellation During the Day

If circumstances make it necessary to cancel classes during the day, this information will be communicated by the Personnel Office to the offices of the Chancellor and Vice Chancellors which will inform their respective schools/colleges, departments, and business offices. Do not call Personnel concerning snow cancellations.

Bus Service

It should be assumed that bus services are operating, unless announcements are made specifically to the contrary on WTTT-AM, WMUA-FM and WHMP. For information regarding changes in bus schedules during snow storms call 545-0056.

Snow Day Personnel

In the event that classes and all other scheduled activities are cancelled, only snow day personnel will be required to work. Heads of departments should review and update their snow day plans and notify employees who are designated as snow day personnel. Under certain circumstances (after 5:00 p.m., weekends, holiday periods, and Intersession), the Library may also be closed. Such closing will be announced over the radio stations listed above.

Parking for Snow Day Personnel

Snow day personnel, including second shift snow day personnel, will be permitted to park only in the following lots:

* 32 and 34 (south of Whitmore, SOM)
* 25 (west of Physical Plant, north of access way to the adjacent peripheral lot)
* 31 (north of Engineering, Graduate Research Center, etc.)
* 62 (south of Morrill Science)

Entrance to all other lots will be prohibited until the University is officially open for business. The Parking Garage is, of course, open for parking at all times.

Overnight Parking Is OK Here

Parking overnight (1:00 - 7:00 a.m.) is permitted in the following areas during snow season (December 1-April 1, and other times in the event of predicted, measurable snowfall).

E Lots	Lot 32 (West of
Lot 20	Lincoln Ave.
Lot 22	only)
Lot 23	Lot 41
Lot 24	Lot 42
Lot 25 (north of	Lot 43 (except at roadway to E Lot	meters)
only)	Lot 44
Lot 27	Lot 46 (except at
Lot 28	meters)
Lot 30	Lot 49
	Thatcher Way
	(east side only)

Overnight Parking OK (Lot Decal Required 24 Hours)

Overnight parking is permitted in the following lots, but a specific lot decal is required 24 hours. All others will be towed.

Lot 21	Lot 50
Lot 29	Lot 54
Lot 47	Any posted reserved space

No Parking Here Overnight

Overnight parking (between 1 and 7 a.m.) is not permitted in the following areas during snow season (December 1-April 1, and other times in the event of predicted measurable snowfall).

Lot 62	Lot 26 (except by
Lot 63	special permit
Lot 64	only)
Lot 65	Lot 31
Lot 66	Lot 32 (East of
Lot 71	Lincoln Av. only)
Lot 25 (south of	Lot 33
the roadway to	Lot 34
E- Lot)	Lot 40
	Lot 45

Any campus roadway (including Southwest horseshoe)
Any parking meter

Suggestions

To alleviate the problems of clearing parking lots, it is suggested that all University personnel who normally bring a car onto campus consider the following alternatives during heavy snow:

A. Use the bus service.
B. Pool rides whenever possible.
C. Walk to work.
D. Have someone drop you at work.
E. If space is not available in your assigned lot, go to either the peripheral lot west of Physical Plant or Lot 25. Under snow emergency conditions, it is not possible to guarantee that normal lot capacity will be available.
F. Use the Campus Center Parking Garage (open 24 hours).

Delayed Opening, 11 a.m.

In the event of a major snow storm, a decision may be made to delay the opening of the University until 11:00 a.m.. The objective is to provide time to clear roadways and parking lots. Lots cannot be efficiently plowed if they contain cars.

When the opening of the University is delayed until 11:00 a.m., snow day personnel should report at their regular time or as soon as possible; all others should report to work at 11:00 a.m.

Appeals

If you believe you were improperly issued a ticket for violation of snow regulations, you may appeal it within 21 days of the date of issue to the Ticket Processing Office, Lot 31, Governor's Drive.

RESCHEDULING OF FINAL EXAMS ON OFFICIAL SNOW DAYS FALL 1990

In order to reschedule final examinations in case of snow, two alternate snow periods have been devised. They are 6:30 p.m. and 8:45 p.m. each exam day. The use of these alternate periods in the event of closings is outlined below.

In addition, the academic calendar includes Saturday, Dec. 22 as an official snow day in the event that the University is closed Dec. 21. This policy goes into effect only if the University is officially closed. The snow day "hot-line" is 545-3630.

If the University is open, all exams are expected to take place as scheduled. Each faculty member should inform his or her class of the planned time and location of the rescheduled final exam in the event of a snow day. All rescheduled exams will be held in the same location as published in the final exam schedule.

If the University is closed until 11:00 a.m.:

Exam Time	Change
8:00 a.m.	~~rescheduled to 6:30 p.m. same day~~
10:30 a.m.	rescheduled to 8:45 p.m. same day
1:30 p.m.	held as originally scheduled
4:00 p.m.	held as originally scheduled
except Dec. 21:
8:00 a.m.	rescheduled to 1:30 p.m. same day
10:30 a.m.	rescheduled to 4:00 p.m. same day

If the University is closed all day but open in the evening:

Exam Time	Change
8:00 a.m.	rescheduled to 6:30 p.m. same day
10:30 a.m.	rescheduled to 8:45 p.m. same day
1:30 p.m.	rescheduled to 6:30 p.m. next exam day
4:00 p.m.	rescheduled to 8:45 p.m. next exam day
except:
1:30 p.m. Dec. 20	rescheduled to 1:30 p.m. Dec. 21
4:00 p.m. Dec. 20	rescheduled to 4:00 p.m. Dec. 21
8:00 a.m. Dec. 21	rescheduled to 6:30 p.m. same day
10:30 p.m. Dec. 21	rescheduled to 8:45 p.m. same day

If the University is closed all afternoon and all evening:

Exam Time	Change
8:00 a.m.	held as originally scheduled
10:30 a.m.	held as originally scheduled
1:30 p.m.	rescheduled to 6:30 p.m. next exam day
4:00 p.m.	rescheduled to 8:45 p.m. next exam day
except Dec. 20:
1:30 p.m.	rescheduled to 1:30 p.m. Dec. 21
4:00 p.m	rescheduled to 4:00 p.m. Dec. 21

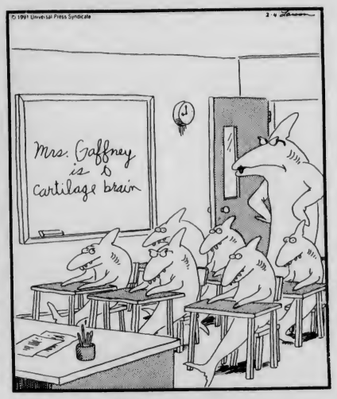
If the University is closed all day and all evening:

Exam Time	Change
8:00 a.m.	rescheduled to 6:30 p.m. next exam day
10:30 a.m.	rescheduled to 8:45 p.m. next exam day
1:30 p.m.	rescheduled to 6:30 p.m. exam day after next
4:00 p.m	rescheduled to 8:45 p.m. exam day after next
except:
8:00 a.m. Dec. 19	rescheduled to 6:30 p.m. Dec. 20
10:30 a.m. Dec. 19	rescheduled to 8:45 p.m. Dec. 20
1:30 p.m. Dec. 19	rescheduled to 1:30 p.m. Dec. 21
4:00 p.m. Dec. 19	rescheduled to 4:00 p.m. Dec. 21
8:00 a.m. Dec. 20	rescheduled to 1:30 p.m. Dec. 21
10:30 a.m. Dec. 20	rescheduled to 4:00 p.m. Dec. 21
1:30 p.m. Dec. 20	rescheduled to 6:30 p.m. Dec. 21
4:00 p.m. Dec. 20	rescheduled to 8:45 p.m. Dec. 21
8:00 a.m. Dec. 21	rescheduled to 8:00 a.m. Dec. 22
10:30 a.m. Dec. 21	rescheduled to 10:30 a.m. Dec. 22

DOONESBURY
By GARRY TRUDEAU

UNHH...
RAY? RAY, YOU OKAY, MAN?
UNNH... MY LEG! DAMN!
DON'T MOVE, RAY. BE COOL. LET ME CHECK IT OUT...
IS IT.. IS IT SERIOUS?
AFRAID SO, MAN...
YESSS! I'M OUTTA HERE!
WELL, YOU DON'T HAVE TO SCOOT ABOUT IT, RAY

THE FAR SIDE
By GARY LARSON



CALVIN AND HOBBES
By BILL WATTERSON

TOO STRICT!
HOME NOW! NO!
CALVIN'S Dad UNFAIR
LATER BEAT TIMES FEMER Baths
Eggad! Bad Dad!
NO ONE ELSE AT THE OFFICE TALKS ABOUT THIS KIND OF THING.

FROTTER
By GARRY PORTER

I THINK I WANT JUST A LITTLE HAIR TUT IN.
THEN I'D LIKE A FACIAL AND A MANICURE.
THIS IS MY FIRST DATE SINCE HAROLD LEFT, YA KNOW.
GAWD, WHO COULD SHE HAVE GOTTEN TO GO OUT WITH HER?
I GOTTA GET RID OF ALL THESE HAIRS... DON'T WANT TO BE GETTING HAIR PITS TONIGHT...

SNOOKY LANSON
By R. SHAUGHNESSY & E. VEZINA

SO YOUR DAD BRIBED THE ADMISSIONS OFFICER TO GET YOU INTO COLLEGE. PLEASE... TELL ME MORE, SNOOKY.
WELL, THE BEST PART ABOUT IT IS THAT I'LL GET TO MEET HUNDREDS OF NEW PEOPLE IN COLLEGE WHO HAVE NO CLUE AS TO HOW MUCH OF A TOTAL LOSER I WAS IN HIGH SCHOOL
...AND NOW I CAN POSSIBLY PUT AN END TO THESE SEVEN YEARS OF THERAPY! IN FACT, I'M GOING TO A PARTY AFTER ORIENTATION TONIGHT!
ORIENTATION PARTY
EMPTIES

TANGELO PIE
By TIM SNIFFEN

This is fake.
IT IS NOT!
This says you're Thad Dundorf of the Fiji Islands.
YEAH, SO?
This says you're 58.
LORD, CAN'T AN OLD MAN GET A DRINK NOWADAYS?

QUOTE OF THE DAY

"If God had meant us to have group sex, he'd have given us more organs."

— Malcolm Bradbury

DAILY CROSSWORD PUZZLE
Edited By TRUDE MICHEL JAFFE

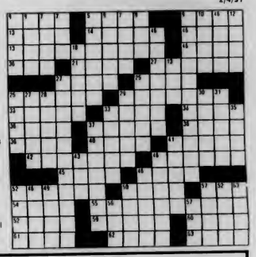
ACROSS
1 Floral necklaces
5 Special performance
9 Geologic divisions
13 Farm unit
14 Bouquet
16 Stet's opposite
17 Lamb Chop's puppeteer
19 Portal
20 Offspring
21 Decays
22 Downhill race
24 Place or plug starter
25 De Niro's "— Hunter"
26 Less than dense
29 Kind of exercise
32 Supreme Being of Islam
33 Louver
34 Severed or Clapton
36 Gather wool
37 Otter's for a price
38 Network
39 Sicilian site
40 Malayan dagger
41 Plummer's "— of God"
42 Fabric edge
44 Kinds
45 Learning
46 Moran or Gray
47 Boat basin
50 "I cannot tell —"
51 "— was saying ..."
54 Cry of lament
55 Howdy Doody's — sidekick
58 Yugoslav statesman
59 Flight feature
60 Code letter
61 Comedian Laurel
62 Coastal flyers
63 Kind of admiral

DOWN
1 Sweetheart
2 Reverberate
3 Present Persia
4 Sun. lecture
5 In abundance
6 Mountain ridge
7 Highs and —
8 Friend, in France
9 Charlie McCarthy's straight man
10 Genuine
11 Choir voice
12 Appear
15 Voices
18 Like Saint Patrick
23 Simba
24 Kukla and Olbe's puppeteer
25 Bargains
26 Alike
27 Schemes
28 Without escort
29 "Kate and —"
30 Good night girl of song
31 Quoted
33 Twilled fabric
35 Luck, to 18 Down
37 Beetles
41 Prospero's servant
43 Wernher — Braun
44 Tobacco pipes
46 Mischievous
47 Gym gear
48 Touched down
49 Pro —
50 From a distance
51 — baker, charlie
52 Couch
53 Construction beam
56 Shoshonean
57 Rowboat propeller

ANSWER TO PREVIOUS PUZZLE:

H	E	A	L			U	C	E	A	N		F	A	T	E
E	L	L	A		S	H	A	D	E		O	N	E	R
A	L	P	H	A	B	E	T	S		T	A	R	T	E	R
P	E	E	R	L	E	S	S			A	T	E	M	S
			S		S			B	A	R
C	A	R	R	O	T		B	A	L	L		H	S	T
A	L	A	I				B	A	I	N		E	A	R
S	E	C	O	N	D	E	S	T		G	R	A	D	E
E	R			A	R	I	A			B	R	I	E
S	T	S		T	A	N	K		B	A	I	T	E	D
			M	U	M	S		L	E	G
L	A	T	E	R		S	E	R	R	A	T	E	D
A	N	O	T	E		A	T	T	H	E	D	E	P	A	R
I	N	G	E			C	R	A	T		S	A	A	R
D	E	A	R			T	E	A	R	S		E	S	T	E

2/4/91



MENU

LUNCH	DINNER
Duchess Meat Pie	Basil Chicken
Turkey Sandwich	Glazed Ham
BASICS LUNCH	BASICS DINNER
Turkey Swiss Sandwich	Cheese Spinach Squares
Tomato Egg Cress Sandwich	Zesty Basil Chicken

YOUR DAILY HOROSCOPE
By JEANE DIXON

ARIES (March 21-April 19): Avoid flaunting your creative ideas today or others could appropriate them. A faraway friend takes on greater importance. Do not let this relationship interfere with your marriage.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20): Be careful not to take anyone or anything for granted. Creative projects are favored. New ventures have the smell of success. Curb a tendency to spend more than you can afford.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20): Focus on improving your financial security. Consult experts. Your busy social life could interfere with career progress. Correct this situation immediately. Work at a steady pace.

CANCER (June 21-July 22): Your health gets a boost when you spend more time outdoors. Continue to curb unnecessary spending. Major financial moves are best postponed. You need up-to-date information.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22): Capitalize on an unusual business opportunity. Short trips are favored. You find yourself attracted to a young person. Go slow. Others admire your ability to work well under pressure.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22): Social contacts play an increasingly important role in your success. Postpone signing contracts. A member of the opposite sex feels strongly about your relationship.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22): Do not get lost in the shuffle. Make waves! Write letters to key people and join a group of "live wires" who share your concerns. Focus on replacing bad habits with good ones.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21): Your enthusiasm for your work returns. In spite of a recent setback, you are able to forge ahead. Contact former employers if you are seeking a career change. A love affair could be short-lived.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21): You attract sensitive, idealistic people. Do not worry; they are not the clinging-vine type. Explore the unknown; doing so could lead to more money and a healthier lifestyle.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19): Romance takes a backseat to your career now. A business deal offers you special rewards. Capitalize on an unusual opportunity. Evaluate your ties to coworkers and professional organizations.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18): Be more daring when presenting ideas to higher-ups. Travel is part of the picture. Sound out influential people when looking for ways to make money.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20): Good luck comes when least expected. Pursue financial ventures that will let your family live more comfortably. Ski trips, fireside suppers and museum outings hold special appeal.

Paris

CONTINUED FROM PAGE 7

just as exciting as its destination. His lyrics tread over familiar ground ("Scarface" "Groove" and "Mellow Madness") and break new ground ("Panther Power" and "Escape from Babylon"). All the while he stalks and walks like a man with a mission. In the title track he raves "Then [I] spit on your flag and government/'Cause help to black was a concept never met./Nigga please, food stamps and free cheese/Can't be the cure for a sick disease." Passing judgement on his academic colleague ("Wretched"), he explodes, "So flip on your Young MC/Or Jazzy Jeff or whatever the case may be./Mindless music for the masses makes ya'/Think less of the one that hates ya." Of course, he provides his own reading of Yusef Hawkins/Bensonhurst fiasco ("The Hate That Made Hate"): "Jealous 'cuz your girlfriends's screwin' a black man/so you bust caps on an innocent bystand./But I guess we all look the same/A goddam shame you don't know my name./ Must've just been two blacks on the payback/who fit the ID for someone like me." Regardless if you agree with the man, he manages to make his point heard.

The third and last thing: it's that voice. He could rap Republican Party dental records and make ya listen. Granted the lyrical style is straight out of the Rakim school of smooth and deep delivery. But still, Paris' subdued approach works so well that, dare I say, Rakim the old school master himself could learn a thing or two from listening to the album. Especially ear-catching is the man's exposition of the party 10 point program in "Escape from Babylon." When he says, "All black men exempt from military service/Hear my words and you get nervous," You do.

While Paris has claimed in interviews to lack the time for anyone "save Public Enemy and some X-Clan," this album was clearly not created in a vacuum. The beats thump with a thick bass and DJ Mad backs the P-Dog up with clean scratches and samples in the old-school tradition. Ignoring the dynamic lyrics, the music and beats do meld together — making many tracks on the album sound alike. Of course, these claims can be leveled against a lot of good rap (and much of the folk and protest music world as well). As a whole, the beats and melodies are solid and provide a dopechillyfunkopotomous (pick your fav adjective) backing to the 50-minute tirade. And dig that breaks in "Mellow Madness."

Now, The Devil Made Me Do It is not a perfect album. Probably the most serious criticism that can be brought against this LP is its near exact replication of Eric B and Rakim's style. Listening to, for example, "Follow the Leader" made me wonder at times which vocalist was which. In itself, that ain't too bad. In fact, in a genre that relies so heavily on borrowing from previous artists, criticisms of duplication put any critic on already shaky ground. Bearing in mind that The Devil represents our man's first piece of wax, one can see much promise in this twenty three year old's career. Simply put, were he to move away from EB&R imitation and more toward his own style, he'd probably get more of the critical acclaim that he deserves.

As James Brown said, "Ain't nuthin but a party, y'all."

MANDATORY SPORTS STAFF MEETING WEDNESDAY FEBRUARY 6 4:00 p.m.

New writers/columnists welcome!

FREE PIZZA

Special offer for UMass students!

Student checking free for a year!

Open a BayBank checking account today, and you'll pay no normal monthly service charges for one full year. Plus, you'll enjoy the unmatched convenience of the BayBank Card—chosen by more Massachusetts students than any other. Only the BayBank Card lets you—

- Bank 24 hours a day at over 1,000 X-Press 24* banking machines on campus and around the state.
- Access up-to-the-minute account information with unique Card features like Account Update™ and Check Update™.
- Get cash where you shop, with over 200 BayBank X-Press 24 CASH* machines at convenience stores and supermarkets in Massachusetts.
- Get cash when you travel at over 50,000 NYCE® and CIRRUS® automated teller machines nationwide.

So look for us on campus—or stop by our Amherst office and open your free account today!*

* Offer good Monday, January 21 through Friday, February 15, 1991

Limited time offer!

Amherst office:
75 East Pleasant Street
(corner of Triangle and East Pleasant Streets)
24-Hour Customer Service Center:
586-8600

NOBODY DOES IT BETTER™

Member FDIC

AMHERST CINEMA
Now Playing
THE RUSSIA HOUSE
starring
Sean Connery & Michelle Pfeiffer
Mon-Thurs. One show 7:30
Fri, Sat, Sun 7:00 and 9:15
student discount with valid I.D. $3.00

Now Open in Town!
Taste of India Palace Restaurant
Accept Visa/MC
Reservations Accepted

28 Main Street, Northampton, MA
584-4892

Interested in being a...
University Tour Guide
Admissions Representative
Summer Counselor
Applications available at the University Admissions Center

OPEN COURSE
Fills BS Gen-Ed
PH 160-My Body My Health
MW 3:30 Lecture: Mahar 108
F Discussion: by arrangement

Sign up: MORRILL 231N

Covers:
Student stress-How to cope
Crime and harassment-Avoidance techniques
Population-Methods of control
Sexually transmitted disease-How to prevent it
Drug and alcohol abuse-Dealing with it
Food-Avoiding disease and toxins
Eating disorders-bulemia and anorexia
Environmental disease-Mutagens, cancer and others

Massachusetts, 82-65

Boston University (65)
Holden 3-6 2-2 9; Davy 2-6 2-2 6; Scott 3-12 3-4 9; Daly 1-7 2-2 4; Stewart 9-21 2-5 24; Jarvis 2-2 0-0 5; Olmstead 1-2 0-0 2; Manolopoulos 1-3 0-0 3; Rosu-Myles 0-1 3-4 3. Totals 22-60 14-19 65.
Massachusetts (82)
Herndon 2-4 2-2 6; Tate 1-1 0-3 2; Williams 8-10 5-9 21; Giles 7-11 5-6 24; McCoy 8-15 2-4 18; Brown 1-3 5-6 7; Anderson 0-0 0-0 0; Meyer 0-2 0-0 0; Grodski 1-1 0-0 2; K. Robinson 1-1 0-0 2; C. Robinson 0-0 0-0 0; Firmin 0-1 0-0 0. Totals 29-49 19-30 82.
Halftime UMass 37, BU 31. Three-point Goals Giles (5), Stewart (4), Holden, Jarvis, Manolopoulos. Fouled Out Scott, Herndon. Rebounds BU 25 (Scott 8), UMass 42 (Williams, Giles 8). Assists BU 10 (Davy, Jarvis 3), UMass 21 (Brown 6). Total Fouls BU 24, UMass 16. A - 4,058 cap.

Massachusetts, 70-67 (OT)

Rhode Island (67)
Leslie 4-17 6-7 14; Samuel 4-12 8-12 16; Kent 7-14 0-0 16; Cofield 0-1 0-0 2; Easterling 1-1 0-1 2; Brown 2-5 2-2 6; Collins 5-10 3-4 13; Moten 0-1 0-0 0. Totals 23-61 19-26 67.
Massachusetts (70)
Herndon 6-11 3-6 15; Tate 1-2 0-0 2; Williams 8-10 0-0 16; Giles 5-12 4-4 17; McCoy 8-17 1-7 17; Brown 1-6 0-0 3; Anderson 0-0 0-0 0; Meyer 0-1 0-0 0; K. Robinson 0-0 0-0 0; C. Robinson 0-0 0-0 0. Totals 29-59 8-17 70.

Halftime URI 35, UMass 26. Regulation URI 23, UMass 32. Overtime URI 9, UMass 12. Three-point Goals Giles (3), Kent (2), Brown. Fouled Out Williams. Rebounds URI 46 (Kent 10), UMass 33 (Herndon 9). Assists URI 11 (Easterling 4), UMass 12 (Brown 5). Total Fouls URI 17, UMass 19. A - 4,058 cap.

Get Ready for MAY now!

EXPLORE THE OPPORTUNITIES

Recent graduates who are now Executive Trainees with the May Department Stores Company will be returning to campus to discuss our Executive Training Program with interested students. Stop by .... bring your resume (if you have one) and find out more about opportunities in retailing.

Wednesday, February 6, 1991
11:00-4:30 p.m.
School of Management
Faculty Lounge

ALL MAJORS WELCOME

FILENE'S
G.FOX
The May Department Stores Company

DIVISION OF CONTINUING EDUCATION

Think Spring!

A perfect time for renewal and new beginnings.

University of Massachusetts at Amherst
Spring 1991

Renew your life goals, your career, or your personal life. Over 200 fresh credit courses and Adventures in Lifelong Learning workshops are being hatched at UMass this spring.

Late register through February 11.

Classes start January 29.

For more information, contact the Division of Continuing Education, Goodell Building, or call 545-2414.

DIVISION OF CONTINUING EDUCATION

CLASSIFIEDS

COME TO THE COLLEGIAN OFFICE—CC 113 MON — THURS 8:30-3:30 ● DEADLINE 2 DAYS PRIOR TO PUBLICATION ● CASH IN ADVANCE, 20¢/WORD/DAY FOR STUDENTS

ACTIVITIES

25+ CLUB BUSINESS MEETING. Tuesday, 2/5, 7PM, Campus Center Room 802

LESBIAN BISEXUAL GAY ALLIANCE General Meeting Feb 5 6:15PM Campus Center Check schedule by elevators for room All welcome!

RUN FOR RUNAWAYS
12th Annual Roadrace
Staff Meeting tonight 7pm
Newman Center

ANDREA NEWMAN

HAPPY 22nd BIRTHDAY
Sorry its late
You're a wonderful amazing person or at least that's what you tell me. I hope I will see you more our last semester.
Love ya
Your favorite roomate (or so I tell you)
Jean

ANNOUNCEMENTS

AEROBICS NAUTILUS STAIRMASTERS Lifecycles, freeweights, treadmill, gravitron, step-classes, karate. Amherst athletic club. 256-0080

BED AND BREAKFAST- downtown ideal for visiting parents and friends- 549-0733.

CARIBBEAN- $189! The warmth of the Caribbean or Mexican coast for a week. R/T Air Sunhitch + m 212-864-2000.

HOUSE MUSIC
Is here from the underground. John, DJ. Tapes- 549-5316

HEY! Get your recycled note pads loose-leaf and spiral notebooks at the Residential Recycling Program Table on the Campus Center Concourse. All proceeds benefit the expansion of the Recycling Program in the Residence Halls. Call 5-1153 for more info

OPEN THE DOOR

To an exciting and challenging career.
Let Cigna Corporation show you how as we discuss actuarial career opportunities. To learn more about this challenging field, plan to attend a meeting at which life actuaries will discuss career opportunities at CIGNA. Members of all classes are welcome. Limited summer intern and full-time positions in both Connecticut and Philadelphia are available
Pizza and refreshments will be served
Dress is casual
Date: February 5, 1991
Time: 7:00-8:30 pm
Place: Mather Career Center

SHOFARI THE FIVE college newspaper will hold its first group meeting February 4, 1991, 8:00pm at the UMASS Hillel House, 388 No. Pleasant Street. All live college area students are welcome. Applications will be accepted for all positions. For further information please contact Rick Probstein 549-2903

THE NORTHEAST AMERICAN ballet and jazz ensemble will hold a dance audition for new members on Saturday, February 9th at 3:00pm at 25 Main St. Northampton- top floor above Fitzwilliams. Call 584-8521

AUTO FOR SALE

1986 PLYMOUTH HORIZON 6GK, excellent condition, going overseas, asking $1800, call 549-8337

1987 HONDA CIVIC CRX, Emaculate condition, 67000 miles, moon roof, Blaupunct Stereo, New Tires, $4300 Call Mac 253-4070

CHEN STYLE TAI CHI

COME LEARN THIS earliest form of Tai Chi which features slow/fast, soft/vigorous empty/solid movements. Class begins Feb 5 and 7. Call 253-4057

COLLEGE PRO PAINTERS

IS SEEKING highly motivated UMass Students who would like the opportunity to earn $10,000 this summer running their own painting business. No previous painting experience is required and all majors are welcome to apply. There will be an informal information session on Tuesday Feb 5 at 7PM in Campus Center room 811. For more details call 1-800-346-4649

FOR RENT

LARGE BEDROOM in 3 bedroom apt- Pulfton Village 235/month 1 or 2 people (women preferred). Call 549-5947 Poonam or call-soon 549-3745 and leave message on machine.

ONE BEDROOM available in Gilreath Apt $175/mo + utilities. Preferably undergrad male Call 549-1691.

ROOMATE NEEDED for large bedroom in Pulfton. $151 00/month. Very low electric bill. Heat included. Call 549-2930, ask for Mark.

SINGLE ROOM in beautiful house. 15 miles from campus. All appliances. Study hard, party hard with us. Non-smoker. 230+ util. 549-4211

WINTER SPECIAL: 1 month rent .99 cents with one year lease
2 bedroom- $450
3 bedroom- $537
Sunderland. Free bus route, laundry facilities, swimming pool, garden plots, short term lease available.
665-3856

FOR SALE

BROKEN MINOLTA EP350 Photocopier for sale! Approx. $200 to repair. Best offer Call Jeff at 6-4630 or OHAG 5-3185.

GREEN IGUANA & 30 gal tank setup. Vegetarian, very friendly, easy care 546-1056

IBM COMPUTER, HARD drive 640k ram, graphics card and printer, $1000 253-5734

LETTER QUALITY PRINTER
Mint condition
Print Buffer
Daisy Wheel 35LPS Citizen
120 Columns Ask $325
Call Wayne 584-7648

HELP WANTED

9-$15 HOURLY AVERAGE
Sell art reproduction (prints) part time at school. low key, management at some schools, National publisher Call toll-free 1-800-221-2229

BABYSITTER NEEDED FOR fun 2½ year old. Flexible day/evening hours. Nonsmoker/car please. 253-0660 9am-9pm

EARN $300 to $500 per week reading books at home. Call 1-615-473-7440 ext B 281

EARN $500-$1500/WK part-time, stuffing envelopes in your home. For free information, send a long, self-addressed, stamped envelope to: P.O. Box 4645 Dept P145 Alburquerque NM 87196

INTELLIGENCE JOBS. All branches. US Customs, DEA ect. Now hiring. Call 1-805-962-8000 Ext. K-9616.

WANTED: TOUR GUIDES. summer counselors, student admissions representatives. Applications available at Admissions Center

INSTRUCTION

EARN CREDIT learn to Scuba Dive. Basic Classes held Monday, Tuesday, Wednesday, and Thursday 7-10PM in Curry Hicks Pool. Open Water II class held during Spring Break in Key Largo, FLA. Advanced Class held in New England in April. For further information call 549-8401, or drop by Curry Hicks starting 2/4/91

GUITAR LESSONS with Doug Hewitt. Rock, Blues, Folk. Acoustic or Electric. Improv., Theory, Reading, Songwriting, many new songs...plus singing. Studio on 3 bus lines. 549-1938

JAPAN AMERICA CLUB

FIRST GENERAL MEETING
Wednesday February 6th at 7:00pm
Campus Center 165-9
Meet everyone again
Fun and Elections

LOST

BLACK W/GREEN LEATHER WALLET
Possibly lost in Salem Place P-Lot
It found please call 256-3437
No questions asked
Please call there are sentimental pictures inside

LAST SEMESTER JAZZ gold watch 546-2964

PERSONALS

INTERESTED in Christian Fellowship? The Alliance Christian Fellowship welcomes you! More info: Jim or Beth 253-7206

MURRY F
Happy Birthday! Whattaya stupid or are you just from "planet of the dopes"? or is it you know da-daddy? Oh, I get it just cuz" your brain's still smokin'! Oh, here it comes the LOOK! Did you shave today? TIP

Love,
Myrna
AKA Pokey

ROOMMATE WANTED

YO!! MALE ROOMMATE WANTED to share Brandywine apt $193.75/mo Heat/hot water incl. Be koool 549-0181

SERVICES

STUDY ABROAD IN AUSTRALIA
Information on semester, summer, J-term graduate and internship programs. All programs run under $6000. Call Curtin University at 1-800-878-3696

SPECIAL ANNOUNCEMENT

ATTENTION UMASS STUDENTS
Explore self and personal issues through psychodrama in a safe confidential setting. Group meets Tuesdays 7-8:30PM starting 2/12/91 for 10 weeks. No fee. Register- Call Mark locally at 665-3678

DELIVERED: CLASSES, DORMS, FRATS
Inexpensive
Professional
546-2263

SPRING BREAK

SPRING BREAK PARTY!
Travel to Jamacia, Mexico! And Panama City Fl.! Concerts! Free Parties! Club discounts! And lots more! For info call Denise 546-7156

SUMMER SUBLET

TWO BEDROOM PUFFTON apartment available for the summer call now! Leave message on machine 549-5990

TRAVEL

FLORIDA'S NEWEST HOT SPOT
Panama City-$139
* * * * * * *
World's Biggest Beach PARTY
Daytona Beach-$189
Call Erika + Julie at 546-7649
or Siobhan + Terri at 546-5079

MONTREAL WEEKENDS $89 price includes round trip motorcoach 3days 2nights Hotel suite, breakfast free admission to club metropoliss
RELIABLE TOURS
365 Broadway Rt. 1
Lynnfield, MA 01940
617-598-9936

WAKE-N-BAKE!!! Spring Break '91!! Jamaica/Cancun from $459.00!! A week of fun and sun! The hottest destinations 1-800-426-7710

SPORTS

Women's swimming romps UNH

By CHRIS MIRACLE
Collegian Staff

The University of Massachusetts women's swimming team was victorious yet again Saturday as the Minutewomen pounded New Hampshire 167-133.

The Minutewomen were all business taking first place in the first three events, establishing an early lead — one they would not relinquish.

In the 400-yard medley relay, the team of Kiri Binning, Jennifer Saunders, Laurie Schwarz and Denise Reimer combined for a winning time of 4:11.31, more than a second ahead of the Wildcats who placed second.

Continuing the string of firsts, Kim Broad finished ahead of UNH's Heather Benoit in the 1,000 freestyle in 10:54.75. Binning enjoyed first place honors again in the 200 freestyle in a time of 2:00.26, increasing UMass' lead to 34-21.

"I was extremely pleased with the way we swam today," UMass coach Bob Newcombe said.

The Wildcats would not bow their heads in defeat easily, though. UNH's Shanon Doherty edged out Kari Edwardsen in the 100 backstroke by 13 seconds to take first. Minutewoman Barbara Banks finished third in 1:03.76.

UNH came as close as it could to taking the lead in the 100-meter breastroke. Maureen Hartnett and Karen Lutomski shined for the Wildcats as they won first and second, respectively. Amy Lewis took third (1:14.43), but with the disqualification of Saunders, UMass clung to only a one point advantage.

"After the breastroke, we were tired," Newcombe said. "All three of UNH's breastrokers are very good."

The Minutewomen regrouped, though, displaying a one-two finish in the 200 fly by Jackson and Schwarz. Jackson's time of 2:12.49 was her personal best as was Broad's fourth place time of 2:19.04.

After the 50 free, the meet was in the bag for the Minutewomen. Kim Morin won the event in 25:38 followed by teammate Reimer who placed second (25.61).

"I was never worried during the meet," Newcombe said. "This was our best ever against UNH."

In the diving events, UMass' Allison White stayed true to form, winning both the 1-meter (235.13) and 3-meter (211.43) contests. UNH's Wendy Roosevelt took second in the 1-meter while Wildcat Karen Palmer finished second in the 3-meter.

In the remaining events of the meet, the Minutewomen took four first places. Binning won the 200 back (2:12.97), Jackson won the 500 free (5:17.16) and Schwarz took the 200 individual medley with a 2:18.87 finish. Morin, Jackson, and Reimer combined for a time of 1:42.29 in the 200 free relay.

Bold Strokes More personal bests were produced in the final events for the Minutewomen by Stefanie Souto (5:55.98) in the 500 free, Amy Bloomstein (5:39.06) also in the 500 free and Lori Sheehan (1:03.51) in the 100 fly. Carolyn Curran's time in the 200 free (2:07.47) qualified her for the New England Championships.

Women's track remains undefeated

By DAN WETZEL
Collegian Staff

The undefeated University of Massachusetts women's track team (11-0) had another successful day on Saturday as they defeated Bowdoin College and the University of Lowell at Brunswick, Maine.

Last weekend the team defended its Bates Invitational Championship by outperforming the likes of Dartmouth, Maine and New Hampshire.

They will try to keep the momentum rolling when they compete against Rhode Island and New Hampshire next week.

Is there a possibility of a perfect season for UMass?

"There is a chance we could do it," coach Julie LaFreniere said. "However, URI has a strong team and we will have to perform well."

Those performances will likely come from people like Kelly Liljeblad, who won two events yesterday. Liljeblad ran the 1,500-meter in 4:37.7, fast enough to qualify her to compete in the Eastern Collegate Athletic Conference Championships. She also won the 3,000.

"Kelly is running fabulous right now," LaFreniere said. "She had no competition in the race and it will be fun to watch her when someone is pushing her."

Lee Ann Ambrose also won two events, the 200 (26.0) and 400 (56.4). Both times set Bowdoin Field House records.

Also performing well was Samone Marisseau who set a personal record in the shot put. Marisseau threw the shot 41 feet, 5 inches — just one inch shy of the ECAC qualifying distance.

"Samone will definately make it." LaFreniere said. "She is capable of throwing that far and should make it soon."

Cathy Crocker also had a big day, finishing second in both the 1,500 and 3,000.

Lennice Johnson took home two second place finishes in the 200 and 400.

Wendy Gillette, Tana Henderson, Lee Ann Ambrose and Johnson won the 4 x 200 relay in a time of 1:47.9.

"I am very happy with the team right now," LaFreniere said. "We are performing well."

Collegian photo by Carrie Wyeth

Junior Will Herndon attempts a shot under the net up against Boston University's Jason Scott early Sunday morning. UMass barked down the Terriers to a 82-65 deficit as the nation watched the midnight contest on ESPN.

ESPN brings out best of UMass

By SAM SILVERSTEIN
Collegian Staff

Sunday morning, as ESPN's enormous mobile antennae beamed the University of Massachusetts-Boston Universiy men's basketball game across the country from the Cage, it was not business as usual on the court and in the stands.

The cameras brought out school spirit and patriotic fervor. Hundreds of students wore red and white face paint, and a popular variation featured red, white and blue stars and stripes. Many appeared with single letters painted on their chests, as parts of human message boards.

Students mustered a pregame chant of 'Hey-Hey, Ho-Ho, Saddam Hussein has got to go." When the band played the national anthem, students carrying American flags swarmed the court.

Fans stayed on their feet as Rafer Giles was presented with a basketball commemorating his 1,000th career point, scored on the last shot of Friday night's game.

"I thought the crowd was outstanding," coach John Calipari said. "If we can do this every game we've got a great advantage . . .

"It was great for Amherst, and it was great for the University. Unless you're a cynic, you'd have to look at this as something positive . . .

"We've got to do some things to let people know what we've got here. Basketball is an important way of bringing up the morale of the campus. People don't know how special a place this is and what strides this program has made."

The players noted the difference as well.

"If you stop to think about the cameras you mess up," Harper Williams said. "I didn't do anything different . . . except for a few facial expressions."

"This is the most fun I've had in a game in a while. The crowd was really into it and I think everybody was having fun," said John Tate, who admitted to suffering some extra pre-game jitters.

"I cleaned my room I had so much nervous energy . . . it was a lot different.

Hoop bows to Rutgers, 62-26

By GREG SUKIENNIK
Collegian Staff

When the No. 8 team in the nation meets a team in a rebuilding year with no wins, you expect a blowout of immense proportions.

What you don't expect is that the losing team would hold the nationally-ranked power to 62 points on 35 percent shooting.

But that's exactly what the University of Massachusetts women's basketball team managed to do Saturday afternoon. And while the Minutewomen (now 0-18) had their own problems on offense in a 62-26 loss to Rutgers in Piscataway, N.J., they did manage to keep the Lady Knights from lighting up the scoreboard.

"We played very, very good defense," said a pleased UMass coach Kathy Hewelt. "The fact that we were able to hold them the way we did indicates some effort on our part."

A continued effort was exerted by senior captain Keyburn McCusker who hit her 1,000th career point during the second half of Saturday night's game. She finished with 8 points for the game.

The Lady Knights, however, took the golden rule to heart, "doing unto others," by limiting UMass to a bad 21 percent field goal percentage on 10 for 47 shooting. Hewelt attributed those numbers to Rutgers' physical style of play.

"The number of fouls speaks for itself," indicated Hewelt. Only 20 fouls were called for the entire game, and of the 14 committed by Rutgers, none were whistled on frontcourt players.

"Their physical play did affect my game," noted UMass forward Lisa Ireland. "They're so big, and they're really good shot-blockers."

UMass' defensive strategy was to keep Rutgers away from their inside game, forcing them to beat the Minutewomen from outside, Hewelt said. And that strategy worked until the second half.

Up 29-15 at halftime, the Lady Knights clamped down on UMass defensively and came alive on offense, outscoring the Minutewomen 43-11 in the second to put the game away.

"They really picked up their defensive intensity in the second half," explained Ireland. "We weren't taking a lot of shots, and they made a little run on us."

"In the second, they went to their outside game — which is what we wanted — and they hit some of their shots and opened the game up," Hewelt said.

Another aspect of the Minutewomen's game which improved Saturday was the way they took care of the basketball.

"I was happy with the way we cut down on turnovers," said Hewelt. "They came at us man-to-man the entire game, and we did a much better job. We set good screens, we worked hard, but our shots just weren't falling.

"On our part, the intensity was there, but the skills are not there for us right now, and Rutgers is a good basketball team," she said.

The Minutewomen's next opponent is West Virginia, who will visit the Cage at 7:30 p.m. Thursday.

Rutgers, 62-26

Massachusetts (26)
Kristofik 2-8 0-2 2; Ireland 0-10 4-6 4; McCusker 4-11 0-0 8; Schuster 1-6 0-0 3; Mura 1-5 0-0 3; Nevarez 0-0 0-0 0; Moran 0-3 0-0 0; Valentine 2-3 0-0 4. Totals 10-47 4-8 26.
Rutgers (62)
Picett 3-9 1-2 7; Hansen 3-8 2-4 8; Johnson 2-6 0-2 4; Rodgers 1-4 2-2 4; Ust 2-6 1-2 5; DeRoose 1-3 0-1 3; Cop 4-12 2-2 10; Echols 0-3 0-0 0; V. Green 3-6 2-2 8; Mitchelson 4-7 0-0 8; M. Green 2-7 0-0 5. Totals 25-71 9-17 62.
Halftime Rutgers 29, UMass 15. Three-point goals Mura, Schusler, DeRoose, M. Green. Fouled out none. Rebounds UMass 32 (Ireland 9), Rutgers 59 (Hansen, Johnson, Mitchelson 10). Assists UMass 4, Rutgers 15 (Echols 4). Total Fouls UMass 6, Rutgers 14. A - 1,785.

This Week in Sports

TUESDAY – Women's swimming vs. Mt. Holyoke at 7 p.m. in Boyden
WEDNESDAY – Men's basketball vs. West Virginia at 7:30 p.m. in the Cage
THURSDAY – Women's basketball vs. West Virginia at 7:30 p.m. in the Cage

INTRAMURALS – Basketball (men/women/co-rec) starts today. Bring rosters by the Intramural office, Boyden room 215. The entry deadline for squash (m/w) and wrestling (m/w) is today. Ice hockey (m/w) starts Wednesday. The entry deadline for three-on-three (m/w/c) and the three-point shoot (m/w) is Wednesday. For more information, please call 545-0022.

Largest College Daily in New England

THE MASSACHUSETTS DAILY COLLEGIAN Established in 1890

VOLUME C TUESDAY, FEBRUARY 5, 1991 ISSUE 75

AP photo

U.S. soldiers, on duty manning Patriot missile batteries in the Tel Aviv area, are served their hot meal at lunch Monday. The troops remain on alert for Iraqi launched Scud missiles into Israel.

U.S., Iraq trade fire in Saudi desert

By EDITH M. LEDERER
Associated Press Writer

DHAHRAN, Saudi Arabia (AP) — U.S. and Iraqi forces yesterday traded fire across the desert frontier, and Iran's president made a surprise offer to hold direct talks with both Iraq and the United States to try to end the Persian Gulf War.

Allied warplanes, meanwhile, pounded Baghdad before dawn yesterday. Witnesses said communication centers, government offices and industrial installations were hit — some of them for the second and third times since the war began nearly three weeks ago.

U.S. officials disclosed yesterday that the battleship USS Missouri used its 16-inch guns in action for the first time since the Korean War, targeting prefabricated concrete bunkers that the Iraqis were moving into Kuwait.

The newspaper of Iraq's ruling party boasted the Baghdad government would drag the allies into a drawn-out ground war by staging more attacks like last week's Iraqi push into the Saudi town of Khafji.

"Combat on the Saudi periphery should be based on the hit-and-run tactic formulated by our ancestors," the newspaper Al-Thawra said yesterday.

For the moment, Iraqi forces appeared to be in a defensive posture. The U.S. military said Iraqi troops were deeply dug in, seeking shelter from punishing allied air attacks. Those attacks continued yesterday, with F-15s and Tornadoes roaring north into hazy skies from a Saudi air base.

The allied air strikes have been so effective that senior Iraqi officers are moving their headquarters into schools because "they know we're not going to attack civilian targets," the commander of Operation Desert Storm said.

Asked whether that inhibited the air campaign, Gen. H. Norman Schwarzkopf said yesterday, "in all probability, yes." But he said he was not concerned.

The general also said he hopes Iraq's claim of 321 civilian casualties from allied bombing was correct.

"I'd hope that reflects exactly what I've been saying all along," Schwarzkopf said. "I would also say that if the number's only 321 I'm quite encouraged by that, because if they follow the same policies with regard to that as they've followed on everything else, you can divide by 10."

French warplanes hit Republican Guard positions in southern Iraq and Kuwait yesterday, and British Royal Air Force bombers attacked bridges in Iraq and a large barracks and a Silkworm missile site in Kuwait.

CONTINUED ON PAGE 2

Fans rush doors at basketball game

Four students suffer minor injuries outside Curry Hicks Cage

By ADRIEN MATT
Collegian Staff

Four University of Massachusetts students were treated and released from Health Services early Sunday morning after suffering minor injuries while waiting in line to see the UMass-Boston University men's basketball game.

University police reported the four students were transported by ambulance to the infirmary before the doors to the Curry Hicks Cage Saturday at 10 p.m. The students suffered from hyperventilation and heat exhaustion after the crowd of nearly 1,500 students rushed forward toward the doors and against the wall of the Cage.

"If you didn't have any sort of upper body strength, you really could've gotten hurt out there," said senior Andre Jones, who eventually got into the building. "I saw a girl get kinda hurt, pressed against the inside of the doors, when she came in. I'd definitely say it was dangerous."

Kay Scanlon, UMass spokesperson, said no other students went to Health Services as a result of injuries sustained from the crowd.

Students showed up hours before doors opened and hundreds of students were unable to get into the game, which was televised nationally on ESPN. Cage doors opened at 10 p.m. — two hours prior to the game's midnight start — and were closed when the student section reached its 1,058-person capacity.

"Initially, they had some sort of crowd control set up,

CONTINUED ON PAGE 3

Speculation surrounds Gov. Weld's budget reduction plan

By MARK HENSLEY
Collegian Staff

Speculation continues about how Governor Weld's budget reduction plan will affect higher education, since no details will be released until Weld signs his bill later this week, Representative Stan Rosenberg said yesterday in a telephone interview.

The major points of Weld's proposal that could directly affect higher education are: a 33 percent tuition increase, a 10-day furlough for all state employees, the replacement of the Board of Regents and the Board of Education by an education secretary in Weld's cabinet, the conversion of the $55 million scholarship fund into a loan fund, and the eventual closing of some state colleges.

If the bill passes, it "would make all our public institutions the most expensive of their kind in the country," Rosenberg said. "We would finally be number one at something, but not in a very positive sense."

The tuition increase coupled with the elimination of the scholarship fund would force many students — especially those from lower-income families — out of school, Rosenberg said.

Terry Zoulas of the Board of Regents had a similar point of view and said the plan was "shortsighted" and goes against the tradition, experience and history of public education.

"Every other state in the nation has a statewide board of education," he said, pointing out that the Board of Education has been in existence for 150 years in Massachusetts.

"Changing the governance and structure doesn't address quality. It is a fog which is hiding the real issue of providing quality public education," Zoulas said.

Rosenberg also defended the existence of a statewide board overseeing education but felt it should be restructured.

"It is ignorant to assume that to wipe out the Board of Regents and the Board of Education will mean big savings. You will still need staff to perform tasks, you will only build a new bureaucracy," he said.

Rosenberg said that the Board of Regents should be changed from a governing body to a coordinating body which would assist the campuses but "send the power back to the the trustees and presidents."

As of yesterday afternoon, it was still unclear how the proposed furlough would affect classes at the University and what the exact details of the scholarship fund conversion were, according to Karin Sherbin, University press office spokesperson.

Rosenberg said the implementation of the furloughs would probably be left up to the individual institutions.

CONTINUED ON PAGE 4

Construction on Graduate Lounge underway

By TAMIR LIPTON
Collegian Staff

One year ago the graduate students at the University of Massachusetts began a list of things they wanted. On the list they asked a graduate lounge be built.

After a year-and-a-half, the construction of a Graduate Lounge has begun in the Campus Center.

The cost of the lounge is approximately $28,000, according to Bill Harris, director of the Campus Center.

However, according to Forest Davies, director of Auxilary Services, the cost will be substantially less. "Once construction started, the engineers found that they could save on certain things," Davies said.

The graduate students are paying for half of the lounge and Auxilary Services is paying for the other half, according to Susan Gordon, chairperson of the Board of Governors.

The lounge is being built where the Campus Center Music Room once was. "They wanted a place to interact, with more of a conversational setting," Harris said. "There will be no television, just light background music."

"They [the graduate students] don't have a place to congregate," Gordon said. "The whole campus is catered to the undergraduates."

While the lounge may be where graduates go to meet, undergraduates of age will be allowed in, according to Harris.

"The music lounge was a place where people mostly slept," Gordon said. "The Campus Center is a place for students to get together. Students can sleep in their own beds."

Though some students said they are concerned about noise from the bar carrying into the Reading Room next door, Gordon said this problem will be taken care of.

"There is going to be a barrier built to try and eliminate the noise from the lounge," Gordon said. "We've been careful about the noise issue, and if the barrier is not enough, we will try something else until we get it right."

INSIDE:

TUESDAY, FEBRUARY 5, 1991

Page 3: UMass professor challenges children with philosophical questions.

Page 5: Meredith O'Brien fights the crowd at Saturday's basketball game.

Page 12: Women's gymnastics sweeps Pitt, Yale, Saturday at Boyden.

WEATHER

Warm weather stays but clouds return. High near 50.

■ Middle East

CONTINUED FROM PAGE 1

In the Saudi port city of Jiddah, 9mm pistol or rifle shots were fired at a shuttle bus Sunday night, slightly injuring two U.S. military personnel with flying glass, military officials said yesterday. No one was apprehended.

The military described it as the first such attack on American military personnel in Saudi Arabia.

The new diplomatic effort by Iranian President Hashemi Rafsanjani was reported by Iran's official Islamic Republic News Agency. It said he told a news conference in Tehran he is willing to talk with Iraqi President Saddam Hussein — and with Washington, provided Iran's spiritual leader Ayatollah Ali Khamenei approves.

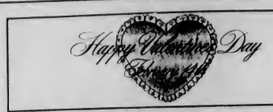
The Iranians have been hostile to the United States since the 1979 Islamic revolution. They also fought a 1980-1988 war with Iraq and have condemned its seizure of Kuwait six months ago.

Rafsanjani said the Swiss have been acting as intermediaries with Washington on other issues and said "the same channel can be used" to start peace talks.

JANET WALERSTEIN WINSTON

STUDENT UNION ART GALLERY•UMASS
METAPHYSICAL CONSTRUCTIONS: MONOPRINTS
FEB 5-21•RECEPTION: FEB 5, 5-7 PM

SPONSORED IN PART BY THE UMASS ARTS COUNCIL



THE MASSACHUSETTS
DAILY COLLEGIAN

New England's largest college daily newspaper. Circulation: 19,000. Published every weekday during the calendar semester. The Massachusetts Daily Collegian is a Registered Student Organization of the University of Massachusetts.

113 Campus Center, Amherst, MA, 01003
Phone (413) 545-3500 FAX (413) 545-1592

STAFF

Editor in Chief....Terry Stanner
Managing Editor....Jody Cabin
Editorial Editor....Jeremy Levinson
News Editor....Gayle Long
Sports Editor....Adrien Matt
Arts Editor....Danielle Dowling
Photography Editor....K.A. Burke
Black Affairs Editor....Sondra Sutton
Women's Issues Editors....Rua Kelly, Monique Tabon
Multicultural Affairs Editor....Alexander Nguyen
Third World Affairs Editor....Pratip Dastidar
Lesbian, Bisexual, Gay Issues Editor....Trystan Skeigh
Business Manager....Susan George
Advertising Manager....Dave Melnick
Finance Manager....Beth Patterson
Circulation Manager....Jim Winterbottom
Subscriptions Manager....Stacy Rogers
Promotions Manager....Marc Pruskin
Production Manager....Nicole Dumas
Day Graphics Manager....Jenn Bams

PROFESSIONAL STAFF

Business....Brian Hannigton, Lori Black, Maureen Majerowski
Graphics....Rory Evans

TODAY'S STAFF

Night Editor....Sam Silverstein
Copy Editor....Jody Cabin
Layout Technician....Rick Seto
Photo Technician....K.A. Burke
Production Supervisor....Rick Seto
Typesetter....Beth Clark
Production....Meg Trudell, Paul Specht, Tania Ivany

get Ready for MAY now!

EXPLORE THE OPPORTUNITIES

Recent graduates who are now Executive Trainees with the May Department Stores Company will be returning to campus to discuss our Executive Training Program with interested students. Stop by .... bring your resume (if you have one) and find out more about opportunities in retailing.

Wednesday, February 6, 1991
11:00-4:30 p.m.
School of Management
Faculty Lounge

ALL MAJORS WELCOME

FILENE'S
G.FOX
The May Department Stores Company

UMASS SKI CLUB

ATTENTION SKIERS!!!

Shred the Bumps with the Ski Club every Saturday.

Find out about trips and other club happenings at our first meeting.

Wednesday, February 6 1991
CC Room 917
7pm to 9pm

UMASS SKI CLUB 430 STUDENT UNION 545-3437

LOCAL

Children explore complex philosophical questions

By KATHRYN CRAWFORD
Collegian Correspondent

Gareth Matthews, professor of philosophy at the University of Massachusetts, studies the philosophy of children and childhood.

In programs in the Massachusetts and Connecticut area, as well as in Scotland, Matthews has challenged elementary students with complex philisophichal questions, ranging from, "What is bravery?" to, "Can you tell a lie without knowing it?"

He raises philosophical issues based on stories and books read in class. The children then draw cards with Matthews' questions based on the readings. They are free to explore a question for as long as they like — or to discard it.

"They might think about it for weeks or months or years, or they might draw another," said Matthews.

Matthews became aware of the viable philosophy of children through everyday interaction with his own young children. While fumigating the cat one summer afternoon, his daughter asked him where the fleas came from.

His answer was that Fluffy probably got them from another cat. "Where did that cat get fleas?" she asked with the persistence of a four-year-old.

He told her that it had probably gotten the fleas in turn from another cat. "But Daddy," she reasoned, "it can't go back like that forever," and they proceeded to discuss matters of infinite regress.

Matthews believes that spontaneous comment of that kind is natural in children until they become well-oriented in school at around the age of seven.

He suggests that this is because society doesn't reward children for asking philosophical questions.

Teachers and parents are accustomed to nurturing and explaining issues to a child, not to discussing ethical questions on equal terms, he says.

Matthews has found that when asked stimulating questions, children will develop standard philosophical positions as they try to explain their point of view. His study of children has validated his belief that philosophy is a natural exercise fundamental to thoughtful human existence and not merely the mental gymnastics of establishment intellectuals.

Gareth Matthews has written two books on the subject: Philosphy and the Young Child and Dialogues with Children. He also writes a column called "Thinking in Stories" for Thinking, a Journal of Philosophy for Children.

Anti-draft speaker describes Conscientious Objector policy

By JOE O'CONNOR
Collegian Correspondent

If the Selective Service reinstates the draft and you have ethical or moral beliefs that oppose participating in war, you will have 10 days from the day your draft notice is mailed to contest it.

This message was told by Bill Galvin, of the Central Committee for Conscientious Objectors, Friday night at Amherst College.

Conscientious objectors must prove their anti-war beliefs before a draft board and fill out a questionnaire that asks what the draftees believe in, how their beliefs developed, and how they apply to their life, Galvin said.

"You don't have to know what you would do in an imaginary situation, and you don't have to be a pacifist," Galvin said. "You just have to be opposed to war."

The Selective Service has already printed the proper forms for swearing in men and named draft boards, according to Galvin.

However, with more than two million U.S. troops in active duty, and another one million in the reserves, "there is roughly one-half million troops in the Gulf now, so we have no shortage of troops," Galvin said.

If Congress were to authorize a draft, the orders for those chosen to go could be received within as little time as three days, Galvin said.

Galvin explained seven exemptions:

- Hardship. Individuals will be exempted if they can prove that entering the military will create extreme difficulties for someone else.
- Clergy. Full-time students pursuing a religious degree and already established ministers of the faith are exempt.
- Unfitness. Draftees may be exempted if they are deemed medically or morally unfit. Convicted felons and some repeat offenders of minor crimes will be deemed "morally unfit."
- Surviving sons. If a member of someone's family died in the military during peacetime, the rest of the family is exempt from the draft.
- Military service. Someone already serving in a branch of the military, such as the National Guard, cannot be drafted.

Veterans and public officials cannot be drafted.

Galvin also spoke of a possible "Doctors' Draft" for health care professionals, which would send qualified medical personnel into the field. Anyone up to 45 could be called, including women, Galvin said.

Sixty years ago this week at UMass. . . .

Photo courtesy UMass Archives/Collegian photo by K.A. Burke

In 1930, students played hockey on a frozen campus pond. Yesterday, record-high temperatures brought out hacky sacks and short sleeves at the Student Union steps.

■ Cage crowd

CONTINUED FROM PAGE 1

but I didn't see any police," said Jones, who arrived at the Cage at 8 p.m. "Between 8 and 10 p.m. [the crowd] got closed up. The footing was real bad. I saw two or three rocks fly over my head. It was getting scarry."

When the doors closed, the hundreds of students still outside began to pound on them and sing the "Star Spangled Banner" and chant, "Let us in."

Of the students who remained in line until midnight, 200 were allowed in after it was determined there were enough unfilled seats in the reserved sections to accommodate them.

"Someone pulled me aside and sold me a general admissions ticket for $10," said senior Mike Bissaillon, who had a red-painted face with UMass in white across the bridge of his nose. "All my friends are here but I don't even know if they got in. They know I'm fanatical about [UMass basketball].

"It did get real crazy," said Thor Bjorn, acting athletic ticket director. "We considered doing barricades, but you never know what's going to happen. More people might have gotten hurt."

Athletic Director Frank McInerney said the rush of the crowd had to do with the ESPN truck and cameras stationed next to the side entrance of the Cage.

"A good part of the problem was the ESPN truck blocking part of the entrance," McInerney said. "The real problem was when [ESPN] turned on the lights and the kids rushed to get on TV."

Deputy Police Chief Jack Luippold said there was a "large contingent of [additional] officers hired specifically for the game." The University Press office reported that 20 police officers were on duty Saturday evening.

"They've got to do something out there," Bissaillon said of the conditions outside early Sunday morning. "The cops are just standing around out there, observing. They are laughing, telling the students to go home."

"The police on duty handled themselves well," Luippold said. "They assisted in calming the crowd . . . when coach [John Calipari] came out into the crowd, it increased the level of anxiousness."

Considering the number of students their level of intensity, "officers on the scene tried to do the best they could," Luippold said. Police estimated the crowd to be 500-800 students.

For Wednesday's UMass-West Virginia basketball game, students with valid student ID's will be issued general admission tickets, Bjorn said. Tickets will be handed out at the student entrance at the rear of the Cage beginning at 5 p.m. The game is scheduled to start at 8 p.m.

McInerney said Bjorn and Luippold will meet to discuss further security measures for the remainder of the UMass home basketball games.

Asked if he would repeat the Midnight Madness on ESPN, McInerney said, "Sure, I'd do it again."

Woman allegedly assaulted in library

By MARK HENSLEY
Collegian Staff

A woman reported Sunday she was assaulted by a man while studying on the 12th floor of the Tower Library. According to police, the matter is still under investigation.

In other events over the weekend:

- A 20-year-old intoxicated man was placed into protective custody after a complaint was received by police at the basketball game Saturday.
- Michael J. Shea, 21, of Norwood, was arrested on Sunset Avenue on Saturday for allegedly trespassing after written notice.
- Police are interviewing witnesses regarding a false fire alarm in Brett residence hall Saturday.
- Michael J. Desaultes, 21 of Greenfield, was arrested Sunday for allegedly operating under the influence of alcohol, after being pulled over for allegedly failing to stop at stop sign and having no registration in possession.
- An 18-year-old man was placed in protective custody on Sunday after allegedly threatening a Residential Assistant in Coolidge residence hall.

■ reduction plan

CONTINUED FROM PAGE 1

Zoulas criticized changing the scholarship fund to a loan fund, saying it would affect students of low-income and lower-middle-income families who "tend not" to take out loans.

"The administration believes that middle-income students are getting a deal in comparison to what students at private institutions pay. They feel they should take the whole burden which goes against the tradition of public education," he said.

Americans pray for peace

(AP) — Americans answered President Bush's call to prayer and went to church to ask God to protect U.S. troops at war.

In San Francisco, the Glide Memorial Methodist Church held a special Sunday service to pray for the troops' safety and an end to the conflict in the Middle East.

"We're trying to stir up a new movement this morning," the Rev. Cecil Williams said pointing to the black and yellow ribbons pinned together in an aide's lapel.

"This is the symbol of direction we're going to take: pro-troops, anti-war," said Williams, who also declared his church a sanctuary for Conscientious Objectors.

At least one congregation, the First Church in Cambridge, ignored the presidential call to prayer and struggled with the question of whether the war is just.

A task force made up of congregants from the 360-year-old Congregationalist church, one of the nation's oldest, tried to formulate a position on the conflict.

"This is a complicated issue, and it's not easy," said task force leader Mark Tappan.

WINNERS' ATHLETIC CLUB

Join Now and Get 1 Month Free

4 months for the price of 3

$130

Includes...
• Nautilus Machines • Lifecycles • Stairmasters • Ski conditioning • Club Cafe
• Aerobics • Liferowers • Saunas • Big Screen Satelite TV • Pro Shop

EXTRA VACATION BONUS
Become a member and receive a FREE vacation voucher. Stay a week in your own condominium (sleeps 4) anywhere you choose for only $295 per week!

Perfect for Spring Break

Call 549-4545

Rte. 116, Sunderland (Opposite Bub's BBQ, on Bus Route)
Open 7 Days • 7:00 a.m.-11:00 p.m.
CALL TODAY FOR A FREE TOUR!

FREE 1991 Student Travel Catalog!

Everything you need to know about:
•Student Travel
• Air Fares
• Rail Passes
• Car Rental/Leasing
•Work Abroad
•Study Abroad
•Int'l Student & Teacher ID & MUCH MORE!!!
CALL for your FREE copy!

Council Travel
79 So. Pleasant St.
Amherst
413-256-1261

Eating Disorder Programs
sponsored by University Health Services
All Single Session — Spring 1991

Eating Disorder Single Session
Drop-in Group — starts Feb. 7 — once a month
1st Thursday, 5:30-6:30 pm
University Health Services, Room 304
Open to anyone. Confidentiality assured.
No advanced sign up needed.

Eating Disorder Treatment Program
For individuals — with Nutritionists, Mental Health Clinician, Physician and/or Nurse Practitioner
Monday or Tuesday — beginning February 4
University Health Services
Call 549-2671, Clinic IV
Confidentiality assured.

Food and Feelings Workshop
Led by Peer Health Educators
To Schedule for your Residence Hall — call 549-2671 x 181

ACADEMICS: DATE OTHERS WHO WORK IN ACADEME

• Low-cost network serving Amherst and other areas in Northeast.
• Run by Ph.D.'s.
• Information is sent in a plain envelope; privacy assured.

Academic Companions•P.O. Box 193 Clinton, NY 13323

Free Speech.

If you're an off-campus student, get the AT&T Calling Card and your first call is free.

There's no better time to speak your mind. Because now when you get your free AT&T Calling Card, you'll get your first 15-minute call free.*

With your AT&T Calling Card, you can call from almost anywhere to anywhere. And you can keep your card, even if you move and get a new phone number.

Our Calling Card is part of the AT&T Student Saver Plus program, a whole package of products and services designed to make a student's budget go farther.

So look for AT&T Calling Card applications on campus. Or call us at 1 800 525-7955, Ext. 655.

And let freedom ring.

AT&T. Helping make college life a little easier.

AT&T The right choice.

*A $300 value for a coast to coast Calling Card call. Applies to customer dialed calls made during the AT&T Night/Weekend calling period, 11pm to 8am, Sunday through Thursday and 11pm Friday through 5pm Sunday. You may receive more or less calling time depending on where and when you call. Applications must be received by December 31, 1991

UMASS ARTS COUNCIL
GRANT PROPOSAL DEADLINE
The next deadline for submission of grant proposals for arts-related projects and events:
Friday, February 22

Guidelines and application forms are available at the Arts Council office and the Student Activities Office

UMass Arts Council
209 Hasbrouck Hall, 545-0202

NOTE: This is the only grant deadline for spring events.

BACK SCHOOL 101

Prerequisite:
Back pain & A REFERRAL* from your UHS provider

This 3 session program (classes one week apart) includes information on exercise, some anatomy, massage, treatment options, posture tips and pain relief methods.

DATES: Tuesdays, February 26, March 5, & 12

TIME: 6:00 - 8:00 pm

PLACE: Room 304 University Health Center

Call UHS Health Education for Information and Registration--549-2671 ext 181

*Please advise your UHS provider for the proper referral

EDITORIAL/OPINION

The opinions on this page are those of the individual writer or cartoonist and do not necessarily reflect the views of the Collegian or the University unless otherwise noted.

The Pentagon's war on words

Pentagonese is jibberish desperately wanting to make some sort of sense. Jargon employed by the Bush administration since the beginning of the war in the Gulf can baffle not only the morons among us. Gone are the days when you can call a wart a wart and words are allowed to sound as ugly as they look.

If we are to judge this war purely by what the Pentagon and the military big cheeses spew out during press briefings, we're in more trouble than we thought. Pentagon people are rumored to have been ordering a record number of Domino's pizzas since the war began. The emerging correlation between pizza intake and nonsensical mumbo-jumbo is becoming more apparent as the war drags on.

Anna Regina Santigo

To keep abreast of the war currently in progress in the Persian Gulf, and to survive CNN, a beginner's lesson in Pentagonese is in order:

COLLATERAL DAMAGE — This is one phrase you'll want to keep in mind throughout this crisis because it's going to be floating around a lot. "Collateral," in this sense, should never be taken to mean repayment for a pledge or loan, like it normally should. Because if you so much as move a muscle while the Allied forces are carpet-bombing Baghdad (and you happen to be in Baghdad and its vicinity), don't expect to live to tell about it, much less serve as a repayment. If you have nothing at all to do with the policies of your government, you will certainly be killed first. You are considered inconsequential, hence the term. The day your parents put you up as collateral for that new house is not far away.

HUMAN REMAINS POUCHES — This could mean a variety of things. A simplistic version of it would be, oh, body bags. But, after all, this is a war of enormous complexity and the words to describe its most gruesome result should be as unclear as possible. "Pouches," if I remember my Sesame Street correctly, belong to kangaroos. And I thought only makers of feminine hygiene products could come up with such cutesy names. Do they also have the "breathable" kind? Do they have it in plain or polka-dotted? Pastel or camouflage? Suddenly, a Hefty bag sounds so vulgar.

LEGITIMATE GOVERNMENT OF KUWAIT — Emirs too disgustingly rich for words who should learn a thing or two about working for their own money.

NEW WORLD ORDER — "We always get what we want, and unless you want to die a slow and painful death, you will comply, won't you?"

SUCCESSFULLY ENGAGED ENEMY TARGETS — To indiscriminately bomb enemy facilities and anything that moves within a 50-mile radius — that is, if the bomb didn't decide to wander off somewhere else — thereby rendering them impotent. Or at least to slightly bruise the enemy enough to allow the attacking forces a two-minute head start.

SCUD MISSILES — Refer to the intricate process of "wandering aimlessly" discussed above.

PATRIOT ANTI-MISSILE MISSILES — Tour guide for missiles that have no idea where they're going.

WE ARE NOT IN THE BUSINESS OF TARGETING INDIVIDUALS — If we see a moustache, we're shooting!

THIS IS NOT ANOTHER VIETNAM — We found an even more stupid excuse not to have to feed our hungry, house the homeless and take care of the sick first. Nothing is impossible.

WAR TERMINATION — Could it be. . .peace? Perish the thought!

George Herbert Walker Bush and his henchmen will go down in the history books as the men who would rather have called a wart "an irregularity in the form of a protuberance on the epidermis due to its contact with an unidentified virus" if they had the chance.

Anna Regina Santiago is a Collegian columnist

THIS IS NOT VIETNAM!
WE HAVE NOT TURNED THE CORNER!
VICTORY IS NOT IN SIGHT!
WE DID NOT DESTROY THE VILLAGE TO SAVE IT!
WE CANNOT SEE THE LIGHT AT THE END OF THE TUNNEL!
PEACE IS NOT AT HAND!
MARRETTE

On Housing Services' alarming mistreatment of students

One of the highlights of intersession or summer break is the opening of mail sent out by the University, since it is usually demanding money for new fees, or threatening students with severe consequences if some new and improved policy is broken.

Larry Moneta, associate director of housing "services," in keeping with this fine tradition, sent a letter to on-campus students about a month back informing them of the new policy that goes along with the new door alarms on the peripheral entrances to the dorms. One part condescension, one part threat seasoned with a hefty shake of false concern (a common administrative recipe,) this letter contained a clever question and answer section that attempted to explain the theory behind the new system.

Unfortunately, the most important questions were omitted. I will now attempt to remedy this oversight:

Q. Who pays for the new system?

A. The students do, through housing fees, at $200 a door, plus maintenance and repairs.

Q. Were the students involved in the decision to put alarms on the doors?

A. Despite Mr. Moneta's statement that this took place "after. . .consultation with students and staff," no attempt was made to gather student opinion before the alarms were installed in a pilot program in Orchard Hill last spring. It was only tested there to work the bugs out of the system. The Resident Assistants, in fact, fought vigorously against this system but were ignored.

Q. Do these new alarms make the dorms a safer place to live?

A. The system is too new for there to be any statistical evidence, so, let's apply a little logical thought here. The main door is still unlocked all day, when most students are in class. The doors to students' rooms are easily, uh. . ."carded." If one wished to "case" a dorm, this new policy actually makes it easier, since just one door needs to be watched. An individual could inconspicuosly wait in the lounge or a car until the occupants of a room have left, or, if rape is the intent, returned.

Jeff Lariviere

Q. How about at night?

A. These alarms do seem to cut down on the number of people let in without signing the register. Whether this has any effect on crime in the buildings remains to be seen. Although Housing would like us to believe that the off-campus boogeyman is responsible for all this bad stuff they wish to protect us from, a perusal of any week's police log in the Collegian will show that most offences are committed by students and invited guests. Q. What happens when a door is opened?

A. It emits a high-pitched squeal. A recent stroll through Central was interrupted by a hearty chorus of three or four alarms and the sound seemed to be coming from everywhere. Incidentally, no one looked the least concerned; no RAs were running out to apprehend the illegal exiters. Perhaps they are giving the new policy the same respect Housing Services shows them.

Q. Why is the new security system such a pain?

A. In many cases, the unalarmed door is facing away from campus, which means a considerably longer walk, often on slippery, muddy slopes. Also, I personally resent a new policy being imposed which makes something, once done hundreds of times a day by students, illegal. This was done without our consent and at our expense. That such a mindless waste of money can occur in these troubled times is sickening and depressing.

What Mr. Moneta fails to recognize, or chooses to ignore, is that there are two types of security measures. The first kind is passive. These measures enhance our freedom by making it easier and safer to move about campus.

The second kind — intrusive — protects by controlling the victim's actions. These measures provide marginally increased safety (sometimes) at the cost of our freedom.

Q. What could have been done instead?

Stop treating us like cattle, Mr. Moneta. We resent it and are offended by it.

Jeff Lariviere is a UMass student

The cops' (in)actions added fuel to the fire at Curry Hicks

The game didn't start until midnight.

My friends and I got there at 9:30 p.m., all set to wait patiently to see UMass play Boston University — a game that was televised on ESPN.

We thought we had gotten there early enough to get in. Apparently, we were wrong. While waiting outside in line — my toes turning blue from the cold, wet mud I was standing in — the crowd of excited students grew tremendously. Students began to press tightly against one another when the doors finally opened at around 10 p.m. People were screaming and cheering as they neared the door and saw it was open. But no one really went anywhere.

During this pandemonium, while students were screaming and singing "The Star Spangled Banner," there was but a lone police officer on a horse, blowing a whistle trying to get the attention of the thousands of students pressed against each other and the Cage's brick walls.

But this one cop, looking scared and inept upon his horse, could do nothing, and did nothing. "None of you are getting in," he shouted in vain over the shouts of thousands, "until you move back and form a line." No one listened, and no one moved into any semblance of a line, only closer together.

A few minutes later, the cop on the horse was yelling at students who pulled the horse's tail. The horse had begun bucking close to the crowd, causing another inward crush. But what did he do with a nervous horse in the face of impatient students? Instead of getting more cops together to control the crowd, he chased down the drunken fool who stupidly yanked the horse's tail.

Meredith O'Brien

More than 10 minutes later, four more cops showed up. But did they attempt to do anything to stop the crush, to control the crowd? No, instead they climbed to a safe haven on top of a fire escape and watched. Though I must admit, they did push through the hoard when one of four students passed out and had to be taken away by ambulance. They helped to lift her body up over the crowd and get her into the ambulance.

After what seemed to be an extraordinarily long time waiting in a line worse than add/drop lines, watching other people go in the door (including seeing a bunch of people who got in line after we did, successfully get into the building), the doors closed. Angry students began to pound on the doors yelling, "Let us in," as the quartet of uniformed imbeciles started telling us all to go home. But no one left.

Even when John Calipari, UMass basketball coach, tried to placate this mob of angry students, asking us to wait until it could be determined how many season ticket holders had not shown up and let more students in, no one really heard what he said. The anger and intensity simply escalated, especially when police bearing billy clubs faced the students.

The Athletic department says this will not happen again, that there will be a better system in place for the Temple game. I sincerely hope so. As one disappointed fan who was forced to watch the BU game home on TV, I want to be able to see UMass crush Temple on Feb. 21 — hopefully without having to wait in line for hours, watch incompetent cops scare the crowd with billy clubs or have the imprint of the Cage's bricks pressed to my face.

Meredith O'Brien is a Collegian columnist

Basketball as a contact sport

Saturday night began as a great chance to support UMass basketball on national television; however, we almost made national news for other reasons, such as a student riot. This mob scene was directly related to the lack of security. The University had to expect this sort of situation after last year's University of Connecticut vs. UMass basketball game.

We arrived at 8:15 p.m. expecting to wait in a somewhat orderly fashion until the doors opened at 10 p.m. We also expected the students who came after us to respect the fact that we arrived before them and stand behind us. Up until 9 p.m. this was what happened. But at this time, due to the lack of security, pandemonium broke loose. Outside the Cage, a free-for-all took place as people raced towards the closed doors. During the next hour we watched, unable to move, as people passed out, vomited and continued to push even though they could get no closer to the closed doors.

At this point, visions of British soccer games ran through our minds, causing the fear of being crushed or trampled to death. When those thoughts occur at college basketball games, there is something drastically wrong. To add to our frustration, when security did arrive, they made no effort to alleviate the situation. At one point, they even laughed as students continued to be crushed against one another. With many big games to come, something must be changed before UMass basketball changes from an evening of fun to an evening of tragedy.

Chad Ostiguy
Central

11 other people signed this letter

For Your Information

TUESDAY, FEBRUARY 5

Blood Drive — in the Student Union Ballroom from 11 a.m. to 4 p.m.

Service for Life, Prayer and Peace — a service will be held in Memorial Hall from 12 p.m to 1 p.m. for peace in the Gulf.

Nomination Papers — for Amherst Town Meeting are available at the Town Clerk's office and are due at 4:30 p.m.

Lecture — Harold Jordan on "African Americans, Women, Gays and Lesbians in the U.S. Military" in the SBA Auditorium at 4 p.m. Sponsored by the STPEC, Women's Studies and the African American Studies Department.

Training Session — "Help an Immigrant Become an American," sponsored by Jones Library. For more information, call 256-4090.

Training — for Everywoman's Center Counselor/Advocates and Educator/Advocates. For more information, call 545-3474.

Meeting — the Committee on the Middle East Crisis will meet at 7:30 p.m. in the Bangs Community Center in Amherst.

WEDNESDAY, FEBRUARY 6

Blood Drive — in the Student Union Ballroom from 11 a.m. to 4 p.m.

Brown Bag Discussion — sponsored by the Women's Studies Deptartment, CC904 at 12:15 p.m.

Meeting — Faculty and Staff for Peace and Justice in the Middle East will meet in Tobin 521B at 5 p.m.

Movie — "Jacob's Ladder," will be sponsored by the Racquetball Club in the CC Auditorium. Show times are 5 p.m., 7 p.m., 9 p.m. and 11 p.m. The first show will cost $2, the remaining times will cost $3.

General Meeting — Japan American Club will meet in CC165-69 from 7 p.m. to 11p.m.

Draft Counseling — every Wednesday at the Unitarian Church at 7 p.m.

Lecture — Cesar Chavez, president of the United Farm Workers Union, will appear at Blanchard Campus Center, Mount Holyoke College, at 8 p.m. The film "The Wrath of Grapes" will be shown prior to the speech.

THURSDAY, FEBRUARY 7

Discussion — "A Conversation on Documentary Filmmaking in Today's Soviet Union" will be held from 1:30 to 3:30 p.m. in the sixth floor lounge, Herter Hall.

Movie — "Total Recall" is being offered by SCUM in the CC Auditorium at 5 p.m., 7 p.m., 9 p.m. and 11 p.m. The first showing costs $2, and the remaining shows cost $2.50.

Film — Sponsored by the LBGA in CC 803 from 7 p.m. to 9 p.m.

Blood Drive — in the Student Union Ballroom from 11 a.m. to 4 p.m.

Workshop — by Sut Jhally on the media will be held at 7 p.m. at a place to be announced.

Meeting — for those interested in the "School Service Bureau" will be held at 7:30 p.m. at Hatfield Hall 3, Smith College.

Lecture — "The New European Order and the U.S." will take place in Converse Hall at Amherst College at 8 p.m.

FRIDAY, FEBRUARY 8

Dance — sponsored by the Asian Student Association in the CC Auditorium from 9 p.m. to 1 a.m. The cost is $2 for members, $4 for non-members.

SATURDAY, FEBRUARY 9

Dance — Sponsored by Student Valley Productions, from 9 p.m. to 1 a.m. in the Blue Wall. Admission is $2.

SUNDAY, FEBRUARY 10

Meeting — of the Orchard Hill/Central Women's Center will be held at 7 p.m. in room 115, Van Meter South. All are welcome.

◄◄◄ATTENTION►►►

STUDENTS LOOKING FOR PART TIME
NON WORK STUDY, ON OR OFF CAMPUS
ATTEND ONE OF THE "JEMS" WORKSHOPS
(Job Employee Matching System)

Workshops will be held February 4th in Rm 165 & February 5th in Rm 917 at the Campus Center.
Times: 11:30, 2:30, 4:00, & 6:30

Workshops sponsored by the Student Employment Office
243 Whitmore Administration Bldg 545-1951

COMPLETE OPTOMETRY EXAMS
AT THE UNIVERSITY HEALTH SERVICES

We offer...
... quality, comprehensive vision care at a reasonable cost.
... courteous, friendly, professional staff
... reduced rates on eye glasses at participating opticians with a complete optometric examination at the University Health Services for Student Plan members.

uhs EYE CARE PROGRAM
Convenient hours and convenient on campus location.
For questions or appointments, call 549-2671

STANLEY H. KAPLAN
A REPUTATION THAT SPEAKS FOR ITSELF!

"The Stanley Kaplan chain got the best results in the FTC study.."
—PEOPLE MAGAZINE

"The widely acknowledged leader draws Princetonians to its ranks in ever-increasing numbers."
—DAILY PRINCETONIAN

"a cross-section of Harvard, Boston University, Boston College, Northeastern and Wellesley Students ....have made the pilgrimage to the.. Kaplan Center."
—HARVARD CRIMSON

"IN THE TESTING GAME, STANLEY KAPLAN GETS HIGH MARKS FOR PREPARING STUDENTS FOR SAT's AND OTHER EXAMS"
—THE WALL STREET JOURNAL

Stanley H. KAPLAN EDUCATIONAL CENTER LTD.
TEST PREPARATION SPECIALISTS SINCE 1938
SAT·GMAT·LSAT·MCAT AND OVER 35 OTHER STANDARDIZED EXAMINATIONS
Classes Begin:
LSAT Mar 10-Mar 25 GMAT Feb 7
MCAT Feb 16-Feb 20 GRE Feb 26
SAT classes begin Feb 7-17
549-5780

AEROBICS

MORE NAUTILUS
Computerized aerobic machines than any club in the Valley.
Stairmasters • Lifecycles • Gravitron • Biocycle • Treadmills
New • New • New • Life Rower • New • New • New

BETTER MASSAGE
Special suspended oak wood floor • Certified Instructors
• Bench Step • Low Impact • High/Low • Boxercise • Stretch

KARATE SAUNA
Total body conditioning plus the skill of selfdefense.
Largest full-time Karate studio in Western Mass.

AMHERST ATHLETIC CLUB 460 West St.
KARATE HEALTH & FITNESS CENTER South Amherst 256-0080

MULTICULTURAL AFFAIRS

What is the biggest thing you ever put in your mouth and did you swallow it?

Jinks Jervey, senior STPEC: "My fist and I didn't swallow it."

Virgil Hickmon, sophomore HRTA: "A Red, White and Blue popsicle. I couldn't swallow it."

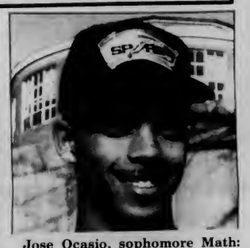
Henning Goetz, graduate Chemistry: "A whole apple. . .I didn't swallow it."

Ben Albert, fresher PoliSci: "I swallowed a whole ice cream cone."

Jeanne Jang, junior Biology: "A lollipop but I didn't swallow it."

Since the level of discourse and media coverage of the Gulf war has been full of appalling propaganda, the Multicultural Affairs Page is taking a different track this week. Because this war is so overwhelmingly complex and emotionally confusing, our desk has conducted a light-hearted campus survey until more information on the war is available.

Tracey Manaing, fresher CASIAC: "A plum. No I didn't swallow it."



Jose Ocasio, sophomore Math: "A bottle of iced tea."

James Olson, senior Art: "A whole orange. . .no, I didn't swallow it."

Troy Arnold, senior STPEC: "Two Hostess Ring-Dings and yes I swallowed them whole."

Folluke Walker, fresher CASIAC: "A banana but I didn't swallow it whole."

Allison Cooke, fresher CASIAC: "A frankfurter and um. . .I swallowed it."

Anthony Hein, sophomore PoliSci/Econ: "A Big Mac and I swallowed it."

Ubu: "My master's head."

Collegian photos by K.A. Burke

Interested in being a...
University Tour Guide
Admissions Representative
Summer Counselor
Applications available at the University Admissions Center

AMHERST CINEMA
Now Playing
THE RUSSIA HOUSE
starring
Sean Connery & Michelle Pfeiffer
Mon-Thurs. One show 7:30
Fri, Sat, Sun 7:00 and 9:15
student discount with valid I.D. $3.00

COLLEGE TOURS presents
Spring Break IN CANCUN
8 DAYS 7 NIGHTS BOSTON $479
PRICE INCLUDES:
- Hotel transfers to and from the airport
- Roundtrip airfare to Cancun.
- Lodging (4 per room) in a 3 or 4 star hotel.
- Private cocktail parties — FREE!
- Exclusive COLLEGE TOURS Cancun Spring Break T-Shirt.
- Discount coupons good for complimentary drinks, and special deals at local restaurants and establishments.
- Exclusive parties at Cancun's HOTTEST night clubs.
- Beat tan contests for guys and girls.
- Special mid-week 3-hour 10 star party with FREE drinks and food.
- Co-ed tournaments and beach events.

CONTACT:
Kathy & Jean 253-5140
Eric & Sean 549-7931
1-800-395-4896
THIS TRIP WILL SELL OUT !

Amethyst
Handwrought filigree bracelet by David Virtue
From our large collection of Amethyst February's royal purple birthstone
silverscape designs
264N Pleasant St Amherst 253-3324
177 Main St Northampton 584-3324
GOLDSMITHS • GEM GALLERY

ARTS & LIVING

The Grifters exposes the seedy underworld

By MEREDITH O'BRIEN
Collegian Staff
and SCOTT WEISS
Collegian Correspondent

The Grifters, based on a novel by Jim Thompson and directed by Stephen Frears, is a gripping movie about three con artists — a mother, her son and his lover — and their greatest con of all.

WEISS: The Grifters is definitely a suspenseful, intense movie which constantly keeps you on your toes.

O'BRIEN: If you like unpredictable, witty and stylish con artist movies, you might enjoy The Grifters, even though I didn't. Despite the excellent acting done by John Cusack [Roy Dillon], Anjelica Huston [Lily Dillon] and newcomer Annette Dening [Myra Langtry], I was not at all impressed with certain aspects of the movie which dealt with incest, violence and rape.

WEISS: The whole movie is set up to present three unlikeable characters — they are grifters, con-artists, thieves, and they are put into their respective con situations, whether it be simple bar tricks, "selling" one's body or working for the mob. These characters are not supposed to please you, they are "sick" people who will do anything to make their grift work.

O'BRIEN: It was not just the characterization, or even the characters themselves that turned me off to this movie, it was the overwhelming presence of a few selected scenes that really upset me. There was one instance where Lily Dillon, who was working the race tracks for the mob and skimming a considerable amount of money off the top for herself, was beaten and burned with a cigar by her "boss." The scene gave a strong impression that she had been raped, or sexually abused by him as well, although we were not shown that.

WEISS: Sure, there were implications of rape. There was even the suggestion of incestual relations between Lily and Roy, but that only increased the believability of the plot. Everything is not always hunky-dory when you work for the mob or have a kid at age 14. I think the plot and the characters fit together incredibly well, although there were unlikeable scenes, this movie commands your complete interest at all times.

O'BRIEN: I didn't say that I didn't like the characters, in fact they were portrayed really well. And I don't think the movie would have worked if everything was "hunky-dory." I wasn't expecting things to be clean and "dainty," but I think that the scenes that were violent (not the blood-gushing, throat slashing type of violence) were excessive and gave me a negative impression of the movie. I would give this a thumbs down.

WEISS: I think you are wrong to judge the movie by a couple of scenes or implications. I think that The Grifters is an excellent movie for those who are not so frail at heart, thumbs up.

This band by any other name would still be the same

By DANIELLE DOWLING
Collegian Staff

Death Angel.

To some, such a name can engender thoughts of grim, evil chaos. Death. Decay. The typical thrash metal genre stuff.

Those familiar with the group who are known by this moniker and familiar with the intense fervor of their live shows, know that the chaos part could be right. But most of them also know the evil, gloomy-doomy, hocus-pocus part does not exactly describe Death Angel and that they are far from being a "typical thrash metal" band.

Heavy, moody, moving. Those are the three adjectives guitarist Rob Cavestany uses to describe the sound his band produces, although he admits, "It's hard to define the music we play. It's thrashy and it's rock, but then again it depends on the song. If you compare 'Room With a View' to 'Stop' or 'Seemingly Endless Time,' it's totally different, but yet it still sounds like us. It's hard to define, but that's good. That's the way we want it to be."

The constrictive nature of their moniker can present problems as Cavestany explains, "What Death Angel actually signifies isn't with what we're about at this point."

CONTINUED ON PAGE 10

Photo courtesy Geffen Records

Death Angel, a band with a "heavy" sound from San Francisco, is (from left to right) guitarists Gus Pepa and Rob Cavestany, bassist Dennis Pepa, vocalist Mark Osegueda and drummer Andy Galeon.

DIVISION OF CONTINUING EDUCATION

Think Spring!

A perfect time for renewal and new beginnings.

University of Massachusetts at Amherst

Spring 1991

Renew your life goals, your career, or your personal life. Over 200 fresh credit courses and Adventures in Lifelong Learning workshops are being hatched at UMass this spring.

Late register through February 11.

Classes start January 29.

For more information, contact the Division of Continuing Education, Goodell Building, or call 545-2414.

DIVISION OF CONTINUING EDUCATION

MENTAL HEALTH DIVISION GROUPS
SPRING 1991

TUESDAY
Support/Decision-Making for Problem Drinkers	1:00 - 2:30 pm
Bi-sexual Support Group	2:00 - 3:30 pm
Advanced ACOA Group	3:00 - 4:30 pm
Intimacy Skills Group	6:00 - 7:30 pm
Exploring Lesbian, Gay, Bi-sexual Identities	7:00 - 8:30 pm
WEDNESDAY
Beginners ACOA	9:00 -10:30 am
Self-Exploration Group	3:30 - 5:00 pm
THURSDAY
Women In Transition	12:45 - 2:15 pm
Self-Exploration Group	3:00 - 4:30 pm
Chronic Medical Illness Support Group	3:30 - 5:00 pm
Eating Disorders	3:30 - 5:00 pm

Groups begin in late February or early March. Pre-group interviews are necessary. For information or to register for a group call 545-2337 or stop by 127 Hills North as early in the semester as possible.

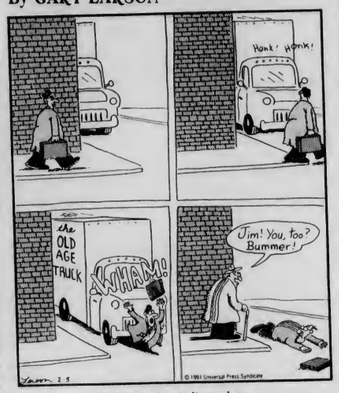
DOONESBURY
By GARRY TRUDEAU

THEY SPOTTED US! WE'RE IN LUCK!
CHUNKA! CHUNKA!
UNHH... BRING A STRETCHER! HIS LEGS ALL TORN UP!
MAN, AM I GLAD TO SEE YOU GUYS...
CONGRATULATIONS. YOU'RE THE FIRST CASUALTY IN THE BATTALION.
THINK I'LL MAKE CNN?
HOW DO YOU THINK WE FOUND YOU?

THE FAR SIDE
By GARY LARSON



You never see it coming

CALVIN AND HOBBES
By BILL WATTERSON

I LIKE SLEDDING DOWN HILLS, BUT I HATE HAVING TO CLIMB BACK UP!
IT'S TOO MUCH WORK! IT'S BORING! IT'S SLOW!
I KNOW! I'LL SIT ON THE SLED AND YOU PULL ME UP, OK? RUN AS FAST AS YOU CAN, AND ZIGZAG AROUND TREES AND STUFF!
EVEN MY FRIENDS DONT DO WHAT I WANT.

FROTTER
By GARRY PORTER

I CAN'T BELIEVE I'M DATING AGAIN AFTER ALL THESE YEARS...
I THOUGHT MY LIFE WAS OVER WHEN HAROLD LEFT.
I FEEL SO YOUNG. I FEEL LIKE A NEW PERSON.
SOME WE'RE OUT DRIVING, I WAS WONDERING...
THIS IS SO ROMANTIC...
ARE WE GONNA NEED TO MAKE A QUICK STOP AT THE DRUGSTORE?

SNOOKY LANSON
By E. VEZINA & R. SHAUGHNESSY

HI MOM. I'M CALLING FROM MY DORM ROOM... UH... YEAH, IT WAS KINDA ROUGH MOVING ALL MY FURNITURE UP TO THE TENTH FLOOR...
HINKLY HALL
...ESPECIALLY SINCE NO ONE WOULD LET ME IN THE ELEVATOR.
BUT IT ONLY TOOK SEVEN AND A HALF HOURS, AND I CAN START MAKING FRIENDS, NOW!
KNOCK KNOCK
THERE'S SOMEONE AT MY DOOR TO MEET ME ALREADY! GOTTA GO!
GET OUTTA MY ROOM, LOSER.
1009
1009

TANGELO PIE
By TIM SNIFFEN

And Now, Another Tangelo™ Fun Fact about SPONTANEOUS COMBUSTION
Folks, it's recently been proven* that the chances of spontaneously combusting drastically increase when viewing the word 'corn.' Marcus - I will demonstrate.
*by very smart people
CORN
HEY, MARCUS!
whu-
BOOM
WHAT THIS MEANS:
1) Don't ever think about the word 'corn'.
2) If someone shows you a sign with 'corn' on it, don't look at it.
3) Don't eat corn (just to be safe)
4) Go to Church (just to be safe)

QUOTE OF THE DAY

"What do eggs do in cookies?"

— Overheard

DAILY CROSSWORD PUZZLE
Edited By TRUDE MICHEL JAFFE

ACROSS
1 Side post
5 P.O. purchase
10 October stone
14 Draft classification
15 Santo Domingo's neighbor
16 — Maggiore
17 Sousa's "— Forever"
20 Alienate
21 Skirt
22 Choir voice
23 Stare
25 Fictional Sharp
27 — shanter
28 Dry, as wine
31 Went to the bottom
32 Furniture designer Charles
33 Links letters
34 Simon play and movie
38 Tire filler
39 Boarded
40 1948 Hitchcock movie
41 Chinese truth
42 Lotion ingredient
43 Short journey
45 Bean variety
46 Makes a lap
47 Hero of Hungary
50 Sitar native
54 With The Maugham title
57 Be a party to
58 Like Humpty Dumpty
59 See 45 Across
60 Musical subject
61 Took on
62 Flight unit

DOWN
1 He loved Carmen
2 Picnic pests
3 Substance
4 G.I. accommodations
5 Crude dwelling
6 It takes two
7 Staffer
8 Rockies or Andes: Abbr.
9 Place for an opera orchestra
10 Martini garnish
11 Haydn sobriquet
12 Like good cheese
13 Misplace
18 Microbiologist Jonas
19 Lie at rest
23 Urchin
24 Last word
25 Salvador is its capital
26 Calendario opener
27 Western resort
28 Ladle
29 Cleopatra's land
30 Lawyer's quest
31 RBI, for one
32 Bar, at the bar
35 Kampala is its capital
36 Vincent Lopez theme song
37 — sprouts
43 Put the hex on 44 Expectant
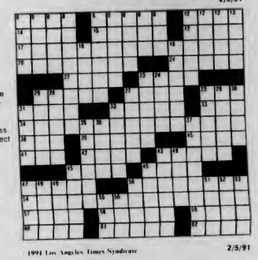
45 Yule visitor
48 Hotel accommodation
47 Latin lesson word
48 Judge's garb
49 "Trees," for one
50 Despot
51 "What's — for me?"
52 Pinnacle
53 Tide type
55 Japanese drama
56 Twice CCLIII

ANSWER TO PREVIOUS PUZZLE:

L	E	I	S		G	A	L	A		E	R	A	S
A	C	R	E		A	R	O	M	A		D	E	L	E
S	H	A	R	L	E	W	I	S		G	A	T	E
S	O	N		M	O	T	I	S		L	A	L	O	M
			F	I	R	E		D	E	E	R
S	P	A	R	S	E		A	E	R	O	B	I	C
A	L	L	A	N		S	L	A	T		E	R	I	C
M	O	O	N		S	E	L	L	S		R	E	T	E
E	T	N	A		C	R	I	S		A	G	N	E	S
	S	E	L	F		S	T	A	G	E		D	E	E	D	S
		L	O	R	E			E	R	I	N
M	A	R	I	N	A		A	L	L	I	E		A	S	I
A	L	A	S		B	U	F	F	A	L	O	B	O	B
T	I	T	O		S	T	A	I	R		A	L	F	A
S	T	A	N		E	R	N	S		R	E	A	R

2/5/91



1991 Los Angeles Times Syndicate 2/5/91

MENU

LUNCH
Barbecued Pork on a Bun
Pan Shish Kebab

DINNER
Chicken Cutlet Sandwich
Fettuccini

BASICS LUNCH
Flat Bread
Cheese Spinach Squares

BASICS DINNER
Chicken Cutlet Sandwich
Fettuccini

YOUR DAILY HOROSCOPE
By JEANE DIXON

ARIES (March 21-April 19): Concentrate on your work. A stroke of genius on your part will inspire others to do their best. Finish what you start and you will be pleasantly surprised. Higher-ups are complimentary.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20): Going back to school will open the door to better job opportunities. Changing your eating habits could help you feel and look better in a hurry. Your social life accelerates.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20): You are more valuable than you realize. Have confidence in yourself and others will follow suit. Learn from past mistakes. A blind date will turn out better than you dream possible.

CANCER (June 21-July 22): Capitalize on a stroke of good luck. A reconciliation is possible. A relationship can be salvaged if you work harder at it. Recent career developments give you a clever idea.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22): You feel more alert and decisive today. Tackle complex problems, seeking experts' advice if necessary. Self-improvement activities are favored. Express your affection for a child.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22): Pinpoint your goals and then pursue them with zeal. Look for an opportunity to take part in computer-related projects. Your razor-sharp mind will be a tremendous asset.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22): Get ready for new responsibilities and greater freedom. The technical knowledge you garner now will help you boost your earnings. Expect positive developments in a close relationship.

SCORPIO (Oct.23-Nov.21): Keep a low profile when conducting business. You can gain a great deal by compromising. Romance responds to careful nurturing.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21): You may have to work harder to impress your business associates. Curb a tendency to buy things on impulse. Your feelings for someone are changing. Dig deeper to find the truth.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19): If a health problem arises, act swiftly. Your instincts are uncanny. Let your intuition carry you down the road to success. You could meet someone very special at a group function.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18): Your family may require more of your time. You can travel less without hurting your business. Profound creative forces are at work today. A loved one finds a way around a roadblock.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20): A search for fresh inspiration will be successful. Other people want to jump on your bandwagon. Give love and you will get it back many times over.

■ Death Angel

CONTINUED FROM PAGE 10

The alternative moniker is D.A., an abbreviation which has been used by the band and their friends for a long time. "It's not supposed to be in place of it," he says explaining the recent public use of the abbreviation for their last single "A Room With a View." "It's not like we're no longer Death Angel. If people prefer to use D.A. then that's cool because it branches away from the demonic-ness of Death Angel which is deceiving."

Perhaps in the beginning the name, inspired by the title of a book spotted in a store, fit. That was eight years ago when drummer Andy Galeon was only nine years old and the average age for the rest of the band members was 15. Cavestany and Galeon along with vocalist Mark Osegueda, bassist Dennis Pepa and rhythm guitarist Gus Pepa are all related to each other as first or second cousins.

In 1984, they released their first demo Heavy Metal Insanity, followed by a four-song EP produced by Kirk Hammett of Metallica entitled Kill As One. They were picked up by the Enigma label on which they released The Ultra Violence in 1987 and Frolic Through the Park in 1988.

Their major label debut came in 1990 with their most recent album Act III on Geffen. Cavestany says that he was pleased with the final product.

"We just wanted to out do the first two albums," he claims. "We were excited to work with producer Max Norman and to have more time and better budget. We wanted to create an album that really exposed our identity. I think that's what we were able to capture especially by putting the acoustic songs on there and different varieties of sounds. We want to define our style and yet create something new. That's what our goal has always been."

However, Cavestany reluctantly admits that he was not happy with the way Geffen handled the album. "I can say that I feel it could have been done better and I think they know that too."

Not that they're greedy. Cavestany feels that they have achieved some level of success. "We're able to get by and keep the band alive with what it's generating itself. I would like to pick up some more so we could fully concentrate on what we're doing and not worry about the financial end," he explains.

The group stumbled upon an obstacle in late November when their tour bus lost control and crashed on a desert highway, 100 miles outside of Las Vegas, Nevada. Drummer Andy Galeon was severely injured, but he and the rest of the group are on the road to recovery and looking forward to a live album and home video release in the summer.

Schram to spin a tale

"When Peninnah Schram tells a story, even the leaves on the trees stop trembling."

On Tuesday night, Feb. 5, at 7:30 p.m. in the Helen Hills Chapel of Smith College, Associate Professor of Speech and Drama at Stern College of Yeshiva University Peninnah Schram will present AN EVENING OF FOLKTALES: The Jewish Oral Tradition.

Schram's visit marks the start of a series sponsored by the Smith College Chaplains entitled "FAITH AND STORY: The Art of Storytelling and the Origins of Faith." The series will focus on storytellers from various traditions and cultures. Ms. Schram's presentation will encompass "legends and folktales from Biblical, Talmudic, Midrashic, Chassidic, Yiddish, Sephardic and Israeli sources."

"In Judaism," Schram claims "Storytelling is a celebration of memory, a sharing of the values and concerns of the Jewish people. Stories are what link Jews to their past and to their future. Stories help us to understand who we are, as human beings and as Jews."

The event is free and open to the public.

PAUL DEGEORGES

The Valley's newest and most complete weight training facility!

$139.00 for 4 months (1 full semester)

in The Price Chopper Mall

FLEX Fitness Center

175 University Dr. Amherst •253-FLEX

DELANO'S

57 North Pleasant Street
253-5141

Tuesday Night is Taco Night
Wednesday Night is Clark Gable Lookalike Night—$50 gift certificate to winner
FREE Fried Chicken 9pm-??

Drink of the Week
Panty Remover $2.25

Beer of the Month
60 oz. Miller, Miller Lite, Rolling Rock Pitchers $4.50

College Pizza Spring Special

Small Cheese Pizza $3.50
Large Chees Pizza $5.99
2 Toppings $1.00 extra

549-6098 549-6073
Must mention this ad
no coupons with the special

OPEN COURSE
Fills BS Gen-Ed
PH 160-My Body My Health
MW 3:30 Lecture: Mahar 108
F Discussion: by arrangement

Sign up: MORRILL 231N

Covers:
Student stress-How to cope
Crime and harassment-Avoidance techniques
Population-Methods of control
Sexually transmitted disease-How to prevent it
Drug and alcohol abuse-Dealing with it
Food-Avoiding disease and toxins
Eating disorders-bulemia and anorexia
Environmental disease-Mutagens, cancer and others

JUST BECAUSE YOU SKI ALL WEEK DOESN'T MEAN YOU'LL TURN INTO A POOR STUDENT.

$10 COLLEGE DISCOUNT.

Stratton has a lower price for anyone pursuing a higher education. $22 midweek. $28 on weekends and holidays. So you can save $10 any day and every day with a current college I.D. And you get 92 exciting trails, a 12-passenger gondola, plus all the extracurricular fun you can handle. Now, how's that for financial aid? Stratton VERMONT

Call 1-800-843-6867 or 1-802-297-2200.

Men's Basketball Notebook

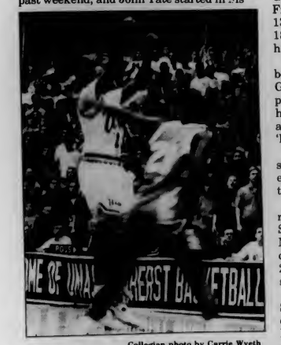
Barbee diagnosed with mono

By SAM SILVERSTEIN
Collegian Staff

University of Massachusetts sophomore forward Tony Barbee was diagnosed with mononucleosis Wednesday. He will be re-evaluated mid-week, and is listed as "very doubtful" for Wednesday night's Atlantic 10 matchup between the 14-6 Minutemen and West Virginia (11-8) at the Cage.

"I feel fine, that's what's weird. I want to get out there and play," said Barbee, who is averaging 16.9 points and 4 rebounds a game.

Barbee sat out both UMass games this past weekend, and John Tate started in his place.



Collegian photo by Carrie Wyeth

Senior guard Rafer Giles shoots one of three successful three-point shots against Rhode Island during Friday's 70-67 overtime win.

Rhode Island coach Al Skinner scored 1,235 points within a three-year UMass career. Before Friday's URI-UMass game, Skinner talked about his 1,000th point, which came during a 71-64 UMass win at a half-empty Northeastern gym.

"After the season was over, I was happy with the accomplishment because it put me in such good company. But at the time it happened. . .it was a free throw and I think I scored 7 points that night. It was a waste of my time."

Rafer Giles has a different story to tell. Giles' overtime buzzer-beating 3-pointer Friday night gave the Minutemen their 13th win of the season and made him the 18th 1,000-point scorer in the program's history at the same time.

"It felt good scoring it on a 3-pointer because that has been my specialty," said Giles, who entered the game needing 15 points to reach 1,000. Giles kept track of his tally as the game went on by glancing at the running total posted by fans in 'Rafer's Corner.'

"I knew I had 999, but I didn't think the shot was going in because I had pump faked. When I fake I usually drive, but this time I shot."

Around the A-10 Rutgers' schizo season reached a new high Friday night when the Scarlet Knights drubbed Temple 82-63 in New Brunswick, N.J. Temple shot 33 percent for the game, with Mark Macon (6 for 24) setting the tone. The win was Rutgers' sixth straight.

The Scarlet Knights snapped Penn State's 24-game home win streak last Monday with a 79-78 win, powered by Keith Hughes' 40 points. Hughes has been tabbed Atlantic 10 Player of the Week two weeks in a row.

Rutgers returned to earth Sunday with a 115-73 loss to the nation's No. 1 team, UNLV.

Women's Basketball Notebook

McCusker hits 1,000 point mark

By GREG SUKIENNIK
Collegian Staff

When Keyburn McCusker was a sophomore, Beth Wilbur, a teammate on the University of Massachusetts women's basketball team scored her 1,000th point. At that point, McCusker wasn't thinking about what it would be like to do the same.

"The thought never entered my mind," said the 6-foot-2 senior center from Pittsfield.

That's exactly what McCusker accomplished, however. In last Saturday's loss at Rutgers, McCusker hit the thousand mark by scoring her eighth point of the game in the second half, providing the women's basketball program with a bright spot in their presently winless campaign.

McCusker, who entered the season with 801 career points, is currently fifth on the all-time UMass women's scoring list and sixth in rebounds. She leads the team in scoring, posting 14.2 points per game, and shares the rebounding lead with Lisa Ireland, as both are averaging 6.6 boards per contest.

McCusker sees her accomplishment as more than a personal milestone.

"It's been one of the positive spots in a season where we've been down," reflected the captain of the Minutewomen. "It feels great — this is a major accomplishment for me."

When asked to name someone who had influenced her basketball career greatly, McCusker named Tom Bligh.

Bligh was her basketball coach at Pittsfield High School and, according to McCusker, had a lot to do with her development.

"He was the man who introduced me to the game," explained McCusker. "He took me when I was still oblivious to the game of basketball and struggled with me. Whenever I've been able to accomplish something on the court, my mind always goes back to him. He's a great friend and a great person."

McCusker also thanked her parents. "They put up with me through all of this," she said.

UMass coach Kathy Hewelt credited McCusker for her achievement, as well as for the leadership she has provided in this difficult season.

"Keyburn has played a huge role for us as a stabilizing factor," complimented Hewelt. "She's provided a young team with stability and maturity."

Having scored a thousand points, what's next for McCusker?

"I hope we can finish up with some wins," she said.

Photo courtesy of Sports Information

Senior captain Keyburn McCusker completed her 1,000th career point during a 62-26 loss to Rutgers Saturday.

SHAPE UP FOR SPRING.
At Hilltop and Crossan Healthclubs located in Webster & Gorman dorms
Register 2/4-2/14, Mon-Thurs 7-9pm

CLASSIFIEDS

COME TO THE COLLEGIAN OFFICE—CC 113 MON — THURS 8:30-3:30 ● DEADLINE 2 DAYS PRIOR TO PUBLICATION ● CASH IN ADVANCE, 20¢/WORD/DAY FOR STUDENTS

ACTIVITIES

ATTENTION ALL WOMEN
Need extra spring break cash?
Now interviewing for the first area best body contest. Big money cash prizes. For info call 549-4832.

UMASS CHESS CLUB
7-11 in the Bluewall
All are welcome.

UMASS TRIATHLON CLUB - Mandatory meeting Tuesday, Feb. 5, Boyden 249 at 6:30pm. All are welcome. Call Steven at 549-3324 for info.

ANNOUNCEMENTS

3-CREDIT RECYCLING COURSE TuTh 9:30-10:45 153 Totman. Go to class to add or call Jim or Kathleen at 545-1153

AEROBICS NAUTILUS STAIRMASTERS Lifecycles, freeweights, treadmill, gravitron, step-classes, karate. Amherst athletic club. 256-0080.

BED AND BREAKFAST- downtown ideal for visiting parents and friends- 549-0733.

CARIBBEAN- $189! The warmth of the Caribbean or Mexican coast for a week. R/T Air Sunhitch + m 212-864-2000.

EARN AS MUCH as $1000 organizing white water rafting trips in Maine and New York for Unicorn Expeditions. You bring the people and we take care of everything else. Call 1-800-Unicorn for details.

HOUSE MUSIC

Is here from the underground. John, DJ Tapes- 549-5316.

PARTY IN JAMAICA - It's not too late, no price increases from 1990, for spring break - from $499 complete package, call sno-search 413-533-1600

SKI PARK CITY or Breckenridge for spring break from $699. Complete package. Space available. Call now! Sno-Search 413-533-1600.

STUDENTS ADVOCATING FINANCIAL Aid-SAFA general meeting Thursday Feb. 7, 7:00pm. Memorial Hall - New members welcome!

AUTO FOR SALE

1986 PLYMOUTH HORIZON 5GK, excellent condition, going overseas, asking $1600, call 549-6337.

1987 HONDA CIVIC CRX, Emaculate condition, 87000 miles, moon roof, Blaupunct Stereo, New Tires, $4300 Call Mac 253-4070.

CHEN STYLE TAI CHI

COME LEARN THIS earliest form of T'ai Chi which features slow/fast, soft/vigorous, empty/solid movements. Class begins Feb. 5 and 7. Call 253-4057.

COLLEGE PRO PAINTERS

IS SEEKING highly motivated UMass Students who would like the opportunity to earn $10,000 this summer running their own painting business. No previous painting experience is required and all majors are welcome to apply. There will be an informal information session on Tuesday Feb 5 at 7PM in Campus Center room 811. For more details call 1-800-346-4849.

FOR RENT

FRIDGE RENTALS CALL RP 253-9742.

LARGE BEDROOM in 3 bedroom apt- Puffton Village 235/month 1 or 2 people (women preferred). Call 549-5947 Poonam or call-soon 549-3745 and leave message on machine.

ONE BEDROOM available in Gilreath Apt. $175/mo. + utilities. Preferably undergrad male. Call 549-1691.

ROOM IN 3 bedroom. Until 8-31-91. $180 per month. Negotiable. No deposit. No last month rent. 545-0591.

ROOMMATE NEEDED for large bedroom in Puffton. $151.00/month. Very low electric bill. Heat included. Call 549-2930, ask for Mark.

WINTER SPECIAL: 1 month rent .99 cents with one year lease.
2 bedroom- $450
3 bedroom- $537
Sunderland, Free bus route, laundry facilities, swimming pool, garden plots, short term lease available.
665-3858.

FOR SALE

BROKEN MINOLTA EP350 Photocopier for sale! Approx. $200 to repair. Best offer. Call Jeff at 6-4630 or OHAG 5-3185.

FREE PET RATS - albino male, brown & white female Both neutered, very friendly (Not afraid of cats/dogs) Call Claire 546-1517.

GREEN IGUANA & 30 gal tank setup. Vegetarian, very friendly, easy care. 546-1056.

IBM COMPUTER, HARD drive, 640K ram, graphics card and printer, $1000. 253-5734.

LETTER QUALITY PRINTER
Mint condition
Print Buffer
Daisy Wheel 35LPS Citizen
120 Columns Ask: $325
Call: Wayne 584-7649

MARSHALL 50 WATT lead amp $375. Jared 256-0021.

METAWAMPE FUTONS
Sleep with us!
Si-fold frames
On sale now!
256-0646

ROUNDTRIP TICKETS TO Jacksonville. Only $125. each. Call 6-5814.

FOUND

FOUND EYEGLASSES PARKING lot outside of New Africa House on Jan 31. Call Mike 665-3448 leave message.

HELP WANTED

EARN $300 to $500 per week reading books at home. Call 1-615-473-7440 ext 8 281.

EARN $500-$1500/WK part-time, stuffing envelopes in your home. For free information, send a long, self-addressed, stamped envelope to: P.O. Box 4645 Dept P145 Alburquerque NM 87196

INTELLIGENCE JOBS. All branches US Customs, DEA act. Now hiring. Call 1-805-962-8000 Ext. K-9616.

WANTED: TOUR GUIDES, summer counselors, student admissions representatives. Applications available at Admissions Center.

INSTRUCTION

EARN CREDIT learn to Scuba Dive. Basic Classes held Monday, Tuesday, Wednesday, and Thursday 7-10PM in Curry Hicks Pool. Open Water II class held during Spring Break in Key Largo, FLA. Advanced Class held in New England in April. For further information call 549-8401, or drop by Curry Hicks starting 2/4/91.

GUITAR LESSONS with Doug Hewitt. Rock, Blues, Folk. Acoustic or Electric. Improv., Theory, Reading, Songwriting, many new songs -plus singing. Studio on 3 bus lines. 549-1938.

LOST

BLACK W/GREEN LEATHER WALLET Possibly lost in Salem Place P-Lot If found please call 256-3437. No questions asked Please call there are sentimental pictures inside.

LAST SEMESTER JAZZ gold watch 546-2964.

STAR SAPPHIRE RING with silver band Immense sentimental value Please call 548-0634 if found. Possibly lost in or outside of Totman.

PERSONALS

ADAM - THIS PAST year has been great. Here's to many more. I LOVE YOU -Kristen.

AMY BLAKE
You're a great big sis
Happy Birthday, babe
Love, Nicole

AMY BLAKE- HAPPY 22nd! Live it up and good luck this semester Love your sisters

AMY BLAKE, HOPE you have a great birthday! Happy 22nd. I love ya! Love your P.I.G.

DARLA BACCARI- HAPPY belated birthday! Have fun in the house and good luck this semester. Love you sisters

HAPPY 21st BIRTHDAY
DONNA HILLER
YEA!! YOU MADE IT!!
LOVE,
MIKE

HAPPY BIRTHDAY AMY Blake
Hope you have the best one yet.
Have fun at Charlie's.
Love, Jeff

HAPPY BIRTHDAY NICOLE MCFADDEN!
Have e great semester! We love you, your sisters.

INTERESTED in Christian Fellowship? The Alliance Christian Fellowship welcomes you! More Info: Jim or Beth 253-7206.

LBDI
Here's to men with hairy necks!
Love you!
Farmanimal!

ROOMMATE WANTED

HOUSEMATE WANTED: Great location, 5 minute walk to campus, on bus route, spacious room, hardwood floors, fireplace, quiet, $325 neg. Call. 549-8493.

ONE FEMALE NEEDED to share a room in townehouse apts 549-2824 $190.

YOU MALE ROOMMATE WANTED to share Brandywine apt.
$183.75/mo. Heat/hot water incl. Be koool
549-0181.

SERVICES

HAVE YOU BEEN ripped-off by a retailer? Contact the Legal Services Center regarding your rights as a consumer. 922 Campus Center. 545-1995.

STUDY ABROAD IN AUSTRALIA Information on semester, summer, J-term graduate and internship programs. All programs run under $6000. Call Curtin University at 1-800-878-3696

SPECIAL ANNOUNCEMENT

ATTENTION UMASS STUDENTS
Explore self and personal issues through psychodrama in a safe confidential setting. Group meets Tuesdays 7-8:30PM starting 2/12/91 for 10 weeks. No fee. Register--Call Mark locally at 665-3678.

DELIVERED: CLASSES, DORMS, FRATS
Inexpensive
Professional
546-2263

SPRING BREAK

SPRING BREAK PARTY!
Travel to Jamaica, Mexico! And Panama City FL!! Concerts! Free Parties! Club discounts! And lots more! For info call Denise 546-7158.

SUMMER SUBLET

TWO BEDROOM PUFFTON apartment available for the summer call now! Leave message on machine 549-5990.

TRAVEL

FLORIDA'S NEWEST HOT SPOT
Panama City-$139
Daytona-$149
World's Biggest Beach PARTY
Daytona Beach-$189
Call Erika • Julie at 546-2649 or Siobhan • Terri at 546-5079.

MONTREAL WEEKENDS $89 price includes round trip motorcoach 3days 2nights. Hotel suite, breakfast free admission to club metropolis
RELIABLE TOURS
365 Broadway Rt. 1
Lynnfield, MA 01940
617-598-9936

SPRING BREAK TO DAYTONA!
Travel with Yankee Line Tours via deluxe motorcoach March 15-24, 1991.
Campus pick-up & drop-off
First class hotel accommodations!
Best location, excellent night-life!
Only $259.00 (quad occ.)
For more info contact Scott
(413) 256-0029
Reserve you spot before it's too late!

WAKE-N-BAKE!!! Spring Break '91!! Jamaica/Cancun from $459.00!!
A week of fun and sun! The hottest destinations 1-800-426-7710.

WANTED

WANTED: ASSISTANT BUSINESS manager and assistant finance manager! The Collegian is looking for--ambitious, responsible, organized, sophmores with good communication skills. Applications available at the Collegian and must be submitted no later than Friday, Feb. 6, 1991. The Collegian is an EOE.

SPORTS

Women's gymnastics sweeps Pitt, Turmail out for season

By LYNN FRANKEL
Collegian Correspondent

The University of Massachusetts women's gymnastics team lived up to and exceeded their coach's expectations winning three out of four events including vault, uneven bars and the balance beam.

The Minutewomen accumulated 181.6 points and defeated Pitt and Yale in a tight meet Saturday at Boyden.

Going into Saturday's meet, UMass coach Alfred Mitchell said he expected tough competition from both Yale and Pitt, two of the harder teams that the Minutewoman will face this season.

Mitchell said he was concerned with Pitt's all-around performance and the fact that they were coming off of a win over New Hampshire, a long-time UMass rival.

However, he said he felt confident in the team's ability to add another win to their 1-0 record that if the team was successful at keeping concentration levels high.

Aside from the wins in individual events, the women also took first and second in the all-around. Tanny Marshall came in first with a 37.2 and Kim Grady took second with a 36.2.

Mitchell said he was incredibly pleased with the women's performance in this close meet. The women produced outstanding results despite a knee injury to senior Kristen Turmail.

Turmail out for season Turmail injured her left knee while performing a double back somersault during her first tumbling pass on Saturday. As a result, she is out for the season.

She will be having reconstructive surgery performed today at Cooley Dickinson Hospital in Northampton.

She said she was looking forward to finishing her collegiate career on strong note and that the injury is a "bummer."

Turmail is the only senior on Mitchell's squad. She said, however, that the team was strong and the remaining upperclassmen really motivate the team. Turmail said the true leaders were Erin Klier, Kim Grady, Abby Mai, Lisa Bess Cronan and Ann Klozik.

She said the team is strong and there are still five talented freshmen who could contribute to the team.

"They have great morale, good team spirit," Turmail said.

Collegian photo by Aaron Webster

The balance beam proved to be one of UMass' stronger events against the University of Pittsburg Saturday. The Minutewomen won the meet but not without serious injury to Kristen Turmail, who will be out for the remainder of the season.

UM to host Mt. Holyoke

By CHRIS MIRACLE
Collegian Staff

Having completed the more rigorous part of their regular season schedule, the University of Massachusetts women's swimming team can relax a little tonight as they take on Division III Mount Holyoke College at 7 p.m. in Boyden pool.

With the Lyons (1-4) coming off of a 139-122 loss to Connecticut College, this meet provides the Minutewomen (7-3) a chance to make some changes in their rotation, giving the swimmers a chance to swim different events in a non-pressure situatuion.

"I like the opportunity to kick back a bit and score some points," UMass coach Bob Newcombe said. "It also provides some competition among the five college system."

For line-up changes, Newcombe said he might enter Denise Reimer and Kim Morin, both freestylers, into the breastroke events.

With the New England Championships on the horizon, Newcombe also has on his mind the qualifying of a few more Minutewomen at tonight's meet.

Those hoping to make it to the postseason include Nancy Wilkinson (100-meter and 200-meter breastroke), Stefanie Souto (200 and 500 freestyle), and Carolyn Curran (100 backstroke and 500 freestyle).

The Lyons also have aspirations for three of their swimmers to qualify for the postseason: Kristin Kussmann (100 and 200 breastroke), Cindy Baker (100 butterfly, 200 fly and individual medley) and Kristen Borden (200 free).

Rose banned from Hall

By RONALD BLUM
The Associated Press

NEW YORK (AP) — Pete Rose, kicked out of baseball because of his gambling, today was banned from the Hall of Fame when a rule was adopted to exclude players on the permanently ineligible list.

Rose, the all-time hits leader, is the only living person on the ineligible list.

The Hall's board of directors voted 12-0 to accept the proposal presented last month by a special committee.

"The directors felt that it would be incongruous to have a person who has been declared ineligible by baseball to be eligible for baseball's highest honor," Hall of Fame president Ed Stack said. "It follows that if such an individual is reinstated by baseball, then such individual would be a candidate for election."

Rose is now living at a Cincinnati halfway house while completing his sentence for cheating on his taxes. He spent five months at a federal prison camp in Marion, Ill.

Rose, working today as a part-time gym teacher at an inner city elementary school, was not immediately available for comment.

Although the new rule does not specifically mention the former Cincinnati Reds player and manager, it states that no one on the baseball's permanently ineligible list can appear on the ballot mailed each December to 10-year veterans of the Baseball Writer's Association of America. Rose ordinarily would have been eligible for the first time in December.

Tanguay leads ski team

By GEOFF STOKES
Collegian Correspondent

J.J. Tanguay swept both the giant slalom and slalom events during a meet hosted by Plymouth University at Dartmouth Skiway in Lyme, N.H., for the University of Massachusetts ski team. It proved to be the highlight of the meet for UMass as well as a career first for her.

Tanguay, a sophmore transfer from New Hampshire, beat Plymouth's Missy Giove and Christy Foote, who finished second and third, respectively, with a time of 1:31.16 in the giant slalom on Saturday. For UMass, Marci Blacker finished seventh, Jan Egan 11th and Marti Gilbert 12th. As a team, the UMass women came in second place in the giant slalom behind Plymouth State.

It was back to back wins for Tanguay when she took the slalom event on Sunday with a time of 1:37.01. Boston College's Kristen Mahill came in second while Katrina Lussey from Plymouth was third. UMass' Jan Egan and Marti Gilbert finished eighth and 10th, respectively.

UMass ski coach Bill MacConnell said Tanguay's performance was a pleasant surprise in an otherwise mediocre weekend for the team.

"It was not a very good weekend for us," he said. "But it was a great one for J.J. She had a remarkable two days on the slopes."

In the men's giant slalom the first three finishers were separated by less than a second. UMass' Chuck Holcomb came in third with a time of 2:03.12.

UMass' chances in the slalom were dealt a serious blow when their two top skiers, Holcomb and John Donovan, fell during their runs. The team salvaged a fourth place finish.

Men's swimming laps Wildcats, 196-101

Collegian photo by Carrie Wyeth

UMass diver Steve Meyers swept the one- and three-meter diving competition against New Hampshire on Saturday. The team won the meet, 196-101.

By TOM QUINN
Collegian Correspondent

The University of Massachusetts men's swim team blasted New Hampshire out of the water Saturday in Boyden with a score of 196-101.

The Minutemen improved their impressive record to 10-1 overall and set three pool records.

Sophomore Jay Peluso won the 100-yard breaststroke setting a pool record in the process with a wining time of 1:00.34.

"Jay's starting to come into his own right know," said UMass coach Russ Yarworth. "My boys are on fire right now and we're poised to take our fifth straight New England Championship."

UNH's Jerry Bailey set a pool record in the 400 individual medley with a impressive winning time of 4:12.

Nine UMass swimmers shaved down for the meet hoping to earn the last three spots on the team's 18-man roster of swimmers going to New Englands. Under that highly competitive spotlight, those nine all swam to their personal best times.

Sophomore Tim Turpin, one of the nine, won the 100 and 200 backstroke events. Sophomore Steve Yungblueth, also a member of the UMass water polo team, earned a spot on the New England team in the 400 I.M.

Senior Scott Milbert won the 200 freestyle blowing away his field in the last 25 yards to earn his spot on the New England team.

The Minutemen's 800 relay dominated the field relayers in the last event of the meet to shatter the poll record with a time of 7:05. The relayers were Curt Sawin, Chris Barret, Pete Hursty and Jim Robertson.

UMass' Steve Meyers won the one- and three-meter dives.

Men's track takes second

By KEITH BENNETT
Collegian Correspondent

The University of Massachusetts men's track team finished a close second to New Hampshire in a tri-meet against UNH and Holy Cross Friday night. UNH scored 82 points to edge the Minutemen, who scored 76. Holy Cross could manage only 23 points in finishing third.

UNH recorded eight first place finishes and 29 places overall, while UMass had seven firsts and 24 places overall.

UNH swept the top three places in the 55-meter dash and were then able to hold the Minutemen off for the remainder of the meet to earn the victory.

Senior Jon Corso won the 3,000 in a time of 8 minutes, 33.7 seconds. Other victories were turned in by Steve Brown in the 400M (51.1) and Jeff White in the 55M hurdles (7.9).

Matt Simon and Gerry Squires each won their individual events and ran a leg on the 4 x 800M relay team. Simon won the 1,000M in 2:32.7 and Squires took the 1,500M in 4:03.5. Teammates Tom Hooper and Ben Winther helped Simon and Squires finish the relay in 8:14.

In field events, Jeff Peterson was the lone winner for UMass. Peterson won the triple-jump with a distance of 43 feet, 1.5 inches.

Another athlete O'Brien said performed extremely well for the Minutemen was sophomore Dave Borges. Borges had a busy night, as he placed second in the long-jump (21-7), third in the high-jump (6-3), third in the pole-vault (12-7) and ran a leg on the 4 x 400M relay team, which finished second.

Largest College Daily in New England

THE MASSACHUSETTS DAILY COLLEGIAN Established in 1890

VOLUME C WEDNESDAY, FEBRUARY 6, 1991 ISSUE 76

UMass students pray for peace in Gulf

By GAYLE LONG
Collegian Staff

Saying the war in the Persian Gulf is stressful to people regardless of their religious or political convictions, members from five different religious organizations came together yesterday to perform a service for peace in Memorial Hall.

Muslim, Jewish and Christian demominations described their religions as "worshipping the sanctity of life," in a statement issued by the University Chaplins and Rabbi Saul Perlmutter.

"People can perceive the word of God differently," Perlmutter said. "As each of us on this campus passionately pursues which we believe is right, may we respect the rights of others."

Perlmutter said people must "affirm the humanity in those we think are wrong" as well as accept opinions contrary to their own.

Rev. Dick Sanner, from the United Christian Foundation, stressed in his prayer that God will "deliver us from national vanity which poses as patriotism and relieves our guilt."

Praying for the troops, and all people in the Gulf, was also on the minds of those at the service.

"We should pray for the brave men and women in battle," said Sanner, "to keep them from hating those who they fight and from score-keeping with human bodies."

Alexis Levitt, a UMass Jewish student, read Jewish Scripture passages which focused on the oneness of human life.

"Have we not all one source?" she read. "One who preserves one soul is regarded as if she has preserved an entire world."

Sr. Mildred Marengo, of the Newman Center — Roman Catholic Chaplaincy, asked the audience to "come together and raise our hearts and voices to God, who we love and honor."

She asked God to "watch over the lives of civilians, defenders of the truth, and unwilling participants" of the war.

Sanner also mentioned in prayer those who are against the war, saying he hoped "they never confuse conscience with cowardice."

"Allah makes the final judgement," she said, reading from the Koran. "It is not a human's job to judge another human."

"A good Muslim is a patriot to a nation which allows it freedom of religion, and they have a duty to defend it."

The Rev. Christopher Carlisle of the Ark Episcopal Chaplaincy at UMass read a "litany in time of war," asking for God to help all people, families, leaders, soldiers, and innocent victims to be protected by the will of God.

Khaleelah Abdul-Kareem, of the Muslim Students Association, read Islamic prayers and sayings from the Koran.

Abdul-Kareem noted the differences and similarites in the three religions, Islam being the youngest religion of the three.

There is no hierarchy in Islam, she said, and each person can speak and read from the Koran.

Islam literally means, "one who submits to the will of God," said Abdul-Kareem. The God of Islam is the same God as that of Christianity and Judaism, the one universal God, she said.

"Anyone who submit themselves to God is a Muslim," she said. "Whether they see themselves as a Muslim or not."

Abdul-Kareem also said Muslims accept all the prophets of Judaism and Christianity. Christians, Jews, and Muslims are all known as "People of the Book," meaning the Bible.

Singers from Hillel sang a song, "Shalu Shalom Yerushalayim," which incorporated a theme of unity among the three religions and peace throughout the world.

Collegian photo by Matt Kahn

Father Lee Gilbertson

Liquor stores to be open for business on Sundays

By EVE EPSTEIN
Associated Press

BOSTON — Liquor stores statewide would be able to sell alcohol on Sunday under a Weld administration proposal included in his plan for reducing the deficit, which was submitted to the House clerk yesterday.

Weld administration officials said they would like to broaden a provision that now permits Sunday liquor sales for stores near the New Hampshire border. If approved by the Legislature, it would break the state's long-held ban on Sunday liquor sales.

A Weld spokesman said permitting all liquor stores in the state to remain open on Sunday is fair.

"It's just to bring all the communities in line with the border legislation (that passed) last year," said Jordan St. John, a deputy press spokesperson for Weld.

The entire package submitted by Weld is aimed at erasing an estimated $850 million budget deficit for the budget year that begins July 1.

The savings plan calls for cuts, fee increases and reorganization of state agencies and the education system to eliminate the deficit. The cuts include a $618 million reduction in human services for fiscal 1992, and layoffs, furloughs and benefits reductions for state employees beginning this spring.

Weld outlined his plan in broad terms last week, but the bill he filed Tuesday fills in the details. Although Weld asked for approval by Feb. 21, House Speaker Charles Flaherty has said he would like to see the Legislature complete its work by March 1.

Sunday liquor sales would offer a way to bring more revenue to the state through the sales tax on alcohol.

"It might be worth a few million dollars," St. John said, but he added state administrators are not sure exactly how much it will raise.

The Sunday liquor store measure still calls for liquor stores, like most other retail establishments, to remain closed until noon on Sunday. It would also authorize liquor sales on Memorial Day, the Fourth of July and Labor Day, administration officials said.

The measure would protect employees from discrimination, dismissal or deduction of hours if they refused to work on Sunday.

John Stasiowski, of the Massachusetts Package Store Association, which represents 600 package stores in the state, said his group opposes Sunday liquor sales.

"The association will oppose it for a couple of reasons, probably most importantly because that is the only day off that many of the store owners and their employees get," he said.

Meanwhile, Senate President William Bulger offered two significant changes to the Weld package he said Senate Democrats would discuss in caucus before the package goes to the floor.

One would be to replace the transit fare and fee increases Weld has proposed with an income tax surcharge. Another would be to require higher-paid state workers to take longer furloughs than their lower-paid colleagues.

Bulger said the items may not even be offered on the floor, but he said, "They will be discussed."

In addition to the cuts package, the Weld administration submitted a $380 million supplemental budget plan to fill accounts that otherwise would run dry by June 30. About $150 million of that total would go to a Medicaid account that the Dukakis administration had predicted would need substantially less revenue.

The $380 million has been factored into the governor's $850 million budget deficit projection.

Weld's bill also calls for a repeal of a law passed last year that makes it easier for firefighters stricken with cancer to collect disability payments. Cities and towns argued the new law placed an extra burden on municipalities.

Weld has said a repeal of the cancer presumption law would save communities $1.4 million in fiscal 1992 and $300 million over the next 15 years, but others have argued it costs much less. One estimate pegged the cost of the program at $13 million over 15 years.

The professional firefighters of Massachusetts oppose the repeal.

"I am sure that Governor Weld does not want to incur unjust financial burdens on spouses and children of firefighters who die or are permanently injured from occupational diseases," said Robert McCarthy, president of the firefighter's group.

Weld also included a judicial reform proposal in his plan, that the administration said is similar to a bill filed by the justices of the Supreme Judicial Court. The justices have asked the Legislature to give them more control over the court budget, so they can reassign staff and close courts that are under used.

The governor's proposal grants the court line item budget authority, but gives the governor and the Legislature some oversight in the process.

Wall Street mildly optimistic about proposed cuts

By ROBERT W. TROTT
Associated Press Writer

BOSTON — Wall Street representatives expressed cautious optimism yesterday about Gov. William F. Weld's proposed budget cuts and its chances of legislative approval, saying it could at least prevent the state's bond rating from slipping to junk-bond status.

And after a meeting of more than two hours with about 100 legislators, the message the financial experts gave to Bay State lawmakers was clear, House Speaker Charles Flaherty said.

"Just get a balanced budget, and they don't quite care how we do it as long as we have one," said Flaherty (D-Cambridge).

"Everybody one way or another said we need some predictability and stability in our economy and our state government," said Flaherty. "But the bottom line is we have to balance the budget."

Claire G. Cohen, executive managing director of government finance for Fitch Investors Service Inc. in New York, said she was impressed by Weld's savings package, but added that it needs further study.

The measure is aimed at eliminating an $850 million deficit for the remaining five months of this fiscal year and $1.82 billion for the budget year that begins July 1.

Weld has asked the Legislature to approve the plan by Feb. 21.

"I think Wall Street certainly should be heartened that there's interest and an honest attempt both to identify and to solve the deficit," Cohen said.

"I think there have been many honest attempts out of Massachusetts," she said.

"It's been difficult in both agreeing that there is a problem and agreeing as to what the extent of the problem is, which has hampered agreement on appropriate solutions," said Cohen.

Dick Larkin of Standard and Poors said his rating firm and others on Wall Street are still a bit leery of Massachusetts, and won't be inclined to raise the state's rating until they see something from the Legislature and Weld.

"We are skeptical because of the track record," Larkin said, "but. . . I think there's a great consensus that this is a crucial budget year and that something will have to be done that will vary from the past budget problems."

Larkin said Massachusetts can't afford to borrow like it did last fiscal year to make ends meet.

"That's getting dangerously close to living on borrowed time," he said.

"I think they made it obvi[illegible] they don't intend for us, they don't want us to borr[illegible]again," Flaherty said.

Standard and Poors rates Massachusetts bonds at BBB, the lowest in the nation and one grade higher than junk bond status. Larkin said the rating "right now is somewhat more stable than a couple of months ago."

Cohen, echoing Weld and other Northeastern governors facing deficits, said the slumping national economy has dealt Massachusetts an ill-timed blow.

"The states can't print their own money, they've got to bring their budgets into balance," she said.

"That's the starting point, and it's very difficult to try to do that in a recession that has been deeper than expected," Cohen said.

But if the Weld plan — or a similar cuts package — is implemented, "I would say Massachusetts would be on its way to stabilizing its credit position," Cohen said.

Flaherty said that if nothing else, yesterday's meeting let lawmakers know that Wall Street won't reward sloppy budgeting.

INSIDE:

WEDNESDAY, FEBRUARY 6, 1991

Page 5: Columnist Pam McCarthy says women aren't only fighting in the desert.

Page 8: Animation festival and Peter Panic come to UMass tonight.

Page 12: Entrance procedures for tonight's basketbal game have been changed.

WEATHER

So much for warm weather — today will be mostly cloudy, temps between 40-45.

For Your Information

WEDNESDAY, FEBRUARY 6

Blood Drive — A blood drive will be held in the Student Union Ballroom from 11 a.m.- 4 p.m.

Brown Bag Discussion — A brown bag lunch discussion will be held in the Campus Center room 904 at 12:15 p.m. The event is sponsored by the Women's Studies department.

Movie — The movie "Jacob's Ladder," sponsored by the Racquetball Club, will be held in the CC Auditorium. Show times are 5 p.m., 7 p.m., 9 p.m. and 11 p.m. The first show will cost $2, the remaining times will cost $3.

General Meeting — The Japan American club will meet in CC165-69 from 7- 11p.m.

Draft Counseling — People interested in draft counseling should go to the Northampton Unitarian Church at 7 p.m. Couseling is held every Wednesday.

THURSDAY, FEBRUARY 7

Movie — The movie "Total Recall" is being offered by SCUM in the CC Auditorium at 5 p.m., 7 p.m., 9 p.m. and 11 p.m. The first showing costs $2, and the remaining shows cost $2.50.

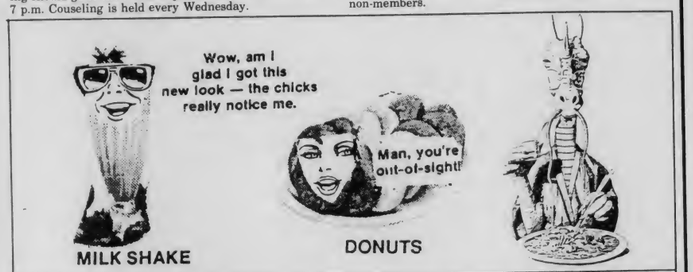
Film — A film will be shown in CC 803 from 7-9 p.m. sponsored by the LBGA.

Blood Drive — A blood drive will be held in the Student Union Ballroom from 11 a.m.-4 p.m.

Lecture — The lecture "The New European Order and the U.S." will take place in Converse Hall at Amherst College at 8 p.m.

FRIDAY, FEBRUARY 8

Dance — A dance, sponsored by the Asian Student Association, will be held in the CC Auditorium from 9 p.m.-1 a.m. The cost is $2 for members, $4 for non-members.



THE MASSACHUSETTS
DAILY COLLEGIAN

New England's largest college daily newspaper. Circulation: 19,000. Published every weekday during the calendar semester. The Massachusetts Daily Collegian is a Registered Student Organization of the University of Massachusetts.

113 Campus Center, Amherst, MA, 01003
Phone (413) 545-3500 FAX (413) 545-1592

STAFF

Editor in Chief ..... Terry Starmer
Managing Editor ..... Jody Gabin
Editorial Editor ..... Jeremy Levinson
News Editor ..... Gayle Long
Sports Editor ..... Adrien Matt
Arts Editor ..... Danielle Dowling
Photography Editor ..... K.A. Burke
Black Affairs Editor ..... Sondra Sutton
Women's Issues Editors ..... Rua Kelly, Monique Tabon
Multicultural Affairs Editor ..... Alexander Nguyen
Third World Affairs Editor ..... Pratip Dasvidar
Lesbian, Bisexual, Gay Issues Editor ..... Trystan Skeigh
Business Manager ..... Susan George
Advertising Manager ..... Dave Melnick
Finance Manager ..... Beth Patterson
Circulation Manager ..... Jim Winterbottom
Subscriptions Manager ..... Stacy Rogers
Promotions Manager ..... Marc Pruskin
Production Manager ..... Nicole Dumas
Day Graphics Manager ..... Jenn Burns

PROFESSIONAL STAFF

Business ..... Brian Harrington, Lori Black, Maureen Majerowski
Graphics ..... Rory Evans

TODAY'S STAFF

Night Editor ..... Meredith O'Brien
Copy Editor ..... Pam McCarthy
Layout Technician ..... Mike Carvalho
Photo Technician ..... K.A. Burke
Production Supervisor ..... Mike Carvalho
Typesetter ..... Danielle Dowling
Production ..... Jen Fatkin, Mark Sturm, Tracey Richman

COME CLEAN WITH US!
Campus Coin Op
107 Sunderland Road, North Amherst
Open 7 a.m.-10 p.m.
SPEEDWASH
11 Pray St., Amherst
NOW OPEN 24 HOURS!
South Towne Commons Laundromat
479 West St., South Amherst
Open 7 a.m.-10 p.m.

COPING WITH RECENT PARENTAL DIVORCE?

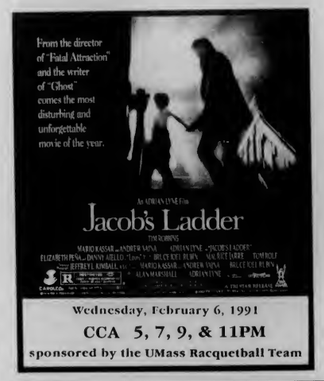
Receive support and learn new coping skills

A group is currently forming for students whose parents have divorced in the past three years. We will meet for ten Wednesdays from 5:00 to 6:30 pm beginning February 20, 1991.

Call 545-0333

Register now since enrollment is limited!

Sponsored by the Center for Counseling and Academic Development



From the director of "Fatal Attraction" and the writer of "Ghost" comes the most disturbing and unforgettable movie of the year.
Jacob's Ladder
Wednesday, February 6, 1991
CCA 5, 7, 9, & 11PM
sponsored by the UMass Racquetball Team

STUDENT COMMENCEMENT SPEAKER

Proposals are solicited for consideration as Student Commencement Speaker

Eligibility:	Graduating University senior
Format:	3-4 "typed" pages, double-spaced (equivalent of 3-4 minutes speaking time); original and one copy. Include your name, local address and telephone number on a separate, attached cover sheet.
Subject matter:	The text should concern education and be relevant to the University and your experience(s) here.
Selection process:	Entries will be reviewed by the Student Commencement Speaker Selection Committee, which consists of students, staff, and faculty. (Author's name will be removed before being given to the committee to ensure objectivity.) Ratings will be assigned and selected authors will be invited to "audition" before the committee. The committee will make the final selection.
Deadline:	Thursday, February 21, 1991, not later than 4:30pm
Submit proposals to:	Paul R. Appleby, Director, Disability Services, 231 Whitmore (545-0892)

COLLEGE TOURS presents
Spring Break IN CANCUN
8 DAYS 7 NIGHTS BOSTON $479
PRICE INCLUDES:
- Hotel transfers to and from the airport
- Roundtrip airfare to Cancun.
- Lodging (4 per room) in a 3 or 4 star hotel.
- Private cocktail parties — FREE!
- Exclusive COLLEGE TOURS Cancun Spring Break T-Shirt.
- Discount coupons good for complimentary drinks, and special deals at local restaurants and establishments.
- Exclusive parties at Cancun's HOTTEST night clubs.
- Best tan contests for guys and girls.
- Special mid-week 3-hour 10 star party with FREE drinks and food.
- Co-ed tournaments and beach events.
CONTACT:
Kathy & Jean 253-5140
Eric & Sean 549-7931
1-800-395-4896
THIS TRIP WILL SELL OUT !

REGION

AP photo

HERE COMES THE SUN — John Holdridge, a UMass-Boston student, enjoys the recent record-breaking weather.

State workers to absorb brunt of Weld's cutbacks

By EVE EPSTEIN
Associated Press Writer

BOSTON — Lt. Gov. Paul Cellucci acknowledged the Weld administration's budget plan may strike some as unfair, but defended the proposal as the best alternative for difficult fiscal times.

"We recognize that many people can argue that particular aspects of it are not fair," Cellucci said Monday.

"We can't really say, well, it is fair. We can only say it's been applied fairly."

Cellucci spoke after submitting a small part of Gov. William F. Weld's budget-cutting proposal to the House Clerk's office.

Celluci had planned to submit the entire bill, but said much of it was killed due to a computer glitch.

"All we have is the reorganization portions," said Weld Deputy Spokesperson Jordan St. John.

"The rest of it went down with the computer,' said St. John.

After working through the night to reconstruct the plan, the Weld administration filed the remainder of the proposal with the House clerk today.

The measure is aimed at eliminating an $850 million deficit for the remaining five months of this fiscal year and $1.82 billion for the budget year that begins July 1.

House Speaker Charles Flaherty (D-Cambridge) strode over to the clerk's office Monday looking for a copy of the bill, saying legislators need to begin work on the deficit.

Weld has asked the Legislature to approve the plan by Feb. 21.

"I've been waiting all day to get a copy, because I want to sit down with my leadership team and fashion out how we're going to move on this," Flaherty said.

He speculated the glitch might reflect the mood of state workers, who would see their benefits and salaries shrink under the plan.

"The computer operator's probably on strike because he's going to have to pay for his parking space," Flaherty said, referring to Weld's proposal to charge state workers $5 a day to park.

The plan also calls for state employees to take a 10-day unpaid furlough and would require them to pay 25 percent of their health insurance premiums instead of the current 10 percent.

Flaherty said he believes the Weld plan hits some groups, including state workers, harder than others.

"I think it falls a little short on fairness to be honest with you," he said.

The Weld plan calls for repealing the expansion of the sales tax to business and professional services.

"I don't think it's fair to ask a scrub woman that works for the state to take a two-week unpaid furlough at the same time ask that we not impose a tax on people who earn $100,000 a year or more — a tax that they probable pass onto their customers anyway," Flaherty said.

Computer equipment stolen

By MARK HENSLEY
Collegian Staff

Staff at the Physical Plant Operations Building reported the theft of a Compaq PC monitor and keyboard worth $2500 over the weekend. The property was located in a secure area and police are investigating.

Arrests

- Kenneth Pratt Jr., 43 of York, Maine, was arrested on Monday on warrants from the towns of Concord and Acton after his car was towed from Orchard Hill Drive.
- Jon D. Shapiro, 20, of Peabody was arrested early yesterday morning on North Pleasant St. for operating with a suspended license after police pulled him over for failing to use his directional.

Cambridge 'peace commissioner' strives for end to war

By TONY ROGERS
Associated Press Writer

CAMBRIDGE — Cathy Hoffman operates from a cluttered city office no bigger than a large closet, but her domain extends as far as the Persian Gulf and any other spot on the globe where nations might clash.

Hoffman is the city's peace commissioner. The job description demands no less than she try to prevent a nuclear exchange, achieve world peace and thereby protect Cambridge residents from the ravages of war.

Since the Gulf War began, Hoffman and a handful of her counterparts in cities around the country have undertaken the work of world peace at the municipal level.

In this university city with a liberal tradition, Hoffman said the peace commission's opposition to the war is rooted as much in sound economics as in starry-eyed idealism.

"People say, 'Why should Cambridge have a peace commission?' But residents pay an average of $2,000 a year for military taxes, so war directly affects the community," she said yesterday.

Hoffman said she worried that with the Gulf War under way, the federal government was "draining the precious few resources we have to bring peace to our own city streets. There's an intimate connection between peace in our own neighborhood and what happens on a global level."

Formed eight years ago, the peace commission operates on a yearly budget of $43,500. Hoffman and a staff of 20 volunteers run a summer peace camp, produce "The Peace Show" for local cable TV and have established a collection of peace books at the public library.

With a war on her hands, Hoffman is even busier than usual.

She has introduced three city council resolutions on the Gulf war, supporting sanctions. All the measures passed unanimously.

The peace commission has also sponsored a measure to remove military recruiters from city high schools, and has produced a packet of educational materials about war for students.

"We want to try and continue the work we were already doing," Hoffman said. "But war-related things have kind of overwhelmed us."

But Hoffman is not alone among municipal officials in her concern that the needs of the inner cities, public schools and social service agencies will be forgotten in wartime.

Chicago's Peace Conversion Committee is organizing a Gulf War forum and is conducting a study to see what the city could do with the funding for each Patriot missile fired.

"The war costs $600 million a day. One day of that would transform this city's infrastructure," said Ron Freund, the committee's vice chairman. "It would make this a far more livable place. We seem to gird for war, but not for peace."

Software makers investigated
Company denies federal probe

CAMBRIDGE (AP) — A software consortium that includes some of the nation's top computer makers is trying to dispel reports that it has become the target of a federal antitrust investigation.

The Cambridge-based group, Open Software Foundation, has more than 200 members. It was founded in 1988 by a group that included International Business Machines Corp., Digital Equipment Corp. and Hewlett-Packard Co.

The group is developing standard software that can run on the computers of many different companies in an effort to compete with a rival strategy by American Telephone and Telegraph Co. and Sun Microsystems Inc.

The San Francisco Chronicle, citing unnamed industry executives, reported yesterday that the Federal Trade Commission apparently has inquired about the way OSF selects and buys technology from independent companies and incorporates it into products the consortium is developing.

Some small software companies have complained that the consortium pays too little for their technology, but that they have no real alternative because of OSF's power in setting technical standards.

"If your technology is selected, you may not get enough money to stay viable," said Larry Lytle, director of strategic relations at Netwise Inc., a software company in Boulder, Colorado.

"If it is not selected, you may be foreclosed in the sense that your product is no longer viable," Lytle told the Chronicle.

An FTC spokesman would neither confirm nor deny that an investigation is under way.

But the consortium recently sent a letter to its members, saying it has not been notified by the federal government of any investigation.

Monson police work nights only failing Mass. economy cited

By MICHELLE LOCKE
Associated Press

MONSON — At 8 o'clock in the morning, police in this country town hang up a "Sorry, we're closed," sign on the front door of their blue clapboard station and turn on the answering machine.

Their message: "There is no one available to answer your call."

At 4 p.m., when the night shift comes on, the police are back in business — and bracing for the complaints of citizens who grumble that the new money-saving policy will turn their community into a haven for daylight robbery.

"My house got broken into today. A little less advertisement maybe I would be in better shape," a disgruntled homeowner said Monday evening as he prepared to report the daytime break-in.

Police appear uncomfortable with their new, part-time role, brought on in part by the sinking Massachusetts economy.

"I never thought it would come to this," said one longtime officer who asked that his name not be used. "It's opened it up for every thief from here to Timbuktu."

The answering machine advises callers with an emergency to contact the state police barracks in Sturbridge, about 18 miles away. So far, there haven't been any crises, said Acting Police Chief Joseph Loglisci. Police reporting for the 4 p.m. shift say they generally find about a half-dozen messages left on the machine.

Logiscli is sometimes in the office during the day, completing paperwork.

UMASS SKI CLUB

ATTENTION SKIERS!!!

Shred the Bumps with the Ski Club every Saturday.

Find out about trips and other club happenings at our first meeting.

TONIGHT!!

Wednesday, February 6 1991
CC Room 917
7pm to 9pm

UMASS SKI CLUB 430 STUDENT UNION 545-3437

Largest College Daily in New England

THE MASSACHUSETTS DAILY COLLEGIAN Established in 1890

113 Campus Center

OPEN HOUSE

THURSDAY, FEBRUARY 7.
2-4 p.m.
113 Campus Center

All interested writers and photographers are welcome to attend.

Don't Miss This!
Last Three Days

LEATHER GOODS
SAVE!
50-70% OFF!

BOOK BAGS • TRAVEL BAGS & TOTES
• BACK PACKS • HANDBAGS
• BRIEFCASES • WALLETS

Book Bags SAVE 70%
Briefcases SAVE 70%
Flight Bag SAVE 70%

Wednesday, Thursday & Friday

HANDBAGS • WALLETS • PORTFOLIOS
SAVE 70%

Sponsored by UMASS Baseball

Campus Center Concourse 10-4
Get Ready for Spring Break!

DIVISION OF CONTINUING EDUCATION

Think Spring!

A perfect time for renewal and new beginnings.

University of Massachusetts at Amherst

Spring 1991

Renew your life goals, your career, or your personal life. Over 200 fresh credit courses and Adventures in Lifelong Learning workshops are being hatched at UMass this spring.

Late register through February 11.

Classes start January 29.

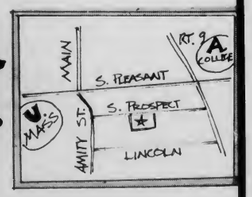
For more information, contact the Division of Continuing Education, Goodell Building, or call 545-2414.

DIVISION OF CONTINUING EDUCATION

STEINBECK COLLISION REPAIR & AUTOBODY

53 So. Prospect — Amherst Center
256-8157 256-1385

Shop Registration # RS1212



• Imports & other unibody vehicles are our specialty

• State of art equipment for precision frame and unibody straightening (+ or - ½ mm)

• Over 90 years staff experience

• Accepted by all insurance companies for collision repair or glass replacement

• Advanced European Technology Painting and Refinishing Systems

REMEMBER it's your car and your choice of repair facilities

EDITORIAL/OPINION

The opinions on this page are those of the individual writer or cartoonist and do not necessarily reflect the views of the Collegian or the University unless otherwise noted.

New war, same old lies

It amazes me how, in the past 11 years, we Americans, as a whole, have been so naive when it comes to the blind support we give those mindless dolts in Washington. We can trace our own stupidity all the way back to Richard Nixon. I won't get into Watergate — it's old news.

Let's talk about some more recent events. In 1983 Ronald Reagan ordered the invasion of the tiny island of Greneda.

Reason given: To save the American medical students.

Later it was proven that he knew about the whole operation, and that it was covered up until he gracefully left office.

In 1989 Mr. Bush ordered the invasion of Panama.

Reason given: Noriega was a drug dealer.

Old News. Everyone had known this. Bush knew it too and so did everybody else in Washington. But we, as the American people, didn't learn of this until Bush needed an excuse to eliminate him. Mr. Noriega had become too big for his own pants and in the process he became a loose cannon for the Bush administration. We accepted his reasons for the invasion without a question.

Now here we are at war. The television is presenting 24-hour live coverage, but the press has been put under tight censorship and once again we're accepting everything that Bush is telling us. Granted, Saddam Hussein ranks up there with Hitler himself, but what Bush isn't telling you is that we, (our government) have been supporting Hussein for over 10 years both with money and technology. Bush himself, as vice president, cast tie-breaking votes on Capital Hill to allow aid for Hussein and his regime. Once again we go right along accepting what these fools tell us. When does it stop?

People who are protesting the war are accused of being anti-troops. How can anyone not give support to those young courageous men and women? What the protesters want to express is their disgust with Washington and how we're all being misled.

People who argue on behalf of the war say that Kuwait's democracy must be restored. Kuwait was never a democracy, and if the rich Kuwaiti royal families have their way, it never will be. Kuwait was nothing but a cheap source of dependable oil for our country.

The problems in that region stem from hundreds of years of foreign interference. Smart bombs won't solve the problems. Smart and caring people will, but the White House and Capital Hill are lacking such people.

Remember we're never told the whole truth. When the war ends, and the real facts are exposed, what will Bush's excuses be? What will we, as the American people, do when we find out, after all the rhetoric, that it was a war for oil? More importantly, what will we say to the families who lost loved ones in the war? No excuse or condolence can ever justify their loss.

David Rivera is a UMass student

David Rivera

This was supposed to be a major victory for the United States. But later, we (those of us who occasionally read) found out the the American students on the island were never in any real danger, and that the invasion was partially ordered to try and boost American moral after the deaths of the 241 marines in Lebanon.

In 1986, the Iran/Contra scandal came into public scrutiny. It was determined that there was a shadow government running their own foreign policy. Weapons for hostages were authorized by Mr. Reagan himself. He also authorized the funneling of money to the Contras. We, the American people, let him get away with it because he couldn't remember giving such orders.

American women have their own war

When the cops came, she was bleeding from her nose and mouth. Her face was bruised and it hurt to breathe. Side effects of getting a foot in the ribs about 10 times, you know. Strangely enough, it wasn't deemed worthy of being a crime. After all, her husband was the one who assaulted her, and it wasn't any business of the law. If she fought back, she'd have to plead insanity, not self-defense. She wouldn't have a prayer in court otherwise. (Yes, you have to be insane to defend yourself if you're a woman.)

So many liberals whine, "Many women have a problem with the fact that we are protecting a country that forces women to wear veils and doesn't allow them to drive." I won't make any judgements about Saudi Arabia. I'll leave that to Middle Eastern women who know their own culture and know what they want, not to a bunch of White people who decided to tell the rest of us poor, ignorant schmucks what feminism should be.

Why is it so wonderful that women are killing and dying for a country that still considers us second to men? No, I'm not talking about Saudi Arabia. I'm talking about the good ol' U.S. of A.

This country still finds it hysterical that women want equal pay for equal work. This country has an anti-choice president and too many like-minded legislators and clergy. The blame for youth problems is shuffled onto working mothers (not the working fathers who could also stay at home with their kids). This country still tries to hide the ugly facts of rape (unless there's a movie which uses rape, then it's erotic). This country considers battering and abuse by husbands and boyfriends normal. It's love or jealousy; she should be flattered. This country has a booming diet industry, since not all women can be 110 pounds.

We can't walk alone comfortably. Every shrub and fence has the dubious promise of assault. If we are assaulted, it's our fault for breaking the unofficial curfew our country imposes on us.

This is the country where one out of three men said that if they could get away with it, they'd rape a woman. In another poll, people said it was okay to rape a woman if the date was expensive, if you had sex with her before, or if she was a 'tease.'

This is what we're fighting for? We are fighting for a system that is created by men for men. We are fighting for a system that systematically oppresses and degrades us.

Come on. Wake up.

Enough of us are dying at home. It may be wiser if the women overseas came home and turned their guns on men.

Pamela McCarthy is a Collegian columnist

Pamela McCarthy

Before her class, the student would shake and her stomach would do flips most gymnasts would gasp at. Every day this one guy would make rude comments. Then he started to grab at her. He didn't just limit it to her arms — her chest was a favorite target of his. Whenever she complained, people would say, "What's the problem? He's just joking. You're overreacting."

A woman was gang-raped by a group of guys whose parents were "high-up" in the community. So, when she pressed charges, the outcry was not that she was put through a horrible ordeal, but that she was ruining their future. How dare she.

Take a good look. This is the country we live in.

This is the country we are supposed to be fighting for.

Women, many of them self-proclaimed feminists, say that it's a good step that women are in Saudi Arabia, helping to kill civilians in Iraq. "We disagree with the war," they say, "but its wonderful that women are finally getting some recognition in the army. We need equality in the armed forces."

First, let me clear a couple of things up. I do believe that women are capable of fighting in combat (and if you don't believe me, take a look at the beginning of the column. It's not fiction.) Also, if this country were ever under attack, I would be the first person to grab a gun and fight like hell. I need a reason to fight. A good one.

Everyone has something to say. The trick is finding a way to say it. The Collegian can help by publishing your letter, column or editorial cartoon. Keep letters under 50 lines and columns between 50-70. Editorial cartoons are always welcome. After all, the Ed/Op section is your section.

PVTA — Safety first

I read in last week's paper about the student that was hit by a car after walking out in front of the bus. I can only imagine how the driver of the car that hit the person must feel.

I almost hit someone a couple of years ago because he walked right in front of the bus without looking either way to see if any cars were coming. What added to this near-tragedy was that it was a very rainy day and the roads were very slick and I skidded awhile before stopping. It was a miracle that I was able to stop before hitting him. It scared the hell out of me and my sister, who was riding with me that day.

I could see the look of fear on his face as well. . .he froze right there in the middle of the road, not able to move. My heart was beating so hard and my hands were so shaky, it took almost the entire ride home before I had calmed down. I can't understand the mentality of some of these people.

I know that 99.9 percent of the people riding the buses realize that when you descend from the bus, if you value your life, you look both ways before crossing. The rule of thumb was drilled into most of our psyches most of our young lives. The PVTA buses are NOT grade-school buses — traffic does not stop both ways and wait for the kids to cross the street. Now that you are in college, you are virtually on your own, and you have to watch out for yourself, as well as for the other guy. Maybe a warning should be issued in the undergraduate information packets that this is a university and they do not operate in the same manner as public schools do, and you have to learn to cross the streets on your own. Mom and dad and the bus drivers aren't here to watch over you now. You are left to your own devices.

Connie Smith
Turners Falls

Collegian violates ethical responsibilties in protest coverage

The Constitution's Bill of Rights grants the citizens of our nation the indisputable right to freedom of the press. This right has been treasured and glorified, for the past 200 years, as a cornerstone of American democracy. However, as Supreme Court Justice Oliver Wendell Holmes pointed out, for every right comes a responsibility. The Collegian has not lived up to this responsibility.

The United States has recently become engaged in a war in the Persian Gulf. The Collegian has eloquently covered protests, sit-ins, and statements by leaders that oppose the war. This coverage is good enough to even convince others to oppose the war. There has been little, or at least a less than high quality of reporting concerning the other side. With well over 75 percent of American people now supporting President Bush's actions, according to ABC news polls, it would seem that the Collegian could make a less than meek attempt at reporting "the other side."

As student leaders, it is our opinion that, with the Collegian always boasting of its professionalism and high quality of journalistic integrity, it would seem that the Collegian's editors could "bite their upper lip" and make sure that both sides of the issue are presented — outside of an occasional "Point/Counterpoint." The Collegian has not met their responsibility to report the news factually and unbiased. Presenting one side of the news is not fair or right. With a great deal of students getting their first news of the day from the Collegian, it must meet it's responsibilities, and achieve the quality of news reporting of which it is capable.

Richard A. Sugarman
SGA Senator

[Editor's note — Eight other student leaders signed this letter.]

Hoop coach compliments fans' spirit, patriotism

Congratulations on your school spirit, patriotism, and sportsmanship. Saturday night you put on a display like UMass has never seen. Everyone I have spoken with around the country has been unbelievably positive about the excitement you have created around the basketball program. Callers, the ESPN crew, and members of the media have all said the same thing: "UMass is the most exciting college basketball school in the Northeast. Another Duke University!" Singing the national anthem and carrying the American flag as a group really affected people lucky enough to see that game on television. While no one wanted war, and we all want the troops home "safe and soon," showing the nation that UMass cares, is really special.

I want to stress how important you are to our success as a program. The fans make us 10 points better at home and we believe we can beat anyone in the Cage. The best thing about our fans is you have learned to be positive, to cheer for us — not against the other team. We want to keep that kind of atmosphere for every game. You are the "rage in the Cage!" I'm proud to be a part of this fine University and proud to be your basketball coach. Thank you.

John Calipari
UMass men's basketball coach

'Irrational' law faces opposition in RI

By CHRIS TORCHIA
Associated Press Writer

BOSTON — A Rhode Island town law allowing the arrest of people who sleep on the beach or in their cars in beachside neighborhoods is vague and discriminatory, a lawyer said yesterday in federal appeals court.

"The decision to enforce lies totally with the cop on the beat," said Gary Berkowitz, lawyer for the American Civil Liberties Union in Rhode Island. "Some people will be charged and some people won't. There's no consistent application of the law."

A federal judge in Providence last year rejected a challenge to the constitutionality of the Westerly law, which was introduced in the 1960s.

The state ACLU had challenged the law on behalf of two Connecticut men arrested in July, 1988. The case was expanded to a class action covering more than 250 people arrested under the ordinance.

The law is irrational because technically a man who has dozed off while waiting for his wife to leave a department store could be arrested, Berkowitz said in arguments in the U.S. 1st Circuit Court in Boston.

But Town Attorney John Levanti said officers were well trained and used common sense when enforcing the law.

"When they come across people who are obviously asleep, one across the front seat and one across the back seat, clearly they've broken the law," Levanti said.

Levanti said the law ensures the health and welfare of Westerly, a seaside town of 20,000 that sometimes swells to 60,000 with tourists on a Sunday afternoon.

AEROBICS
FREE WEIGHTS
NAUTILUS
CARDIOVASCULAR FITNESS
College Student Special
$99 Membership
exp. 5/19/91
Daily Aerobics Classes
Reebok Step Classes
Olympic Free Weights
Stairmasters • Lifecycles
Special Rates
Walk-ins Welcome
Tanning • Massage • Saunas
Day Care • Open 7 Days
NORTHAMPTON NAUTILUS & ATHLETIC CLUB
216 N. King Street
Northampton - 584-4975

We'd like to show you a path that often holds the greatest reward.

Rewarding careers for people who care.

Down the road a few years from now, you're going to be glad you chose a career path today that's right in the heart of Boston. It's Northeastern University's Boston-Bouvé College of Human Development Professions – the smart choice that leads to a greater reward for people who really care.

The graduate programs offered by Boston-Bouvé College provide you with a wide range of career opportunities in health, sport, and leisure studies, rehabilitation, counseling, communication disorders, and education.

Our faculty have received national and international recognition for their research, teaching and service to others and to their profession. Boston-Bouvé College has well-established clinical affiliations with some of Boston's leading medical, educational and research facilities.

Study may lead to a master's degree, certificate of advanced graduate study (CAGS), or doctoral degree. Most programs are offered on a part-time as well as full-time basis, combining classroom theory with practical hands-on experience. Courses meet in the late afternoon and early evening, so students can continue to work.

Graduate programs are offered in the following areas:

Audiology
Clinical Exercise Physiology
College Student Personnel Work & Counseling
Consulting Teacher of Reading
Counseling Psychology
Curriculum & Instruction
Educational Research
Human Development
Human Resource Counseling
Human Services Specialist
Recreation, Sport & Fitness Management
Rehabilitation Counseling
School Counseling
School Adjustment Counseling
School Psychology
Speech-Language Pathology
Special Education
Teacher Preparation

Call (617) 437-2708, or write Graduate School, Boston-Bouvé College of Human Development Professions, 107 Dockser Hall, Northeastern University, Boston, MA 02115. Because some of life's greatest rewards come to those who care.

Boston-Bouvé College
Northeastern University
An equal opportunity/affirmative action university

Handwrought filigree bracelet by David Virtue

From our large collection of Amethyst February's royal purple birthstone

silverscape designs
264N. Pleasant St. Amherst 253-3324
177 Main St. Northampton 584-3324
GOLDSMITHS • GEM GALLERY

This Valentine's Day, J•Rich will dress you up AND take you out!

Enter yourself or your valentine at J•RICH CLOTHING FOR MEN in Northampton or Amherst and win:

$50 Gift Certificate from J•RICH
$50 Gift Certificate from EASTSIDE
TWO Tickets to the Academy of Music

Name: _____
Address: _____
Phone: _____ C

1 ENTRY PER PERSON, PLEASE.
One winner will be drawn at each J•RICH at 10 a.m., Thursday, February 14

J•RICH CLOTHING FOR MEN
101 N. Pleasant St., Amherst • 253-2813 • Mon.-Sat. 10-6, Sun. 12-5
22 Masonic St., Northampton • 586-6336 • Mon.-Sat. 10-6, Thurs. til 9, Sun. 12-5

THE PUB
fun. food & spirits

TONIGHT

After the Game
UMASS v West Virginia

Pitchers of Miller Lite
$4.50

Jello Shots
$1.00

Miller Genuine Draft
12 oz bots
$1.25

SINCE • 1968
15 EAST PLEASANT·AMHERST

WORLD/NATION

Iraq orders terror attacks on allies

By MARK FRITZ
Associated Press Writer

DHAHRAN, Saudi Arabia — U.S. warplanes yesterday struck deep inside Iraq, hunting down missile launchers and hammering Saddam Hussein's crack troops. Iraq vowed vengeance, calling for terror attacks on allied targets worldwide.

The USS Missouri's 16-inch guns boomed again overnight, silencing a troublesome Iraqi artillery battery in Kuwait with six 2,000-pound shells, the U.S. military said. On Sunday, the battleship's big guns were used in combat for the first time since the Korean War.

Baghdad was rocked during the night by another allied bombardment, AP correspondent Salah Nasrawi reported from the Iraqi capital. He said smoke and fire reached into the sky and terrified residents fled to bomb shelters.

Nasrawi quoted travelers as saying Saddam Hussein's hometown of Tikrit, 90 miles north of Baghdad, had also been under intense attack.

Baghdad radio said starting yesterday, civilians will no longer be able to buy heating oil, gasoline, cooking gas or other fuels. Gasoline rationing was already in effect.

Iraq's Foreign Minister Tariq Aziz, in a letter to Iraqi newspapers yesterday, said Iraq's civilian casualties have risen to 428 killed and more than 650 wounded. Official radio reported 373 more air raids during the night, and said residential areas were among those hit.

Baghdad radio declared that the allies must pay for the destruction they have rained on Iraq.

"Do not spare any interest of any of the countries taking part in the aggression against your brethren," an announcer said. "Fight them with all your force, in all their dens, wherever they are."

The radio broadcast a series of cryptic messages that sounded like coded instructions for terror attacks by agents abroad. It was impossible to tell if they were genuine.

In Saudi Arabia, Riyadh radio yesterday cited Interior Ministry sources as saying an undisclosed number of resident foreigners had been arrested in connection with a sniper shooting Sunday night in the port city of Jiddah that slightly injured two U.S. service personnel.

Earlier yesterday, the official Saudi Press Agency had quoted the interior minister, Prince Nayef, as saying Islamic law would apply to anyone using the kingdom as a staging ground for terror attacks. He said anyone undermining Saudi security would have a hand and a leg cut off or be executed.

Meanwhile, the allied air war thundered into its 20th day yesterday. Before dawn, F-15 Strike Eagles equipped with night-fighting radar rode tails of white flame into dark skies.

AP photo

The USS Missouri fires its 16-inch guns during an exercise off Okinowa, Japan.

Navy shells Iraqi command center

By JOHN KING
Associated Press Writer

DHAHRAN, Saudi Arabia — Two weeks into the war with Iraq, even the Navy brass was beginning to concede center stage to the Air Force.

"This is really and truly an Air Force effort. . . and we're participating and we're trying to add to it as best we can," said Rear Adm. Douglas J. Katz.

But on Sunday, the venerable USS Missouri snuck up close to the Kuwaiti coastline and lobbed seven 2,000-pound shells from its 16-inch guns at an Iraqi command and control center near the Saudi border. The 47-year-old battleship's thunderous performance served notice that the Navy, too, is a major player in Operation Desert Storm.

"We have done our job of clearing the coastline and now we are going to move in close," said Cmdr. Mark Lawrence, intelligence officer aboard the nuclear-powered USS Roosevelt.

Not that the Navy hasn't been active already.

With a permanent presence in the Persian Gulf region, the Navy was called on early to enforce the embargo against trade with Iraq ordered by the United Nations after Saddam Hussein's Aug. 2 conquest of Kuwait.

In the war, the Navy is charged with patrolling the Persian Gulf and the Red Sea and lending the warplanes aboard its six carriers in the region to the relentless air assault on Iraq and its occupation forces in Kuwait.

Nearly three weeks into the war, the Navy, which has more than 100 ships in the region, has:

- Flown 22 percent of Operation Desert Storm's more than 44,000 bombing and air missions. That figure does not include thousands of additional sorties to provide routine air combat protection for carrier battle groups.
- Launched scores of Tomahawk cruise missiles, from both ships and submarines, at targets in Iraq.
- Participated in the capture of the first chunk of Kuwait, the tiny island of Qaruh, and in the capture of 23 Iraqi prisoners during assaults on 11 Kuwaiti offshore oil platforms being used by Iraqi troops.
- Sunk 41 Iraqi ships, including 23 combatant vessels.
- Damaged 42 Iraqi ships, 34 of them combatants.

"From what we can tell, their navy has given up," said Lawrence. "We have accomplished the bottling up of the navy."

AP photo

A U.S. soldier walks past one of the Patriot missile batteries protecting the Tel Aviv area against Iraqi Scud missiles Monday.

'PLO stronghold' bombed

SIDON, Lebanon (AP) — Israeli warplanes yesterday blasted strongholds of Yasser Arafat's PLO faction and an office of the pro-Iraqi Baath Party in seven villages southeast of Sidon.

Police said the Israeli raid left at least eight people dead and 28 wounded.

A police spokesperson said six jets dropped 30 bombs and rockets during the 20-minute raid on positions of the mainstream Fatah faction of Palestine Liberation Organization chairman Arafat.

In Jerusalem, the Israeli army said all its planes returned safely.

The raid, the second by Israel into Lebanon this year, came one day after a PLO spokesman in Sidon said Arafat had ordered his guerillas to stop their rocket attacks.

The rockets mostly hit Israel's self-proclaimed security zone.

The planes also rocketed a single-story house used by the Arab Baath socialist Party in the village of Baisour, east of Sidon, the police spokesperson said.

He said the Baath Party office in Baisour was leveled, "but no casualties were reported in it because it was evacuated two days ago."

The police spokesperson said the fatalities included seven Fatah guerrillas and a civilian. The wounded included six civilians.

Gulf War's apparent success causes stock market to go up

NEW YORK (AP) — Stock prices soared yesterday before turning higher in heavy trading as investors ignored bad economic news and continued a two-week rally sparked by the apparent success of the Gulf War.

The Dow Jones average of 30 industrial stocks rose 16.09 points to 2,788.37.

Advancing issues outnumbered declining ones by more than 2 to 1 in nationwide trading of New York Stock Exchange-listed stocks, with 1,151 up, 517 down, and 407 unchanged.

Volume on the floor if the Big Board came to a strong 290.57 million shares, up from 250.75 million Monday.

Nationwide, consolidated volume in NYSE-listed issues, including trades on those stocks in regional exchanges and in the over-the-counter market, totaled328.55 million shares.

Market watchers said blue-chip stocks initially were depressed by General Motors' decision late Monday afternoon to cut its dividend to 40 cents a share from 75 cents. They said the company's acknowlegment of the troubles it faces in the recession could rub off on other major-company stocks

ARTS & LIVING

War on drugs and Abbie Hoffman

By HEATHER BELL
Collegian Correspondent

This week at Hamden Theater, located in Southwest, the University of Massachusetts Residential Arts Program is presenting Peter Panic: Flying Underground. An experimental/political theater group called the Irondale Ensemble Project will be performing the work on February 6 and 7 at 8 p.m.

Peter Panic: Flying Underground is based on the life of the late dissident, Abbie Hoffman before and after he is forced underground. The play intertwines with the story of Peter Pan and uses the backdrop of the "war on drugs" to make its point about the superficiality of U.S. politics in the late 1980s and early 90s. The play rests on satire, music, experimental movement and both real and fictional characters to frame the story.

According to Lisa Kennedy of The Village Voice, Peter Panic is a "compelling reading of Peter Pan and Abbie Hoffman's writings. The ensemble has rhythm - their use of dance and song is provocative - and a heart."

Residential Arts says the play, "portrays the life of the prominent dissident, his fugitive odyssey, his depression over the decline of political activism, and the murder at the hands of the cultural power structure as a metaphor for the parallel decline of America."

Of company, Michael S. Cain of Theater Three said,

CONTINUED ON PAGE 10

Photo courtesy of Residential Arts

A scene from "Peter Panic: Flying Underground" to be performed on Wednesday and Thursday night in Hamden Theatre by the Irondale Ensemble Project.

No Bugs Bunny in this festival

By DAVE COUSINEAU
Collegian Correspondent

Almost everyone enjoys animated films.

We grew up diligently watching the likes of Speed Racer and Scooby Doo on so many 1970's Saturday mornings. In 15 years, we will probably be taking our own children to see the classic Disney films, as our parents did for us, and the exploits of Bugs Bunny and his Warner Brothers friends will still doubtlessly be shown regularly on T.V.

We are intrigued by other forms of art, like computer animation, wild animation in rock videos like "Sledgehammer," and even the articulated models used in movie special effects (like the old King Kong). The sense of magic created as lifeless drawings or objects jump about on a screen is one of the main attractions of animated film and on February 6th and 7th, that magic will be on display at Mahar Auditorium.

The festival of 14 animated shorts, presented by the UMass Film Society and the Medicine Wheel Artists' Retreat, will be screened at 7 p.m., 9 p.m. and 11 p.m. on each night.

The 90-minute program includes examples of all the above types of animation (traditional line drawing, computer, stop-motion, watercolor) in addition to some other, more unorthodox methods, according to Cheri Amarna, founder of the Medicine Wheel.

"It's a glimpse into the world of alternative, independent animation," Armana said and urged viewers to look for the three-minute film Salmandren, which was created entirely by animating coffee grounds! Other unique works include abstract photo animation, sand animation and something Amarna referred to as "transformational animation."

When asked to explain what that was, she was somewhat at a loss for words. "It's like trying to sing ballet," she eventually came up with, promising that people will definitely react to it when they see it.

Other highlights include: adaptations of the

CONTINUED ON PAGE 10

FREE 1991 Student Travel Catalog!
Everything you need to know about:
•Student Travel
• Air Fares
• Rail Passes
• Car Rental/Leasing
•Work Abroad
•Study Abroad
•Int'l Student & Teacher ID & MUCH MORE!!!
CALL for your FREE copy!
Council Travel
79 So. Pleasant St.
Amherst
413-256-1261

SPRING BREAK
PANAMA CITY BEACH
FLORIDA
• High quality beachfront accommodations for 7 exciting nights
• Round trip chartered motor coach
• Free pool deck parties, souvenirs, & promotions
• Inter-Campus Programs I.D./Discount card
• On-location staff for complete assistance
• All taxes, hgs. & service charges included
$114 $219
Contact Barbara 549-8156

AMHERST CINEMA
Now Playing
THE RUSSIA HOUSE
starring
Sean Connery & Michelle Pfeiffer
Mon-Thurs.
One show 7:30
Fri, Sat, Sun
7:00 and 9:15
student discount with valid I.D. $3.00

charlie's
1 Pray St., Amherst—549-5403 • Open 11am
7 days a Week
Kitchen open 'til midnight
Game Room with 2 pool tables
Tonight 25c Cheese Pizza Slices &
99c Nacho Platters
9:00p.m. — 12:00a.m.
Drinks of the Week:
Charlie's Punch $1.50
French Mocha Coffee $1.95
Food Giveaways
Mon. 10 cent Mozzarella Sticks 9pm-12am
Tues. 10 cent Buffalo Wings 9pm-12am
Wed. 25cent Pizza Slices and 99 cent Nachos 9pm-12am
Thurs 10 cent Beer Steamed Baby Franks 9pm-12am
Sunday 10 cent Potato Skins 9pm-12am
WE ACCEPT MC-VISA-AMEX

Announcing the First General Membership Meeting of the UMASS Theatre Guild
(formally the UMASS Music Theatre Guild and the University Players)
Information on our recent merge and our upcoming productions of:
INTO THE WOODS
and
TEN LITTLE INDIANS

DOONESBURY
By GARRY TRUDEAU

HEY, MARK, I WANT YOU CALL BOOPSIE AND GIVE HER A MESSAGE, OKAY? GET THIS DOWN...
TELL HER I'M OKAY! TELL HER I'M ON MY WAY TO THE FRONT, BUT THAT WE'VE SEEN NO ACTION SO FAR AT...
KA-BOOM!
WHAT'S THAT AGAIN, BIG GUY? I WAS JUST GETTING A PENCIL...

THE FAR SIDE
By GARY LARSON

CALVIN AND HOBBES
By BILL WATTERSON

CALVIN'S BEEN OUTSIDE BUILDING SOMETHING SINCE EARLY THIS MORNING.
I CAN'T TELL WHAT IT IS. CAN YOU?
IT DOESN'T LOOK LIKE ANYTHING FROM HERE.

By GARRY PORTER

TANGELO PIE
By TIM SNIFFEN

yawn
Rise + shine, roommate!
AAIIIIGH! CLOSE THAT IMMEDIATELY!
But we—oof.
CLOSE IT OR PREPARE TO REMOVE YOUR GLASSES FROM YOUR NASAL CAVITY!
Ahh— Another day with 'The Student Lestat.'
oh, how it burns...

SNOOKY LANSON
By E. VEZINA & R. SHAUGHNESSY

I'M SURE I CAN FIND OUT WHOSE ROOM THIS IS SUPPOSED TO BE!
GET TO IT
1009
HELLO, HOUSING OFFICE? MY NAME IS SNOOKY LANSON. WHO'S LIVING IN 1009, HINKLY HALL, THIS SEMESTER?
GOOD NEWS! THIS IS YOUR ROOM!
THEN GET THE HELL OUT.
...BUT IT'S MY ROOM, TOO— WE'RE ROOMMATES!
ROOMS

QUOTE OF THE DAY

"The thought of being President frightens me and I don't think I want the job."
— Ronald Reagan in 1973

DAILY CROSSWORD PUZZLE
Edited By TRUDE MICHEL JAFFE

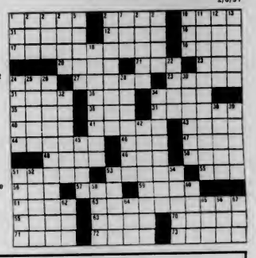
ACROSS
1 Celebrations
6 Emely of etiquette
10 Silent
14 Get up
15 Con man
16 Raison d'—
17 Part of the house
19 Tall tale teller
20 Let it stand
21 Adherent
23 Cicero's 52
24 Gram. case
27 Part of the house
29 Fashion style
31 Harvest
33 Alastair of films
34 Leave out
35 Small case
36 Gnu's zebra
37 Textile fibers
40 Volunteer St.
41 Norman Vincent —
43 Lasm I verb
44 Firstborn
46 Corsica's neighbor: Abbr.
47 First-rate
48 NASA acronym
49 Grid. scores
50 Hit the road
51 Fashion
53 Part of the house
55 Match starter
56 Word with shaft or snow
57 Guinness title
59 Borscht ingredient
61 New Mexico resort
63 Part of the house
68 Cupid
69 Shanf
70 Bridal path
71 Title for Maggie Smith
72 Troika
73 Defeated one

DOWN
1 "My — Sal"
2 Biblical lion
3 Actress Ullmann
4 Sale caveat
5 "I — letter to my love..."
6 Kind of work
7 Yoko
8 Impassive one
9 Namesakes of a Dickens lad
10 Singer Torme
11 Part of the house
12 Choo-choo
13 Like a Stephen King novel
18 — bat: hits
22 — Mauriello: loser to Louis in '46
24 Mountain ridge
25 Pepper plant
26 Part of the house
28 Thick application of pigment to a canvas
30 Kind of measure
32 Conical shaped gland
34 Supervised
38 Island W of Maui
39 Pipe parts
42 Claudia Alta Johnson
45 Fr. holy women
51 Sunlested
52 Headdress
53 "Rose Marie" composer
54 Precisely
58 Altar exchanges
60 Small combo
62 Compass pt.
64 No. to Burns
65 CIA precursor
66 Corrida cheer
67 Debussy's sea

ANSWER TO PREVIOUS PUZZLE:

J	A	M	E	S		S	T	A	M	P		O	P	A	L
O	N	E	A		H	A	I	T	I	T		L	A	G	O
S	I	T	A	R	S	A	N	D	I	S	T	R	I	P	E
E	S	T	R	A	N	G	L	E		E	V	A	D	E
		A	L	T	O		G	I	A	P	E
B	E	C	K	Y		T	A	M	O		S	I	E	G
S	A	N	K		E	A	M	E	S		P	I	G	I	A
T	I	N	E	S	U	N	S	H	I	N	E		B	O	Y	S
A	I	R		G	O	I	T	I	O	N		R	I	P	E
T	A	O		A	L	O	E		J	A	U	N	T
			S	I	N	A	I		P	E	S	T	I	F	S
A	R	P	A	I	O		T	U	N	I	S	I	A	N
M	O	I	O	N	A	N	D	I	S	I	X	P	E	N	C	E
A	B	E	T		O	V	A	T	E		S	I	M	A
T	E	M	A		H	I	R	E	D		S	I	T	E	P

2/6/91



MENU

LUNCH
Hot Beef Sandwich
Roast Turkey

DINNER
Tuna Noodle Casserole
Fried Shrimp

BASICS LUNCH
Tuna Noodle Casserole
Curried Chick Peas

BASICS DINNER
The Salad Sandwich
Fried Shrimp

YOUR DAILY HOROSCOPE
By JEANE DIXON

ARIES (March 21-April 19): Favorable financial influences let you move ahead on a pet project. Unsettled domestic conditions could distress you. Take a common sense approach. Certain concessions must be made.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20): An excellent day for brushing up on your skills. Offspring will be helpful in solving a problem that involves older relatives or longtime friends. Romance is unpredictable.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20) Be patient until the phone rings—or make the first move yourself. Travel will have it's ups and downs. Devote more time to the emotional side of your relationships.

CANCER (June 21-July 22): Keep your eye on the ball at work. Your associates' needs have a strong influence on your priorities. Vigorous financial activity is likely. Your assets open important doors in the art world.

LEO (July 23-Aug 22): Arrange your schedule to accomodate a loved one's needs. Your ability to think fast under pressure serves you well in an emergency. Romance is part of this evening's plan.

VIRGO (Aug 23-Sept 22): Define your career goals if unsure what to do next. Move slowly on a real estate venture until you have more facts and figures. You can get what you want without arguing.

LIBRA (Sept 23-Oct 22): Diplomacy will help you cement an alliance with a difficult member of the opposite sex. Join a social organization or community campaign. Your new image will receive a favorable reaction.

SCORPIO (Oct 23-Nov 21): Put your spare time to good use. Get all financial agreements in writing, even when dealing with relatives! Your relationship with a possessive individual could hit a snag. Be kind but firm.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov 22-Dec 21): Your powers of persuasion are optimal today. Use your influence cautiously. Show family members how much you appreciate their efforts. Take romantic declarations with a grain of salt.

CAPRICORN (Dec 22-Jan 19): Heed experts' advice where your work or finances are concerned. Your career gets back on track when a rivalry ends. An older person makes a strong ally. Pool ideas with this person.

AQUARIUS (Jan 20-Feb 18): Concentration is the key to career advancemnt. Pay no attention to those who make negative comments. A secret desire will soon be fulfilled. Pursue romance in an unusual setting this evening.

PISCES (Feb 19-March 20): Someone may think you or er qualified for a job you really want. Try to overcome their doubts. An influential person is in your corner. Put your best foot forward.

■ Peter Panic

CONTINUED FROM PAGE 8

The Irondale Ensemble Project, based in New York City, formed in 1982. A group of actors committed to developing a company for the purpose of theatrical research founded the group to create new rehearsal and performance techniques. Today the company is called one of New York's only research theatrical laboratories.

On Thursday, February 7, there will be a reception and discussion following the performance. Members of the company will also give a lecture on the life of Abbie Hoffman.

Tickets are $5 for students and $7 for general admission.

Call the Fine Arts Center box office at 545-2511 for reservations. For more information call Residential Arts at 545-2804.

■ Animation Festival

CONTINUED FROM PAGE 8

children's poem, "Frog He Would A-wooning Go," and Lewis Carroll's The Hunting of the Snark; a 1941 classic called Wild Oysters, made by the Max Fleischer studios (famous for its Betty Boop cartoons); a parody of a high paid executive trying to do some actual work; an enlivened South American creation myth and an account of one baby's first out-of-the-crib adventure.

Music lovers can expect to hear compositions by the jazz group Passport and Red Parker, former trumpeter for Charlie "Bird" Parker, on some of the soundtracks.

Amarna said the festival is designed to teach people about animation and its different forms. The films were selected from archives and from entries received from students and professionals across this contry and Canada.

A panel of animators, teachers and artists chose the best of the 35 entries received to create the program. The festival is unique, she said, because a portion of the proceeds actually go to the artists in addition to the sponsoring organizations.

The UMass Film Society is a new student group whose goal is to organize the film-lovers community on campus, according to its co-president Scott Hyman, a junior psychology major. The 30-plus member group screens mainstream, classical and alternative films, holds discussions and will be providing workshops on film making and film school in the near future. Hyman said they also plan to bring guest speakers from the industry and academic fields to UMass.

The Medicine Wheel Artists' Retreat, centered in Groton, Massachusetts, provides a residence for artists of all disciplines so they may concentrate on the craft without the distractions of everyday life. Their animation festival will be touring the East Coast from Maine to Atlanta all winter.

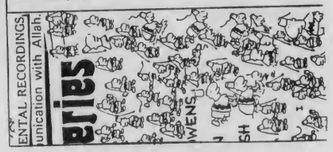
Those who check out with their UMass presentation won't see Mickey Mouse, the Road Runner or even the Great Grape Ape. They will, however, be entertained while seeing what a fascinating and magical art animation really is.

Interested in being a...
University Tour Guide
Admissions Representative
Summer Counselor
Applications available at the University Admissions Center

RÉSUMÉS
CopyCat Print Shop
• Great Service • Great Prices
228 Triangle St./Amherst 549-3840

SKI
BERKSHIRE EAST
The most challenging mountain in Southern New England!
STUDENTS SKI
Monday-Friday (day session) Only $9
Thursday-Saturday (night session) Only $7
Weekends (day session) Only $22
Use this ad and receive $4 OFF weekend day session rates!
Take I-91 North to exit 26 (Greenfield) West for 17 miles to Charlemont Rt 2

OPEN COURSE
Fills BS Gen-Ed
PH 160-My Body My Health
MW 3:30 Lecture: Mahar 108
F Discussion: by arrangement
Sign up: MORRILL 231N
Covers:
Student stress-How to cope
Crime and harassment-Avoidance techniques
Population-Methods of control
Sexually transmitted disease-How to prevent it
Drug and alcohol abuse-Dealing with it
Food-Avoiding disease and toxins
Eating disorders-bulemia and anorexia
Environmental disease-Mutagens, cancer and others

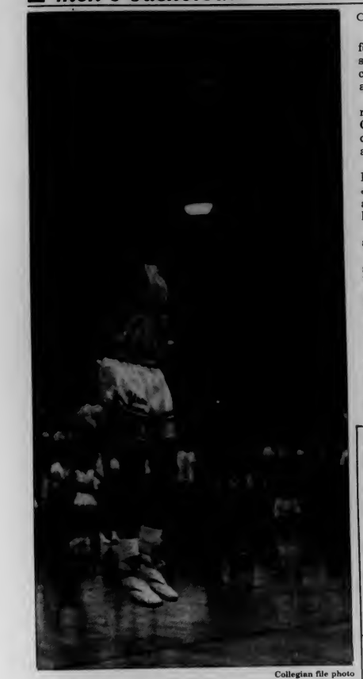


Largest College Daily in New England
THE MASSACHUSETTS DAILY COLLEGIAN Established in 1890
113 Campus Center
NEWS WRITERS' MEETING
THURSDAY, FEBRUARY 7, 4 p.m. in the newsroom
Anyone interested in writing for the news desk should come down and ask for Gayle.

MENTAL HEALTH DIVISION GROUPS
SPRING 1991
TUESDAY
Support/Decision-Making for Problem Drinkers 1:00 - 2:30 pm
Bi-sexual Support Group 2:00 - 3:30 pm
Advanced ACOA Group 3:00 - 4:30 pm
Intimacy Skills Group 6:00 - 7:30 pm
Exploring Lesbian, Gay, Bi-sexual Identities 7:00 - 8:30 pm
WEDNESDAY
Beginners ACOA 9:00 -10:30 am
Self-Exploration Group 3:30 - 5:00 pm
THURSDAY
Women In Transition 12:45 - 2:15 pm
Self-Exploration Group 3:00 - 4:30 pm
Chronic Medical Illness Support Group 3:30 - 5:00 pm
Eating Disorders 3:30 - 5:00 pm
Groups begin in late February or early March. Pre-group interviews are necessary. For information or to register for a group call 545-2337 or stop by 127 Hills North as early in the semester as possible.

AEROBICS
MORE NAUTILUS
Computerized aerobic machines than any club in the Valley.
Stairmasters • Lifecycles • Gravitron • Biocycle • Treadmills
New • New • New • Life Rower • New • New • New
BETTER MASSAGE
Special suspended oak wood floor • Certified Instructors
• Bench Step • Low Impact • High/Low • Boxercise • Stretch
KARATE SAUNA
Total body conditioning plus the skill of selfdefense.
Largest full-time Karate studio in Western Mass.
AMHERST ATHLETIC CLUB 460 West St. South Amherst 256-0080 KARATE HEALTH & FITNESS CENTER

■ men's basketball



Collegian file photo
Rafer Giles shoots one of many three-point shots. The Minutemen face West Virginia in the Cage at 8 p.m. tonight.

CONTINUED FROM PAGE 12

Brooks, now a senior, has returned to 6-foot-6, 230-pound form this season. Brooks is ranked first in the A-10 and seventh in the nation at 66 percent from the floor, including 26 dunks, and is sixth in the league in scoring and fifth in rebounding.

An infusion of athletic freshmen — there are six on the roster, including starters Mike Boyd and 6-foot-8 Pervires Greene — led to the most dramatic change of all: Veteran coach Gale Catlett has this year's WVA squad running at a breathless 90-points per game pace.

Of the freshmen crop, Boyd in particular has sparkled. Billed as "the league's best point guard" by UMass coach John Calipari, Boyd is among the A-10 leaders in assists and steals, and has earned league Freshman of the Week honors twice this season.

Young legs have their downside too; the Mountaineers are 10-1 at home, but have lost six of seven on the road.

The Minutemen have been running lately too. Since sloshing to a pair of losses at Temple and George Washington two weeks ago, UMass has scored an average of 83 points in beating Holy Cross, Rhode Island and Boston University.

Forward Tony Barbee is recovering from mono, and is listed as "very doubtful" for tonight's game.

Game notes: In addition to TV, the game will be broadcast on WMUA 99.1 FM and WHMP 99.3 FM . . . Jim McCoy has averaged 26 points a game against West Virginia in his career . . . McCoy needs 15 points to move past Donald Russell ('85) into second place on UMass' scoring list.

■ women's swimming

CONTINUED FROM PAGE 12

213.08, but crowd favorite Maureen Murphy highlighted the event, making the biggest splash for UMass.

"We have a tradition that at the Holyoke meet one senior swimmer gets to dive and all the divers have to swim," Newcomb said. "Mo Murphy put on an interesting exhibition in the art of diving. It is just a fun tradition we have."

Murphy looked more comfortable in the pool (than on the diving board) finishing third in the 200 breast.

"The meet against Holyoke is a lot of fun," Newcomb said. "It is a good-natured meet where there is no pressure to win and we can try to qualify some swimmers.

"Both Cathy [Buchanan, Mount Holyoke coach] and I enjoy the meet and we are going to keep it."

The New England Championships are next in line for UMass, to be held Feb. 15-17 in Orono, Maine.

"That will be a great meet," Newcomb said. "We are going to swim incredible at the New Englands."

Classical Acupuncture
Frederick E. Steinway, Lic Ac.
N.C.A.A. Certificate
88 Pine Grove
Amherst, MA 01002 256-0306

SHAPE UP FOR SPRING.
At Hilltop and Crossan Healthclubs located in Webster & Gorman dorms
Register 2/4-2/14, Mon-Thurs 7-9pm

ROLL UPS
SANDWICH SHOP
331 Russell St., Rt. 9, Hadley
(next to Dunkin' Donuts)
Grand Opening Specials
Over 25 sandwiches all under $3.99 such as...
• Philly Roast Beef • Wrangler
• Veggie Delight w/ avacado AND
• Tuna/Hold the Line MORE!...
NOW FREE SANDWICH coupon coupon
Buy One Get One Free!!
(Lower priced sandwich is free)
One coupon per person per order
Not valid between 12:30-2:00 daily exp.2-28-91
OPEN 7 DAYS A WEEK
586-8255

COME TO THE COLLEGIAN OFFICE—CC 113 MON — THURS 8:30-3:30 ● DEADLINE 2 DAYS PRIOR TO PUBLICATION ● CASH IN ADVANCE, 20¢/WORD/DAY FOR STUDENTS

CLASSIFIEDS

ACTIVITIES

ATTENTION ALL WOMEN Need extra spring break cash? Now intervening for the first sree best body contest Big money cash prizes For info call 549-4832

FREE MEDITATION WORKSHOP First Class 2/11/90 (MON) Find inner peace, increase concentration, come to know thyself Yoga postures too! Campus center room TBA More info-585-0422

TONIGHT IS MOVIE NIGHT Come see JACOB'S LADDER Campus Center Auditorium Show Times: 5,7,9, & 11 Sponsored by UMASS RACQUETBALL

TRAIN WITH US!! UMASS TAE KWON DO MEETS MON & WED 6:30-8:30pm INFO? MARTY, 6-7003 MARIE, 6-1622 BEGINNERS WELCOME.

ANNOUNCEMENTS

1st MEETING OF THE THEATRE GUILD! Tonite! 7:00, Room 168c! Into the woods in! Not Much fun! Why am I shouting?!

3-CREDIT RECYCLING COURSE Tu/Th 9:30-10:45 153 Totman. Go in class to add or call Jim or Kathleen at 545-1153

AEROBICS NAUTILUS STAIRMASTERS Lifecycles, freeweights, treadmill, gravitron, step-classes, karate. Amherst athletic club. 256-0080.

BED AND BREAKFAST- downtown ideal for visiting parents and friends- 549-0733.

BEST FUNDRAISERS ON CAMPUS!! Is your fraternity, sorority or club interested in earning $500.00 to $1,000.00 for a one-week, on-campus marketing project? You must be well-organized and hard working Call Christine at 800-592-2121

CARIBBEAN- $189! The warmth of the Caribbean or Mexican coast for a week: R/T Air Sunhitch + m 212-864-2000.

HOUSE MUSIC is here from the underground John, DJ Tapes- 549-5316

LAMBDA CHI ALPHA RUSH BEGINS FEBRUARY 12 UNTIL THEN TRY TO ENJOY YOURSELF AS BEST YOU CAN.

PHI ALPHA THETA - Int'l History Honors Society accepting applications from new members. Info-applications in History office Herter. Deadline 2/28.

THE NORTHEAST AMERICAN BALLET AND JAZZ ENSEMBLE WILL HOLD A DANCE AUDITION FOR NEW MEMBERS ON SATURDAY, FEBRUARY 9th AT 3:00pm AT 25 MAIN ST. NORTHAMPTON-TOP FLOOR ABOVE FITZWILLIES. CALL 584-8521

VOLUNTEERS NEEDED: Military daughter wants to interview current and former college students from military families for her graduate research study exploring the adjustment to college. Call (collect) now to schedule an interview (1)268-7564, evenings.

AUTO FOR SALE

1981 TOYOTA COROLLA 60,000 mi, excellent condition $850, call 549-1552 ask for Katey

1985 CHEVETTE good condition, great commuter car $600, Kate 549-4324 Must sell

1986 ENCORE Excellent condition $2500 253-2650

1987 HONDA CIVIC CRX, Emaculate condition, 87000 miles, moon roof, Blaupunct Stereo, New Tires, $4300 Call Mac 253-4070

PURCHASING A USED car? Having your car repaired? Do you know your rights? Contact the Legal Services Center, 922 Campus Center, 545-1995

CHEN STYLE TAI CHI

COME LEARN THIS earliest form of Tai Chi which features slow/fast, soft/vigorous, empty/solid movements Class begins Feb 5 and 7. Call 253-4057

FOR RENT

FRIDGE RENTALS CALL RIP 253-9742.

LARGE BEDROOM in 3 bedroom apt. Puffton Village 235/month 1 or 2 people (w/nmen preferred) Call 549-5947 Poonam or call-emptyfoold movements Class begins Feb. soon 549-3745 and leave message on machine

ROOM IN 3 bedroom. Until 8-31-91. $160 per month. Negotiable. No deposit. No last month rent 545-0591

WINTER SPECIAL: 1 month rent .99 cents with one year lease 2 bedroom- $450 3 bedroom- $537 Sunderland, Free bus route, laundry facilities, swimming pool, garden plots, short term lease available. 665-3856.

FOR SALE

1990 ALLEZ RACING bike-shimano 600 ultegra equipped. Sebastien 546-3040.

AEROSMITH BACKSTAGE PASSES tour 1991. Call for details 546-2396 Reasonable prices

BROKEN MINOLTA EP350 Photocopier for sale! Approx $200 to repair. Best offer. Call Jeff at 6-4630 or OHAG 5-3185

FREE PET RATS - albino male, brown & white famale Both neutered, very friendly. (Not afraid of cats/dogs) Call Claire 546-1517.

GREAT VALENTINE'S DAY GIFT UMASS glow in the dark boxers Delivered with your personal note Only $10! Call 546-0424 for details

GREEN IGUANA & 30 gal tank setup Vegetarian, very friendly, easy care 546-1056

MARSHALL 50 WATT leed amp $375 Jared 256-0021

METAWAMPE FUTONS Sleep with us! Bi-fold frames On sale now! 256-0646

ROUNDTRIP TICKETS TO Jacksonville Only $125. each. Call 6-5814.

SKIS/BOOTS Lacroix skis with bindings-190's Lange boots and Lange heated boots Very reasonable! 549-9932

VACCUM CLEANER. SHOPVAC MIGHTYMINI. Excellent condition. Available cheap. Call 549-1909.

FOUND

FOUND EYEGLASSES PARKING lot outside of New Africa House on Jan 31. Call Mike 665-3448 leave message.

HELP WANTED

ASSEMBLERS: EXCELLENT INCOME to assemble products from your home. 508-646-1700 Dept. p1307.

EARN $300 to $500 per week reading books at home. Call 1-615-473-7440 ext B281.

INTELLIGENCE JOBS. All branches US Customs, DEA ect. Now hiring. Call 1-805-962-8000 Ext. K-9616

NATIONAL MARKETING FIRM seeks mature student to manage on-campus promotions for top companies this school year. Flexible hours with earning potential to $2,500 per semester. Must be organized, hardworking and money motivated. Call Christine at 800-592-2121

NEWSPAPER DELIVERERS NEEDED in UMASS dorms No car required. 7-8am 7 days/week. Call 253-7009.

$$$ OPPORTUNITY OF a lifetime $$$ Own your own business. Set your own hours. Work while in school Interested, call 546-7489

WANTED: TOUR GUIDES, summer counselors, student admissions representatives. Applications available at Admissions Center.

INSTRUCTION

EARN CREDIT learn to Scuba Dive. Basic Classes held Monday, Tuesday, Wednesday, and Thursday 7-10PM in Curry Hicks Pool. Open Water II class held during Spring Break in Key Largo, FLA. Advanced Class held in New England in April. For further information call 545-8401, or drop by Curry Hicks starting 2/4/91.

GUITAR LESSONS with Doug Hewitt. Rock, Blues, Folk. Acoustic or Electric. Improv., Theory, Reading, Songwriting, many new songs -plus singing. Studio on 3 bus lines. 549-1938

LOST

HELP I LOST My wallet, it's maroon/purple cloth, lost Thurs Jan 31, please contact Kristen 6-5609 if found!

LAST SEMESTER JAZZ gold watch 546-2964.

STAR SAPPHIRE RING with silver band Immense sentimental value Please call 546-0634 if found Possibly lost in or outside of Totman.

PERSONALS

CONGRATS TO CHI Omega's newest sisters: Celeste, Debbie, Sherri, Donna, Jen, Laura R, Carolyn, Michelle, Renee, Laura D, and Lauren!

HAPPY BIRTHDAY CHERYL!!! Love, the girls on 3 long in Melville!

HAPPY BIRTHDAY JEN WALBERG!!! I hope your day is as good as it should be! I'll see you at 8:00 AM sharp for math 102! Love ya, Monica

INTERESTED in Christian Fellowship? The Alliance Christian Fellowship welcomes you! More info: Jim or Beth 253-7206

KATE Happy 21st Bithday! Now we don't have to call you Jane anymore! Have fun Love Julie, Tanya, Jeff, Kevin

KIMBO! Happy B-day - Get ready to rage! Love Lis

SCOTT, SAW YOU at the annex last Wed but missed you at Time-Out. If interested respond here - Cerrie

ROOMMATE WANTED

ONE FEMALE NEEDED to share a room in townehouse apts 549-2624 $190

ROOMMATE WANTED Need a place to live? 1 space available in downtown Amherst. Cheap rent!! Call 253-7246

YOU MALE ROOMMATE WANTED to share Brandywine apt. $193.75/mo. Heat/hot water incl. Be kooo! 549-0181.

SERVICES

STUDY ABROAD IN AUSTRALIA Information on semester, summer, J-term graduate and internship programs. All programs run under $6000. Call Curtin University at 1-800-878-3696

SINGING VALENTINES

DELIVERED! CLASSES, dorms, fraternities. Inexpensive. Professional. 548-2983

SPECIAL ANNOUNCEMENT

ATTENTION UMASS STUDENTS Explore self and personal issues through psychodrama in a safe confidential setting Group meets Tuesdays 7-8:30PM starting 2/12/91 for 10 weeks. No fee. Register-Call Mark locally at 665-3678.

DELIVERED! CLASSES, DORMS, FRATS Inexpensive Professional 546-2263

DISCOVER CARDS No cost to apply Call Mark at 546-4814 Leave message

SENIORS: HELP PLAN the biggest party at UMASS. Info meeting Feb. 12, 7pm, C.C. Rm. 168 or stop by the table on the concourse Feb. 6,7,12 Call 545-2317 for info, great resume material.

SPRING BREAK

SPRING BREAK PARTY! Travel to Jamaica, Mexico! And Panama City Fl.! Concerts! Free Parties! Club discounts! And lots more! For info call Denise 546-7156.

SUMMER SUBLET

TWO BEDROOM PUFFTON apartment available for the summer call now! Leave message on machine 549-5990

TRAVEL

CLUB MED Enjoy your spring break!! Added value with each booking Call Rendezvous Travel 1-800-336-1002

* * * * * * *

FLORIDA'S NEWEST HOT SPOT Panama City-$139 * * * * * * * World's Biggest Beach PARTY Daytona Beach-$189 Call Erika + Julie at 546-5649 or Siobhan + Terri at 546-5079.

MONTREAL WEEKENDS $89 price includes round trip motorcoach 3days 2nights. Hotel suite, breakfast free admission to club metropolis. RELIABLE TOURS 365 Broadway Rt. 1 Lynnfield, MA 01940 617-596-9936

SPRING BREAK TO DAYTONA! Travel with Yankee Line Tours via deluxe motorcoach March 15-24, 1991. Campus pick-up & drop-off! First class hotel accommodations! Best location, excellent night-life! Only $259.00 (quad occ.) For more info contact Scott (413) 256-0029 Reserve you spot before it's too late!

WAKE-N-BAKE!!! Spring Break '91!! Jamaica/Cancun from $459.00!! A week of fun and sun! The hottest destinations 1-800-426-7710.

WANTED

WANTED: ASSISTANT BUSINESS manager and assistant finance manager! The Collegian is looking for--ambitious, responsible, organized, sophmores with good communication skills. Applications available at the Collegian and must be submitted no later than Friday, Feb. 8, 1991. The Collegian is an EOE.

SPORTS

Mt. Holyoke eats swimmers' wake

By DAN WETZEL
Collegian Staff

The University of Massachusetts women's swimming team not only won last night; they had some fun in the process.

UMass (8-3) cruised to an easy 189-94 victory over Division III and five-college rival Mount Holyoke College.

UMass was lead by Carolyn Curran who qualified for the New England Championships in the 500-yard freestyle. Curran won the race in a time of 5:38.9 and also added a third place finish in the 100 backstroke.

"I really wanted Curran to make it in," coach Bob Newcomb said. "She swam well, and her time was faster than I expected."

Also performing well was Stefanie Souto who swam two career bests. She broke the minute barrier for the first time in the 100 free, according to Newcomb. Souto also had a personal best in the 200 free (2:08.58).

"Stefanie did not qualify for New Englands but she put out a great effort and accomplished something tonight," Newcomb said.

Another stand-out according to Newcomb was Theresa Jacobs. Jacobs placed second in the 100 back and won the 200 individual medley. Jacobs swam the medley as an exhibition swimmer, therefore she did not figure in the scoring.

"Theresa has worked hard and it is paying off," Newcomb said. "She has wanted to win a race and get in the Collegian all season and now she has done it."

Alison White qualified for the NCAAs in the three-meter dive (279.0) and thus won the event. Teammate Stephanie Tuttle finished second with 231.9 points.

"I was hoping that [Alison] could do it and I am very pleased that she did," Newcomb said.

Tuttle then took the one-meter dive with a score of

CONTINUED ON PAGE 11

West Virginia to witness the Madness

By SAM SILVERSTEIN
Collegian Staff

Temple dropped its second straight game Monday as freshman guard Bernard Blunt carried St. Joseph's to a 66-60 upset in Philadelphia, Pa. Blunt scored 20 points and grabbed 14 rebounds.

The loss dropped Temple to a first place tie with Rutgers in the Atlantic 10. Both teams are 8-3. [Results of last night's Rutgers-Rhode Island game were not available at press time].

So . . . the University of Massachusetts men's basketball team, currently 14-6 overall and 7-4 in the Conference, will head into tonight's Atlantic 10 matchup with West Virginia (11-8, 6-4) at the Cage one game closer to the top of the A-10 pile.

Tipoff has been pushed back to 8 p.m. and the game will be aired locally on WWLP-TV Channel 22 in Springfield.

"Every game in the Conference from here on out is a big game, because we're all bunched up," explained senior forward John Tate. "If we get lucky and a couple of the teams on top of us lose, we could wind up back at the Cage for the [A-10 Tournament Championship game, played at the home of the highest remaining seed] . . . that would be wild."

That's a bit down the road, however. Between now and the A-10 Tournament in early March, the Minutemen play Temple, Rutgers, Penn State, Rhode Island, Duquesne and West Virginia twice.

The Mountaineer squad that will take the floor tonight bears little resemblance to the WVA team UMass bounced from the A-10 tourney a year ago.

Gone is guard Steve Berger, who graduated. Junior guard Tracy Shelton, WVA's top scorer last year at 18 points per game, broke a bone in his hand in the offseason and has been redshirted.

And gone too is some uneccesary poundage off forward Chris Brooks, who was a McDonald's All-American in high school but struggled to stay out of the Morgantown, W.Va. McDonalds during his first three years at WVA.

CONTINUED ON PAGE 11

Atlantic 10 Standings

Team	A-10	Overall
Temple	8-3	14-6
Rutgers*	8-3	13-6
Massachusetts	7-4	14-6
Penn State	6-4	13-6
West Virginia	6-4	11-8
George Washington	6-5	12-7
Rhode Island*	5-6	9-10
Duquesne	5-6	7-12
St. Joseph's	5-8	8-12
St. Bonaventure	0-13	4-17

*games played last night

Bruins, please identify yourselves

Will the real Boston Bruins please stand up?

One never knows which swarm of B's is going to hit the ice from game to game. At times, the Bruins have been brilliant, holding off Montreal for the Adams Division lead and posting a Wales Conference best 31-17-8, 70 point record.

Then again, this is the same Bruin team that over intersession gave up 4 goals in less than 20 minutes to the hapless Quebec Nordiques, losing 4-2. These are the same guys who carried a 4-2 lead halfway into the third period against pitiful Minnesota and had to settle for a 4-4 tie. Go figure. The Bruins are 13-7-3 in the rugged Adams, probably the best division in hockey. You don't beat teams like the Canadiens and rivals like the Whalers and Sabres unless you're good. Yet, they continue to suffer embarrasing lapses every so often that allow Montreal to stay close behind.

Greg Sukiennik

What's the matter here? There are a couple of explanations.

. . . And then there was one. The past couple of seasons, a major trump card for the B's has been their depth in goal. But with Reggie Lemelin's best years clearly behind him — he currently is 9-7-1 in 20 games with a 3.80 goals against average — the Bruins have had to rely on Andy Moog more heavily. And while Moog has played exceptionally well, the Bruins have lost the depth and rest advantage they once enjoyed in the crease.

The defense rests. Ray Bourque is the model of what a defenseman should be. He plays far more minutes than any other Bruin and with good reason — the Bruins are a different, and far less better, team without him. And therein lies the problem. When Gord Kluzak's knee refused to take the punishment of the National Hockey League anymore, the Bruins lost the depth at defense they were counting on. Now don't panic — Glen Wesley, Al Pederson and Garry Galley are all fine defensemen. But in the Quebec and Minnesota games, those far inferior teams were able to keep the puck in the Bruins' zone far too long when it mattered most. And when you allow that, eventually the other team is going to score no matter who's in goal. There's just too much firepower in the NHL to avoid that.

What I'm saying here is that as incredible as Bourque is, he can't do it alone. The Bruins can't afford defensive lapses like the ones suffered against Minnesota and Quebec if they are going to make a Stanley Cup run. Better teams won't be nearly as forgiving come springtime in that respect.

Five minute major for fighting on . . . Chris Nilan, in 37 games, has six goals, nine assists and 190 penalty minutes [the team leader by far]. But hey, he's an NHL all-star! Why Bruins' coach Mike Milbury decided not only to pick up Nilan for this season, but to make him an all-star, is beyond me.

True, the Bruins needed an 'enforcer' to keep opposing goons away from the Bruins' skill players. But at least Milbury could've found one who could contribute. As little as I respect Detroit's Bob Probert for his violence, at least the guy can score goals.

Now, the big question. Can the Bruins take the Stanley Cup this year? So much can still happen between now and the playoffs [or July, whichever comes first], so it's difficult to say. They have the potential to do it, but unless they show some consistancy, they may not make it out of the conference. Montreal and the Rangers are both teams to be feared, and Hartford has given the Bruins fits. If anything, though, the Bruins have the work ethic to carry them at least to the Conference final.

Greg Sukiennik is a Collegian staff member

Sports Notice

Acting Athletic Ticket Manager Thor Bjorn has announced some changes in the way students will be admitted to University of Massachusetts men's basketball games at the Cage.

To get into tonight's UMass-West Virginia basketball game, students with valid student ID's will be given free general admission tickets to enter the Cage. Tickets will be available at the side entrance of the Cage beginning at 5 p.m.

One ticket will be given to each student with a valid student ID, until the student seating capacity of 2,400 is filled.

Also, the game's start has been moved back to 8 p.m, to accomodate the Atlantic 10 Television Network. The game will be televised locally on WWLP Channel 22, Springfield.

Bird's return contingent upon condition

By HOWARD ULMAN
The Associated Press

BROOKLINE — Larry Bird's return to action is imminent. The Boston Celtics aren't sure that will return them to excellence.

After a month of mediocrity while Bird recuperated from a serious back problem, the Celtics could have him in the lineup for tonight's game against Charlotte.

He practiced at full speed again yesterday and hasn't had any major setbacks since he resumed scrimmaging seven days earlier. Bird wanted to see how he felt this morning before deciding whether to play, coach Chris Ford said.

"We went through a 24-minute scrimmage [yesterday] and he played well," Ford said. "He looked like he was moving pretty freely out there . . . If he were ready to play, he would start."

Ford was encouraged that Bird showed no ill effects yesterday from a strenuous workout Monday. But he said he had no gut feeling about whether Bird would play against the Hornets.

In their last 14 games with Bird, the Celtics were 12-2. In their 14 games without him they are 7-7.

After his last game, a 127-110 win over Dallas on Jan. 6, they were 26-5, the NBA's second best record. Now they are 33-12, the league's third best mark.

"We've still got to realize what got us to the point we were at before Larry went down is doing it as a team," center Robert Parish said. "That's what we got away from, the little things — the defense, the rebounding, the loose balls.

"Even if Larry was there, it still would have happened."

Bird's absence deprived the Celtics of their best passer, best defensive rebounder and their player with the best court sense and creativity. He also lightened the burden on others to produce.

But guard Reggie Lewis agreed with Parish that the Celtics are good enough to win more than half their games without Bird.

"We played without hima couple times before," Lewis said. "It's not anything that's new to us. We just we're consistent."

In 1988-89, Bird played only six games before surgery on both heels sidelined him the rest of the season. He played 75 games last season. But the Celtics were eliminated in the first round of the playoffs both times.

Bird, 34, lives with the accumulated aches of his 12 NBA seasons. His back bothered him from the beginning of training camp. He even sat out a few preseason games.

But he played in Boston's first 31 games, averaging a career-low 19.2 points, before finally sitting down.

Largest College Daily in New England

THE MASSACHUSETTS Established in 1890

DAILY COLLEGIAN

VOLUME C THURSDAY, FEBRUARY 7, 1991 ISSUE 77

Under fire, allies shoot down two Iraqi planes

AP photo

An Egyptian tank crew sits atop their U.S.-made M-60 Tuesday near the Saudi-Kuwaiti border. The Egyptians said they have gone four nights without sleep due to Iraqi shelling as they continue to wait for the orders to begin their attack against the forces of Saddam Hussein.

By MARK FRITZ
The Associated Press

DHARHAN, Saudi Arabia — In another day of non-stop aerial ballistics, the United States shot down at least two fleeing Iraqi jets yesterday and Iraq blasted the sky with intense anti-aircraft fire, allied military officials said.

Iraq claimed that 150 civilians had been killed in a single air raid, including 35 children. Baghdad radio complained that the United States and its allies were bombing hospitals, mosques and houses.

"They want to expel Iraq from the 20th century," the radio said.

Iraq announced it was severing diplomatic ties with the United States, Britain, France, Italy, Egypt and Saudi Arabia.

Jordan's King Hussein appealed for a cease-fire in the Persian Gulf War, which he said was destroying Iraq. But in Washington, Secretary of State James A. Baker III tried to steel Congress for a long and bloody fight.

"The military actions now under way necessarily involve many casualties, great hardships and growing fears for the future," Baker said in testimony to the House Foreign Affairs Committee. "Tough times lie ahead."

Allied bombers continued to unload tons of explosives on Iraq's Republican Guards highly fortified positions.

"They gets little sleep both day and night," Marine Brig. Gen. Richard Neal said of the Iraqi soldiers.

Gen. Michel Roquejeoffre, commander of the French forces in Operation Desert Storm, said allied air strikes had reduced the Republican Guards' effectiveness by about 30 percent.

Neal, who conducted the U.S. military's daily briefing in Riyadh, the Saudi capital, declined to comment on the French general's remarks. He said, however, that the United States, "has not attached a 30, a 10 or a 15 percent" to the unit's rated effectiveness.

Neal seemed to contradict remarks made by a British military spokesman, Royal Air Force Group Capt. Niall Irving. The RAF officer insisted that the main purpose of the

CONTINUED ON PAGE 4

Senate votes to 'disapprove' officers' request

By MARC ELLIOTT
Collegian Staff

The Undergraduate Student Senate last night voted 30-13 to "disapprove" of a request made by top Student Government Association officers last week that the administration take over and restructure the body, which they deemed ineffective.

Before the decision, Student Attorney General Adam Scales told the senate that the officers' request violated the SGA's constitution.

But Senate Speaker Dan Chesnicka, who joined SGA President Natasha Diephuis and Student Trustee Angus McQuilken, and Treasurer Karen Talbot in last week's request, stood by his decision, saying that the officers acted in the best interests of the student body.

"I was shocked and disgusted by what I saw last Wednesday," Scales said. "As offended as I was by the intemperance of the act they had taken, I was even more so by the way they had taken it."

Chesnicka defended himself, saying that everyone in the senate has violated the SGA constitution in one way or another and that his action was done for the good of the student body.

"We have all failed in our duties as outlined in the constitution," Chesnicka said. "The constitution, in fact, mandates that we should all be removed from office."

"As our system is designed, as the constitution is written, to support the constitution would directly hurt the students," continued Chesnicka.

Chesnicka also accused the Central Area government of distributing a leaflet of "lies" and reported that someone had stolen some papers out of his desk and put copies of them in someone else's mailbox.

Sen. Ed Corrigan (Commuters), also vice-chairman of the Board of Governors, voted to disapprove and also suggested removing Chesnicka and Talbot from office.

"My proposal to remove the speaker and treasurer is necessary in the defense of the [Student Activities Trust Fund] and student empowerment," Corrigan said. "I hope for an expedient end to the infighting, so that the senate, the BOG, and the area governments can get back to the business of representing students."

Sen. Jeff Markuns, also president of the Orchard Hill Area government, said, "I'm very glad to see that the senate did the right thing and attempted to salvage the parts of the SGA that work hard for students such as house councils, area governments, and the various RSO's."

Some senators supported the officers' actions.

"A change is necessary for anything of substance to be done," said Sen. Tami Monahan (Webster). "Hopefully structural changes will come out of this, despite the disapproval of the leaders' proposal, and the SGA can begin to advocate for students."

Sen. Richard Sugarman (Wheeler) said that when he first heard about what the officers had done, he was angry, but now he agrees with their request of the administration.

Campus groups meet, discuss future plans for anti-war activities

By SARAH DEMASTER
Collegian Staff

As the war in the Persian Gulf continues, so do the efforts of some University of Massachusetts faculty, staff, and student organizations to stop it.

About 30 people representing Faculty and Staff for Peace and Justice in the Middle East, Graduate Students for Peace in the Middle East, and Students Against War met in Tobin Hall last night to discuss upcoming protests and other events concerning the war.

This was the fourth meeting since the groups first met on January 16, the day the war began.

"We began meeting because we were worried that the war would start," said Ann Ferguson, a professor of philosophy and chairperson of the staff and faculty organization. "We knew we would all be feeling angry and depressed." Although members did not concur on their reasons for objecting to the war, they did unanimously agree on three objectives: a cease-fire; a Middle East peace conference; and a diversion of United States funds to other concerns besides war.

The groups also agreed they would like to focus both on educational activities and demonstrations.

"The focus on education is really important," said Lisa Selkirk, a professor of linguistics. "The other point is bias in the media. Obviously, if this is the case, we need to have alternate sources of education."

Kevin Smith, a staff member at the Tower Library, added, "I understand the panic going on with students [because of the state's financial situation], but maybe some of the education could be to show how this war connects with them."

One way the groups plan to spread the word is by having faculty and staff members speak at educational

CONTINUED ON PAGE 3

Farmers concerned over proposed cuts

Say planned budget 'guts the system'

By The Associated Press

Faced with proposed budget cuts officials say would virtually shut down the agency that helps Massachusetts farmers, workers have called an emergency meeting to talk about the consequences.

The cuts to the Cooperative Extension Service announced last week in Gov. William F. Weld's plan to make up a projected $850 million deficit, would take $500,000 away from the current fiscal year's funding related positions, said Dick Floyd of the University of Massachusetts.

For fiscal 1992, the plan recommends cutting all state funds to the program, a move extension service officials say could jeopardize federal money that is given on a matching basis.

"Essentially, it guts the system," said agency spokesman Dwayne Dale.

Extension officials say the cuts may save the state some money, but it will cost even more if the federal funding is lost.

"If the state cuts its $2.6 million in support for Cooperative Extenion in fiscal 1992, then the Commonwealth could lose between $10 million and $15 million worth of funds and services that this money brings in," Director Robert G. Helgesen said in a statement.

In response, the agency has called a statewide meeting today at the University to discuss the consequences of losing the money and how to forestall cuts.

Weld spokesman Jordan St. John said he does not believe the state funding cut will endanger federal funds, and pointed out the Weld plan seeks to deal with a projected deficit of $850 million in the current fiscal year alone.

The extension service performs agricultural research that is distributed to farmers and gardeners. It also helps support the 4-H program for youths and provides nutritional and health information for families.

Under Weld's plan, 4-H would be transferred to another agency, a move that agency officials say is dubious but St. John said can be done.

Conte still critical

WASHINGTON (AP) — Massachusetts Congressman Silvio Conte was listed in critical condition yesterday after undergoing a second round of surgery to remove blood accumulating in the right side of his brain.

The veteran Republican lawmaker was under sedation in the intensive care unit of the National Institute of Health after the operation, according to his office.

Conte's condition took a turn for the worse Tuesday evening after internal bleeding was discovered during a routine check, which followed a weekend operation to remove a blood clot.

Conte spokesman Pat Larkin said Conte did not suffer any relapse or sudden loss of consciousness that led to the discovery of the bleeding. He emphasized that Conte has lost no bodily functions and suffered no discernible brain damage as a result of his condition.

INSIDE:

THURSDAY, February 7, 1991

Page 3: Glory Days: Collegian alumni go to war.

Page 9: Ted Chambers speaks out on the controversy surrounding the Legal Services Center.

Pullout: Jazz it up this weekend with Sun Ra and his 20 piece Arkestra.

WEATHER

Rumor has it there will be partly cloudy skies today with highs in the 40s, but if you want to be sure, stick your head out the window.

THE MASSACHUSETTS
DAILY COLLEGIAN
New England's largest college daily newspaper. Circulation: 19,000. Published every weekday during the calendar semester. The Massachusetts Daily Collegian is a Registered Student Organization of the University of Massachusetts.
113 Campus Center, Amherst, MA, 01003
Phone (413) 545-3500 FAX (413) 545-1592

STAFF

Editor in Chief ..... Terry Stamer
Managing Editor ..... Jody Cabin
Editorial Editor ..... Jeremy Levinson
News Editor ..... Gayle Long
Sports Editor ..... Adrien Matt
Arts Editor ..... Danielle Dowling
Photography Editor ..... K.A. Burke
Black Affairs Editor ..... Sondra Sutton
Women's Issues Editors ..... Risa Kelly, Monique Tabon
Multicultural Affairs Editor ..... Alexander Nguyen
Third World Affairs Editor ..... Pratip Dastidar
Lesbian, Bisexual, Gay Issues Editor ..... Trystan Skeigh
Business Manager ..... Susan George
Advertising Manager ..... Dave Melnick
Finance Manager ..... Beth Patterson
Circulation Manager ..... Jim Winterbottom
Subscriptions Manager ..... Stacy Rogers
Promotions Manager ..... Marc Pruskin
Production Manager ..... Nicole Dumas
Day Graphics Manager ..... Jenn Burns

PROFESSIONAL STAFF

Business ..... Brian Harrington, Lori Black, Maureen Majewski
Graphics ..... Rory Evans

TODAY'S STAFF

Night Editor ..... Maria Socchetti
Copy Editor ..... Yana D.
Layout Technician ..... Seth Nave
Photo Technician ..... Jeff Holland
Production Supervisor ..... Seth Nave
Typesetter ..... Joanne Quimby
Production ..... Lisa Jezowski, Steve Luhan, Mike Reekie, Ali Woolwich

Recycle this newspaper

For Your Information

THURSDAY, FEBRUARY 7

Movie — The movie "Total Recall" is being offered by SCUM in the Campus Center Auditorium at 5 p.m., 7 p.m., 9 p.m. and 11 p.m. The first showing costs $2, and the remaining shows cost $2.50.

Film — A film will be shown in CC 803 from 7-9 p.m. sponsored by the Lesbian Bisexual and Gay Alliance.

Blood Drive — An American Red Cross blood drive will be held in the Student Union Ballroom from 11 a.m.-4 p.m.

Lecture — The lecture "The New European Order and the U.S." will take place in Converse Hall at Amherst College at 8 p.m.

FRIDAY, FEBRUARY 8

Dance — A dance, sponsored by the Asian Student Association, will be held in the CC Auditorium from 9 p.m.-1 a.m. The cost is $2 for members, $4 for non-members.

Civil Disobedience Workshop— The workshop, led by Hattie Nestel, will discuss the duty of civil disobedience and non-violence. It will be held in room 105 of the Franklin Patterson Building at Amherst College between 6 and 10 p.m.

SATURDAY, FEBRUARY 9

Dance— A dance, sponsored by Student Valley Productions, will be held in the Blue Wall from 9 p.m.-1 a.m. Admission $2. Come with a heart on and get $1 off their spring production of "The Sixteenth Chapel."

SUNDAY, FEBRUARY 10

Peace Vigil — A vigil, sponsored by the Committee on the Middle East Crisis, will be held at the Amherst Common at noon.

Women's Center Meeting — The first Orchard Hill/Central Women's Center meeting will be held in room 115 Van Meter South at 7 p.m. All are welcome. Refreshments will be served.

17th Annual International Sunday — The Interfaith Service Council of Amherst will hold the Sunday Service at 4 p.m. at the First Congregational Church on Main Street in Amherst.

MONDAY, FEBRUARY 11

Brown Bag Discussion — Sponsored by Counseling and Advising for Older Students. Come share your registration horror stories and happy endings at Machmer E-21.

Free Meditation Workshop — A free meditation and yoga workshop will be offered this semester at the campus center. The first session is from 7:30 to 9:30 p.m. Please check at the Campus Center desk for room numbers.

Auditions for Killing Me Softly — Auditions sponsored by the UMass Theatre Department will be held on Feb. 11 and Feb 12. Sign up for auditions on the UMass theatre department callboard. Scripts to read are available in the FAC 112.

TUESDAY, FEBRUARY 12

National Student Exchange Meeting — An information session sponsored by the National Student Exchange will be held from 4-5 p.m. in Campus Center room 803. Applications for Fall '91 and/or Spring '92 are due March 1.

WEDNESDAY, FEBRUARY 13

GLB Valentine Panel — A panel of couples will discuss same-sex relations at 8 p.m. in Campus Center room 904. The event is sponsored by the Program for Gay, Lesbian and Bisexual Concerns.

School of Nursing Academic Rounds Lecture — The School of Nursing will sponsor a talk by speaker Dr. Patricia Moccia from 4-6 p.m. at the Campus Center room 904.

Women's Studies Talk — A talk by writer Leslea Newman is sponsored by the Women's Studies Dept. It will be held from 12:15-1:30 in the Campus Center complex.

THURSDAY, FEBRUARY 14

Film and Discussion — 'Children of Fire' will be shown at 4 p.m. in Herter Auditorium (room 231). The film deals with the Palestinian uprising as seen through the eyes of the children.

Selectivity in Micellar Electrokinetic Chromatography — A lecture by Professor Harold M. McNair will be held at 11:15 a.m. in room 1633 of the Lederle Graduate Tower.

An Analysis of the U.S.-Soviet Summit — A Five College Faculty Panel, sponsored by the Five College Program in Peace and World Security Studies, will be held at 8 p.m. in Converse Hall at Amherst College.

SATURDAY, FEBRUARY 16

Rally and Non-violent Direct Action — A rally will be held at Westover Air Force base at 1:30 p.m. An affinity group formation and strategy session will be held at Hooker Auditorium at Mount Holyoke College from 9-12 a.m.

KATINA'S
ROUTE 9, HADLEY • 586-4463
FREE • FREE • FREE • FREE
SHUTTLE BUS SERVICE TO & FROM UMASS
50¢ DRAFTS • $1 WHISKY SOURS

THURSDAY — SELECTROCUTION, Electronic Flirtation Dance Party — FEB 7
FRIDAY — Sigma Alpha Mu Fraternity Party — FEB 8
SATURDAY — Progressive Dance Party w/ WMUA's FM 91.1 Christina Rosetti, Dance Contest • Prizes • $1 off w/college id. — FEB 9
SUNDAY — Briteside & Uproar, All Ages — FEB 10
ng•upcoming•upcoming•upcoming•upco

Physical Graffiti ..... Friday, Feb. 15
Chucklehead ..... Saturday, Feb. 16
Back in Black all ages ..... Sunday, Feb. 17
ADVANCE TIX: Katina's, Strawberries, Hilton, Platterpuss, About Music, Main Music

Largest College Daily in New England
THE MASSACHUSETTS DAILY COLLEGIAN Established in 1890
113 Campus Center

NEWS WRITERS' MEETING
TODAY
4 p.m. in the newsroom
Anyone interested in writing for the news desk should come down and ask for Gayle.

SHAPE UP FOR SPRING.
At Hilltop and Crossan Healthclubs located in Webster & Gorman dorms
Register 2/4-2/14, Mon-Thurs 7-9pm

BRITTANY MANOR • RIVERGLADE • SOUTHWOOD
R+P LIQUOR STORE
West St., RTE. 116
Amherst 253-9742
Is Convenient For You!
BEER • WINE • LIQUOR
Fridge Rentals • Bottle Return
In The Heart of So. Amherst

AMHERST CINEMA
Now Playing
THE RUSSIA HOUSE
starring
Sean Connery & Michelle Pfeiffer
Mon-Thurs.
One show 7:30
Fri, Sat, Sun
7:00 and 9:15
student discount with valid I.D. $3.00

AIM HIGH
Allied Health Professionals & Administrators
Discover a challenging future with opportunities to advance. Serve your country while you serve your career with:
• great pay and benefits
• normal working hours
• complete medical and dental care
• 30 days vacation with pay per year
Find out how to qualify as an Air Force professional. Call
USAF HEALTH PROFESSIONS
TOLL-FREE 1-800-423-USAF
AIR FORCE

Let me count the ways.
Just call or visit us today to send the FTD® Hearts & Flowers® Bouquet.
Or the FTD Flower Basket Bouquet.
It's never too soon to send one.
Knowles Flower Shop
172 North Pleasant St Phone 413-253-3805
Amherst, Massachusetts 01002
FTD

LOCAL

From basement to the sands of Middle East

By YANA DLUGY
Collegian Staff

They started out with countless protests, teach-ins, take-overs and noontime rallies on the Student Union steps. Not to mention the runarounds they got from the University of Massachusetts administration and police department.

Now three Collegian alumni are using skills honed from their UMass days to tell the world about the war in the Middle East.

Photo courtesy of The Index

Carol Rosenberg

Carol Rosenberg, 31, is in Amman, Jordan, for the Miami Herald. Gayle Young, 31, is in Cairo, Egypt, free-lancing for United Press International and the Cable News Network. Paul Basken, 29, is in Dharan, Saudi Arabia, for UPI.

Rosenberg and Young were roommates, friends, "total news maniacs," and "friendly competitors" while at UMass, said Fran Basche, a Collegian alumna who has known the two women since their days at the Collegian in the late 70's.

"They were college students who were really dedicated to the Collegian and learning how to be good journalists," she said. "They were both strong-willed women who were determined to be successful in journalism."

All three reporters have certainly been successful — many a journalist on city desks across the country dreams of an assignment overseas.

They are also quickly gaining legendary status in the hallway of the journalism department, where professors, with a "those-are-our-kids look" in their eyes, proudly recall the days when the three used to come (or not come because of duties at the Collegian) to classes in Bartlett Hall.

"It really doesn't surprise me that either one of them is over there," said Kevin Cullen, a Boston Globe reporter who worked with the two women at the Collegian.

Basche agreed. "Carol started out in the journalism department wanting to be a correspondent in the Middle East."

Rosenberg has been in the Middle East, based in Jerusalem, for about four years. She first went to the area for UPI, but later left the company and free-lanced for a number of organizations, including The Boston Globe, UPI, and the Miami Herald.

"No matter how long the conflict lasts, I know Carol will do two things," Cullen said. "She'll find the human side of war, and won't stay too long in a Muslim country where you can't get a beer."

After graduating in February 1981 with a bachelor's degree in journalistic studies with interdepartmental honors, Rosenberg worked for UPI bureaus in Springfield, Boston, New York, and the foreign desk in Washington D.C.

In Amman, Rosenberg has been interviewing refugees from Iraq, trying to assess the situation in Baghdad, as well as covering the Jordanian government, said Mike Haggerty, assistant managing editor at the Herald.

Young graduated in February 1982 with a bachelor's degree in economics. She worked briefly for The Stamford Advocate, then went to Washington D.C. and wrote for The Washington Post weekly section while free-lancing pieces for the regular editions of the paper.

Photo courtesy of The Index

Gayle Young

She spent some time at the UPI bureau in New York, and then won a fellowship to go to Kingston, Jamaica for a year, where she worked at the local paper there. After coming back to the States, she worked as a business writer for UPI's Atlanta bureau, and finally went to UPI's foreign desk in Washington D.C.

In Cairo, Young has been writing enterprise features for both UPI and CNN, as well as rounding up reports from the region, said Michael Keats, vice president for international operations at UPI.

Basken flew to Saudi Arabia the day after the war began, hitching a ride on an Air Force jet out of Andrews Air Force base in Maryland with five UPI reporters and more than 100 other members of the media.

He has yet to go out on one of the week-long military pools to the front lines, but has been keeping busy in the meantime.

"He's playing jack of all trades," Keats said. "He's been doing radio, rounding up of pool reports, writing enterprise stuff. You know, working 12 to 24-hour days."

"Paul more than anybody had a long-range plan to get overseas and it finally paid off," said Ian Polumbaum, a Collegian alumnus and a friend of Basken's. "He'll do a good job at looking at things critically instead of just being a stenographer and taking what's fed to him."

After leaving UMass in 1984, Basken worked at the now-defunct Springfield Daily News for a year and a half before joining UPI, where he made his way through the bureaus in Hartford, Trenton, and Boston before landing on the foreign desk in Washington D.C., where he worked as editor and occasional reporter.

"...despite the fact that the U.S. public cares less and less about what's going on on the other side of the world, I still cling to the dream of working long hours in some far-off country vainly trying to tell them about it," Basken wrote last fall in a book compiled for the 100th anniversary of the Collegian.

You now have your chance, Paul, except we are hanging on your every word.

Photo courtesy of Dode

Paul Basken

Collegian photo by Jeff Holland

TOWER TROTTING — Kristen Kirk, a senior BDIC major, trots Fitzwilliam around the Orchard Hill water tower yesterday.

UMass agencies offer help dealing with war

By PRESTON P. FORMAN
Collegian Staff

University of Massachusetts administrators gathered yesterday to share information about the steps taken by campus offices, agencies and programs to coordinate responses to the war in the Persian Gulf.

Residential education, international program and mental health officials as well as administrators from Student Affairs discussed wide-ranging plans to help students and faculty both here and abroad deal with concerns brought about by the war.

Grant Ingle, director of the Office of Human Relations and the coordinator of the effort, said he expects many "controversial events" this spring — a possibility that has spurred him to contact the pool of University "observers," independent officials who provide a neutral presence at controversial events.

Ingle hopes more faculty members will volunteer to become a part of this pool, which was formed during the CIA demonstrations in 1987. There are about 100 members, made up mostly of professional staff and faculty, Ingle said.

"Shouting matches don't turn into punching bouts if a philosophy professor is standing there," he said.

The topic of students studying overseas dominated much of the discussion. Nearly 500 University students are abroad this year but only a few have returned home since the war began, according to Assistant Provost for International Programs Barbara Burn.

"We have two concerns: the students overseas now and those students scheduled to go," she said. "We are dealing mainly with concerned parents these days. They are taking a real leap of faith."

At the suggestion of University officials, a half-dozen students in Israel have returned to the United States. A few other students have also returned home although no programs have been cancelled, she said.

Jill Landesberg, the resident director of Melville-Thoreau, said many resident assistants have filled educational bulletin boards with newspaper articles about the war.

She said Housing Services has begun taking steps to head off a potential rise in anti-Arab and anti-Semitic incidents in the residence halls.

"Many Jewish students we are are in contact with are feeling very vulnerable, particularly in respect to Israel, which they feel is being left out of the discussion on the war," Landesberg said.

Officials from the dean of students said they continue to keep in contact with the 19 University students serving in the Gulf and three other students still in state-side training awaiting deployment.

The Newman Center has reprinted the pastoral letters of the bishop and Pope John Paul II on the Middle East crisis, the Rev. Richard Bondi said. He said support groups have been formed to discuss the war. The Newman Center has many pamphlets and information on issues that have risen from the war, such as conscientious objector status, the concept of a just war and Islamic religion, he said.

"Since Christianity grew out of Judaism we tend to more familar with this than Islam," he said. "The war will be over some time but the questions will remain about the faith."

Bondi said Wednesday services at the Newman Center now focus on the pursuit of peace.

■ UMass groups plan protests

CONTINUED FROM PAGE 1

forums in residence halls and dining commons. The groups are also trying to find a room, possibly in the Tower Library, in which to make literature available.

In addition, they will continue to hold the daily vigils from 12 p.m. to 12:30 p.m. on the Student Union steps. A counter-demonstration to the Republican Club's pro-war protest is planned for today.

Other protests include a demonstration at Westover Air Force Base Saturday, Feb. 16 in Chicopee, to which the organizations will try to arrange transportation from UMass. On Tuesday, Feb. 12, the groups plan to picket at the Mather Career Center to protest the recruitment of students by companies involved in the war. The next day they plan to distribute leaflets at the center's career fair in the Campus Center Auditorium.

Companies scheduled to recruit at the fair include Exxon Corporation, Mobil Corporation, GTE Government Systems, Massachusetts Institute of Technology, and Lincoln Labs.

Students Against War plans to get its message across by distributing literature today and Friday at a table on the Campus Center concourse, in an effort to reach students "before the body bags come in and that polarizes people," said Lynelle Engle, a continuing education student and member of the group.

The organization, which this week changed its name from the the Ad Hoc Coalition on the Mid-East Crisis, formed at the beginning of last semester. The group is now part of National Campuses Against the War, which plans to hold protests nationwide on Thursday, Feb. 21, through such actions as leaving classes, but Engle said the group would rather try such an action in March.

"We're supporting people going to a rally if they so choose," she said. "The last thing we want to do is alienate people right now."

Israel easing curfews on Palestinians

By KARIN LAUB
The Associated Press

JERUSALEM — Israel has begun easing a 3-week-old curfew imposed on the occupied lands at the outset of the Gulf War, and the army said yesterday more restrictions could be lifted if no anti-Israeli violence breaks out.

Palestinian leaders urged the 1.7 million Arab residents in the occupied West Bank and Gaza Strip to violate the curfew to keep up the momentum of their 3-year-old revolt against Israeli occupation.

There were two incidents yesterday in Israel.

In the north, a Palestinian riding on an Israeli bus stabbed and slightly wounded a soldier, police said. The attacker, a resident of the West Bank town of Jenin, apparently broke the curfew and entered Israel. He was arrested.

In Arab east Jerusalem, police fired in the air to disperse Palestinians who tried to prevent the arrest of two youths suspected of damaging an Israeli car, police said. Scores of Israeli cars have been torched by Palestinian militants during the uprising.

Meanwhile, a small group of Jewish and Arab doves urged an immediate U.N.-monitored cease-fire in the war and an international peace conference to resolve Israel's conflict with the Palestinians — both steps opposed by the Israeli government.

"The horrible price of their war is paid by ordinary people," said a petition signed by 100 Israelis. It was presented at a news conference by a new group called Enough.

The petition condemned Iraq's missile attacks on Israel but added: "We oppose the Gulf War."

The army imposed the round-the-clock curfew within hours after the Persian Gulf War started on Jan. 17, fearing Palestinians would sabotage Israel in a time of crisis. Many Palestinians back Saddam Hussein as a champion of their cause.

Troops strictly enforced the curfew, allowing Palestinians only to leave their homes for two or three hours twice a week to shop for necessities. Curfew violators were given up to three months in prison and fined several hundred dollars. In a first easing of restrictions, the army on Tuesday and yesterday allowed people in the West Bank towns of Qalqiliya, Tulkarem, Bethlehem and Jericho to leave their homes for eight-hour periods. About 125,000 people live in the four towns.

"This is a first stage, and we'll see if it leads to any violence," said an army official, speaking on condition of anonymity. "This will be lifted in several stages, and each stage depends on the previous stage."

Palestinians in the occupied lands are still barred from leaving their towns or entering Israel. Before the war, about 100,000 Palestinians worked in Israel as day laborers and many fear they will be fired unless they go to work.

■ war

CONTINUED FROM PAGE 1

bombing was to lower Iraqi morale, "not to try and wipe out the Republican Guard."

Neal's response: "We're dropping a lot of ordnance on the Republican Guard, not just to lower their morale, but also destroy their tanks, their artillery, their logistical sustainment capability, their built-up areas. We're out there to destroy the Republican Guard."

A Saudi Arabian military spokesman said American F-15s shot down four of seven Iraqi jets as they tried to make the dash across the border. Neal said only two planes were confirmed kills.

COLLEGE SPECIAL
3 Games of Bowling and Shoe Rental for $5.00
with College I.D.
Every Thurs. Night 9:00pm—12:00am
Northampton Bowl
Live D.J. and Comics in the Alley Oops Lounge
Cover $3.00
Call 584-4830 for reservations

Spirit Haus
Liquor Store
Welcome Back Students!

Absolut Vodka 750 ml $10.99

New Bartles & Jaymes Light Wine Coolers Berry and White four pack $2.99

Bacardi Rum 750 ml $7.49

Samuel Adams Double Bock case $20.99

Busch Beer 12 pack $5.99

Heineken six pack $5.20

Beck's six pack $4.99

Crystal Creek White Zinfandel 750 ml $3.69

Wurzburger Holiday Beer and Octoberfest Beer six pack $4.99 case $18.79

Koch's Golden Anniversary Beer six pack $2.69

Kegs Starting at $35

338 College St. (Rt. 9) Amherst 253-5384 VISA

AEROBICS

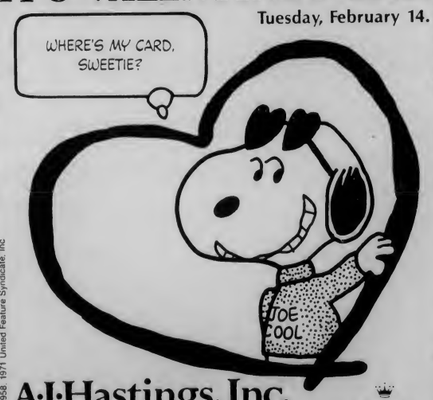
MORE NAUTILUS
Computerized aerobic machines than any club in the Valley.
Stairmasters • Lifecycles • Gravitron • Biocycle • Treadmills
New • New • New • Life Rower • New • New • New

BETTER MASSAGE
Special suspended oak wood floor • Certified Instructors
• Bench Step • Low Impact • High/Low • Boxercise • Stretch

KARATE SAUNA
Total body conditioning plus the skill of selfdefense.
Largest full-time Karate studio in Western Mass.

AMHERST ATHLETIC CLUB 460 West St. South Amherst 256-0080 KARATE HEALTH & FITNESS CENTER

IT'S VALENTINE'S DAY!
Tuesday, February 14.



SNOOPY © 1958 1971 United Feature Syndicate, Inc.

A.J. Hastings, Inc.
—Newsdealer and Stationer—
"Conveniently located in the center of Amherst"
45 South Pleasant Street
OPEN: Weekdays 5 a.m. to 9 p.m., Sundays, 5 a.m. to 1 p.m.
Hallmark
© 1989 Hallmark Cards, Inc.

Town defends restrictions on mountain bikes

Official says bike tires damage trails

By DAVID MASSEY
Collegian Correspondent

Mountain bikers used to be able to ride off road anywhere in Amherst, exploring the region's natural beauty. Not anymore.

The Amherst Conservation Commission adopted regulations on November 21, 1990 that barred mountain bikers from 27 of the 35 natural conservation areas in Amherst.

The thick, knobby tires on mountain bikes allow them to churn through almost any terrain, and the Conservation Commission argues that this action erodes the trails, often causing irreversible and costly damage.

So continues a national debate that began ever since the first mass-produced mountain bikes hit the cycle stores in 1981. Should natural trails and forests that have evidence of considerable damage be restricted? Do mountain bikes cause most of the damage? As the number of mountain bikes sold hits record highs while legal trail access becomes more limited, such questions remain.

"My main concern is for the terrain," said Pete Westover, director of the Amherst Conservation Department. "Once it's damaged, it is either very expensive or impossible to repair.

"You can walk a hundred people over a trail and see no damage," he said. "You can ride 10 mountain bikes across and, unless they are being very careful, you are going to start to see some real wear."

Signs are being put up at many of the entrance points to the restricted trails. Anyone violating a conservation commission regulation may be fined up to $300.

The most popular areas for mountain bikers still remain open, including Wildwood, Amethyst Brook, the Holyoke Range, and five other widely-used trails in Amherst.

"Nobody should feel that they are being unduly restricted," he said. "It's just this is pointing out in terms of common sense that these are the areas that don't make any sense at all to use."

Many argue that mountain bikes cause minimal damage, or at least no more than hikers or horses. Jami Fisher, a junior computer science major and one of four students helping to set up a mountain bike club at UMass, said the erosion has been exacerbated by the higher degree of traffic on the trails, including walkers and hikers, not only bikers.

"It is not that mountain bikes don't do any damage, it is just that they don't do any more damage than anyone else," he said.

Westover said he has personally witnessed heavy damage to some of the restricted trails. He said he has seen "super mudholes that go 20, 30, 50, 100 feet that are just chewed up by mountain bikes, horses and walkers."

Walkers can step over the bridges but Westover says mountain bikers usually ride directly through the wet, marshy areas that are especially susceptible to harmful erosion. His department is also researching the effect of horses, which cause even more damage than mountain bikes, on conservation lands.

"I think that trail users should be the ones who maintain the land," said Marston Chickering, a mechanic and salesman at Bicycle World in Amherst. "And in this day and age, a lot of that includes mountain bikes."

Pete Archambault, another organizer of the UMass mountain bike club, said working closely with the conservation department would benefit everyone.

"We'd like to talk to them about going in there and repairing trail damage," he said. "For one Saturday every once in a while it would be no problem to get forty or fifty people over there."

Westover said he would like to work with volunteers willing to help repair trails and maintain existing conservation areas. But he said repair is costly and that "the main thing is to avoid damage in the first place."

Mountain bikers, no matter where they are riding, can minimize their impact if they "ride softly," according to a recent article in Bicycling magazine. This new technique attempts to promote a new responsibility and awareness among bikers which says that the land is fragile and must be treated with great care and respect.

While leaving no trace is impossible, because mountain bikers can tear up terrain when accelerating or braking, a rider can, carry his bike over marshy areas instead of plowing through the soft ground, Westover said.

Hank Barlow writes in the May, 1990 issue of Bicycling magazine that soft cycling is a way of life — a new environmentally conscious view of nature. We should always "have in mind that we're only visitors in the back country and so treat it accordingly," he wrote.

Westover urged riders to ride carefully and softly on the existing trails. "I don't want to see those trails fall apart because of very heavy mountain bike use."

"We want to work with the bikers. We know that they are out there," Westover says.

Lambda Chi Alpha is beginning rush February 12. Until then try to enjoy yourself as best you can.

PER CRUCEM CRESCENS
VIR QUISQUE VIR

Lambda Chi Alpha Fraternity 374 North Pleasant Street 253-9032

The six commandments of biking

The following is being reprinted with permission of the International Moutain Bicycling Association.

1. Ride on open trails only. Respect trail and road closures, avoid trespassing on private land, and obtain permits and authorization as may be required. Federal and state wilderness areas are closed to cycling. Additional trails may be closed because of environmental concerns or conflicts with other users.

2. Leave no trace. Be sensitive to the dirt beneath you. Even on open trails you should not ride in conditions where you will leave evidence of your passing, such as on certain soils shortly after a rain. Observe the different types of soil and trail construction; practice low-impact cycling. This also means staying on the trail and not creating any new ones. Be sure to pack out as much as you pack in.

3. Control your bicycle. Inattention for even a second can cause disaster. Excessive speed frightens and injures people; there is no excuse for it!

4. Always yield. Make your approach known well in advance. A friendly greeting (or bell) is considerate and works well; startling someone may cause a complaint to be filed. Show your respect when passing others by slowing to walking speed or even stopping. Anticipate that other trail users may be around corners or in blind spots.

5. Never spook animals. All animals are startled by an unannounced approach, sudden movement, or loud noise. This can be dangerous for you, others, and the animals. Give them extra room and time to adjust to you. When passing, use special care and follow the directions of horseback riders. Running cattle and disturbing wild animals is a serious offense.

6. Plan ahead. Know your equipment, your ability, and the area in which you are riding — and prepare accordingly. Be self-sufficient at all times, keep your bike in good repair, and carry necessary supplies for changes in weather or other conditions. A well-executed trip is a satisfaction to you and not a burden or offense to others. Keep trails open by setting an example of responsible cycling for all mountain bicyclists.

Contact these national organizations for more information.

Bicycle Institute of America, 1878 R.St. NW, Washington, DC 20009, (202) 332-6986.

Bikecentennial, Box 8308, Missoula, MT 59807, (406) 721-1776.

IMBA, Rt. 2, Box 303, Bishop, CA 93514, (619) 387-2757.

League of American Wheelmen, 6707 Whitestone Rd., Suite 209, Baltimore, MD 21207, (301) 944-3399.

charlie's
1 Pray St., Amherst—549-5403 • Open 11am
7 days a Week
Kitchen open 'til midnight
Game Room with 2 pool tables
Tonight 10c Beer Steamed Baby Franks
9:00p.m. — 12:00 a.m.
Drinks of the Week:
Charlie's Punch $1.50
French Mocha Coffee $1.95
Food Giveaways
Mon. 10 cent Mozzarella Sticks 9pm-12am
Tues. 10 cent Buffalo Wings 9pm-12am
Wed. 25cent Pizza Slices and 99 cent Nachos 9pm-12am
Thurs 10 cent Beer Steamed Baby Franks 9pm-12am
Sunday 10 cent Potato Skins 9pm-12am
WE ACCEPT MC-VISA-AMEX

SAMPLE CHEESES FROM AROUND THE WORLD

AEROBICS
MORE NAUTILUS
Computerized aerobic machines than any club in the Valley.
Stairmasters • Lifecycles • Gravitron • Biocycle • Treadmills
New • New • New • Life Rower • New • New • New
BETTER MASSAGE
Special suspended oak wood floor • Certified Instructors
• Bench Step • Low Impact • High/Low • Boxercise • Stretch
KARATE SAUNA
Total body conditioning plus the skill of selfdefense.
Largest full-time Karate studio in Western Mass.
AMHERST ATHLETIC CLUB 460 West St.
KARATE HEALTH & FITNESS CENTER South Amherst 256-0080

35mm CAMERA SALE
All OUR SLR CAMERAS ARE ON SALE!
SAVE FROM 20.00 - 300.00 • BODIES AVAILABLE FROM 124.95 - 1099.95
FREE Extended Warranty • FREE Coupon Book • FREE Photo Class • FREE Processing on your first roll of film
Pentax P3
Minolta 3000i
Nikon 6006
Canon Rebel Outfit Body, flash & 35-80 zoom lens
Coupon Sale From The Camera Shops
Color Reprint Sale
25¢ ea. 3 X 5 Standard Print
29¢ ea. 4 X 6 Superprint
C-41 color negatives only. 110•126•135 & disc
Film Developing Sale
12 exp. 1.99
15 exp. 2.99
24 exp. 3.99
36 exp. 5.99
Econo - 1 each 3 X 5 glossy prints
C-41 negatives only
Print From Slide Sale
69¢ each 3 X 5
79¢ each 4 X 6
35mm full frame slides only
2 for 1 Film Developing Sale
12/15 exp. Save $1.00
24 exp. Save $2.00
36 exp. Save $3.00
Pro Print - 2each 4 X 6 glossy • C-41 negatives only SALE ENDS 2/28
the CameraShops
CT: CROMWELL • FAIRFIELD • HARTFORD • NEW BRITAIN • NEW HAVEN • NEWTOWN • SIMSBURY • STAMFORD • VERNON • WATERBURY • WETHERSFIELD • WINDSOR
MA: AMHERST • NORTHAMPTON • SPRINGFIELD

UPC presents: BIMSKALABIM BOP (harvey) HI HATS
SKA-FEST
friday feb.8 7pm! in The bluewall
TIX: $6 students [umass] $8 others available at tix unlimited • faces • main st. jo's

UMass seniors urged to attend job fair

By TAMIR LIPTON
Collegian Staff

This country is in a recession.

This state is in a recession.

What impact will this have on graduating college seniors looking for jobs?

"A lot of cutbacks are coming at the mid-management level," said Joan Stoia, director of the Mather Career Center at the University of Massachusetts. "That's not bad news for college students.

"8.6 percent of the people in Massachusetts are unemployed," Stoia said. "That means that 91.4 percent of the people are at work. There are jobs available, but students need to be very active in their job pursuit and not get depressed."

On the average, graduate students are earning $24,000 their first year out of school, Stoia said.

The annual Career Fair will be held on February 13 at UMass. Up to 70 employers will be in the Campus Center Auditorium taking resumes and talking to students about possible positions when they graduate, Stoia said.

"We expect that everyone will be hiring," Stoia said. "Technically, we are not allowed to let them come if they're here just to maintain a presence."

"Every senior should go down [to the Campus Center] at some point in the day and talk to as many people as possible," Stoia said.

About one half of the senior class is registered with Mather Career Center, she said. "Some students will be going on to graduate school and our resources will not help them as much as those looking for jobs after graduation," she said. "However, I encourage everyone to come down and give us a chance to help them."

The Career Center is using Connexion, a new recruitment service developed by Peterson's, an education and career information company, as a means to help students find jobs, graduate schools, summer jobs, or internships.

Through Connexion students create and control their own personal file, which can be searched by employers and graduate school officials who are looking for people with specific skills and aptitudes.

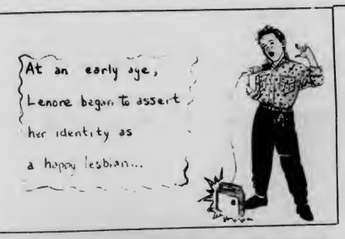
Because of the recession and the tightening job market, it has become harder for college graduates who are not at the top of their class to get jobs, according to a career counselor at UMass.

"In the past, when a major company such as General Electric would recruit at the University, they would talk to 75 or 80 students," Stoia said. "Now, they only want to talk to the top 10 or 15."

Judith Palmer, associate director for employer relations with the career development office at Smith College told the Springfield Union News, "53 recruiters so far have or will visit the campus this year, compared to 85 employers who came last year."

Collegian photo by Aaron Webster

CALL HIM EVIL — A local skateboarding enthusiast flies over a garbage can Sunday, taking advantage of the weekend's warm weather.



PARAMOUNT
HALL & OATES
AT THE SPRINGFIELD PARAMOUNT
FEBRUARY 16th
Corona Extra CONCERT SERIES
THE REPLACEMENTS
WITH SPECIAL GUEST THEY EAT THEIR OWN
AT THE SPRINGFIELD PARAMOUNT
FEBRUARY 21st
CLANCY BROTHERS
WITH SPECIAL GUEST THE FABULOUS FARQUAHR
AT THE SPRINGFIELD PARAMOUNT
MARCH 9th
LOUIE ANDERSON
WITH SPECIAL GUEST RITA RUDNER
AT THE SPRINGFIELD PARAMOUNT
MARCH 16th
Tickets available at the Paramount Box Office
All TICKETRON Outlets. TICKETRON CHARGE 1-800-382-8080

The Quill on Green Street's
GREEN DOT SALE
Any Book with a Green Dot gets you 50% Off the Quill's Regular Price.
50% Off Most Children's Books
Recent Best Sellers
All Travel Books
Most Hard Bound Books
MON. - FRI. 8:30AM - 5:30PM • SAT. 10:00AM - 4:00PM
VISA
QUILL BOOKSHOP
100 GREEN STREET NORTHAMPTON, MASS
MasterCard

EDITORIAL/OPINION

The opinions on this page are those of the individual writer or cartoonist and do not necessarily reflect the views of the Collegian or the University unless otherwise noted.

Concerning Violence

The University of Massachusetts at Amherst is shrouded with a reputation of political protest and civil dissent. UMass makes accomodations for dissent; it even offers courses in it. A minor protest or vigil or march is a part of daily life.

Every few years our community's conscience bursts forth in some significant way and, for a few months, mass demonstrations and civil disobedience hold our attention. These times, when protest captures the zeitgeist, have become so periodic that the University has accomodated them as well: 200 hundred university employees are poised to 'observe' arrests of building occupiers, channels are maintained to both local and state police so as to be able to handle large crowds, and the Northampton District Attorneys office has a budget line-item for UMass so as to encourage prosecution and thus discourage protest.

Jeremy P. Levinson

Indeed, the only eruption that the community is not prepared for, psychologically, politically, administratively or militarily, is Violence.

Being charged with maintaining order at such a university is an uncomfortable task during war. Being the civil community we are, dissent and discussion are encouraged. With hope of channeling energy into manageable avenues, we have been asked to "remember the community's standards of civility and free and open discourse." All opinions are equal and each of us need not agree so long as we respect each other. Such banter holds only for disagreements over ice-cream flavors and wallpaper patterns — not for a nation at war, divided against itself.

What, I wonder, would be the response if a bomb exploded on campus — perhaps in one of the labs where killing machines are made? Oh, the Humanity! would be the cry from Whitmore. The liberal anti-war movement would denounce and disown: Violence only begets violence. Surely, the whole community, in varying ways, would distance itself from the act. In unison, we would denounce it as an act of terrorism. It would be removed from the realm of the political and deposited behind tall walls, in the darker realm of the uncivil, the must-be-stopped, and the misguided.

Imagine, worse yet, that someone were killed. There would be memorial services and vigils; the debate over the war would lull for a moment of collective brow-mopping. We would lament this 'Senseless Violence."

I have yet to meet anyone who has invoked the phrase 'Sensible Violence.' And, therein lies the rub. How is it that we expect people to react civilly to a world wrought with horrors so terrible as to not have names. How is it that we discuss the Senseless Violence of war as though it were an academic issue?

War is a collaboration between the most barbaric, primitive human activity and the newest, most efficient technology. When a tank is hit with a shell, bits of metal thrash about inside while it is filled with flame and toxic fumes. The corpses of those inside are reduced to bloody lumps of meat decorated by the strangely colored burns phosphorus brings. Several days ago, the United States-led alliance announced that it had done this to 25 Iraqi tanks in a 24 hour period.

At UMass, we are supposed to use this tidbit of news as the lauch-pad for respectful, orderly discourse. Civil or not, this is not a healthy response to the madness and brutality around us.

The furor that would or will follow Violence on campus would or will be the bursting forth of our community's psychosis. How else might we reconcile that a community, trained to discuss mass slaughter in a respectful manner, becomes hysterical at even the hint of relatively small-scale violence? Within university walls, we can discuss and confer legitimacy on human carnage — so long as it stays beyond the walls. Reality is not welcome.

What makes Violence here more real than Violence elsewhere? Don't the citizens of a nation at war have a responsibility to face the destruction wrought on their behalf? Do we have a right to consider the University off-limits? Is the University of Baghdad off-limits?

There are no answers to these questions. Only more questions. Whatever political program or development one supports is rather irrelevent. The issue of support or condemnation of violence is moot. Rather, we need to ask, " what worms lurk undiscovered at the bottom of the can opened on January 16." And, why do we consider our world views so impervious to rupture. We must always remember that psychosis cannot change reality to suit its delusions.

Jeremy Levinson is a Collegian columnist

Saddam must be stopped

Since school has begun I have noticed a variety of opinions about the war in the Persian Gulf. Most of these opinions have been backed with logic as well as feeling. However, some of these opinions seem to show a lack of basic understanding. I would like to take this forum to respond with some of my own thoughts.

The argument that the United States has wronged others has been used to justify current evil in the world. People ask "Who are we to tell Iraq that it's wrong?" Yes, no question, our country has been responsible for many atrocities. Does that mean that the future generations in other parts of the world should be allowed to engage in the same dastardly brutality? Two wrongs don't make a right.

Ben Wiesen

We sold weapons to Iraq — obviously a mistake. However, we never armed them with chemical or biological weapons, and we have now succeeded in destroying any nuclear capabilities they may have developed (after the razing of their nuclear reactors by Israel).

The bombing of Baghdad has been criticized by people opposed to the war. Right or wrong, this prolonged air attack can hardly be compared to the blitzkrieg carried out by the Nazi war machine. The United States has used unprecedented care to strike only military targets. Targets such as ammunition stores and missile launchers. The blitzkrieg was designed to simply destroy cities. Go to London today, and look around at the residences. You will find that most have had to be rebuilt since they were destroyed in WWII. You will also notice that military targets were not the destinations of Nazi bombs.

This war is not only about oil. Saddam Hussein desires power. He will do anything he can to achieve it. This means that he will kill thousands of his people, bomb innocent civilians, or even destroy our environment. Hussein will stop at nothing, and this is why he needs to be stopped.

Hitler also desired power, and he would stop at nothing. Each time he entered a country the world pretended to be upset, instructed him not to do it again, and then privately rejoiced that it was not their own land. By the time the effort to stop Hitler was mobilized it was almost too late.

Saddam Hussein has taken the first step that Hitler took not so long ago. He has shown us how similar to Hitler he is by the way he and his soldiers treat Kuwaiti citizens and coalition prisoners of war. He has gone to new extremes with his use of military prisoners as 'human shields.' In fact, the only real difference between Saddam Hussein and Hitler at his early stages is that Saddam has relatively more power than Hitler did.

Today's madman will be stopped. We are not going to wait for him to gain a firm foothold. We are not going to wait until it is too late. The Arab countries, as has been asserted, may have been successful in getting Saddam out, but much more likely they would not have. This time we will not leave it to someone else to stop the evil in this world. To do so would make us similar to the onlooker who does nothing as an innocent victim is mugged or raped. Ignoring the threat posed by Hussein would be setting the stage for him to do the same thing again.

Ben Wiesen is a UMass student

Towards a litter-free dorm

I sat in my R.A. meeting two days ago, listening to complaints about solicitors in the residence halls. People who stuff pizza coupons under our doors, walls and windows, or otherwise pester the residents.

These people do not mean to annoy, they need to make a living or pay for college. The students who are selling their own products have shown great talent and initiative. Students conducting fund-raisers for their charity or organization have volunteered their precious time to help generate revenue for a (usually) excellent cause. Students who are hired by Avanti's or D.P. Dough need the job to pay for school.

Mark B. Adler

These people and their reasons for soliciting I do not criticize. It's their intrusion in the dorms that really bugs us. Many people have put signs on their doors requesting that they not be disturbed by solicitors and that "no trees be wasted" by the continual bombardment of delivery coupons. And yet, the onslaught continues unabated.

This week Field House Council passed a resolution barring coupon-stuffers from intruding in the dorm. The various local businesses who supply the offending coupons will be contacted and asked not to have people roaming the halls and polluting our space.

Instead of depriving them of potential business and depriving us of the necessary coupons, the businesses will be permitted to leave a small stack of coupons by the main door to the building. Hopefully, this will not affect their business, their employee's employment and the dorm residents' bargains. Maybe we can save the companies some money on the printing because only the people who would have used the coupons anyway will use these; and with time the number of coupons printed will be decreased and there will be less waste.

Besides the paper brigade, the R.A.'s have to deal with people going door-to-door selling everything from T-shirts and perfume to raffle tickets and credit cards. Let these solicitors beware! There is a very strict policy prohibiting door-to-door solicitation. Such vendors will not be let past the security receptionists; if they are found upstairs, they will be stopped by the residence hall staff and escorted out of the building. If they have a legitimate sale (and a few don't) they may apply to sell on the Campus Center Concourse.

During out staff meeting we also discussed removing the promotional posters and packets illegally stapled or taped to walls in the dorms.

Immediately after our staff meeting adjourned, an R.A. went upstairs and confronted two men selling T-shirts. They were very aggressive, unhelpful and unpleasant. They were escorted directly out of the building. On his way back to the cluster office to report the annoyance, he had to deal with three fraternity brothers who were posting "rush week" posters and distributing pamphlets. They were also informed of the solicitation policy. While two of them were polite, honest and agreeable, the third was uncivil, abrasive and not inclined to deal with house rules. They, too, were asked to leave. The R.A. ended his evening by telling the staff what had happened. When I returned to my floor, my neighbors, Steve and Steve, complained to me about the T-shirt vendors. I hope that in the future, such annoyances will be eliminated.

Have a nice day.

Mark B. Adler is a Collegian Columnist.

Why the University took away students' right to sue

It's nice to see the Legal Services Center back in the news. Of course this is an issue that has been dragged out for so long that there are very few students here that remember how the whole thing started in the first place.

You see, we used to have a Legal Services Center that was completely controlled by students, and paid for with student money. The attorneys that worked there advised students of their legal rights, defended them in court, and occasionally sued landlords, auto mechanics, and the University on their behalf. And they did all of this for free.

Then one night in 1984, a student named Yvette Henry was arrested and charged with arson. The administration and the Campus police believed that she was responsible for the sixty or so small fires that had been set in dormitories on campus over a four month period.

Ted Chambers

The arson case had received national and international media coverage, and was a major crisis for the administration. Concerned for their safety, many students began moving off campus mid-semester, and concerned parents were calling by the thousands demanding that the arsonist be apprehended.

After months of coming up empty-handed, the campus police asked the FBI to assist in their investigation. Using the evidence that the local authorities had gathered, mainly the notes that had been left at some of the fires, a team of investigators at the lab in Quantico, Virginia came up with a profile of the suspect. They said that the arsonist MIGHT BE a black woman, a Resident Assistant, and either a bio or chem major. They emphasized the words 'might be' because profiles are only as good as the information that you have, and if the information is incomplete, you could be setting yourself up.

But here is the really crazy part. Because they believed that the arsonist wanted to be caught, the FBI team predicted that she was going to do something rash. They said that she would throw a party for her friends, poison the punch, and then blow up the building.

Coincidently enough the night that Yvette was arrested there was supposed to be a floor party in the lounge on Yvette's floor. Back in those days it was not only expected that the R.A.s partake in the festivities, they were usually assigned the task of buying the alcohol and keeping it in their rooms until the party started.

Oh, how times have changed.

Anyway, the police arrested Yvette and then searched her room to look for the bomb that the FBI said would be there, and their case began to immediately unravel when they came up empty handed. They took her to the campus police station where she was interogated for nearly four hours, without a lawyer present. The University immediately fired her from her R.A. position, kicked her out of housing, and expelled her from school. She had not even been arraigned, never mind convicted, but that didn't matter much to the key stone cops from the Dean of Student's Office.

Eventually the charges against Yvette were dropped, when a hand writing analysis proved that she didn't write the notes, and a janitor confessed to setting the fires. With the help of the Legal Services Center, she sued the University and settled out of court for an estimated 2.5 million dollars. Imagine what a jury would have given her.

In a fit of vengeance the University retaliated by taking away LSC's powers to litigate, and for nearly five years the students have had to suffer because of the administration and the campus police could not tell the difference between the words 'might be' and 'absolutely.'

Finally after years of foot dragging, the Board of Trustees is supposed to approve a proposal that will allow LSC to litigate on behalf of the students. Of course there are a few strings attached. LSC will not be allowed to sue the University, the Commonwealth or any of its municipalities, and it can only resort to litigation after a long and arduous mediation process.

This is just one more example of the administration using the undergraduates. Throughout the budget crisis the undergraduates have worked hard to protect this University and save the jobs of faculty staff, and administrators. In return they get bullshit games, tuition, and fee increases.

But, thank God, we have the University administration and the Board of Trustees looking out for our best interests. I don't know what we'd do without them.

Ted Chambers is UMass student

The attitude and strategy of security

For some time last semester, and even before, there was talk that a new alarm system would be implemented to increase dorm security. When put in place, this system would have all doors, except the dorm's main entrance, locked at all times, and would trigger an audible signal when opened, to alert residents that someone was entering through a side or back door.

Over intercession, this grand scheme was finally activated across the campus. Most people have now become familiar with the annoying sound of a peripheral door that has been opened. Unfortunately, I don't feel safer at all because the system has a gaping loophole: From eight in the morning to until eight at night, the front door is unlocked. This is like fortifying the northern, eastern and western borders of one's nation, thinking that one's enemy is too stupid to attack from the south because it seems too obvious.

One of the problems with campus security is that the rapists and thieves among us are not shady characters, dressed in black leather trenchcoats, suspiciously roaming the residential areas, waiting for night to fall. Our would-be assailants will be wearing jeans and UMass T-shirts and carrying backpacks, just like we do. And, when they walk through the front door of a dorm at three in the afternoon, they are going to look like everyone else who just got out of class. Think about it: Would you buy an alarm system for your home, turn it on and leave the front door unlocked while you went to work and your kids to school?

There's another problem with campus security: the police. It's not the police themselves; they're pretty reasonable, helpful people. It's that they're misplaced. I don't subscribe to the theory that the university has too few police. If you haven't been down to the Textbook Annex to buy your books yet, when you get over there, count how many police are behind the cash registers and don't forget to notice the police car that is always parked just outside. Maybe this should tell us what the university values most. I know one thing: anybody that I've known who worked security has told me that there are fewer police at night than there are in the Annex during the day.

We can't be careless and we can't be complacent. Just because there aren't enough police around now doesn't mean that that has to stay for next semester, and the same is true for the front door being locked or unlocked. We have to let the university know that we want to feel safe here, especially since at least nine out of 12 months are spent in this, our home away from home. And in the meantime, we have to lock our doors and windows, not walk back to our room alone at night, and go through the extra bother of having our friends go to the front door and signing them in than just listening to that awful screech for two minutes.

Steven Schwankert
Central

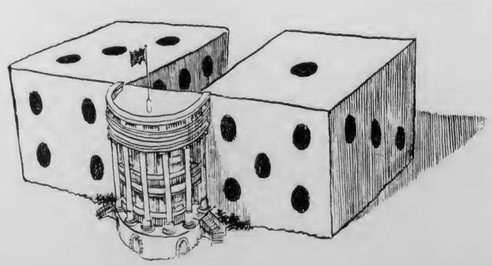
Towards a more perfect union: The slow death of the SGA

The Student Government Association has been the laughing stock of the campus for too long. While tuition and fees soar, ethnic and social groups are activily discriminated against on our campus, and the University is systematically destroyed at the hand of budged cuts, the members of the Student Government debate whether or not to say the Pledge of Allegiance before each meeting, vote to boycott grapes in solidarity with the migrant farm workers, and recommend that Amherst revoke its status as a nuclear free zone. The Student Government Association has become little more than a debate club, leaving the serious concerns of students unanswered.

Theoretically, student government should exist to serve the needs of the student body. Unfortunately, our student government only serves itself. This is not because the individuals involved in student government are bad people, they're not.

Dan Chesnicka

The shortcomings of the Student Government are a result of an inherently flawed structure. As presently structured, the student government does not take into account the decision making processes that exist on this campus. Virtually all decisions make on this campus are made through an administrative hierarchy. Instead of building a structure, the SGA exists only within itself. As we exist in such a vacuum, the legislation and polices we insititute are only binding on ourselves. As a result, we focus on managing ourselves and the needs of the student body are foregone.



These assertions are nothing new. Every year, for the past three years, there has been an attempt to enter into a constitutional convention to address the structural shortcomings prevelant in the SGA. Each attempt has resulted in failure. The fact is that it is impossible to expect the SGA to restructure itself and create an effective organization while we are still bound by the very structure that makes us uneffective. As the elected leaders of the student body, it is our to take issue with the flawed structured of the student government and transform this organization into one that can adequately serve the needs of the larger student population. In order to force this change we asked for the following:

- We requested that the University Administration suspend the operation of all undergraduate student governance bodies including the Undergraduate Senate, Senate Committees, Area Governments, Student Judiciary, and the Campus Center/Student Union Board of governors until such time as structural concerns can be addressed.
- The formation of a commission charged with studying the structure of the Student Government Association and recommending changes that reflect a greater responsibility to the undergraduate community as a whole.
- Continuation of the normal operation of all Registered Student Organizations and the continuation of all programing for both residential communities and the Campus Center/Student Union by the Area Governments and the Board of Governors ProgramCouncil respectively.

Essentially, if the administration responds, this would shut down the faulty machine student government has become. All programing, however, would be preserved. Spring concerts, comedy nights, Bowl Day, the Spring Fling, Southwest Week, the Pig-out, and all House Council events will continue to go on as planned. In no way will any programing or the operation of Registered Student Organizations be curtailed. While it is our goal to form a new and effective student government, we will not do it on the backs of students.

We, the elected leaders of the student body believe such drastic measures are necessary for any reform to result. We hope all students who think the joke that student government is, is not very funny, will support us in our efforts. The bottom line is that student government in its present form does not represent the needs of undergraduates on this campus. We hope that you stand with us in building a student government that does.

Dan Chesnika is the undergraduate senate speaker and writes on behalf of the other four officers of the SGA

What is on your mind? The world is changing faster than UMass administrators — you must have something to say. The Ed/Op section is your section. It's here so you can share your thoughts with others. But, it only works if you spend the 10 or fifteen minutes to write the letter. Submissions under 50 lines are considered letters and those between 50 and 70 are considered columns. Those that far exceed 70 lines will not be considered. So, get on it. "The press shall be free when all have equal access." — V. Lenin

Weld criticized for cuts to services

"Real people" are affected, activist said

By EVE EPSTEIN
The Associated Press

BOSTON — Kate Hallen has had to rely on state subsidies to support her family. Lisa Stephani said Wednesday the current Medicaid system has helped her to keep from going blind.

Both women came to the Statehouse with others who rely on state benefits to protest budget cuts proposed by Gov. William F. Weld.

"Real people are being affected by these cuts," said Hallen, president of the Coalition for Basic Human Needs.

Hallen, who has one child, receives $446 a month through Aid to Families with Dependent Children. In the past, she has also gotten emergency assistance to pay her electric bill.

Stephani, of Brighton, relies on Medicaid so she can see her five ophthamologists to help her cope with a series of eye problems that have seriously impaired her vision.

"For the last two years, we've been blamed personally," said Stephani, pointing out that Medicaid has been pinpointed as a so-called "budget-buster."

She said proposed changes in Medicaid could threaten her ability to choose highly qualified specialists for treatment. "You just feel that you are in a perpetual state of fear," she said.

Weld's plan calls for slashing $833 million from human service programs over the next 16 months.

Hallen said the Weld proposal gives a break to the business community. Weld has called for a repeal to the sales tax on business and professional services, now set in March.

"He is truly sympathetic to the needs of big business by saying he will repeal the sales tax on business services — a fair tax that will only affect large businesses whose profits would not be adversely affected," Hallen said.

The expanded sales tax would bring $122 million to the state for the remainder of this fiscal year and $339 million for the fiscal year which begins in July.

About a dozen protestors shouted at Weld as he walked to a Statehouse celebration of Black history month. He ignored their protest, but later said his budget-cutting proposal was fair.

"We did handstands to make sure we were not balancing the budget on the backs of the people at the bottom of the scale," he said.

The cuts package is aimed at wiping out a budget deficit of $850 million for the remainder of the fiscal year.

WE'RE BRIMMING WITH LAWN FERTILIZER

THE LAUNDRY CLUB
The Most Fun You Can Have in a Laundromat!
8 am-11 pm • 7 days
★ Coin Operated Washers and Dryers
★ State of the Art Machines
★ Snack Bar
★ Big Screen T.V.
★ Pool Table and Video Games
★ Senior Citizen Discount
COUPON
$1.00 OFF any size washer
Limit 1 coupon per visit
expires: March 1, 1991
COUPON
10 percent OFF Dry Cleaning
Limit 1 coupon per visit
expires: March 1, 1991
Dry cleaning
6 University Drive—Next to Louis Foods—Amherst (413) 549-2640

ACADEMY OF MUSIC NORTHAMPTON Opera House 584-8435
NOW Ends Thursday, Feb 14th
Curtain Daily 6:30 and 9:00
Rostand's classic romantic adventure with GERARD DERPARDIEU as the "DEFINITIVE CYRANO"—N.Y. Times
"MAGNIFICENT A HUGELY ENTERTAINING SPECTACLE!" —Peter Travers, ROLLING STONE
"IT'S A REALLY ROMANTIC AND FUN MOVIE" —Gene Siskel, Ebert
"GLORIOUS" —Richard Schickel, TIME
CYRANO DE BERGERAC
A film by JEAN-PAUL RAPPENEAU
PG
AT THE GATES OF SMITH COLLEGE

FREE 1991 Student Travel Catalog!
Everything you need to know about:
•Student Travel
• Air Fares
• Rail Passes
• Car Rental/Leasing
•Work Abroad
•Study Abroad
•Int'l Student & Teacher ID
& MUCH MORE!!!
CALL for your FREE copy!
Council Travel
79 So. Pleasant St.
Amherst
413-256-1261

AEROBICS
FREE WEIGHTS
NAUTILUS
CARDIOVASCULAR FITNESS
College Student Special
$99 Membership
exp. 5/31/91
Daily Aerobics Classes
Reebok Step Classes
Olympic Free Weights
Stairmasters • Lifecycles
Special Rates
Walk-ins Welcome
Tanning • Massage • Saunas
Day Care • Open 7 Days
NORTHAMPTON NAUTILUS & ATHLETIC CLUB
216 N. King Street
Northampton - 584-4975

Scott's LIQUORS
OPEN MON-SAT 8 AM-11 PM
Tel: 549-2692
Great Selection, Low Prices... Shop Scotts!
Rolling Rock Reg & Light 12 12 oz. bottles $7.99 + dep.
Smirnoff Vodka 750 ml $7.49
Ballatine Beer 24 12 oz cans $8.99 + dep.
Bacardi Rum 750 ml $7.99
O'Keefe Canadian Beer 12 12 oz bottles $7.39 + dep.
Jack Daniels 750 ml $10.99
WE WANT TO BE YOUR FAVORITE LIQUOR STORE!
Plenty of Free Parking•Diagonally Across from UMass Stadium
•Next to The Laundry Club
6 University Drive
at Newmarket Center, Amherst
Tele-check for your personal check
Scott's Gift Certificates
Mass lottery Season tickets
MEGABUCKS We Have It
We now have all Mass Lottery games!
Not responsible for Typographical Errors

BLACK AFFAIRS

Remember Black history throughout the year

Each year about this time we take the time to reflect upon the accomplishments of those who have gone before us.

Once again the heartfelt cry of battered slaves haunts us.

Once again we feel the pain of a child whose father has been taken away from them because he looked at a white woman the wrong way.

And yes, once again, after reflecting on all that our ancestors have done for us, we become disgusted and upset because things have not changed all that much. Many are reminders brought to us by the arrival of February 1, or the beginning of Black History Month.

Susan Chapman

Sometimes we become caught up in the our everyday activities and forget. But no matter how much work we have, we must remember that Black history should be celebrated three-hundred-sixty-five days a year, not just one month or a few days here and there.

African-Americans have brought significant contributions to American society since it's inception.

There is much to be proud of and much to celebrate. This celebration requires allegiance and responsibility that goes beyond a one month celebration. When speakers and performers are brought to campus and surrounding areas, we (all people) should all make an effort to attend.

This attendance means a lot of things. It encourages diversity. A diversity that is created because people not only take an active interest in themselves. but. in someone who is not of the same cultural background that they are.

Diversity is a very key issue for survival because we can not possibly expect to exist in a world with people that we have no clue of understanding.

Once again we feel the pain of a child whose father has been taken away from them because he looked at a white woman the wrong way.

By attending cultural events like Black History Month activities we are able to learn more about ourselves and teach someone who does not know about us important vital information for their own survival. Also, within your celebration of African-American heritage you learn. There is no end to the amount of information available to learn, it is yours for the taking.

Knowledge is power and the more you know the better equipped you will be to deal with the problems you might face. There is no mistaking that racism, prejudice, and discrimination still exist in today's society. And no, it is not a subject that has been retired or that has died out.

As long as these problems exist, we must deal with them.

Since we all remain on the battlefront, is it not not logical to know exactly what it is you will be fighting?

With these seeds of knowledge, remember always. Remember always that the past does matter. Remember the heartfelt cry of battered slaves, remember the pain of a fatherless child, and remember the pain that racism and discrimination brings us, and most of all, remember that it is your responsibility to do something about it. The tools have been given, now they must be used for a constructive effort to make the world a better place.

Susan Chapman is a UMass graduate student

Who are these people?

By SONDRA SUTTON
Collegian Staff

Every year in the month of Febuary we celebrate Black History Month. Tons and tons of magazines and posters are filled with pictures of Dr. Martin Luther King Jr., Harriet Tubman, etc.

However, even though these famous African Americans played an essential role in our cherished history, there are some other "not so famous" African Americans who have also contributed to this history as well.

The photographs which appear on the page are some of those "not so famous" African Americans. Maybe you know who some of them are, but do you know who they all are, and what they are famous for? If so bring your answers down to 113 Campus Center.

Those who have the correct answers will have their names and a photograph on the next Black Affairs page. GOOD LUCK!

A 'Gentle' message

By SUSAN CHAPMAN
Collegian Correspondent

"Putting Women in Their Place...Beside Their Men," a one-man romantic comedy produced, written and performed by "Gentle " George Folkes, was a humorous but serious look at the complexities that exist in Black male/female relationships.

The show, a Black History Month program, was presented on Monday night to an audience of about 100 people in the Bowker Auditorium.

Although the performance showed a slight bias toward the women who attended, the crowd seemed pleased with Folkes' funny approach to many situations to which most of the crowd had been previously exposed to some time in their lives.

Folkes, a filmmaker, humorist, and graduate of Morehouse College in Atlanta, based his performance on very real situations that basically everyone in the audience could relate to. His responsive style included audience participation which asked the women to respond with "Hello" and the men to respond with "Yo-Yo."

Along with much laughter, the night was capped with many "Hello's," and "Yo-Yo's." "Gentle" George ended his performance on a serious note by emphasizing the need for students to take an active role in the community to help society and in particular African-American boys and men. The show was followed by a brief question and answer period.

"Gentle" George Folkes brought an important message to the University of Massachusetts community as well as continuing the celebration of Black History Month 1991.

The show will go on to tour many other colleges and universities throughout the United States. The show will also be a part of the Black Expo.

'Hello' from Sondra

"Hello," I would like to introduce myself. My name is Sondra Sutton, and I have been elected as the new editor of the Black Affairs page.

I also would like to take this opportunity to encourage anyone who would like to write for the Black Affairs page to do so.

The page was created in the interest of the African-American community here at the University of Massachusetts. This is our network of relaying news as well as opinions in our community. Therefore I strongly urge you to take advantage of the opportunity to write for Black Affairs.

In conclusion, I would like to thank Dawn Pierce, the former editor of the Black Affairs page, for her work as well as the encouragement she has given to me.

SONDRA SUTTON

South African Archbishop Desmond M. Tutu has changed his schedule and will not speak at the University on February 14.

AP photos

Photo 1

Photo 2

Photo 3

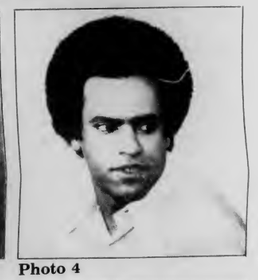

Photo 4

Photo 5

Photo 6

Photo 7

Photo 8

THE MAIL KEEPS MOVING — Airmen at McGuire AFB, N.J. load a "K" loader with pallets of mail addressed to the troops in Saudi Arabia Tuesday.

Residents warned of scams

BOSTON (AP) — Massachusetts Attorney General Scott Harshbarger warned residents yesterday to beware of Persian Gulf War-related fundraising scams.

"There are many worthwhile and legitimate charities. Unfortunately, the war also provides fertile ground for unscrupulous individuals to profit financially by exploiting those who wish to express their patriotism and support for our troops," Harshbarger said.

"Our goal is to educate people about potential problems, prevent exploitation before it occurs and ensure that legitimate fund raisers comply with the law."

Harshbarger said the office has received an increasing number of inquiries and complaints in recent days regarding war-related fund raising.

He urged people considering contributing to charities to be cautious and take the time to be sure they are dealing with a legitimate group.

Harshbarger said residents should look for look-alike charities and for-profit organizations that sound like non-profit organizations.

He also said to ask the organization exactly how the money will support the troops in the Middle East and not to pay with cash or give out a credit card number unless the organization is clearly known as reputable.

Also, Boston Mayor Ray Flynn called on the U.S. Conference of Mayors yesterday to fight a Bush administration plan to shift $15 billion in federal aid from cities to state governments.

"It is time for the mayors of this country to stand up and speak out against President Bush's 'New Federalism' proposal, which means 'No Federalism' for America's cities," Flynn, who is president of the conference, said.

WINNERS' ATHLETIC CLUB

Join Now and Get 1 Month Free

4 months for the price of 3

$130

Includes...
• Nautilus Machines • Lifecycles • Stairmasters • Ski conditioning • Club Cafe
• Aerobics • Liferowers • Saunas • Big Screen Satelite TV • Pro Shop

EXTRA VACATION BONUS
Become a member and recive a FREE vacation voucher.
Stay a week in your own condominium (sleeps 4) anywhere you choose for only $295 per week!

Perfect for Spring Break

Call 549-4545

Rte. 116, Sunderland (Opposite Bub's BBQ, on Bus Route)
Open 7 Days • 7:00 a.m.-11:00 p.m.

CALL TODAY FOR A FREE TOUR!

Auditions for the UMASS Theatre Guild's Production of

INTO THE WOODS

February 8 in the S.U.B. 6 pm
February 9 in 163 Campus Center 1 & 6 pm

Callbacks February 10 1 pm
Open Call; Come to one set

More information at our general membership meeting February 6, 168 Campus Center at 7 pm.

Preliminary Announcement
Undergraduate Commencement
Bachelor's Degree Candidates

Congratulations to the graduating seniors. Here's an announcement you've been waiting for!

The Commencement ceremony for Bachelor's Degree candidates will be on Sunday, May 26, 1991, 10:30am, at the Warren P. McGuirk Alumni Stadium, rain or shine.

Undergraduates who will complete their degree requirements in February 1991, and those who anticipate completing them by May or September, 1991 are eligible to participate in the ceremony.

If you are unsure of your academic status or have questions in this regard, please contact a member of the "Senior Staff", Records Office, 207 Whitmore.

Further details will be provided in a brochure to be mailed in March which will include, among other things, information about:

Caps, gowns, tassels, and invitations
Disability services
Parking and shuttle services
Routes to campus
Seating for graduates
Seating for guests (tickets are not required)
Where to assemble on Commencement Day (there is no rehearsal beforehand)

Inasmuch as there are three area college Commencements occurring on May 26, reservations for hotel/motel and restaurant reservations should be made forthwith.

Student Affairs Special Services
236 Whitmore

DIVISION OF CONTINUING EDUCATION

Think Spring!

A perfect time for renewal and new beginnings.

University of Massachusetts at Amherst

Spring 1991

Renew your life goals, your career, or your personal life. Over 200 fresh credit courses and Adventures in Lifelong Learning workshops are being hatched at UMass this spring.

Late register through February 11.

Classes start January 29.

For more information, contact the Division of Continuing Education, Goodell Building, or call 545-2414.

DIVISION OF CONTINUING EDUCATION

Republicans adjusting to each other

BOSTON (AP) — Now that the Republican Party has gained 16 seats in the Senate, the challenge for Senate Minority Leader David Locke will be to hold the group together.

Already, there are some early signs below the surface that there is friction between the old and new guard, although Republican freshmen couch their concerns publicly in polite terms.

Sen. Jane Maria Swift, R-Pittsfield, has been appointed as a liaison between the freshmen senators and Locke. She said the nine new Republicans may have a different outlook than the more senior GOP senators.

"I think we have a different perspective than those who have been in here awhile," Swift said. "We were elected in a year when people were expecting great change. I think from that perspective we may have a different agenda."

With 16 members in the Senate, up from nine last year, Locke can now sustain the Republican governor's veto. And, if conservative Democrats join Republicans, he could even build a coalition to hold a majority of votes in the 40-member Senate.

But that new power depends on Locke's ability to keep the new Republicans in line on key votes. So far, in debates on Senate rules, Republicans have tended to vote together.

But Sen. Erving Wall Jr., R-Taunton, described his fellow first-time Senators as an independent bunch. "I think that they're going to vote their consciences," he said. "It may not always be in line with what the minority leader wishes."

Sen. Robert Hedlund, R-Weymouth, said there was some grumbling early on this year from freshmen because none of the new Senators were chosen for leadership posts, although they make up a majority of Senate Republicans.

"There were some rumblings early on. I guess there were some freshmen that I think were somewhat frustrated with the orientation process," he said.

Hedlund was quick to say that he disagreed with those who believe freshmen should have been chosen for leadership posts, which boost power and influence and come with a salary bonus.

"I think we're represented mostly ably by the leadership," Hedlund said. "Seniority should account for something."

COLLEGE TOURS presents
Spring Break IN CANCUN
8 DAYS 7 NIGHTS BOSTON $479

PRICE INCLUDES:
- Hotel transfers to and from the airport
- Roundtrip airfare to Cancun.
- Lodging (4 per room) in a 3 or 4 star hotel.
- Private cocktail parties — FREE!
- Exclusive COLLEGE TOURS Cancun Spring Break T-Shirt.
- Discount coupons good for complimentary drinks, and special deals at local restaurants and establishments.
- Exclusive parties at Cancun's HOTTEST night clubs.
- Best tan contests for guys and girls.
- Special mid week 3-hour 10 star party with FREE drinks and food.
- Co-ed tournaments and beach events

CONTACT:
Kathy & Jean 253-5140
Eric & Sean 549-7931
1-800-395-4896
THIS TRIP WILL SELL OUT !

ROLL UPS
SANDWICH SHOP
331 Russell St., Rt. 9, Hadley
(next to Dunkin' Donuts)
Grand Opening Specials
Over 25 sandwiches all under $3.99 such as...
• Philly Roast Beef • Wrangler
• Veggie Delight w/ avacado AND
• Tuna Hold the Line MORE!...

FREE SANDWICH coupon
Buy One Get One Free!!
(Lower priced sandwich is free)
One coupon per person per order
Not valid between 12:30-2:00 daily exp.2-28-91

OPEN 7 DAYS A WEEK
586-8255

RUSSELL'S
Discount LIQUORS Discount
18 Main St. Downtown Amherst 253-5441

Ringness Light or Dark 6/pk $3.99

Featuring Budweiser $12.99 Suitcase

Wurzburger Octoberfest or Holiday Only $4.99 6/pk While they last!!

Golden Anniversary Beer cse/cans $7.99

Captain Morgan 1 Liter $8.99

Sam Adams Double Bock It's here!!

Sutter Home White Zinfandel 750 ml $3.99

Southern Comfort 750 ml $8.49

★ Delivery Available ★ Many More In Store Specials (especially on wines) All beers plus deposits

Montgomery's Florist
Valentines Day
Thursday, February 14

a rose is a rose is a rose?

Montgomery's Florist
Finest Quality Roses available whether it's an impressive dozen or a romantic single rose— Montgomery's is the place for roses.

YOUR PHONE IS LIKE A FLOWER-SENDING CREDIT CARD!

584-3798
350 Russell St. Hadley
(Rt. 9, across from Burger King)

Wouldn't you rather be here?

From Only: $379

SPRING BREAK '91

YOUR TAKE A BREAK PARTY WEEK INCLUDES:
- DIRECT ROUND TRIP FLIGHT ON MAJOR CARRIER
- AIRPORT / HOTEL TRANSFERS
- 8 DAYS / 7 NIGHTS HOTEL ACCOMMODATIONS
- FREE WELCOME PARTY W/ RUM (BAHAMAS) OR TEQUILLA (CANCUN)
- FREE ADMISSIONS AND DISCOUNTS TO POPULAR NIGHT CLUBS
- FREE THREE HOUR PARTY CRUISE W/ UNLIMITED RUM PUNCH
- BEACH PARTIES, MUSIC AND ACTIVITIES
- OPTIONAL DAY TRIPS
- PROFESSIONAL ON SITE TOUR ESCORT
- ALL SERVICE CHARGES, GRATUITIES, AND TAXES (EXCEPT FOREIGN DEPARTURE TAXES)
- TAKE A BREAK'S EXCLUSIVE MONEY BACK GUARANTEE!!!

SPACE IS LIMITED!!! CALL NOW!!!

CANCUN • BAHAMAS • JAMAICA

Mention this ad and receive up to a $100 discount per room!

256-8266
ask for Eligio or Josh

TAKE A BREAK STUDENT TRAVEL

"Don't take a chance.....TAKE A BREAK!"

T.O.C. RESTAURANT • TUES-SAT: 5-9 PM

NEW DINNER MENU

11TH FLOOR • CAMPUS CENTER • 545-3216

APPETIZERS & MUNCHIES

French Onion Soup $2.50
Thick and rich, baked with a French crouton and Swiss cheese.

Soup du Jour $1.95
Homemade daily from the freshest vegetables and the richest stock.

Chicken Fingers $4.50
Served with our own honey and Dijon mustard dippin' sauce.

Fruit Cup $2.50
Served with your choice of sherbet or cottage cheese.

Nachos with Cheese $3.95
Crispy corn tortilla chips, melted cheese, salsa and sour cream.

Fried Popcorn Shrimp $4.25
Mini shrimp, breaded and fried to a golden brown and served with a tangy cocktail sauce.

French Garlic & Herb Cheese with Crackers $2.50

Potato Skins $4.25
Crispy, delicious potato skins with melted cheese, bacon bits and a side of sour cream.

Fried Mozzarella Sticks $3.95
Breaded fingers of cheese, deep fried and served with a marinara sauce.

Buffalo Wings $4.25
Fried to a crisp, dipped in a buttery seasoned hot sauce, and served with celery sticks and our own sauce.

Fresh Vegetable Dip $2.95
An assortment of carrots, cauliflower, celery, mushrooms, broccoli, peppers, and onions served with our special Ranch-style dip.

LIGHT SIDE

Quiche du Jour $4.50
Light, satifying and made fresh daily.

Chili $4.50
Lean ground beef, beans and spices, topped with melted cheddar cheese and served with rice.

Tostada $4.50
Taco seasoned beef and cheese, piled high in a lightly fried tortilla shell, topped with shredded lettuce, tomato, guacamole, sour cream and salsa.

STIR FRY

Crispy fresh vegetables sauteed with wine, tamari, and spices. Served with rice.

Vegetable $4.95

Beef, Chicken or Seafood $5.95

SALADS

Our salads are made from the freshest ingredients available. All are served with a mini loaf of bread and your choice of dressing: Herb Ranch, Thousand Island or French. If you'd like Chunky Bleu Cheese dressing, please add $.50.

Spinach Salad $4.95
Fresh tender spinach leaves, topped with sliced mushrooms, tomatoes, and hard boiled eggs.

Fresh Garden Salad
Small $1.50
Large $3.00

SIDE ORDERS

Garlic Bread $1.00
French Fries $1.50
Onion Rings $1.50

JUMBO BAKED POTATOES

Bacon
Broccoli
Cheddar Cheese
Marinara Sauce
French Garlic Herb Cheese
Picante Sauce
Chili
Bleu Cheese
Guacamole
Mozzarella Cheese
Mushrooms

Jumbo Baked Potato $1.95
Choose one topping from above.

Additional Toppings each $1.00
Make your own delicious combination!

SANDWICHES

All sandwiches are served with French Fries and a pickle.

Barbecue Chicken Sandwich $4.50
Broiled chicken breast, basted with barbecue sauce and served on a water roll.

Tuna Melt $4.50
A delightful variation from the usual. Toasted halves of English muffin topped with tuna salad, tomato slices and cheddar cheese.

Reuben $4.50
Sliced lean corned beef, Swiss cheese, sauerkraut and Russian dressing grilled on pumpernickel bread.

French Dip $4.50
Layers of tender roast beef served on French bread, with sauteed mushrooms and onions, au jus.

Veggie Melt $4.25
For the vegetarian. Swiss and cheddar cheese, tomatoes, alfalfa sprouts, and mushrooms, grilled on wheat bread.

DINNER ENTREES

All dinner entrees are served with a crisp garden salad, our homemade "mini" loaf of bread, and your choice of baked potato, French fries, or rice pilaf.

Baked Scrod $7.50
A favorite for many years. Boneless fish filet, baked with a seasoned bread crumb topping.

Scallops $8.95
Choose scallops baked stuffed with seasoned bread crumbs, broiled in lemon butter, or deep fried.

Chicken Kiev $7.50
The House Specialty. A boneless breast of chicken wrapped around a center of herb-seasoned butter, fried and topped with a rich poulet sauce.

Chicken Mozzarella $7.50
Breaded chicken breast stuffed with mozzarella cheese, fried and served with marinara sauce.

Chicken & Seafood Dijon $7.95
Tender chicken breast sauteed with seafood in a delicate Dijon mustard and white wine sauce.

Roast Sirloin of Beef $7.95
Choice roast sirloin at its best, served with au jus or bordelaise sauce.

Steak Mozzarella $7.95
8 oz. delmonico steak, broiled to order, topped with mozzarella cheese, diced vegetables and spices.

London Broil $6.95
Another favorite. Sliced steak with Bordelaise sauce.

Steak Teriyaki $7.95
8 oz. delmonico steak, broiled to your satisfaction, with our own special sauce, and other seasonings.

New York Sirloin $9.95
8 oz. choice sirloin steak perfectly broiled to your specification. Upon request, served with a Dijon mustard, garlic and herb sauce.

A Prime Rib Special
FRIDAY & SATURDAY

Roast Prime Ribs of Beef Au Jus

Regular Cut (½ lb.) $9.95
Heavy Cut (¾ lb.) $11.95

PASTA

Each pasta is served with the sauce of your choice, a crispy garden salad, your choice of dressing and our own garlic bread. $4.95

PASTA CHOICES	SAUCE CHOICES
• Spaghetti	• Marinara
• Rotini	• Pesto
• Spinach Fettucini	• Creamy Garlic
• Linguini	• Creamy Cheese
• Rigatoni	• Olive Oil, Vegetables & Herbs

Pasta and Sauce with Meatballs add $2.00 with Sausage add $2.00 with Chicken Cutlet add $3.00 with Veal Cutlet add $3.00 with Sauteed Seafood add $3.00

BIGGER BURGERS

All of our Bigger Burgers are lean ground beef served thick and juicy on a fresh roll with French fries and a pickle. $3.95

TOPPINGS

- Lettuce & Tomato
- Cheddar Cheese
- Mozzarella Cheese
- Guacamole
- Bacon
- Chili
- Garlic & Herb Cheese
- Swiss Cheese
- Bleu Cheese
- Picante Sauce
- Marinara Sauce
- Sauteed Mushrooms

Each additional topping add $.50

New Munchie Menu Too!

ARTS & LIVING

Gangster rappers: Mirroring the ugly realities

By DAVID MASSEY
Collegian Correspondent

A new offshoot of rap music is exploding out of the inner cities — it is called by some "gangster rap" or "hard rap" and to many observers reflects a cold, hard, raw reality that too many simply overlook and ignore. Gangster rap is often attacked for being too violent or sexually explicit, and it is rappers like NWA (Niggers with Attitudes) or The Geto Boys that receive much of the criticism.

Many argue that such groups are essentially holding up a mirror to society and telling it like it is. Others claim that such brutal, graphic lyrics mixed with heavy, repetitive, rhythmic back-beats are dramatizing, and even more so, glorifying the rampant violence so visible in today's inner cities. Gangster rappers write songs about inner-city violence, such as rape and murder, with graphic descriptions, either as fantasies or simply as chronicles of life in the ghetto.

Music critic John Pareles writes in The New York Times that gangster rap "both for what it describes and for the unquestioned attitudes the raps reveal, is often frightening — as well it should be." The NWA title cut from their 1989 hit album Straight Outta' Compton offers the listener a hard-hitting and disturbing look at Los Angeles gang warfare. The lyrics, sung by rapper Ice Cube, are juxtaposed with various sampled riffs, chords, and even the haunting whine of police sirens: "When something happens in South Central Los Angeles, nothing happens, it's just another nigger dead/... /Straight Outta' Compton, crazy motherfucker named 'Ice Cube'/from the gang called Niggers with Attitudes/when I'm called off, I gotta' sawed-off/squeeze the trigger, and bodies are hauled off."

To many listeners, songs such as this one echo scary street-life reality where drugs and guns take precedent over almost every other aspect of life, a reality that most would rather never even know about, let alone hear in a rap song.

Rick Rubin, one of the most influential rap producers in the history of this form of music, said in an interview with Rolling Stone, "All they do is talk about things that are going on. They may not be pleasant, but they are real. You can't paint a pretty picture — all you can do is hold up a mirror."

The Geto Boys are a new gangster rap group from Houston, which is a city that by the end of 1990 had close to 600 murders. They have released their first album and it is frightening — but if it were not disturbing, such gangster rappers wouldn't be telling the truth: "I sit alone in my four cornered room staring at candles/Dreamin' of people I've dismantled/I close my eyes and in the circle appears the images of sons of bitches I've murdered..." Such "prophets of rage" detail life from their own perspective — firsthand — and this makes it extremely unnerving for the listeners. This form of rap merges many different meanings in their songs, often juxtaposing political statements with chronicles of drug-dealing, violence and sexual exploits. It's playful but scary postmodernism at its best.

In an interview with Kevin Mitchell, who is a D.J. on his own rap show on WMUA and CBS College Marketing Representative, he expressed his view of this new popularity of violent, graphic rap groups: "That is how it is for a lot of Black youths on the streets, that is exactly how it is — being harassed by police officers, or having to survive selling drugs because you can't get a job. All that stuff is reality and that is basically what it is, a reflection of reality."

Mark Costello and David Foster Wallace have written Signifying Rappers: Rap and Race in the Urban Present, one of a handful of books written on rap music, a genre of Black musical expression that has existed for over ten years. They write that "hard rap affords white listeners genuine, horse's-mouth access to the life-and-death plight and mood of an American community on the genuine edge of im-/explosion."

Still others, like UMass Afro-American Studies Professor Chester Davis, view this type of rap music as sensational and commercial. Professor Davis claims that in order to sell albums, many rap groups utilize sexual aggression and violence in their lyrics, giving the listener a false impression of the communities the rappers originate from. "All these kinds of people are going for sensationalism, they are going for dramatization, they are going for shock and this does not really represent the communities they are associated with, and they (the rap groups) don't care...Too many people believe and want to believe that that in fact is what the Black community is," Davis said. Not all Black communities, of course, are like the ones described by groups like NWA and the Geto Boys; however, the violence that is graphically described by such groups does exist in many of the inner cities from New York City to Boston.

Even if the lyrics of many hard rappers are often exaggerated, and few doubt that they are, the music is an essential medium for trying to understand and maybe even mend the dilemma of urban violence. As domestic problems in the United States get shrouded by chaos in the Middle East, this jolt of reality is sorely needed.

The city of Boston, for example, had a record number of murders last year. And as NWA expressed in their album, many murders of minorities are often ignored or given minimal attention by the press. Mike Barnicle, a columnist for The Boston Globe, writing on the recent homicides Boston has endured and ignored: "Each had a life, some terrible, some tragic, some of promise and goals already achieved, yet many of the deaths — most actually — came as afterthoughts in the morning paper, scribbled in the margins on page 88."

This kind of rap music drastically communicates these frustrations that many Blacks feel and relates the present state of social conditions in many of today's forgotten ghettoes.

Listening to gangster rappers, you can feel the anger, you can feel the rage; it is terrifying but essential to listen to.

Civil Rights leader Martin Luther King Jr. once said that "to cure injustices, you must expose them before the light of human conscience," meaning that to stem the rising brutality in society, you must dramatize it.

For a nation that is slowly sinking into apathy as cities disintegrate into empty shells of humanity, for a nation that continually ignores its domestic problems in order to wage wars for murky reasons, for a nation in which drug abuse, AIDS, homelessness, and poverty are on the rise, this slap in the face that such gangster rappers offer us is long overdue. Pe-Zo, a rap D.J. for WMUA, declared that although the music of gangster rap is their translation of what is going on, the underlying truth is there.

The Valley's newest and most complete weight training facility!

$139.00 for 4 months (1 full semester)
in The Price Chopper Mall

FLEX Fitness Center
175 University Dr. Amherst • 253-FLEX

The Five College Program in Peace & World Security Studies

PAWSS

Presents:

"The New European Order and the U.S."

with:

ANDREW PIERRE

Carnegie Endowment for International Peace

Thursday, February 7th, 8:00 pm
Converse Hall, Amherst College

This event is free and open to the public. For more information call PAWSS at 549-4600, ext 519

BOSTON Celtic Tickets

Register to Win

AT

HAPCO AUTO PARTS

AMHERST
534 Main St.
256-6414

HADLEY
99 Russell St.
Rte 9
586-6464

FREE 1991
CELTIC CALENDAR

AMALIE MOTOR OIL

with a purchase of
5 qts of 10-30 or 10-40 Amalie
motor oil

Better than it has to be.®

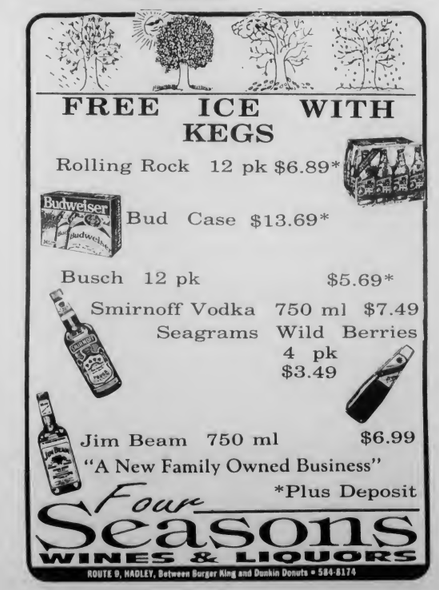
HAPCO AUTO PARTS

...where there's always a parts pro to serve you!
For all your automotive needs foreign and domestic

AP Photo

DANNY THOMAS DIES – Actor and comedian Danny Thomas (center), shown with the cast of television's Make Room For Daddy series, died early yesterday of a heart attack at his Beverly Hills home. With him from the left are: Rusty Hammer, Penny Parker, Angela Cartwright and Marjorie Lord (right).

FISHING



FREE ICE WITH KEGS
Rolling Rock 12 pk $6.89*
Budweiser
Bud Case $13.69*
Busch 12 pk $5.69*
Smirnoff Vodka 750 ml $7.49
Seagrams Wild Berries 4 pk $3.49
Jim Beam 750 ml $6.99
"A New Family Owned Business"
*Plus Deposit
Four Seasons
WINES & LIQUORS
ROUTE 9, HADLEY, Between Burger King and Dunkin Donuts • 584-8174

DOONESBURY
By GARY TRUDEAU

HEY, B.D... WHAT HAPPENED TO YOU, GUYS?
ARTILLERY SHELL LANDED RIGHT IN FRONT OF OUR HUM-VEE...
RAY'S LEG IS TORE UP PRETTY GOOD. HE PASSED OUT WHEN THEY PUT HIM ON THE CHOPPER...
AT LEAST HE'S OUT OF THE WAR. 20 MINUTES FROM NOW, HE'LL BE LOOKIN' UP INTO THE BABY BLUES OF SOME SWEET-FACED ARMY NURSE...
HE'S COM-ING TO...
PUT HIM BACK UNDER, SCALPEL!

THE FAR SIDE
By GARY LARSON

Gus! What the hell you doin'? This is "Eine Kleine Nachtmusik," third movement, minuetto allegretto, you brainless horned toad!

Cattle drive quartets

QUOTE OF THE DAY

"Our greatest glory is not in never failing, but in rising every time we fall."

— Oliver Goldsmith
(we didn't want the job anyway)

DAILY CROSSWORD PUZZLE
Edited By TRUDE MICHEL JAFFE

ACROSS
1 Part of a revue
5 Pens' mates
9 Boner
14 Languish
15 Hawaiian seaport
16 October birthstones
17 Barley beards
18 — Jay Lerner
19 Unevenly matched contest
20 Nina, Pinta, Santa Maria, e.g.
23 Attention getter
24 Buckle
25 Setting of a fictional mutiny
27 Name
30 Dries hay
33 Ancient Greek city-state
36 The Rem
38 New York river
40 Entry
41 Latvian city
42 Columbus birthplace
43 Garden creeper
44 Fingers
45 As many 46 Bugaboo
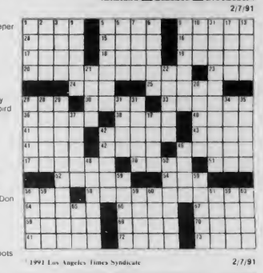
47 Scraps
49 Whenever
51 Wind up
52 He wrote Golden Boy
54 Ostrichlike bird
56 Clique
58 Subject of family jest
64 Snicker
66 Teased
67 Junket
68 Asian palm
69 Seaweed
70 Concerning
71 Author of "Don Juan"
72 Skin
73 Slender

DOWN
1 Vacation spots
2 New Zealand export
3 Road stops
4 Criteria
5 Indict
6 Some paintings
7 Rubbish!
8 Kind of boom
9 Scuttlebutt
10 Gibbon
11 Old Year's personification
12 Chimney channel
13 Notice
21 Dorm feast
22 Angel hair, for one
26 Ingenuous
27 Rushes
28 Dickens' Heep
29 Government in Orwell's 1984
31 Heartfelt
32 — Dominor
34 Morisa's companion
35 Improve
37 Mitigated
39 Presently
42 Delight
46 Lead-in for tasse
48 Lower
50 Breakfast item
53 Cinch
55 Before
56 Pink
57 Uncanny
59 Swiss cheese feature
60 Fringe
61 Isolated
62 Air
63 Sir Christopher
65 Foucault Pendulum author

ANSWER TO PREVIOUS PUZZLE

G	A	L	A	S		P	O	S	T		M	U	T	E
A	R	I	S	E		A	N	T	E		E	T	R	E
L	I	V	I	N	G	R	O	O	M		L	I	A	R
		S	T	E	T		D	I	S	T		L	I
A	B	L		A	T	T	I	C		A	L	I	M	E
R	E	A	P		S	I	M		O	M	I	T
E	T	U	I		U	M	P		P	I	N	T	I	S
T	E	N	N		P	E	A	L	E		E	R	A	T
E	L	D	E	S	T		S	A	R		A	O	N	E
		R	A	T		T	O	S		R	O	A	M
S	T	Y	L	E		F	O	Y	E	R		M	I	S
A	I	R	S	T	R	I	P		B	E	E	T
T	A	O	S		D	I	N	I	N	G	R	O	O	M
E	R	O	S		O	M	A	R		A	I	S	L	E
D	A	M	E		S	L	E	D		L	O	S	E	R

2/7/91

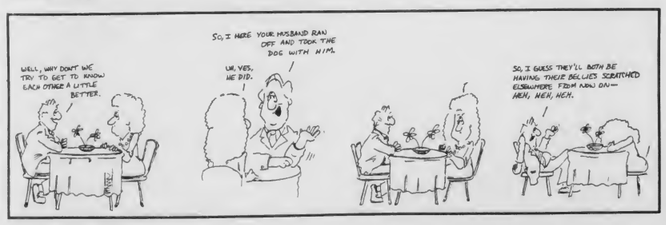


© 1991 Los Angeles Times Syndicate 2/7/91

CALVIN AND HOBBES
By BILL WATTERSON

AUGHHH! A SNOW SNAKE'S GOT ME!
HORRIBLE INNER TEETH ON ITS SEPARATELY MOVING UPPER JAW BONES ARE PULLING ME DOWN ITS FRIGID GULLET! RUN FOR YOUR LIFE!
AT LEAST I HAVE A LIFE...UNLIKE SOME WEIRDOS I KNOW.
I SUPPOSE IF I HAD TWO X CHROMOSOMES, I'D FEEL HOSTILE TOO.

FROTTER
By GARRY PORTER



WELL, WHY DON'T WE TRY TO GET TO KNOW EACH OTHER A LITTLE BETTER.
SO, I HERE YOUR HUSBAND RAN OFF AND TOOK THE DOG WITH HIM.
UH, YES, HE DID.
SO, I GUESS THEY'LL BOTH BE HAVING THEIR BELLIES SCRATCHED ELSEWHERE FROM NOW ON— HEH, HEH, HEH.

SNOOKY LANSON
By E. VEZINA & SHAUGHNESSY

SO, ROOMMATE — WHAT'S YOUR NAME?
FERLIN HUSKY. NOW GET LOST, I'M WATCHING T.V.
COMING UP: HEAVY METAL
WATCH ME TRICK FRED OUT OF HIS FRUITY PEBBLES
WELL, FERLIN DON'T MIND IF I CHANGE THE CHANNEL.
CLICK
KER-POW
I GUESS "RHODA" IS OUT OF THE QUESTION.
BINGO

TANGELO PIE
By TIM SNIFFEN

beep beep beep
Uh, I think... hmmm see, it was 4:00 a little while ago, so it's definitely after 4...
Hello, do you have the time?
Hold on one sec. HEY, MA! YA KNOW WHAT TIME IT IS? HUH? No, Ma's in the bathroom. The clock here says 6:45 A.M., but there's no batteries in it... MA, IS THERE A WATCH AROUND?
Ok, I found a watch... oh, wait, it's one of those weird ones with no numbers...
I didn't remember Dial-the-Time as being this casual.

MENU

LUNCH
Chicken Burrito
Roast Pork

DINNER
Tri-County Fair Sandwich
Meatloaf

BASICS LUNCH
Garden Sandwich
Cheese Nut Loaf

BASICS DINNER
Chicken Burrito
Cauliflower Casserole

YOUR DAILY HOROSCOPE
By JEANE DIXON

ARIES (March 21-April 19): Do your work without fanfare – someone influential is assessing your performance. Real estate transactions are worth a closer look. Write letters and return phone calls promptly.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20): Do not let outside influences permeate the office environment. Keep your mind on your work. A confidential talk will lead to greater financial security. A close relationship intensifies.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20): A reconciliation may be difficult now, but it will help you right a delicate situation. An older person asks important questions. Answer honestly. The truth hurts less than evasions.

CANCER (June 21-July 22): Employment affairs are on a more productive course. Take advantage of a friend's offer to help out in a family emergency. A new acquaintance adds glamour to your social life. Limit spending.

LEO (July 23-Aug.22): A career or business proposition will be handed to you on a silver platter. An older person calls on you to play the role of peacemaker. Give your loved ones more of your time.

VIRGO (Aug.23-Sept.22): A meddlesome older person could complicate your morning. Afternoon brings welcome relief! A practical financial approach will win the backing of influential people. Romance is unpredictable.

LIBRA (Sept.23-Oct.22): Your concerns about a neighbor or child are exaggerated. Your health and work habits could be directly related. Resolve a career problem and you will feel like a new person.

SCORPIO (Oct.23-Nov.21): A friend plays a more active role in your life now. Travel can be both invigorating and profitable if you plan carefully. Your closest relationships are a source of real contentment this week.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov.22-Dec.21): Make your home more comfortable and you will want to spend more time there. A new emotional involvement looks very promising. Stick to a healthy diet.

CAPRICORN (Dec.22-Jan.19): Look inward and decide what you really want. Even if you make a few mistakes, your star will continue to rise! A newcomer could be a breath of fresh air. Be open-minded.

AQUARIUS (Jan.20-Feb.18): New experiences give you fresh inspiration. Your affectionate nature endears you to your family and friends. Loosening your grip on the purse strings will help you save a crumbling relationship.

PISCES (Feb.19-March 20): Do not let today's events divert you from an important goal. Climb out of a rut by replacing bad habits with good ones. You feel more attractive when you get more exercise.

The accident left the group with a chilling sense of mortality.

I'm Not You.

AP photo

LOBSTERING – A lobsterman throws an empty trap back into the sea at sunrise off the Maine coast.

Our Annual Winter Sale
20% Off All Wool
(in stock only)
Feb 11 through Feb 23
11 Pleasant St., Northampton
Mon-Sat 10-5, Thur 'til 9

Comics & More
38 Main St
Downstairs
Northampton, MA
586-9166
OPEN:
M-W 2 to 7 Th-Fri 2 to 9
Sat 2 to 7

LOCAL COLORS
Arts & Crafts Gallery
Featuring Works by Local Artists & Craftspeople Exclusively
Real Prices for Real People
233. N. Pleasant St.
The Carriage Shops
Amherst
549-7373

You'd Be Crazy To Go Anywhere Else!
Rosalie, Sarah, Yvette
Tina, Casey, Paula
Aerobics Asylum
The holidays aren't over...our year end gift to you is here!
6 Months, Plus 6 Months Free!
Offer extended 'til 1/14/91
CALL NOW 586-7503 HAMP PLAZA NORTHAMPTON

You'll Find the "Sweetest" of Savings at Liquors 44!!
BEER WINE LIQUORS
Prices do not include deposit

Corona BEER $16.99 + DEP case of 24-12 oz. bottles
NARRAGANSETT case of 24-12 oz. cans $8.29 + DEP
ROLLING ROCK case of 24 12 oz. bar bottles $12.49 + DEP
PIELS DRAFT & PIELS LIGHT case of 24-12 oz cans $8.49 + DEP
BARTLES & JAYMES all 11 varos WINE COOLERS 4 pk. bottles $2.99
GALLO CLASSIC WINES 3.0L $5.99
CHABLIS, RHINE, BURGUNDY, RED ROSE, PINK CHABLIS BLUSH, FRENCH COLUMBARD, CHENIN BLANC
SUTTER HOME WHITE ZINFANDEL $3.69 750ML
DUBEOUF NOUVEAU BEAUJOLAIS $5.99 750ML
BALLATORE GRAN SPUMANTE $3.99 750ML
M.G. VALLEJO CHARDONNAY & CABERNET SAUVIGNON $3.99 750 ML
DEWAR'S White Label SCOTCH WHISKY $24.99 1.75 L
BACARDI SILVER $15.49 1.75L
Cossack VODKA $9.49 1.75 L
EARLY TIMES BOURBON $13.49 1.75L
FLEISCHMANNS PREPRIED WHISKEY $11.99 1.75L
not responsible for typographical errors
LIQUORS 44
9am to 11pm Monday thru Saturday
HADLEY Campus Plaza/Route 9 253-9344
TWO LOCATIONS
HOLYOKE 30 Lincoln St. 534-4555
SALE PRICES THURS. 2-07-91 THRU WED. 2-13-91
VISA MasterCard TeleCheck

THE NATIONAL COLLEGE NEWSPAPER

Joins with the Daily Collegian in hoping for the quick and safe return of our friends and loved ones in the Persian Gulf.

Collegian Valentine Personals

GET PERSONAL THIS VALENTINES DAY!

FEBRUARY 14th

Deadline is Tuesday
February 12th at 3:30 pm

½ PRICE OFF
ONLY 10¢ PER WORD

DAILY COLLEGIAN
113 Campus Center

COME TO THE COLLEGIAN OFFICE—CC 113 MON — THURS 8:30-3:30 ● DEADLINE 2 DAYS PRIOR TO PUBLICATION ● CASH IN ADVANCE. 20¢/WORD/DAY FOR STUDENTS

CLASSIFIEDS

ACTIVITIES

AUDITIONS FOR INTO THE WOODS Open call, come to one set Feb. 8, 5pm S.U.B. Feb. 9, 1pm and 6pm 163 Campus Center. Call Backs Feb. 10 1pm

FREE MEDITATION WORKSHOPS - Let peace begin with you... First class - Mon 2/11/91, 7:30 - 9:30 pm Campus Center-see info desk for room - Call 585-0422 for more info

SPECTRUM GENERAL MEETING Thurs 7:30 rm 805 C.C. New members welcome

ANNOUNCEMENTS

AEROBICS NAUTILUS STAIRMASTERS Lifecycles, freeweights, treadmill, gravitron, step-classes, karate. Amherst Athletic Club 256-0080

BED AND BREAKFAST- downtown ideal for visiting parents and friends- 549-0733

CARIBBEAN- $189! The warmth of the Caribbean or Mexican coast for a week. R/T Air Sunhitch + m 212-864-2000

DON'T MISS IT!! Feb. 14 SUB 10-4 Book your spring break packages and come see the Equalities.

DRUM-award winning Black Arts and Literature magazine-now accepting submissions. 115 NAH

HOUSE MUSIC Is here from the underground. John, DJ Tapes- 549-5318

FAST FUNDRAISING PROGRAM $1000 in just one week. Earn up to $1000 for your campus organization. Plus a chance at $5000 more! This program works! No investment needed. Call 1-800-932-0528 Ext. 50

MASSPIRG WILL BE holding campaign meetings today at 4 and 7 in 422B Student Union Come check us out!

SUPPORT THE U.S. WAR EFFORT! Rally, Thursday February 7, 1991. Noon Student Union steps God Bless America!

SWEETS N MORE IN FIELD HOUSE We're open 8-30-midnight Ice cream, cookies, subs etc Come visit us tonight!!!

THE NORTHEAST AMERICAN BALLET AND JAZZ ENSEMBLE WILL HOLD A DANCE AUDITION FOR NEW MEMBERS ON SATURDAY, FEBRUARY 9th, AT 3:00pm AT 25 MAIN ST. NORTHAMPTON-TOP FLOOR ABOVE FITZWILLIES CALL 584-8521

VOLUNTEERS NEEDED- Military daughter wants to interview current and former college students from military families for her graduate research study exploring the adjustment to college. Call (collect) now to schedule an interview (1)268-7584, evenings.

BIG FLING

HELP PLAN 1991 SENIOR BASH. Info meeting Feb 12, 7pm, C.C. Rm 168 or stop by our table on the concourse Feb. 6, 7, 12 Call 545-2317 for info

AUTO FOR SALE

1985 CHEVETTE good condition, great commuter car $600, Kate 549-4324 Must sell

1986 ENCORE Excellent condition $2500 253-2858

CHEN STYLE TAI CHI

COME LEARN THIS earliest form of Tai Chi which features slow/fast, soft/vigorous, emphysotic movements. Class begins Feb. 5 and 7. Call 253-4057

FOR RENT

4 BEDROOM APARTMENT, partially furnished between university and center of town. 256-0266-Jeenne Harlow

FRIDGE RENTALS CALL R + P 253-9742

ROOM IN 3 bedroom. Until 8-31-91. $160 per month. Negotiable. No deposit. No last month rent 545-0591

WINTER SPECIAL: 1 month rent 99 cents with one year lease
2 bedroom- $450
3 bedroom- $537
Sunderland. Free bus route, laundry facilities, swimming pool, garden plots, short term lease available 665-3858.

FOR SALE

AEROSMITH BACKSTAGE PASSES tour 1991, Call for details 546-2396 Reasonable prices

BROKEN MINOLTA EP350 Photocopier for sale! Approx. $200 to repair Best offer Call Jeff at 6-6630 or OHAG 5-3185

ELECTRONIC TYPEWRITER, PANASONIC with memory, changable printwheel and spell checker $125 or BO call 586-5097

GREAT VALENTINE'S DAY GIFT UMASS glow in the dark boxers Delivered with your personal note Only $10! Call 546-0424 for details

MARSHALL 50 WATT lead amp $375 Jared 258-0021

QUEEN-SIZE FUTON, extra thick with frame $150 call 586-5097

ROUNDTRIP TICKETS TO Jacksonville Only $125. each Call 6-5814

SKIS/BOOTS

Lacrosx skis with bindings-180's Lange boots and Lange heated boots Very reasonable! 549-9932

VACCUM CLEANER SHOPVAC MIGHTYMINI Excellent condition Available cheap Call 549-1809

HELP WANTED

ASSEMBLERS: EXCELLENT INCOME to assemble products from your home 508-646-1700 Dept. pt307

DREAM JOBS NOW! Spring/Summer, want a paid vacation in paradise? Hawaii, Cali, Fla, cruise ships, natl pks and more 100s of addresses and tel. no.'s guaranteed Call 1-900-226-2644 $3-min.

EARN $300 to $500 per week reading books at home. Call 1-615-473-7440 ext B281

INTELLIGENCE JOBS. All branches US Customs, DEA ect. Now hiring Call 1-805-962-8000 Ext. K-9616

NEWSPAPER DELIVERERS NEEDED in UMASS dorms. No car required. 7-8am 7 days/week Call 253-7009

$$$ OPPORTUNITY OF a lifetime $$$ Own your own business. Set your own hours. Work while in school. Interested, call 546-7469

RELIABLE BABYSITTER TO care for 1yr and 4yr old in Shutesbury. Tues 3-6 and Wed 4-8, occasional wkends. Must have reliable transportation. Call 259-1533 after 6pm $6/hr.

WANTED: TOUR GUIDES, summer counselors, student admissions representatives. Applications available at Admissions Center.

INSTRUCTION

EARN CREDIT learn to Scuba Dive. Basic Classes held Monday, Tuesday, Wednesday, and Thursday 7:00PM in Curry Hicks Pool. Open Water II class held during Spring Break in Key Largo, FLA. Advanced Class held in New England in April. For further information call 549-8401, or drop by Curry Hicks starting 2/4/91

GUITAR LESSONS with Doug Hewitt. Rock, Blues, Folk. Acoustic or Electric. Improv., Theory, Reading, Songwriting, many new songs plus singing. Studio on 3 bus lines. 549-1938

LOST

GOLD BRAIDED BRACELETT very sentimental! Reward call 546-4912

HELP ! LOST
My wallet. It's maroon/purple cloth, lost Thurs. Jan. 31, please contact Kristen 6-5609 if found!

PERSONALS

HAPPY 21st BIRTHDAY KIM BENNETT!!! We hope you don't "PASS OUT" too soon! Love: The Triple

INTERESTED in Christian Fellowship? The Alliance Christian Fellowship welcomes you! More info: Jim or Beth 253-7206

KARENI HAPPY ANNIVERSARY. 3 YEARS DOWN & A LIFETIME TO GO! YOU HAVE MY LOVE FOREVER XXXOOO FRANKLIN

What is the ULTIMATE HUNT? Find out in 4 days

PIZZA

COLLEGE PIZZA
SPRING SPECIAL
Small cheese $3.50
Large cheese $5.99
Small 2 way $450
Large 2 way $8.99
Must mention this ad!
549-6098 549-6073

ROOMMATE WANTED

ONE FEMALE NEEDED to share a room in townehouse apts 549-2824 $190

ROOMMATE WANTED
Need a place to live? 1 space available in downtown Amherst. Cheap rent!!! Call 253-7246

YOU! MALE ROOMMATE WANTED to share Brandywine apt.
$193.75/mo. Heat/hot water incl. Be koool 549-0181

SERVICES

LEGAL QUESTIONS? The Legal Services Center offers free legal assistance to fee-paying students. Contact us at 922 Campus Center, 545-1995

STUDY ABROAD IN AUSTRALIA information on semester, summer, 3-term graduate and internship programs. All programs run under $6000. Call Curtin University at 1-800-878-3696

SINGING VALENTINES

DELIVERED: CLASSES, DORMS, FRATS
INEXPENSIVE
PROFESSIONAL
546-2263

SPECIAL ANNOUNCEMENT

ATTENTION UMASS STUDENTS
Explore self and personal issues through psychodrama in a safe confidential setting. Group meets Tuesdays 7-8:30PM starting 2/12/91 for 10 weeks. No fee. Register-Call Mark locally at 665-3678

ESTABLISH CREDIT

DISCOVER CARDS
No cost to apply
Call Mark at 545-4814
Leave message

SPRING BREAK

SPRING BREAK PARTY!
Travel to Jamaica, Mexico! And Panama City Fl.! Concerts! Free Parties! Club discounts! And lots more! For info call Denise 546-7156

SENIOR BASH '91

SENIORS HELP plan the biggest party at UMass. Info meeting Feb. 12, 7pm, CC rm 168 or stop by the table on the concourse Feb. 8, 7, 12. Call 545-2317 for info. Great resume material.

TRAVEL

CAN'T AFFORD SPRING BREAK? GUARANTEED GREAT PRICES with top collegiate company! Space available to Jamaica, Cancun, Acapulco and Panama City Beach, Florida (the "new Daytona Beach")! MC/VISA ARE ACCEPTED! Call Cindy at 549-3538-please leave message!

CLUB MED
Enjoy your spring break!!
Added value with each booking
Call Rendezvous Travel 1-800-336-1002

* * * * * * *

FLORIDA'S NEWEST
HOT SPOT
Panama City-$139
* * * * * * *
World's Biggest Beech PARTY
Daytona Beach-$189
Call Erika + Julie at 546-2649
or Siobhan + Terri at 548-5079

MONTREAL WEEKENDS $89 price includes round trip motorcoach 3days 2nights Hotel suite, breakfast free admission to club metropolis
RELIABLE TOURS
365 Broadway Rt. 1
Lynnfield, MA 01940
617-598-9936

RUN FOR THE SUN WITH COLLEGE TOURS!!! Your #1 vacation spot Cancun Packages starting at $369. Call today 253-5140

SPRING BREAK TO DAYTONA!
Travel with Yankee Line Tours via deluxe motorcoach March 15-24, 1991
* *Campus pick-up & drop-off!
* *First class hotel accommodations!
* *Best location, excellent night-life!
* *Only $259.00 (quad occ.)
For more info contact Scott
(413) 256-0029
Reserve you spot before it's too late!

TYPING

WORD PROCESSING SERVICES - Will type papers, manuscripts, ect $1.50 per page. Excellent spelling and grammar guaranteed. References. Flexible hours - evenings-weekends. For information 548-9753

WANTED

WANTED: ASSISTANT BUSINESS manager and assistant finance manager! The Collegian is looking for-ambitious, responsible, organized, sophmores with good communication skills. Applications available at the Collegian and must be submitted no later than Friday, Feb. 8, 1991 The Collegian is an EOE

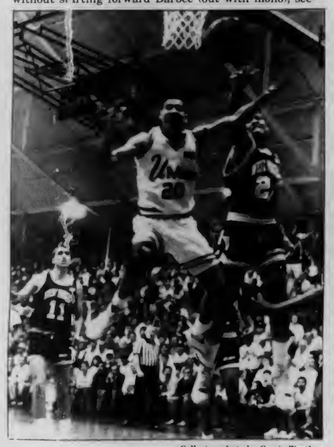
SPORTS

Minutemen wither in overtime vs. WVA, 85-82

By SAM ILVERSTEIN
Collegian Staff

In the end, they missed five free throws, two crucial three pointers and Tony Barbee.

The University of Massachusetts men's basketball team, without starting forward Barbee (out with mono), see-sawed through 12 second-half lead changes and four ties before withering in overtime, 85-82, against West Virginia in an Atlantic 10 matchup last night at the Cage.



Collegian photo by Carrie Wyeth

Charles Becton (No. 24) swats Jim McCoy from behind as Chris Leonard (No. 11) watches.

West Virginia (85)
Brooks 10-11 1-3 21, Greene 7-12 5-6 22, Boden 1-2 0-0 2, Leonard 2-7 2-2 7, Boyd 6-16 5-7 17, Pollard 4-7 0-6 14, Becton 1-7 0-0 2, Wilson 0-0 0-0 0, R. Robinson 0-0 0-0 0, Rosacap 0-0 0-0 0 Totals 31-62 19-24 85

Massachusetts (82)
Herndon 8-14 5-8 21, Tate 0-1 0-0 0, Williams 11-24 1-4 23, Giles 4-14 5-6 15, McCoy 6-17 4-7 16, Brown 2-6 2-2 7, Anderson 0-1 0-0 0, K. Robinson 0-1 0-0 0 Totals 31-78 17-27 82

Halftime West Virginia 39, Massachusetts 35. Regulation WVU 32, UMass 36. Overtime WVU 14, UMass 11. Three-Point Goals Greene (3), Leonard, Giles (2), Brown.

Tied 71-all at the end of regulation, both teams combined to hit nine consecutive free throws through the first two minutes of overtime until UMass' Harper Williams blinked, missing the back end of a one-and-one and leaving the Minutemen down 79-78 with 2:22 left.

Jim McCoy missed three of four free throws as the Mountaineers built an 83-78 lead on a Chris Brooks turnaround jumper and Charles Becton scoop.

WVA led 84-79 with :42 to play after a Mike Boyd (17 points) free throw, before the Minutemen made a last-gasp run at it.

McCoy grabbed a loose ball, hit a layup and added a free throw to cut it to 84-82. Harper Williams (23 points, career-high 17 rebounds) tipped the Mountaineer's inbounds pass to Rafer Giles, who called time out.

Giles missed a 3-pointer, however, and Brooks — who dominated inside to the tune of 21 points, hitting 10 of 11 shots — made one of two from the line with :06 left. Matt Anderson fell well short with a game-tying 3-point attempt at the buzzer, and the Mountaineers, now 12-8, 7-5 in the Atlantic 10, had their second road win of the season. The Minutemen dropped to 14-7, 7-5.

"I'm mad because we let it slip away, but I'm happy because we fought like heck at the end...This is a tough game to win without Tony Barbee," coach John Calipari said. "We lost this one at the line."

Freshman forward Pervires Greene led the Mountaineers with 22 points, and guard Mike Boyd added 17. Beside Williams, Will Herndon scored 21, including 8 of 12 UMass points during a dominant 7-minute stretch late in the game.

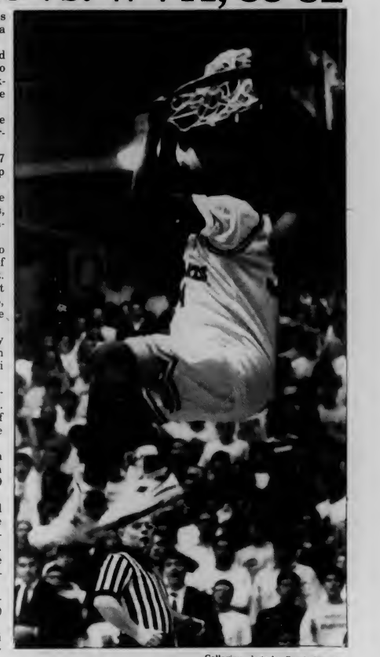
Herndon blocked Lawrence Pollard (14 points) from behind and saved the offensive board off an Anton Brown miss, leading to a Giles 3-pointer that put UMass up 71-69 with :47 left.

After Herndon was called for goaltending on a Pollard drive that knotted the score at 71 with :41 to play, the Minutemen missed a chance to end it when McCoy yanked the front end of a one-and-one with six seconds left.

Boyd grabbed the rebound and appeared headed for the game-winning basket, but his layup at the buzzer was tipped off course, forcing overtime.

Barbee is expected to travel with the Minutemen to Pittsburgh Friday for A-10 games with Duquesne (Saturday) and West Virginia (Tuesday.)

"Whether he'll play or not I don't know yet," Calipari said. "We'll find out what this team is made of now because we've got a tough little road trip and two home games (Penn State and Temple) that are going to be unbelievable."



Collegian photo by Carrie Wyeth

Will Herndon elevates for two of his 21 points during last night's 85-82 overtime loss to West Virginia.

Women's Basketball Preview

Women to host West Virginia Mountaineers

By GREG SUKIENNIK
Collegian Staff

You've seen the men's episode of West Virginia University vs. the University of Massachusetts. Get ready for the sequel.

Tonight at 7:30 in the Curry Hicks Cage, women's basketball teams from UMass and WVU will pick up where the men left off last night, in an Atlantic 10 Conference game.

Collegian file photo

The women's basketball team will be up aginst some fierce competition from West Virgina's Mountaineers tonight at 7:30 in the Cage.

The Minutewomen, 0-19 and 0-11 in the A-10, are facing the Lady Mountaineers (11-8 overall, 6-4 in the A-10) for the second time this season. In the first match-up — Jan. 12 in Morgantown, W.Va. — WVU held UMass to 16.7 percent shooting in the first half and smushed the Minutewomen, 92-35.

UMass coach Kathy Hewelt is hoping the lessons her team has learned since that game will help the Minutewomen avoid such a spectacle this time around, most notably in the turnover department.

"It's very, very important that we handle their pressure defense well," said Hewelt. "We've been doing a better job at that lately, as Saturday's effort shows [UMass only turned the ball over 25 times at Rutgers]. We're better prepared this time."

The Lady Mountaineers are led by point guard Rosemary Kosierek. The 5-foot-5 guard from Baltimore averages 20.4 points and 5.9 assists per game, shoots from three-point range at a 35 percent clip and averages 3 steals a game.

"As she goes, so goes the team," explained WVU co-coach Kittie Blakemore. Kosiorek has led the Lady Mountaineers in scoring in 11 of their 19 games, including 52 in their past two games.

"Kosiorek is difficult to contain. She does so many things for her team," said Hewelt. "She really elevates their play as a team."

However, the Lady Mountaineers are by no measure a one-woman team. Donna Abbott, a 6-foot junior forward, is currently second in team scoring with 16.1 points a game, and leads all WVU rebounders with 10.3 boards a game.

Blakemore also stressed the Lady Mountaineers' team depth.

"We like to use all 11 players," noted Blakemore, who for the past five years has shared head coaching duties with Scott Harrleson. "We've been getting good help from the bench, and that's helped with our running game a lot."

That's exactly the kind of game Hewelt would like to avoid if she can. With Keyburn McCusker and Kim Kristofik both currently suffering from flu symptoms, the Minutewomen's team depth is still at risk. Hewelt would prefer a controlled tempo game as opposed to the run-and-gun style of WVU's bench.

"The tempo of the game has to be where we're comfortable for us to be competitive," Hewelt said. "They're a very quick team."

Men's track goes to Easterns, up against URI, Maine, UNH

By KEITH BENNETT
Collegian Correspondent

The University of Massachusetts men's track team will compete in the Eastern Conference Championship Meet in New Haven, Conn., this Saturday.

UMass coach Ken O'Brien expects the battle for the top spot in the meet to be between defending Conference champion Southern Connecticut and Rhode Island, who just joined the conference this season.

The Minutemen finished third as a team last year at the Easterns and will likely be battling for third this year also. Other teams who could challenge UMass for that spot are, according to O'Brien, New Hampshire, Maine and Holy Cross.

Among the 31 athletes from UMass who have qualified to compete in the meet, two athletes will compete in more than one event. Kevin Walters will compete in both the 55-meter dash and the 200-meter run and Jeff Peterson will compete in both the shot-put and the triple-jump.

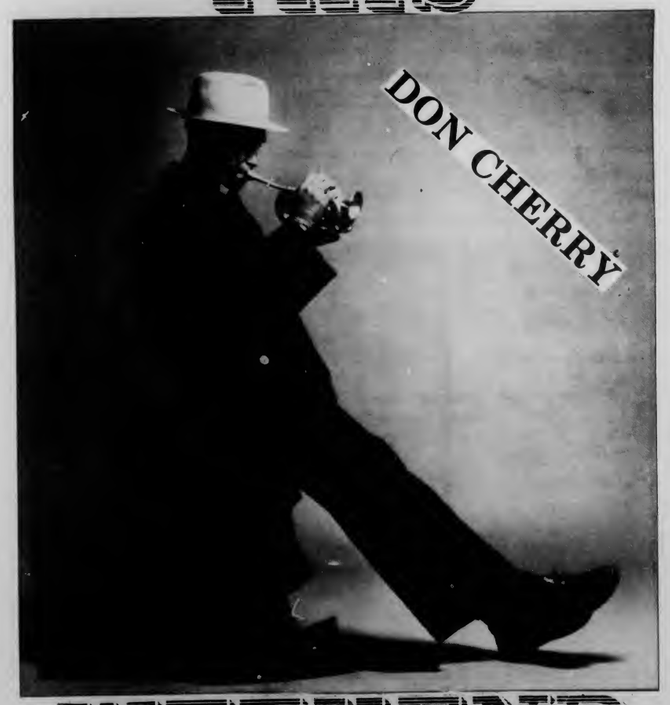
In other field events, Luke Simpson will compete in the 35-pound weight toss, Nelson Simao in the shot-put, Joe Kourafas in the high-jump, Brian Bednarek in the pole-vault, Dave Borges in the long-jump and Christian Dimatteo in the triple-jump.

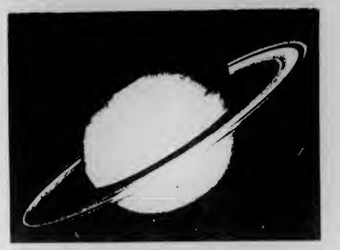
Running for UMass will be: Jeff White and Paul Doyle in the 55M hurdles, Steve Brown in the 400M, Ben Nichols in the 1,000M and Matt Simon in the 1,500M.

O'Brien considers the 3,000M to be the team's strongest event in the meet. Seniors Jon Corso and Gerry Squires and freshman John Raach will represent the team in that race.

In addition to these individuals, UMass will also send three relay teams. The Minutemen will compete in the 4 x 400M relay, the 4 x 800M relay and the distance-medley relay.

THIS WEEKEND





A fine batch of live jazz

By BILL ROSENBLATT
Collegian Staff

Get it while you can, folks. The winter months are bringing an incredible amount of top-quality jazz artists to the Valley, mainly because it's the off-season in New York and the Beautiful People are off skiing in Aspen or sunbathing in the Caribbean. So the musicians come here; great jazz shows in the coming weeks are being produced by the Iron Horse, WMUA radio and the Duke Ellington Committee of UPC. And be warned: once Spring arrives, we starve again.

The Horse continues their generous offering of jazz this weekend with two shows that would be on even the most jaded New Yorker's must-see list. They start off Saturday night with someone who visits us, not from New York, but from Saturn: Sun Ra. This is a make-up date from Dec. 30th, when Ra's earthly self was recovering from a stroke.

If you've never seen a jazz show before, go see Sun Ra and his 20-plus-piece Arkestra. Their music represents the richness of the jazz tradition from the early big-band days to the "free" sixties and beyond, and for sheer escapist entertainment value, they can't be beat.

Ra began his residence on this planet more than 75 years ago as Herman Blount. He founded his cosmic conclave in the mid-50s after learning his craft in the Fletcher Henderson Orchestra, one of the most influential big bands of all time. His own band has been going strong ever since; despite constantly changing personnel, a core group of players remain, including the incredible saxophonists Marshall Allen (alto) and John Gilmore (tenor). Several notables of the jazz avant-garde have passed through the Arkestra, making Ra himself sort of an interplanetary Art Blakey.

Sun Ra's music was always ahead of its time, and was on (often uncredited) influence on the music of the 60s; for example, John Coltrane cited Gilmore as a major influence on his advanced saxophone technique. Although the Arkestra's music started out showing the hard-bop influences of the time, they were clearly headed someplace special. By 1965, the time of the landmark Heliocentric Worlds of Sun Ra albums, it was equally clear that space was the place.

Ra has evolved a philosophical rationale for his music, a bizarre combination of sci-fi, Egyptian mythology and Black nationalism. His philosophies extend beyond the music to the very life of the band members: they all live together in a commune in Philadelphia, eat healthy food and don't drink or use drugs (this in part may account for Ra's vitality as a septuagenarian).

In recent years, Ra's music has followed the current fashion in jazz of going back to the roots. Two of his recent releases, Reflections in Blue and Blue Delight, feature classic big-band tunes from his days with Henderson — albeit with a decidedly otherworldly perspective. His latest, Purple Night, strikes a middle ground between tradition and extraterrestria.

If all this sounds hopelessly weird, don't worry. Even if you don't understand the music

CONTINUED ON PAGE 2

Phish to play some groovin' tunes at the John M. Greene Auditorium

By TIM CORLEY
Collegian Correspondent

Listen up, music lovers. There's a truly fantastic band in the area which is starting to take many parts of the country by storm. As their following continues to spread out further and further into the college scene, the rock group Phish has taken rock music to a new level of entertainment quality.

Phish has been called the best new group to hit the circuit in years. There is a lot of evidence to support this claim, and it lies within the music and how unbelievably well these guys are playing it. And they're coming this Saturday, to the John M. Greene Auditorium at Smith College in Northampton.

There are 2,000 seats, but don't underestimate this group's potential to sell out; they recently sold out 1,800 tickets in Providence, Rhode Island and 3,000 tickets for New Years Eve. Buy your tickets soon!

For those who haven't seen Phish, they are a first rate band. This is not your run-of-the-mill, new age, attitude orientated "college band." To begin with, the band takes its music very seriously as far as composition and performance are concerned. On the other hand, they indulge in each other's offbeat sense of humor, creating a certain unique appeal to the average listener, as well as tantalizing those in the audience of musical background with their strong talents and virtuosity.

The guitarist, Trey Anastasio, was a songwriting and composition major at Goddard College near Montpelier, Vermont. Keyboardist Paige McConnel has a degree in improvisational jazz and the drummer John Fishman has a similar degree for percussion. the bassist, Mike Gordon, doesn't have a degree — he is just awesome anyway.

I think the foremost and key element to Phish is the songwriting. Anastasio is one gifted composer. His combination of original music and stylistic employment of a host of assorted popular musical influences has produced dozens of brilliant songs. There is influence from Zappa, Stravinsky, Charlie Parker, Steelie Dan, AC/DC, Led Zeppelin, The Allman Brothers, as well as funk, bluegrass, latin, reggae, calypso, country and western, etc...There are even some original styles and ideas that can only be defined as pure rock-n-roll innovation. Cap this off with some quirky, if not completely bizzare lyrics and you get PHISH.

Here's a description of one of Phish's newer tunes. The song "Reba" is about a girl or a witch who whips up a bizzare batch of stuff and sells it to a butcher as some sort of weird meat (Sort of like hotdogs). The tongue-twister lyrics are

CONTINUED ON PAGE W 4

Photo courtesy Absolute A Go Go Records

Phish will play their tantalizing and mesmerizing music at John M. Greene Auditorium on Saturday. Get your tickets soon!

■ jazz

CONTINUED FROM PAGE W 1

(though "understand" has little meaning here...), you'll enjoy the wild costumes, African-influenced dancing and general carnival atmosphere at a Sun Ra show. Last time they came to the Iron Horse, they played tunes from Disney cartoons! This show will be a blast!

Immediately following Sun Ra will be the Don Cherry Quartet on Sunday evening. Although Cherry also comes from the so-called avant-garde, his intimate, evocative approach is quite the opposite of Ra's alien free-for-all. Cherry made his mark with Ornette coleman's historic quartet in the late 50s and early 60s — a group that shattered the boundaries of pitch and rhythm with such albums as The Shape of Jazz to Come and Free Jazz, and whose influence is only now being admitted to the canon of music accepted by "purists."

Since then, Cherry has spent quite a bit of time all over the world and has generally divided his musical sensibilities between Coleman-influenced jazz and multicultural "world music." He has put together various groups involving musicians from Coleman's band, such as the acclaimed Old and New Dreams and a recent quartet with tenor saxophonist James Clay. He has also participated in various "ethnic" ensembles, including Codona (with the brilliant percussionists Collin Walcott and Nana Vascoucelos) and local artists Tony Vacca and T:m Moran. His latest album, the aptly-titled Multikulti (also the name of his currentband), ties together many of his musical worlds and adds an occasional South African element.

Cherry started out as a trumpeter; his main axe is actually a "pocket trumpet," a smaller version of the standard instrument made in Pakistan. He has also acquired various indigenous instruments throughout his travels, including percussion and winds as well as the Moroccan guitar-like Doussn'gouni. In fact, his diverse involvements have led a few critics to accuse him of having little musical personality of his own (certainly no one will ever rank him among the top ten trumpet virtuosos).

However, Don Cherry's strength is in his ability to adapt to such a wide variety of situations, from Africa to Asia to Europe to America. Perhaps the most interesting thing about him is that one has no idea what to expect when going to see him play. If you see him at the Iron Horse this Sunday, expect only the unexpected.

The Sun Ra Arkestra will perform at the Iron Horse in Northampton on Saturday at 7 p.m. Tickets are $16 in advance. The Don Cherry Quartet will appear at the Iron Horse on Sunday at 7 p.m. Tickets are $12.50 in advance.

WELCOME BACK STUDENTS!

Call Today For Fast, Free Delivery:

253-3443

College Street
Amherst

Pizza Hut DELIVERY

For Dine-In Or Carryout Call:
253-9787
424 Russell Road
Hadley

WELCOME BACK TO OUR KIND OF FUN!

MIX AND MATCH!
Get One Medium Specialty Pizza
$7.99
Get A Second For Just $4.00 More
Good On Delivery, Carryout Or Dine-In
Offer Expires: February 28, 1991
Pizza Hut DELIVERY
Please mention coupon when ordering. One coupon per party per visit at participating Pizza Hut® restaurants and Delivery units. Not valid with any other offer. Limited Delivery Area.
© 1991 Pizza Hut, Inc. 1/20¢ cash redemption. 441

YOUR CHOICE!
One Large One-Topping Pizza
$6.99
Get A Second For Just $6.00 More
Good On Delivery, Carryout Or Dine-In
Offer Expires February 28, 1991
Pizza Hut DELIVERY
Please mention coupon when ordering. One coupon per party per visit at participating Pizza Hut® restaurants and Delivery units. Not valid with any other offer. Limited Delivery Area.
© 1991 Pizza Hut, Inc. 1/20¢ cash redemption. 351

Alternatives to Academics

THURSDAY

Mozart's Last Year 1791, a lecture by Henry G. Mushkin, will be given at 12:15 p.m. in Music Center 3 at Amherst College. Admission is free.

New Soviet Documentary Film Series, featuring Ivar Selekis' Popererchnaya Street, will be shown at 4 p.m. at Merrill III, Amherst College. Yurl Mamin's Sideburns will be shown at 7 p.m. in the same location. Admission is free.

The New German Cinema in Context, a film series, will present Alexander Kluge's Abschied von Gestern (Yesterday Girl) at Merrill II, Amherst College. Showings at 4 p.m. and 7:30 p.m. Admission is free.

Jewish Theatre Group is starting. First meeting will be at 7:30 p.m. in the UMass Hillel House Lounge. For info call 545-2526.

Pains of Youth, a play by Ferdinand Bruckner and directed by Marinder Saini, will be performed at Smith College Theatre 14, 8 p.m. with repeat performances Friday and Saturday. $4 general admission; $2 students/elders. For reservations: 549-3220.

Peter Panic Flying Underground based on the story of Peter Pan interwoven with the biography of Abbie Hoffman, will take place at 8 p.m., Hampden Theatre, UMass. $5; $3 students/elders. For info call: 545-2804.

Barbara Higbie, singer, keyboardist and Windham Hill recording artist, will perform at 8 p.m. in the Amherst College Campus Center Frontroom. $6; $1 w/AC ID.

Borderland will play the Hadley Pub at 9 p.m.

Orgasmo Adulto Escapes from the Zoo "Dolls, guns, desires, fantasies, anger, fear, hope, love, laughter, and sex." At the Northampton Center for the Arts at 8 p.m. with repeat performances on Friday and Saturday.

The Bobs will play at the Iron Horse. 7 p.m. and 10 p.m. Tickets are $12.50 in advance.

African Film Series, featuring Wend Kuuni (Burkina Faso), will be shown in Dwight 101 at Mount Holyoke College. 7:30 p.m. Admission is free.

Art and Artisans: A Celebration of the Margaret Mead Film Festival, a film series in four parts. First part 7:30 p.m. 227 Herter Hall, UMass.

The Real Inspector Hound, a play by Tom Stoppard and directed by Josh Goldberg, will be performed at Hampshire College, 8 p.m., with repeat performances Friday, Saturday and Sunday. Tickets are $3; $2.50 with a Five College ID. For reservations call 549-4600 ex.351.

Animation Festival will be presented by the UMass Film Society. There will be showings at 7 p.m., 9 p.m., and 11 p.m. in the Mahar Auditorium, UMass. Admission is $4.

FRIDAY

Present Company, Inc., a professional theatre touring company presenting interdisciplinary performances, will perform at the Kirby Theatre, Amherst College at 8 p.m. $4; $2 for students/elders; free with Amherst College ID. For reservations call: 542-2277.

Music at Amherst: Hermann Prey, a baritone, will interpret songs by Mozart, Schubert, and Beethoven's An die ferne Geliebte at the Amherst College Buckley Recital Hall at 8:15 p.m. $15; $13; $12; $10 students/elders. For reservations call: 542-2195

The Vestrymen, local progressive rockers, will play at the Amherst College Campus Center Frontroom at 9 p.m. Tickets are $6; $2 with an Amherst ID.

Who's Kiddin' Who will play at Pearl Street in Northampton.

Swallowtail, one of New England's premier contradance bands, will perform at the Iron Horse in Northampton at 7 p.m.

Robert Rivest Mime Theatre, a student of Marcel Marceau, will perform at the Blanchard Campus Center at Mount Holyoke College. The show is at 9 p.m. Admission is free.

The Shockers will play at Sheehan's in Northampton. Admission is $2.

The Marriage of Maria Braun will be shown at Hampshire College, 7 p.m. and 9:30 p.m. Admission is $1.

Ulrike Ottinger Film Retrospective, featuring Avant-Garde German films Enchantment of the Blue Sailors and Laokoon and Sons, will be shown at 7:30 p.m. in 231 Herter Hall, UMass. Admission is free. The films will be shown in German with no subtitles.

Ska Fest, featuring Bim Skala Bim, (bop) Harvey and the Hi-Hats, will take place at UMass in the Bluewall Cafe. Admission is $6 for UMass students and $8 for everyone else.

SATURDAY

Ulrike Ottinger Film Retrospective, featuring The Image of Dorian Gray in the Yellow Press, will show at the Pleasant Street Theatre in Northampton at 10 p.m. Admission is a $2 donation.

Cultural Continuities in the Arts, a symposium in connection with the Saar exhibit in the Smith College Museum of Art, will take place in Graham Hall at Smith College from 10 a.m. to 3:30 p.m. For info call:585-2760. Admission is free.

WMHC 40th Anniversary Party, featuring the Vestrymen and WMHC DJ, $3 at the Blanchard Campus Center, Mount Holyoke College from 10 p.m.-2 a.m.

Phish will play at Smith College in John M. Greene Auditorium.

Casinol, gambling and dancing sponsored by the Hunger Action Committee. $10 in advance; $12 at door at Amherst College Valentine Hall. 8:30 p.m.-1 a.m.

James Cotton Band with King Cod and the Blues Sharks will perform at Pearl Street in Northampton.

Baba Yaga; Sweet Lickin' Honey Babes; Scram will all play at the Hampshire Dining Commons at 9 p.m. Admission is free for 5 College Students.

Sun Ra Arkestra will play at the Iron Horse at 7 p.m. and 10 p.m. Admission is $16 in advance.

SUNDAY

Ulrike Ottinger Film Retrospective, featuring Superbia Der Stolz and Freak Orlando will be shown at the Pleasant Street Theatre in Northampton at 10 a.m. Admission is a $2 donation.

Valentine Family Concert performed by folksinger Sarah Pirtle at 3 p.m. in the Red Barn at Hampshire College. Tickets are $4 (children under 2 free). For more information call 549-4600 ext. 706.

Faculty Recital Sharon Hayes, soprano; Alex Ogle, flute; Lynn Sussman, clarinet; Greg Hayes, piano; and Jenny Kallick will perform at Amherst College Buckley Recital Hall at 3 p.m. Admission is free.

People, People, My People!, a performance by Andrea Hairston and Tony Vacca in connection with the Saar exhibit at Smith College. The performance is at 3 p.m. Admission is free.

Faculty Recital Dana Muller and Gary Stelgerwalt play piano duets by Schubert, Faure, Busoni, Ravel, and Casella at Mount Holyoke College's Pratt Auditorium from 4 p.m.-5:30 p.m.

The Don Cherry Quartet will perform jazz at the Iron Horse. Tickets are $12.50 in advance. The show starts at 7 p.m.

Fitzcarralado will be shown at Hampshire College at 8 p.m. Admission is $1.

Bill Morrissey, a New Hampshire native folksinger, will perform at the Amherst College Campus Center Frontroom at 8 p.m. Admission is $8; $1 with Amherst College ID.

Briteside/Uproar will perform at Katina's Nightclub in Hadley.

Largest College Daily in New England
THE MASSACHUSETTS Established in 1890
DAILY COLLEGIAN
113 Campus Center
OPEN HOUSE
TODAY
2-4 p.m.
113 Campus Center
All interested writers and photographers are welcome to attend.

Problem Skin?
come to
Aesthetics
For an alternative skin care treatment
Deep pore cleansing facials
Lash and brow tinting
Hair removal with wax
lip, brow, bikini, legs, etc.
34 Main St. • 253-9879

PLEASANT ST. THEATER
27 Pleasant St./Northampton, MA 01060
Theater Office: 413-586-5828

weekdays at 7 and 9:10
Friday at 6, 8, 10pm
Sat and Sun at 4, 6, 8, and 10pm
First show on Fri, Sat & Sun is $3.50 adm.

A DENNIS HOPPER FILM
THE HOT SPOT
weekdays and Friday at 6:40 and 9:10
Sat and Sun at 4, 6:40 and 9:10
First show on Sat and Sun is $3.50adm.

Phish

CONTINUED FROM PAGE 2

set to a catchy sing-along song that suddenly deteriorates into a completely improvisationally composed musical sequence which seems to represent a sort of musical picture of the "stew" Reba is making.

Then the song heads out of the complicated music jam and goes on to portray a sort of musical representation of the fine quality of Reba's creation. Anastasio has Phish launch into a beautiful solo section where all four members begin playing on an improvisational scale, at first quietly, but then eventually building into a full scale jam that is simply staggering to behold. If you want to see a large crowd of people, along with yourself, get completely psyched, amazed and moved to the point of musical bliss, the infamous Phish jams will satisfy that quest.

There are, however, some tips the newcomer should know about most Phish shows. First, remember to dress lightly. Phish almost always sells out. The places get pretty packed and 80 percent of the crowd is dancing to some of the funkiest music heard in the U.S. today. Add this to an average 3 to 4 hour show and you get some steamy temperatures.

Also be sure to watch and listen to the music and each musician individually. The skill of each band member can be a show in itself. Finally, bring some extra cash. Many newcomers wind up buying a tape of these guys right after the show. This could happen to you too!

So catch them now when they're in town. The more popular they get, the more they keep touring farther and farther away and the ticket prices are getting pretty high. Many people are starting to become aware of Phish as an important new additon to the rock circuit. But they're in their prime now. It's like being in England in 1968 with the likes of Hendrix and Led Zeppelin just hitting the scene and about to explode into the international music world. These guys are that good and should not be missed.

Phish will play at Smith College in John M. Greene Auditorium on Saturday.

Bim Skala Bim, BOP and HI-Hats offer a scrumptious ska feast at UMass

By DOUG JOHNSON
Collegian Staff

Why do we listen to music at all? Perhaps it is because of some twisted human need to feel, to move, gyrate, and spiral rhythmically with sound. To have the melodious vibrations shake our bones? I can think of no better reasons. But don't take my answer as a truthful reason. If you're asking yourself this question, then the Skafest with Bim Skala Bim, BOP (harvey), and HI-Hats should provide an answer.

Avatars of hairsplitting sonic ska-fury, Bim Skala Bim's sound is the relentless work of the band's unity. They are as tight as a hermetic jar which stores their ska-beat. When the jar is opened, the jumping-bean sound that spills out pours over the audience and permeates their bodies catalyzing an unstoppable colliding dance orgy. The drummer layers beats upon beats and "slings fills of constant invention into his breaks, and each time he hits the cymbal, the band seems to jolt." Bim's riveting bass and slick slipperyslidin' trombone sustains a driving rhythm. Ska, reggae, calypso, and rock are influences that Bim has successfully fused into a "Carribean Rock" style.

Their first album was released on their own Fonograff label, self-titled in 1986 and later released two ska-reggae compilations Mash It Up and Mashin' Up the Nation.

In 1989, Bim's second album, Tuba City, recorded on the Celluloid label, received abundant play from radio stations. Bim Skala Bim have organized and performed to benefit such deserving causes as nuclear disarmament, Africa's dwindeling rainforest, animal rights, and crisis funding for AIDS patients and the homeless.

In support of their most recent album titled Bread and Circuses, boopity-boppin' crusaders BOP(harvey) will be inciting the crowd into a ska-riot. Their lyrics are infused with a political message and backed by a citrus sweet sound that tantalyize the ska-buds.

BOP has become synonymous with the American World Beat movement. Speaking of beat, the band's horn section never misses one and BOP's guitarist weaves some nifty cords together into a patchwork string blanket. The group's lead singer "Wordsmith" whose talk-style method of singing and rich vocal presence adds to the collective good-natured feeling one is certain to experience when in sonic range of their tropical groove. The band is an eclectic mix of rock, reggae, ska, "classic white boy R&B," and American bar-quakin' zeal.

Photo courtesy Relativity Records

BOP (harvey) is just one band playing at the Skafest at UMass in the Bluewall on Friday

In 1989, BOP won Rhode Island's WBRU Rock Hunt and finanaced the production of Bread and Circuses with the prize money. Their first album entitled Nation Form Nation (1986) blared through out colleges with world flair. With an impressive past track record of logging 200 shows per year in the early days, they were able to produce two live recordings, Live at The Old Post Office (1987) and Roadkills (1988). Bread and Circuses has been an important and flavorful source of world beat music since 1989.

Also appearing will be the HI-Hats with their own brand of peppery ska. This little known band is sure to crank a danceable beat and keep the crowd hoppin' in exaggerated skaxtasy. Be certain to pay attention to the stage in the opening moments of the show for this band's notable music.

The Skafest, featuring Bim Skala Bim, BOP (harvey) and HI-Hats will take place at UMass in the Bluewall Cafe on Friday night. Admission is $6 for UMass students and $8 for the general public.

Main St RECORDS
SON OF Main St RECORDS
RECORDS • CASSETTES • COMPACT DISCS
IMPORTED, INDEPENDENT & DOMESTIC
MON—WED 9:30-6 SUN 12-5
THURS—SAT 9:30-9
213 MAIN ST. NORTHAMPTON
586-5726
COLLECTABLES • USED
MANUFACTURER'S OVER—STOCKS
MONDAY—SATURDAY 10-5:30
THURSDAYS 10-9 SUNDAY 12-5
21 STATE ST., NORTHAMPTON
586-1707

ATTENTION ALL U-MASS STUDENTS!
Explore the Self and re-enact past conflicts through PSYCHODRAMA. Share experiences in a safe, confidential setting. Group begins 2-12-91 for 10 weeks every Tuesday, 7 to 8:30pm. NO FEE REQUIRED.
Call Mark locally at 665-3678 after 6pm to register.

Pearl Street
this week..
Thur., Feb. 7 - 8:30pm WHMP 18 Dance Night with DJ Dominique
Fri. Feb. 8 - 8:30pm Reggae Funk Dance Party WHO'S KIDDIN' WHO Upstairs Dancing w DJ Job
Sat., Feb. 9 - 8:30pm Chicken Blue - JAMES COTTON BAND / King Cod & the Blue Sharks - Upstairs Dancing w DJ Job
Sun., Feb. 10 - 7:00pm HAVE A HEART BENEFIT CONCERT
next week..
Thurs., Feb. 14 - 8:30pm 18 DRIVIN' 'N' CRYIN' The Yeomen Phase Vellum Upstairs Dancing w DJ Dominique
Fri., Feb. 15 - 9:00pm Dancing w DJ Job
Sat., Feb. 16 - 8:30pm EIGHT TO THE BAR
Thurs., Feb. 21 - 8:30pm 18 CORDELIA'S DAD Sad Cafe
Tues., Feb. 26 - 8:00pm WBRU THE CONNELS
Fri., March 1 - 7:00pm WBRU LADYSMITH BLACK MAMBAZO
Thurs., March 7 - 8:30pm 18 THE TOASTERS
Mon., March 11 - 8:00pm 18 THE BUCK PETS
Mon., March 25 - 7:00 & 10:00 B.B. KING
413 584-7777
10 PEARL ST. NORTHAMPTON, MA

Largest College Daily in New England

THE MASSACHUSETTS

DAILY COLLEGIAN

Established in 1890

VOLUME C — FRIDAY, FEBRUARY 8, 1991 — ISSUE 78

Pro- and anti- war demonstrators clash at rally

By TAMIR LIPTON
Collegian Staff

The long-anticipated clash of pro- versus anti-war demonstrators at the University of Massachusetts happened yesterday on the Student Union steps.

In a rally sponsored by the Republican Club and Young Americans For Freedom, some 150 pro-war and 50 anti-war demonstrators exercised their First Amendment right of free speech.

Pro-war speakers, including students from Amherst College, monopolized the microphone while anti-war protesters stood and observed from afar, holding up signs and chanting slogans such as "no blood for oil."

Four members from the Students Against the War group at the University of Massachusetts staged a die-in, where they laid down on the wet pavement and pretended they were casualties of war.

"Democracy has spoken and you won't let it lie," said Glen Caroline, president of the Republican Club. "You fanatical liberal college students . . . are all a disgrace to this country."

"They [anti-war protesters] are absolutely not here to support the troops," said Guy Glodis, a member of the Young Americans For Freedom. "If they were supporting the troops, then they would be supporting the cause. They are the troops' biggest enemies."

Todd Cownsend, a member of UMass Students Against the War, said, "We're supporting the troops, we're not afraid of a draft. I support the troops, not the war. We choose the more peaceful solution."

Armond Blais, a member of Faculty and Staff For Peace and Justice in the Middle East, said, "I don't support the troops. I think they should come home immediately and not be killed. My main concern is for the Iraqi civilians, the Kuwaiti civilians, the Jordanians, the Israelis, the Palestinians — the people who are being carpet bombed right as we speak."

While the groups may differ in opinion, they both hope that the troops can and will return quickly and safely, according to William Hewitt, Vice Chairman of YAF and an at-large governor for the Board of Governors.

Robert Witwer, a speaker and co-president of the Republican Club at Amherst College chastised members of the anti-war coalition standing in front of Machmer Hall. Witwer said, "The freedoms that you are enjoying, free speech and free expression, are exactly what we're fighting for in that part of the Middle East."

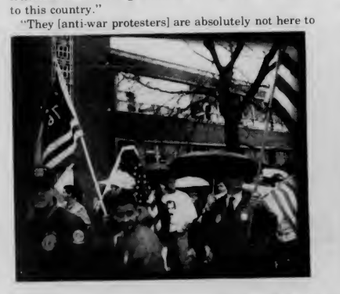
Alex Kuli, co-president of the Republican Club at Amherst College, said, "They're looking at the fact that they don't want their loved ones killed. They're looking at death as the worst possible thing that can happen to you.

"The worst possible thing that can happen to you is to live in a state where you are not free. Peace is not the most important thing, the most important thing is the right to be free," Kuli said.

Peter Wagner, one of the people who staged the die-in, said, "I'm just trying to contrast their message that we need to step into the soldiers' shoes in order to support them."

Hewitt said, "We're just trying to show our support for the troops.

"[We're over in the Middle East] to protect the concept of sovereign territory. When innocent Kuwaiti lives are slaughtered, we cannot sit back and watch — we just have to show Saddam Hussein that his actions will not be tolerated in this day and age."



Collegian photos by Dondi Ahearn

Pro- and anti-war demonstrators face each other yesterday on Student Union steps.

Research group fights cuts
Weld to eliminate Cooperative Extension

By MARK HENSLEY
Collegian Staff

Citing arguments ranging from healthy food to drug education to dollars and cents, members of the Cooperative Extension System met yesterday in an effort to save their programs from Gov. Weld's proposed budget cuts.

Cooperative Extension, which was established in 1914 as part of a nationwide system which includes the United States Department of Agriculture and other land-grant universities, spreads the benefits of University research as well as runs educational programs such as the well-known 4-H program.

As a part of his effort to trim $2.6 billion off the state budget in the next 17 months, Gov. Weld has proposed to eliminate Cooperative Extension, a move which some say will cost, not save the state money.

Without the $2.6 million in state funding for Cooperative Extension, the state would lose $3.5 million in federal funding as well as $5 to $10 million worth of labor done by its 5,400 volunteers, said Robert G. Helgesen, dean of the College of Food and Natural Resources at the meeting.

Of more immediate concern is the governor's decision last week to recall $500,000 in funds remaining for the current fiscal year, which if approved by the Legislature would limit Cooperative Extension's ability to carry out existing programs, said John Baker, interim associate director of Cooperative Extension.

In telephone interviews, Rep. Stanley C. Rosenberg (D-Amherst) and Sen. John W. Olver (D-Amherst) both agreed with this financial assessment and pointed out that if the CES were eliminated, Massachusetts would be the only state in the nation without such an organization.

Rosenberg said eliminating Cooperative Extension "would be like cutting off a thumb," for the organization performs major public services and plays a central role in the function of land-grant universities.

Along with its many other roles, Cooperative Extension is working with the University in developing ways to grow healthy and competitive produce without the use of pesticides.

Vegetable farmer Gary Gemme of Whately said the elimination of Cooperative Extension would affect his ability to learn new farming technologies, especially in the area of pesticides.

"The University is doing well in researching ways to reduce the use of pesticide," he said. "There is no one farmer who could possibly do this alone, there is too much to know."

Without Cooperative Extension, Gemme said he and other farmers in the state would not have access to this information or to the training for the periodical certification for pesticide usage which the state requires.

Bill Coli, the coordinator of the Integrated Pest Management Program reiterated Gemme's point, saying that 90 percent of re-certification training for farmers who use pesticides is done by Cooperative Extension as well as 50 percent of the training for commercial users, such as exterminators.

Paul Kokoski, 20, a student in the Stockbridge School of Agriculture, defended Cooperative Extension based on his 12-year experience in the 4-H program, where he now counsels children about problems including drugs and alcohol.

"[The 4-H program] has helped me to express the talents that I have," he said. "I would hate to see it cut, for then the kids coming up would not have the opportunities I have had."

Trustees table decision to restore litigation power

By AMY HENRY
Collegian Staff

An ammendment for students to seek outside attorneys to represent them in cases concerning landlords and consumer issues passed at this week's Board of Trustees meeting, while a decision to restore limited litigation power to students to use the Legal Services Organization's attorneys has been tabled.

Student Trustee Angus McQuilken said he made the decision to table the proposal until the trustees' April meeting in order to look at the cost effectiveness and student support for the usage of outside attorneys.

"I tabled the amendment so we can research their proposed program. If it won't work we want to strike a better compromise," he said. "They gave us the power to hire outside attorneys which we could have done a while ago but we can't afford it."

President-Chancellor Joseph Duffey, who testified at the trustees' meeting along with other administrators in favor of restored limited litigation power said, "Students should be able to have University attorneys represent them in landlord and consumer cases."

Duffey added, "Students and administrators should make the policy decision, not the LSO."

McQuilken said, "I have guarded optimism about April's meeting. I have hope that enough trustees are on our side who are willing to put protection of students' rights above landlord's."

Attorney Charles DiMari, of the LSO, said, "There are significant numbers of students with unmet legal needs, especially in the area of landlords and civil rights."

"I'm very disappointed that trustees are so concerned with those who have violated students' rights. I am cautiously optimistic this April that there will be a positive response."

DiMari said it would be difficult for students to find attorneys that could represent them for fees they could afford.

"The average lawyer in western Massachusetts costs $100 to $200 per hour. Students obviously can't afford rates especially for several thousand dollar cases," he said.

Trustee Michael T. Foley said students should not have the power to litigate because it puts the University in a difficult situation.

"The LSO should have the ability to retain outside counsel for students who have reached the point where litigation is need-

CONTINUED ON PAGE 4

INSIDE:

FRIDAY, FEBRUARY 8, 1991

Page 3:
BOG passes nonbinding motion to impeach SGA officers.
Page 5:
Alethea O'Dell's troubles began the day she came to UMass.
Page 12:
Come cheer on the women's basketball team as they host Duquesne tomorrow.

WEATHER

You can see clearly now, the rain is gone! Today will be mostly sunny, temps in the mid-40s.

THE MASSACHUSETTS
DAILY COLLEGIAN

New England's largest college daily newspaper. Circulation: 19,000. Published every weekday during the calendar semester. The Massachusetts Daily Collegian is a Registered Student Organization of the University of Massachusetts.

113 Campus Center, Amherst, MA, 01003
Phone (413) 545-3500 FAX (413) 545-1592

STAFF

Editor in Chief ... Tem Stanmer
Managing Editor ... Jody Cabin
Editorial Editor ... Jeremy Levinson
News Editor ... Gavie Long
Sports Editor ... Adrien Katz
Arts Editor ... Danielle Dowling
Photography Editor ... K.A. Burke
Black Affairs Editor ... Sondra Sutton
Women's Issues Editors ... Risa Kelly, Monique Tabon
Multicultural Affairs Editor ... Alexander Nguyen
Third World Affairs Editor ... Pratip Dasildar
Lesbian Bisexual Gay Issues Editor ... Trystan Skeigh
Business Manager ... Susan George
Advertising Manager ... Dave Melnick
Finance Manager ... Beth Patterson
Circulation Manager ... Jim Winterbottom
Subscriptions Manager ... Stacy Rogers
Promotions Manager ... Marc Pruskin
Production Manager ... Nicole Dumas
Dan Graphics Manager ... Jenn Burns

PROFESSIONAL STAFF

Business ... Brian Harrington, Lori Black, Maureen Majerowski
Graphics ... Rory Evans

TODAY'S STAFF

Night Editor ... Sarah Demaster
Copy Editor ... Lavinia Gammon
Layout Technician ... Nicole Dumas
Photo Technician ... Dondi Ahearn
Production Supervisor ... Nicole Dumas
Typesetter ... Kim Frisino
Production ... Jason Tvrla, Brad Hutchison, Chris Prell

For Your Information

FRIDAY, FEBRUARY 8

Dance — A dance, sponsored by the Asian Student Association, will be held in the CC Auditorium from 9 p.m. to 1 a.m. The cost is $2 for members, $4 for non-members.

Civil Disobedience Workshop— The workshop, led by Hattie Nestel, will discuss the duty of civil disobedience and nonviolence. It will be held in room 105 of the Franklin Patterson Building at Amherst College between 6 p.m. and 10 p.m.

SATURDAY, FEBRUARY 9

Dance — A dance, sponsored by Student Valley Productions, will be held in the Blue Wall from 9 p.m. to 1 a.m. Admission is $2. Come with a heart on and get $1 off their spring production of "The Sixteenth Chapel."

SUNDAY, FEBRUARY 10

Peace Vigil — A vigil, sponsored by the Committee on the Middle East Crisis, will be held at the Amherst Common at noon.

Women's Center Meeting — The first Orchard Hill/Central Women's Center meeting will be held in room 115 Van Meter South at 7 p.m. All are welcome. Refreshments will be served.

17th Annual International Sunday — The Interfaith Service Council of Amherst will hold the Sunday Service at 4 p.m. at the First Congregational Church on Main Street in Amherst.

MONDAY, FEBRUARY 11

Brown Bag Discussion — Sponsored by Counseling and Advising for Older Students. Come share your registration horror stories and happy endings in Machmer E-21.

Free Meditation Workshop — A free meditation and yoga workshop will be offered this semester at the campus center. The first session is from 7:30 p.m. to 9:30 p.m. Please check at the Campus Center desk for room numbers.

Auditions for Killing Me Softly — Auditions sponsored by the UMass Theatre Department will be held on Feb. 11 and 12. Sign up for auditions on the UMass theatre department call-board. Scripts to read are available in the FAC 112.

TUESDAY, FEBRUARY 12

National Student Exchange Meeting — An information session sponsored by the National Student Exchange will be held from 4 p.m. to 5 p.m. in Campus Center room 803. Applications for Fall '91 and/or Spring '92 are due March 1.

WEDNESDAY, FEBRUARY 13

GLB Valentine Panel — A panel of couples will discuss same-sex relations at 8 p.m. in Campus Center room 904. The event is sponsored by the Program for Gay, Lesbian and Bisexual Concerns.

School of Nursing Academic Rounds Lecture — The School of Nursing will sponsor a talk by speaker Dr. Patricia Moccia from 4 p.m. to 6 p.m. at the Campus Center room 904.

Women's Studies Talk — A talk by writer Leslea Newman is sponsored by the Women's Studies Dept. It will be held from 12:15 p.m. to 1:30 p.m. in the Campus Center complex.

The newly-created European Club is holding a general assembly in the Campus Center room 165. Citizens of all countries are welcome. Tea and cookies will be served. The meeting starts at 8 p.m.

THURSDAY, FEBRUARY 14

Film and Discussion — "Children of Fire" will be shown at 4 p.m. in Herter Auditorium (room 231). The film deals with the Palestinian uprising as seen through the eyes of the children.

Selectivity in Micellar Electrokinetic Chromatography — A lecture by Professor Harold M. McNair will be held at 11:15 a.m. in room 1633 of the Lederle Graduate Tower.

An Analysis of the U.S.-Soviet Summit — A Five College Faculty Panel, sponsored by the Five College Program in Peace and World Security Studies, will be held at 8 p.m. in Converse Hall at Amherst College.

SATURDAY, FEBRUARY 16

Rally and Non-violent Direct Action — A rally will be held at Westover Air Force base at 1:30 p.m. An affinity group formation and strategy session will be held at Hooker Auditorium at Mount Holyoke College from 9 a.m. to 12 a.m.

CANCELLATION

South African Archbishop Desmond M. Tutu has changed his schedule and will not speak at the University on Feb. 14 as originally scheduled.

Correction

The play Putting Women in Their Place . . . Beside Their Men, announced on page 11 of the Collegian's Thursday, Feb. 7 issue, is sponsored by the Black Mass Communications Project.

ACADEMY OF MUSIC NORTHAMPTON Opera House 584-8435
NOW Ends Thursday, Feb 14th
Curtain Daily 6:30 and 9:00
Rostand's classic romantic adventure with GERARD DERPARDIEU as the "DEFINITIVE CYRANO"—N.Y. Times
"MAGNIFICENT A HUGELY ENTERTAINING SPECTACLE!" —Peter Travers, ROLLING STONE
"IT'S A REALLY ROMANTIC AND FUN MOVIE" —Siskel & Ebert
"GLORIOUS" —Richard Schickel, TIME
CYRANO DE BERGERAC
A film by JEAN-PAUL RAPPENEAU
PG
AT THE GATES OF SMITH COLLEGE

SKI
BERKSHIRE EAST
The most challenging mountain in Southern New England!
STUDENTS SKI
Monday-Friday (day session) Only $9
Thursday-Saturday (night session) Only $7
Weekends (day session) Only $22
Use this ad and receive $4 OFF weekend day session rates!
Take I-91 North to exit 26 (Greenfield) West for 17 miles to Charlemont Rt 2

HAND

UPC presents: BIMSKALABIM BOP (harvey) HI HATS
SKA-FEST
friday feb.8 7pm! in The bluewall
TIX: $6 students (umass) $8 others available at tixunlimited · faces · main st · cds

RENT A WRECK
New & Used Cars
Trucks & Vans Also Available
North Amherst Rent-A-Wreck
Rt. 63 No. Amherst
549-RENT

LOCAL

BOG votes to impeach SGA officers

By AMY HENRY
Collegian Staff

A motion to impeach the Student Government Association's officers and a motion to remove the SGA from their office was passed last night at the Board of Governors meeting.

The motions were passed in response to last week's request by SGA officers for the administration to absolve the SGA and BOG and form a seperate committee to restructure the governing bodies.

The officers named are Student Trustee Angus McQuilken, SGA President Natasha Diephuis, Treasurer Karen Talbot, Senate Speaker Dan Chesnicka, and Registrar Rebecca Rudko.

Although the motion, proposed by co-Gov. Guy Glodis, of the Commuter Area, cannot technically impeach the officers, Glodis said it was proposed to try to form a coalition with other student groups to support their removal. The motion passed 17 to three.

"This motion is to show the BOG supports other student bodies that oppose the SGA decision," he said. "I think this decision was made to get rid of the BOG. Nobody wanted to get rid of the BOG when it was far to the left."

Another motion proposed by co-Gov. Ted Maravelias, also of the Commuter Area, asked for the removal of the SGA officers and for the Senate to decide where they would be removed. The motion passed unanimously.

Bill Harris, director of the BOG, said, "This decision probably won't take effect because SGA officer elections are coming up in four weeks and this decision is only binding on the current officers."

At-large Gov. Dan Cohen said, "The BOG sees this as a statement of protest, but such an action is hardly legitimate in the spirit of student unity."

Gov. Laura Silver, of the Lesbian, Bisexual and Gay Alliance, said, "Voting to impeach them when we can't is ridiculous and it has no bearing on the BOG'S job. It is yet another act of intellectual masturbation."

Gov. Chris Thomas, also of the LBGA, said, "Attacking space allocations for political reasons is the deaththrows of ineffective student government. The Board doesn't really want to effect student issues, they just want to play political games."

In other business:

- Comedy night will be held next Tuesday.
- Casino Night for the Brain Tumor Society of Boston will be held March 7. Last year $10,000 was raised for the event.
- Ted Maravelias and Guy Glodis are now co-governors because Maravelias moved and they will now share one vote.

Collegian photo by Dondi Ahearn

MUDDY MOO-COW: A black-and-white bovine animal contemplates life in the swampy farmland near Southwest Residential Area.

Police investigate harassment of women at Tower Library

By MEREDITH O'BRIEN
Collegian Staff

Three female University of Massachusetts students were reportedly sexually harassed this week in the Tower Library by an unknown perpetrator, police said yesterday.

Arthur Hilson, director of Public Safety, said three women reported that a male accosted them while they were studying during the early evening at the Tower Library.

The three women said the man attempted to read their notes over their shoulders, sat down next to them and touched them in various places.

One woman reported that a man grabbed her thigh and ankle while she was studying at a table.

Police described the man as 5' 7" with an olive complexion, short black hair, weighing about 130 pounds and wearing dark-rimmed glasses.

Hilson said he believes the same man has been harassing women in the library for the past week.

In what may be a related incident, Lt. Michael Grabiec said a female student was also attacked this week at around 8 p.m. outside of Machmer Hall while on her way to study in the Tower Library.

Grabiec said the woman had received a call from "friends" asking her to meet them at the library.

While passing Machmer, a man reportedly jumped out of the bushes and grabbed her on the shoulders. The woman pulled away from his grip, Grabiec said, and ran away.

While the description of this man was "a little different" from the description of the man reportedly accosting women inside the library, Grabiec said, "It is very difficult to tell if it is a separate incident."

Police are asking anyone with information regarding these incidents to call the Detective's Bureau at 545-0893.

Workshop protests war and media

By AMY PRENDERGAST
Collegian Correspondent

The process of "constantly hammering away" at the media is the best way to counteract their unsympathetic coverage of anti-war activity, according to University of Massachusetts Professor Sut Jhally of the Department of Communication.

About 50 people attended last night's "Workshop for Anti-War Activists on Media Strategy," conducted by Jhally and Professor Justin Lewis, also of the Communication Department, in Campus Center room 168. Both Jhally and Lewis stressed that because most anti-war activity coverage is trivialized by scenes of disruption and flag-burning, activists must fight back with the same tactic that is used against them — harassment.

They suggested calling, writing, and faxing national and local media outlets to get the message across about displeasure with coverage or lack of coverage that a certain anti-war activity has received.

"We're up against [the media coverage], and in order to get it, we have to be cunning, devious, and smart, like they are," Lewis said.

He said timing of demonstrations is key. "If you want your rally to make the five o'clock news, don't schedule it for 3 o'clock," said Lewis.

He added one or two spokespeople for the activist group should be chosen beforehand to seek out reporters, and have "little snappy soundbytes" prepared in advance.

Often the anti-war activist who is interviewed on camera does not voice the views of the majority of the protesters, he said. The media likes to show "freak" protesters being arrested and carried away, he said.

Lewis suggested those planning to be arrested for civil disobedience should wear a suit. He also suggested carrying an anti-war sign in one hand, and an American flag in the other.

This would eliminate the notion that anti-war activists are also anti-American, which is usually not the case, he said.

Several participants concurred with Lewis that many anti-war protesters are in support of the troops, but do not support the United States policy concerning the war.

Collegian photo by Dondi Ahearn

Professor Justin Lewis

Europe gaining power

Lecturer: events may overshadow Middle East

By LARS KROIJER
Collegian Staff

Developments in Europe since last fall's reunification of Germany may become more important than events in the Middle East, according to Andrew Pierre, a senior associate at the Carnegie Endowment for International Peace dealing with European-American and East-West relations.

Pierre gave a lecture last night at Amherst College on the "New European Order And The U.S.," sponsored by the Five College Program in Peace and World Security Studies.

"Where the U.S. in the past has been the senior in its relation to Europe, the future may very well bring a equal or even junior status," he said.

Pierre argued that Europe is not starting all over but has to act within the process of evolution. He said, however, that Europe has no direct guidelines and lacks an organizational principle.

According to Pierre, Germany will, with its 77 million people, without competition be the dominant power of the new Europe.

"Having one-third of the industrial capacity in Western Europe, Germany is more feared in Europe than it is in the U.S.," he said.

Pierre however acknowledged the German foreign minister, Hans Ditrich Genschner's saying: "Rather a European Germany than a German Europe."

According to Pierre there will not be a setback in Eastern Europe after the liberation from Communism. There now exists a European identity without the division into East and West Europe, he said.

Although he said the French right wing politician Jean le Pen is blocking the integration process, Pierre said the pan-European political and social exchange is now at a very advanced level.

"However the new political freedom has given the ground for ethnic tension not only in the Soviet Union, but also in Eastern Europe and especially Yugoslavia," Pierre said. "These countries have a long way to go before they can reach a market economy."

Emphasizing the importance of cross-cultural exchange, Pierre praised the newly-formed Five College European Club.

"This offers an opportunity for students to get together and discuss the rapid changes in Europe," he said.

Talking about Europe in relation to the Persian Gulf war, Pierre criticized the unity of various European countries' actions since the war broke out.

"After Jan. 15, there has been little coherence within Europe. Several countries have acted vaguely and unpersuasively," he said.

According to Pierre the major European countries must act as one to have any say in international politics.

"In the long run I believe they will," he said.

According to Pierre the coming period in Europe will be essential.

"It is very important that the balance is set right," he said. "The borders of the Versailles in 1919 broke down after 20 years with a result we all know too well," he said.

AUDI • BMW • VW-VEHICLES
• U.S. COMPACTS • MERCEDES • PORSCHE
NISSAN • BRITISH CARS • SAAB • VOLVO ATTENTION OWNERS of VOLKSWAGEN & AUDI VEHICLES
We have serviced these vehicles in Northampton for the past 17 years, as well as all other German and Japanese cars.
We are Reasonable • Reliable • Prompt • Conscientious GERMAN AUTOMOTIVE
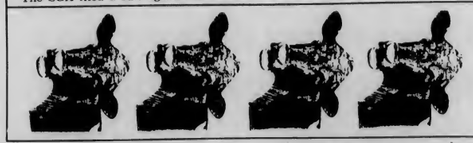
and Used Car Sales
605 N. King St. (Rtes. 5 & 10), Northampton — 586-1525
½ mile north of Caldor's
• HONDA • TOYOTA • SUBARU • MAZDA

Legal Services Organization

CONTINUED FROM PAGE 1

ed for consumer and tenant problems," Foley said. According to McQuilken, in August 1986, the Board voted to rescind the students' power to sue the University. The SGA filed a suit against the Board charging viewpoint discrimination which states that an institution cannot only protect itself from litigation, he said.

In August 1987, the Board voted to get rid of all litigation power so as not to discriminate, he said.



Council Travel
SPRING BREAK
from Boston
Cancun starting at $489
Jamaica starting at $509
Price includes:
• Round trip airfare & transfers
• 7 nights accommodation & hotel taxes
Low Student Airfares!
CALL FOR MORE INFORMATION
79 South Pleasant Street
Amherst, Ma 01002
413-256-1261
America's oldest & largest Student Travel Agency

SPRING BREAK
PANAMA CITY BEACH
FLORIDA
• High quality beachfront accommodations for 7 exciting nights
• Round trip chartered motor coach
• Free pool deck parties, activities, & promotions
• Inter-Campus Programs / Discount card
• On-location staff for complete assistance
• All taxes, tips, & service charges included
$114 $219
Contact Barbara 549-8156

COUNSELING AND ADVISING FOR OLDER STUDENTS
Did you get what you want?
Stop by for HELP at lunch.
Mondays: 11am to 1pm
Tu-Fri: 11am to 2pm
Machmer, E-21 545-5338

ROLL UPS
SANDWICH SHOP
331 Russell St., Rt. 9, Hadley
(next to Dunkin' Donuts)
Grand Opening Specials
Over 25 sandwiches all under $3.99 such as...
• Philly Roast Beef • Wrangler
• Veggie Delight w/ avacado AND
• Tuna/Hold the Line MORE!...
NOW FREE SANDWICH
Buy One Get One Free!!
(Lower priced sandwich is free)
One coupon per person per order
Not valid between 12:30-2:00 daily exp.2-28-91
coupon coupon
OPEN 7 DAYS A WEEK
586-8255

安城中國飯店
Amherst Chinese Food
Homestyle Cooking
Fresh vegetables from our own farm
DO NOT USE MSG
Chinese New Year Banquet $15 per person—4 or more people
Open 7 days a week
253-2813 253-7835
62 Main Street Amherst

The INDIA HOUSE
RESTAURANT
Serving in the same location on State St. since 1984
DINNER for 2
$13.95 COMPLETE ENTREES CHANGE DAILY
SUNDAY—THURSDAY
5 P.M. — 9 P.M.
45 STATE ST.
NORTHAMPTON, MA
586-6344

The Quill on Green Street's
GREEN DOT SALE
Any Book with a Green Dot gets you
50% Off the Quill's Regular Price.
50% Off Most Children's Books
Recent Best Sellers
All Travel Books
Most Hard Bound Books
MON. - FRI. 8:30AM - 5:30PM • SAT.10:00AM - 4:00PM
VISA MasterCard
QUILL BOOKSHOP
100 GREEN STREET NORTHAMPTON, MASS

TOWER Theaters
THE VILLAGE COMMONS • SOUTH HADLEY • 533-2663

"Thumbs up! A smart funny movie." —ROGER EBERT/SISKEL & EBERT
"'Alice' is a delight. Allen & Co. make us believe that fairy tales can still happen." —DAVID ANSEN/NEWSWEEK
weekdays at 3, 7 and 9:10
Friday at 4:25,6:40 and 9:05
Sat and Sun at 2:15, 4:25,6:40 and 9:05
Sorry, no 2 for 1 on this film
HAMLET
weekdays and Friday at 3, 6:30 and 9:05
Sat and Sun at 1, 3:45, 6:30 and 9:05
2 for 1 on Monday
Next week
Rocky Horror Returns Fridays at Midnight
FRANKENHOOKER "Where's dale?"

EDITORIAL/OPINION

The opinions on this page are those of the individual writer or cartoonist and do not necessarily reflect the views of the Collegian or the University unless otherwise noted.

This place really sucks

Having come to this university with the belief that I was attending one of the finest institutions in the country, it was inevitable that eventually I would be slightly disappointed. I arrived with absolutely no — nada, none, zero — classes on my schedule and, I never recieved a housing assignment or card with my Personal Security Code (PSC) which would enable me to use the brilliant phone system here. My expectations only diminished slightly. I understand that there are certain inescapable loopholes standard to all large universities, and I accepted the fact that these were three of the many more to come. So, I patiently waited in lines all day, and called home collect from pay-phones at the Campus Center for two weeks. Eventually, I received my PSC and my classes; only to hear that things were going to get worse.

Alethea O'Dell

The next thing I knew, a seemingly indestructible giant, the Citizens for Limited Taxation ballot question, was waiting to cripple the state and seize my right to an education. So, I actively participated in the rallies against CLT, registered to vote, and felt mildly relieved that their attempts failed. However, I realistically acknowledged that quite a bit of damage still existed and foresaw that more would occur. I finished my semester rather successfully and went home for a reprieve, only to return and find this place crumbling.

Most upsetting, no one cares that this institution has failed and needs serious restructuring. Even the moronic leaders who have pushed us to this eventual drowning are abandoning ship. Way to go, Denny baby! Now that you have raped the Everywoman's Center of funding and every woman's right to seek help, we will gladly escort your chauvinistic manliness off our campus. And, to you, Mr. Duffey, the sooner we are free from your overpriced and overpaid rubbish, the better!

I escaped the South with as little damage as can be expected. But, never in my life did I expect such an apathetic, bigoted, and backward place as this. The latest governor is planning to raise tuition 35 percent. Is anyone storming Beacon Hill? No!

Ted Maravelias and his marvelous band of mongoloids committed one of the most blatant, bigoted atrocities last semester when they led the fight for "democracy" in the Board of Governors. Were any administrative actions taken? No! We still, however, call ourselves a diverse university.

The most alarming of all this idiocy is the Student Government Association's response. Let's hand over the only representation we have and, better yet, let's hand it over to the witless Whitmoorians. That is like handing Congress over to George Bush and letting him play his little war games completely unchecked. Do the Fab Five really think that we will ever see representation after the administration gets its talons on it? We can only look to the status of the Legal Services Office for the answer: No! If we really want to see representation, we should relinquish the Fab Five to the administration and get real people in office.

Alethea O'Dell is a UMass student

Paper incites anti-men violence

I consider the Collegian's recent example of man-bashing ("American women have their own war" Pam McCarthy Feb. 6) to be not only inappropriate but dangerous. Murder is wrong. And suggesting that American GIs should come home and randomly shoot members of a specific group of people is clearly wrong.

Acts of violence are a serious problem in our society, and to advocate more violence is not exactly what I consider to be responsible journalism. This reader would greatly appreciate an attempt by the Collegian to adopt a more empathic attitude towards its diverse readership.

A. E. Cutting
Deerfield

What is on your mind? The world is changing faster than UMass administrators — you must have something to say. The Ed/Op section is your section. It's here so you can share your thoughts with others. But, it only works if you spend the 10 or 15 minutes to write the letter. Submissions under 50 lines are considered letters and those between 50 and 70 are considered columns. Those that far exceed 70 lines will not be considered. So, get on it. "The press shall be free when all have equal access." — V. Lenin

Let the students decide what to do with their government

Now that the Undergraduate Student Senate and Board of Governors are fighting with Student Government Association President Natasha Diephuis, Student Trustee Angus McQuilken, Senate Speaker Dan Chesnicka, SGA Treasurer Karen Talbot and Registrar Rebecca Rudko over their attempts to bring the administration in to dissolve these groups, the Student Judiciary and the area governments, I have a truly revolutionary thought.

Why don't you let the students decide, through binding referendum questions, whether or not these government structures should exist? After all, it's the students, through the Student Activities Fee, who pay the salaries of these five people (let's just call them "The Chesnicka Five" for lack of a better name). Believe it or not, the students have a say in what happens to their governmental bodies.

Since students have differing opinions on each of these bodies, and, I believe, want to keep some of them and get rid of the others, each question should address the existence of each of the groups that the Chesnicka Five wants to dissolve. Here is a listing of the questions, roughly worded, and some predictions as to how students would vote if given the chance.

1. Do you approve of a proposal which would dissolve the Undergraduate Student Senate, and its internal officers, the Speaker of the Senate, the SGA Treasurer and Registrar?

I decided to add three of the leaders to the list because: They are part of the Senate and should be put up for judgment with the organization; also, we pay their salaries. Anyway, believe it or not, the vote would be relatively close. Still, I think students will vote to get rid of our lovely Senate. For what seems to be forever, all most people have heard about it is that there are squabbles, filibustering and, every once in a while, the campus police have to be called to stop rowdy renditions of The Star Spangled Banner (don't laugh; I was a senator from Central Area Government at the time that happened). Upperclassmen remember the 1988-89 school year — The Year There Was No President Because The Senate Wouldn't Let Us Have One.

Katherine T. Lamothe

The senate is supposed to be the central governing body — yet it can't control the rebellious branches. When Southwest Area Government seceded from the SGA last spring, they were not punished when they eventually returned. When these things happen, and there is no sense of control from the Senate, the Senate has to go. Forget what I said before: the students would dump the Senate if they could. With our luck, the oligarchy wouldn't let us vote.

2. Do you approve of a proposal to dismantle the Board of Governors? This vote is easier to predict. Because of the publicity surrounding the vote to get rid of the LBGA, and the perception of chaos on the board, I predict students would probably vote to disband the BOG by a fairly large majority.

But wait, there's a problem here — a legal problem. While the SGA is a major contributor to the board, in terms of money and representation, it is not the only governing body. The Stockbridge Student Senate has two representatives to the board and contributes a share of their budget to it. In fact, the financial agreement between the BOG, the SGA, Stockbridge and the Graduate Student Senate (which voted in December to pull their money and representatives off the board) states that the funding organizations must have consensus when there are changes in contributions, or the board's existence. Has Stockbridge been consulted about the plan to dissolve the BOG? I find that doubtful. OOPS! Regardless of a vote, we'd probably still have a BOG, and woe to the oligarchy who decides to dismantle it themselves.

3. Do you approve of a proposal to dissolve the area governments? All biases based upon personal experiences aside, students would reject this proposal. Despite occasional problems with their leaders, area governments are performing valuable services to students — ranging from advocacy in town government to programming — and students do appreciate this. They'd rather have no Senate than no area governments.

4. Do you approve of a proposal to eliminate the Student Judiciary? Many students are not aware of the purpose of the Student Judiciary. It would be too close to call.

The fact is, the student body — and not the Chesnicka Five — has the right to decide the fate of the SGA. It controls about $2 million of their money. Let them vote.

Katherine T. Lamothe is a Collegian staff member

Notes from the Campus Center basement

Where the sugar buzz from two days' worth of free pbMax candy bars is just starting to wear off. . .

* * *

At the UMass Republican Club's support-our-troops rally yesterday at "high noon," the American Red Cross blood drive poster standing unnoticed nearby on the steps of the Student Union was the strongest statement of all. The Republican Club should have paraded its 150 followers into the Student Union Ballroom and started dripping; that's supporting the troops.

According to Tim Murphy of the American Red Cross, in the weeks before the war began Jan. 16, the Department of Defense asked for an extra 1,000 units of blood per week, of which the Northeast region contributed 300-500 units.

The DOD shipped in 1,000 units a day for three days immediately after Jan. 16, and the Northeast region's contribution jumped accordingly.

Sam Silverstein

The demand has cooled somewhat, Murphy said, because "there are not a lot of injuries over there right now." If that were to change, he said, the Red Cross is again prepared to step up the flow.

The Red Cross expected to collect 130 units in the SUB yesterday. The next scheduled blood drive on campus is Feb. 26.

* * *

I'd be a little angrier about the "abandon ship" flag being raised at Whitmore if I — and most of my fellow graduating seniors, so far as I can tell — weren't so ready to move on myself.

Gov. Dukakis, though, really went belly up in his final days at the State House. First, in early January, the Boston Globe revealed Dukakis planned to shut down the state university system for the spring semester had Question 3 passed on the November ballot.

Public Higher Education was not a priority of his, though I guess $16 million worth of cuts since the July start of the current fiscal year made that clear long ago.

Then the guy takes a teaching job at the University of Hawaii. If he had any, um . . . courage, he'd have set up shop in Thompson with the political science department, or at UMass-Boston, or Salem State, or any other public school in Massachusetts.

Then again, if Dukakis can teach government, maybe I can hope to land a job in newspaper journalism.

* * *

Why didn't the U.S. Postal Service think three weeks into the future and hike the price of stamps to 30 cents, instead of 29? What are we supposed to do with all these 1-cent stamps? . . . The Whitmore Coffee Club mug your professor clings to in class every day saves him or her 5 cents on every refill . .

Just in case it ever snows again, there's a rule in the Undergraduate Rights and Responsibilities handbook against "the throwing of snowballs . or snowball fights which (sic) involve other than willing participants."

Sam Silverstein is a Collegian columnist

Americans throw away 18 billion dirty diapers a year, enough to extend back and forth to the moon seven times.
WASTE IS A PROBLEM. WE ALL SHARE THE RESPONSIBILITY.
DIAPER TROUBLES
Disposable diapers can take 500 years to decompose in an landfill. Cotton diapers, which can be used 75-100 times, decompose in 1-6 months.

LBG program gets new office

By CHRIS MUTHER
Collegian Staff

For the Program for Gay, Lesbian and Bisexual Concerns, being diligent has paid off, but according to a Program organizer, there is still a long way to go.

Graduate student Chris Macek said the Program, which has asked to move from Southwest every year since it was formed, will be relocated to the former Greek Affairs Office in Southwest.

"Even in these trying economic times, the administration realizes the importance of these programs," Macek said.

The Greek Affairs Office has been moved to the Whitmore Administration Building.

The program, which was formed following a series of homophobic actions in the spring of 1984, has been housed in the John Adams dormitory for the past four years.

"We've been asking for a bigger office and to move out of Southwest for the past five years," Macek said. "Now we've got one of the two."

Macek said the Program has requested the move for two reasons: a more central location and a safer environment.

"A lot of lesbian, bisexual and gay students are afraid to even walk through Southwest," he said. "There's a running joke about the gay freshman who gets put in Southwest, and then goes begging to Housing Services a week later to get moved somewhere else."

The office, which is located in Crampton Hall, contains a director's office, graduate students' office, kitchen, work space, reception area, an outdoor patio, and an area that Macek described as a "social/common area."

He said the social area will be available for students to read, study or socialize in.

"There aren't a lot of places on campus for lesbian, bisexual or gay students to study on campus, now they will have a place that will consistently be available," he added.

In addition to study space the Program offers a library, and sponsors panels, discussions and a computer data base to other gay organizations.

Macek said there will be a Valentine's Day party Thursday from 3:30 p.m.- 6:30 p.m. at the Program office to celebrate the move.

Valentine
Gifts Cards
Blouses Skirts Dresses
India Print Bedspreads
Earrings
Mugs
Rings
Bracelets
Chains
Chinese Shoes
Pants
Area Rugs
Happy B'day Cards
Hawaii
Posters
Candles
Tie-Dye
Incense
Toys
Sale
20 to 50% off selected Clothing
Great Gifts & Cards
MERCANTILE
Sun 12-5
Daily 10-6
Northampton-18 Center St.
Amherst-Carriage Shops

SURPRISE YOUR Valentine
Find the finest in our two beautiful Galleries...
silverscape designs
264N Pleasant St Amherst 253-3324
177 Main St Northampton 584-3324
GOLDSMITHS • GEM GALLERY

charlie's
1 Pray St., Amherst—549-5403 • Open 11am
7 days a Week
Kitchen open 'til midnight
Game Room with 2 pool tables
Sunday 10c Potato Skins
9:00p.m. — 12:00 a.m.
Drinks of the Week:
Charlie's Punch $1.50 French Moc a Coffee $1.95
Food Giveaways
Mon. 10 cent Mozzarella Sticks 9pm-12am
Tues. 10 cent Buffalo Wings 9pm-12am
Wed. 25cent Pizza Slices and 99 cent Nachos 9pm-12am
Thurs 10 cent Beer Steamed Baby Franks 9pm-12am
Sunday 10 cent Potato Skins 9pm-12am
WE ACCEPT MC-VISA-AMEX

Auditions for the UMASS Theatre Guild's Production of
INTO THE WOODS
February 8 in the S.U.B. 6 pm
February 9 in 163 Campus Center 1 & 6 pm
Callbacks February 10 1 pm
Open Call; Come to one set
More information at our general membership meeting February 6, 168 Campus Center at 7 pm.

Are you wondering what to give your special friend on Valentine's Day?
Be unique
Give a Condom Gram,
A Damgram,
Condom Earrings or a special book "Proud Pete"
Sponsored by the Peer Sexuality and Peer Health Promotion Programs of the Health Education Division-University Health Services

Leather Coat Blowout
Must Liquidate
50-70% OFF
Make Us An Offer!!
Now is the time to buy for Valentines Day
Largest selection of sterling silver jewelry in the area
50% OFF
Berkshire Leather & Silver Outlet
25 North Pleasant St., Amherst, MA

ARTS & LIVING

A must see for active romantics

By ANGIE LANDRY
Collegian Correspondent

Remember when you were little and your parents told you that old cliche "It's not what is on the outside, it's what is on the inside that matters?" Well, the French film Cyrano DeBergerac now playing at the Academy of Music in Northampton until February 14, proves your parents right.

Cyrano (Gerard Depardieu) is a deformed poet in the midst of a love triangle. He is in love with his fraternal cousin, Roxane (Anne Brochet), but she is in love with Christian (Vincent Perez), a young, handsome but very uninteresting soldier. In an ironic twist-of-fate, the large-nosed Cyrano helps Christian woo Roxane by composing eloquent love poems for Christian. Together, the ugly scholar and the beautiful dunce cause Roxane to swoon and fall deeply in love with Christian — both his beauty and what she believes is his soul. But of course, tragedy strikes and things between the happy couple become difficult.

This whole film is full of action-packed scenes: two fantastic sword fights (one in which Cyrano single-handedly battles 100 men), the raiding of a Spanish camp, and a chaotic battle.

Cyrano DeBergerac is not just an action film either. It is also a romantic and comic literary work. Many times, laughter filled the theatre as Cyrano threw forth another of his biting and witty comments, especially when his enormous "perch for the little birdies" nose was the object of the joke.

The one drawback of the film is the fact that it is in French and much of the beauty of the language is lost in translation of the subtitles. But, even if you don't understand French and have to read your way through the movie, the sounds of the verse are rich and flowing and can still be enjoyed. Subtitles aside though, Cyrano DeBergerac is still a must-see for every romantic and action-lover or for any person who ever thought that their parents were full of it when they said inner beauty is truly the only important thing in life.

An opportunity not to be missed for all aspiring artists and writers

By MELISA CANLI
Collegian Correspondent

Have you always wanted to have your artwork, prose, poetry or photography published? Try submitting to Spectrum, the University's only glossy, four-color format magazine. It is in its twenty-third year of publication and is completely student run.

Published annually, the length of Spectrum varies from year to year depending on the number of submissions. The pool of work the staff had to draw from in 1989-90 was overwhelming. The fine arts staff narrowed the selection from 86 short stories, 582 poems, 134 photographs, and 243 pieces of art.

This year, the magazine is also in the process of organizing a poetry reading competition in March and various workshops concerning art and literature. They will be having an Art Submissions Drive Wednesday, February 13, at 441 FAC. Spectrum staff will be happy to collect your work from 5 p.m. to 7 p.m.

The magazine will be handed out on May 2nd at the reflecting pond where students will be allowed to engage in legal graffiti on a chalk mural. There will also be a reception for all the students with work published in Spectrum. The artwork will be displayed and the writers and poets will be able to read from their works.

It is very easy to become involved with Spectrum. As Suzy Herring, coordinator of editors commented, "What makes Spectrum so great is the influx of fresh ideas every year and the way the magazine reflects the ideas of that particular year's staff."

The staff consists of coordinators and the editorial positions of art, poetry, prose, photography, production and business. This semester Spectrum also has an intern helping out as part of their staff. Spectrum encourages anyone interested to come to their bi-weekly meetings held in the Campus Center on Thursdays at 7 p.m. The room number is posted in the Collegian classifieds.

In my opinion, their flier described the free spirit of

CONTINUED ON PAGE 8

Graphic courtesy of Spectrum

Just one of the many works of art published in 1989-90's edition of Spectrum. This one is entitled "Self Portrait," a woodcut by artist Jason Player.

Valentine's Day
BUFFET
The TOC Restuarant invites you to a Valentine's Day Buffet
Buffalo wings potato skins, homemade bread, baked rigatoni and fettuccini are just a few of the fourteen delicious offerings to choose from for a very special price of $14 for two! (non-alcoholic beverages and dessert also included)
Thursday, Feb. 14th
5:00 pm - 9:00 pm
Reservations are Requested
Student Discounts Not Applicable
545-3216

Will man destroy in six minutes what it took God six days to create?
It you think it's time Christianity raised its voice in the life and death issues of our age come and join us in the active worship and fellowship of the Episcopal Church
The Episcopal Church

The Ark Episcopal Chaplaincy at UMASS
Dinner, Discussion, Eucharist
Sunday Night at 6:00 p.m.
758 North Pleasant St
549-5929
Rev Christopher Carlisle, Chaplain

BOSTON Celtic Tickets

Register to Win AT

HAPCO AUTO PARTS

AMHERST
534 Main St.
256-6414

HADLEY
99 Russell St.
Rte 9
586-6464

FREE 1991
CELTIC CALENDAR

BOSTON CELTICS

AMALIE MOTOR OIL

with a purchase of
5 qts of 10-30 or 10-40 Amalie
motor oil

Better than it has to be.®

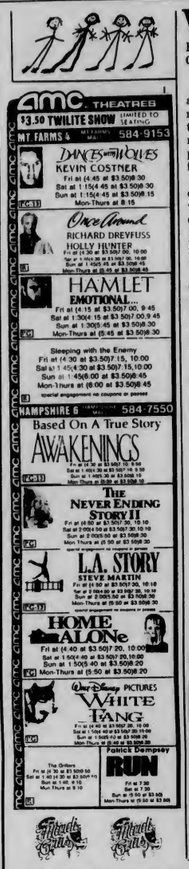
HAPCO AUTO PARTS

...where there's always a parts pro to serve you!
For all your automotive needs foreign and domestic

Hours:
Mon-Fri
8:00-5:30

Sat
8:00-3:00

Offer Expires 2/28/91



World class

By KATHERINE HERZOG
Collegian Correspondent

The name Jean Sibellus may sound simply foreign to any student at UMass other than Marta Szlubowska, a recent semifinalist in the Jean Sibellus Violin Competition, which is held every 5 years in Finland. Marta's placement as one of the top ten semi-finalists in December's prestigious competition represents a landmark in her efforts as a veteran of world class violin competitions.

Marta's interest in music began with her parents, both of whom are performing pianists. She recalls her first violin competition at the age of sixteen. Since that first competition, she has gone on to rank as a semi-finalist in the 1988 Carl Flesch International Competition in Brussels, and fourth prize winner in the 1990 Palm Beach International Invitational Violin Competition.

Despite her continued record of achievement, Marta stresses that these competitions are a stage of her development and a good experience to have as a violinist, but not her ultimate career goal. Marta appreciates the competitions she does choose to participate in, saying they "make you work more intensely and bring you back to the reality of world class violin competition."

For the Sibellus competition, Marta says the repertoire presented a real challenge. The participants were given several new pieces to prepare for their performances before the judges and audiences. Included in their assignments was a concerto to be mastered in one week. Every competition varies in terms of expectations and Marta manages this stress believing that, "you have to give your best recital that you can do at the time."

She does admit that her feelings about the competition to be judged and her performance vary with the strain of judgements from experienced violinists. "I have worked to detach myself from the competition, to do my best from inside me, concentrate on the music and enjoy playing as if it were a performance not a competition. It takes a lot of experience to develop this approach, but you can't think about what the judges are saying and if you will win the prizes."

After a performance this weekend in Holyoke, Marta plans to "cool off" from competitions for a while and concentrate on her graduate level violin studies at UMass with Professor Charles Treger and the pursuit of her career.

■ Spectrum

CONTINUED FROM PAGE 7

the magazine and its friendly atmosphere best, "We open our doors to the University to collect submissions; we pour through the material in coffee cup editorial meetings, then we design the magazine; lay it out; paste it up; and send it away to the printer. Does this turn you on?"

If indeed it does, please contact Spectrum at 406E Student Union Mondays through Fridays from 9 a.m. to 5 p.m. THE SUBMISSIONS DEADLINE FOR THE 1991 ISSUE HAS BEEN EXTENDED TO FEBRUARY 15th. Take advantage of this excellent opportunity at your doorstep and be a part of Spectrum.

THIS FRIDAY 2-6 PM

THE TOC SEAFOOD BAR

PEEL 'N' EAT SHRIMP
$ 4.25/HALF DOZ

FRESH STEAMERS
$ 4.50/'BUCKET'

AND 12 OZ DRAFTS
MICHELOB $ 1.15
SAM ADAMS $ 1.45
(BOSTON ALE)

ONLY AT THE TOC LOUNGE
11th FLOOR CAMPUS CENTER

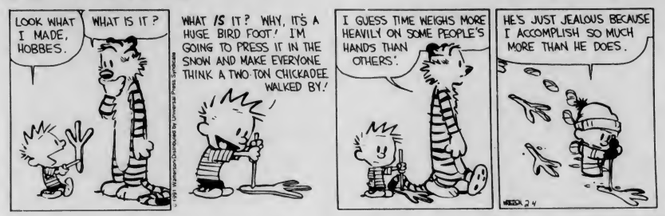
DOONESBURY By GARRY TRUDEAU

B.D.! WHERE ARE YOU CALLING FROM?
I'M ON A FIELD TELEPHONE IN A HUMVEE. WE GOT A SATELLITE UP-LINK...
I'VE BEEN TRYING TO RAISE BOOPSIE, BUT HER PHONE'S BEEN BUSY ALL MORNING. I WANT YOU TO GET A MESSAGE TO HER...
SURE, B.D., I'D BE GLAD TO. I'M SURE SHE'S WORRIED SICK ABOUT YOU!
NO! SHE HAD HER THIGHS DONE, TOO!
LIFE GOES ON, BABE.

THE FAR SIDE By GARY LARSON

"Oh, my! Cindy! This looks exquisite! . . . And look, Frank — it even has a cheeseball stuffed in its mouth!"

CALVIN AND HOBBES By BILL WATTERSON

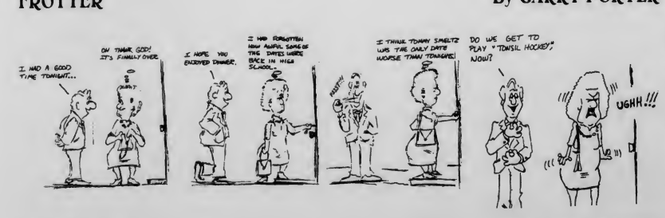


LOOK WHAT I MADE, HOBBES.
WHAT IS IT?
WHAT IS IT? WHY, IT'S A HUGE BIRD FOOT! I'M GOING TO PRESS IT IN THE SNOW AND MAKE EVERYONE THINK A TWO-TON CHICKADEE WALKED BY!
I GUESS TIME WEIGHS MORE HEAVILY ON SOME PEOPLE'S HANDS THAN OTHERS.
HE'S JUST JEALOUS BECAUSE I ACCOMPLISH SO MUCH MORE THAN HE DOES.

SNOOKY LANSON By E. VEZINA & R. SHAUGHNESSY

THE CAFE'S THE PERFECT SPOT TO MAKE FRIENDS — AND SINCE NOONE KNOWS WHAT PEOPLE THOUGHT OF ME IN HIGH SCHOOL...
HEY! DIDN'T YOU GO TO MY HIGH SCHOOL?
UUUUUH-
YEAH! YOU'RE THE GEEK THAT BLEW CHUNKS EVERY THURSDAY IN THE CAF!
NO— IT WASN'T ME! IT WASN'T ME!
YES IT WAS!
BLARP
HEY, IT'S PUKEY LANSON!
I KNEW IT.

FROTTER By GARRY PORTER



I HAD A GOOD TIME TONIGHT...
OH THANK GOD! IT'S FINALLY OVER.
I HOPE YOU ENJOYED DINNER.
I HAD FORGOTTEN HOW AWFUL SOME OF THE DATES WERE BACK IN HIGH SCHOOL.
I THINK TOMMY SMELTZ WAS THE ONLY DATE WORSE THAN TONIGHT!
DO WE GET TO PLAY "TONSIL HOCKEY" NOW?
UGHH!!!

TANGELO PIE By TIM SNIFFEN

Hi! We're Bonnie + Ted, and we are just totally in love!
Why are you telling me this?
Well, we saw you standing over here alone, with nobody, and we decided to come over + smother you with our drippy, romantic presence!
Thanks. That was thoughtful.
Bonnie, wanna make out?
sure!
Let it be known that, had I had a flame thrower handy, this would have gone much differently.
mmm!

QUOTE OF THE DAY

"I've never been drunk, but often I've been overserved."
— George Gobel

DAILY CROSSWORD PUZZLE
Edited By TRUDE MICHEL JAFFE

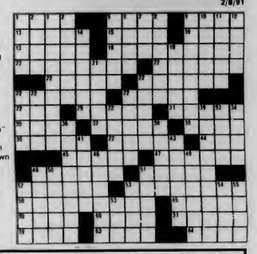
ACROSS
1 Actress Swenson
5 Blueprint, for short
9 Kind of appeal
13 Shearer of ballet fame
15 Select
16 Superior
17 Austrian composer Berg
18 Southern region of 30 Down
20 Resort of 30 Down
22 Entries at Ascot
23 Sighted
24 City painted by El Greco
25 Like some table tops
27 Fabulist
28 Period
29 Flings
31 Buffalo puckster
35 "When I was —, —" H.M.S. Pinafore
37 Locales
39 Of the sea: Abbr
40 Tender areas
42 Item of ownership
44 Nucleic acid
45 "City of Light"
47 Sharp surgical instrument
49 Cossack chief
51 Avenue, in Avignon
52 Titania's husband "Midsummer Night's Dream"
53 Open
56 Mediterranean port of 30 Down
58 Boutique
59 Unit of area
60 Constantly
61 Counting-out word
62 Bound
63 Take live
64 Author Ayn

DOWN
1 Islamic priest
2 Lopez theme
3 "The Rock"
4 Saudi —
5 Blanch
6 Andean wind
7 Yore: long ago
8 Cigars
9 Chef's need
10 Snooped
11 Dream Comb form
12 Arthur and Lillie
14 Weak
19 French composer's family
21 Castor's mother and namesakes
24 Students hurdles
25 Lupino and Tarbell
26 — contendere
27 It's —-up
30 Part of Iberia
32 Olympic city in 1992
33 Ancient alphabetic character
34 State, in Tours
36 Left
38 Deals in
41 Locale of Pago Pago
43 Author Gay
46 Forester
48 More orderly
49 Ancient computers
50 — Haute
51 "Cookery is become — —" Robert Burton
52 One —, child's baseball game
53 Ones in Lille
54 Hibernia
55 Legal document
57 Memorable Arden

ANSWER TO PREVIOUS PUZZLE:

S	K	I	T		C	O	S		G	A	F	F	E
P	I	N	E		W	I	L	D		P	A	L	S
A	W	N	S		A	L	A		S	E	T	U	P
S	I	S	T	E	R	S	H	I	P	S		H	E	Y
			S	A	G		G	A	M	E
D	U	B		T	E	D	S		S	P	A	R	T	A
A	R	I	E		E	A	S	T		I	T	E	M
R	I	G	A		G	E	N	D	A		V	I	N	E
T	A	B	S		U	P	T	O	D	A	T	E		O
S	H	R	E	D	S		O	N	C	E		E	N	D
		O	D	E	T	S		E	M	U
S	E	T		M	O	T	H	E	R	I	N	L	A	W
T	E	N	E		R	O	D	E	O		T	O	U	R
A	R	E	C	A		A	L	G	A		I	N	R	E
B	Y	R	O	N		P	E	E	L		L	E	A	N

2/8/91



MENU

LUNCH	DINNER
American chop suey Grilled cheese	Veal cutlet cordon bleu Chicken stew
BASICS LUNCH	BASICS DINNER
Macaroni and tomatoes Grilled cheese	Roman rice and beans chicken stew

YOUR DAILY HOROSCOPE
By JEANE DIXON

ARIES(March 21-April 19): An influential person is receptive to your ideas or special request. Keep your ears open at social events and you could hear of a great job opportunity. A friend makes a helpful introduction.

TAURUS(April 20-May 20): Being a team player is what higher-ups want most from you now. The people you wish to convince will be receptive only if a power play is set aside. Abandon an earlier maneuver.

GEMINI(May 21-June 20): Financial matters are in the spotlight. An old debt is repaid or missing valuables turn up. Make a bold new start at school or work. An influential contact could be a powerful ally.

CANCER(June 21-July 22): Faraway places capture your attention. You and a partner may be making plans for a trip with exciting possibilities. Once you reach a milestone in your work, a celebration is in order.

LEO(July 23-Aug 22): Go ahead and let other people in on a career secret. Once you open up, someone will work overtime to help out. Buying top-quality items will save you money in the long run.

VIRGO(Aug 23-Sept 22): A conflict could arise between your business and domestic duties. Compromise is necessary. A newcomer shows a strong interest in you. Be charming but protect your privacy.

LIBRA(Sept 23-Oct 22): Work closely with those who share your goals and success is certain! An investment turns out to be a big winner. Friends propose social plans that sound appealing. Romance enjoys favorable influences.

SCORPIO(Oct 23-Nov 21): Financial transactions are favored today. Play your cards close to your vest. Give a loved one some breathing space. Too much togetherness is counterproductive.

SAGITTARIUS(Nov. 22-Dec 21): A misunderstanding could start a business or marital partnership on a downhill slide. Clear things up before they get blown out of proportion. A recent investment looks even better now.

CAPRICORN(Dec 22-Jan 19): Beware of financial ventures proposed by friends. A platonic relationship is slowly turning romantic. You are both surprised and delighted. Go slow. Heed your intuition.

AQUARIUS(Jan 20-Feb 18): Be prepared to make intelligent concessions in order to gain an influential person's support. Once you have this individual's blessing, your efforts will be seen in a positive light.

PISCES(Feb 19-March 20): A good time to arrange for a loan or ask for a raise. A lost object is recovered. Put your family's security above all else. A phone message causes temporary confusion. Ask questions.

THE ADVISORY COMMITTEE ON HONORARY DEGREES

is currently receiving nominations and suggestions from the campus community for the 1992 Commencement.

Candidates for a honorary degree must be individuals of great distinction.

Factors to be considered include:
- Intellectual or other creative attainment of higher order in a special field or endeavor
- Extraordinary contributions to the University or the Commonwealth

Names of outsatnding candidates should be sent to :
Nancy Powers, Chancellor's Staff, 300 Whitmore
DEADLINE: March 8, 1991
FOR CONSIDERATION, NOMINATIONS MUST BE SUPPORTED BY THE SUBMISSION OF DETAILED BIOGRAPHICAL INFORMATION

Collegian Valentine Personals

GET PERSONAL THIS VALENTINES DAY!

FEBRUARY 14th

Deadline Is Tuesday February 12th at 3:30 pm

½ PRICE OFF ONLY 10¢ PER WORD

DAILY COLLEGIAN
113 Campus Center

Wouldn't you rather be here?

From Only:
$379
SPRING BREAK '91

YOUR TAKE A BREAK PARTY WEEK INCLUDES:
- DIRECT ROUND TRIP FLIGHT ON MAJOR CARRIER
- AIRPORT / HOTEL TRANSFERS
- 5 DAYS / 7 NIGHTS HOTEL ACCOMMODATIONS
- FREE WELCOME PARTY W/ RUM (BAHAMAS) OR TEQUILLA (CANCUN)
- FREE ADMISSIONS AND DISCOUNTS TO POPULAR NIGHT CLUBS
- FREE THREE HOUR PARTY CRUISE W/ UNLIMITED RUM PUNCH
- BEACH PARTIES, MUSIC AND ACTIVITIES
- OPTIONAL DAY TRIPS
- PROFESSIONAL ON-SITE TOUR ESCORT
- ALL SERVICE CHARGES, GRATUITIES, AND TAXES (EXCEPT FOREIGN DEPARTURE TAXES)
- TAKE A BREAK'S EXCLUSIVE MONEY BACK GUARANTEE!!!

SPACE IS LIMITED!!! CALL NOW!!!

CANCUN • BAHAMAS • JAMAICA

Mention this ad and receive up to a $100 discount per room!

256-8266
ask for Eligio or Josh

TAKE A BREAK STUDENT TRAVEL

"Don't take a chance.....TAKE A BREAK!"

RÉSUMÉS
CopyCat Print Shop
• Great Service • Great Prices
228 Triangle St./Amherst 549-3840

Café Ashley
ROUTE 9 HADLEY, MA 586-6393
LOCATED IN THE HOWARD JOHNSON MOTOR LODGE
Very Fresh Very Economical Very Friendly
VERY OPEN!
7:00 AM – 10:00 PM
7 DAYS A WEEK
BREAKFAST ▪ LUNCH ▪ DINNER

"WHAT'S LEFT" Sale
Savings to 70% off winter shoes, boots, clothing and accessories.
ZAMA
Women's Shoes · Clothing & Accessories
Zama • 187 N. Pleasant Street • Amherst
Monday-Saturday 10-6 Sunday 12-5
413 253 2563

THE PUB
fun food & Spirits
Celebrate Our New Menu
Mexican Pizza $2.00
Friday and Saturday 8:00 pm - 10:00 pm
Pitchers of Miller Lite $4.50
Genuine Draft 12 oz Bottles $1.25
Jello Shots $1.00
SINCE • 1968
15 EAST PLEASANT·AMHERST

■ men's preview

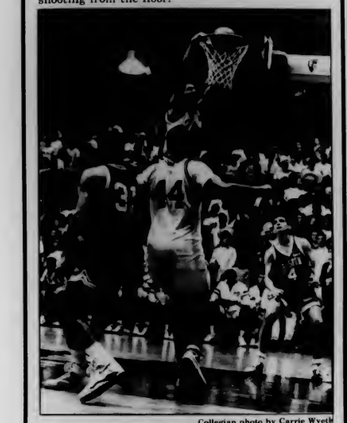
CONTINUED FROM PAGE 12

seven games.

West Virginia's impression is still fresh from Wednesday night, when the Mountaineers showcased their league-best running game, talented freshmen Mike Boyd and Pervires Greene, and inside force in the name of Chris Brooks.

The Mountaineers play at Temple Sunday afternoon before hosting UMass. WVA is 10-1 on its home court.

Game Notes: Both games will be broadcast on WMUA 91.1 FM and WHMP 99.3 FM . . . Duquesne has outscored its opponents from the field in 16 of 19 games, but shoots a glaring 60 percent from the free-throw line as a team . . . UMass' Will Herndon, John Tate, Jim McCoy and coach John Calipari all hail from the Pittsburgh area . . . Wednesday Brooks answered fans who mocked him with donuts tied on poles — the Cage stunt of the season — with 21 points on 10 of 11 shooting from the floor.



Collegian photo by Carrie Wyeth

Jim McCoy (20) dunks as John Tate (44) looks on during the UMass-BU game.

Track team puts unblemished record on line

By DAN WETZEL
Collegian Staff

The University of Massachusetts women's track team will put it's perfect season on the line Saturday when it competes against New Hampshire and Rhode Island in Durham, N.H.

"New Hampshire should not be a problem," coach Julie LaFreniere said. "URI on the other hand is going to be tough to beat. They just have a strong overall team and they are especially tough in the field events."

UMass (11-0) enters the meet minus one top performer. Sophmore Becky Johnson is out with a virus and LaFreniere is unsure when she could return.

"The doctors are not certain what the problem is," LaFreniere said. "If they clear her to run then she will compete but I am not going to risk Becky's health for this meet.

"We will miss her, Becky is the defending New England Champion in the 1,000-meters and obviously she is an important part of our team."

LaFreniere will be looking to Lee Ann Ambrose to pick up the slack. Ambrose will compete in the 600-yard run and the 200-yard dash and will anchor the 4 x 400-yard relay. LaFreniere expects her to win both individual races.

"I don't think that there is anyone [at URI or UNH] that can run with Lee Ann," LaFreniere said. "She is just too strong."

Kelly Liljeblad should also be an important factor according to LaFreniere. Liljeblad will double up in the mile, the 1,000 as well as compete in the 4 x 800 relay. Again LaFreniere is looking for two victories.

"No one can beat Kelly," LaFreniere said. "She is going to run the mile easy and save herself for the 1,000. Kelly won't be trying to break any records, she just wants to help the team."

Even with shot-putter Samone Marisseau, URI looks to be too strong in the field events for UMass to keep pace with them.

"On paper URI looks better than us, but not by much," LaFreniere said. "If we can pull out a few upsets it will be close and anything can happen in a close meet. We will miss Becky dearly but this team responds to challenges well and this meet will be a challenge.

Skiers hope to gain ground against Brown

By GEOFF STOKES
Collegian Correspondent

The University of Massachusetts ski team will be looking to gain some ground in the standings when they compete this weekend against Brown University at Loon Mt. in Lincoln, N.H.

UMass ski coach Bill MacConnell said it was a three-way dogfight between Boston College, Plymouth State and UMass in both the men's and women's divisions. The UMass men currently find themselves in third place behind Plymouth and first-place BC. The women's team is a close second behind BC and well ahead of third-place Plymouth.

"I anticipate that the women will be able to pull even or ahead of Plymouth if they ski well this weekend," MacConnell said.

The top skiers for the women include sophmore J.J. Tanguay, who won the slalom and giant slalom last week, and juniors Marci Blacker and Jan Egan.

The men are lead by senior Pete Selkowitz, last year's MVP, and juniors Chuck Holcomb and John Donovan.

"I hope the men's team can improve on last week's performance and gain on the leaders," he said. MacConnell said the team has the right attitude and he foresees a good performance from them.

"We are in a good frame of mind and are in fine shape injury-wise," he said.

He said he expects good ski racing conditions for this weekend — hard, icy snow.

"It's been warm, but the man-made snow should be adequate for a good race," he said.

Men's gymnastics prepare for MIT

Coach Roy Johnson does not forsee a difficult meet this weekend as the University of Massachusetts men's gymnastics team faces up against the Massachusetts Institute of Technology in Cambridge tomorrow.

MIT, a Division III team, simply won't be able to keep up with the highly competitive UMass team, according to Johnson. However, MIT's vaulting may pose the greatest challenge for the Minutemen.

Johnson said he hopes to rack up points with the floor performances of sophomore Rob Thomas and freshman Jason Braud.

He said he hopes to mix up the routines a little, trying new combinations and giving the younger gymnasts a chance to perform in a collegiate meet.

Performing as all-arounds for UMass will be Dave DiNucci, Steve Christensen and Joe Herren.

Johnson said he wants the team to remain focused on tougher opponents like Temple (Feb. 16) and Army (Feb. 23).

— MIKE MORRISSEY

COME TO THE COLLEGIAN OFFICE—CC 113 MON — THURS 8:30-3:30 ● DEADLINE 2 DAYS PRIOR TO PUBLICATION ● CASH IN ADVANCE, 20¢/WORD/DAY FOR STUDENTS

CLASSIFIEDS

ACTIVITIES

ANIMAL RIGHTS COALITION meeting on Sunday February 10 at 7pm in the office 306 Student Union.

ANYONE INTERESTED IN SHOTOKAN KARATE! THERE WILL BE AN INTRODUCTORY WORKOUT TONITE 7PM IN TOTMAN 101. INFO 549-2954

AUDITIONS FOR INTO THE WOODS Open call, come one, set. Feb. 8, 8pm S.U.B., Feb. 9, 1pm and 6pm 163 Campus Center. Call Backs Feb. 10 1pm

CHILL OUT! Free Meditation Workshop Mon. Campus Center, Rm917, 7:30pm

- PARTY -
CLUB C.C.A.
TONIGHT
FRIDAY FEBRUARY 8th
9PM - 1AM
CAMPUS CENTER AUDITORIUM
DJ: PERFECT MIX

ANNOUNCEMENTS

AEROBICS NAUTILUS STAIRMASTERS Lifecycles, freeweights, treadmill, gravitron, step-classes, karate. Amherst Athletic Club. 256-0080

BED AND BREAKFAST- downtown ideal for visiting parents and friends- 549-0733.

CARIBBEAN- $189! The warmth of the Caribbean or Mexican coast for a week. R/T Air Sunhitch +m 212-864-2000

COUNSELING & ADVISING FOR OLDER STUDENTS. Come share your registration horror stories and happy endings. 211, 11-1, Mechmer E-21

DRUM-award winning Black Arts and Literature magazine-now accepting submissions. 115 NAH

GREENOUGH SNACK BAR IS OPEN! COME ON IN FOR SOME QUALITY MADE TO ORDER FOOD AND GET THAT MUNCHY SATISFACTION!!

HOUSE MUSIC
Is here from the underground. John, DJ Tapes- 549-5318.

INTERNATIONAL STUDENTS ASSOCIATION
First general meeting
2/12/91 Tuesday
7pm
Campus Center 905-9
All are welcome!

NEED BUSINESS EXPERIENCE? VOLUNTEER AT THE UMASS STUDENT FEDERAL CREDIT UNION. INFO SESSIONS FEBRUARY 11, 4&7PM, CC803

PHI ALPHA THETA - int'l History Honors Society accepting applications from new members. Info-applications in History office Herter. Deadline 2/28

RUN FOR RUNAWAYS!
Staff Meeting-
Sunday, Feb. 10 8pm
Newmen Center
All Are Welcome
WE NEED YOUR HELP!

THE NORTHEAST AMERICAN BALLET AND JAZZ ENSEMBLE WILL HOLD A DANCE AUDITION FOR NEW MEMBERS ON SATURDAY, FEBRUARY 9th AT 3:00pm AT 25 MAIN ST. NORTHAMPTON-TOP FLOOR ABOVE FITZWILLIES. CALL 584-8521

ULTIMATE FRISBEE OPEN PRACTICES FOR EVERYONE. INDOOR PRACTICES IN THE EVENINGS. FOR INFO CALL JED AT 256-6799 OR JASON 549-4260

VOLUNTEERS NEEDED: Military daughter wants to interview current and former college students from military families for her graduate research study exploring the adjustment to college. Call (collect) now to schedule an interview: (1)268-7584, evenings.

AUTO FOR SALE

1980 HONDA PRELUDE, standard, running condition, needs some work. $250 or B.O. Call Ray 256-3456

1984 PLYMOUTH CONQUEST
Black 5-speed
Sunroof, Alpine stereo
Asking $3700
Call 253-0861

1986 ENCORE
Excellent condition
$2500 253-2858

CHEN STYLE TAI CHI

COME LEARN THIS earliest form of T'ai Chi which features slow/fast, soft/vigorous, empty/solid movements. Class begins Feb. 5 and 7. Call 253-4057

FOR RENT

AMHERST, 1 BEDROOM AVAILABLE IN 3 BEDROOM, NEW HOUSE ON BUS LINE, FIREPLACE, BEAUTIFUL!! AVAILABLE NOW CALL 8-4, 665-3328

LARGE ROOM IN 2 BEDROOM TOWNHOUSE. GREAT PLACE TO LIVE, ON BUS ROUTE. CLOSE TO CAMPUS. CALL 253-4031 LEAVE MESSAGE

ROOM IN 3 bedroom. Until 8-31-91. $160 per month. Negotiable. No deposit. No last month rent. 545-0591.

WINTER SPECIAL: 1 month rent 99 cents with one year lease
2 bedroom- $450
3 bedroom- $537
Sunderland. Free bus route, laundry facilities, swimming pool, garden plots, short term lease available.
665-3856

FOR SALE

1990 ALLEZ RACING bike-shimano 600 ultegra equipped. Sebastian 546-3040

AEROSMITH BACKSTAGE PASSES tour 1991. Call for details 546-2396. Reasonable prices.

GREAT VALENTINE'S DAY GIFT
UMASS glow in the dark boxers
Delivered with your personal note
Only $10!
Call 546-0424 for details

ROUNDTRIP TICKETS TO Jacksonville. Only $125. each. Call 6-5814

SKIS/BOOTS
Lacroix skis with bindings-180's
Lange boots and Lange heated boots
Very reasonable!
549-9932

VACCUM CLEANER, SHOPVAC MIGHTY MINI. Excellent condition. Available cheap. Call 549-1809

HELP WANTED

9-$15 HOURLY AVERAGE
Sell art reproduction (prints)
part time at school, low key, management at some schools, national publisher
Call 1-800-221-2229

ASSEMBLERS: EXCELLENT INCOME to assemble products from your home. 508-846-1700 Dept. pt307.

INTELLIGENCE JOBS. All branches US Customs, DEA ect. Now hiring. Call 1-805-962-8000 Ext. K-9616.

NEWSPAPER DELIVERERS NEEDED in UMASS dorms. No car required. 7-8am 7 days/week. Call 253-7009.

$$$ OPPORTUNITY OF a lifetime $$$ Own your own business. Set your own hours. Work while in school. Interested, call 546-7469.

RELIABLE BABYSITTER TO care for 1yr and 4yr old in Shutesbury. Tues 3-8 and Wed 4-8, occasional wkends. Must have reliable transportation. Call 259-1533 after 8pm $6/hr.

WANTED: TOUR GUIDES, summer counselors, student admissions representatives. Applications available at Admissions Center.

WORK ON CAPE COD. Gain valuable experience teaching children about ocean-ecology, small pets or environmental education at a day camp in the Falmouth area. Camp cook also needed to prepare staff meals. Housing available. Contact: Ed Powers, Animal Rescue League, PO BOX 265, Boston, MA 02117 or call 617-426-9170.

INSTRUCTION

EARN CREDIT learn to Scuba Dive. Basic Classes held Monday, Tuesday, Wednesday, and Thursday 7-10PM in Curry Hicks Pool. Open Water II class held during Spring Break in Key Largo, FLA. Advanced Class held in New England in April. For further information call 549-8401, or drop by Curry Hicks starting 2/4/91.

GUITAR LESSONS with: Doug Hewitt. Rock, Blues, Folk. Acoustic or Electric Improv.; Theory, Reading, Songwriting, many new songs -plus singing. Studio on 3 bus lines. 549-1938.

HOW TO REALLY READ
(At the College Level!)
3 wk crash course, 8 2hr. sessions
From an English Professor
$84 Call 549-8774

LOST

GLASSES IN A TOUGH BROWN CASE $15, CALL G. 546-5776

GOLD BRAIDED BRACELET very sentimental! Reward call 546-4912

HELP ! LOST
My wallet, it's maroon/purple cloth, lost Thurs. Jan. 31, please contact Kristen 6-5609 if found!

PERSONALS

AUSTRALIAN MAN IN SYLVAN- YOU CAME TO MY REGISTER LINE ON SATURDAY AT THE TEXTBOOK ANNEX. WOULD LIKE TO HEAR YOUR SEXY ACCENT AGAIN. IF INTERESTED PLEASE RESPOND HERE. THE BORED CREDIT CARD CLERK.

CHRIS- FLOUNDER
HAPPY BIRTHDAY
Thanx for always being there
Love Always Jules & 18

CHRIS McCLURE - you owe people money, you think you know everything, but Happy Birthday anyway. 6-MAN

FORMER ACCT 221 Brunette- Welcome back. I'm still interested. Are you? DD

INTERESTED in Christian Fellowship? The Alliance Christian Fellowship welcomes you! More info: Jim or Beth 253-7206

JACQUI GOSS - You Goof! The trivial bunny has run away with all the birthday presents! All of us wish you the happiest birthday anyway!!!

MY HONEY PIE YOU ARE MY SUNSHINE AND I LOVE YOU TWICE AS MUCH TODAY AS YESTERDAY. LOVE, YOUR SWEETIE PIE

LOOK OUT GIRLS
THE LOVE DOCTOR'S
BIRTHDAY IS TOMM
HE'LL BE ON THE PROWL!
HAPPY BIRTHDAY ERIC LOVE GUESS WHO!

RUSH THETA CHI
Best on campus location, best in house meals by our chef Jim, pool table/foozz/hoops/volleyball, cheaper than dorms- Univ. approved housing, recently remodeled entire house, large electronic entertainment center, sun deck, antilon renderings by Wellman(a national merit scholar), tightest brotherhood on campus, lifelong friends, stop by to see what you've been missing!
RUSH THETA-CHI DATES
Tue Feb. 12 Pinnochio's Pizza Night
Thu Feb. 14 Buffalo Wings Night
Tue Feb. 19 Billiards and Fooz Night
Thu Feb. 21 Mexican Night
All events in house 7:30-9:00
496 No. Pleasant St. (Right next to Newman Ctr.)

TO MY BALD LITTLE HITHER
CONGRATULATIONS on the beginning of your twenty second year of life! Love, Dibbie

What is the ULTIMATE HUNT? Find out in 3 days

ROOMMATE WANTED

MALE ROOMATE WANTED to share furnished Brody Wn apartment $179/mo heat included. Willing to negotiete price. Call 159-45591

ONE FEMALE NEEDED to shere a room in townehouse apts 549-2824 $190.

SERVICES

PREGNANT?
Need a pregnancy test, information or support? Call for free and confidential services. ALTERNATIVES 33 Main Street Northampton 586-3000 or Greenfield 774-6010

STUDY ABROAD IN AUSTRALIA
Information on semester, summer, J-term graduate and internship programs. All programs run under $6000! Call Curtin University at 1-800-878-3696

SINGING VALENTINES

DELIVERED: CLASSES, DORMS, FRATS
INEXPENSIVE
PROFESSIONAL
546-2263

SPECIAL ANNOUNCEMENT

ATTENTION UMASS STUDENTS
Explore self and personal issues through psychodrama in a safe confidential setting. Group meets Tuesdays 7-8:30PM starting 2/12/91 for 10 weeks. No fee. Register-Call Mark locally at 665-3678

ESTABLISH CREDIT

DISCOVER CARDS
No cost to apply
Call Mark at 546-4814
Leave message

SPRING BREAK

SPRING BREAK PARTY!
Travel to Jamacia, Mexico! And Panama City !!! Concerts! Free Parties! Club discounts! And lots more! For info call Denise 546-7156

TRAVEL

CAN'T AFFORD SPRING BREAK? GUARANTEED GREAT PRICES with top collegiate company! Space available to Jamaica, Cancun, Acapulco and Panama City Beach Florida (the "new Daytona Beach")! MC/VISA ARE ACCEPTED! Call Cindy at 549-3538-please leave message!

* * * * * * * *

FLORIDA'S NEWEST
HOT SPOT
Panama City-$139
* * * * * * * *
World's Biggest Beach
PARTY
Daytona Beach-$189
Call Erika + Julie at 546-2649
or Siobhan + Terri at 546-5079

MONTREAL WEEKENDS $89 price includes round trip motorcoach 3days 2nights Hotel suite, breakfast free admission to club metropolis.
RELIABLE TOURS
365 Broadway Rt. 1
Lynnfield, MA 01940
617-598-9936

SPRING BREAK IS COMING! NEED AN OVERVIEW OF ALL THE POSSIBILITIES? SOME ADVICE? CALL CAMPUS TRAVEL OR STOP BY THE CAMPUS CENTER! 545-0500

SPRING BREAK MOST EXPERIENCE, GREAT RATES! CALL TO FIND OUT. Brendan 549-0308, Daryl 256-1091

WAKE-N-BAKE!!! Spring Break '91!! Jamaica/Cancun from $459.00!! A week of fun and sun! The hottest destinations 1-800-426-7710

WANTED

I NEED THIS book for my Econ 204 class! Richard T. Froyen's Macroeconomics Theories and Policies, third edition. Call Preston 545-1361.

WANTED: ASSISTANT BUSINESS manager and assistant finance manager! The Collegian is looking for--ambitious, responsible, organized, sophmores with good communication skills. Applications available at the Collegian and must be submitted no later than Friday, Feb. 8, 1991. The Collegian is an EOE

SPORTS

West Virginia runs past UMass

By GREG SUKIENNIK
Collegian Staff

West Virginia University, helped by runs of 26-8 at the end of the first half and 27-8 at the start of the second, soundly defeated a flu-stricken University of Massachusetts women's basbetball team 84-47 last night at Curry Hicks Cage.

The Minutewomen, now 0-20 and 0-12 in the Atlantic 10 Conference, were tied with the Mountaineers 14-14 halfway through the first. Ten of those points came from Keyburn McCusker and Lisa Ireland, as both players made their presence felt near the basket.

Collegian photo by Carrie Wyeth

Maleeka Valentine (14) sends a lob pass to Keyburn McCusker (15) while WVU's Rosemary Kosiorek looks on.

At that point, WVU made their first run. Defensive pressure, a better-executed offense and 15 first half points from Rosemary Kosiorek helped. Two UMass timeouts in the first half failed to stem the Mountaineer tide.

In the second half, WVU added the fast-break attack and full-court man-to-man defensive pressure into their game plan, and it was lights out.

"Our job from the outset was to put some pressure on their guards and not let them run their offense, and we did a pretty good job of that," said WVU co-coach Scott Harrleson.

Meanwhile, UMass' lack of team depth, worsened lately by the effects of a near-epidemic flu on the team, made it difficult for the Minutewomen to counter the Mountaineers' running game and defensive pressure.

"We were right into it in the first half," explained UMass coach Kathy Hewelt. "But then we got into some foul trouble, we've got some kids coming off the bench, we're turning the basketball over, they pick up the defensive pressure at that point and that makes it tough."

Hewelt noted that WVU's persistent defense had her team shaken in the second half. "We had our confidence seriously challenged with defensive pressure and then we had difficulty seeing anything on the floor. We weren't seeing [offensive] cutters or screens, so we stopped cutting and setting screens. And it all turns into a snowball effect."

Kosiorek, a 5-foot-5 guard, did as she pleased all night long for the Mountaineers, now 11-8 overall and 6-4 in the A-10. The junior guard finished with 20 points, including her 15 point first-half outburst, dished out 4 assists and shot 7 for 13 from the field for the game, all in 25 minutes of play.

Donna Abbott turned in a nice all-around effort to complement Rosiorek. Abbott scored 17 points, grabbed nine rebounds and went 7 for 10 from the foul line to help WVU seal the victory.

For UMass, McCusker turned in a 7 for 12, 14 point, seven rebound performance despite missing two days of practice with the flu. She played particularly well late in the second half, scoring on a variety of post-up and baseline jumpshots.

While WVU continued to pour it on in the second half, Hewelt was pleased with her team's continued effort despite the score.

West Virginia, 84-47

West Virginia (84)
Branham 3-7 O-7 Abbott 5-12 7-10 17, Wilson 2 3-3 4-7 Kosiorek 7-13 6-7 20, Zak 0-3 0-0 0, Quartermont 2-6 0-1 4, Murray 2-5 3-5 7, Neal 3-5 1-1 7, Parry 0-0 2-2 2, Tillman 1-5 2-2 6, Runner 3-4 1-2 7 Totals 28-63 25-34 84

Massachusetts (47)
Knitofski 1-2 0-0 2, Ireland 5-11 1-2 11, McCusker 0-0 14, Schuster 1-8 3-4 5, Muza 0-5 0-1 0, Newarez 2-6 0-0 4, Moran 1-3 0-0 2, Valentine 1-5 3-4 5, Hessel 2-3 0-1 4, Richard 0-0 0-0 0 Totals 20-55 7-11 47

Halftime West Virginia 40, Massachusetts 22 Three point goals Branham Fouled Out none Rebounds WVU 47 (Abbott 9) UMass 33 (Ireland 8) Assists WVU 13 (Kosiorek 4) UMass 10 (Newarez 3) Total fouls WVU 16, UMass 27 A - 100

Road trip a test of men's hoop character

By SAM SILVERSTEIN
Collegian Staff

Wednesday nights' 85-82 overtime loss to West Virginia at the Cage dropped the Minutemen from second to sixth in the Atlantic 10.

More importantly, it begged a question that will be answered in the six remaining games before the A-10 Tournament: How good can this University of Massachusetts men's basketball team be?

The Minutemen are 14-7, the best start for a UMass team since Jack Leaman's 1975-76 opened 17-4.

But UMass has beaten just one of the five teams ranked above it in the league — fourth-place George Washington — and has lost five A-10 games by a combined total of 10 points.

How good can this University of Massachusetts men's basketball team be?

Said Harper Williams after Wednesday night's loss, "We've learned from this game. We'll be all right for the tournament and future games."

In Tony Barbee's absence last week, Williams has answered on the floor as well. In UMass' last four games, the 6-foot-7 sophomore center has averaged 19.5 points, 9.5 rebounds and 3.5 blocks. Williams' stat line vs. West Virginia: 23 points, career-high 17 rebounds, 3 blocks, 3 steals.

Barbee will travel with the team to Pittsburgh, Pa., this weekend and will suit up, but is questionable for games against Duquesne Saturday (7:35 p.m.), and West Virginia Tuesday (7:30 p.m.).

The Dukes (7-12, 5-6) have been set back by injuries recently, too. Their top two scorers, James Hargrove (14.2 points per game) and Alan Watkins (13), both have stress fractures and will not play.

In the first matchup between Duquesne and UMass, Jan. 10 at the Cage, the Dukes led 70-69 with 5:21 left, then skidded to an 81-75 loss. UMass made 6 of 8 free throws down the stretch.

Guard Tony Petrarca is one of the best 3-point shooters in the league — 51 of his 56 field goals have been treys — and 6-foot-10 freshman center Derrick Alston has averaged 16.5 points, 8.7 rebounds and 2 blocks in his last

CONTINUED ON PAGE 11

Hey, Kiam: Open mouth, insert foot

Generally speaking, I try to reserve this space for something I feel strongly about — leave it to Victor Kiam to make me feel strongly.
Will this idiot ever learn?
NO.
Ahhh, but how freely he speaks of others. Like Pat Sullivan, Paul Tagliabue, Zeke Mowatt . . . I can't help but think about those liberal journalism professors who have taught me about the freedom of speech, what the First Amendment stands for and who it protects.

Adrien Matt

Unfortunately, it protects Kiam. He has the right to speak his mind, albeit an ill-tempered one. Even caustic speech should be protected.

Yet people like Kiam abuse the freedom of speech. And as a journalist, it makes my stomach churn to witness a guy like him abuse a freedom I would like to see respected years beyond my grave.

At a time when journalists in the Persian Gulf are fighting for their right to know, I'd rather not know about Kiam's abrasive comments and jokes about the Gulf, never mind the sexism.

Imagine working a dream job, a job whose hours are the pits but the boss and staff are okay, the pay is decent and you really like your work. Maybe you'd like to switch departments. Football's a great beat but you're such a fanatic about hockey . . . then imagine your dream shattered.

Shattered into so many millions of "touchy" pieces you're afraid to start picking them up for fear of being cut again. Then comes the hate mail, the life-threatening phone calls and the stares. The types of stares that put you six feet under, never to see the light of day again. The types of stares that you remember well after dark, that make you walk faster at night.

You've experienced the most degrading and humiliating barrage of comments from peers and the press, nevermind the comments from complete strangers — on the field, in a bar, on the T.

Yes, you want to go to the press conference to try to clear the air and answer some questions. But you have to look into those lights — the interrogation type from TV crews — and all those faces. And with the faces come more stares.

For crying out loud, you were just doing your job. The career you loved so much, worked so hard to develop, sacrificed so much for — and for what? To have some dumb jock flaunt his genitalia in front of your face as others jeered on him and each other? To have his boss snidely call you a classic bitch in front of your peers and his underlings?

NO.

Now there's the chance that the Patriots will move their camp back to UMass. This would do wonders for the economy. It would add a little cash to the athletic department's dwindling funds. It would make people in Beantown sit up and realize there is life in Mass west of I-495. It could add some prestige — nevermind, cancel that thought.

Cheers to Jim Reid who won co-Coach of the Year, courtesy of the Gridiron Club of Greater Boston. It was great to see the Minutemen (I'm still humored by that moniker) go so far and do so well this fall. I must admit there were times my freshman year I wanted to beg Reid to let me put on some pads and eyeblack and win one for my school. I no longer feel the Minutemen need my assistance on the field. Nor do they need my assistance in the locker room as Reid closed the room to all media in the middle of the season.

Ya know, the more things change, the more they stay the same.

Adrien Matt is a Collegian staff member

Gymnasts hope to tame Towson

By LYNN FRANKEL
Collegian Correspondent

The University of Massachusetts women's gymnastics team is headed down to Towson State to take on some serious competition this weekend.

It will be a grudge match for the women as Towson State handed them their only two loses of the season last year.

UMass coach Alfie Mitchell said he knows this will be a tough meet, but has confidence that the team will come home with another win to add to their unblemished (2-0) record.

He remains quite optimistic despite the loss of the team's only senior, Kristen Turmail. (Turmail suffered a knee injury that has sidelined her for the season).

Mitchell said he is looking for an all-around team effort.

"Everyone must improve and bear the weight of the load," he said. As a result, he is looking to Tammy Marshall, one of the leading all-around competitiors to lead the team.

Freshman Margaret Furtado has also been moved up to the all-around, and Mitchell said he expects a strong performance. Juniors Kim Grady and Erin Kleir will also compete in the all-around.

Mitchell said he is also counting on some of the freshmen for a good showing. Erica Finkelman, Kari Tabachnick, Angela Jent and last year's red shirt, Ann Kiosik, are expected pull in some competitive scores in this dual meet.

Sophomores Abby Mai and Lisa Beth Cronan will also be making the trip.

Tough Terriers host swimmers

By THOMAS A. GEORGE
Collegian Correspondent

The University of Massachusetts men's swimming program will be winding up their regular season at Boston University Saturday.

Compitition should prove quite stiff, a true uphill battle according to coach Russ Yarworth. Both UMass and BU are members of the Eastern Seaboard Conference.

BU swims a tougher schedule than UMass and is looking to qualify swimmers for the upcoming Easterns.

UMass has a recognized 10-1 season, and is gunning for its fifth straight New England Championship in as many years.

The team has developed two freshman into collegiate-level material. However, both have been lostering nagging injuries.

Tim Nubart has been suffering from stomach flu, so severe he was in the hosptial for days. Another freshman standout, Mark Stoelting, an Ohio state All-American, has been plagued by chronic nerve problems in his elbow. However, Yarorth said both will compete Saturday.

The diving squad started the season in the shadow of two outstanding '90 graduates. Yet, three divers began to shine from the start.

Seniors Bill Rozen and Rich Dockery as well as junior Steve Meyers could quite possibly end up in New England's top 10 when the story is over, according to Yarworth.

Yarworth admits that he and BU coach Reagh Wetmore have developed a friendly rivalry. In the past four years the two have traded some true thrillers.

Yarworth said the toughest competition this time will be in the 400-yard relay. He said he also expects BU's top sprinters, Mike Noonan (50 and 100 freestyle) and Scott Riewald (individual medley and 100 free), to race well.

Largest College Daily in New England
THE MASSACHUSETTS DAILY COLLEGIAN Established in 1890
VOLUME C MONDAY, FEBRUARY 11, 1991 ISSUE 79

Grad student arrested in anti-war protest

By DAVID RIVERA
Collegian Correspondent

A University of Massachusetts graduate student was arrested when he and a group calling themselves, "The Peace Corpses," staged a "Guerrilla Theater" in downtown Amherst on Saturday as a protest of the war in the Persian Gulf.

"The war is going great, we had some losses today but things are going just fine," yelled Bill Troper, a UMass graduate student and inactive army reservist who, dressed as General Schwarzkopf, parodied a military press conference.

While Troper barked out information and commands, the other demonstrators laid down around his feet symbolizing American soldiers, killed to date, in the war.

The group, clad in chemical warfare uniforms and gas masks, held their, "Death Theater live," in front of the Unitarian meeting house on North Pleasant Street.

As the performance continued, groups of people gathered around while cars slowed down in response to some of the groups signs which read, "Honk For Peace."

The group, a street theater company, held the demonstration on the same day of the pro-troop rally at Westover Air Force Base in Chicopee.

Town of Amherst police separated some members of the group from a small group of Amherst College students, who were returning from the pro-troop rally and staged a counter-rally. Police intervened when a shouting match erupted.

Troper and the other members continued the demonstration until police arrested Troper for being a disorderly person. He apparently refused to speak with police away from the gathering, prompting the arrest.

Amherst police stated they had received complaints about the demonstration and had little recourse but to arrest Troper when he refused to cooperate.

The arrest brought cheers from the Amherst College students and jeers from Troper's fellow Peace Corpses.

"They have every right to their opinion, we do too, to be an American is to have your own opinion," said Joe Keating, a member of the Peace Corpses.

Allen Pese, an Amherst College student and former U.S. Marine said, "We're not pro-war, We're pro-policy. I think people should show more support for the troops, I might get called out of school and I sure would like people to support me."

After Troper's arrest the Amherst College students disbanded while the Peace Corpses marched to the Amherst police station and bailed out the group's leader.

Troper was released after five hours in the police department jail, where he said he experienced, "the usual concrete cell stuff."

Troper also went on to explain that neither of the previous demonstrations, on the Calvin Coolidge Bridge and in Northampton center, ended with arrests and added he is seeking help and advice from both the University Legal Services and the American Civil Liberties Union.

Troper said Saturday's performance was only the third of, "more performances to come," and as the war continues students and local residents prepare for what appears to be a turbulent time in the Five College Area.

Collegian photo by Aaron Webster

Guerilla Theater protesters march on downtown Amherst Saturday.

Administration shuts door on constitution meeting

By MARC ELLIOTT
Collegian Staff

The Constitutional Committee, elected by the Undergraduate Student Senate late Wednesday night to draft a new constitution, got off to a shaky start Saturday afternoon when they were locked out of the Student Senate Office.

The committee was forced to hold its first meeting on the couches in the Campus Center basement after Building Operations personnel, under orders from the administration, refused to open the Senate office, according to Adam Scales, Student Government Association attorney general.

Scales, also the chairperson on the committee, said he did not know what this action could indicate for the SGA's future.

"Around 1 p.m.," said Scales, "I went down to the information desk to the staff member there and he told me that he'd received a memorandum that morning that instructed him not to open the SGA for any reason whatsoever for a person without a key. The timing of this certainaly left a lot for someone more cynical than myself to think about."

The drafting committee faced another setback when Dickinson Senator Marjorie Decker threatened to disrupt future proceedings until equal representation on the committee is achieved.

"I hope people don't, aren't seeing it through one narrow 'Well, it was a democratic process, it's the way it should be' because just because it happens like that, it's not the way it should be," Decker said. "And I will keep coming here, and I will have other people here, and disrupt this process because I don't think this process should continue. Not that I don't want it to continue, I do."

Scales said while he was disappointed that there were no women on the committee, the members were elected fairly and anyone can attend the committee meetings and offer advice.

"The senate certainly has a right to be wrong in terms of who is selected as committee member," explained Scales. "Although I did not give this much weight before, at least half the people voting were women, and although I would not suggest that they all think alike or ought to work as a block, it does somehow suggest it may not be the white male haven it is portrayed to be.

"I hope and pray that she and anyone else who feels they out to be here attend. I encouraged [other senators]. I said 'Come, I want you there.' They're not here. I don't know what we can do about that," Scales continued.

Decker said she did not think that women were deliberately excluded from the committee, but the problem must be addressed.

"There's reasons why all men got voted on to this committee," Decker said. "There's reasons why seven white men, seven white heterosexual men, got voted on to this thing. It was an unconscious thing and that's the problem."

"It's not one problem, one solution. It's part of a problem that is part of our society. There are reasons why seven white men got voted on to this and that's a societal problem," she said.

- Several of the senators attending the meeting said the new efforts to restructure student government would not be happening at all if not for the actions of the Senate officers when they asked the administration two weeks ago to suspend the SGA.

"I honestly don't think anything would have been done if they hadn't done it," said committee member Dennis Crowley, a senator from John Adams. "I applaud them for taking the step. I don't like the step they took, but I applaud them for taking it. Now, we can steer off in a different direction."

Those elected to the committee are: Jeff Turco (Brown), Ken Parker (Commuter), Kevin Newnan (Johnson), Dennis Crowley (John Adams), Danny Cohen (Third World Caucus), Dave Gagne (Wheeler), and Frank Martin (Moore).

Chariman Scales holds a non-voting seat. Also in attendance, but not officially on the committee were: Kathy Flaherty (Gorman), Paul Dionne (Field), Michael Chidi (Gorman), and Marjorie Decker (Dickinson).

Rep. Conte dies; special election likely to be called

WASHINGTON (AP) — Massachusetts is likey to hold a special election to fill the vacancy created by the death of Rep. Silvio O. Conte, the lone Republican in the state's congressional delegation, a lawmaker said Saturday.

Conte died of a cerebral hemorrage Friday night after a long battle with prostrate cancer. He was 69.

Rep. Joseph Moakely (D-Mass.) chairman of the House Rules Committee, said Gov. Weld would select a date for an election. Weld, a Republican, made no immediate comment on a special election.

A funeral Mass will be held at 2 p.m. Wednesday at St. Joseph's Church in Pittsfield. A memorial will also be held in the Capitol Rotunda at a later date, Conte's office said.

Moakely and other Massachusetts lawmakers said it would take more than a special election to fill the power vacuum left by Conte, who served on Capitol Hill for 34 years.

'History will list Silvio O. Conte as one of the greatest Massachusetts members of Congress and one of the nation's greatest public servants," Rep. Richard E. Neal (D-Mass.) said in a statement.

CONTINUED ON PAGE 3

Weld plan slices salary increases

By MARK HENSLEY
Collegian Staff

Salary increases which were agreed to at the end of last year for all state workers including University of Massachusetts employees are among the victims of Gov. Weld's budget saving proposals.

President of the Massachusetts Society of Professors, John Cole said the proposal "may well be illegal" and that his union intended "to fight it as do the other unions in the Commonwealth who represent state workers."

The raises which Weld is proposing to cut were agreed to by the MSP and other state-worker unions at the end of last year and were supposed to go into effect at the beginning of January 1991, Cole said.

The new contract calls for a 13 percent pay raise over three years which would be be the first raise for union employees in over a year, but according to Cole, it would not come close to covering increases in the cost of living.

Cole said there are about 40 items on Weld's proposal which are detrimental to public employees including one which would force public employees to pay 25 percent instead of 10 percent of their health insurance.

"We didn't create the state's dilemma and it's unfair for us to pay for it," Cole said.

President Chancellor Duffey said he thought Weld's proposal was "ill-advised" and that in making his proposals he was sending out a series of "trial balloons" which he hoped he would reconsider.

Duffey also said the governor's budget is conditioned by his request to repeal the sales tax on professional and business services and that the legislature should only agree to repeal it in 18-24 months.

Provost Richard O'Brien agreed, saying that "the stagnation of salaries on the campus has been terrible for morale. It has contributed to the departure of many of our

CONTINUED ON PAGE 3

INSIDE:

MONDAY, FEBRUARY 11, 1991
Page 3: University police honored for notable service.
Page 7: Jewish Arts Festival kicks off tonight with an award-winning novelist.
Page 12: Men's track brings home the bronze from Eastern Conference Championships.

WEATHER
Warning: Don't place your tongue on a flag pole today, temperatures will only reach 30 under partly cloudy skies.

New Students Program Staff
Summer 1991 Applications
307 University Admissions Center
Deadline February 15, 1991

GLOBAL TICKET EXCHANGE
(413) 747-9922

NEIL YOUNG 2/19 Hartford	HALL & OATES 2/16 Spfld LIVING COLOR 2/16
STING 3/8 Hartford INXS 2/26 Hartford	VANILLA ICE New Haven & Spfld PAUL SIMON Hartford

RED SOX — BRUINS — WHALERS & CELTIC tickets.
All concerts — sports & theater tickets
1605 Main St. Springfield • (413) 747-9922

charlie's
1 Pray St. Amherst—549-5403 • Open 11am
7 days a Week
Kitchen open 'til midnight
Game Room with 2 pool tables

Tonight 10c Mozzarella Sticks
9:00p.m. — 12:00a.m.

Beer of the Month: MOLSON BOTTLES $1.85 · Drink of the Week: Sweet Tart $1.75

Food Giveaways
Mon. 10 cent Mozzarella Sticks 9pm-12am
Tues. 10 cent Buffalo Wings 9pm-12am
Wed. 25cent Pizza Slices and 99 cent Nachos 9pm-12am
Thurs 10 cent Beer Steamed Baby Franks 9pm-12am
Sunday 10 cent Potato Skins 9pm-12am
WE ACCEPT MC-VISA-AMEX

MENTAL HEALTH DIVISION GROUPS
SPRING 1991

TUESDAY
Support/Decision-Making for Problem Drinkers	1:00 - 2:30 pm
Bi-sexual Support Group	2:00 - 3:30 pm
Advanced ACOA Group	3:00 - 4:30 pm
Intimacy Skills Group	6:00 - 7:30 pm
Exploring Lesbian, Gay, Bi-sexual Identities	7:00 - 8:30 pm
WEDNESDAY
Beginners ACOA	9:00 -10:30 am
Self-Exploration Group	3:30 - 5:00 pm
THURSDAY
Women In Transition	12:45 - 2:15 pm
Self-Exploration Group	3:00 - 4:30 pm
Chronic Medical Illness Support Group	3:30 - 5:00 pm
Eating Disorders	3:30 - 5:00 pm

Groups begin in late February or early March. Pre-group interviews are necessary. For information or to register for a group call 545-2337 or stop by 127 Hills North as early in the semester as possible.

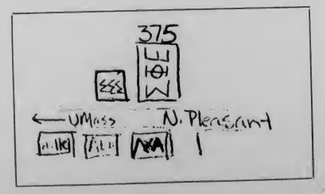
SIGMA PHI EPSILON
Presents Open Rush

COMING ATTRACTIONS:

Mon. Feb. 11 7:00pm "Do the Right Thing"—Meet brothers/House tour
Tues. Feb. 12 7:00pm "Brewster's Millions"—Raffle
Wed. Feb.. 13 6:00pm "Meatballs"—Spaghetti Supper
Mon. Feb 18 7:00pm "The Color of Money"—Pool Tournament
Tues. Feb. 19 7:00pm "Rain Man"—Casino Night

ΣΦΕ



LOCAL

Vandalism angers Hillel residents

Menorah damaged outside Hillel House

By LIZET GARCIA
Collegian Correspondent

Editor's note: This incident happened over the final exam period during the fall semester of 1990, and therefore, the Collegian could not report on it. We apologize for the lapse in time of reporting.

Vandalism of a Hanakkah menorah displayed on the front lawn of the Hillel House created a mixture of disappointment and anger for Hillel residents, said Rabbi Saul Perlmutter of the house.

According to a Town of Amherst Police report, the menorah, made out of plastic tubing, was slightly damaged by the vandalism which occurred between 11 p.m. and 12 p.m. on December 13, the third night of Hanakkah.

Hillel co-resident director, Alisa Berkowitz, said the incident was a "blow to the 28 Hillel residents personally as well as a blow to the whole Jewish community."

"This was the first year the menorah was left out overnight and it gave us a feeling of permanence," Berkowitz said.

The menorah was rebuilt the next day by some Hillel residents, Berkowitz said.

According to Perlmutter, the menorah was supposed to stay outside all night. He added in previous years the menorah was displayed during Hanakkah outside the Student Union and was brought in each night.

Following the incident, the restored structure was again taken inside overnight, Berkowitz said.

Perlmutter said he cannot know for sure the motive behind the vandalism, but he said he senses it was an anti-Semitic act.

Berkowitz said that the neighboring sororities and fraternities were "concerned and upset" by the incident and were supportive while the residents rebuilt the structure the next afternoon.

The house, which was opened three years ago, is now home to 26 students and two resident staff, Berkowitz said. The house, which was the former residence of Beta Kappa Omega, now reaches out to the Jewish community through activities, she said.

Collegian photo by Alisa Berkowitz
The damaged menorah outside of the Hillel House last December.

UMass police honored for service to campus

MARK HENSLEY
Collegian Staff

Officers of the University of Massachusetts Department of Public Safety were honored yesterday in the Campus Center in a ceremony recognizing their service to the campus community.

Director of Public Safety Dr. Arthur Hilson organized the awards ceremony because "those in public safety often go unrecognized." He said he reviewed records dating back 15-20 years to include officers who were never honored for outstanding conduct.

The awards ran the gamut from length of service awards to medals of valor in the Vietnam and Korean conflicts.

Notable awards included:

- Officer David Grader won the Combat Cross for disarming a subject who was carrying a shotgun in lot 34.
- Officer Linda Phelps, who was unable to return to duty after receiving head and shoulder injuries during a 1986 demonstration at the Whitmore Adminstration building, received the Legion of Honor.
- Office Philip Cavanaugh received the Gallantry Star for assisting the FBI in the arrest of heavily-armed New York City bank robbers who were hiding out at UMass in 1971.
- The Detective Division received the Grand Cordon for the largest drug raid to date in Massachusetts which resulted in 58 arrests and convictions in 1973.
- Vincent Boyle received the Gallantry Star for the apprehension of an armed suspect in 1987.

The ceremony was attended by Rep. Stanley C. Rosenberg and Vice Chancellor of Student Affairs Dennis Madson. Both commended the officers and department for their exceptional service to the community.

■ Conte

CONTINUED FROM PAGE 1

"There will be an enormous hole in the Massachusetts delegation," said Sen. John Kerry (D-Mass.) "He had his finger on the button and Massachusetts benefitted from it."

And Rep. Nicholas Mavroules (D-Mass.) said Conte "was extremely powerful."

He worked in a very quiet, effective way with a great deal of confidence," Marvoules said. "His word was gold."

President Bush, in a statement released from Camp David said he and his wife Barbara were deeply saddened by the death of a good friend.

"For over three decades, Congressman Conte serves his nation with flair, skill and unmatched dedication," said Bush. "Silvio Conte toucher our lives and the lives of many others with his humor, warmth and decency."

As the ranking Republican on the House Appropriations Committee, Conte developed the kind of clout that enabled him to walk into a committee room and demand certain consessions in exchange for his support. Those consessions often were projects and programs for his home state.

■ budget proposals

CONTINUED FROM PAGE 1

administrators."

Duffey expressed hope, however, and said that at least Weld was willing to make hard and concrete decisions regarding education and was not just making across the board cuts.

Sen. John W. Olver (D-Amherst) was extremely critical of the pay raise cuts.

"There should be ways of downsizing government without putting it on the backs of a small amount of people," he said. "[Weld] has given pay increases to cabinet secretaries at the top end and although they aren't big ones, it is the symbolism of it,"

Rep. Stanley C. Rosenberg (D-Amherst) said the proposal was "totally unfair" and he didn't know how Weld "was going to explain it to the voters."

Rosenberg also pointed out that Weld had given some of his top secretaries and commissioners raises while ignoring the agreed-upon raises for other state workers which were "symbolic at best and didn't even make up for cost-of-living increase of the last two years."

"All of the state workers' unions have signed agreements which aren't worth the paper they're written on," Rosenberg said.

Rosenberg admitted, however, that he was "not optimistic" about finding a solution in light the fiscal situation.

"The reality is, we are trying to figure out how to deal with an $850 million deficit," he said.

For Your Information

MONDAY, FEBRUARY 11

Peace Vigil — takes place every day Monday through Friday on the steps of the Student Union from 12 p.m.-12:30 p.m.

Brown Bag Discussion — Sponsored by Counseling and Advising for Older Students. Come share your registration horror stories and happy endings in Machmer E-21.

Free Meditation Workshop — A free meditation and yoga workshop will be offered this semester at the campus center. The first session is from 7:30 p.m. to 9:30 p.m. Please check at the Campus Center desk for room numbers.

Auditions for Killing Me Softly — Auditions sponsored by the UMass Theatre Department will be held on Feb. 11 and 12. Sign up for auditions on the UMass theatre department call-board. Scripts to read are available in the FAC 112.

TUESDAY, FEBRUARY 12

National Student Exchange Meeting — An information session sponsored by the National Student Exchange will be held from 4 p.m. to 5 p.m. in Campus Center room 803. Applications for Fall '91 and/or Spring '92 are due March 1.

Senior Bash 1991 — Anyone interested in helping plan for the senior bash should attend a meeting at 7 p.m. in CC168.

WEDNESDAY, FEBRUARY 13

GLB Valentine Panel — A panel of couples will discuss same-sex relations at 8 p.m. in Campus Center room 904. The event is sponsored by the Program for Gay, Lesbian and Bisexual Concerns.

School of Nursing Academic Rounds Lecture — The School of Nursing will sponsor a talk by speaker Dr. Patricia Moccia from 4 p.m. to 6 p.m. at the Campus Center room 904.

Women's Studies Talk — A talk by writer Leslea Newman is sponsored by the Women's Studies Dept. It will be held from 12:15 p.m. to 1:30 p.m. in the Campus Center complex.

Jewish Arts Festival — Storyteller Judith Black presents "A Hilarious Look at the Insecurities of Single Life," at 8 p.m. in the Hillel House. Free bagels served from 7 p.m.-7:30 p.m. Sponsored by Hillel.

Information Sessions — for anyone interested in becoming a Student Admissions Representative, Tour Guide or New Students Program Summer Counselor, in the Campus Center at 4 p.m.

European Club holds a General Assembly in Campus Center room 165-69 at 7 p.m. Tea and cookies will be served. Citizens of all countries are welcome.

THURSDAY, FEBRUARY 14

Film and Discussion — "Children of Fire" will be shown at 4 p.m. in Herter Auditorium (room 231). The film deals with the Palestinian uprising as seen through the eyes of the children.

Meeting — The first meeting of Club Communication at 5:30 p.m. in Machmer E-37.

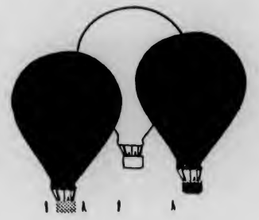
An Analysis of the U.S.-Soviet Summit — A Five College Faculty Panel, sponsored by the Five College Program in Peace and World Security Studies, will be held at 8 p.m. in Converse Hall at Amherst College.

Poetry Reading — Richard Jackson will read his poetry at Memorial Hall at 6 p.m. Sponsored by the MFA program in the English department, as part of the Visiting Writers series.

Non-violence training sessions — at the Congregational Church in Northampton from 5:30 p.m. to 9:30 p.m. In preparation for the rally and action on Saturday 16, 1991.

SATURDAY, FEBRUARY 16

Rally and Non-violent Direct Action — A rally will be held at Westover Air Force base at 1:30 p.m. An affinity group formation and strategy session will be held at Hooker Auditorium at Mount Holyoke College from 9 a.m. to 12 a.m.



SECOND ANNUAL CAREER WEEK
February 13-21, 1991
Transitions From School To Work
Sponsored by the Mather Career Center

ANNUAL UMASS CAREER FAIR
February 13, 10 a.m. - 4 p.m.
Campus Center Auditorium

CONFESSIONS OF A PROCRASTINATING SENIOR
Working alumni describe the dangers
Of 'blowing off' career services in the senior year
February 13, 3:35 p.m.
Campus Center 165

INTERNATIONAL CAREERS
February 14, 4 p.m.
Campus Center 917

MANAGING MULTIPLE JOB OFFERS
Ethical Dilemmas in the Job Search
February 19, 3:35 p.m.
Campus Center 905

NEGOTIATING YOUR SALARY
How Much Will I Get?/How Much
Will I Need After Graduation?
February 20, 3:35 p.m.
Campus Center 168C

UMASS VOLUNTEER FAIR
Volunteer Opportunities
February 20, 11 a.m. - 2:30 p.m.
Campus Center 163
Co-sponsored with V.I.B.E.S.

CO-OP & SUMMER JOB FAIR
February 21, 10 a.m. - 3:30 p.m.
Campus Center Auditorium

SURVIVING YOUR FIRST YEAR ON THE JOB
Skills employers want to see
February 21, 4 p.m.
Campus Center 176

CAREER EXPO
Minority Career Fair
Westin Hotel, Copley Place
10 Huntington Ave., Boston
February 20-21

For more information, contact the Mather Career Center main building in Fraternity/Sorority Park (5-2224)
or visit our Satellite Office at 16 Curry Hicks (5-4945)

The Mather Career Center • Fraternity/Sorority Park
University of Massachusetts at Amherst • (413)545-2224

WHERE CAREERS TAKE OFF!

EDITORIAL/OPINION

The opinions on this page are those of the individual writer or cartoonist and do not necessarily reflect the views of the Collegian or the University unless otherwise noted.

Hear no evil

A second conflict has emerged in the Middle East. This one is between the commanders of the allied forces and the press. Without question, coverage of this war is the most tightly censored in the modern history of the United States.

For the most part, the only information available to the American public has been that officially presented by the military or government. Since the first bombs fell, this information has proven inaccurate and inadequate. The photography brought back from the Persian Gulf is so tightly controlled as to be worthless: pilots waving at the camera, the Navy Brass Band and mail call get boring very quickly.

It becomes very discouraging when the commanders of different allied nations' forces give entirely different versions of the same event. Furthermore, when the Pentagon, the White House and the Allied Command contradict each other, the press knows it is being manipulated.

The claim that this censorship is a necessity of warfare is absurd. Vietnam, a far more chaotically managed war, yielded far more indepth and useful coverage. The "lesson of Vietnam" was that the biggest security threat, the audience whose information should be censored, is the American people.

By the nature of some of the withheld information it is clear that the military is concerned more with "leaks" to the public than to Iraq. For example, the types of successfully destroyed targets — something the Iraqis already know — are often withheld.

This massive censorship has ensured that the American public and much of the rest of the world has no real idea of what is going on in this war. As far as the military is concerned we have met the enemy and it is us.

Unsigned editorials reflect the majority opinion of the Collegian board of editors

"ALL YOU NEED TO KNOW IS WE'RE FIGHTING FOR FREEDOM OUT THERE—AND THE FREEDOM WE'RE FIGHTING FOR JUST DOESN'T HAPPEN TO BE FREEDOM OF THE PRESS!"

World War III is here at last . . .

The most disconcerting thing to me is to open the newspaper and think I'm seeing "news" from 25-years back, news even from thirty years before that. The same news, same headlines, same photographs. The equipment is different. New and improved, this year's model. New locale; but the same picture they're shooting.

I can understand the people willing to jump up and down in line in Washington, D.C. It makes you crazy: every time we see those page-two pictures, we see the pictures that follow, far too soon.

And, anyway, isn't the truest support of the very brave people fighting this war, to pull them out of danger?

Suppose we give Mr. Hussein the same length of time to aerial bombardment that we gave to diplomatic settlement? (OK, say, even, a week longer, "as punishment")

And then stop; if we aren't able to stop sooner.

Just stop. And say, OK, we gave embargo and negotiations 14 weeks, we went 15 weeks in war; let's try another 14 weeks of embargo. Maybe ask our troops to make that stick. Let's use our clever technology, which really has been helpful, to continue to deflect most of Hussein's dangerous behavior, until we render it as powerless as we can.

Television news says that for every person physically hurt, this war, five or six more will be seriously wounded psychologically. We've advanced far enough now, that we know this's what's going to happen! Five people wounded for every one that's bleeding!

This could likely be The Chemical War. Iraq has poison gas, and has used them. We have our own "biological agents."

Remember what we call it? The last time one aggressor nation defied a number of other nations: World War II.

How many months, then, will it take us, to call this war for what it could be: World War III.

Matt Levin Hatfield

When democracy becomes a drag, we turn to Big Brother

Americans don't want democracy.

Come on, people, why don't we just admit it? We don't want democracy. We don't like democracy. We claim to be passionately pro-democracy and pro-freedom, but our actions are more along the lines of fascism. Hitler would be proud.

First, let's start off with a general example. Elections. Now think hard, I'm sure you can remember what they are. Maybe many of us have forgotten. We must have, considering the fact that almost none of us bother to drag our sorry butts to a voting booth at a presidential election. Forget state and local elections. No one wants to bother pulling a few switches.

There is a war on. If I say anything, anything against this war, I'm anti-democracy. How dare I criticize George Bush! I should support him, in whatever he does. Most of the people who say this, claim to be "pro-democracy." Strange. I thought that democracy meant I could say what I believe, even if people disagree with me.

I thought we elected President George Bush, not King or Dictator George Bush. It is not my duty to stand behind him or any other leader if I don't like the job they are doing. It is my duty to lambast him if I think he's doing a horrendous job. We aren't supposed to follow the leader. The leader is supposed to follow us. But you wouldn't know it from what some of the yahoos in this country say. I'm supposed to blindly follow and support what one man wants in order to support democracy.

Pamela McCarthy

But, let's not just stop at the national level. Right here in the derelict Student Government Association, we have a bright, shining example of what fascism should be. Five student leaders went to the Administration and asked them to take over. That was it. No consulting the student senate (hey, aren't they elected for a reason?). No asking the students what we thought of the whole thing. Just five undergrads decided for us what was best.

If you think about it, fascism is appealing. It's orderly and quiet. No one argues, because they'll be shot. There is no dissent, no conflict, no headaches, no worries. It's all done for us, courtesy of the mutant in power. No one has to think about issues. No one has to debate or argue, or use their brains. How relaxing. You can stay in on what used to be election day and watch Dallas with a clear conscience, all of our favorite TV shows would be uninterrupted. No news flashes, no election coverage, no war coverage, no breaking stories.

No one would get offended in a fascist state, since anything offensive would be squashed. We could all open a newspaper, magazine, or book and enjoy it. We can watch television and be entertained, not upset. We can avidly gaze at a good, patriotic movie praising the state. No thinking. No headaches. No problems.

Forget about moral or ethical questions, that's for the state to decide. The state will decide what is right and wrong, you won't. How nice to not have to ponder and worry about your actions. Don't get angry about anything your country does, after all, what do you know? You are but a lowly peon in the food chain compared to the demi-gods of government.

Maybe we should abolish elections. Maybe we should call Pres. Bush "President for Life," instead of "President." Maybe we should let the administration tell us what to do. We like it so far.

Pamela McCarthy is a Collegian columnist

The ideology of the 'White woman'

As "white feminism" runs rampant through our Happy Valley, I would like to express my heart-felt convictions. I have to admit that for some time I considered the possibility that maybe the feminist movement had some sincere and logical base for its argument. Suffice it to say that I have since been enlightened.

I have realized that the main motive of the "white feminist" movement is to integrate society and to get a "piece of the pie."

Within the context of the war against Iraq, some feminists are taking the opportunity to demand that women in the army get equal pay and get to be on the front line. It can be inferred from these statements that we should be supportive of women who are in the army perpetuating the forces of Western imperialism and arrogance.

Is this what all the hype about inequality and sexism is leading to? Participation in the army will not lead to the liberation of women. What is the point of the feminist struggle if there is no questioning of the entire system?

If the followers of "white feminism" had been honest enough to say that "we represent the white woman's interest to integrate into society" then I would not waste my time commenting on it. But the followers of "white feminism" do not admit their motives. They for the most part claim to represent, understand and care about all women. These same people also tend to believe that all women have a common bond.

While there is an ever-growing discussion of people of the Middle East, some feminists speak of the oppression of Muslim women. They convey understanding without any recognition of their context. The arrogant and superior mentality of this country is obviously not limited to men.

Minu Sebastian

I'd like to introduce a new term into the discourse about the oppression within this society. We have all heard the term "white man." This "person" has been blamed for the development and continuation of everything distasteful about our system. What about the "white woman?"

Believers in "white feminism" should be up-front about what and who they represent and what they want. Some claim that our system would be less oppressive and inherently better if women had more power. I beg to differ. In my experience it has been the ideology of the "white woman" which has been the most ruthless, arrogant and patronizing.

Believers of "white feminism" should also stay within the confines of the white community. Stop pretending to represent or understand "women of color." We refuse to be your tokens so you can make your guilty conscience feel better.

Above all, stop disrespecting Third World women by defining their oppression in your terms. There may be women who have a different interpretation of their situation. Don't assume you can understand and relate to everyone.

It should be obvious to all "peoples of color" (men and women) that there should be no distinction made between the dominant ideologies of the "white man" or the "white woman."

Minu Sebastian is a Collegian columnist

ARTS & LIVING

The Real Inspector Hound: an uproariously good play

By THOMAS SCULLY
Collegian Correspondent

The Real Inspector Hound
Studio Theatre, Hampshire College
Thursday, Feb. 7

The Inspector Hound by Rose Guildenstern, or should I say The Real Inspector Hound by Tom Stoppard, and I think having said that, and it is our bare responsibility to say that, this production is absurd without being trite, Keatonesque yet Nietzchean.

Here we see not only life itself, but two theater critics (excellent choice of heroic subject if I may say so myself), who are both attending a terribly bad "whodunnit" murder mystery.

During the intermission the telephone on stage rings and one of the critics goes down to answer it. Coincidentally, the telephone call is in fact for him, and the critics immediately get swept up in the play they are supposed to be watching, but have actually been performing in for some time now.

Funny? As if the brilliant script by Tom Stoppard (Brazil, Russia House) wasn't enough to stand on its own, director Malquist Hapgood had put together a dream cast of maladjusts and miscreants, and set them loose to wreak havoc.

Seth Ernsdorf as the inscrutable wheelchair-bound Magnus and Liz Hall as the fish-faced maid Mrs. Drudge are absolute masters of the devious. Excellent supporting roles are contributed by the ever reliable, finely tuned Simon Garcia and Felicity Sledd, with the dirty old theater critic Aaron Ruddleson weighing in with his hair.

I am afraid that Joel Kleinberg, as the brainless Sherlock-type who must be given line-readings from the wings, may be too manic for so intimate a space, the rhythm may falter during the bridge games, and we suffer the usual mike-ing and prop muddles of small college productions.

In sum, however, it is the uproariest play I've seen anywhere this year, and Hampshire College has finally produced a show which has nothing to prove except that it is good theater. Toby Neiman's meticulous set, for example is not out there trying to make a post modern statement as many young set designers so try to put forth; instead, her diminishing perspective and stagey look is in complete harmony with the piece.

Beyond even the breathtaking subtlety of Carol Vunk's landmark performance as the deceased Higgs, however, I would be remiss in failing to praise the one hurtling star that rose above the others Saturday night — I speak, of course, of Doug Stone, the Light Board Operator and sound effects assistant.

I venture to say (indeed it would be a public shame and professional blight to keep silent) that lighting and crackpot sound effects (including — I cannot resist adding — the freestyle howl of a hound on the fog shrouded hills), have never before reached a pitch of — how shall I say? — je ne sai quoi, as in Mrs. Stone's performance.

Photo courtesy American Famous Talent Corp.

Johnny Winter, a classic blues guitarist, will play the Iron Horse in Northampton tonight and tomorrow night. The show will start at 7 p.m. Tickets are $22.50 in advance.

Study in London, England

Liberal Arts
International Business
Criminal Justice

Mainstream classes with British students, plus specially designed courses for American students.

All courses approved by UW-Platteville and validated on an official UW-Platteville transcript.

$4,325 per semester for Wisconsin and Minnesota residents.
$4,675 per semester for non-residents.

Costs include:
Tuition and fees
Home-stay accommodations with meals
Fieldtrips

Financial aid applies.
Summer Program also available.

University of Wisconsin Platteville

For further information contact:
Study Abroad Programs
308 Warner Hall
University of Wisconsin-Platteville
1 University Plaza
Platteville, WI 53818-3099

(608) 342-1726

Montgomery's Florist
Valentines Day
Thursday, February 14
a rose is a rose is a rose?

Montgomery's Florist
Finest Quality Roses available whether it's an impressive dozen or a romantic single rose— Montgomery's is the place for roses.

YOUR PHONE IS LIKE A FLOWER, SENDING CREDIT CARD!

584-3798
350 Russell St. Hadley
(Rt. 9, across from Burger King)

SHAPE UP FOR SPRING.
At Hilltop and Crossan Healthclubs located in Webster & Gorman dorms
Register 2/4-2/14, Mon-Thurs 7-9pm

COUNSELING AND ADVISING FOR OLDER STUDENTS
Did you get what you want?
Stop by for HELP at lunch.
Mondays: 11am to 1pm
Tu-Fri: 11am to 2pm
Machmer, E-21 545-5338

Every Tuesday in February
FREE Footlong Sub with purchase of another footlong sub
Reg Footlong Only★
No Coupon Needed
Also other great specials:
Sat: Any Reg Footlong $2.99* with purchase of a soda
Sun: Buy one get one for 99¢*
Good only at Rt 9 Hadley and Northampton Stores.
Both Stores Open Late Every Night
*Higher price prevails/Reg Footlong only
SUBWAY

Advance your career by helping others to advance theirs.

If you enjoy the challenge of helping people succeed in their careers, here's a career tip worth your time.
Boston-Bouvé College at Northeastern University is offering an intensive, one-year Master of Science Program in Human Resource Counseling. Providing a unique interdisciplinary approach, it combines core courses in psychology with management courses taught by the faculty of the Graduate School of Business Administration. You can enroll on a full- or part-time basis.
Our graduates have found rewarding and challenging positions as managers, counselors, and consultants in industries ranging from high technology to health care organizations.
Call (617) 437-2708, or write Graduate School, Boston-Bouvé College of Human Development Professions, 106 Dockser Hall, Northeastern University, Boston, MA 02115.

Boston-Bouvé College
Northeastern University
An equal opportunity/affirmative action university.

Jewish Arts Festival to begin tonight

By ALISON BUCKHOLTZ
Collegian Correspondent

Hillel's 16th annual Jewish Arts Festival opens to the public tonight with a lecture by award-winning novelist Gloria Goldreich on "The Traditional Role of Jewish Women in Literature."

Goldreich's lecture, at 7:30 p.m. in the Hillel House, is the first of several events that aims to "educate Jews and non-Jews about the many faces of Jewish art, and to enjoy them all," according to Hillel program director Yehudit Heller. Many of the events, including Goldreich's, are free to the public.

The Jewish Arts Festival picks up again this Wednesday when storyteller Judith Black considers "The Insecurities of Single Life." Black, a Boston-based storyteller, will present a special "Valentine's Day look" at the issue when she speaks at the Hillel House at 8 p.m. Her story session and the bagel "feast" which precedes it from 7 to 7:30 p.m. are both free, Heller said.

On the February 19, Julius Lester and Rabbi Saul Perlmutter will lead Shabbat service song-sharing. Perlmutter encourages participants to bring their own melodies to familiar songs, along with a portable tape player and a blank cassette tape. Song-sharing will be held at 3:45 p.m. in the Hillel House conference room.

The music continues when Shlock Rock, a contemporary band which parodies popular rock songs using Jewish themes, comes to the Campus Center Auditorium on February 20. "We want to make Judaism less stiff, less threatening," a Shlock Rock spokesman said. Tickets are available through the student ticket office for the 8 p.m. concert.

The 1991's Jewish Arts Festival winds up on February 22, when Julius and Carolyn Lester lead Hillel's Friday evening service at 7 p.m. in the Hillel House lounge. For further information about the service or any other events, call Hillel at 549-1710.

Correction

In Friday's newspaper we indentified Melisa Canli as a Collegian Correspondent. Unfortunately, Ms. Canli is a staff member. We apologize for such an error. Please, we are but simple folk down here and are bound to make errors. We mean no harm. Thank you for your patience with us.

SPRING BREAK
PANAMA CITY BEACH FLORIDA
- High quality beachfront accommodations for 7 exciting nights
- Round trip chartered motor coach
- Free pool deck parties, activities, & promotions
- Inter-Campus Programs I.D./Discount card
- On-location staff for complete assistance
- All taxes, tips & service charges included

$114 $219

Contact Barbara 549-8156

EUROPE by CAR
RENT or BUY
LOWEST PRICES
FOR STUDENTS, TEACHERS
EUROPE BY CAR
One Rockefeller Plaza
New York, NY 10020
Phone (212) 581-3040
Mail this ad for Special Student/Teacher Tariff.
☐ RENTAL ☐ LEASE ☐ PURCHASE

Auto Glass Center
American & Foreign
- SAME DAY SERVICE
- BILLED DIRECTLY TO INSURANCE COMPANY
- WINDSHIELDS REPLACED

North Amherst Motors
78 Old Sunderland Rd
North Amherst, MA.
549-2880
Most Major Credit Cards Accepted

 SUN & FUN * KIDS & CAMPING ***
 * SWIMMING & BOATING * ***
 OUTDOOR LIVING * ***
Timber trails, a 9 week resident Girl Scout camp in the Berkshires, is looking for staff...
UNIT LEADERS * * RIDING INSTRUCTORS
SMALLCRAFT & WATERFRONT INSTRUCTORS
COUNSELORS * * REGISTERED NURSES
COOKS * * * * KITCHEN STAFF
Call or write: Eric R. Munson, Jr., Timber Trails Camp, HC 68 Box 158, Tolland, MA 01034
(413) 258-4592

Council Travel
SPRING BREAK
from Boston
Cancun starting at $489
Jamaica starting at $509
Price includes:
•Round trip airfare & transfers
•7 nights accommodation & hotel taxes
Low Student Airfares!
CALL FOR MORE INFORMATION
79 South Pleasant Street
Amherst, Ma 01002
413-256-1261
America's oldest & largest Student Travel Agency

SURPRISE YOUR Valentine

Find the finest in our two beautiful Galleries...

silverscape designs
264N Pleasant St. Amherst 253-3324
177 Main St. Northampton 584-3324
GOLDSMITHS • GEM GALLERY

Send early. Stay late.

Beat out the competition this Valentine's Day with some terrific strategy. Just call your FTD® Florist and send the FTD Flower Basket Bouquet. And to be sure your Valentine gets one, send it a day or two early. And she may ask you to stay late.

FTD®

®Registered trademark of FTD. ©1991 FTD.

♡ Valentine Special

$35 PERM

Includes Cut

TANNING PACKAGES

MANICURES $8.00

$40.00 SETS

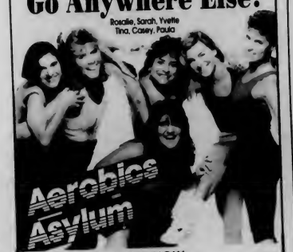
Hair • Nails • Tanning
Foot Beautification and more!

Hairworks PLUS

Conveniently located next to Super Stop & Shop
CAMPUS PLAZA, Rte. 9, Hadley • 253-3334

OPEN EVENINGS
Now Hiring Hair Stylists

You'd Be Crazy To Go Anywhere Else!



Roxelle, Sarah, Yvette
Tina, Casey, Paula

CALL NOW
Semester Specials Available
586-7503
or come in for a Free Trial Class!
Offer Ends 2/18/91

HAMP PLAZA NORTHAMPTON

Are you wondering what to give your special friend on Valentine's Day?

Be unique
Give a Condom Gram,
A Damgram,
Condom Earrings or a special book "Proud Pete"

Sponsored by the Peer Sexuality and Peer Health Promotion Programs of the Health Education Division-University Health Services

STEINBECK COLLISION REPAIR & AUTOBODY

53 So. Prospect — Amherst Center
256-8157 256-1385

• Accepted by all insurance companies for collision repair or glass replacement

• Imports & other unibody vehicles are our specialty

REMEMBER it's your car and your choice of repair facilities

THE WELCOME BACK TO SCHOOL AND GET-READY-TO-FIT-INTO YOUR-BATHING-SUIT-FOR-SPRING-BREAK

SPECIAL

Sign up by Feb. 23 at any of the three BODY SHOP locations (Totman Gym, Kennedy and John Adams Towers) with this coupon and pay $45 for a spring semester membership to work every muscle in your body with:

NEW NAUTILUS MACHINES
HYDRA-FITNESS MACHINES
STATIONARY BICYCLES
ROWING MACHINES
NORDIC TRAC SKI MACHINES
STAIR CLIMBERS
TREADMILLS
and
AEROBICS CLASSES

Body Shop Fitness Center
DISCOUNT
$5.00 Off
Spring Semester Membership
Offer expires 2/23/91

DELTA EPSILON

Welcomes all University Men to
OPEN RUSH

RUSH DATES				LOCATION
FEB	11	7	PM	Pizza Night
FEB	12	7	PM	Buffalo Wings
FEB	14	8	PM	Featuring the band "NEW MACHINE"
FEB	18	7	PM	Pizza Night
FEB	19	7	PM	Buffalo Wings
FEB	21	8	PM	OPEN RUSH

DELTA UPSILON HOUSE
IS LOCATED ON
778 NORTH PLEASANT STREET,
ACROSS FROM TOTMAN GYM.

ΔΥ

DOONESBURY
By GARRY TRUDEAU

GOOD MORNING. MY NAME IS MAJOR E. "BUZZ" FOGG AND I'LL BE CONDUCTING TO DAY'S JTB BRIEFINGS...
JTB CAMPAIGN
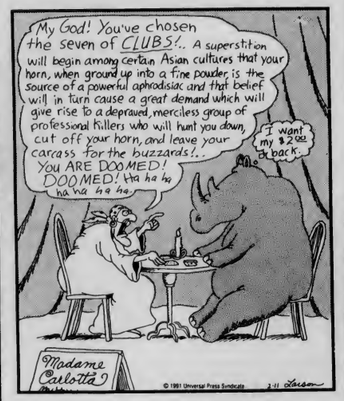
• PHAS
• PHAS
BDA
I/B
AT 1730 LAST NIGHT, WE RECEIVED A JINTACCS 6-2 CONFIRMATION FROM A FRONTLINE TOC OF THE PARTIAL DEGRADATION OF AN M-60-MOUNTED HMMWV PERSONNEL ASSET.
HUH?
A GRUNT IN A DUNE BUGGY GOT WOUNDED.
HEY...THIS CHEESE-BURGER'S A CELEBRITY!
GREAT. ANYONE SEEN HIS KNEECAP?

THE FAR SIDE
By GARY LARSON



My God! You've chosen the seven of CLUBS!.. A superstition will begin among certain Asian cultures that your horn, when ground up into a fine powder, is the source of a powerful aphrodisiac and that belief will in turn cause a great demand which will give rise to a depraved, merciless group of professional killers who will hunt you down, cut off your horn, and leave your carcass for the buzzards!..
I want my $2.00 back.
YOU ARE DOOMED! DOOMED! ha ha ha ha ha ha ha
Madame Carlotta's
© 1991 Universal Press Syndicate

CALVIN AND HOBBES
By BILL WATTERSON

THERE'S SUSIE! HEH HEH! WATCH ME KNOCK HER FILLINGS LOOSE!
YAAA!
PUFF
YOU KNOW, I THOUGHT EARTH'S GRAVITY FELT EXCEPTIONALLY STRONG TODAY.
I GUESS THAT EXPLAINS HOW YOU SPILLED YOUR OATMEAL DOWN THE HEATER THIS MORNING.

SNOOKY LANSON
By E. VEZINA & R. SHAUGHNESSY

ADD/DROP COURSE
ADD
SORRY MISTER LANSON, BUT THERE'S NO ROOM LEFT IN SOCIOLOGY 101. HOW BADLY DO YOU NEED THE CREDITS?
VERY.
FENCING 212

FROTTER
By GARRY PORTER

Y'KNOW, CINDY CRAWFORD LYING NAKED IN A TUB IN GEORGE MICHAEL'S VIDEO IS VERY SYMBOLIC.
IT REPRESENTS HER "FREEDOM." THE BATH REPRESENTS THE "WASHING OUT" OF LIFE'S FALSE TRAPPINGS. THE ABSENCE OF CLOTHES REPRESENTS THE REMOVAL OF ARTIFICIAL RESTRICTIONS.
IF YOU LEAN THE RIGHT WAY YOU CAN SEE HER BOOBIE.

TANGELO PIE
By TIM SNIFFEN

-click-
THAT'S IT! I GIVE UP! LIFE IS BECOMING TOO PROBLEMATIC FOR MY TASTE!
WORK! SCHOOL! DRUGS! MONEY! PARENTS! AHH!!
Don't move! I know what to do!
OPEN ONLY DURING EMOTIONAL CRISIS
Tastes... Romance... hairstyles... obscene lyrics...
There are some problems on this Earth that can only be solved by a warm cranberry muffin.
Mmmph.

TODAY'S STAFF

Night Editor.....Christopher Andrew Muther I
Copy Editor.....Preston P. Forman
Layout Technician.....Camille Pansewitcz
Photo Technician.....K.A. Burke
Production Supervisor.....Camille Pansewitcz
Typesetter.....Terry Starmer
Production.....Sue Tomaski, Mike Atkins, Tracy-Ann DiSalvatore

DAILY CROSSWORD PUZZLE
Edited By TRUDE MICHEL JAFFE

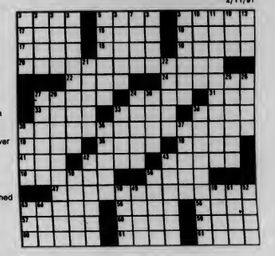
ACROSS
1 Literary form
5 Spelunker's milieu
9 Happen
14 Garden at 1600 Pennsylvania Ave.
15 Guinness
16 Seaport of Brittany
17 Speck
18 Chem. prefix
19 Pound part
20 Poem feature
23 Great Lake
24 Lasted longer
27 Weight-watcher's selection
29 Pen pals?
31 I love, to Livius
32 Pindar output
33 Warning from Watson
34 Sticky stuff
35 Military marching display
38 Lubricates
39 Target
40 Stratagem
41 After HST
42 Jewels
43 Himalayan country
44 Ancient sect
46 Bumblers?
47 Cramped situation
53 Location on a ship
55 Carpets
56 Stratford's river
57 "Inferno" author
58 Part of a marathon
59 Flyer with strings attached
60 Bets
61 Imitated
62 Otherwise

DOWN
1 Norse hero
2 Swimming — 3 Ratio words
4 Unstring
5 Frank and open
6 Carroll character
7 Presidential power
8 Tan
9 Ancient Greek coin
10 Glass pitcher
11 Join forces, British style
12 Trojans of Calif.
13 Map abbr.
21 Obliterate
22 Muscle
25 Charm
26 Coward
27 Certain fuels
28 Teenager
29 Fountain orders
30 Soviet city on the Oka
33 Out of
34 Prospector's incentive
35 Morse, e.g.
36 Moldings
37 Not as moist
42 Ageless creatures of folklore
43 Pestered
45 Gladden
46 Army alarm?
48 Columnist Bombeck
49 Witticism
50 Sinister
51 Decomposes
52 Large knife
53 Ohio college town
54 Taboo

ANSWER TO PREVIOUS PUZZLE:

S	W	A	T		A	L	L	O	N		H	A	R	A
N	E	M	O		B	E	A	D	Y		A	L	I	T
O	R	A	N	G	E	F	R	E	S	T	A	T	E
P	E	N	N	Y		P	A	N	T	A	L	O	O	N
			A	R	T		I	S	S	U	E
T	A	N	G	E	L	O	N	E	T	S	A	R	S
O	B	O	E		E	N	E		L	E	S	S	O	N
R	E	P		S	A	M		H	A	S		C	R	O
T	E	A	P	O	T		L	I	E		P	I	E	R
S	T	R	A	W		B	A	R	I	L	L	A	M	E
			M	E	A	P		D	O	A
B	A	G	A	T	E	L	L	E		S	T	A	G	E
M	E	A	D	O	W	L	A	R	K		E	M	O	N
O	R	L	E		L	A	C	T	O		N	A	I	D
C	O	R	D		S	H	E	E	N		S	H	E	S

2/11/91



MENU

LUNCH
Sweet and Sour Pork
Pizza

DINNER
Beef, Mush. & Snow Peas
Broccoli and Cheese Strudel

BASICS LUNCH
Sweet and Sour Tofu
Pizza

BASICS DINNER
Stuffed Peppers
Broccoli and Cheese Strudel

YOUR DAILY HOROSCOPE
By JEANE DIXON

ARIES (March 21 - April 19): Your social life begins to accelerate. Do not let tiresome people distract you from work. Your ability to meet deadlines puts you in line for a promotion or raise.

TAURUS (April 20 - May 20): Diplomacy is more important than ever. Take advantage of an opportunity to work overtime. A secret love affair will come to an end. Keep in close touch with your loved ones while traveling.

GEMINI (May 21 - June 20): Patience is the key to progress today. Others will join your team if you remain calm. Access to money channels can be gained through talks and letters. Attend a play or concert.

CANCER (June 21 - July 22): The emphasis now is on worldly status, business success and new professional opportunities. Let an expert help you make a far-reaching decision. Efforts to assist the needy are favored.

LEO (July 23 - Aug. 22): A new idea is music to your ears. Strike up the band - others will chime in. Joint ventures can be beautifully orchestrated. Let your sentimental side emerge. Romance should sizzle tonight.

VIRGO (Aug. 23 - Sept. 22): Do not overlook your associates' needs. By establishing smoother relations, you will open the door to prosperity. Be upfront about a business deal and its effect on romance.

LIBRA (Sept. 23 - Oct. 22): Heed stock tips from experts; they know more than you do! Make use of your friends near and far; obtaining valuable information from them will help you achieve a long-sought goal.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23 - Nov. 21): Your versatility begins to pay off in tangible ways. A financial situation improves. Seize a unique travel opportunity.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22 - Dec. 21): Your career goals come into clearer focus. Your flexibility gives you a chance to showcase your special talents. Entertaining at home may be the best answer to meeting your social obligations.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 - Jan. 19): Creative ventures enjoy highly favorable influences. Do not waste valuable minutes arguing over petty details. Use your own judgment. Take your time when handling important projects.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20 - Feb. 18): Your phone could ring off the hook today. You will have to make some hurried decisions. Try to keep your cool when under pressure. Stop taking yourself so seriously! Make compassion your trademark.

PISCES (Feb. 19 - March 20): Discuss your values and expectations with a young loved one. Child-related responsibilities take up less of your time than in the past. Learn more about technology that could boost productivity at work.

■ women's basketball

CONTINUED FROM PAGE 11

UMass' health problems were damaging to the Minutewomen's stamina and depth, according to Hewelt.

"Kristofik hasn't practiced in several days, Keyburn's still sick, Lisa's still sick — when you can't breathe, it's hard on the legs, it's pretty difficult to shoot the basketball. In college basbetball you need to be able to play at your physical best for 40 minutes, and we can't do that right now."

The Minutewomen next hit the road for two games, as they will face St. Bonaventure Thursday and Penn State on Saturday.

"St. Bonaventure is a difficult place to play," Hewelt said. "Hopefully, we'll be healthy by then. It should be a good one."

Duquesne, 71-50

Duquesne (71)
Kelly 2-5 O-O 4; Hoffman 4-10 1-2 9; Tara Williams 7-15 8-10 22; Mountsier 7-12 O-O 19; Sebastian 4-13 4-6 13; Freeman O-3 4-4 4; Tausha Williams O-2 O-O O; Phillips O-2 O-O O. Totals 24-62 17-22 71.
Massachusetts (50)
Ireland 3-11 9-12 15; Moran O-O O-O O; McCusker 5-10 6-11 16; Muza 1-9 O-O 2; Valentine 1-5 5-6 7; Nevarez 1-8 O-O 2; Schusler O-1 O-O O; Kristofik 3-5 O-1 6; Hessel 1-7 O-1 2. Totals 15-56 20-31 50.
Halftime Duquesne 37, Massachusetts 26. Three point goals Mountsier 5, Sebastian. Fouled Out Tausha Williams, McCusker, Kristofik. Rebounds Duquesne 47 (Hoffman 16), Massachusetts 44 (McCusker 9). Assists Duquesne 10 (Sebastian 5), Massachusetts 11 (Muza 5). Total fouls Duquesne 22, Massachusetts 20. A - 115

■ All-Star Game

CONTINUED FROM PAGE 12

everybody out of the way and the he complains to the ref when he gets nicked," Johnson said. "That's his way. But with his rebounding, Charles set the tone for the way the game was played."

"He has a stress fracture — yeah, right," Malone said. "I think he was setting everybody up, that he was going to play soft."

The game was close most of the way, with 20 lead changes. The West climbed within two points four times in the final minutes without catching up.

Playing the first seven minutes of the fourth quarter with forward Tom Chambers at center because of David Robinson's foul trouble, the West pulled ahead 100-95 before the East regained control with a 14-4 burst.

HAM IT UP WITH PORK.

YOU ARE CORDIALLY INVITED TO ATTEND A MURDER MYSTERY
Your Host for the Evening: AEn
Join Us For Alpha Epsilon Pi Rush
THE ULTIMATE HUNT!
TOINIGHT at 9 pm at 382 N. Pleasant St.
for more information--contact Will 549-2913

A SPECIAL OFFER FOR PEOPLE WHO GOT NO CLASS.
$20 MID-WEEK LIFT TICKET.*
You don't have to attend an economics class to understand the value of the Mount Snow, Vermont college pass. In fact, to best appreciate our $20 college pass, you're better off having no class at all.
For a taped ski report, call (802) 464-2151. For more information, call (802) 464-8501.
Mount Snow.
When It Comes To Big Mountain Skiing, No One Else Is Close.
*Offer good Monday through Friday, non-holiday with a current college ID. © Mount Snow Ltd. 1990

DIVISION OF CONTINUING EDUCATION
Think Spring!
A perfect time for renewal and new beginnings.
University of Massachusetts at Amherst
Spring 1991
Renew your life goals, your career, or your personal life. Over 200 fresh credit courses and Adventures in Lifelong Learning workshops are being hatched at UMass this spring.
Register by mail, telephone, or in person beginning December 26.
Classes start January 29.
For more information, contact the Division of Continuing Education, Goodell Building, or call 545-2414.
DIVISION OF CONTINUING EDUCATION

UMOC
UMass Outing Club INVITES YOU TO:
Try:
• hiking
• backpacking
• canoeing
• kayaking
• caving
• cross-country skiing
• rock climbing
• ice climbing
• mountaineering
. . .and more!
JOIN
First Meeting
Tues. Feb 12
Student Union
Ballroom
7 PM
Slide Show and Membership Meeting
Our office 423C Student Union 545-3131

■ women's basketball

CONTINUED FROM PAGE 12

Collegian photo by Eric Goldman

Freshman guard Cherie Muza takes one of nine attempted shots from the floor. She finished the game with two points and the Minutewomen lost 71-50 to Duquesne Saturday in the Cage.

double-covering her and we had trouble finding her on offense."

Meanwhile, Duquesne was finding its inside offense, as Duquesne coach Rosemary DeVarney explained.

"We've had a tough time getting the ball to our inside people," she said. "We did a better job of that in the second half."

Tara Williams led the inside charge for the Duchesses, scoring a game-high 22 points on a variety of post-up moves and grabbing 10 rebounds.

Both Hewelt and DeVarney agreed that Mountsier, a 5-foot-5 freshman walk-on who had averaged only five minutes a game before Vincent's injury, played a big part in Duquesne's win.

"Since Vincent went out this kid has really come on fire. She really rose to the occasion," said Hewelt.

DeVarney added that Mountsier is a "pure shooter who's done a good job when we needed her."

McCusker led the Minutewomen with 16 points and nine rebounds. Ireland was close behind with 15 points and seven boards, including a 9 of 12 showing from the foul line.

CONTINUED ON PAGE 10

Collegian Valentine Personals
GET PERSONAL THIS VALENTINES DAY!
FEBRUARY 14th
Deadline is Tuesday February 12th at 3:30 pm
½ PRICE OFF ONLY 10¢ PER WORD
DAILY COLLEGIAN
113 Campus Center

CLASSIFIEDS

COME TO THE COLLEGIAN OFFICE—CC 113 MON — THURS 8:30-3:30 ● DEADLINE 2 DAYS PRIOR TO PUBLICATION ● CASH IN ADVANCE, 20¢/WORD/DAY FOR STUDENTS

ACTIVITIES

CHILL OUT TONIGHT
Free meditation workshop
Campus Center Rm917 7:30pm

VET & ANSCI CLUB
Meeting tonight, Paige 202 at 6:30
Free movie and popcorn
All welcome

ANNOUNCEMENTS

BED AND BREAKFAST- downtown ideal for visiting parents and friends 549-0733.

CARIBBEAN- $189! The warmth of the Caribbean or Mexican coast for a week INT Air Sunhitch + m 212-864-2000

DELTA UPSILON WELCOMES all university men to open rush Dates to remember FEB. 11,12,14,18,19,21

DRUM-award winning Black Arts and Literature magazine-now accepting submissions. 115 NAH

INTERNATIONAL STUDENTS ASSOCIATION
First general meeting
2/12/91 Tuesday
7pm
Campus Center 905-9
All are welcome!

MODEL SEARCH: Male & Female
All ages, no experience necessary, send photo, name, age, address, and phone number by 3/15/91 to: New England Model (care of Susan Burne) 19 Allen Ave. Westfield, MA 01085. Those selected will be notified by mail 413-562-9048 or 401-723-2900

NEED BUSINESS EXPERIENCE? Volunteer at the Umass Student Federal Credit Union. Info sessions tonight! 4 & 7pm CC803

PHI ALPHA THETA - Int'l History Honors Society accepting applications from new members. Info-applications in History office Herter Deadline 2/28

ULTIMATE FRISBEE OPEN practices for everyone! Evening practices For info call Jed at 256-6799 or Jason 549-4260 or check concourse.

AUDIO/STEREO/VIDEO

USED STEREO components/vcr s/scolor tv's We buy, sell & trade quality equipment, all price ranges. Detailed list ($0 + items) S/A/V exchange (anytime) 256-0941

AUTO FOR SALE

1980 HONDA PRELUDE, standard, running condition, needs some work. $250 or B.O. Call Ray 256-3456

1984 PLYMOUTH CONQUEST
Black 5-speed
Sunroof Alpine stereo
Asking $3700
Call 253-0861

1986 ENCORE
Excellent condition
$2500 253-2858

1989 HONDA ACCORD immaculate condition, 1 owner, AM/FM cassette 2 door coupe, only 9,200 miles, must see, $9600 or best offer. call Bruce at 256-1215 after 6 PM

ESTABLISH CREDIT

DISCOVER CARDS
No cost to apply
Call Rob 546-1696
Leave message

DISCOVER CARDS
No cost to apply
Call Mark 546-4814
Leave message

FOR RENT

AMHERST, 1 BEDROOM AVAILABLE IN 3 BEDROOM NEW HOUSE ON BUS LINE. FIREPLACE. BEAUTIFUL!! AVAILABLE NOW CALL 8-4, 665-3326

LARGE ROOM IN 2 BEDROOM TOWNHOUSE GREAT PLACE TO LIVE ON BUS ROUTE CLOSE TO CAMPUS. CALL 253-4031 LEAVE MESSAGE

SHARE LARGE MODERN Amherst house on bus route with other students Own room $290/month 1st month's rent FREE! 549-0182

WINTER SPECIAL: 1 month rent 99 cents with one year lease
2 bedroom $450
3 bedroom $537
Sunderland. Free bus route, laundry facilities, swimming pool, garden plots, short term lease available 665-3856

FOR SALE

1990 ALLEZ RACING bike shimano 800 ultegra equipped Sebastien 546-3040

AEROSMITH BACKSTAGE PASSES tour 1991. Call for details 546-2396 Reasonable prices

CHEAP! New tyfon double frame
Trifold/sash $60/B O 253-7418

FAX-SHARP UX 100 - 6 months old, hardly used-asking $450 Call 1-467-3465 after 5

GREAT VALENTINE'S DAY GIFT
UMASS glow in the dark boxers
Delivered with your personal note
Only $10!
Call 546-0424 for details

MICROSOFT WORD- Improve your accuracy writing spanish, french, german, italian, swedish, or dutch Aki Software Corporation offers Microsoft's spelling and hyphenation dictionaries in these languages, plus medical and legal dictionaries in English For word 5.0/5.5, word for windows, or Mac word Retail $69.95, Student/ faculty rate $49.95 Prompt air shipment Call 1-800-669-WORD

ROUNDTRIP TICKETS TO Jacksonville Only $125 each Call 6-5814

SKIS/BOOTS
Lacroix skis with bindings-180 s
Lange boots and Lange heated boots
Very reasonable!
549-9932

SMITH CORONA XL2500, 1 year old Spell checker Corrects mistakes With instructions $150 or B O Call 6-0733

SONY COLOR TV 27" , life time warranty service from door to door, one-year old, ex condition $600 neg Call Ahmed 253-5837

HELP WANTED

9-$15 HOURLY AVERAGE
Sell art reproduction (prints) part time at school, low key, management at some schools. National publisher Call 1-800-221-2229

APPLY NOW TO be a tour guide, summer counselor, student admissions representative Applications available on concourse

ARE YOUR JOB prospects limited?
Need a secondary income?
This business opportunity may be for you Call 1(800) 226-5025 EXT 16075-

ASSEMBLERS. EXCELLENT INCOME to assemble products from your home 508-646-1700 Dept. p1307.

CAMP COUNSELORS NEEDED for co-ed, sports oriented camp located in northeastern Pa. near New York City. We have openings for general counselors as well as specialists in both land and water sports. Specialty areas include baseball, tennis, basketball, soccer, lacrosse, hockey, waterskiing, sailing, scuba, WSI, canoeing, windsurfing, gymnastics, archery, fencing, arts & crafts, piano accompanist, drama, radio and rocketry Pioneering staff needed for both land and canoe trips and for our ropes challenge course. Other openings may be available Salaries $100-200 per week plus room, board, and travel. We will be conducting on-campus interviews on March 5th. For information call or write G Lustig, 60 W. 66th St., 28A New York, N Y 10023, tel 212-724-0113

EARN $300 to $500 per week reading books at home. Call 1-615-473-7440 EXT B-281

INTELLIGENCE JOBS. All branches US Customs, DEA ect. Now hiring Call 1-805-962-8000 Ext. K-9616

NEWSPAPER DELIVERERS NEEDED in UMASS dorms. No car required 7-8am 7 days/week Call 253-7009

$$$ OPPORTUNITY OF a lifetime $$$ Own your own business Set your own hours Work while in school Interested, call 546-7469

INSTRUCTION

EARN CREDIT learn to Scuba Dive Basic Classes held Monday, Tuesday, Wednesday, and Thursday 7-10PM in Curry Hicks Pool. Open Water II class held during Spring Break in Key Largo, FLA. Advanced Class held in New England in April For further information call 549-8401, or drop by Curry Hicks starting 2/4/91

GUITAR LESSONS with Doug Hewitt Rock, Blues, Folk, Acoustic or Electric Improv, Theory, Reading, Songwriting, many new songs -plus singing. Studio on 3 bus lines 549-1938

HOW TO REALLY READ
(At the College Level!)
3 wk. crash course, 6 2hr. sessions
From an English Professor
$84 Call 549-6774

LOST

GLASSES IN A TOUGH BROWN CASE $15. CALL G. 546-5776

GOLD BRAIDED BRACELET, very sensimental! Reward call 546-4912

LOST: Blue Lord & Taylor cashmere coat If you have it, PLEASE!! Call 546-7246 No questions -REWARD-

READING GLASSES IN brown case. Anthony Martin gold frames Lost on Monday in reading room? Please call Jake 546-0239

WED. FEB 6 yellow champion sweatshirt lost between Marshall Annex & Thomp Please call if found 546-0746

PERSONALS

ATTENTION UMASS MEN: Tonight Michele Hoyle turns 21 and she will be in search of huggies, kissies and hickies!!! Love 132 the LH's

CONGRATULATIONS KB!!
We love you and wish you all the best, you crazy poodle!

CREEPY-
Bank accounts, break-ups, bedtime, banana ice cream, broken teeth, Basie big band, BIRTHDAYS!

HEY UMASS- Maryannmal Condon turned 21 yesterday!! Yeah party! Hope you had a great day, roomie! Love Downtown and sofy dog.

MIKE ANTUNES- Your studying days are over now Happy 21st! -Hic

RUSH THETA CHI
Best on campus location, best in house meals by our chef Jim, pool/ table/foozr/hoops/volleyball, cheaper than dorms- Univ approved housing, recently remodeled entire house, large electronic entertainment center, sun deck, antlion renderings by Wellman(a National Merit Scholar), tightest brotherhood on campus, lifelong friends, stop by to see what you've been missing!
RUSH THETA-CHI DATES:
Tue Feb 12 Pinnocho's Pizza Night
Thu Feb 14 Buffalo Wings Night
Tue Feb 19 Billiards and Fooz Night
Thu Feb 21 Mexican Night
All events in house 7:30-9:00
496 No. Pleasant St. (right next to Newman Ctr.)

TO THE GIRLS AT 15 COSBY!
What's up? Not much here and not much to say. Just thought I'd say Hi! Catch ya later
Love, me

PIZZA

COLLEGE PIZZA
"subs " salads " spaghetti"
BEST PIZZA IN TOWN
Only $5.99 large
$3.50 small
With spring special
2 additional toppings $1
Must mention this ad
549-6096 549-6073

RESUME SERVICE

PERSONALIZED CONSULTATION or laser printing of your original 549-0367

ROOMMATE WANTED

MALE ROOMATE WANTED to share furnished Brndy Wn apartment $179/mo heat included Willing to negotiate price Call 1-945-591

ROSES ROSES ROSES

ROSES ROSES ROSES Deliveries available see Chris- Campus Center Concourse

SERVICES

PREGNANT?
Need a pregnancy test, information or support? Call for free and confidential services ALTERNATIVES 33 Main Street Northampton 586-3000 or Greenfield 774-6010

SINGING VALENTINES
DELIVERED. CLASSES. DORMS. FRATS
INEXPENSIVE
PROFESSIONAL
546-2263

SPECIAL ANNOUNCEMENT

ATTENTION UMASS STUDENTS
Explore self and personal issues through psychodrama in a safe confidential setting Group meets Tuesdays 7-8 30PM starting 2/12/91 for 10 weeks No fee Register- Call Mark locally at 665-3678

SPRING BREAK

SPRING BREAK PARTY!
Travel to Jamaica, Mexico! And Panama City !!! Concerts! Free Parties! Club discounts! And lots more! For info call Denise 546-7156

TRAVEL

CAN'T AFFORD SPRING BREAK? GUARANTEED GREAT PRICES with top collegiate company! Space available to Jamaica, Cancun, Acapulco and Panama City Beach, Florida (the new Daytona Beach !)! MC/VISA ARE ACCEPTED! Call Cindy at 549-3538-please leave message!

* * * * * * *

FLORIDA'S NEWEST
HOT SPOT
Panama City $139
World's Biggest Beach
PARTY
Daytona Beach $189
Call Erika + Julie at 546-2649
or Siobhan + Terri at 546-5079

SPRING BREAK IS COMING! NEED AN OVERVIEW OF ALL THE POSSIBILITIES? SOME ADVICE? CALL CAMPUS TRAVEL OR STOP BY THE CAMPUS CENTER! 545-0500

SPRING BREAK MOST EXPERIENCE GREAT RATES! CALL TO FIND OUT Brendan 549-0308 Daryl 256-1091

WAKE-N-BAKE!!! Spring Break 91!!
Jamaica/Cancun from $459 00!
A week of fun and sun! The hottest destinations 1-800-426-7710

WANTED

I NEED THIS book for my Econ 204 class! Richard T. Froyen's Macroeconomics Theories and Policies third edition C Hill Pention 545-1361

SPORTS

Duchesses down women's hoop, 71-50

By GREG SUKIENNIK
Collegian Staff

Losing is disappointing, but losing when you could've won really stings.

University of Massachusetts women's basketball coach Kathy Hewelt felt that her Minutewomen could grab their first win of the year Saturday against Duquesne University. The Duchesses had been struggling all year and with their star player, Darcie Vincent, watching the game from the sidelines with an injured knee, UMass' prospects looked good.

But 26.8 percent shooting, foul trouble and continued poor health, courtesy of a persistent flu bug, dashed UMass' hopes in a 71-50 loss to the Duchesses Saturday at Curry Hicks Cage. "We couldn't buy a bucket," lamented Hewelt. "We were 4 for 30 from the perimeter, and that put us in a difficult position — we weren't able to balance our offense."

Meanwhile, Vincent's replacement, Pam Mountsier, lit up the scoreboard with five 3-point baskets, including four in the first half which gave Duquesne an 11 point lead going into halftime and a fifth to put the game out of reach late in the second half.

Shooting was a major problem for the Minutewomen (0-21, 0-13 A-10) all afternoon long. An 8 for 30 first half performance from the field was followed by a 7 for 26 mark in the second. UMass also missed a golden opportunity to make the game closer by going 20 of 31 from the line. Missed lay-ups proved a stumbling point as well, including some of the open-court variety.

Keyburn McCusker and Lisa Ireland both had three fouls in the first half, and when McCusker was called for her fourth with 13 minutes to go in the game, UMass lost offensive and defensive presence inside. Forward Kim Kristofik also ran into foul trouble in the second half, limiting her playing time, already hampered by a bad case of the flu.

"It hurt us when Keyburn and Lisa both had to sit in the first half," said Hewelt. "At that point we were in the game.

"Keyburn's fourth foul definitely hurt us," she continued. "With our peremiter game off, they started

CONTINUED ON PAGE 11

Dukes dupe Minutemen, 68-67

By SAM SILVERSTEIN
Collegian Staff

Duquesne used an 11-1 game-ending run to hand the University of Massachusetts men's basketball team its second consecutive Atlantic 10 loss, 68-67, Saturday night in Pittsburgh, Pa.

UMass led by nine, at 66-57, late in the game, but could not hang on down the stretch as the starting front line of John Tate, Will Herndon and Harper Williams fouled out.

Duquesne retook the lead with 1:30 to play on a Mark Gilbert three-point play.

UMass had a chance to win it at the buzzer, but an Anton Brown 10-foot baseline jumper did not fall.

The loss dropped the Minutemen to seventh place in the A-10 at 7-6, 14-8 overall. Duquesne improved to 7-6, 9-12.

UMass has lost six league games by a total of 11 points.

Down 38-31 at halftime and 53-42 early in the second half, the Minutemen exploded with a 24-4 run to take a 66-57 lead.

Harper Williams — who scored 21 of his game-high 23 points in the second half — had 11 points during the outburst.

The Dukes, playing without top scorers Alan Watkins and James Hargrove, were paced by Tony Petrarca's 21 points. Petrarca hit five 3-pointers.

For UMass, Rafer Giles had 11 points as Jim McCoy and Will Herndon added 10 each. Williams hit 10 of 11 shots from the floor, grabbed six rebounds and had three blocks.

Williams, who has averaged 19.5 points in UMass' last four games, was named A-10 Player of the Week yesterday.

Forward Tony Barbee returned from a three-game absence and scored eight points in 20 minutes.

Duquesne, 68-67

Massachusetts (67)
Herndon 2-3 6-7 10, Tate 2-4 1-1 5, Williams 10-11 3-3 23, Giles 3-12 2-2 11, McCoy 4-14 2-4 10, Barbee 3-7 2-5 8, Brown 0-4 0-0 0, Meyer 0-0 0-0 0, K. Robinson 0-0 0-0 0. Totals 26-59 12-19 67.
Duquesne (68)
Gilbert 5-11 3-4 13, Whitehead 2-7 1-3 6, Alston 5-14 3-5 13, Petrarca 9-16 0-0 21, Adams 1-4 1-3 3, Ladson 2-4 2-5 6, English 0-1 6-6 6. Totals 23-57 16-24 68.
Halftime Duquesne 38, UMass 31. Three-point goals Petrarca 5, Giles 3, Whitehead. Fouled out Tate, Alston, Herndon, Williams. Rebounds UMass 34 (Tate 10), Duquesne 43 (Alston 9). Assists UMass 19 (Giles 7), Duquesne 13 (Adams 5). Total fouls UMass 24, Duquesne 17. Technicals Whitehead A - 4,641.

Collegian photo by Carrie Wyeth

Junior forward Jim McCoy scored 10 points against Duquesne Saturday in Pittsburg, Pa.

Men's track takes ECAC third

By KEITH BENNETT
Collegian Correspondent

The University of Massachusetts men's track team finished third in the Eastern Conference Championship Saturday in New Haven, Conn.

Rhode Island won the meet with 145 points. Southern Connecticut finished second with 83 and UMass scored 76.

"Rhode Island was very impressive," said UMass coach Ken O'Brien. "They won nine of the 18 events and looked very strong."

While Rhode Island dominated the meet, UMass and Southern Connecticut staged an exciting battle for second. The two teams were tied going into the last event, the mile relay, but Southern Connecticut secured the runner-up spot by finishing third in the race, while the Minutemen failed to place.

"We exceeded expectations in this meet," O'Brien added. "I didn't think we would be able to even compete with Southern Connecticut. I was very pleased with the effort and the outcome."

As O'Brien had expected, the Minutemen's top event was the 3,000-meter run. Senior Jon Corso won the event in a time of 8 minutes, 31.78 seconds. He was followed by senior Gerry Squires and freshman John Raach. Squires placed second in 8:37.4 and Raach finished third in 8:48.5.

Sprinter Kevin Walters placed in two events for UMass, taking second in the 55 dash (6.57) and third in the 200 (22.9).

Other second place finishes were turned in by Steve Brown in the 400 (50.51) and Matt Simon in the 1,500 (4:01.55).

In the field events, Joe Kourafas finished fourth in both the long-jump, with a distance of 22 feet, 2 inches, and the high-jump at 6-3.

Other top finishers in the field events were Brian Bednarek, who placed fourth in the pole-vault; Dave Borges, who was sixth in the long-jump; and Jeff Peterson, with a sixth in the triple-jump.

Sophomore Ben Nichols ran a personal best in the 1,000 with a time of 2:37.5 placing sixth place.

Rounding out the scoring for UMass was the 4 x 800 relay team of Brown, Bill Wallace, Jay Young and Brian King, who finished third, and the distance medley team of Tom Hooper, Jim Avery, Ben Winther and Pat Ryan, who finished sixth.

Terriers bully swimmers, 144-99

By THOMAS A. GEORGE
Collegian Correspondent

The University of Massachusetts men's swimming team ended its regular season with a 144-99 loss at Boston University Saturday. The team finished with a 10-2 record.

The event became a mismatch when the UMass squad arrived to find the BU team rested, shaved and tapered. This practice is commonly reserved for events other than regularly scheduled dual meets.

"I've never had a team swim that well and lose," said UMass coach Russ Yarworth. "They truly rose to the occassion."

While UMass won only two events, there were numerous unshaved bests. Scott Reed was triumphant in the 1,000-yard freestyle, posting a time of 9:58.66. Also, teammate Jim Robertson posted a winning time of 1:44.81 in the 200 free.

Midway into the meet, the scoreboard read 52-41, BU. In the long haul the shaved and tapered Terriers that would stretch the lead to the greater difference.

Standout performances came from both Chris Barrett in the 50 (21.88) and 100 (47.85) free, as well as Frank Sampson in the 200 backstroke with a time of 2:00.01.

In the one-meter and three-meter diving events, Steve Meyers posted scores of 239.70 and 220.28, gaining two second place finishes. As a team, UMass posted second, third and fifth in the one-meter and second, fourth anbd fifth in the three-meter.

"The men faced the defeat with maturity," Yarworth said. "They knew that they were facing a situation with their backs against the wall."

Barkley gets All-Star MVP

By BILL BARNARD
The Associated Press

CHARLOTTE, N.C. — Charles Barkley, a reluctant All-Star, showed no reluctance to go to the basket Sunday.

The powerful forward for the Philadelphia 76ers, playing on a stress fracture in his left foot, won MVP honors with 17 points and 22 rebounds, leading the East to a 116-114 victory. The game was not decided until the final seconds when the West's Karl Malone was called for basket interference on a 3-point attempt by teammate Kevin Johnson.

Barkley wanted to miss the All-Star game to rest his ailing foot and sprained ankle. But he returned to the 76ers four games before All-Star weekend, and was ordered to play by the NBA.

"I'm thrilled you volunteered to be here," commissioner David Stern needled Barkley at the award ceremony.

Barkley's 22 rebounds were the most of any All-Star since Wilt Chamberlain grabbed 22 in 1967, but five short of Bob Pettit's 1962 record.

"I'm glad I came down here," Barkley said. "My foot was hurting a little, but I hope I can come back strong in the second half of the season."

Barkley also wanted to skip All-Star weekend a year ago to rest another injury, but he was ordered to play or risk suspension then, too.

"I had a really good time here," Barkley said. "They didn't do anything until today. I didn't practice on Saturday."

Barkley had 11 rebounds in each half for the East, which improved it All-Star game victory margin to 27-14.

Malone and Magic Johnson spoke good-naturedly of Barkley's injury and volatile personality.

"I hate Charles because he throws

CONTINUED ON PAGE 10

AP photo

East team's Charles Barkley of the Philadelphia 76ers holds up his trophy after being named the MVP of the NBA All-Star game in Charlotte yesterday. The East defeated the West 116-114.

Largest College Daily in New England

THE MASSACHUSETTS DAILY COLLEGIAN Established in 1890

VOLUME C TUESDAY, FEBRUARY 12, 1991 ISSUE 80

Allies intensify air campaign against Iraq

• Allied raids on Iraq claim Baghdad bridge

By JOHN KING
Associated Press Writer

DHAHRAN, Saudi Arabia (AP) — Allied raids on Iraq claimed another major bridge in Baghdad yesterday, and American pilots claimed likely hits on Iraqi Scud missile launchers.

U.S. officials, meanwhile, said Iraqi jets that fled to Iran pose little threat because their pilots are inexperienced and the planes cannot be kept combat-ready.

In another indication of the war's toll on Iraq, Baghdad said yesterday it will begin drafting all 17-year-old males. Last month, Iraq lowered the conscription age from 18 to 17, but exempted youths still in school.

Thousands of Iraqi civilians have been killed or wounded by allied air raids, Iraqi Religious Affairs Minister Abdullah Fadel said yesterday in Baghdad.

It was the first time a senior government official spoke of such high war casualties. Fadel said he could not give precise figures. Previous Iraqi government reports put civilian casualties at about 650 dead and 750 wounded.

Allied pilots, meanwhile, flew nearly 3,000 sorties yesterday in what the U.S. Command described as an intensification of the air campaign leading up to a ground assault expected in the next few weeks.

In Washington, President Bush was conferring yesterday with Defense Secretary Dick Cheney, who paid a weekend visit to the war zone. Cheney said Sunday that the nonstop allied air campaign has reduced the fighting power of some Iraqi divisions by as much as 40 percent.

He did not say when a ground and amphibious assault might begin.

In Riyadh, the Saudi capital, U.S. officials said 40 percent of Iraq's air force is believed out of commission, including the planes that fled to Iran.

The military officials, speaking on condition of anonymity, also said Iraq was playing a "shell game" with its remaining aircraft, putting some in hardened concrete shelters damaged in earlier air strikes, while hiding others in civilian and wooded areas.

• Allied pilots fly 2,900 sorties in 24 hours

DHAHRAN (AP) — U.S. Marine Brig. Gen. Richard Neal told reporters in Riyadh today that allied pilots had flown 2,900 sorties in the last 24 hours to soften up Iraq's large dug-in ground force and disrupt supply lines. More than 69,000 sorties have been flown by allied bombers in the 26-day old war, he said.

"I think it's a fair assumption to make, just by numbers, we are in fact intensifying the air campaign, particularly against items like the Republican Guard in what we would call our battlefield preparation phase," Neal said.

He said allied raids had succeeded in halting most of the military traffic between Baghdad and the port city of Basra, the Iraqi military headquarters.

"We have struck some of the key bridges going into Basra. . . Perhaps there still is (military) traffic. . .but in fact it can't get into Basra," Neal said. "We do feel we have significantly cut down the flow of military goods and equipment down to Basra."

Asked about reports of large numbers of civilian casualties in Basra, Neal blamed Saddam Hussein for placing anti-aircraft artillery and other military hardware in residential neighborhoods and civilian buildings.

A senior U.S. commander pointed Sunday to the need to move more allied soldiers and equipment into places along the front, saying it could take up to a month. Underscoring that, M1-A1 main battle tanks — a key weapon in any ground war — were being shipped north today along Saudi supply routes.

U.S. military officials in Riyadh cited pilot reports as saying three of the mobile Scud missile launchers believed destroyed in the past two days were in western Iraq, where they could be used to lob missiles on Israel.

The other two were in southern Iraq, a launching ground for rocket attacks on Saudi Arabia, said the officials.

Iraq has repeatedly fired Scud missiles at Israel and Saudi Arabia during the war. Although U.S. commanders have described the Scud as more of a terror weapon than a significant military threat, the mobile Scud launchers have been prime targets in the air war, which began Jan. 17.

Collegian photo by K.A. Burke

WAR VIGIL — Anti-War protestors hold a mid-day vigil on the steps of the Student Union yesterday.

SGA moves to reduce size of Senate

Constitution Committee votes to cut Senate by more than half

By CRISTUA CASEY
Collegian Correspondent

The committee in charge of creating a new SGA constitution decided last night to reduce the number of SGA senators by more than half.

After more than two-and-a-half hours of debate, the seven-member Government Association Constitution Drafting Committee agreed that each of the five residential areas, the Commuter Area Government and Greek Area Government will elect one representative for every 400 students.

The SGA is currently composed of 113 senators, a student-to-representative ratio of roughly 250-1.

Before reaching its decision, the Committee considered several options for shrinking the size of the senate without cutting down the quality of representation, including electing senators by cluster, dorm, or dividing up the number of students into districts.

At one point, the Committee considered a design that would have limited the number of senators to as few as 25.

Senator Dennis Crowley, of John Adams, argued that the number be reduced to 40-50 representatives.

"If the senate is a smaller group, it can get a lot more done as opposed to a larger one," said Senator Dan Cohen, of the Third World Caucus.

"Why would it be necessary to insure that there is a senator in each dorm when the issues are essentially the same?"

The Committee's first attempt to discuss the reorganization of the SGA was thwarted briefly Saturday when it was locked out of its office.

The Committee was forced to meet on couches in the basement of the Campus Center.

Last night, several members of the Committee said they were angered by the incident.

Senator George Chidi, of Gorman, compared it to "a standard clash between the executive branch and the legislative branches of government."

INSIDE:

TUESDAY, FEBRUARY 12, 1991

Fall 1990 Dean's List

Page 3: Threat of anti-war protest causes airplane manufacturer pull out of Career Fair.
Page 7: Meredith O'Brien argues that swimsuits are NOT sports.
Page 20: Shorthanded men's gymnastics team beats MIT.

WEATHER

Sunny, breezy and cold today. Low near 20. Clouds tonight with temperatures falling to 0.

Reservist harassed to reenlist

By AMY HENRY
Collegian Staff

A University of Massachusetts student reservist said he has been harassed daily for the past two weeks by a recruiter who is asking him to reenlist, or be automatically reenlisted.

Keith Millit, a reservist in the National Guard, said, "I've been told I have the choice to voluntarily reenlist for a year or be automatically reenlisted for five years.

"I didn't receive any official papers saying why I had to re-enlist. This is like being drafted," he said.

Millit said he has decided to sign on today, the deadline, even though he knows forced reenlistment in an inactive reserve unit is illegal.

"I have no money to get a lawyer. I know how the military works and if I don't sign on I don't want to get stuck with five years time," he said.

Attorney Jenny Daniell of the Legal Services Organization said so far two reservists have came in asking for legal reasons of why they are being reenlisted.

"We are telling reservists they can totally ignore recruitment officers because there's no deadline for recruitment. This is an illegal scam," she said.

Daniell said reservists who are illegally asked to reenlist should ask which law has been passed requiring this.

She said three military law experts told her if the unit has not been activated, which in Millit's case it has not, then they do not have to sign an extension agreement.

Millit said, "The recruiting officer told me he was given a memo which stated that everyone who was supposed to get out of the Guard (ETS) after Jan. 19 would have to forfeit and be obliged to come back. When I asked him for further information he didn't know anything."

Millit said he is scheduled to finish his seven-year stint in the army — three years active duty and four years inactive duty in the Guard — Feb. 13.

Millit, a junior communications and computer graphics major, said he had hoped to be able to put more time into his education after his time was up.

"If my unit got mobilized to Germany or Saudi Arabia I'd go," he said. "I just don't want to be reenlisted now because I have to go to monthly drills which affects my ability to do my schoolwork and work at University Video Productions."

The recruiter who has been trying to recruit Millit refused to answer any questions.

Sergeant Al Baker, a National Guard recruiter of the from the Hampshire Mall office, said allegations of forced reenlistment are false. "Why would a recruiter whose main function is to recruit people try to make them reenlist?," Baker said.

An executive order that was passed Jan. 18 extends enlistment time for a year for those who are active but does not necessarily extend enlistment time for those who are inactive unless their unit is activated, Daniell said.

"In reference to what Keith was told, the five years automatic reenlistment is totally false and the one-year

CONTINUED ON PAGE 2

THE MASSACHUSETTS
DAILY COLLEGIAN

New England's largest college daily newspaper. Circulation: 19,000. Published every weekday during the calendar semester. The Massachusetts Daily Collegian is a Registered Student Organization of the University of Massachusetts.

113 Campus Center, Amherst, MA, 01003
Phone (413) 545-3500 FAX (413) 545-1592

STAFF

Editor in Chief....Terry Starmer
Managing Editor....Jody Cabin
Editorial Editor....Jeremy Levinson
News Editor....Gayle Long
Sports Editor....Adrien Matt
Arts Editor....Danielle Dowling
Photography Editor....K.A. Burke
Black Affairs Editor....Sondra Sutton
Women's Issues Editors....Rua Kelly, Monique Tabon
Multicultural Affairs Editor....Alexander Nguyen
Third World Affairs Editor....Pratip Dastidar
Lesbian, Bisexual, Gay Issues Editor....Trystan Skeigh
Business Manager....Susan George
Advertising Manager....Dave Melnick
Finance Manager....Beth Patterson
Circulation Manager....Jim Winterbottom
Subscriptions Manager....Stacy Rogers
Promotions Manager....Marc Pruskin
Production Manager....Nicole Dumas
Day Graphics Manager....Jenn Burns

PROFESSIONAL STAFF

Business....Brian Harrington, Lori Black, Maureen Majerowski
Graphics....Rory Evans

TODAY'S STAFF

Night Editor....Sam Silverstein
Copy Editor....Jody Cabin
Layout Technician....Nicole Dumas
Photo Technician....K.A. Burke
Production Supervisor....Nicole Dumas
Typesetter....Terry Starmer
Production....Paul Specht, Meg Trudell, Tania Ivany

■ National Guard

CONTINUED FROM PAGE 1

re-enlistment does not apply to him because he is in inactive duty and his unit has not been activated," she said.

According to Daniell, the Executive Order has not been made public to the press because it is harder for reservists to fight laws if they do not know they exist.

"I believe this is happening because a draft would be very unpopular right now and and they would rather keep reserve units in the picture," she said.

The other law that was passed recently, called the Stop Loss Regulation by George Bush, states that anyone in active duty cannot get out of the military except for special cases like pregnancy, until the country is no longer at war, said Daniell.

According to Daniell, this law does not apply to Millit either.

Correction

In yesterday's Collegian, in the story entitled "Administration shuts door on constitution meeting" the student senator from Gorman Residence Hall was misidentified. His name is George Chidi.

The Collegian apologizes for any inconvenience.

OOPS!
Now's the time to call...
North Amherst Motors
78 Old Sunderland Rd., No. Amherst
549-2880
Expert Repairs and Reconditioning
Most Major Credit Cards Accepted

Sweeties
FINE CHOCOLATES AND CONFECTIONS
CHOCOLATE HEARTS
63 North Pleasant St
Amherst (413) 253-5589
68 Main St
Northampton (413) 586-4180

Valentine's Day
BUFFET

The TOC Restuarant
invites you to a
Valentine's Day Buffet

Buffalo wings potato skins, homemade bread, baked rigatoni and fettuccini are just a few of the fourteen delicious offerings to choose from for a very special price of $14 for two! (non-alcoholic beverages and dessert also included)

Thursday, Feb. 14th
5:00 pm - 9:00 pm
Reservations are Requested
Student Discounts Not Applicable
545-3216

CAREERS,
PEOPLE,
REWARDS...

Expect the Unexpected at Chubb

Chubb is to insurance what J.P. Morgan is to banking. As the principal subsidiary of the Chubb Corporation, Chubb & Son manages the Chubb Group of Insurance Companies. At Chubb, excellence is stressed--in education, performance, and training. Chubb emphasizes service to its customers with special needs and has developed such innovative insurance packages as coverage of multimillion-dollar film projects and the transportation of priceless artwork.

With more than 8,000 employees in over fifty branch offices, opportunities for college graduates are extensive. All college majors are applicable.

CHUBB
Group of Insurance Companies

Stop by and see us at the Career Fair on Wednesday, February 13th at the Campus Center Auditorium between 1 and 5 p.m.

LOCAL

Manufacturer pulls out of Career Fair

By TAMIR LIPTON
Collegian Staff

Fears of protest have caused Pratt and Whitney, a subsidiary of military airplane manufacturer United Technologies, to pull out of Wednesday's University of Massachusetts Career Fair, according to Joan Stoia, director of the Mather Career Center.

"We read them an article that said there would be protest and they decided not to come. Instead they are going to recruit on their own land," Stoia said.

"We never told them not to come," Stoia said. "It's a courtesy to inform them that there may be protest. If we don't tell them [and there is protest] and they come, then we've acted irresponsibly."

"I don't think they need to be afraid," said Arthur Hilson, director of public safety. "By not coming, they're denying those students who want to talk to them the right to talk to them."

Guy Courcy, the recruiter from Pratt and Whitney who was scheduled to come to UMass, was unavailable for comment yesterday.

Exxon Corporation, the subject of many protests following 1989's Valdez oil spill in Alaska, will come to the Career Fair.

Yesterday, a sign reading "We don't care/we don't have to/we're Exxon/so there" was hung on a window in front of the Student Union. The sign was accompanied by an Exxon barrel tipped over, with a black sheet representing oil flowing out and stuffed animals laying on their backs.

Exxon representative Hank Mosler was also unavailable for comment.

The fair, which will be held in the Campus Center Auditorium an will feature a range of employment opportunities, kicks off a week-long series of afternoon events called Career Week.

Between Feb. 13 and 21, the Career Center will offer a panel on International Careers, a workshop on how to negotiate the salary you deserve, a panel on the ethics of the job search, and a session on how to survive your first year on the job after graduation.

There will also be three more fairs; the annual Co-op and Summer Job Fair on Feb. 21 in the Campus Center Auditorium, a trip to the Minority Career Expo in Boston on Feb. 20, and the UMass Volunteer Fair, also in the Campus Center.

Collegian photo by Jeff Holland

An unidentified student passes by a "guerilla theatre" display depicting an Exxon oil spill yesterday. Despite the possibility of further protests, Exxon will attend Wednesday's Career Fair in the Campus Center Auditorium.

UM cable may be installed by April

By EMILY K. HAYES
Collegian Correspondent

Students flicking through television channels in April may get a pleasant surprise if cable installation progresses without interference.

SYNET, the communications consulting company based in Rhode Island that is supervising NWS, a Westfield-based cable television installation corporation, will be testing the system in a few weeks.

If plans do not need any further adjustments, cable should be available on campus in April, according to Jerry Quarles, assistant director of Housing Services.

Cable reception on campus has been delayed by changes in original plans for workmanship and the need for equipment which has not yet been shipped, Quarles said.

Delays resulted from the University's search for the lowest bidder when equipment was ordered from companies scattered across the country, Quarles said. For example, antennas have not yet arrived from Texas.

The delay does not entitle students to a partial refund of the telecommunications fee, however. Of the $87 fee per semester, $5 was allotted for wiring campus for cable, Qarles said.

Ericsson Corporation, which installed a new University communications system last year, completed the cable wiring in conjunction with the work done on the new phone system.

Quarles, who has been working for eight years on the cable network, says cable will be necessary if the University is to remain competitive.

UMass employed Scientific Atlanta, a national firm, to research the project, which will be modeled after systems at Kent State, Stanford and Brown universities, among others.

CONTINUED ON PAGE 4

Vehicle vandalized in Lot 11; man arrested for trespassing

Compiled by MARK HENSLEY
Collegian Staff

A man reported on Friday an estimated $1500 worth of scratches made by a sharp instrument on his 1991 vehicle while it was parked in lot 11.

In other events over the weekend:

Arrests

- Leo G. Bergin, 19, of Cambridge, was arrested at Cance residence hall Friday for allegedly being intoxicated and trespassing after notice. He was allegedly involved in an earlier fight.
- Lee B. Human, 20, of Athol, was arrested Friday on Kennedy Drive for allegedly being a minor in possession of alcohol.
- Paul M. Dupont, 19, of Warwick, RI., was arrested for allegedly being a disorderly person after police responded to a report of several intoxicated males breaking furniture on the 22nd floor of Kennedy residence hall early Saturday morning.
- Police placed two subjects, ages 19 and 21, into protective custody early Sunday morning for being allegedly intoxicated and uncooperative with medical staff at Health Services. Both were charged with allegedly being in possession of another person's Massachusetts drivers license.

Thefts

- A man reported the theft a Sony "Diskman," a power pack and 15 compact discs from his unlocked room in Coolidge residence hall Saturday morning. The total estimated value was $500.
- A man reported the theft of his wallet, a hair dryer, telephone, cassettes and a Walkman from his unlocked room in John Adams residence hall Saturday. The total estimated value was $500.
- A woman reported the theft of her mountain bike valued at $350 from the basement of Van Meter residence hall Saturday morning.
- A woman reported the theft of her stereo system from the lobby of Thoreau residence hall Sunday morning. Police retrieved the stereo and located the alleged thief using witnesses' reports.
- A man reported early Monday morning that his stereo was stolen from his locked room in Gorman residence hall over the weekend. Its estimated value was $550.

AP photo

IN THE TRENCHES – Private Thomas Holdreith of Detriot, center, is followed by Specialist Darnell Johnson of Dent, Mich., during a trench warfare exercise in preparation for deployment in Saudi Arabia.

Distinguished Visitors Program
New Members Meeting
ALL ARE WELCOME
distinguished visitors program
TUESDAY, FEB 12 at 6 PM
distinguished visitors program
CHECK CAMPUS CENTER INFO DESK FOR LOCATION
REFRESHMENTS WILL BE SERVED!

campus cable

CONTINUED FROM PAGE 3

"We're catching up with them," he said.

Auditoriums and classrooms will have cable access and students will be able to record classes, he said.

The financial burden will be borne partly by the communications and maintenance departments. Funds to recover the installation costs will be drawn in part by public service announcements, he said.

Valentines, Just In Time.

$1.98 VALENTINE SPECIAL
MYLAR BALLOONS
Choose from dozens of Valentine messages on eye-catching mylar balloons. Super jumbo size $9.98 Looney walker $7.98

$6.98 DOZEN $3.98 1/2 DOZEN BALLOON BOUQUETS
Classic valentine helium latex balloons, specially priced.

$1.98 VALENTINE SPECIAL
MUSICAL SWEETHEART ROSE
Plays "Let Me Call You Sweetheart."

$5.98 VALENTINE SPECIAL
BALLOON-A-GIFT
Wrap any gift up to 5" diameter in a fun-filled balloon. Bring your own special gift or shop in our store. *Findings additional cost.

CARDS & CANDY
Largest selection anywhere. Over 50,000 cards in every store: Hallmark, Recycled and others...
Sweets by the ton: Russell Stover & more...

VALENTINE Hallmark SUPERSTORES
CARD gallery
15 CT AND MA STORES TO SERVE YOU
Quantities limited, store stock only on Valentine specials. Not all items available in all stores

SPRINGFIELD • MA Haymarket Square 543-4123
WESTFIELD • MA Across from Caldor 562-3444
HADLEY/AMHERST • MA Next to Super Stop & Shop 253-2764
ENFIELD • CT Enfield Commons (203) 741-3779

This is Merchandising in the '90's

Not what you expected? Read on.

Retailing in the '90's promises to be an increasingly competitive and sophisticated business.

That's why now more than ever at T.J. Maxx, we need a corporate merchandising group supporting our stores that is aggressive, decisive, responsive to change, and up to the challenge of helping us grow. Professionals with fashion savvy and strong analytical skills are needed to work in our Home Office in Framingham, MA.

Join us and you'll start as a Merchandise Analyst, learning and advancing at your own pace through our Executive Training Program. This program is designed as a career path to a Buyer position.

And since we buy for over 360 stores coast-to-coast, and for 45+ new stores opening each year, there's always room for you to grow.

Stop by and meet us—and you could be part of the picture too! We will be at the University Placement Services Career Fair on:

Wednesday, February 13th

T.J. Maxx will be on campus to conduct interviews at the Career Center on Wednesday, February 20th.

For more information about T.J. Maxx, please stop by the Mather Career Center.

T.J.maxx
Off-price retailing is our business
An equal opportunity employer

THE WELCOME BACK TO SCHOOL AND GET-READY-TO-FIT-INTO YOUR-BATHING-SUIT-FOR-SPRING-BREAK

SPECIAL

Sign up by Feb. 23 at any of the three BODY SHOP locations (Totman Gym, Kennedy and John Adams Towers) with this coupon and pay $45 for a spring semester membership to work every muscle in your body with:

NEW NAUTILUS MACHINES
HYDRA-FITNESS MACHINES
STATIONARY BICYCLES
ROWING MACHINES
NORDIC TRAC SKI MACHINES
STAIR CLIMBERS
TREADMILLS
and
AEROBICS CLASSES

Body Shop Fitness Center
DISCOUNT
$5.00 Off
Spring Semester Membership
Offer expires 2/23/91

For Your Information

TUESDAY, FEBRUARY 12

National Student Exchange Meeting — An information session sponsored by the National Student Exchange will be held from 4 p.m. to 5 p.m. in Campus Center room 803. Applications for Fall '91 and/or Spring '92 are due March 1.

Senior Bash 1991 — Anyone interested in helping plan for the senior bash should attend a meeting at 7 p.m. in CC168.

WEDNESDAY, FEBRUARY 13

GLB Valentine Panel — A panel of couples will discuss same-sex relations at 8 p.m. in Campus Center room 904. The event is sponsored by the Program for Gay, Lesbian and Bisexual Concerns.

School of Nursing Academic Rounds Lecture — The School of Nursing will sponsor a talk by speaker Dr. Patricia Moccia from 4 p.m. to 6 p.m. at the Campus Center room 904.

Women's Studies Talk — A talk by writer Leslea Newman is sponsored by the Women's Studies Dept. It will be held from 12:15 p.m. to 1:30 p.m. in the Campus Center complex.

Jewish Arts Festival — Storyteller Judith Black presents "A Hilarious Look at the Insecurities of Single Life," at 8 p.m. in the Hillel House. Free bagels served from 7 p.m.-7:30 p.m. Sponsored by Hillel.

Information Sessions — for anyone interested in becoming a Student Admissions Representative, Tour Guide or New Students Program Summer Counselor, in the Campus Center at 4 p.m.

THURSDAY, FEBRUARY 14

Film and Discussion — "Children of Fire" will be shown at 4 p.m. in Herter Auditorium (room 231). The film deals with the Palestinian uprising as seen through the eyes of the children.

Meeting — The first meeting of Club Communication at 5:30 p.m. in Machmer E-37.

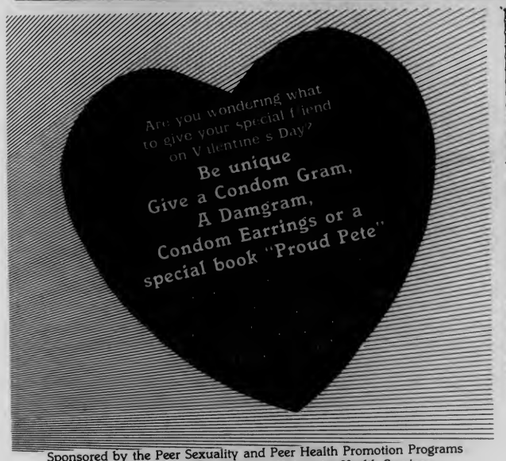
An Analysis of the U.S.-Soviet Summit — A Five College Faculty Panel, sponsored by the Five College Program in Peace and World Security Studies, will be held at 8 p.m. in Converse Hall at Amherst College.

Poetry Reading — Richard Jackson will read his poetry at Memorial Hall at 6 p.m. Sponsored by the MFA program in the English department, as part of the Visiting Writers series.

Non-violence training sessions — at the Congregational Church in Northampton from 5:30 p.m. to 9:30 p.m. In preparation for the rally and action on Saturday 16, 1991.

SATURDAY, FEBRUARY 16

Rally and Non-violent Direct Action — A rally will be held at Westover Air Force base at 1:30 p.m. An affinity group formation and strategy session will be held at Hooker Auditorium at Mount Holyoke College from 9 a.m. to 12 a.m.



Are you wondering what to give your special friend on Valentine's Day?
Be unique
Give a Condom Gram,
A Damgram,
Condom Earrings or a special book "Proud Pete"

Sponsored by the Peer Sexuality and Peer Health Promotion Programs of the Health Education Division-University Health Services

DIVERSITY, VARIETY, CHALLENGE

"An unchallenging 8-to-5 job? I couldn't do that."

I came to Woodward-Clyde to work on a diversity of water resource projects – water quality, hydrology, fisheries – I haven't been disappointed yet. Diversity in a career, at least to me, is crucial.

At Woodward-Clyde you can find variety, diversity, challenge. More importantly, they encourage it; they make it worth it. I can't imagine working any other way.

Eric Strecker, Senior Project Scientist

Woodward-Clyde is People!

Woodward-Clyde
Consulting Engineers • Geologists • Environmental Scientists
We will be on campus February 26 & 27, 1991.
Please see your career services office to arrange an interview.

湘園
PANDA EAST
CHINESE RESTAURANT

We bring Chinatown to you

Open Hours: Mon-Thurs. 11:30am-10:00pm
Fri. & Sat. 11:30am-11:00pm
Sunday 2:00pm-10:00pm

Lunch Hours: Mon.-Sat. 11:30am-3:00pm

103 N. Pleasant St. • Amherst, MA 01002
(413) 256-8923 (413) 256-8924

MENTAL HEALTH DIVISION GROUPS
SPRING 1991

TUESDAY
Support/Decision-Making for Problem Drinkers	1:00 - 2:30 pm
Bi-sexual Support Group	2:00 - 3:30 pm
Advanced ACOA Group	3:00 - 4:30 pm
Intimacy Skills Group	6:00 - 7:30 pm
Exploring Lesbian, Gay, Bi-sexual Identities	7:00 - 8:30 pm
WEDNESDAY
Beginners ACOA	9:00 -10:30 am
Self-Exploration Group	3:30 - 5:00 pm
THURSDAY
Women In Transition	12:45 - 2:15 pm
Self-Exploration Group	3:00 - 4:30 pm
Chronic Medical Illness Support Group	3:30 - 5:00 pm
Eating Disorders	3:30 - 5:00 pm

Groups begin in late February or early March. Pre-group interviews are necessary. For information or to register for a group call 545-2337 or stop by 127 Hills North as early in the semester as possible.

FREE 1991 Student Travel Catalog!
Everything you need to know about:
•Student Travel
• Air Fares
• Rail Passes
• Car Rental/Leasing
•Work Abroad
•Study Abroad
•Int'l Student & Teacher ID
& MUCH MORE!!!
CALL for your FREE copy!
Council Travel
79 So. Pleasant St.
Amherst
413-256-1251

Domino's Pizza
Amherst/Hadley
256-8911
South Hadley
535-1111

Buy ANY Large Pizza
GET A SMALL 1-ITEM PIZZA for only $.30c
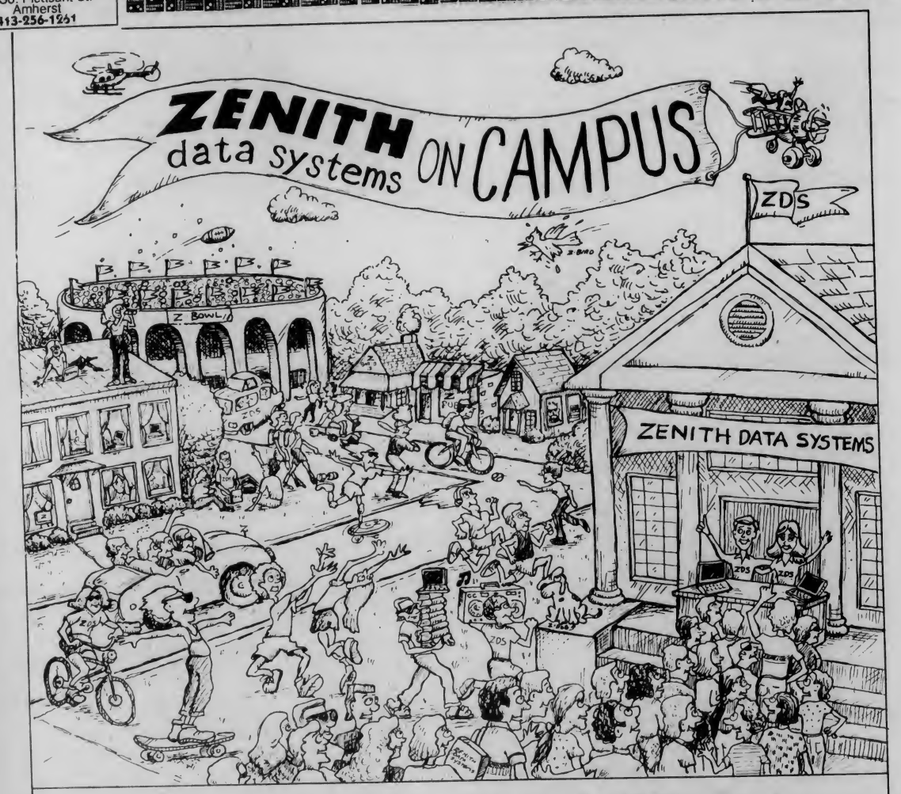
Expires 3-30-91
1 coupon per order

Buy ANY-Pizza
Get a 2nd of equal or lesser value for only $1.99
expires 3-30-91
1 coupon per order

Buy ANY-Large Pizza for the
PRICE OF A SMALL PIZZA
expires 3-30-91
not good with any other offer



When: February 13 - 14
School: UMASS Amherst
Where: Campus Center
Time: 9:00AM - 4:00PM

Pick A Winner!
Zenith Data Systems invites you to see what all the excitement is on campus. Come see our award winning portable computers as well as the most powerful desktop computers in the college market today. Plus there will be plenty of prizes and lots of fun for everyone. Ask about our special education discounts of up to 40%-50%. So come to the campus show and let us help you to choose a winner with Zenith Data Systems!
ZENITH data systems
Groupe Bull

EDITORIAL/OPINION

The opinions on this page are those of the individual writer or cartoonist and do not necessarily reflect the views of the Collegian or the University unless otherwise noted.

Editorial policy

"Sometimes a scream is better than a thesis."
— Ralph Waldo Emerson

The Editorial/Opinion page welcomes columns, letters and cartoons from UMass and the rest of the Five College area.

The Editorial staff reserves the right to edit letters and columns for grammar, clarity and length.

Submissions must bear your name, local address and phone number. This information is subject to verification.

Anonymous submissions will be printed at the editors' discretion. Letters or columns written under a pseudonym will NOT be accepted.

Letters should be no longer than 50 double-spaced, typed lines. Columns must not exceed 70 double-spaced, typed lines. Untyped submissions or submissions of obscene and unreasonable length will NOT be considered for publication.

Letters and columns written in response to a previously published letter will NOT be printed. Responses to or criticism of columns or articles must be restricted to letter form. Any exceptions will be determined solely by the editors.

The Editorial staff is not required to print all submitted material. Submissions become the property of the Collegian and will not be returned.

The opinions expressed on this page are those of the individual writer or cartoonist and might not reflect the views of the Collegian or the Editorial staff.

The Editorial staff is trying its best to honor the above-mentioned policies. Furthermore, we exist only to serve you, the Collegian-reading public. We do our best to facilitate a healthy community discussion of the issues. But, without you, this discussion doesn't happen. So get writing. . .19,000 people are waiting to find out what you think.

Clip this handy policy statement and put it on your fridge!

" GORBY'S CHANGED—HE'S NOT THE MAN I FELL IN LOVE WITH! "

Selling sex as a sport: The 1991 swimsuit issue

Sport(s) n. — 1) An active pastime. 2) A specific diversion, usually involving physical exercise and having a set form of rules; game.

When I first saw it, I held my breath. "It's here," I muttered.

Oh joy, oh rapture.

The moment most hormonal, sexually deprived, pseudo-sports fans wait for every year with baited breath had finally arrived. . .the Sports Illustrated Swimsuit Issue.

For a magazine well known for its coverage of the wide-world of (predominantly men's) sports, I must say that the editors certainly warp the definition of "sports" with this yearly atrocity.

Meredith O'Brien

From my understanding of the sporting world, I was under the impression that by picking up a magazine entitled, Sports Illustrated I would be reading a magazine devoted to such topics as basketball, baseball, football, hockey, gymnastics, swimming, weight lifting. . .the laundry list the Olympic committee generally uses to decide which sports will be played.

In Sports Illustrated's "most celebrated" issue, instead of seeing real sports written about and photographed, I see a 41-page layout of women posing seductively with barely anything on. This can hardly be typified as a "sporting" event. SI doesn't typically have Paris fashion show reviews dominating the center of its magazine does it?

I must say that the pure essence and joy of sports in this "special issue" was represented by the photo of a woman lying on her stomach in the shallow water of the ocean, donning a fluorescent green bathing suit which gives her the nastiest and most uncomfortable-looking wedgie I've ever seen. Her back is arched and her eyes are closed, in a simulated sexual position.

A flip of the page will bring you to two photos of equal sporting value — one of a woman in a wet, see-through white t-shirt and "suspender suit," the other with a woman bursting out of her blue bathing suit, legs spread, eyes closed, head back with her hands splashing water upward near her lower body.

Many would argue that this "Swimsuit Issue" has every right to be printed and I do not deny that, considering that anyone involved in the media considers the First Amendment sacrosanct. But some people rush to defend this issue claiming that readers are gaining an appreciation for well-toned bodies and the latest in swimwear by the special edition.

Please.

No one could ever SWIM in these things anyway. Could you imagine trying to stay afloat wearing a bathing suit that had metal buttons and a huge metal belt and chain hanging around the waist? And I'm sure the photo, where the only thing seen above water is a profile of a face and two breasts, gives readers an real appreciation of well-toned bodies.

Another pro-Swimsuit (i.e.— a tame Playboy) argument has been that if women coordinate the project and models are paid quite a bit of money to pose for it, there is no sexism. That is certainly not the case. The only reason this issue is published at all is for the money — pure greed which feeds upon the libido.

What really makes me angry about this issue is not that there are pages and pages of photos of scantily-clad women in it (porn and the exploitation of women is a whole other ballgame). What really offends me is that a magazine, which promotes itself to be the premier sports magazine, uses photos of women posing very provocatively in exposing bathing suits to sell more magazines.

Whenever you watch a commercial for SI on TV, one of the biggest selling points is this issue — a 41-page skin supplement which has NOTHING, absolutely NOTHING to do with sports. It is just raw sex, period. The men this is geared to obviously are not die-hard sports fans, just sexually frustrated men who can't find real, live women with minds and personalities.

After purusing this splendid issue, I just have one more question — who in their right mind would pay nearly $250 for a swimsuit that only comes with a bottom half?

Meredith O'Brien is a Collegian columnist

Anti-war liberals are hypocrites

Liberals accuse Bush of being hypocritical about the Gulf war, but in fact, it's the liberals who are hypocritical.

Liberals argue that it is wrong for the United States to be at war with Iraq because U.S. foreign policy is inconsistent. They point out that the United States ignored Hussein when he murdered the Kurds, that the United States supports South Africa and that the United States only mildly responded when China massacred the students in Tiananmen Square.

Certainly the United States should have to do more in these cases, but this is certainly not an argument against the war. The logical argument would be that if it was wrong for the United States to ignore Hussein when he massacred the Kurds, then it would definitely be wrong to let him get away with conquering Kuwait. But their argument seems to be that since it was wrong to ignore Hussein then, it is wrong to oppose him now. It's one thing to say that the U.S. policy needs improvement. It's another thing entirely to say that the United States shouldn't be involved in the current war.

Another hypocritical argument that the liberals make is that the United States is not defending freedom because Kuwait was a monarchy. Let's imagine that the United States invaded Kuwait instead of Iraq. If that were the case, liberals would see the situation for what it is — a brutal violation of Kuwaiti sovereignty.

Liberals have always supported the right of each nation to exist without being conquered by aggressive nations. But now that that has happened, and the United States is opposing Iraq, liberals are making excuses for Iraq. Now who's being hypocritical?

Also, it is not true that the United States is enforcing its own principles in the Middle East and "denying) the cultural differences that separate the United States from the Middle East." Is it culturally acceptable in the Middle East for one Arab country to conquer another? Arabs, along with the rest of the world, have condemned the invasion of Kuwait. The United States is not forcing its culturally-specific principles on Iraq. In fact, the United States, along with many other countries, is enforcing one of the most basic principles of international society — that no country is allowed to conquer another country at will.

On the whole, it is clear that the pro-war argument is far more consistent than the anti-war argument. This is because many liberals, in making the anti-war argument, bypass the pro-war arguments instead of dealing with them directly. They don't deal with the collective security aspect; they just try to sneak around that and hope that liberal dogma will make up for that weakness. Liberals must decide whether they support war for collective security reasons, and come right out and admit it. Until then, they have no business calling us hypocrites!

Cynthia Deviney
Belchertown

This is not what was supposed to happen after the cold war ended

Instead of a celebration for (post-cold war) peace, we are witness to renewed acts of barbarism against a Third World people. Where once we had a mildly critical media, we now have a totally abject and prostrate press, cheering on the total destruction that American bombers deliver daily to the unprotected people of Iraq. So complete is the control over information on this war that we have yet to hear any figures of how many civilians died from U.S. war planes. Turkish radio (A U.S. ally and certainly no friend of Iraq) has reported figures of 125,000 Iraqi casualties. Reports from independent sources (CBS and CNN) have stated that American planes have bombed water supplies and power stations as well as residential neighborhoods.

We do not accept the Bush administration's statements that that they are trying to minimize civilian casualties. Given that most of the bombs dropped on Iraq are the same type used in Vietnam, it is inconceivable that this strategy of carpet-bombing cannot but lead to high numbers of civilian deaths.

Further, we are in sharp disagreement with the perspective of the Bush administration that this war is about freedom and self-government. A careful examination of the situation would show that there are several motives for this military adventurism: For one, the Middle East contains the world's largest oil reserves. And, the United States, Europe and Japan will be vying for control of this essential resource. Secondly, U.S. economic institutions are depleted and weak and military muscle assures the United States a prominent position vis a vis the economic powerhouses of Germany and Japan. Lastly, with the decline of the cold war and the tax-payers demand for a Peace Dividend, the military industrial complex must justify its continued draining off of tax revenues that are so badly needed now to save the educational, infrastructural, environmental and industrial life of this nation.

While this brief list cannot exhaust the unholy purpose of the Bush political leadership in this war, we suggest the following steps be taken to reduce the tensions and killing in the Mid East:

- An immediate cease-fire and temporary truce
- A general peace conference of which the first stage would be a gradual Iraqi withdrawal from Kuwait
- Iraq's pre-war disagreements with Kuwait will be submitted to the World Court for arbitration
- A nuclear, chemical and biological weapons-free zone in the Mid East.
- A resolution of the just demands of the Palestinian people for a home land and a joint Arab recognition of Israel.

Tony Guglielmi
Pioneer Valley Greens

ANNUAL CAREER FAIR

FEBRUARY 13
10:00 AM - 3:00 PM
CAMPUS CENTER AUDITORIUM

This year's Career Fair brings you opportunities for all majors including those in arts & sciences, business, natural resources, education, health sciences and engineering.

Over 70 employer booths including:

Bread & Circus
M&M Mars
Worldteach
Pfizer Inc.
Kaiser Permanente
Brigham & Women's Hospital
US Department of Labor
Springfield Public Schools
Camp Dresser & McKee Inc.
United Parcel Service

National Marine Fisheries Service

Bring lots of resumes - be prepared!

SPECIAL PREVIEW!!

University Computerized Alumni Network (UCAN) matching you with alumni for career advice !

ALSO

Sign up for computer assisted job referral! Receive notice of jobs you are eligible for. Staff available to provide assistance.

THE MATHER CAREER CENTER

Career Planning and Placement • Cooperative Education • Internships

Fraternity/Sorority Park - on the Orchard Hill bus route. (413)545-2224.

Where Careers Take Off!

DEANS LIST

One of the University's highest priorities is its commitment to provide opportunities for academic growth. I am pleased and proud, therefore, to recognize those of you who earned Deans List status for the Fall Semester 1990. This level of achievement - 3.5 or higher semester average with twelve or more graded credits - is attained by less than 20 percent of the undergraduate student body. Such outstanding performance is a source of pride to the faculty, staff, your student colleagues, and, of course, your parents. Thank you for the credit you bring to the University through your achievement. Best wishes.

Joseph Duffey, Chancellor

PRESS RELEASES

To publicize your achievement, the University News Office will be issuing a press release to your hometown newspaper if you are a Massachusetts resident. Out of state students are requested to pick up a press release form at 200 Munson Hall (second floor). For additional questions, please call 545-0444.

ADDITIONS

The Deans List was based on grades received and posted by the Registrar's Office by January 23, 1991. If you had a grade change after that date (including making up an "Incomplete" or had a missing or late grade recorded after that date), and believe you qualify for Deans List status, please fill out a form available at the Information Data Bank, 2nd floor lobby counter, Whitmore and attach verification. Reminder: only graded credits are calculated, not pass/fail credits.

Paid for by Student Affairs Special Services as a service to the campus community.

Arts and Sciences — Humanities and Fine Arts

ABE,YUKO M.
ABEL,ANDREW S.
ALBERG,BETHANN.
ALLEN,RACHEL C.
ALSOP,PAMELA S.
ALTIERI,JAMES L.
AMEDNA,JAMES P.
ANDELLA,ALISON N.
ANDERSON,DEBRA E.
ANDERSON,KATIA L.
ANDRAS,THOMAS R.
ANDRAS,LISA R.
ANDREVIE,STEPHEN C.
ANTHONY,ALICE B.
ARINIELLO,LEAH D.
ARNOLD,JENNIFER.
ASELSINE,JONATHAN N.
AYRES,CAROLINE F.
BABCOCK,DAVID W.
BABINSKI,HEIDI N.
BAKER,DASHA A.
BALDWIN,KATHIE L.
BALLANTYNE,RICHARD L.J
BALTADONIS,DOREEN L.
BANGHART,DEBORAH E.
BAND,LISA A.
BANNON,DEIRDRE M.
BARA,CHRISTINE C.
BARKER,CHRISTOPHER J.
BARLOW,TAMMY L.
BARRY,RICHARD S.
BASILE,JESSICA M.
BATES,TODD G.
BAUMGARTNER,DOUGLAS W.
BAYENDALE,DONNA J.
BEIN,KRISTY L.
BELANGER,KAREN M.
BELENARDO,HOLLY A.
BELLORA,JEFFREY J.
BEN AP...W,LION.
BENMAN,KEITH L.
BENNUDO,CARLOS B.
BENVENUANE,STEPHEN F.
BERTHE,WENDY L.
BERLY,KAREN L.
BIANCHI,VIVIANA.
BIRON,DARA L.
BITTION,MORGAN T.
BLADEN,JOSH S.
BLAIS,ARNAUD J.
BLANCHARD,ANNE M.
BLANDING,MARK A.
BLUMENSTIEL,APRIL.
BLUNT,JENNIFER L.
BOLSER,EMILY K.
BOMBARDIER,RICHARD B.
BONICA,NANCY J.
BORKOWSKI,LARA J.
BOUCHER,DANIEL D.
BOUDREAU,MICHELLE M.
BOURDONNE LEISTTNA,ISABELLE.
BOUSQUET,PAULA N.
BOYCE,JAMES H.
BRADLEY,JENNIFER L.
BRANDEL,JENNIFER B.
BRANNEN,JANE M.
BROADBRIDGE,ANNE F.
BROWN,DIANA L.
BROWN,SUSAN R.
BROWNE,PATRICK T.
BRUNO,KRISTIN M.
BRUSH,CHRISTINE E.
BRUSSEAU,FREDERICK P.
BRYCE,DEBORAH J.
BUCKLEY,MICHAEL S.
BUNDSMANN,EMILY T.
BURDEN,LEANNE S.
BURGER,ROBERT L.
BURGESS,SUSANNE S.
BURNHAM,PATRICIA R.
BURNS,REBECCA C.
BUTCHER,MELISSA J.
CAHILL,BRENDA L.
CAI,SONG LIN.
CAILLE,GREGORY Y.
CAISSE,TRACY A.
CALKIN,LAURA L.
CALUORI,ANDREA J.
CAMP,JONATHAN N.
CAMPBELL,DAVID E.
CANLI,HELIBALI.
CAPONE,KELLI M.
CAPOZZI,DAVID M.
CARDILLO,DAVID J.
CARLIN,RUSSELL C.
CARNEY,BRIAN A.
CARRABINO,LISA.
CARRUTH,ROBERT W.
CARVALHO,CAITLIN K.
CHAPMAN,JONATHAN H.
CHEMADE,THERESA.
CHIENNIN,JEAN E.
CHRISTIANI,JILL E.
CLANDY,REBECCA M.
CLARK,STEPHEN B.
COFFIN,JANE R.
COHEN,BALDIS A.
COHN,SHETA L.
COLLINS,JOHANNA E.
COLLINS,WILLIAM L.
CONAGHAN,KERRY L.
CONANT,JOHN A.
CONNOLLY,DEBORAH B.
CONNORS,KEVIN P.
CONNORS,PATRICK.
CONSTANTINE,MARGARET M.
CONSTABLE,ELIZABETH H.
CONTINO,PETER J.
COOK,CHRISTOPHER B.
COONEY,NICOLE E.
CORNIER,DIANE M.
COSTELLO,JENNIFER A.
COTE,PHILIP J.
COUGHLIN,MARY A.
COULTER,JAMIE B.
COWDEN,MARK L.
CRAWFORD,KATHRYN C.
CREAMER,ELIZABETH A.
CREAMER,ROBERT A.
CROFTS,WENDY A.
CROSSLEY,TAMARA S.
CUMMINGS,JENNIFER S.
CURREY,JOHN R.
CURTIS,ROWENA M.
CUSHMAN,TANYA M.
DAIGNE,ERIC R.
DAMTAR,ILYNDA L.
DAUBE,KATHARINE P.
DAVIS,BRIGITTE D.
DAVIS,JOHN C.
DAWSON,BRIAN J.
DAY,BARETT N.
DEADY,CAROLYN M.
DEAN,REANA A.
DEDOSTE,MARY MICHELLE.
DELANEY,BOBBIJA B.
DELISLE,MARYANNE.
DELLA BETTA,ELIZABETH A.
DEMASTER,SARAH L.
DEMOVELL,MICHAEL J.
DENMERLINE,TORSTEN.
DENNISON,WILLIAM E.
DENT,DOUGLAS S.
DERBIER,TRACY L.
DERUBIS,MICHELLE M.
DESILETS,CHRISTINE J.
DESMARAIS,MICHELLE J.
DESMARAIS,ROBERT B.
DICICCO,MARC.
DILDINE,SCOTT L.
DIXON,MICHAEL D.
DONEFTY,SANDRA M.
DONAHOE,LISA A.
DONAHUE,ELIZABETH A.
DONOVAN,JEFFREY T.
DRAPEAU,CHRISTINE.
DREYFUS,JEFFREY B.
DREYFUS,TODD S.
DRISCOLL,DANYEL C.
DRISCOLL,JOSEPH C.
DUBOIS,MICHELLE R.
DUBRAY,KENNETH K.
DUNKIN,TARA L.
DUVAL,PAUL J.
EDINBERG,ERIC J.
EDWARDS,ANNE L.
EDWARDS,SARAH E.
EICHELMAN,WENDY F.
ELLERT,KATHERINE R.
EKSTRAND,HEIDI N.
ELLIOTT,SARAH A.
EMERSON,KRISTEN R.
EMERY,KATHLEEN M.
EPSTEIN,DEBRA M.
ERVING,ANGELA M.
FALABELLA,AMANDA P.
FARAH,TERESA M.
FAUCHER,CARL A.
FEINSTEIN,AMY.
FENDIG,BRANDON P.
FILLER,JENNIFER L.
FINCH,KRISTEN K.
FINNEGAN,KEVIN L.
FITZGERALD,AMY E.
FLANAGAN,DEIDRE.
FLETCHER-KATHLEEN DODGE.
FLYNN,ELIZABETH M.
FOMBELLIDA,DAVID E.
FORD,ERICA W.
FORTIER,CARL ALAN M.
FRADKIN,STEPHEN B.
FRECHETTE,DONALD J.
FREITAS,SHELLY A.
FREY,SEQUOYA D.
GAHE,JAMES E.
GALLAGHER,-GAILYN MARY.
GAUTIER,ANGELA R.
GEARIN,KRISTEN A.
GEORGE,JASON.
GERETY,KATHLEEN S.
GERRISH,JAMES G.
GETOFF,SARAH B.
GIBBONS,SEAN P.
GIMBRAS,DAVID W.
GOLD,SARAH A.
GOMES,GINA M.
GONCALVES,IRENE M.
GOODCHILD,ALISON J.
GOODWIN,LAURA A.
GOODWIN,LAUREN B.
GORDON,JENNIFER A.
GORDON,SEAN R.
GORMAN,KRISTIN E.
GOSSELIN,MARIE C.
GOUDY,NARCIA A.
GRADY,LORA E.
GRADY,ROBERT E.
GRAF,ITSEA M.
GRAHAM,AMY C.
GREEN,CYNTHIA L.
GREGORY,ANASTASIA K.
GRIFFIN,BRENDA J.
GROSE,RACHEL S.
GROSS,KAREN E.
GRUNDSTROM,KIMBERLY A.
GUIEL,ERIC W.
GUILDERSON,ANNMARIE C.
GUILLEMIN,JULIE N.
GUILLET,ELIZABETH C.
HABIB,ELISA S.
HABINARA,RITSU.
HALLIHAN,KRISTEN M.
HANC,BEYZI LYNN.
HANLEY,KATHERINE A.
HANLEY,LIZA D.
HARRIS,SAMANTHA J.
HARRISON,KRISTINA M.
HARTMAN,ANDREA J.
HARUBIN,MARK F.
HARVEY,TODD J.
HATCH,REBECCA E.
HAWLEY,GINA R.
HECKER,TONI M.
HEFFNAN,TRACY J.
HELFAND,SACHA D.
HELLMAN,SARA A.
HEMMER,KURT R.
HENDERSON,SUSAN C.
HENNEN,HOLLY E.
HENRY,AMY E.
HENRY,LISA M.
HENSLEY,HANNA.
HERBERT,SHARON M.
HERDA,RACHEL A.
HERING,PETER L.
HERRING,AMY M.
HERSEY,LYNNE M.
HESS,ANN M.
HEWETT,DAVID S.
HIGGINS,RICHARD E.
HIRSCH,ERIC A.
HODGKINSON,LAURIE A.
HODGES,LYDIA J.
HOLCOMB,ELAINE E.
HOLLANDER,ANDREW S.
HOLLANDER,SUSAN J.
HOLMES,BROOKS A.
HOMBECKER,KARIM Z.
HORN,DONNA M.
HOSFORD,GEOFFREY W.
HOUSE,BRYAN E.
HOUSE,CHRISTOPHER L.
HOUSE,ROBERT W.
HOWARD,DAVID L.
HOWARD,GREGORY E.
HOWLAND,REBECCA L.
HUDSON,SHELLY L.
HUGHES,JENNIFER K.
HUNTER,RUSSELL A.
HUNTZ,WILLIAM R.
HYMAN,GARY S.
HYVD,TERRY.
IBARRA,ROSA.
IMCIS,JENNIFER E.
IMHOUTE,LARA RENEE K.
JACOB,AMY S.
JACOBY,SUZANNE.
JACOUB,RONDI J.
JAMESON,KARA L.
JEMCIWSB,DAVID N.
JEMCIWSON,WILLIAM E.
JENCIWSKI,DAVID J.
JESBER,MARK P.
JOHNSON,CHRISTIAN S.
JOHNSON,WENDY N.
JONES,CAROLYN J.
JONES,ERIC R.
JONES,NICOLE.
JORDAN,JAIS D.
JORDAN,JULIET N.
JUD-,WILLIAM W.
JUNIOR,JOSCELYN B.
KAHN,GABRIELLE W.
KARDOS,MICHAEL A.
KATZ,LISA A.
KATZ,SHARON.
KEANE,ANNE E.
KEEHAN,ELIZABETH MARSH.
KEIDEN,ING-ELENN W.JR
KEIMSTEAD,JANET L.
KELLEHER,JOAN A.
KELLEY,CHRISTINA L.
KELLEY,CHRISTOPHER D.
KELLEY,TRACEY A.
KELLY,JAMES W.JR
KELLY,MAUREEN.
KENNEALLY,JOSEPH M.
KENNEY,PATRICIA A.
KERSTEIN,MYRON I.
KIELIANO,DANIEL B.
KIRK,PHILIP M.
KLEEMAN,ELIZABETH K.
KNOBLOCK,STACEY L.
KOMICHO,CHRISTINA S.
KOMIEZNY,TERESA A.
KONRAN,MOIRA B.
KOPELMAN,BARGARET BOWDEN.
KOTISTAS,JULIE E.
KRICK,KELDA E.
KRIZI,SALLY A.
KURDI,RAMEZ.
KUSNIERZ,JOHN T.
KWOK,DHEEKEN S.
LACAVA,MICHAEL M.
LACHAPELLE,KENN D.
LAGRONTON,LISA N.
LAMADELEINE,LISA A.
LARIVIERE,CRISTIN A.
LAROSE,ANDREA J.
LAROSEE,JEAN PAUL.
LAUER,RICHARD J.
LAUPTER,KATHERINE S.
LAVOIE,BRIGITTE J.
LEBLANC,MARGUERITE A.
LECOMPTE,CAROL C.
LEMUNDLLOYD.
LENZKE,RACHAEL.
LEONHAN,DAWN M.
LEPAGE,DANIEL P.
LEVY,MICHELLE B.
LEWIS,HEATHER M.
LEWIS,MICHELLE M.
LIMERY,CHRIS T.
LISTER,CHRISTOPHER M.
LOGAN,ZHEA A.
LOH,EILEEN P.
LOMBARDO,CHARLES J.
LOMB,BAYLE L.
LOONEY,CHERYL M.
LOPEZ,CITY-WILANIE R.
LUDOVICO,STEPHEN A.
LUKAS,JESSICA F.
MAAS,DEBRA L.
MACDONALD,MATTHEW.
MAGE,MICHOLE S.
MAILHOT,MICHELLE M.
MAK,CHI FAI.
MALDONADO,JURTZINA A.
MALIONEK,ROBERT J.
MALONE,PATRICIA A.
MANNING,JOSEPH D.
MANSFIELD,REBECCA J.
MARONI,MICHELE L.
MARTIN,ANTHONY J.
MASSA,HEIJ A.
MASSEY,DAVID S.
MATTHEWS,GARY L.
MAURAIS,MARTIN S.
MCALLISTER,ELLEN M.
MCCLUSKY,NEIDI M.
MCCLURE,JAMES M.
MCDONNELL,PAUL J.
MCCURDY,HEATHER K.
MCDONOUGH,JOANNE M.
MCGRATH,BRANDI R.
MCHUGH,NICOLE M.
MCHUGH,SUSAN S.
MCKAY,KATE A.
MCKNIGHT,AMY E.
MCLAUGHLIN,SANDRA M.
MCMAHARA,DAVID M.
MCNEILL,LUCAS M.
MCNAUGHTON,JOHN E.
MELLEY,KATHLEEN M.
MELLEY,GARY E.
MELLO,RENA E.
MELTON,INGRID B.
MENARD,MARK D.
MENNELLA,KRISTIN C.
MERRILL,BHONDRA L.
MERRITT,SARINA.
MEYER,PAIGE A.
MEYERS,JESSICA A.
MIGNAUD,JENNIFER F.
MILLER,JENNIFER L.
MILLER,ABBY.
MILLER,MATTHEW J.
MINNICH,SUSAN M.
MONELL,MELINDA M.
MOLINE,SHERYL L.
MOORE,CHRISTOPHER W.
MORELLI,LYNN.
MORGAN,MELISSA B.
MORIN,LYNN F.
MORRISSETTE,NOELLE A.
MORTELL,SEAN P.
MORTON,MICHAEL R.
MOSHER,BARRETT L.
MULLEN,ANN M.
MUZR,LISA.
MULLALLY,ROBERT E.
MULLINS,PAUL J.
MUSIL,MYRA.
NAKAMURA,SUSIE.
NAPOLI,MICHELLE A.
NASSAR,RICHARD S.
NELSON,ELIZABETH A.
NELSON,SEAN P.
NEILLI,GEORGAN A.
NEWMAN,RHONDA L.
NICHOLSON,DORIANNE J.
NOEL,DEBORAH A.
NOMURA,AIKO.
NORFLEET,HEATHER.
NYMAN,NICHOLAS W.
OBERHUBER,ALICE D.
ODELL,ALTHEA C.
ODONNELL,DAVID P.
OLENICH,ERIC M.
OLDRIS,DANIEL.
OLSZEWSKI,STEPHANIE A.
OLEARY,NATHAN S.
OLIVER,DIANE.
OLIVO,STEPHEN A.
OLIVIER,CARI M.
OLSEN,ERICK P.
OLSON,CAITLIN R.
ORAR,DARA.
OSBORN,AMANDA L.
PANOFF,SHARON L.
PARADISO,MARGUERITE A.
PARQUETTE,CHRISTINE L.
PARSONS,BRADFORD.
PARK,SHARON M.
PASTRIZE,MICHAEL A.
PASTOR,ELIZABETH P.
PATHULIE,WENDY M.
PATTERSON,JEREMIAH M.
PEARCE,CHRISTIANNA M.
PENNEY,SUSAN S.
PERDOLA,SHERRI E.
PERKINS,TRACY.
PERRY,KENNETH J.
PETIT,MARGARET M.
PEYZNER,NICOLE D.
PICARD,NICOLE L.
PLANTE,JOANN F.
POLLNER,NEIL S.
POPE,DAVID J.
POPENOE,PETER B.
POTTER,STEPHEN K.
POTTS,JESSICA A.
PRATT,GENEVA A.
PRESTIPINO,RICHARD M.
PRESTON,JUDITH B.
PREVITT,HEATHER D.
PUTHAM,PAUL E.
QUINN,BRENDA B.
RADCLIFF,CHRISTOPHER S.
RADFORD,AMY L.
RADOSKI,HALINA A.
RAINS,MADELINE.
RALEIGH,CONSTANCE S.
RAPACKE,CYNTHIA A.
RAPPAPORT,LYDIA E.
REARDON,KELLIE J.
REDCLIFF,HEIDI M.
REDEKER,KAREN M.
REID,HOLLY.
REINERT,JOSEPH A.
REYNOLDS,JOSHUA E.
RIEMER,BRETCHEN E.
RING,DAVID T.
ROAF,EDWARD RIZ
ROBBINS,BRETT L.
ROBBLEE,PATRICK D.
ROBERTS,LEE A.
ROBINSON,STEPHEN W.
ROBINSON,VICTORIA A.
ROCHELEAU,PATRICK J.
RODGERS,JOYCE M.
ROTH,ADAM S.
ROWEN,CATHERINE L.
ROY,DEBORAH A.
RUBIN,LAURA E.
RUBIN,RACHEL S.
RUSSELL,HEATHER B.
RUDIN,HEATHER.
RUF,ALYSA B.
RYAN,RUSSELL.
RYDZEWSKI,MATTHEW D.
SAALFIELD,CAITLIN E.
SAARINEN,JENNIFER L.
SABOL,JULIA E.
SALIMAN,RACHEL B.
SANFORD,JASON S.
SANTALA,MELISSA K.
SCHINDELL,MICHAEL R.
SCHOR,PAUL.
SCHNIDER,DAVID R.
SCHNIZVER,ANDREW P.
SCHUB,MARK B.
SCHUB,REBECCA A.
SCOPA,TARA C.
SCORNAVACCA,CHRISTINE.
SCOTT,ERIC.
SEFRANEK,CYNTHIA J.
SEIDEN,PENN R.
SEIBLE,LAURA A.
SELLS,JENNIFER L.
SELTZER,LORI B.
SETO,ERIC.
SHARRON,PAMELA J.
SHEA,JOANNA L.
SHEA,SUSAN A.
SHEPHARD,MAURA T.
SHERTER,MEREDITH M.
SHOEMAKER,SARAH M.
SHUBERT,SARAH K.
SIEBS,KRISTIN J.
SIBEL,COLLEEN F.
SIMON,RACHEL M.
SIN,YOMS M.
SKILLING,ROBERT A.
SLEZICKI,LARA A.
SMITH,BRIAN J.
SMITH,HEATHER M.
SMITH,JENNIFER E.
SMITH,KERRY S.
SMITH,MATTHEW B.
SMITH,MICHAEL R.
SOLZE,KATHRYN J.
SPARLING,STEVE B.
SPARLING,TRICIA L.
SPOFFORD,ANDREW A.
STANKIEWICZ,PETER A.
STAPLES,JENNIE M.
STAUDER,RANDEL B.
STEINBERG,LYNN W.
STEVN,CH'SANEY W.
STODDARD,JILL M.
STOFFOLANO,MATTHEW J.
STONE,ROBERT F.
STRUNZA,PAULA M.
STRYDHARI,SUSAN A.
SULLIVAN,JAMES G.
SULLIVAN,MEREDITH M.
SULLIVAN,NOREEN P.
SURABIAN,ROBERT P.
SWAN,KAREN D.
TALBOT,LAURA B.
TATTO,CHRISTINE D.
TKIBODEAU,CHRISTINE M.
THOMAS,SCOTT S.
THOMPSON,SCOTT D.
THULIN,ERIKA A.
THURLOW,KAITLIN S.
TINLIN,RACHEL E.
TITHELLE,REBECCA D.
TOBIN,CHRISTINE C.
TOMARELLO,SARAH R.
TOMPKINS,DEBORAH E.
TONNA-LAMARIERE,LORIAN A.
TRAINOR,KELLY A.
TRIPP,JENNIFER E.
TRNASON,MARK E.
TSITSIRIDES,MARIA Z.
TUBMAN,RANJAN A.
TURBARNEY,ALAN B.
TUTTLE,RICHARD J.
UCCI,RACHEL S.
VACHON,CHRISTINE C.
VAN DURA,MARJORIE C.
VARNUM,ELIZABETH.
VIGNALI,AMY C.
VOLKMANN,HEIDI M.
VON KRIES,F ROBER.
WADE,MOLLY.
WALSH,KATHLEEN A.
WEYMOUTH,JOSHUA E.
WARE,SHANNON D.
WARNER,JOSEPH M.
WEBER,MICHAEL J.
WEDNEDA,ERIKA.
WEIKERT,BUBY L.
WELL,BENJAMIN R.
WEIS,RICHARD C.
WELKER,DAVID P.
WELLS,KENORA L.
WELSH,ESTHER.
WILKENS,MEREDITH L.
WILKINS,KAREN M.
WILKINSON,MARK.
WILLIAMS,CHRISTOPHER M.
WILLIS,JESSICA L.
WILSON,KAREN M.
WILSON,MARK C.
WOLF,PAULA A.
WOLF,JOSEPH.
WOLFE,SUZANNE L.
WOOLF,ELEANOR.
WORTHINGTON,DIANA.
WORTHLEY,JAMES P.
YALOUNIS,SOFIA D.
YOFFE,SHIRA B.
ZACARIA,CHRISTOPHE M.
ZARCHAN,ADINA L.
ZARLENGO,AMY L.
ZEMSER,AMY B.
ZENCEWICZ,JOELLEN.
ZENEWICZ,LISA D.
ZISA,LAURA W.

Arts and Sciences — Natural Sciences and Mathematics

ALBEE,ROBERT C.
ANTONELLIS,ANTHONY.
ARMOUR,ROBERT J.
BALOG,JENNIFER E.
BARTEK,JASON.
BEAL,KERRI L.
BECK,ROBERT M.
BECKER,LANCE J.
BENNETT,DOUGLAS F.
BERNUDEZ,OLGA M.
BERSANI,NEIL A.
BERWALDT,KAREN L.
BEZUKA,BRENDA SUE.
BIER,JONATHAN J.
BOCHNAK,STEPHEN D.
BORNEMANN,ELEANOR A.
BRAMLAGE,ANN.
BRIGGETTI,CHRISTINE E.
BROOKS,SANDRA M.
BUCCHINO,RONALD L.
BUMBY,MARK A.
BUNTING,HEATHER L.
BUROD,VIDAR.
CAMPBELL,CATHERINE A.
CARNETTO,SUZANNE P.
CHAIT,DAVID H.
CHAZ,CHI WING.
COFFIN,CYNTHIA L.
COLEMAN,KARI S.
COLICA,ANTHONY J.
COLLAMORE,SETH A.
CONDON,GARY R.
CONLEE,KATHLEEN M.
CONNORS,ANN C.
CONNORS,ROBERT L.
CORBETT,MAX S.
CURDO,MARK J.
DALEY,DOUGLAS P.
DAUKANTAS,PATRICIA L.
DEEGAN,ROBERT D.
DELANEY,LEE J.
DENT,SUSAN M.
DOBKIN,MARCY L.
DONOVAN,THOMAS G.
DORSEY,KAREN A.
DOYLE,CHRISTOPHER R.
DUQUETTE,CHRISTINE L.
DRISKEN,BRENDA M.
EBTES,KEITH D.
EVANS,JAMES J.
EZEKIEL,JASON S.
FABRI,DIANA .
FANCHER,CHARLES A.
FARRAR,TIMOTHY D.
FAY,CYNTHIA M.
FELDMAN,NEIL S.
FISHER,DAVID EDWARD.
FITZGIBBONS,KELLY A.
FLANNERY,JOHN V.JR
FLESCHER,CHRISTOPHER S.
FOSTER,JANIE S.
FOULDS,KATHRYN M.
FOWLER,STEVEN F.
FRANK,DENISE M.
FREEMAN,MARK S.
FULLER,THOMAS M.
GALLAGHER,BRIAN M.
GARTEH,JAMES F.
GEDACHT,COURTNEY P.
GENGO,GARY.
GEORGE,MITA J.
GIOIOSE,GEORGE C.
GIANETTI,LEE P.
GIRARD,PAUL J.
GLENN,TONYA S.
GOLDMAN,JULIE L.
GORDON,CARRIE A.
GREENE,PAUL R.
GRIFFIN,JAMES F.
GRIFFYN,SIMEON M.
GUAN,SHENG.
GUGLIELMETTI,JULIE A.
GUZNEY,DAVID K.
GUNKEL,NEIL E.
GURSKI,LESLIE T.
HARDENBROOK,MITCHELL A.
HAUBSJAA,KJELDT A.
HECKMAN,BOBBIJO.
HENRY,KRISTIN K.
HERTZOG,DEANNE L.
HO,HOI MUNG.
HOLLIS,LISA M.
HOLSBERG,KENNETH E.
HOLMES,JEFFREY A.
HOLSBRIEN,LISA M.
HOLOVIAK,DANICA.A
HOLT,KATHLEEN S.
HORAN,BETH S.
HOUSEMAN,LESLEY E.
HUBLEY,JAMES N.
JACKSON,MARIANNE S.
JACOBSON,AMY C.
JOHNSON,REBECCA A.
KARLSSON,ANNA U.
KASPER,JOHN D.
KABAF,TASKEF.
KECK,JAMES L.
KEISMAN,ERIC L.JR
KENNEDY,CHRISTOPHER A.
KHEISEL,MICHELLE L.
KOOPMAN,LARA E.
KUJAWSKI,JENNIFER L.
LAMONTAGNE,RUSSELL W.
LAMOTHE,PHILIP A.
LANGLAIS,JAMES A.
LAUB,DAVID E.
LEHRMAN,JULIE M.
LEIBOTON,ELIZABETH S.
LIN,MARY L.
LIPMAN,JOANNE L.
LISS,ANDREW S.
LIVERMOORE,CAROL.
LUONG,MAI T.
MACE,ELISA J.
MANGUN,LANE C.
MANNING,BRENDAN D.
MASTROMATTEO,LORI A.
MAYER,CATHERINE L.
MCEACHERN,JANICE M.
MCGANN,PAUL J.
MCGURK,GREGORY B.
MCHUGH,LEONEL J.
MCKAY,AMY C.
MCNALTY,MONICA M.
MCVEIGH,JOHN P.
MEDINA,LISA A.
MEYMARIS,GREGORY.
MIKULIS,JONATHAN C.
MILA,SORJA.
MUCKENTHALER,MARY E.
MURPHY,HEATHER A.
NALESNIK,JEFFREY S.
NEWMAN,BARBARA J.
NIEH,BIAU C.
OCONNOR,JAMES E.
OCONNOR,MICHAEL J.
OH,JOON H.
OKOLILLIAN A.
PARMAKIS,SARANTID D.
PARLAC,RONZA R.
PAZNASH,HALOY.
PERKEL,JEFFREY M.
PERLMAN,SARA F.
PORFORT,DAVID A.
PRESTON,CHRISTINE L.
QUENNELL,SHARON C.
RALLI,MICHAEL E.
RANDALL,AMY J.
RAUSCHER,BARA A.
REEVES,CYNTHIA C.
REIME,GABRIELLE W.
REVETT,TRACY D.
RIDEOUT,GLENN D.
RITTER,NATHAN R.
ROBINSON,RICHARD S.
ROOF,ANDREA E.
RDVINELLI,BECKY L.
RUSSO,JENNIFER M.
SAATMAN,DONNA A.
SACCO,MICHAEL L.
SCHNELL,MATTHEW D.
SCHNITZLER,MICAELA A.
SCOTT,PETER G.
SCOTT,SARAH P.
SHARIFI,AFSHIN A.
SIRINIKEAM,MIHAELA L.
SIROIS,GEORGE F.JR
SLATER,KELLY.
SMITH,KIMBERLY A.
SMITH,WILLIAM A.
SOLOMON,MICHAEL E.
SPITZAC,SHARON E.
ST AMAND,RONALD P.
STANNE,REBECCA L.
STEPHENSON,TAIWO A.
STEVENS,CRAIG A.
TAKUBZ,KATSUMIRA.
TENEVDARI,KATHARINE M.
TENG,EDNA I.
TRABETHON,LARS.
VERMADAKIS,ADAM J.
WAGNER,KATHLEEN A.
WALSH,CHRISTINA T.
WALTER,SUSANNA.
WALTERS,TIMOTHY N.
WALTHER,NATALIE E.
WEINMAN,STACY M.
WHITE,JAMES P.
WHITTAKER,ALLYSON J.
WILKES,JONATHAN L.
WOMBET,DIANE R.
WOOD,JENNIFER R.
WOTUS,CHERIL.
WRONA,MEREDITH.
WU,BARY P.
YUNIS,JOSEPH E.
ZABSEWNAUS,GEOFFREY M.
ZERVAS,SOPHIA J.

Arts and Sciences — Social and Behavioral Sciences

AINSWORTH,KIMBERLY E.
ALEXANDER,JEFFREY A.
ALEXANDER,JEFFREY B.
ALEXANDER,JOSEPH E.
ALFERT,JENNIFER B.
ALGERI,STACEY M.
ALLEN,JESSICA M.
ALPERT,NANCY.
ANDALORO,STEVEN E.
ANDERSON,JULIE.
ANDREWS,CHRISTOPHER S.
ANDREWS,KELLY J.
ANTICO,PAUL A.
ARMSTRONG,ROBERT J.JR
ARNOLD,DANIEL B.
ASPIH,MATTHEW M.
ASSELIN,,NICOLE M.
AUBNER,,JENNIFER L.
BACON,CARLA MAY.
BAKER,KARYN L.
BAKED,ORISSA G.
BALDWIN,SUSANNE M.
BARNES,CHRISTOPHER W.
BARNETT,ERICKA G.
BARRY,PAULA J.
BARTH,DAVID W.
BARTLEY,SUSAN E.
BASSETT,JESSICA.
BEAL,ERIC D.
BEAVERS,LAURA A.
BECKER,KIRA L.
BEDNAREK,BRIAN J.
BELLIMO,LORI E.
BELSITO,PETER J.
BEMBON,JULIE L.
BERARD,KAREN A.
BERCHUCK,STEVEN.
BERENSTEIN,MICHELLE A.
BERNSTEIN,SANDRA J.
BERTHEAUME,KENNETH P.
BISHOP,DARCIE J.
BLAKE,DAZI E.
BLAKE,PAMELA E.
BLAKE,WILLIAM A.
BOMACCI,ANTHONY E.
BONNETTEN,GREGG A.
BOVIO,KELLY L.
BOWDEN,KATHERINE R.
BOWEN,CARRIE A.
BOWERS,JONATHAN W.
BOYARSKY,MITCHELL S.
BOYNTON, -HEISTINE M.
BRADLEY,LAURA M.
BRANCO,DAVID J.
BRISTOL,MARY F.
BROADHEAD,EMILY A.
BROOSKY,ANDREW L.
BROWN,DAVID H.
BROWN,JODY.
BRUNELLE,JAMES A.
BRUMMER,SUSAN W.
BRYANT,KRISTA J.
BUCHHEIT,JULIE M.
BURKE,JOANNE.
BURKE,PAUL A.
BURKE,RANDI S.
BURNS,BONNIE A.
BURNS,MATTHEW A.
BUTCHER,BANITA M.
BUTLER,DEBORAH L.
BYRAM,JILL J.
CAIRNS,MICHELE M.
CAJOLET,DAVID A.
CAMERON,WILLIAM S.
CAMPAGNA,LARA K.
CANASTRA,KELLY J.
CANFIELD,ANNE W.
CANFIELD,JENNIFER E.
CAPOBIANCO,THERESA K.
CARET,JOLEEN D.
CARRANZA,LINDA L.
CARRIDI,ERIN C.
CATALINI,JASON C.
CATELLI,KERRY A.
CATINO PIERCE,DONNA L.
CAULEY,GEORGE E.
CEDERHOLM,KURT D.
CELLUCCI,MELISSA M.
CERVELLI,AMY J.
CHERRY,JENNIFER J.
CHILDS,MARGARET W.
CHIN,LYNNE .
CHO,LINDA.
CHONG,LYON SOOK.
CLASBY,SUSAN E.
CLEMENT,PATRICIA A.
COFFIN,JOEL.
COFFEY,EWEN L.
COHEN,LAURA B.
COLEMAN,THOMAS A.
COLLINS,LINDA M.
COMPANION,MICHELE L.
CONNORS,MEAGHAN L.
CONNORS,MICHAEL C.
COON,PATRICK J.
CORSO,JONATHAN.
COSTA,KEITH J.
COURTNEY,JON.
COURTNEY,MORA E.
CRABB,MARK C.
CRABTREE,JANICE A.
CRAIG,JENNIFER D.
CRAVEN,ERICA L.
CRILLTON,MARY F.
CURTIS,ANDRA J.
CURTIS,HOLLY M.
CUSHMAN,JANNA H.
DAGGETT,BETH A.
DALY,MELISSA N.
DAVIDSON,JILL.
DAVITT,CHARLOTTE M.
DELKER,HEALS ERIC.
DELORE',Y,ARIEN ANN.
DEMARAL,MELISSA A.
DEMPSEY,JENNIFER J.
DERDEA,MICHAEL W.
DERILVA,MELANIE R.
DESMOND,JOSEPH W.
DEVINE,ANN M.
DEVINEY,CYNTHIA J.
DEWEY,JOHN P.
DIEHL,JAMES A.
DIGIACOMO,ROBERT A.
DILUZIO,,ANDREA J.
DIMOZZI,JENNIFER B.
DIPIERRO,DEBBI E.
DOMAINE,MARIA C.
DONAIE,CRAIG S.
DONATO,LISA M.
DOUGET,DEREK S.
DOUVRIS,TIMOTHY N.
DOYI,DONNA M.
DOYON,LYN C.
DRAKE,DEBRA A.
DREUBSTEIN,JENNIFER L.
DRUMGOOL,PAULA E.
DUBREUIL,DARCI L.
DUHMAN,COLLEEN E.
DUPUIS,KORI E.
DURAN,EAU,DEEMA L.
DURFEE,PETER L.
DURKIN,MARTIN O.
DUVEN,MELISSA J.
ECKMANN,TERESA L.
EHRENSTEIN,CARDINE R.
EOWEN,CARRIE A.
EOWENS,JONATHAN W.
EOYARSKY,MITCHELL S.
EPSTEIN,KENNETH P.
ERLICH,SCOTT E.
ERRICO,LAURA E.
ESNELMAN,TIMOTHY H.
EUBRE',JULIANA M.
GARIOFILES,LESLIE M.
GUIDERA,MATTHEW H.
GULLA,LAURA P.
HAKVARAINEN,ADAM J.
HAKLAY,GONEN.
HALL,ANGELA J.
HAMWEY,SCOTT E.
HANLON,ERAN D.
HANNON,TAMMY L.
HAQUE,MOFIZ.
HARDIN,ALISON B.
HARRIS,GWYNNETH R.
HARRIS,TODD C.
HARRISON,AMY C.
HARROLD,JOSEPH L.
HART,CHRISTOPHER D.
HARVEY,GEORGE W.
HARVEY,MICHELLE A.
HAUMSTRUP,RICE V.
HAWTHORNE,SCOT P.
HAZLETT,JENNIFER A.
HAZZARD,MICHAEL B.
HEAD,JENNIFER E.
HEALD,WILLIAM M.
HEALEY,CATHERINE W.
HEMENWAY,DEREK E.
HEMPSTEAD,MELISSA K.
HENRIQUES,HEATHER L.
HERCOVITCH,LARA S.
HERTZ,WILLIAM S.JR
HICKEY,WENDY D.
HIRSCHORN,RHONDA L.
HIRST,CANDICE L.
HOBAN,J. ROBIN.
HOCKSTEIN,NEIL E.
HOFFMAN,DANIEL C.
HOLLAND,DIANE C.
HOLMES,JONATHAN B.
HOOPER,GEOFFREY D.
HORAN,KATHLEEN A.
HOWELL,DYLAN T.
HUBBELL,DANIEL E.
HUBO,JOHN T.
HUERTA,LAVIMIA P.
HURLEY, -VNIFFO A.
IMBLEDGE,BRIAN J.
ISSENBERG,LORI S.
IVANY,TANIA.
JABLONOWSKI,GINA M.
JACKMAN,MICHAEL J.
JANN,SARAH F.
JAMES,NOELLE R.
JANIS,BANDI A.
JARNAGIN,ALDEN.
JERVIS,JENNIFER L.
JOHNSON,JEFFREY L.
JOHNSON,KIMBERLY W.
JOHNSTON,PATRICK J.
KAMINSH,MATTHEW J.
KAPLAN,DINA S.
KARRAS,GEORGIANA.
KATSOLIS,KRISTA D.
KATZ,SHARON L.
KEATING,DAVID C.
KEATING,LYNNE M.
KEATING,MICHELLE R.
KEATS,ADAM F.
KEEFE,COLIN.
KELLER,BRYCE M.
KEELER,KELLY A.
KELLING,MATTHEW M.
KELLER,JONATHAN D.
KELLY,RUAIDH M.
KENNEY,LINDA M.
KENNEARD,SARA L.
KERANIS,NICOS.
KHAZATSKY,KIRA.
KIMBALL,ANGELA C.
KINDERMAN,SPENCER A.
KINSBOURNE,DANIEL K.
KIRCHNER,VANESSA A.
KLAIBER,KAREN E.
KLAUS,KEVIN W.
KLEIN,DAYNA.
KOFLER,MICHELLE L.
KOFMAN,JASON T.
KOKOSKA,JEAN M.
KRODTOFF,SUSAN D.
KRUSZEWSKI,PATRICIA E.
KOZIOL,JENNIFER L.
KRAMER,SCOTT W.
KREIGER,AMY T.
KRIEGER,ALLYSON W.
KROIJER,L-SH.
KYROS,KONSTANTINE.
LABEAU,JILL M.
LAMONTAGNE,LISA M.
LANDRY,SCOTT J.
LANDSTROM,LISA S.
LANE,KELLY E.
LANGEVIN,PETER W.
LANGFORD,VIRGINIA L.
LAMBLAIS,JOSEPH F.
LARA,STEVEN J.
LAPIERRE,SUZANNE M.
LAPP,DOUGLAS A.
LAUBSCH,ALFRED C.
LAURIAT,MARLENE L.
LAWLOR,JEFFREY J.
LANTON,MELISSA A.
LAZIO,CHARLES.
LEBLANC,CELESTE J.
LEWEK,LAURA T.
LEWACK,DANIELLE S.
LEWIS,DEBRA M.
LENZI,STEPHANIE L.
LEOPOLD,ANN.
LEPPANEN,ERIKA A.
LEVENSON,DEBRA L.
LEVY,SHARYN I.
LEWIS,KATHERINE V.
LEWIS,JAIME D.
LEWIS,KIMBERLY J.
LIBBARES,GEORGIA A.
LIM,JOSEPHINE WAN CHING.
LIMSON,BRUCE G.
LINDAUGUSTO E.
LLOSA,SILVIA L.
LOGAN,BERNADETTE.
LOLOR,WILLIAM A.
LOMBARDO,SHERRI.
LONGAN,DIANA J.
LOMBO,DENISE C.
LOUGHLIN,CHRISTINE A.
LOUDERBACK,ANDREA.
LUIPPOLD,CAMILLE M.
LYONS,RICHARD D.
MACDONALD,STACY G.
MACKLOW,MELANIE S.
MADPHEE,ELENA M.
MADDEN,PAMELA A.
MABRUDER,BRIAN G.
MAHONEY,LEAH M.
MAHONEY,EARL E.
MAIMBURG,.
MANCINI,CHRISTOPHER T
MANOLIS,SEAN T.
MARKT,ERIC R.
MARLOW,JENNIFER J.
MARTINELLI,KATHERINE A.
MARSH,JOEL.
MATHYS,ELLEN.C
MATSON,RUSSELL J.
MATULAITIS,VAIDAS D.
MAXWELL,MARION C.
MCCALL,DANIEL D.
MCCARTHY,JULIE C.
MCDONALD,KERRIN M.
MCDONALD,JENNIFER.
MCGEE,KAREN A.
MCGRATH,SEAN T.
MCKINNEY,SUSAN A.
MCLAUGHLIN,MARY E.
MCNEIL,HOLLY N.
METZGER,KARA A.
MILLAZEMBEZ,KERRY W.
MILLER,JAMES C.
MORRISSEY,MICHAEL P.
MORROW,MICHELLE S.
MORROW,ADAM S.
MUISE,PAULA J.
MUNK,BARRY S.
MURPHY,KENNETH A.
MURPHY,LISA M.
MURE,ELIZABETH N.
MEEDLE,MYLIE A.
MESSMAN,KEVIN W.
MOMIS,AILEEN S.
MOVEMBER,THOMAS C.
OCONNELL,DENISE A.
ONEILL,KIMBERLEY.
ONEILL,MARIANNE.
ORATOVSKY,JULIE A.
ORTIZ RIVERA,MILDA I.
PACHECO,JULIE A.
PAROYAN,CHRISTINE M.
PASTRAK,DEBRA.
PATEL,SONALEE R.
PEOC,RICHARD A.
PERKINS,MAGGIE.
PERRY,CHARLES E.
PETERSON,JEREMY D.
PETRUCCELLO,NOAH J.
PHELPS,JENNIFER A.
PRIETO,JEAN E.
PULLEN,LEILA E.
RESTREPO,MARIA T.
RICCIUTI,DEBRA L.
RIEBERG,DOUGLAS T.
RIESMAN,SARAH F.
ROSARIO,MARISOL.
REEVE,MARGARET E.
REID,MAUREEN.
REID,MELISSA J.
RETTURA,PASQUALE.JR
RICCIO,SHEILA A.
RICHARDS,REBECCA J.
RICHARDSON,KATHY A.
RICKER,SEAN T.
RIND,JEFFREY A.
RISCHITELLI,MARC D.
RISEBERG,MICHAEL D.
RIVERNIDER,DEBORAH A.
ROBERTSON,LYNN.
ROBINSON,ANNE S.
ROBINSON,STACY W.
ROBINSON,JAMES A.
ROSE,ALAN D.
ROSE,JEFFREY A.
ROSENBERG,MICHAEL.
ROSEDY,JENNIFER C.
ROWENOFF,ADAM W.
RUSSELL,KEVIN P.
RUSSELL,TRACY L.
RUSSELL,PAULA J.
RUSSELL,MARY L.
RUSSELL,MARY K.
RUSSELL,MARY L.
RUSSELL,MARY L.
RUSSELL,MARY L

Management
CONTINUED

OLDHAM, BRENDAN M.
ONEIL, KATHRYN M.
ORKIN, DAVID A.
ORR, JOSEPH L.
OSTROWSKI, CYNTHIA M.
OTTOSON, JENNIFER L.
OZTARHAN, ONDER A.
PAOLELIX, DIANE M.
PATTERSON, BETH E.
PEARL, TAMARA L.
PEREZ, ALEJANDRO.
PEREZ, MARIELA A.
PETERS, JULIE A.
PHILLIPS, JENNIFER L.
PLAGE, ROBIN S.
POPLSTEIN, ANDREA L.
POWERS, FRANK J.
PRATSON, KELLY A.
PRUSKIN, MARC A.
PUOPOLO, MATTHEW T.
PURI, ROHINI.

GUINDLEY, JANICE E.
QUINT, TAMARA M.
RABINOWITZ, LORI C.
RACHLES, VIVIAN S.
LAFFERTY, MATTHEW J.
RIKAUSKAS, DAVID P.
RAMKIN, JONATHAN A.
RESNICK, PETER I.
ROBINSON, JEFFREY S.
ROE, FRANK V.
ROSALSKI, JAMES W.
ROGERS, STACEY L.
ROME, ELAN S.
RONDEAU, DAVID P.
ROSENBAUM, LAURA E.
ROSETTI, CHRISTINA D.
ROSOFF, ALAN J.
ROSSETTI, STEPHEN M.
ROVENDRO, MARLA A.
ROY, ANTHONY R.
ROY, SUSAN D.

ROZEN, MUPHAR.
RUBSTEIN, ROBIN M.
RYAN, BERNARD F.
SABINO, BETH.
SABA, FRANK P.
SANCHEZ, WANDA J.
SANDERSON, HERBERT L.
SATTERFIELD, GEOFFREY D.
SCHAFFER, SCOTT E.
SCHNEIDER, LISA R.
SCHALLER, ED C.
SCULLY, SUSANNE S.
SELVARAJU, LAURIE A.
SENDER, MARK S.
SEYLER, JEFFREY E.
SHAW, DAVID R.
SHECHTMAN, NEIL B.
SHEEHAN, LORI B.
SHEEHAN, MARK J.
SHEEHAN, MEAGHAN P.
SHUMWAY, CHRISTOPHER A.

SILVERMAN, SHARON F.
SIRARD, JOHN R.
SJOLUND, PETER K.
SKOLETSKY, LISA S.
SMARDON, SAMUEL S.
SMITH, JENNIFER M.
SNAPE, IAN J.
SOLOMON, MANNI B.
SPARKS, DAVID R.
SPEAR, ANDREW C.
ST JEAN, SHAWN K.
ST PIERRE, NICOLE R.
STACHOWSKI, JENNIFER M.
STEIN, CINDY J.
STEINBERG, HILLARY C.
STEINMANN, TRACY L.
STORR, RYAN D.
SULLIVAN, DAVID R.
SULLIVAN, GERALD F, JR
SULLIVAN, KRISTEN.
SUN, JORGE.
SUPPE, ALISON E.

SWIMAND, PAUL F.
TANDLER, KEITH I.
TANNENBAUM, MARA D.
TAUBAS, NINA M.
THACKERAY, JEFFREY W.
THAYER, ANJANA D.
THAYER, ANNE, DAVID M.
THORNTON, ELIZABETH J.
TOLPA, WENDY L.
TOURJEMANT, LISA M.
TOURJEMANT, JULIE A.
TRUDEL, MELISSA A.
VALUKEVICH, MARC S.
VARNOL, LESLIE A.
VASS, CRAIG S.
VERNE, MARC J.
VOGEL, HEATHER M.
VOLPZOTZ, SPENCER K, II
WALLENSTEIN, DAVID M.
WARREN, MARY E.
WATSON, JENNIFER L.
WEBER, JASON W.
WEHMANN, HEATHER L.

WEIMER, JOAN E.
WEISMAN, LAURA E.
WELCH, GREGORY B.
WISNOFSKE, MARYELLEN.
WESTOVER, REBECCA E.
WHEELER, JUDITH M.
WHITE, MICHAEL E.
WHITMAN, KRISTINE M.
WIDDISON, PAULA E.
WIEDEMANN, MICHELLE D.
WILLIAMS, DEANA L.
WILLIAMS, KRISTINE K.
WINCHENBACH, JONATHAN.
WOLFSON, DOUGLAS Z.
WOODWORTH, DEBRA A.
WOZ, JENNIFER A.
WRIGHT, MONIQUE T.
YACKER, MARC B.
YASMARIAN, SCOTT C.
YHANG, JINSIK J.
ZOHLMAN, AMY J.
ZUMBRUSKI, MICHELLE L.

Nursing

ANTON, NANCY S.
CHAPATES, DIANE L.
COATES, KRISTINA L.
DABNETT, SHEILA M.
DOYLE, CAROLINE M.
FARQUHARSON, LAURIE A.
HARRIS, KERRY M.
HART, CHRISTINE A.
HAYES, ANNMARIE.
HILL, CHRISTINE A.
HUBBARD, LISA D.
LEWALLEN, BELINDA L.

MELIUS, SANDRA K.
MOULTON, JENNIFER A.
PRECIOUS, KIMBERLEE J.
ROMANO, LORI ANN.
ROSER, JENNIFER I.
SCHWARTZ, LEIGH A.
SEDO, NATALIA C.
SILVERSTEIN, ELIZABETH A.
TALBOT, MAURICE W.
TAZELAAR, JAMES E.
TRZEPACZ, MICHELLE A.
WATROBA, LISA M.
WOHL, JANICE R.

Physical Education

AARONSON, TRACEY J.
AKERS, LEAH B.
ALBERT, DANA M.
ANDERSEN, LUCILLE B.
AYERS, ROBERT A.
BABBIDGE, KIMBERLY A.
BENNER, JEFFREY A.
BERNIER, MARC R.
BOURN, SUSAN M.
BUJA, WENDY L.
CAMPBELL, PAUL R.
CAREY, KATHRYN A.
CARON, CHRISTOPHER E.
CLEMENTE, DIANA.
COULOMBE, KEVIN D.
CRICK, PAMELA R.
CRIDER, ANDREW C.
DEMTREMONT, JEFFREY A.

DICKINSON, CHARLES W.
DOYLE, PAUL J.
EDWARDS, DAVID C.
ESAH, E. SLIJI.
FAHIE, CATHERINE A.
FERGUSON, CIRELLE M.
FERRARI, JOSEPH L, JR
FLANERTY, BRIAN F.
FULLER, SHARON M.
GAUDETTE, SUSAN M.
GEDACHT, FELICIA J.
GOLDSTEIN, JENNIFER E.
GRUNDSTEIN, MICHELLE A.
HALL, WILLIAM M.
HALLAM, LEIGH S.
HANNULA, CINDY A.
HOPKINS, CHRISTINE E.
INGRASSIA, KERI L.

JURKIEWICZ, CAROLYN M.
KEANE, DAVID J.
KEENE, WILLIAM J.
KING, KIMBERLY L.
KRAUTHAMER, MICHAEL S.
LAMB, DEBORAH J.
LAMONT, SCOTT A.
LOCHIATTO, JOSEPH.
MACIVER, SCOTT E.
MANANSALA, CHERYL B.
MANGAN, DOUGLAS S.
MARTEL, BERNADETTE J.
MORRIS, BRETT J.
ODONNOR, SEAN P.
PALMER, CHRISTOPHER J
PARKS, ARTHUR E.
PEZZOLESI, MARCIA B.

PICARD, CRAIG S.
PUBLISEE, CATHERINE A.
RODRIGUEZ, CARLOS J.
ROGERS, LISA A.
ROTHLEIN, LISA A.
SACKS, JEFFREY S.
SALAMOFF, ADAM L.
SALTER, THOMAS J.
SCHAFFER, JOHN A.
SHERMAN, HEATHER A.
STERN, DEBORAH A.
STORY, DAVID W.
TRYDMON, ERIC J.
TWER, JOSEPH R.
VASILIOS, JEFFREY P.
WILKINS, PAULA L.

Public Health

AARONSON, KIMBERLY A.
ALPER, SUZANNE S.
BEGLEY, CAROLYN E.
CLAFFEY, DARLENE E.
DADEY, MAUREEN P.
DARCY, MEREDITH J.
DUCHARME, SUZANNE M.
DUNGAN, SAMANTHA J.
ELIAS, DONNA G.
EVANS, SCOTT W.
FINNERAN, DENISE A.
GALANTE, MICHELLE M.
GRANT, SIMMER D.
HUTCHINGS, ABIGAIL A.
JODOIN, JULIE A.
JOHNSTON, HEATHERANN C.
KELLY, CHRISTINE M.
KEMP, PHILIP A.
KTISTAKIS, EVAGELIA F.
LOGAN, LEANNE M.

LYNCH, JENNIFER A.
MANOFSKY, LISA A.
MARRIC, JODY L.
METHE, LORI E.
MIHALOPOULOS, KELLIANNE.
MURRAY, WENDY E.
NAGOH, ILISSA M.
RAFFERTY, SUSAN J.
REMILLARD, KRISTINE M.
REMILLARD, PAULA J.
SANTOS, KATHLEEN A.
SILVIA, MELISSA L.
SMITH, AUBER, KIMBERLY A.
SMITH, ANNEMARIE.
SOUTHWORTH, ELIZABETH M.
STAMFORD, EMILY J.
THOMAS, ROSEMARIE W.
VERDILLI, LISA C.
WADEL, CHRISTINE M.
WILENSKY, DEBRA J.

Bachelor's Degree with Individual Concentration

BARINO, EUSEBIO J.
BRAUN, JODIE L.
BRUSH, CHERYL R.
CAFFERTY, JOHN M.
CHAN, ALEXANDER.
COUGHLIN, DENISE A.
DAVISON, JENIME L.
ENE, DAVID M.
FAIRBANKS, HILLARY E.
GASHON, PAUL C.
HAMBURY, KIM M.
HOLLAND, MARGARET M.
KINE, KEVIN W.
LANDMAN, EILEEN M.
MANKINE, SARAH D.
MAVRETIC, DAVID.
ROY, CAROLANNE.
VICKERY, TERESA L.
WILLIAMS, EMIL A.

Exchange and Honors

ABUSHAMAS, NADIA L.
ATHEY, DIANA JANE.
BIRD, ANDREW D.
BRINDED, ANNA GABRIELLE.
BRUNDTH, SUNNAR E.
BUTLER, DONNA M.
CALDWELL, DENISE L.
CAMPBELL, BRAEME E.
CARLSON, JENNIFER I.
CARNAHAN, MICHAUN M.
COLLINS, JEREMY M.
CORDWELL, STACEY M.
CORSENTZ, RICHARD J.
DERECHAILO, MELISSA.
FELLER, ERIC MARGARET T.
FETTERHOFF, AMY.
FREDEN, ANNA SOFIA.
FUJII, JENNY W.
GARCIA, ANDRES.
GARCIA, JUAN PABLO.
GILBEY, BRYONY JANE.
GILO, KURT W.
GOULD, RACHEL.
HERMON, CHRISTINA M.
HODGSON, JACQUELINE.
HUBNER, STACEY.
JONES, JANE ZACHARY.
JONES, JULIE A.
KAYE, CAROLINE J.
LE PETIT, KATHARINE M.
MADISON, KATHY L.
MAKEKAU, CHERI A.
RAMBIARACINA, MICHAEL B.

MARTIN, RICHARD J.
MASSEY, LIZZIE.
MAYES, DENISE A.
MCCANN, KEVIN P.
MEHNERT, MELISSA A.
MOITTELSELO, YVIVEN.
NORDENSTERN, MELANIE.
NORTHINGTON, JESSICA.
NULTER, ADAM.
MURPHY, MICHAEL B.
NEARPASS, KIMBERLY A.
NUMPHAD, SIMON M.
PAYNE, ALISON LOUISE.
PEIL, JAYNE LOUISE.
PERRY, JENNIFER LYNN.
PETERSEN, HENRIK HAAR.
PETERSEN, LYDIA.
PHILLIPS, JULIE.
PRICE, ANN DUISF.
PRICH, JOHN.
RAYMOND, STEVEN P.
RUSSELL, SUSAN J.
SFETSOS, MARALAMBOS.
SHEEHAN, SHANCIA RACHEL.
SMITH, JAMES.
SUNT, ANNA DENISE L.
SVARTBORN, LARS FREDRIK.
THOMPSON, KRISTIN B.
VER, SUSAN Y.
VIR, PRAKASH.
WARREN, SUZAN.
WONG, VONG.
WORSLEY, ANNA B.

Interdepartmental and others

BARNES, DOREEN E.
BERGER, MICHAEL A.
COON, SHAUN S.
FOSTER, DAVID L.
GRIFFIN, JEANNE E.
MASSEY, SUZANNETTE S.
MCMANUS, PORTER T.
MURRAY, KATHLEEN A.
TAIRA, MORIKO.

Continuing Education

ALPER, LORETTA L.
BREEDEN, FREDERICK J.
BUSH, STEPHEN P.
COLE, MICHELLE.
COULTER, AMY.
CROWLEY, DANIEL T.
EPPICH, RHYS A.
GOLDBERG, GEOFFREY N.
HENDRICHS, MARTHA A.
KURLEJ, PATRICK J.
LORING, MICHAEL P.
MARTIN, RENEE.
MORRISON, LESLIE R.

ORTIZ, MYDIAN J.
PANBAN, MICHAEL A.
PARAUTSKY, SHEILA.
PELOSI, LAURENCE K.
PRELL, CHRISTINE L.
RABANIL, ASUNCION, ROMINI.
ROCMAN, FRANKLIN N, JR
ROELOFS, DANIEL G.
SAENZ, NATALIA.
VOGEL, SHAUN P.
WEI, CARIE A.
WHITE, JOHN A, IV
WITOWSKI, JUDITH M.
YUEN, AMBEL L.

University Without Walls

DELISA, REBECCA A.
HERBST, DONNA A.
NARCARIAN, CAROL B.
NCKEON, VIRGINIA B.
OCONNOR, ROBERT F.
TETENS, DIANA R.
WILLIAMS, SUSAN M.

ARTS & LIVING

Within the Veil delivers an awesome Fear of God

By DANIELLE DOWLING
Collegian Staff

Within the Veil
Fear of God
Metal Blade/Warner Brothers

I haven't been this excited since I wrapped myself up in Saran Wrap and ran naked through the Campus Center basement.

Well, I never really did that, but doesn't it sound like an exciting thing to do?

Anyway, I'm really excited. You see, I receive a lot of free tapes and CDs. Most of them are totally useless, and that which I cannot sell, I either give away to my friends or enemies (depending on how truly awful the album sounds) or throw them in an old shoe box, never to be heard from again.

But every once in awhile, I receive a tape or CD that fills me with such joy that I'm compelled to jump up and down while praising the music industry (something which I am not often compelled to do).

When I received the debut release from Fear of God entitled Within the Veil, I experienced such compulsion.

This album is not for top-40 minded New Kids on the Block lovers, nor would it suit sedate or positive, goofy types. This is pure energy, pure anger, a full frontal attack on your aural cavities. This is music to appease the tastes of those who love to whip their cerebral matter into a fine puree.

Many comparisons could be made here. Their sound could be likened to Jane's Addiction, Sonic Youth, the 360's, even Slayer at some points. But making such com-

CONTINUED ON PAGE 16

Photo courtesy Warner Bros.

Fear of God is (from left to right): drummer Steve Cordova, guitarist Michael Carlino, vocalist Dawn Crosby and bassist Blair Darby.

DELANO'S
57 North Pleasant Street 253-5141

Tuesday Night is Taco Night!

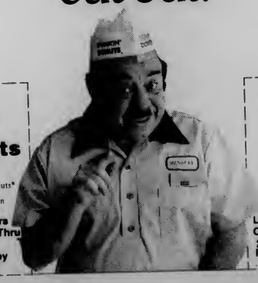
Valentine's Day
Come in for dinner and each couple will receive one free dessert

Drinks of the Week:
Absolut Soda & Cranberry $2.25
Pain Aid $2.25

Beer of the Month:
60 oz Miller, Miller Lite or Rolling Rock Pitchers $4.50

"A MAGICAL AND MOVING RIDE."
—David Ansen, NEWSWEEK MAGAZINE
KEVIN COSTNER
FIELD OF DREAMS
PG
A UNIVERSAL RELEASE
© 1989 UNIVERSAL CITY STUDIOS, INC.
Wednesday, Feb. 13 5, 7, 9 & 11 P.M.
Campus Center Auditorium 5P.M. - $2.00 7, 9 & 11 - $3.00
Sponsored By The Massachusetts Lacrosse Club

"If you're on a tight budget here are a couple things you should cut out."



Open 24 hrs. a day, 7 days a wk.
$1.00 OFF
A Dozen Donuts
Available only at participating Dunkin' Donuts® shops. One coupon per customer per visit. May not be combined with any other coupon or premium offer. Shop must retain coupon. Taxes not included.
DUNKIN' DONUTS® It's worth the trip.
Limit: 2 offers
Offer Good Thru 2/24/91
Rte 9, Hadley
(next to Four Seasons Liquors)

Open 24 hrs. a day, 7 days a wk.
FREE
Ham and Cheese Sandwich
When you buy a Ham and Cheese Sandwich at the Regular Price
Available only at participating Dunkin' Donuts® shops. One coupon per customer per visit. May not be combined with any other coupon or premium offer. Shop must retain coupon. Taxes not included.
Limit: 1 Offer
Offer Good Thru 2/24/91
Route 9, Hadley
DUNKIN' DONUTS® It's worth the trip.
(next to Four Seasons Liquors)

SHAPE UP FOR SPRING.
At Hilltop and Crossan Healthclubs located in Webster & Gorman dorms
Register 2/4-2/14, Mon-Thurs 7-9pm

UMASS ARTS COUNCIL
GRANT PROPOSAL DEADLINE
The next deadline for submission of grant proposals for arts-related projects and events:
Friday, February 22

Guidelines and application forms are available at the Arts Council office and the Student Activities Office

UMass Arts Council
209 Hasbrouck Hall, 545-0202

NOTE: This is the only grant deadline for spring events.

Heart Shaped Treats ...Edible & Otherwise, for Your Unique Valentine.

Compliments
71 N. Pleasant St. (Above Cafe DiCarlo)
Amherst 256-1551 • Mon.-Sat. 10-5:30
MC Visa Amex

Israeli music can be found on 91.1 WMUA

By ALISON BUCKHOLTZ
Collegian Correspondent

With a flutter of Middle Eastern drums and a shake of the tambourine, "Zamir," WMUA 91.1 FM's Israeli and Jewish radio show, began its 16th year of programming this semester.

"Zamir," which means "nightingale" in Hebrew, airs from 10 a.m. to noon every Sunday. It evolved out of student interest in both radio and Jewish music, according to DJ Alisa Berkowitz, and remains one of the longest-running Jewish or Israeli radio shows on a college campus in the nation. When Zamir's "on-air" light first shone, however, it had few models to follow.

"In 1975, there was no specifically Jewish program on any media in Western Massachusetts," remembered Professor Leonard Ehrlich, whose daughter-in-law was Zamir's first DJ. "But there were many Jewish students in the area, and a great interest in Israel and Israeli pop music."

A Jewish radio show at Temple University sparked the idea for "our own Israeli and Jewish music program, interspersed with news of the community," Ehrlich said. "One of the most gratifying things for me after Zamir's first few Sunday shows was not just the music, but the comments from local Israelis. It meant a lot to them, and they were the experts. We knew we had a success on our hands."

The format proved successful and continues to this day, according to Berkowitz. "We play both Israeli and Jewish music in a dual approach to reach the community," she said. "Jewish music can be Klezmer, which is of Eastern European origin, or holiday music, among other things."

To keep listeners up-to-date on local community activities, "I also read from the Hillel calendar or talk about happenings I've heard of," she said. "People who call in tell me that it's both the music and the information they listen for."

These "cultural tidbits" lure Shmuel Bolozky, an Israeli professor at UMass, to Zamir. "I have a sense of satisfaction that Jewish culture is gaining exposure over the radio, and also that students are the coordinators," he said.

The two kinds of music played on Zamir strike different chords in Bolozky. "As an Israeli it's important to me because it gives me a touch of home for two hours," he said. "Not just my own home in Israel, but the heritage of my parents and grandparents."

Berkowitz agreed that Zamir signifies different things to its listeners. "Listening to Klezmer may remind someone of the overall culture they grew up in, and listening to Nurit Galron, Arik Einstein, Yehudit Ravitz and Matti Caspi (current Israeli pop stars) may remind others of a summer or year they spent in Israel," she said. "Some songs remind people of wars Israel has fought, and some songs celebrate Jewish holidays."

Senior Scott Kleinberger said Zamir's music was both familiar and different to him. "Familiar because of the time I spent in Israel and because that's the kind of music in my house," but different from other radio shows because the music is in Hebrew. "It's strange hearing Hebrew on American radio," he said. "I can't understand whole songs, but I can pick up words."

Hebrew isn't a problem for DJ Berkowitz, who has spent many summers in Israel and looks on it as a "second home." She updates Zamir's music library with each trip to Israel, which allows her to "find out who's popular there and bring back the newest records," she said.

"I have a better sense of the Israeli music scene now because I spent six months there last year," she explained. "I was able to go to concerts, listen to the radio, and talk to people about their likes and dislikes. I've tried to reflect that experience in what I play, and match the moods of the show to the moods and ages of the Jewish people," she said.

Zamir's listeners seem to approve. "I've spoken to people as far as Springfield who listen to it," Bolozky said. "It's something people can identify with."

Zamir's appeal also extends outside the Jewish community. "A show like Zamir serves a purpose for not only someone [Israeli or Jewish]," said WMUA Chairperson John Triana, "but for someone like me, to give background about a music and culture that I otherwise wouldn't know."

Nearly all world musics are represented on WMUA, Triana said, in an attempt for diversity. Zamir is both different from and similar to these other cultural programs.

"It's special concerns really came to light two years ago," Berkowitz said. "We had always had the Sunday morning slot until then, when we were programmed in for Friday afternoon. We lost almost all our listeners because Friday afternoon is a time that many Jewish people are preparing for Shabbat," she explained. Following an area-wide letter-writing campaign to WMUA, however, the Sunday slot was eventually reinstated.

For many listeners, Zamir continues to be the same cause for celebration that it was for Ehrlich those first few Sundays, and Berkowitz said she keeps that in mind during every show. "Anyone that wants to listen to Zamir can, but there's a specific group of pe[illegible]ut there that need to listen to it," she said. "That[illegible] play for."

BE HERE.

Going out to the movies is great. But there are some times when it's impossible. You can't find a sitter. It's two in the morning. Whatever.

That's the great thing about Dimension's premium channels. They bring the best movies into your living room. Uncut, unedited, commercial-free.

And if you're watching your budget as closely as most of us, our premium channels have never looked better.

Because you'll be bringing all the glitter and glamour of the silver screen into your home.

From Nicholson to Bogart. Streep to Bacall. The stars don't shine brighter anywhere else.

Call and order a premium channel today. Because while nobody wants to stay home every night, it's nice to be able to enjoy an evening at the movies. From the comfort of your own easy chair.

DIMENSION CABLE SERVICES
Something For All Of You.
Call 256-4123 for connection.

© 1991 Times Mirror Cable Television, Inc. All rights reserved.

WOMEN'S ISSUES

Welcome

To all the readers of the Women's Issues page, we would like to welcome you back to what we hope will be an exciting and rewarding spring semester.

To start things off correctly, allow us to introduce ourselves. We are Monique Michelle Tabon and Rua Kelly, and we are the editors for the page. We will be working together to inform both women of color and women representing the general population, of concerns directly affecting you.

Monique: "It is my sincerest desire to especially allow women of color their opportunity to have their voices heard. If you, women of color, have an opinion or concern to address, call the Collegian and you will be referred to me. If you, women of color, would like to have a lecture covered or if you know of some real news that you think we all should know about, again, get in contact with me. Remember, I am here to serve the needs of the community, your community in particular, for I am part of your community."

Rua: "We don't expect you to agree with either of us; remember, this is your space. Women's Issues was created by women, for women. If you want to be a part of our future, speak now while you have the opportunity. We don't have to share the same vision, nor do we have to understand each other's pain. As June Jordan tells us, ". . .maybe the purpose of being here, wherever we are, is to increase the durability and the occasions of love among and between peoples. . .I believe that love is the single, true prosperity of any moment and that whatever and whoever impedes, diminishes, ridicules, opposes the development of loving spirit is 'wrong' (and) hateful.' This is a time of war. Now, more than ever, we cannot be silent while our world is changing forever."

Lastly, we would like to extend a warm welcome to all those interested in writing for us, to please do so. We are short staffed, and would simply love for writers and non-writers alike to give us a helping hand. Remember we are students too, and for students worldwide, the universal rule of thumb is: BOOKS COME FIRST!

UMass games just aren't the same

I'm disturbed. No, I'm not disturbed — I'm PISSED OFF! Why?

Because this semester, like all others, I had to pay $74 for something on my semester bill called the athletic fee. "So what?" you say, we all had to pay that fee. Yeah, we all had to pay that fee! And yet, on Jan. 28 and Feb. 2, I could not get into a UMass game that I already paid for. WHY?

Monique Tabon

What's my beef? My beef is that first and foremost, we the students, have to go in the BACK door of the Cage. Technically it's the side door, but when ticket holders are privileged to enter through the front door (or main entrance), we are indeed going in the back door. I have a problem with repeating the steps of my ancestors who had to sacrifice their self-respect and integrity by "going in the back door."

My second beef is not being able to get into a game that I should have a right to attend (since I prepaid for it). The ticket holders should not be allowed in until we are inside the Cage and only on the basis of availability of seats left. If that were the policy in effect now, we would not have had that catastrophe on Saturday night at Midnight Madness (traditionally a student event), when people were pushing forward, others fainting, everybody drunk, and incapable, egotistical, incompetent, wannabe real police officers were in control. (Or shall I say OUT of control?) Let's not forget the danger imposed when one of the little boys in polyester blue could not control his real live horse-y who went berzerk when his tail was pulled and when the ambulance came on the scene.

I don't know about you guys, but I intend to go to the Temple vs. UMass game. And if I do not get in this time, UMass, that will be your third strike which means you're out! And if and when that happens, UMass beware.

Students, this is our school. If you aren't happy going in the back door, if you aren't happy standing out in the cold until your toes turn blue (and still not get in!) — if you aren't happy with the incompetence of UMass toy soldiers pretending to be in control . . .then support me and I'll support you and then maybe all of these problems will be alleviated with a simple solution. That solution is us utilizing our power to exercise our rights as students to go in the front doors at all of OUR GAMES.

Monique Tabon is a Collegian staff member. This article is the opinion of the writer and does not necessarily reflect the views of the Collegian staff.

Women's Forum

Tuesday, Feb. 12: Lesbian and Bisexual Women's Union Meeting 413 Student Union (social and support group)

Also on Tuesday. . .Dance to benefit the Reproductive Freedom Committee 9:30 p.m. North Star Bar, Northampton. For more information, call 256-8316.

Wednesday, Feb. 13: Judith Black, a well-known storyteller, will be at Hillel House, 8 p.m. (free bagels served from 7 p.m. to 7:30 p.m.).

In addition, the Women's Studies Dept. is sponsoring a Brown Bag Lunch Wednesday from noon - 1 p.m. in Campus Center 904. Leslea Newman will be doing a reading.

Friday, Feb. 15: Casselberry/Dupree will be at the Iron Horse in Northampton at 7 p.m. Tickets are $14 in advance. For more information, call 586-8686.

Saturday, Feb. 23: Urban Bush Women in Praise House, performing at the Fine Arts Center. Sponsored by New World Theatre and the FAC.

If you know of any events of interest to women and would like to see them appear on the page, please bring them to our attention.
Call our office at 545-3500 or drop an announcement in the Women's Issues box at the Collegian, first floor Campus Center. Thanks!

And still we wear our uniforms, follow
The cracked cry of the bugles, comb and brush
Our pride and prejudice, doctor the sallow
Initial ardor, wish to keep it fresh
Still we applaud the President's voice and face
Still we remark on patriotism, sing
Salute the flag, thrill heavily, rejoice
For the death of men who too saluted, sang.
But inward grows a soberness, an awe,
A fear, a deepening hollow through the cold.
For even if we come out standing up How shall we smile, congratulate and how Settle in chairs. Listen, listen. The step
Of iron feet again And again wild.

— Gwendolyn Brooks

Trip to 'The Black Mecca'

This past fall semester, I had the pleasure of going on exchange to Howard University, known affectionately by Howard students as "The Mecca." Howard University, located in the Northwest quadrant of Washington, DC, is the oldest Black college in the United States and the most elite, with a population of approximately 10,000 students. Howard, as told to me, is referred to as "The Mecca" due to its ability to satisfy every type of college student with its pride and source for Black history.

Howard has a high-spirited student body all of who have enormous pride to attend such a historically significant university. The students at Howard are varied in their characteristics.

There are the club heads; they are most identifiable by their over sized baggy jeans, dreads, and big, black shoes. These students are at all the parties, and ready to "jam."

There are also the bourgeoise Black students who attend Howard; they are most recognizable with the preppy look, i.e. Ray Ban shades, and often discussing their parents' professions, or the fun encountered at their last visit to "The Vineyard."

Still to add to the complexity of the students are the Malcolm X, Farrakhan and Nation of Islam followers. These students are serious about Afrocentric views and the teachings of our past Black leaders and ultimately uplifting the Black race through pride and discipline. These students are easily recognized by their wearing of suits with the familiar bow tie worn by the Fruit of Islam. These students can be found distributing literature, selling oils or "dropping knowledge."

Yet another group noticeable to the observer are the Greeks. At Howard they are less noticeable, except for the occasional bag or pin worn, and of course the infamous "call across the yard" to another fraternity brother or sorority sister.

Lastly, there are the groups not solely limited to Howard University. These include the jocks, the book worms and the individuals. Because they cannot fit into a neat category, they have a unique style of their own, and seem to create new ones, when it appears the previous one has gotten old. They do this with hats, strips, checkers and a sense of self.

Camile Tucker

All of these students have one thing in common however: their overwhelming pride and attitude about being a Howard student. You can see it in the stride students have when walking across the yard, the spirit exuded at the games, the high powered soulful band which performs anything from "The Humpty Dance," by Digital Underground, to "My, My, My," by Johnny Gill. Another aspect of the band that impressed me beyond their musical and dance talents is that, before the start of each game, they play "Lift Every Voice and Sing," the Negro National Anthem. Every student raises a fist to the sky symbolizing respect, then "The Star Spangled Banner" follows thereafter.

The pride of Howard is not only restricted to the students however, the faculty seem genuinely dedicated to the higher education of each student in their class. I felt this partly because of the small sizes of the classes, so individual attention and question answering was readily available. It was also a different climate to have Black professors, something not too often seen here at UMass. It was a welcome change to get viewpoints, knowledge and new ideas from people who look like me. Often times they have experienced the same things I have. They were not limited to only the Afro-American studies department; they were in every course of study.

I also enjoyed being in a predominantly Black environment for the first time. Being that I was bussed to all White suburban schools for grades one through 12 and then came to UMass for financial reasons, I really needed the change.

I enjoyed my semester at Howard University thoroughly as a chance to be in the majority for once, to escape the fruitful racism that exists here on our campus. I encourage Black students in search of a break from UMass, Amherst's small town limitations, or Massachusetts for that matter, to take the challenge and do an exchange to Howard University.

However, be forewarned, you should have a healthy wardrobe because dressing at Howard is one of the most important forms of self expression. For both the brothers and the sisters, hair upkeep and style is emphasized heavily so do your "do." And lastly, be ready to party; Howard is no place for sleepers. The weekends begin at El Torito's on Wednesdays, move to the Famous Five Floor club, and The Ritz for college night on Thursdays. On Friday nights its Chapter III in Southeast DC, then Saturdays to Tommy Wongs The Apartment in Georgetown, and to cap it off on Sundays there's club Chicago's or The Body Box.

Howard University has so much to offer and its prime location of Washington DC, there's always something to do and somewhere to go. Don't limit yourself to only going to Howard's high spirited and family oriented homecomings, become a student and really experience The Black Mecca. Undergraduate life is fun but, at Howard, it's LIVE!

Camile Tucker is a UMass student. This article is the opinion of the writer and does not necessarily reflect the view of the Collegian staff.

WOMEN'S ISSUES NEEDS WRITERS

come down and ask for Monique or Rua

■ Fear of God

CONTINUED FROM PAGE 13

sons does them a great injustice. They have a distinct flavor that belongs only to them and no one else. There is an unmistakable feeling, an undeniable emotion that they have created on this album.

Most of that feeling emits from the banshee wailings of vocalist Dawn Crosby. Her wails, her growls, her moans fill you with such foreboding dread. As you listen to her screeching away, there are so many thoughts and ideas that fill your head leaving you with a feeling of inadequacy when you make an attempt at an accurate description.

There is a fine blend of styles in their sound. It has an ethereal quality and yet it is grounded by the heavy and dramatic power of guitarist Mike Carlino's riffs. Just when you think you can peg this as surreal, psychedelic college stuff, it comes back around and sticks you in the bum with a biting, hard edged guitar. And just when you think it's nothing but chaotic noise, it comes down off the storm driven cliff to lilt you in a sea of soothing, acoustic riffs, but still chaotic all the same.

The lyrics only add to the essence of their sound. The first tune on the album, "All That Remains," begins with Crosby speaking these lyrics in a deep, soft and eerie voice: "Powerlines. . . /steel webs confine, violating the brownish sky/Hard grey smothers, earth like cancer/Cracks revealing, ground below broken and bleeding/every seed every stone."

No, this is not a happy album. As I said before, it is ripe with aggression, hate, anger and negative energy. It is similar to having a bad trip where everything you see and experience has a nightmarish quality. As you feel yourself float above the cess of the world you also feel all the hate and the anger float away from you and what's cool is that you would like to remain there until all the hate, all the confusion, all the negativity, all the things that make your life a hellish nightmare leave your soul forever.

Sun Ra proves his love for music

By JAMES MOLESWORTH
Collegian Correspondent

Sun Ra
Iron Horse
Saturday, Feb. 9

His Interplanetary Majesty took a brief respite from his recent recuperation to land at the Iron Horse in Northampton for a gig this past Saturday night. Less than two months ago Sun Ra was the victim of a stroke, yet the 75-year-old musician is a work-a-holic to say the least, and even though he had to be wheeled to the stage in a wheelchair, he was still able to perform.

Yet the evening's performance seemed awkward. The opening group of songs was something out of a Duke Ellington set during the 1940s. Both "Take A Train" and "It's Only a Paper Moon" were accompanied by some disappointing vocals, and the Arkestra itself seemed to be confused as to who was actually taking the lead. A couple of times, soloists were cut off by other band members as there seemed to be no one willing to take the reins while Sun Ra sat off stage.

One of the most disappointing parts of the whole evening was John Gilmore's opening tenor solo — a flat out dud. Gilmore has been with Sun Ra for over 30 years and is the man credited with teaching John Coltrane how to "squeal." He bounced back somewhat later in the evening, though, with some solid clarinet play.

Along with Gilmore, Marshall Allen on alto has also been with the group for over 30 years, and is known for his high pitched tremelos and hellaciously fast fingered solos. He demonstrated both talents; but his highlight of the evening came during the closing song, as he played on clarinet during a rhythmic chant as the Arkestra walked off stage, a solo that was hauntingly reminiscent of Coltrane. Allen also had some solid flute solos, but the real surprise of the evening was the guitar player. Unfortunately, I didn't catch his name, but his solos, as well as his rhythm work, were superb, strumming along with a grace and dignity that helped save the evening.

Sun Ra himself was lifted up on stage halfway through the gig, and he was able to reel off a few spheres of notes that circled above the Arkestra's heads, giving them some new and interesting paths to traverse. Yet the usual energy and fire was not there, and I wonder if Sun Ra's stroke has had as much of an effect on the Arkestra as it had on Sun Ra himself?

While it was saddening to see Sun Ra so obviously hampered, it was still great to see him play, and the fact that he is playing only two months after a stroke is a testimony to the man's great love for his music. The performance as a whole picked up when Sun Ra finally came on stage, and aside from the minor mechanical difficulties with his keyboard and the occasional mistake from the Iron Horse stage crew (mic feedback, etc.), the gig was a positive one overall. Don't miss the next chance to see Sun Ra and his Arkestra, and keep checking out the flood of great jazz shows coming to the Valley this month.

Photo courtesy A and M Records
Sun Ra

Free Speech.

If you're an off-campus student, get the AT&T Calling Card and your first call is free.

There's no better time to speak your mind. Because now when you get your free AT&T Calling Card, you'll get your first 15-minute call free*

With your AT&T Calling Card, you can call from almost anywhere to anywhere. And you can keep your card, even if you move and get a new phone number.

Our Calling Card is part of the AT&T Student Saver Plus program, a whole package of products and services designed to make a student's budget go farther.

So look for AT&T Calling Card applications on campus. Or call us at 1 800 525-7955, Ext. 655.

And let freedom ring.

AT&T. Helping make college life a little easier.

AT&T The right choice.

*A $400 value for a coast to coast Calling Card call. Applies to customer dialed calls made during the AT&T Night/Weekend calling period, 11pm to 8am, Sunday through Thursday and 11pm Friday through 5pm Sunday. You may receive more or less calling time depending on where and when you call. Applications must be received by December 31, 1991.

☆☆☆☆☆☆☆☆☆☆☆☆☆☆☆☆☆☆☆☆☆☆

SURPRISE YOUR Valentine

Find the finest in our two beautiful Galleries...

silverscape designs

264 N. Pleasant St Amherst 253-3324
177 Main St Northampton 584-3324
GOLDSMITHS + GEM GALLERY

SPRING BREAK 91

cancun mexico Air & Hotel Included

Spaces still available!

El Batab/Downtown	$409
Laguna/Across Beach	$479
Solymar/Beach Econ	$509
Las Perlas/Beach Med	$529
Conrad Hilton/Super	$569
Cancun Playa/Deluxe	$599

*Prices based on Quad. occ
Organize a group & get a free trip!

Local Contact:
JASON 549-7952

For more info. call 800-331-6002

College Pizza
Spring Special

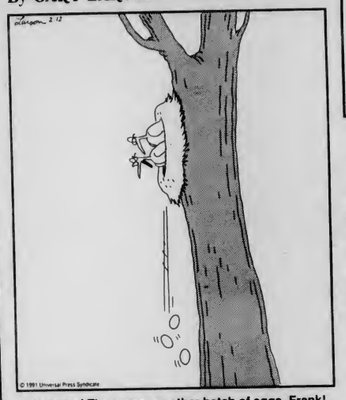
Small Cheese Pizza $3.50
Large Chees Pizza $5.99
2 Toppings $1.00 extra

549-6098
Must mention this ad
no coupons with the special

DOONESBURY By GARRY TRUDEAU

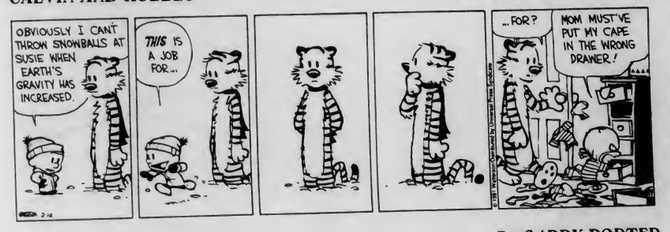
WELCOME BACK, RAY...
WHERE... WHERE AM I?
FIELD SURGICAL COMPANY. WE JUST PATCHED YOU UP. YOU'RE GOING TO NEED FURTHER ORTHOPEDIC WORK OUT ON THE "MERCY."
AM I... HURT BAD?
NAH. COMPARED TO WHAT WE SEE IN HERE, THIS IS JUST A SCRATCH. YOURE A LUCKY MAN...
BY THE WAY, DO YOU WANT TO KEEP YOUR SHRAPNEL?
HEY... THAT'S MY TRANSMISSION!

THE FAR SIDE By GARY LARSON



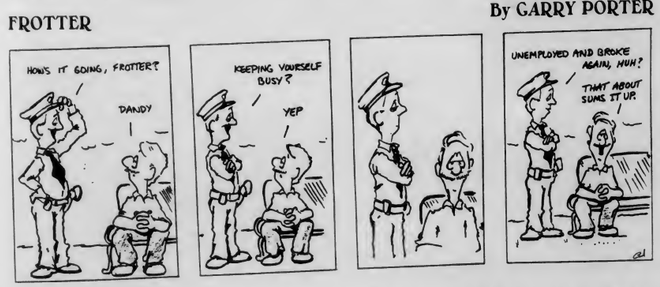
"Aaaaaaa! There goes another batch of eggs, Frank! ... No wonder this nest was such a deal."

CALVIN AND HOBBES By BILL WATTERSON

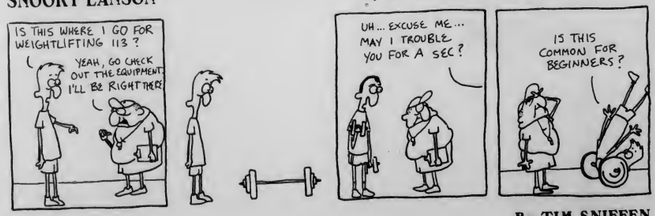


OBVIOUSLY I CAN'T THROW SNOWBALLS AT SUSIE WHEN EARTH'S GRAVITY HAS INCREASED.
THIS IS A JOB FOR...
..FOR?
MOM MUST'VE PUT MY CAPE IN THE WRONG DRAWER!

FROTTER By GARRY PORTER

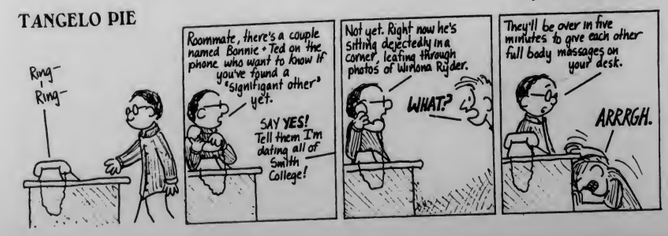


SNOOKY LANSON By E. VEZINA & R. SHAUGHNESSY



IS THIS WHERE I GO FOR WEIGHTLIFTING 113?
YEAH, GO CHECK OUT THE EQUIPMENT. I'LL BE RIGHT THERE.
UH... EXCUSE ME... MAY I TROUBLE YOU FOR A SEC?
IS THIS COMMON FOR BEGINNERS?

TANGELO PIE By TIM SNIFFEN



Ring- Ring-
Roommate, there's a couple named Bonnie + Ted on the phone who want to know if you've found a "significant other" yet.
SAY YES! Tell them I'm dating all of Smith College!
Not yet. Right now he's sitting dejectedly in a corner, leafing through photos of Winona Rider.
WHAT?
They'll be over in five minutes to give each other full body massages on your desk.
ARRRGH.

QUOTE OF THE DAY

"Is a duck a bird or a goose?"

— overheard

DAILY CROSSWORD PUZZLE
Edited By TRUDE MICHEL JAFFE

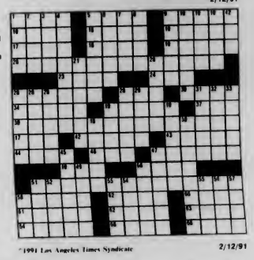
ACROSS
1 Makes a face
5 Culinarian
9 Nestling
14 Working
15 Napoleon battle site
16 Pucker
17 "The Forsyte —"
18 Goddess of discord
19 Ironclad
20 Very friendly
23 Sitcom actress Carol —
24 Bee follower
25 Clutch
28 Do a double stem
30 Throw the dice
34 "Peanuts" person
35 Plays "Wheel of Fortune"
37 Down, to Dante
38 Somewhat friendly
41 Exploit
42 Sorry
43 Part of a track meet
44 Asian holidays
46 AES' opponent
47 Raucous
48 Einstein's "The World — See It"
50 Spud buds
51 Unfriendly
58 1935 Triple Crown winner
59 Modicum
60 —de-boeuf window
61 Katmandu's land
62 Ayes
63 The Darling's dog
64 Daisy
65 Fools
66 What one's sometimes out of

DOWN
1 Topgallant
2 Where Sundance is
3 Chevalier film
4 Jibes
5 — up: makes a bundle
6 Word with work or saw
7 Rewrite
8 Goby or guppy
9 Shopping binge
10 Archer's sheath
11 Twist an arm
12 Salesperson's caveat
13 Murphy, for one
21 Type of roll
22 Chilling
25 Influence
26 Dye job
27 Goin' e.g.
28 Book part
29 Musical Carole
31 Mean ones
32 Outlines
33 Whole-hearted
35 Lose one's grip
36 Type lead-in
39 Sound
40 Subterfuges
45 Move jauntily
47 Sidestep
49 Marshy area
50 Bar, to the bar
51 Wall St. group abbr
52 Adhesive strip
53 Speeds
54 The first Mrs. Copperfield
55 Shipshape
56 Prong
57 Put-down
58 "Sail — Ship of State"

ANSWER TO PREVIOUS PUZZLE:

E	P	I	C		C	A	V	E		O	C	C	U	R
R	O	S	E		A	L	E	C		B	R	E	S	T
I	O	T	A		M	I	T	A		B	O	U	N	CE
C	L	O	S	E	D	C	O	U	P	L	E	T
			E	R	I	E			O	U		A	N
	S	A	L	A	D		S	O	W	S		A	M	O
	O	D	E	S		F	O	R	E		G	L	U	E
C	L	O	S	E	O	R	D	E	R	D	R	I	L	L
O	I	L	S		G	O	A	L		R	U	S	E
D	O	E		R	I	M	S		T	I	B	E	R
E	S	S	E	N	E			B	E	E	S
		C	L	O	S	E	Q	U	A	R	T	E	R	S
A	B	E	A	M			R	U	G	B	A	Y	O	N
D	A	N	T	E			M	I	L	E		K	I	T
A	N	T	E	S			A	P	E	D		E	L	S

2/12/91



©1991 Los Angeles Times Syndicate

2/12/91

MENU

LUNCH
Ravioli Alfredo
Hamburger

DINNER
Honey Pecan Fried Chicken
Shrimp and Scallop Creole

BASICS LUNCH
Falafel Pocket Sandwich
Ravioli Alfredo

BASICS DINNER
Vegetable Gumbo Caserole
Honey Pecan Fried Chicken

YOUR DAILY HOROSCOPE
By JEANE DIXON

ARIES (March 21-April 19): Someone may want to trade on your reputation today. Stay on your toes! A wonderful relationship will blossom if you reach out to a newcomer. Value your talents as much as others do.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20): Dig deep to uncover the source of a misunderstanding. Better communication is the key to increasing sales and profits. A parent-child relationship receives a welcome boost.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20): Try to postpone signing legal documents until next week. You have a chance to recoup recent financial losses today. Read between the lines. Extra expenses are linked to a friendship.

CANCER (June 21-July 22): Work will keep you hopping today. The rewards will be even sweeter than you imagine! Do not be tantalized by investment schemes. Postpone signing important documents. Pass on romance tonight.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22): Avoid taking a financial risk lest you damage your credit rating. An uncomplicated diet and healthy blend of work and play will leave you feeling fit. Be bold in romance.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22): Focus on your career goals. Sustained effort will lead to victory. A younger person could tell you how to get more out of your computer. Keep your promises to a loved one.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22): Making a commitment to someone will turn your life upside down, but it could lead to a lasting happiness. Keep your hopes high; a financial breakthrough is near. Be more loving with family.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21): Do favors now and you will be richly rewarded. Spend part of the day getting better organized at work. Move swiftly where romance is concerned. Dine out in elegant surroundings.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21): You have remarkable insight and could become a true pioneer in your field. Act with authority and you will win new respect. A novel or television special gives you fresh insights.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19): Other people admire your flexibility. Expressing your concerns in a serious yet soothing way lets a relationship weather a storm. Social complications will resolve themselves.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18): A new partnership produces excellent results today. A stroke of luck focuses your attention on something you previously gave up. Your thoughts about a relationship become more down-to-earth.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20): Do not be shy about using your social contacts to gain new business. Influential friends are happy to help. Repay favors quickly. A close relationship benefits from more give-and-take.

■ women lead ski team

Collegian photo by Carrie Wyeth

Freshman Ryan Worbel, raced but failed to place in the top 20 for the event. The men finished third as a team at Loon Mt. in New Hampshire this weekend.

CONTINUED FROM PAGE 20

closer to league-leader Plymouth State and put them out of reach of third-place BC. After four meets, Plymouth has 13 points, UMass is close behind with 14 and BC trails with 24.

The men's team took second place in the giant slalom by producing five out of the top 20 finishers. Amherst College's Steve Crowley won the race, while UMass got strong performances from juniors Chuck Holcombe (5th) and John Donovan (6th), senior Pete Selkowitz (17th) and juniors Mike Hannigan (18th) and Paul Robinson (19th).

The UMass men finished third in the slalom behind BC and first-place Plymouth. Dave Sorrell of Plymouth took first as UMass placed Holcombe (7th), Donovan (11th), Selkowitz (14th), junior Josh Cohen (17th) and Hannigan (20th).

In the men's league, BC is in firm command of first with 12 points, while Plymouth and UMass are far behind with 20 and 22 points, respectively.

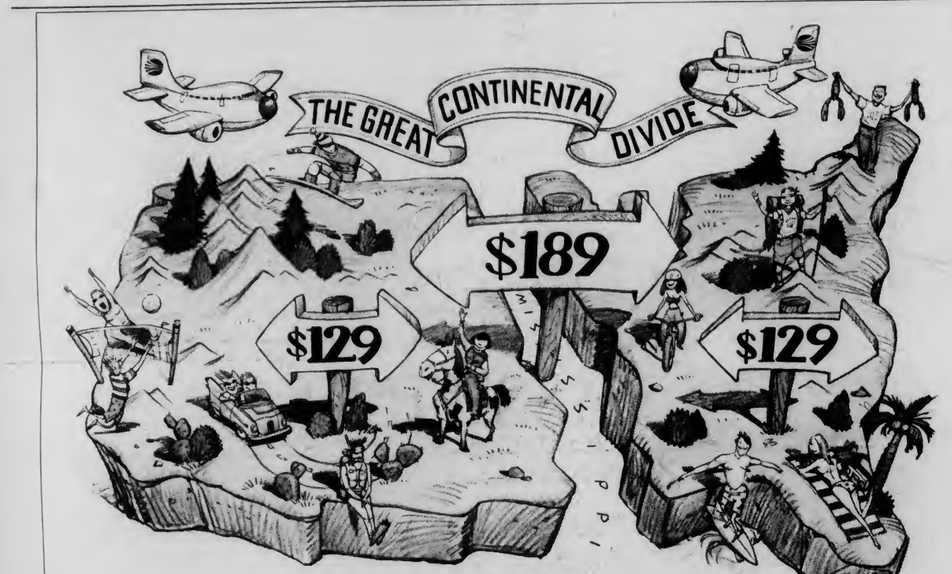
■ men's hoop

CONTINUED FROM PAGE 20

There is some good news in the UMass camp: Forward Tony Barbee returned to action Saturday after sitting out three games with mononucleosis. Barbee scored eight points in 22 minutes.

And Williams is on fire. In his last five games, Williams has averaged 20 points, nine rebounds and 3.4 blocks. Against West Virginia last week, Williams collected a career-high 17 rebounds and scored 23 points. Against Duquesene, Williams again checked in with 23 points, hitting 10 of 11 shots from the floor.

Game Notes The game will be broadcast on WMUA 91.1 and WHMP 99.3 FM. . .Rafer Giles has shot 5 for 26 and has averaged four points a game at the Coliseum in his career. . .Three Minutemen have been named A-10 Player of the Week this season: Barbee (12/11), Jim McCoy (1/13) and Williams, who received the honor this week.



American Express Announces A Great New Travel Program.

Now students can get the Card and get 3 roundtrips on Continental Airlines, for only $129 or $189 each.

There's only one way to cover a lot of territory without spending a lot of money. And that's by getting the American Express® Card. It's the only card that offers an exciting new travel program exclusively for students—including three roundtrip certificates on Continental Airlines.

Just look at the map and pick the place you'd like to visit. If it's on your side of the Mississippi River, you can use a certificate to fly for only $129 roundtrip. Or, you can cross the Mississippi for $189 roundtrip.

You have your pick of more than 150 cities in the 48 contiguous states. And you can fly almost anytime—because there are no blackout dates. But you must make your reservations within 14 days of the day you leave. And the maximum stay is 7 days/6 nights and must include a Saturday night.

In addition to this great travel program, you'll also enjoy all the benefits of Cardmembership as well as other exclusive student privileges. They include a quarterly magazine filled with informative articles on summer jobs, careers, campus life. Plus valuable discounts from leading retailers.

But remember, there's only one way to get all this—and that's by getting the American Express Card. Just call us (have your bank address and account number on hand). What's more, with our special student offer, it's easier to get the Card now while you're still in school than it may ever be again.

So get the Card. And get ready to cover new territory on either side of our Great Continental Divide.

Membership Has Its Privileges®

CALL 1-800-942-AMEX

If you're already a Cardmember there's no need to call. Information about your certificates will be arriving soon.

TRAVEL RELATED SERVICES An American Express company

CONTINENTAL

Complete terms and conditions of this travel offer will arrive with your certificates. Continental Airlines alone is responsible for fulfillment of this offer. American Express assumes no liability for Continental Airlines' performance. © 1991 American Express Travel Related Services Company, Inc.

SPRING BREAK TRAVEL FAIR

Campus Travel

free REGGAE CONCERT the EQUALITES

10 am- 4 pm THURSDAY FEBRUARY 14
STUDENT UNION BALLROOM
sponsored by TRAVEL & TOURISM RESEARCH ASSOCIATION and CAMPUS TRAVEL CENTER

■ men's gymnastics

CONTINUED FROM PAGE 20

"We rested a couple of people for Southern Conn., so we will be ready," he said. Southern Conn., averages 250.55 points per meet. However, this does not worry Johnson as the Minutemen average 256 points per meet.

"The key event will be the pommel horse," he said. "We have the capability of [scoring] 44 on it, so it should be close."

UMass lacks the number of meets necessary to be considered for national ranking, Johnson explained.

He said individual scores are more evenly spread throughout his team because he has a larger squad than most of his competitors.

"The trade off is that you don't get your highest score but the guys don't give up," he said. "And with 12 men, you have outstanding competition.

"The rankings are compiled for teams competing with nine gymnasts. We usually use 12, so that's another reason we aren't ranked," Johnson continued. "We'd be ahead of Southern Conn., because our [team] scores are higher."

Collegian photo by Carrie Wyeth

Junior Will Herndon (34) takes a shot against Rhode Island as sophomore Harper Williams (31), freshman Damont Collins (30) and sophomore Carlos Easterling (12) look on.

CLASSIFIEDS

COME TO THE COLLEGIAN OFFICE—CC 113 MON — THURS 8:30-3:30 ● DEADLINE 2 DAYS PRIOR TO PUBLICATION ● CASH IN ADVANCE, 20¢/WORD/DAY FOR STUDENTS

ACTIVITIES

ARE YOU INTERESTED in sitting on a university-wide committee? Get involved. Call SGA president at 545-0341. Leave your name, number.

UMASS CHESS CLUB
7:11pm in the Bluewall
All are welcome

UPC MEETING THIS Tuesday and every Tuesday! This weeks meeting in 904CC 6:30. Get involved in concert production. Call 545-2698!

ANNOUNCEMENTS

BED AND BREAKFAST- downtown ideal for visiting parents and friends- 549-0733

CARIBBEAN- $189! The warmth of the Caribbean or Mexican coast for a week. R/T Air Sunfun's e.n. 212-864-2000.

DELTA UPSILON WELCOMES all university men to open rush. Dates to remember: FEB 11,12,14,18,19,21

DON'T MISS JUDITH BLACK one of New Englands foremost storytellers tomorrow night -Hillel House 8:00- Bagels served 7:00-7:30 FREE

DRUM-award winning Black Arts and Literature magazine-now accepting submissions. 115 NAH

EARN AS MUCH as $1000 organizing white water rafting trips in Maine and New York for Unicorn Expeditions. You bring the people and we take care of everything else. Call 1-800-Unicorn for details

THE INDEX YEARBOOK is having a general meeting tonight in room 805 Campus Center at 8:30PM. All invited 545-0848

YOU OUGHTA BE A DIRECTOR. UMTG'S production of Ten Little Indians. Application deadline Feb 25. Call Guild office 545-0415 NOW!

AUDIO/STEREO/VIDEO

USED STEREO components/vcr's/color tv's. We buy, sell & trade quality equipment all price ranges. Detailed list (60 + items) S/A/V exchange (anytime) 256-0941

AUTO FOR SALE

1984 PLYMOUTH CONQUEST
Black 5-speed
Sunroof, Alpine stereo
Asking $3700
Call 253-0861

1986 ENCORE
Excellent condition
$2500 253-2858

1989 HONDA ACCORD immaculate condition, 1 owner, AM/FM cassette, 2 door coupe, only 9,200 miles, must see, $9500 or best offer, call Bruce at 256-1215 after 6 PM

ESTABLISH CREDIT

DISCOVER CARDS
No cost to apply.
Call Mark 546-4814
Leave message

FOR RENT

AMHERST, 1 BEDROOM AVAILABLE IN 3 BEDROOM, NEW HOUSE ON BUS LINE. FIREPLACE. BEAUTIFUL!! AVAILABLE NOW CALL 8-4, 665-3326

DOUBLE BEDROOM IN 3 bedroom Pelham, 340 couple or 255 single, negotiable + utilities. Non-smoking. Adam or Lisa 549-0506

FRIDGE RENTALS CALL R + P 253-9742

LARGE ROOM IN 2 BEDROOM TOWNHOUSE. GREAT PLACE TO LIVE. ON BUS ROUTE. CLOSE TO CAMPUS. CALL 253-4031 LEAVE MESSAGE

SHARE NICE HOUSE 3 miles from campus, 4 acres in backyard, 230 plus utilities, call Debbie 253-5361, evenings

SHARE LARGE MODERN Amherst house on bus route with other students. Own room. $290/month 1st month's rent FREE! 549-0182

WINTER SPECIAL: 1 month rent 99 cents with one year lease
2 bedroom- $450
3 bedroom- $537
Sunderland. Free bus route, laundry facilities, swimming pool, garden plots, short term lease available 665-3856

FOR SALE

AEROSMITH BACKSTAGE PASSES tour 1991. Call for details 546-2396. Reasonable prices

CHEAP! New futon double frame
Trifold/sash $60/B.O. 253-7416

FAX-SHARP UX 100 - 6 months old, hardly used-asking $450. Call 1-467-3465 after 5

GREAT VALENTINE'S DAY GIFT
UMASS glow in the dark boxers
Delivered with your personal note
Only $10!
Call 546-0424 for details

HUGABLE, LOVABLE, HANDMADE teddy bears. Perfect for Valentine's Day! Ask for Suzan 546-6481

IBM COMPUTER, hard drive, graphics card, with printer. $800. 253-5734

NEED A COMPUTER? I sell PC's and Mac's very competitive prices, service and individual attention. Call Dana 546-3933

SKIS/BOOTS
Lacroix skis with bindings-180's
Lange boots and Lange heated boots
Very reasonable!
549-9932

SMITH CORONA XL2500. 1 year old Spell checker. Corrects mistakes. With instructions. $150 or B.O. Call 6-0733

SONY COLOR TV 27" - life time warranty service from dorr. 5 mos. one-year old, ex. condition $600 neg. Call Ahmed 253-5837

HELP WANTED

APPLY NOW TO be a tour guide, summer counselor, student admissions representative. Applications available on concourse

ARE YOUR JOB prospects limited? Need a secondary income? This business opportunity may be for you. Call (1800) 236-5025 EXT 16075--

ASSEMBLERS- EXCELLENT INCOME to assemble products from your home 508-646-1700 Dept. p1307

CAMP COUNSELORS NEEDED for co-ed, sports oriented camp located in northeastern Pa. near New York City. We have openings for general counselors as well as specialists in both land and water sports. Specialty areas include: baseball, tennis, basketball, soccer, lacrosse, hockey, waterskiing, sailing, scuba, WSI, canoeing, windsurfing, gymnastics, archery, fencing, arts & crafts, piano accompanist, drama, radio and rocketry. Pioneering staff needed for both land and canoe trips and for our ropes challenge course. Other openings may be available. Salaries $100-200 per week plus room, board, and travel. We will be conducting on-campus interviews on March 5th. For information call or write: G. Lustig, 80 W. 66th St., 26A, New York, N.Y. 10023, tel. 212-724-0113

EARN $300 to $500 per week reading books at home. Call 1-615-473-7440 EXT B-281

INTELLIGENCE JOBS. All branches. US Customs, DEA, ect. Now hiring. Call 1-805-962-8000 Ext. K-9616

NEWSPAPER DELIVERERS NEEDED in UMASS dorms. No car required. 7-8am 7 days/week. Call 253-7009

$$$ OPPORTUNITY OF a lifatime $$$ Own your own business. Set your own hours. Work while in school. Interested, call 546-7489

SMALL VERMONT CAMP for girls, seeks committed counselors in: horsemanship, wilderness trips, water sports, photography /video, and more. Sherry Osborn, Camp Calhennie, Cassper 25 Shawmut Ave., Apt UM Wayland, MA 01778 (508)650-1866

INSTRUCTION

EARN CREDIT learn to Scuba Dive. Basic Classes held Monday, Tuesday, Wednesday, and Thursday 7-10PM in Curry Hicks Pool. Open Water II class held during Spring Break in Key Largo, FLA. Advanced Class held in New England in April. For further inlormtion call 549-8401, or drop by Curry Hicks starting 2/4/91.

GUITAR LESSONS with Doug Hewitt. Rock, Blues, Folk, Acoustic or Electric Improv., Theory, Reading, Songwriting, many new songs -plus singing. Studio on 3 bus lines. 549-1938.

HOW TO REALLY READ

(At the College Level!)
3 wk crash course. 6 2hr. sessions
From an English Professor
$84. Call 549-6774

IT'S HERE!

TONIGHT- PUT YOUR 4 or more years of education to good use. Help plan the 1991 senior bash. Great resume experience. Fun! Meeting tonight Feb. 12 at 7pm in CC rm 168 or stop by table on concourse. Call 545-2317 for info!

KNOW YOUR RIGHTS!

DO YOU HAVE questions about your rights? Do you think your civil rights have been violated? Find out! Contact the legal services center, 922 Campus Center. 545-1995

LOST

GLASSES IN A TOUGH BROWN CASE. $15, CALL G. 546-5776

GLASSES SILVER FRAMED in black leather case. Steve 546-3929

GOLD BRAIDED BRACELET very sentimental! Reward call 546-4912

PERSONALS

ANYONE WHO SAW the car accident on Mass Ave. last Friday (2/2) at 9pm, please contact Carolyn at 549-6460 with any information.

ESBITT
- The conditioner is under the sink
Love, Jill

LAUREN DECHAYNE- HAPPY 20th BIRTHDAY!! May all of your days be filled with happy memories and lots of cheerful ducks! Have a great day!! Love, "US"

LAUREN- "I know you by heart." A wish for you, my best friend- May all of your birthday dreams come true. Happy 20th- Love Always, Tina

LAUREN- Thanks for being there! Have the BEST birthday. I love you! - CHRIS

LAUREN - You're 20 years old and the PEN IS blue!! HAPPY BIRTHDAY!! Love, Sandy, Jill and Tina

MICHELLE HOYLE- Happy 21st birthday and congratulations on becoming the sixth member of the LH Club
Love, JJMMK

RESUME SERVICE

PERSONALIZED CONSULTATION, or laser printing of your original. 549-0367

RIDE WANTED

WE NEED A ride to Penn State and back on the long weekend, Feb. 15-18. We will pay for the gas. Please call ASAP. Pat 546-6110. Thanx!

ROOMMATE WANTED

$125 MO. Male pref. Call 256-1859. Brittany Manor across from bus-stop

MALE ROOMATE WANTED to share furnished Brody Wn apartment $179/mo heat included. Willing to negotiate price. Call 15945591

ROSES ROSES ROSES

ROSES ROSES ROSES Deliveries available see Chris- Campus Center Concourse

SERVICES

DISCOVER CARDS
No cost to apply
Call Rob 546-1696
Leave message

PREGNANT?
Need a pregnancy test, information or support? Call for free and confidential services. ALTERNATIVES 33 Main Street Northampton 586-3000 or Greenfield 774-6010

SINGING VALENTINES

DELIVERED: CLASSES, DORMS, FRATS
INEXPENSIVE
PROFESSIONAL
546-2263

SPRING BREAK

SPRING BREAK PARTY!
Travel to Jamacia, Mexico! And Panama City Fl.! Concerts! Free Parties! Club discounts! And lots more! For info call Denise 546-7156

TRAVEL FAIR. Feb. 14. Student Union sponsored by TTRA and Campus Travel (on camping) 545-0500. Music. prizes!

TRAVEL

CAN'T AFFORD SPRING BREAK? GUARANTEED GREAT PRICES with top collegiate company! Space available to Jamaica, Cancun, Acapulco and Panama City Beach Florida (the "new Daytona Beach")! MC/VISA ARE ACCEPTED! Call Cindy at 549-3538 please leave message!

CLUB MED
Enjoy your spring break!!
Added value with each booking.
Call Rendezvous Travel 1-800-336-1002

* * * * * *

FLORIDA'S NEWEST
HOT SPOT
Panama City-$139
* * * * * *
World's Biggest Beach
PARTY
Daytona Beach-$189
Call Erika + Julie at 546-2649
or Siobhan + Terri at 546-5079

HEY-THERE'S ONLY 30 days left till spring break book your trip to Cancun with College Tours now. Come see us Feb. 14 in the S.U.B. For further info. call Kathy & Jean 253-5140

SPRING BREAK TO DAYTONA!
Travel with Yankee Line Tours via deluxe motorcoach March 15-24, 1991
- Campus pick-up & drop-off!
- First class hotel accommodations!
- Best location, excellent night life!
- Only $259.00 (Quad Occ)

For more info contact Scott (413) 256-0029
Reserve your spot before it's too late!

WAKE-N-BAKE!!! Spring Break '91!! Jamaica/Cancun from $499.00!! A week of fun and sun!! The hottest destination!! 1-800-426-7710

* * * * * *

VALENTINE'S GIFT

SEND BOSTON'S BEST COOKIES to your Valentine ANYWHERE in the U.S. or have delivered on campus-Call 1-800-787-2665. Also look for table on concourse. As low as $9.99

SPORTS

Men's hoop hits road against WVU

By SAM SILVERSTEIN
Collegian Staff

The University of Massachusetts men's basketball team will try to halt a two-game slide tonight in Morgantown, W.Va., with its second game in six days against the West Virginia Mountaineers (Tipoff is 7:30 p.m.).

It won't be easy. The Mountaineers, 12-9 overall and fourth in the Atlantic 10 at 7-5, have won 10 of 11 games played on their home floor this season. West Virginia holds a 14-0 mark against UMass at the Coliseum, dating back to the first meeting between the two teams in 1972.

Ravenous fans support Mountaineer basketball and veteran coach Gale Catlett; more than 8,000 are expected tonight.

UMass faced West Virginia last Wednesday night in the Cage, and lost 85-82 in overtime. Freshman Pervires Greene scored 22 points and senior forward Chris Brooks had 21, including seven of WVA's 14 points in overtime, and grabbed 11 rebounds.

West Virginia took Temple into overtime Sunday afternoon in Philadelphia before falling short, 88-78. The Owls hit 16 of 37 3-pointers and guard Vic Carstarphen scored 25 points.

The Minutemen saw a seven point lead slip away in dropping a 68-67 decision to Duquesne Saturday in Pittsburgh, as John Tate, Will Herndon and Harper Williams fouled out down the stretch.

CONTINUED ON PAGE 18

Atlantic 10 Standings

	Overall	A-10
Temple	16-6	10-3
Rutgers	15-7	10-3
Penn State	15-7	8-5
West Virginia	12-9	7-5
George Washington	14-8	8-6
Duquesne	9-12	7-6
Massachusetts	14-8	7-6
St. Joseph's	8-14	5-9
Rhode Island	9-13	5-9
St. Bonaventure	4-19	0-15

Men's gymnastics pummels MIT

By MICHAEL MORRISSEY
Collegian Correspondent

Competing with only half of their normal team, the University of Massachusetts men's gymnastics team still had more than enough energy to soundly defeat the Massachusetts Institute of Technology, 222.8-143.1 Saturday.

Only six Minutemen (2-1) competed capturing five of the six events. Sophomore Steve Christensen, returning after a brief illness, showed a "gutsy" performance in the all-around, according to UMass coach Roy Johnson.

UMass swept the all-arounds,with sophomore Rob Thomas taking first with a score of 47.55. Freshman Jason Braud (43.25), freshman Joe Haran (42.45) and Christensen (41.45) placed second through fourth, respectively.

Johnson said he was also impressed with the performance of Thomas, who showed a lot of promise on the pommel horse and parallel bars. Haran took first in the floor (9.0) and junior William Sayman placed third on the horse (7.65).

Senior Andy Sullivan placed first (8.75) in the still rings but MIT took the event, capturing the remaining places to win. Johnson said the results were misleading.

"We might have easily won, but we scratched a couple of guys with sore shoulders, Christensen and Haran, to rest them for Southern Connecticut," he said. "[Senior Mitch] Hall, our co-captain, sat out because of LSATs, and a couple of kids were sick."

The presence of many enthusiastic family and friends from the nearby Boston hometowns of the gymnasts helped the team. The UMass fans spoiled whatever home-gym advantage MIT may have had.

"The stands were about half-filled with UMass fans, and half MIT," Johnson said. "We have a pretty good following of fans."

Tonight the Minutemen travel to New Haven, Conn., to take on nationally-ranked Southern Connecticut (No. 14).

Shawn Simpson, ranked ninth in the nation for floor competition, leads Southern Conn., averaging a score of 9.62 per meet.

CONTINUED ON PAGE 19

Collegian file photo

Senior Andy Sullivan placed first in still rings for the men's gymnastics team, but MIT swept the event this weekend. The men are 3-1 and face Southern Connecticut tonight at 7 in Boyden.

Female skiers lead the pack

By GEOFF STOKES
Collegian Correspondent

The University of Massachusetts ski team had a very successful two days on the slopes in a meet hosted by Brown University at Loon Mt. in Lincoln, N.H., this weekend.

UMass ski coach Bill MacConnell said that he had anticipated poor conditions because of the recent warm weather, but was pleasantly surprised when the slopes were perfect for ski racing — hard, icy snow.

"The conditions were excellent and we took advantage of it," MacConnell said. "Both the men and women performed up to their capabilities and skied as well as they can ski."

Sophmore J.J. Tanguay won both the slalom and giant slalom events for the second time in as many weeks. Tanguay was untouchable in the slalom on Saturday, winning the event in 1 minute, 18.45 seconds, a full two seconds ahead of the second place time of 1:20.54 put up by Boston College's Kristen Mahill.

UMass won the event handily with six skiers finishing in the top 14. Junior Marci Blacker (5th), junior Jan Egan (10th), sophmore Dana Bresalou (11th), senior Marti Gilbert (13th) and freshman Beth Martin (14th) each placed. With a combined time of 2:45.98, UMass outdistanced second place Plymouth State (2:53.59) and BC (2:54.82).

Another victory by Tanguay in the giant slalom helped the women's team complete their sweep, taking the event Sunday with a combined time of 2:29.53.

For UMass, Blacker again finished fifth followed by sophmore Debbie Adams (12th) and Gilbert (13th).

According to MacConnell, the women's victories in both events brought them

CONTINUED ON PAGE 18

Collegian photo by Carrie Wyeth

Sophomore Dana Breslau placed 11th in the slalom, and the team swept the event. UMass competed against skiers from 10 other schools at Loon Mt. in New Hampshire this weekend.

Wildcats outlast women's track

By DAN WETZEL
Collegian Staff

The injury bug hit the University of Massachusetts women's track team hard this weekend. And it cost UMass two contests, to New Hampshire and Rhode Island.

"I knew that Rhode Island would be tough but I was certain we could beat UNH," said UMass coach Julie LaFreniere. "However, with the injuries we just couldn't compete."

UMass (11-2) was already without star Becky Johnson (virus) also had to go without Lennice Johnson (tendinitis) and Tana Henderson (flu).

"Losing both Johnsons is too much for our team to handle," LaFreniere said. "We are talking about a lot of [meet] points between them. We don't have the depth to be able to lose top performers."

URI (62) won followed by UNH (47) and then UMass (35). Even though they lost, LaFreniere was pleased with some performances.

Diane Ozzolek set a new school record in the 20-pound weight by throwing it 45 feet, 10 inches. Ozzolek placed third in the event and also qualified for the Eastern Collegiate Athletic Conference Championship Meet.

"Each weekend she is getting better and feeling more comfortable," LaFreniere said. "She will just keep improving."

Another thrower who performed well was Samone Marisseau, who qualified for ECAC's in the shot put. Marisseau threw 41-7 1/2, a personal best, and placed third in the contest.

Lee Ann Ambrose once again lead the runners by setting two facility records on the way to winning both events. Ambrose won the 200-meter run in a time of 25.5 seconds and shattered the record in the 600-yard in 1:22.5. The former record was 1:28.4.

Cathy Crocker came in fourth for UMass in the 600 and qualified for the New England Championship Meet by finishing in 1:29.7.

Kelly Liljeblad was also a double winner. Liljeblad took firsts in the mile (5:08.5) and the 1,000-yard (2:40.4). Michelle St. Laurent finished second in the 1,000 (2:43) and, along with Liljeblad, qualified for the New Englands.

Gymnasts bow to Towson

By LYNN FRANKEL
Collegian Correspondent

It was a tough weekend for the University of Massachusetts women's gymnastics team, as Towson State handed the gymnasts their first loss of the season.

The Minutewomen weren't able to make up for mistakes made early in the meet and lost 187.25-182.

Head coach Alfie Mitchell said he was not pleased with the way the his team performed. He cited the lack of concentration and level of intensity. Mitchell said the women did not capitalize on the great scoring opportunity presented to them this weekend.

Towson swept the bar competition, taking the top six spots.

Tammy Marshall led the Minutewomen, placing in two events as well as placing second in the all-around. She won the vault with a score of 9.6 points and placed second in floor competition with a 9.55.

In her first collegiate meet on the road, freshman Margaret Furtado, placed third on the balance beam (9.1) as well as scored an impressive 36.7 in the all-around, placing fourth.

Mitchell said he was also pleased with the personal bests from some of his other freshmen. Erica Finkelman did extremely well on the floor exercise 9.11 and the vault 9.15. Abby May placed second on the balance beam with a score of 9.3.

The Minutewomen (3-1) will take on Bridgeport at 7 p.m., Wednesday, in Boyden. Mitchell said the caliber of the Bridgeport team is not the same as previous years, but is not taking the meet lightly.

He said he looks forward to a win and hopes to instill more confidence in his team. He said he expects the Minutewomen to stick their routines and be more self-assured Wednesday.

Largest College Daily in New England

THE MASSACHUSETTS DAILY COLLEGIAN Established in 1890

VOLUME C WEDNESDAY, FEBRUARY 13, 1991 ISSUE 81

Chancellor of Board of Regents resigns

By MARK HENSLEY
Collegian Staff

With impending cuts facing an already financially-strapped higher education budget, Chancellor of the Board of Regents of Higher Education Randolph Bromery Monday announced his resignation citing "philosophical disagreements" with Gov. Weld's proposals to restructure the higher education system.

Terry Zoulas, spokesperson for the Board of Regents, said after working for 25 years to build the present structure in higher education, Bromery did not want to be around to see it dismantled by the current administration.

Bromery's resignation comes just weeks after Weld released a proposal to eliminate the Board of Regents and Board of Education and replace them with an appointed secretary of education.

Bromery, who currently heads the state's 29 campuses, also disagrees with Weld's proposal to increase tuition by up to 33 percent as well as transform the $55 million scholarship fund into a loan fund. According to Zoulas, Bromery believes both of these measures will restrict students of lower-income families from higher education.

Bromery, who assumed the chancellorship on April 1, 1990, will leave his post no later than March 31, Zoulas said.

Bromery has also announced that he will not apply for secretary of education if the position is approved by the Legislature.

Zoulas said that an interim-chancellor would probably be chosen from among the Board of Regents staff although it all depends on whether or not the Legislature accepts Weld's proposal.

According to Zoulas, Bromery plans to return to UMass-Amherst where he hopes to resume teaching geology and geophysics while becoming a consultant for Weld.

President-Chancellor Duffey yesterday expressed his regret at Bromery's decision.

"I am sorry he is stepping down for he brought stability and strong leadership to the Board of Regents," Duffey said. "But, I'm glad he's coming back to the campus. He will be working with us on campus on proposals addressing how to deal with the problems facing higher education."

Duffey said Bromery was stepping down because of a "difference in perspective" with Weld regarding higher education, adding that there was no animosity between Bromery and Weld.

"The Governor has a lot of respect for Randolph and I'm sure he is sorry to see him step down," Duffey said.

Zoulas said Bromery has expressed a desire to return to teaching before he retires.

"[Bromery] is 65 now and is pretty much at the end of his career but he has always said that he would like to teach for a couple of years before he retires," he said.

Among other posts held during his career in Massachusetts higher education, Bromery performed as chancellor of the UMass-Amherst campus from 1972-1979 and senior vice-president for the office of the President at the University from 1977-1979.

From 1967 to 1979, he headed and taught in the University's geophysics department while concurrently serving as a geophysical consultant to several Massachusetts firms.

Photo courtesy of the UMass press office

Chancellor of Board of Regents Randolph Bromery

Administration takes control of SGA, BOG

By GAYLE LONG
Collegian Staff

Citing the current "unjust structure" of the Student Government Association, University administrators yesterday suspended all powers of the Student Government Association, Board of Governors, Area Governments and House Councils.

Provost Richard O'Brien, Vice-Chancellor for Student Affairs Dennis Madson and Vice Chancellor for Administration and Finance Paul Page, said in a statement the administration would suspend SGA powers as part of the restructuring of student government.

"The campus administration has long supported the relatively autonomous functioning of the Student Government Association," the letter stated. "Nonetheless, we have become critically aware that this autonomy has had the unanticipated effect of isolating student government in a way that has hampered student access to campus decision-making and policy development."

The request for this action came on January 30, 1991, after five members of the SGA leadership asked the administration to take control in a reorganization effort for the entire student government system.

Student Trustee Angus McQuilken, one of the leaders asking for the suspension of the SGA, said, "This isn't exactly what we asked for. It's better in regards to the Commission, but we need average students to get involved."

The administration's statement called for the forming of a Commission on Student Governance, which would consist of present SGA leaders, administrators from the Student Activities Office, representative administrators from other departments, as well as faculty and six students.

The Commission has been charged by the administration with forming a new structure for student government before May 1. In May, undergraduates will vote on a referendum question based on the new governmental structure developed by the Commission.

During the period between February 12 and May 1, however, the administration has imposed the following:

- No new Registered Student Organizations will be registered until September 1991.
- All RSOs, governmental bodies and agencies of the student government will be given the same funding allotted for various groups in Fiscal Year 1991 will be given in FY92.
- House Councils and Area Governments, including Greek and Commuter, will implement spring programming as scheduled.
- Space allocation, a function of the

CONTINUED ON PAGE 6

Career center picketed

Companies' involvement in war protested

By TAMIR LIPTON
Collegian Staff

Some 20 members of the Anti-War coalition at the University of Massachusetts picketed in front of the Mather Career Center in Fraternity/Sorority Park yesterday protesting the student recruitment efforts by the Raytheon and United Technologies corporations.

Once the picketing began, University officials moved the recruitment off campus to an undisclosed location, according to Marc Kenen of the Graduate Student Senate.

"We did not have any intention of preventing students from recruiting with these companies," Kenen said. "We wanted to raise public awareness of how much these companies are profiting from the war."

Raytheon is the manufacturer of the Patriot, Hawk, Sparrow and Sidewinder missiles and is heavily involved in production of the Phoenix, Stinger and Maverick missiles. These missiles, most notably the Patriot missile which has been responsible for shooting down several Iraqi Scud missiles aimed at Israel and Saudi Arabia, have been in frequent use during the Persian Gulf war.

According to the Wall Street Journal, Raytheon's stock rose 10 percent in value from Jan. 14 to Feb. 5.

United Technologies, which makes the F-100, J-52 and TF-30 aircraft engines as well as the Blackhawk, Seahawk and Sea Stallion helicopters, is a subcontractor for the Tomahawk Cruise missiles which have been used in the allied bombardment of Baghdad.

Neither company will attend today's Career Fair due to the fear of protest, according to Joan Stoia, director of Mather Career Center.

Edward Corrigan, chairman of Young Americans For Freedom and the editor of the Minuteman, said, "I think it's unfortunate when people in an academic environment who want to further their careers have this opportunity taken away from them by these radicals."

Kenen said, "To us, it's no coincidence that this war happened since many of these companies were suffering from defense cuts. We would like to see money spent on education, health care, food and nutrition [instead of arms]."

More protesting is scheduled for today at noon at the Campus Center Concourse at the Career Fair. The protesting will be aimed at the recruitment by the Exxon, Mobil, GTE and Lincoln Labs.

Iraqi convoy, missile launchers bombed

DHARAN, Saudi Arabia (AP) — American warplanes blasted an Iraqi convoy in central Kuwait overnight, and pilots on "Scud patrol" claimed possible hits on four Iraqi missile launchers, U.S. military officials said yesterday.

The Baghdad government had its own claims: that civilian targets including a maternity hospital and nursery were hit in the latest round of allied raids.

In an unusual step, Iraq also disclosed nearly 100 air raids on military targets in southern Iraq and Kuwait. Normally, such attacks are not mentioned in the military communiques read on Baghdad radio.

Allied bombing missions have been zeroing in on Iraqi ground forces and their supply routes, and the hardships of war are apparently driving more and more seasoned Iraqi troops to desert.

Yesterday, seven Iraqi soldiers surrendered to an Egyptian armored division after crossing the border from Kuwait and braving a journey through their own minefields.

"Fighting, fighting, fighting and for what? Nothing," said one. In their overnight forays, U.S. pilots reported seeing what appeared to be a Scud blowing up on launch. The raids came as Iraq lobbed more of the rockets at Israel and Saudi Arabia, causing damage and injuries in both countries.

With clear weather as an ally, the coalition's stepped-up air war caused a skyborne traffic jam on Monday. "It's like a freeway," one U.S. officer said as U.S. pilots all but competed for targets.

Yesterday, low cloud cover hung over northern Saudi Arabia, but bomb-laden Saudi Tornado air-to-ground-fighters took off into the hazy skies, heading north to Iraq and occupied Kuwait.

With much of his country in ruins, Saddam Hussein met with his inner circle for a second time since Sunday. Ira-

CONTINUED ON PAGE 6

INSIDE:

WEDNESDAY, FEBRUARY 13, 1991

Page 3: Administrators call elimination of LGBA seats 'homophobic.'
Page 5: A rape survior talks about the far-reaching effects of rape.
Page 12: Men's hoop crushes W. Virginia 98-89.

WEATHER

What greenhouse effect!
Bundle up today — temps in the 20s, possible snow tonight.

THE MASSACHUSETTS
DAILY COLLEGIAN

New England's largest college daily newspaper. Circulation: 19,000. Published every weekday during the calendar semester. The Massachusetts Daily Collegian is a Registered Student Organization of the University of Massachusetts.

113 Campus Center, Amherst, MA. 01003
Phone (413) 545-3500 FAX (413) 545-1592

STAFF

Editor in Chief ..... Terri Stanmer
Managing Editor ..... Josh Gabin
Editorial Editor ..... Jeremy Levinson
News Editor ..... Gayle Long
Sports Editor ..... Adnen Matt
Arts Editor ..... Danielle Dowling
Photography Editor ..... K.A. Burke
Black Affairs Editor ..... Sondra Sutton
Women's Issues Editors ..... Rua Kelly, Monique Tabon
Multicultural Affairs Editor ..... Alexander Nguyen
Third World Affairs Editor ..... Pramp Dastidar
Lesbian, Bisexual, Gay Issues Editor ..... Trystan Skeigh
Business Manager ..... Susan George
Advertising Manager ..... Dave Kellnick
Finance Manager ..... Beth Patterson
Circulation Manager ..... Jim Winterbottom
Subscriptions Manager ..... Stacy Rogers
Promotions Manager ..... Marc Pruskin
Production Manager ..... Nicole Dumas
Day Graphics Manager ..... Jenn Burns

PROFESSIONAL STAFF

Business ..... Brian Harrington, Lori Black, Maureen Majerowski
Graphics ..... Ron Evans

TODAY'S STAFF

Night Editor ..... Meredith O'Brien
Copy Editor ..... Pamela McCarthy
Layout Technician ..... Mike Carvalho
Photo Technician ..... K.A. Burke
Production Supervisor ..... Mike Carvalho
Typesetter ..... Danielle Dowling
Production ..... Mark Sturm, Tracey Richman

GLOBAL TICKET EXCHANGE
(413) 747-9922
NEIL YOUNG 2/19 Hartford
HALL & OATES 2/16 Spfld
STING 2/8 Hartford
LIVING COLOR 2/16
INXS 2/26 Hartford
VANILLA ICE New Haven & Spfld.
PAUL SIMON Hartford
RED SOX — BRUINS — WHALERS & CELTIC tickets.
All concerts — sports & theater tickets
1605 Main St. Springfield • (413) 747-9922
SR25-1005

Want your dorm to show its true colors?
WELL GET BUSY
AND RUSH ON DOWN TO KENNEDY
SCREEN GRAPHICS
16 Armory Street
Northampton MA 01060
584-2124

SURPRISE YOUR Valentine
Find the finest in our two beautiful Galleries...
silverscape designs
264 N. Pleasant St. Amherst 253-3324
177 Main St. Northampton 584-3324
GOLDSMITHS • GEM GALLERY

DRIVIN·N·CRYIN
FLY ME COURAGEOUS
Now on sale at
FOR THE RECORD
$10.99 CD
$ 6.99 CT
Meet Drivin' N' Cryin'
In Person At
FOR THE RECORD
159 N. Pleasant St., Amherst
Thursday, February 14th
3 p.m.–4 p.m.
See Drivin' N' Cryin'
Live at Pearl St.,
Northampton
Thursday Night, Feb 14
ISLAND

Sweeties
FINE CHOCOLATES AND CONFECTIONS
CHOCOLATE HEARTS
63 North Pleasant St
Amherst (413) 253-5589
68 Main St
Northampton (413) 586-4180

ROLL UPS
SANDWICH SHOP
331 Russell St., Rt. 9, Hadley
(next to Dunkin' Donuts)
Grand Opening Specials
Over 25 sandwiches all under $3.99 such as...
• Philly Roast Beef
• Veggie Delight w/ avacado
• Tuna/Hold the Line
• Wrangler
AND MORE...
FREE SANDWICH
Buy One Get One Free!
(Lower priced sandwich is free)
One coupon per person per order
Not valid between 12:30-2:00 daily
exp.2-28-91
OPEN 7 DAYS A WEEK
586-8255

Legal Problems?
Call UMass Student Legal Services!
Housing • Family • Student Rights
Civil Rights • Workers Rights
Criminal • Consumer Law
Military and Draft Law
922 Campus Center 545-1995

STUDENT COMMENCEMENT SPEAKER

Proposals are solicited for consideration as Student Commencement Speaker

Eligibility: Graduating University senior

Format: 3-4 "typed" pages, double-spaced (equivalent of 3-4 minutes speaking time); original and one copy.

Include your name, local address and telephone number on a separate, attached cover sheet.

Subject matter: The text should concern education and be relevant to the University and your experience(s) here.

Selection process: Entries will be reviewed by the Student Commencement Speaker Selection Committee, which consists of students, staff, and faculty. (Author's name will be removed before being given to the committee to ensure objectivity.)

Ratings will be assigned and selected authors will be invited to "audition" before the committee. The committee will make the final selection.

Deadline: Thursday, February 21, 1991, not later than 4:30pm

Submit proposals to: Paul R. Appleby, Director, Disability Services, 231 Whitmore (545-0892)

LOCAL

MassPIRG gets ready for the upcoming semester

Collegian photo by K.A. Burke

Bethany Coleman, chairperson of the Recycling Committee, speaks at last night's MassPIRG meeting.

By MARK PRESTON
Collegian Correspondent

Nearly 100 students at the University of Massachusetts helped kick off MassPIRG's latest round of statewide campaigns aimed at promoting energy efficiency and teaching local school children about environmental issues.

Jen Wood, chairperson of MassPIRG, said among the issues the group hopes to grapple with this semester, energy conservation, recycling, hunger and homelessness will be the primary targets.

Of these four issues, Wood said energy conservation and recycling are slated for aggressive statewide campaigns. She said MassPIRG also hopes to initiate a state recycling bill.

On the home front, she said the group will also go into local schools from surrounding communities to promote energy efficiency.

In order to reach these goals, Wood said MassPIRG needs endorsements and support from administrators and faculty at UMass, as well as from local businesses.

MassPIRG representatives plan to present the anticipated endorsements to state officials during the 1991 Student Action Conference planned for March 1-3 at UMass, said Janet Dominitz, executive director of MassPIRG.

Dan Jacobsen, campus coordinator for MassPIRG, said the group hopes to hold a "Day of Help" devoted to the campaign against homelessness and hunger, where organizers plan to help clean up area shelters, parks and "do something good for the community."

Jacobsen also said MassPIRG is working in conjunction with a nationwide student group organizing to combat hunger and homelessness for a "Hunger Clean-up Day" scheduled for April 13.

Last night was the group's first informational meeting of the spring semester. By handing out cards in lecture halls, MassPIRG organizers said they were able to contact about 4,000 students.

MassPIRG, a 19-year-old UMass public interest research group devoted to consumer and environmental concerns, is funded by the student body through a $4 waivable fee. The group has blossomed into 28 chapters located on college campuses across Massachusetts. The UMass-Amherst chapter serves as the flagship for the statewide student organization.

Within the last year and through the "hard work of students," Dominitz said MassPIRG was able to help pass the Clean Air Bill which regulates emissions produced by automobiles.

As a result of the bill, Massachusetts currently has the second toughest guidelines regarding automobile emissions standards, second only to that of California. MassPIRG also helped register 2,000 students to vote in November's state election.

Anyone interested in obtaining more information can contact the MassPIRG office at 545-0199.

BOG called homophobic

By TRYSTAN SKEIGH
Collegian Staff

Editor's note: this is the first of a three-part series

Many University of Massachusetts administrators said the Board of Governor's move to eliminate the Lesbian, Gay and Bisexual Alliance seats last semester was discriminatory and may violate the "Student Code of Conduct."

News Analysis

Last semester, furor erupted when the BOG voted 13-0-1 to eliminate the two appointed LBGA seats on the board. Many governors also claimed that all of the BOG's appointed seats were "illegal." Fifteen governors were absent when the vote took place during the last regular meeting of the semester in December.

Bill Harris, director of the Campus Center, for whom the BOG was created to advise, said he strongly disagrees with the removal of the LBGA seats, adding that lesbian, gay and bisexual students have a significant and legitimate interest in Campus Center affairs.

"The LBG students have meetings here every week, they have an office, and many special programs," Harris said. "They have a wide range of interests here."

Assistant Dean of Students Eileen Stewart said the BOG was not designed to be a democratic board. "It's an advisory board that depends on appointed seats. It's not a legislative body," Stewart said. "It's not illegal to have appointed seats."

Both Stewart and Harris said they believed homophobia was the real motive behind the elimination of the LBGA seats, adding that the vote to remove them was a discriminatory move against lesbian, gay, and bisexual students.

"By singling out one set of appointed seats, the vote targeted the specific group that had the seats and deprived them of something they had originally held," Stewart said. "The 'Student Code of Conduct' explicitly forbids discrimination based on sexual orientation." "I personally and administratively consider the BOG's actions illegitimate," Harris said. "I would urge the GLB governors to continue to come to the meetings and speak."

Harris said there are two reasons "why it's important" to have a mix of appointed and elected-at-large seats on the BOG.

"The appointed seats ensure that you reach the student constituency that uses your building and has important input," he continued. "The second reason is that you want to create a blend of students that will allow for an educational process to occur in the exchange."

During the same meeting where the LBGA seats were eliminated, the board also voted to add two appointed seats for the Stockbridge students.

"It was highly inconsistent of them to argue against appointed seats and then vote more in," Harris said. "It acts to unmask their real motives, which are highly suspect."

Whether or not the motion was legal under the rules of parliamentary procedure is irrelevent, according to Stewart.

"The effect of the vote is outright discrimination even if they did follow Robert's Rules of Order," Stewart said.

Governors Ed Corrigan and Ted Maravelias, co-sponsors of the motion to eliminate the LBGA seats, last semester argued that gays had no legitimate interests in the Campus Center.

During the debate to remove the seats, which occurred last October, Corrigan told the board, "The issue is why the gays need seats. . .There is no interest in this building for gays in particular."

Corrigan, meanwhile, defended the appointed seats for the Third World Caucus and Abilities Unlimited saying they "provide a special service and help students get involved."

Maravelias contended that all appointed seats were illegal, claiming that the elimination of the LBGA seats was "motivated by legal precedents."

He said the LBGA seats were the first step to eliminate all appointed seats.

During that same meeting, Maravelias also voted with the rest of the board to allow the Stockbridge students two appointed seat on to the BOG.

Collegian photo by Paul Langdon

CHOP! CHOP! CHOP! – A brave soul in the Campus Center Barber Shop has his hair cut between classes.

Correction

In yesterday's Collegian, we misidentified the Registered Student Organization University Video Channel. We apologize for any inconvenience.

Woman assaulted by ex-boyfriend

A woman in McNamara residence hall reported that her former boyfriend assaulted her with a dangerous weapon last Friday. She is seeking a restraining order.

In other events:

- A woman in Central Area reported receiving several telephone calls, one of which was of a threatening nature.
- A woman in Coolidge residence hall reported $15 in cash was stolen out of her open room.

— MARK HENSLEY

GOP gays form club

Say democrats don't represent gay people

BOSTON (AP) — Gay Republicans, trying to shun the notion that only the Democratic Party cares about homosexual concerns, yesterday announced the formation of the state Log Cabin Club, an organization dedicated to promoting gay GOP candidates and issues.

"We're tired of traditional Democratic approach to gay people, which has essentially been as a special interest group," said Patrick Ward, president of the organization's Massachusetts chapter.

The Log Cabin Club was formed in Los Angeles and San Francisco in 1977 in opposition to the Briggs Initiative, legislation that would have barred homosexuals from teaching in California's public schools. Since then, chapters have been formed in Texas, Illinois, Florida, New York and Washington D.C., Ward said.

Gay rights activists are pleased with Gov. William F. Weld 's and Lt. Gov. Paul Cellucci's commitment to their cause, Ward said. Boston University President and unsuccessful Democratic gubernatorial candidate John Silber was hostile toward homosexuals, he said But Ward and Michael T. Duffy a gay Republican who lost a state representative race last November, said the Log Cabin Club would have come to Massachusetts regardless of Silber and Weld.

"The problem in the gay community is its leaders have been Democrats, not Republicans," he said.

The Log Cabin Club will raise money and endorse GOP candidates who support gay and lesbian issues. The organization won't endorse a Democrat if there isn't an acceptable Republican candidate, Ward said.

Cellucci, who attended yesterday's news conference, said the gay Republican group was proof that the GOP isn't a bastion of white heterosexual men.

"The Massachusetts Republican Party is committed to attracting people to its ranks who are as diverse as the commonwealth itself," Cellucci said. "Gov. Weld and I are pleased to have the help of the Log Cabin Club to enhance this effort."

Last week Weld appointed Michael T. Duffy to the Massachusetts Commission Against Discrimination. Duffy, of Boston, lost a State house race last year to Rep. Byron Rushing (D-Boston).

RUSH PIKE

THE FRATERNITY WITH A COMMITMENT TO EXCELLENCE

Spring 1991 Open Rush

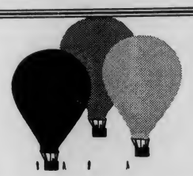
Feb 13, 14, 19, 20 8-10 p.m.
418 North Pleasant St., 549-4921

ALL UNIVERSITY MEN WELCOME

- LIFE LONG FRIENSHIPS
- STRONG ATHLETICS
  - OLYMPIC WEIGHT ROOM
- CONVENIENT LOCATION

- UNPARALLELED SOCIAL LIFE
- STRESSED ACADEMICS
  - Two Computers
  - Course Files
- EXCELLENT MEAL PLAN

ΠΚΑ
PI KAPPA ALPHA



CAREER FAIR TODAY

10:00 AM - 3:00 PM
CAMPUS CENTER AUDITORIUM

Over 70 employers including Bread & Circus, Worldteach, Springfield Public Schools and more - all waiting to meet you !

SPECIAL PREVIEW!!

University Computerized Alumni Network (UCAN) matching you with alumni for career advice !

AND AT 3:35 PM IN CAMPUS CENTER 165

CONFESSIONS OF A PROCRASTINATING SENIOR

Working alumni describe the dangers of 'blowing off ': career services in the senior year

Panelists:
Matthew Zieper, '90., AT & T
Nancy McParland, '90, Marriott
Bryan Grenon, '90, Arnold Advertising

THE MATHER CAREER CENTER
Where Careers Take Off!
Call 545-2224 for details

EDITORIAL/OPINION

The opinions on this page are those of the individual writer or cartoonist and do not necessarily reflect the views of the Collegian or the University unless otherwise noted.

Women victimized by rape while their attackers go free

I have a friend who was raped last February. The trial of the accused rapist was a few days ago. He got off, and it's not the first time he has been taken to court for rape. He has yet to be convicted.

I have watched my friend go through some incredible changes since she was raped. She is a warm, outgoing, loving person. When I first met her, I was drawn to her because she was like a young puppy. She was trusting, sure of herself and life, and full of fun. She didn't have any qualms about meeting life head-on.

Winona Little Robin

I've watched her change since the rape. She's no longer trusting; she has become cautious. She's withdrawn into a more secure lifestyle. She doesn't sparkle the way she used to. She doesn't revel in the joy of being young and alive. She's seen that life can bite, and through someone she knew and thought was okay, safe, trustworthy.

It has hurt to see someone I care about loose their innocence because someone violated their trust. I know how she feels. I was raped when I was 17 years old. It was my first, 'sexual,' encounter. (A mistaken assumption about rape is that it is all sexual. It's not, it's about power, domination, and humiliation.)

I was raised in a family that put a high premium on virginity. Love-making was something reserved for a special person with whom one wanted to make a life-long commitment. The first time was supposed to be a gift, a once-in-a-lifetime choice. I have always felt that I was robbed, not only of the right to make that choice, but of my validity as a human being.

When I was raped, there were very few options available to me. I didn't have counseling to help sort out my feelings. At that time, rape was something you hid. There was a pervasive attitude that if a woman was raped, she must have been asking for it. Some women externalize their anger. They may project it towards a specific person or persons, a place, or an object. I internalized the anger, the pain, the shame — because I had been raped, somehow I must have been to blame.

I was much like my friend. I had always been outgoing, in love with life, a bit of a daredevil. I trusted people. Not after the rape. I was still outgoing, but inside I became fearful. I tried to put the rape in the back of my mind and go on with my life. At 17, I just wanted to forget it had ever happened. Needless to say, I didn't date much my senior year.

What I didn't know was how deeply the experience had scarred me. Because I felt so badly about myself, I found I only wanted to be around men who treated me badly, not physically, but psychologically. Nice men made me uncomfortable. It wasn't until I was in my early 30s and started writing an autobiography for a class that I realized how much damage had been done to my life because I had been raped. I was able to work things through and realize that I was a valuable human being. Some women don't, or can't.

My girlfriend had counseling. But, she had to relive that experience all over again on the witness stand almost a year after the rape. Emotionally, I relived the experience I had been through as well. Because of my friend's experience, I was amazed at how many lives were touched and affected because of this rape.

My friend went through the actual assault. Her friends and family went through the emotional and psychological trauma with her. Everyone who was close to her was touched in some way. Rape is not an isolated incident, but one which touches the very fabric of society, the hearts and lives of the people.

I hope my friend is okay.

What I don't understand is why our society puts so little premium on the value of their women. The fact that this man walked away scot free again shows the serious nature of the problem women face in the United States.

Winona Little Robin is an Amherst resident

"ISN'T IT WONDERFUL HOW THE COUNTRY PULLS TOGETHER IN TIME OF WAR?!"

Amherst College 'Dan Quayles' should stop stealing from the poor

Last week's pro-war rally at UMass, and the recent arrest of an anti-war protester in Amherst caught my attention. Both had a common motif: privileged right-wing Amherst College students. Amherst College students figured prominently in both incidents, as speakers to the masses and as hecklers of the predominately UMass anti-war group. It must indeed seem natural for those from a privileged, moneyed background to rally those who will serve as fodder for an unjust war. I challenge Amherst College to come up with statistics of volunteers in the Gulf that rival those of UMass.

There is a class war in the Gulf and at home. Here in Massachusetts the private schools continue to maintain a hegemonic bloc over and against public education. The so-called, Five College Consortium, is false advertising. For years, the privates, foremost among them Amherst College, have continued to exploit the resources of UMass: enrolling in graduate seminars, taking selected classes, and using the Tower library's vast collection. Now that exploitation has taken an even uglier turn as the elites incite the less-priviledged to participate in a war they themselves will never have to fight.

This past year I refused Amherst College students admittance to my graduate seminars. I will not be complicit in supporting class privilege in this state. To those Amherst College students who bear an uncanny resemblance to the "Dan Quayles of the world," I say, "Go Home." Haven't you done enough damage already?

Stay off this campus.

Cathy Schwichtenberg
Assistant Professor of Communications

Sometimes a scream is better than a thesis.
— Ralph Waldo Emerson (1803-1882)

Jewish and anti-war

In this sad time of war, Jewish Americans who oppose the United States in its aggression toward Iraq are faced with a difficult moral dilemma. With Saddam Hussein's attack on Israel, a dreadful decision seems necessary. To oppose the war which George Bush has plunged this country into, can be viewed as indirectly supporting Hussein. By supporting Hussein, one supports his actions as well, and therefore his attack on the Jewish state of Israel. However, by protesting Hussein's attack on the Jewish homeland, one may also seem to be supporting President Bush in his unjust and wasteful war. This places Jews who want to, "do the right thing," between a rock and a hard place, or so it appears.

If Saddam Hussein had simply attacked Israel for no reason, or in an attempt to take over the land, then there would unquestionably be a reason to protest.

Hussein is in a position of disadvantage. He realized that by attacking Israel he could divide the Arab countries supporting the attack on him, and change the odds in his favor somewhat. Hussein also made his plan clear to the world, that if he was attacked, his first retaliation would be directed at Israel.

The destruction of innocent lives and historic buildings is a terrible thing, but regardless of Hussein's lack of concern for Israel, or humanity, a greater evil was committed. President Bush, knowing that the invasion of Iraq would result in an attack on Israel, attacked Iraq anyway.

I hold President Bush personally responsible for any destruction that occurs in the Jewish state of Israel. Without allowing sanctions to work, and without anything more than a superficial attempt at negotiation, possibly just enough to appease the public, Bush launched his war on Iraq, despite Hussein's repeated threat of an attack on Israel.

As an active protester of this war, while at the same time a religious Jew, I find myself refusing to take Bush's side, even if Israel is being hurt. I have an attachment to Israel, but in the greater scheme of things, Bush is causing more destruction to human life and places to live than any other of today's dictators.

Eric Newdom
Hampshire College

Europeans discussing the new Europe

Over the last few years there have been a huge increase in interdependence throughout Europe. Interdependence in this case applies to integration that (especially over the last five years) has drawn most European countries closer to some sort of unity.

Lars Kroijer

Here in the United States most people are, with a good reason, too busy taking care of their own problems to notice the big changes going in Europe. But they should. Last week at a lecture at Amherst College it was said that the events in Europe could turn out more important than the Persian Gulf war. If that is true, I do not know, but there is certainly something to it.

I have never seen a survey on it, but I am sure that if some college students were asked if they had ever heard of the European Community, a lot would have to answer no. To many of us Europeans the EC may soon have a large influence on our lives, since it is the EC that is bringing a United Europe into being. A lot of things are left out when the politicians are uniting us. Alone among the 12 EC member-countries, nine different languages are spoken, and the culture differences go far beyond the language barriers. Surely it would be much harder for a German to identify himself as a fellow citizen with a Portuguese than it is for a New Englander with a person from Texas. This is not because they would have problems talking.

The European Community is still for most part a economical union. A lot of people claim that it is wrong that economic interests should decide our desire to become one people, or at least one country.

I see this "growing together" in a positive light. By being united we can learn a lot, both cultural and political, and maybe thereby prevent some of the conflict that big differences on a small area have created. As the German foreign minister, Hans Ditrech Genscher said: "Rather a European Germany than a German Europe."

Now when I speak of a united Europe I do not expect the French to start speaking English or that the Italians should stop chewering on the Italian national team in the soccer World Cup. That must never happen. A union that is to be created must know its precise limits. To learn from each other culturally certainly does not mean to adapt other forms of living. It is important that while together each state keep their identity.

In opposition to a number of politicians in Bruxelles (Belgium), I believe now is as good as time as any to expand the number of member countries in the EC. If we truly want European unity, the new democracies in eastern Europe and Norway and Sweden should be accepted as members shortly.

In an attempt to create an environment of discussion and understanding of the constant changes in Europe, a European Club has been created in the Five College Area. We welcome citizens of all countries (not only Europe) to attend our meeting general assembly tonight in the UMass Campus Center.

Lars Kroijer is a trasfer student from Denmark and the vice-president of the European Club

Collegian ought to keep its opinions to itself

I am not a warmonger nor a Republican.

I have no particular desire to see American blood shed in the gulf. I personally hold no grudges against those who are protesting the actions of the United States in the Persian Gulf. They are simply doing what they feel is correct and are within their constitutional rights in doing so.

However, I do have a problem with the way that the Collegian is handling its coverage of these events. Time and time again, I have seen the Collegian and its columnists take a one-sided view of this issue, that of the anti-war American minority. I feel that as the officially sanctioned newspaper of the University of Massachusetts, the Collegian should equally present both sides of the issue and allow each of its readers the opportunity to formulate his or her own opinion rather than being spoon-fed that of the Collegian and its columnists.

Mark Tanner
Southwest

[Editor's note — Columnists do not 'cover events.' They express their own opinions. All members of the community are encouraged to submit to the Ed/Op page. We select a generally representative portion of submissions to be printed

■ administration takes over SGA

CONTINUED FROM PAGE 1

BOG, will be suspended until a new governance system is voted upon through referendum. Any space adjustments will be considered in the Fall of 1991.

• Elections of all Student Government Association Officers, except the Student Trustee, will be postponed until September, after a referendum has been passed, for whatever positions are specified in the new governance structure.

Student senators expressed outrage yesterday at the idea of a Commission they say does not represent the students, and at a leadership they claim has "sold out to the administration."

"The Commission, with only six representatives elected by the students, clearly signifies these seats are pure tokenism," said Brown Senator Jeff Turco. "The SGA leaders sold out."

"I am shocked and dismayed," said Johnson Senator Kevin Newnan. "This is a conscious effort to thwart student government.

"The SGA voted last Wednesday to redraft the constitution ourselves, and the [drafting] Committee made great progress with the reduction of the size of the Senate," Newnan said. "We were cleaning our own house and they had no reason to do this."

■ missile launchers hit

CONTINUED FROM PAGE 1

qi radio, which reported the gathering yesterday, did not say what was discussed.

In this fourth week of war, the allies claim superiority in the sky and seas, and Iraq has expressed eagerness for a ground confrontation. It did so again yesterday.

"Iraq is ready to engage in the land battle at any time," Deputy Premier Saadoun Hammadi told reporters in Algeria.

But President Bush said Monday that the allies will continue the air assault, taking "whatever time is necessary" to lay the groundwork for a land war.

But in central Kuwait, darkness proved to be no cover for an Iraqi convoy of 25 to 50 vehicles. U.S. aircraft blasted it, inflicting serious damage, the officials said. They also said an Iraqi helicopter was shot down overnight near Mosul, in northern Iraq. The four Scud launchers believed destroyed in overnight attacks were in western Iraq, staging ground for attacks on Israel. An urban neighborhood in Israel was hit by a Scud early yesterday and Israel's army reported six injuries.

BACK SCHOOL 101

Prerequisite:
Back pain & A REFERRAL from your UHS provider

This 3 session program (classes one week apart) includes information on exercise, some anatomy, massage, treatment options, posture tips and pain relief methods.

DATES: Tuesdays, February 26, March 5, & 12

TIME: 6:00 - 8:00 pm

PLACE: Room 304 University Health Center

Call UHS Health Education for Information and Registration--549-2671 ext 181

*Please advise your UHS provider for the proper referral

TOP of the CAMPUS LOUNGE

Munchies now available until 11:30 pm

Catch all the Action!
Boston Bruins versus
Montreal Canadiens
TONIGHT at 7:30

Lounge Hours:
Mon-Fri: 11:30 am-12:30 am
Sat & Sun: 5:00 pm-12:30 am

11th Floor Campus Center • (413) 549-6000 ext. 7634
University of Massachusetts at Amherst

Café Ashley

ROUTE 9 HADLEY, MA 586-6393
LOCATED IN THE HOWARD JOHNSON MOTOR LODGE

Very Fresh Very Economical Very Friendly

VERY OPEN!

7:00 AM – 10:00 PM
7 DAYS A WEEK
BREAKFAST • LUNCH • DINNER

SHAPE UP FOR SPRING.
At Hilltop and Crossan Healthclubs located in Webster & Gorman dorms
Register 2/4-2/14, Mon-Thurs 7-9pm

Pearl Street
10 PEARL ST. NORTHAMPTON, MA
413 584-7771

HMP 99.3 FM

Valentine's Night Dance Party
Thursday, February 14
at Pearl Street Nightclub

WIN: FREE Cape Cod Cuddle & Bubble Vacations at the International Inn
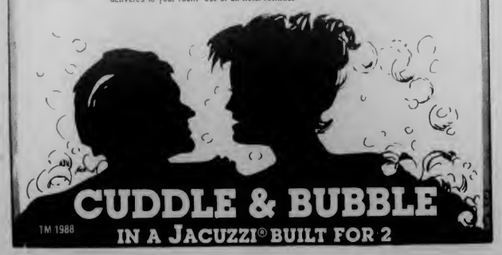
662 MAIN STREET HYANNIS, CAPE COD, MA 02601 (508) 775-5600

18 & over welcome

INCLUDES: A five course prime rib or lobster diner. A lavish all you can eat buffet breakfast each morning. Complimentary hot and cold hors doeuvres and Cape Cod's best chili served early evenings in the lounge. A bottle of champagne, a mid-nite snack pack and a red rose for her, delivered to your room. Use of all hotel facilities



CUDDLE & BUBBLE
IN A JACUZZI® BUILT FOR 2
TM 1988

A+
...for the teacher.

OUTSTANDING TEACHER AWARD

THE COLLEGE OF FOOD AND NATURAL RESOURCES invites students and faculty to submit nominations for the 1990-91 award

NOMINATION FORMS DUE MARCH 1
(Available in room 111 Stockbridge Hall or in departmental offices)

Faculty in the following departments are eligible for nomination:

Entomology
Food Science
Home Economics
Nutrition
Plant Pathology
Resource Economics
Forestry and Wildlife Management
Hotel, Restaurant and Travel Adminis.
Landscape Architecture and Regional Plan.
Plant and Soil Sciences
Veterinary and Animal Sciences

THIRD WORLD AFFAIRS

Desert Storm and wise American ways

The tone and substance of many of the opinions that have been expressed on this page have been frequently described as overly critical of beliefs and attitudes prevalent among the populace of the United States of America. We have been accused of bias and bigotry, ingratitude and insolence.

Back in our own countries inflation is running rampant, debts are mounting and a deep sullen anger seems to be permeating the air. As Baghdad and Basra burn, we seem to have entered the spring of our discontent.

It is a new age and a new order. The time has finally come for some of us to dwell on aspects of the United States experience that we find inspiring and worthy of emulating. And we will not dwell on the obvious aspects like the access to advanced ideas and technologies, or the intellectual resources in the academic and industrial institutions.

To those that find this praise jarring, turn the page — these are personal opinions. After all, Doonesbury beckons on the most widely read page of this pristine publication.

We have much to learn from our American hosts. Operation Desert Storm for a starter. We should envy the consistency and moral rectitude of the most popular presidency in recent U.S. history. When the Iraqi Baathists dared to question the permanence of Euro-colonial boundaries, the United States revealed its deep commitment to the New Old Order.

Our host country keeps its word. It swore to expel Iraq from the twentieth century, and has done so promptly and absolutely. The punctuality and firmness of purpose evident in this operation are admirable traits that we must learn from the Americans. Contrast this with the promises that our nations make? They have been swearing to bring our peoples into the twentieth century ever since the day of my birth.

Say what you will, the American people have nerves of steel. They can observe television footage of the twisted and charred corpses of Iraqi women and children, shrug regretfully, and flip the channel over to cartoons in the blink of an eyelid. They have the courage to understand that their greater national interest sometimes means shedding the blood of enemy civilians. Contrast this steely resolve with the qualms shown by many of our popular movements. So-called terrorist actions by liberation fighters are conducted by covert organizations that cannot ever aspire to having the deadly punch that 42,000 sorties by airborne weapons platforms can pack for the people of Iraq.

The decency with which protest and dissent is conducted in the United States is an object lesson in democracy for all of us. Protesters in this country light candles, hold hands, sing songs, and march in the streets. If anything does burn, it is an occasional flag or a draft card.

Contrast this with protest and dissent in many of our countries. Our protestors have a relentless habit of forming militias, donning uniforms, and expressing displeasure with grenade launchers and AK-47 assault rifles.

Pratip Dastidar

When Americans do protest, they do so for eminently sensible reasons. These include an unwillingness to see their young fellow-citizens hurt in combat, or distaste at the expenditure of dollars on wars instead of their own well-being (lip service is duly given to the destruction wrought on the enemy society, but that is of tertiary importance). In fact, one might dare hazard that these anti-war activists would find little of truly personal import to protest about if future American wars could be automated, and conducted in an economical fashion. Enough said on this issue here (a future article will dwell on this. . .)

Contrast this with the reasons for which many in our lands protest. Abstract dreams like nationalism, resurgence of fundamental values, control over resources, rebellion against neo-colonial regimes, the validity of colonial boundaries, ethnic pride. . .We should adopt the wisdom of the U.S. protesters and only dissent with our governments when they conduct wars with too many casualties or spend too many rupees, dinars or pesos on them.

Most Americans are not protesters. They love their country, cheer for their troops and wave their flag at every opportunity.

Contrast this with the practice in many of our countries, where the flag only flies on government installations, and ordinary citizens are obsessed with the bizarre notion that patriotism is a quiet and personal emotion, reaffirmed by personal sacrifice, not public display.

The American people respect their media. When the Iraqis make scandalous accusations such as the recent claim that U.S. bombers blasted a milk factory, the U.S. media assures the world that it was a biological warfare plant. Most American people honor the media and accept this plausible explanation.

People in most of our nations love to distrust their media. Rumors propagate like wildfire, and an easy way to discredit a story is to cite national television as the primary source.

The American media respects its people. It never fails to marvel at their steadfastness in times of hardship, or their fabled tolerance of dissent. It lauds their generosity, humor, eccentricity, and work ethic. Even when it critiques a cultural attribute it beckons to the true soul of the nation that will one day resurge. Compassion and community, home and hearth. No major national newspaper would tolerate critiques of the sort that some foreign students here tend to indulge in. To do so would mean a slump in sales caused by popular indignation.

Our media will never forget to harp on themes like endemic corruption and inequity. They rarely ascribe these sins to an elite coterie. Instead, writers from Lagos to Lima harp on the failure of society at large.

The people of our host nation are enormously proud of their culture and way of life. They even go so far as to see the inevitable triumph of U.S. values when a child in Amman or Bombay wears Levi jeans. They view a guest in their land who does not endorse their way of live as an ingrate (rather than a mercenary). America, love it or leave it.

People in our nations often seem to express surprise when foreigners try to adopt our way of life. They sometimes marvel at why anyone would want to go to such trouble. A guest in our countries is often expected to find it hard to accept our ways. Foreigners might not love my country and will usually leave it. Nonetheless, they are usually extended due hospitality as long as they are law-abiding. We need to learn from America.

Some of us do acknowledge that in the past we have criticized the United States of America. Operation Desert Storm has been a sobering experience. We hope this article will provide a much needed balance.

To the United States of America. . .Thank you so much.

Pratip Dastidar is Collegian staff.

[Editor's note — This article is the opinion of the writer and does not necessarily reflect the views of the Collegian staff.]

Israel looks to Gulf war to block peace

Against the background of the current hostilities, at least one irony that will not be lost on independent-minded people in the Middle East is that the United States is fighting a war so that Israel can avoid a peace. At the heart of the Israeli role in the war against Iraq, as cheerleader, spymaster, and primary beneficiary, is the plan to retain and colonize the West Bank and Gaza. This plan is entirely dependent on avoiding the long proposed international peace conference on Palestine, and the just peace that could result (i.e. Palestinian statehood).

The agenda is being advanced in two ways. Firstly, by the wholesale destruction of Iraqi state and society, which is a long cherished dream of the Israeli government. Israeli refusal to negotiate with Palestinians and its plans for further colonization of occupied territory are dependent on regional military supremacy, which Iraq was beginning to challenge. Before the United States became directly involved, many Israelis were openly talking about the need for Israel to attack and destroy this most advanced of Arab countries for fear of being forced to the dreaded international negotiating table. Once the United States began to consider a war with Iraq, Israelis were among the chief advocates of an all out attack, not to "free Kuwait," but to destroy Iraq, and were singularly horrified by any suggestion of a peaceful settlement that might leave Iraq intact. On the night of the United States attack on Iraq, Israelis were seen dancing in the streets of Tel Aviv on CNN, and they continue to gloat. In truth they have found themselves in a most enviable position, as one of their major wars is being fought and it is Americans who will do the dying for them. This is an astonishing occurrence of a patron state fighting a proxy war on behalf of its client. Secondly, the Israelis are using the issue of "restraint" as a primary diplomatic weapon to defend against the possibility of a peace conference in the future. The fear that the supposedly newfound closeness between the U.S. and several of the Arab regimes that it has purchased might lead to U.S. pressure on Israel to negotiate will be countered by a reference to "restraint," the display of pictures of Yasser Arafat in the company of Saddam, and other emotional manipulation. Many leading Israelis have openly admitted this to various organs such as the New York Times [January 27, 1991].

Hussein Ibish

Israeli plans for the West Bank and Gaza are clear and chilling. The government insists that these lands are and must remain a part of the Israeli state, but annexation under current circumstances is politically difficult since it would involve either the incorporation of 2 million Arabs or dropping the figleaf of occupation and admitting to the world that Israel is a full-fledged aparthied state. The plan is, rather, to use the "miracle" of large scale Russian immigration to colonize the territories with instant Israelis. Palestinians will be displaced as usual and quite possibly expelled altogether. The newest member of the Israeli cabinet is an outspoken advocate of mass expulsion, adding yet another such voice to that remarkable body. The obscenity of the fact that in 1991 the world may yet witness the displacement of hundreds of thousands of indigenous people by European colonizers will not be lost on the people of the region or the Third World as a whole, but after the fate of Iraq who will dare to intervene?

The final stage in the plan to permanently obliterate Palestine is the "Palestinization" of Jordan. The hope is to eventually dispatch King Hussein and to see to the creation of a government run by the slight majority population of refugees from Palestine. Then Israel and its friends will claim that since it is populated and governed by people expelled from Palestine, that therefore, lo and behold, Jordan is Palestine, and there is no need to let Palestinians actually have anything to do with Palestine itself. Hey presto, Palestine becomes Israel and Jordan becomes Palestine. And all made possible by America's war.

As the men and women of the United States pursue the destruction of Iraq it is conceivable that the price to be paid in the blood of Americans may increase in the days ahead and may even reach a rather harsh cost. It may well be worth reflecting on the fact that the main barrier to affecting an Iraqi withdrawal of Kuwait without the shedding of American blood was the refusal of the United States to join the vast majority of the international community and endorse a peace conference to address the problem of the Israeli occupation. There was every indication that the Iraqis were willing to accommodate American diktats for the sake of Palestine. But, rather than urge the Israelis to negotiate, the United States choose to commit its troops to war. Just as the United States fights a war on Israel's behalf, Israel's refusal to negotiate a just peace continues to push the United States, the region, and the world to war.

This article is the opinion of the writer and does not necessarily reflect the views of the Collegian staff.

Facials Are Not Just A Relaxing Luxury!

Proper SKIN CARE is necessary to PREVENT premature aging and unhealthy skin.

SPECIAL SAVINGS
$15.00 off 3 Treatment Package

Styles by Deborah
"The Spa For Hair & Skin Care"
• BODY WAXING & WRAPPING • LASH TINTS • MAKEUP CONSULTATIONS
65 University Dr., Amherst • 549-5610

Now's the time to call...
North Amherst Motors
78 Old Sunderland Rd., No. Amherst
549-2880
Expert Repairs and Reconditioning
Most Major Credit Cards Accepted

ARTS & LIVING

New guild emerges from budget cuts

By LISA CURTIS
Collegian Staff

Yet another student resource seemed about to be crippled at UMass, but the UMass Music Theatre Guild and the University Players fought back with spirit. As of January 1991, they are officially merged and collectively known as the UMass Theatre Guild.

"The goal of the new and improved Theatre Guild is to keep student theater alive," wrote Kristie Tincher, associate Publicity Coordinator for the Guild.

"The UMass Theatre Guild) is an organization created to provide a stronger theater resource network for the Five College student community,' states the Guild's press release.

The UMass Music Theatre Guild premiered in 1936 with Gilbert and Sullivan's Trial by Jury. Last semester's productions included Schoolhouse Rock and Sweet Charity.

The University Players, originally known as the Southwest Theater Group, formed in the Spring of 1988 with its focus on non-musical theater. The players then decided to alternate producing a musical in the Spring with a non-musical play in the Fall. Their recent productions include Talk Radio and You're a Good Man, Charlie Brown.

"The Executive Boards of both the Music Theatre Guild and the University Players mutually decided that by combining their memberships and talent polls, they could share, rather than compete for, campus resources," said the Guild's release.

"Both groups previously shared similar goals, mission statements, and constitutions, and therefore by uniting to form one larger, stronger organization, the UMass Theatre Guild, the memberships could provide a wider variety of theater experience on campus than either group was able to alone."

CONTINUED ON PAGE 10

Goldreich talks on Jewish women and their traditional literary roles

By ALISON BUCKHOLTZ
Collegian Correspondent

"What do writers want of Jewish women?" asked Gloria Goldreich, rephrasing Freud's famous question during her lecture on "The Traditional Role of Jewish Women in Literature" at the Hillel House Monday night.

Speaking as part of the Jewish Arts Festival, Goldreich outlined an answer both multi-dimensional and far-reaching, spanning centuries of Western literature, history and society.

Its foundation rests on realistic and not-so-realistic portrayals of Jewish women by Jewish and non-Jewish writers.

The first portrait of a Jewish woman was created by Shakespeare, in The Merchant of Venice. Shylock's daughter Jessica, she said, who marries a Christian to "escape what she sees as 'the onus of Jewishness,' was created with literary sarcasm and a certain amount of venom," according to Goldreich.

"But there is no way Shakespeare could have known any Jewish women at any time in his life," she said, pointing out that Jews had been expelled from England in the 11th century.

Regardless, "this damaging portrait of a Jewish woman is the first we have in the Anglo literature tradition," she said.

Reinforcement of this image continued in Sir Walter Scott's Ivanhoe. Rebecca of York, based on Jewish woman Rebecca Gratz of Philadelphia, is another unrealistic, though sympathetic, portrayal, Goldreich said.

George Eliot's Daniel Deronda changed this with its description of working-class and poor Jewish women, she said. "But although it was a sympathetic portrait, the emphasis was still on jewels and the richness of their clothing. It doesn't delve into the reality of their life," she said.

Lives of Jewish women were closer to realistic portrayal after the Haskalah, or Enlightenment, in the 1800s. This freed Jews to create their own literature, Goldreich said.

Although early Yiddish writers like Sholom Aleichem, on whose Tevye stories Fiddler on the Roof is based, knew Jewish life from the inside, the most revolutionary change occurred when European immigration to the United States began, she said.

Since Jewish girls in America had to have an education, most Jewish women learned how to read and write for the first time.

"Now, Jewish women were written about not by gentile men, not by Jewish men, but by Jewish women," she said.

This leap is epitomized, she said, by Anzia Yezierska, who immigrated to the United States from Poland in 1901.

"Yezierska was the first," Goldreich said. "To write as she did, to send her stories to the Yiddish papers, to sell a screen play to Hollywood, was revolutionary, radical."

As the immigrants became "Americanized," she said, so did the writing, reflecting an evolving place for Jews in their new society. "Herman Wouk's Marjorie Morningstar jumped a long way from Shakespeare's Jessica, into a portrait of the modern Jewish woman and her struggle for liberation," Goldreich said.

Philip Roth continued this tradition, which exists today in various forms. "The rise of the Jewish generational novel and the Jewish saga is one result," Goldreich said. "Writers are looking at Jewish women realistically, in a historical perspective. The rise and redefinition of ethnic literature in the U.S. also contributed to this new perspective."

Today's Jewish women writers, such as Grace Paley, Cynthia Ozick and Norma Rosen, contribute to this "vast, multi-dimensional picture of Jewish women," Goldreich added. Rephrasing Freud's question, Goldreich considered what Jewish women want of the writers who portray them.

"To be portrayed in all seasons of life as we are: mothers and sisters, fierce in our dreams, tenacious . . . with joys to be known and sorrows to be revealed. Above all we ask to be seen as we are: Jewish women in search of ourselves," she said.

Now you can afford to dream in color.

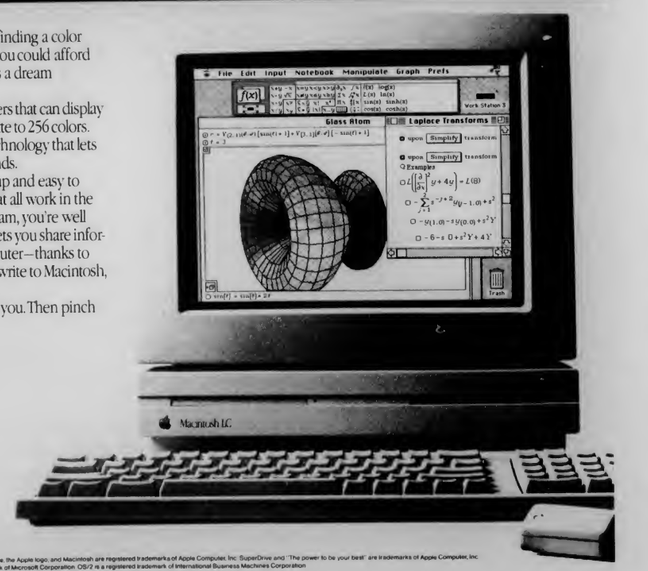
Apple introduces the Macintosh LC.

If you thought that finding a color Macintosh® system you could afford was just a dream, then the new, affordable Macintosh LC is a dream come true.

The Macintosh LC is rich in color. Unlike many computers that can display only 16 colors at once, the Macintosh LC expands your palette to 256 colors. It also comes with a microphone and new sound-input technology that lets you personalize your work by adding voice or other sounds.

Like every Macintosh computer, the LC is easy to set up and easy to master. And it runs thousands of available applications that all work in the same, consistent way—so once you've learned one program, you're well on your way to learning them all. The Macintosh LC even lets you share information with someone who uses a different type of computer—thanks to the versatile Apple® SuperDrive,™ which can read from and write to Macintosh, MS-DOS, OS/2, and Apple II floppy disks.

Take a look at the Macintosh LC and see what it gives you. Then pinch yourself. It's better than a dream—it's a Macintosh.



For further information please visit the University Store Computer Department Campus Center, 545-2619

The power to be your best.™

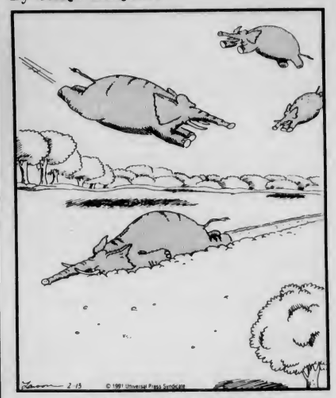
© 1990 Apple Computer, Inc. Apple, the Apple logo, and Macintosh are registered trademarks of Apple Computer, Inc. SuperDrive and "The power to be your best" are trademarks of Apple Computer, Inc. MS-DOS is a registered trademark of Microsoft Corporation. OS/2 is a registered trademark of International Business Machines Corporation

February 19—February 20

DOONESBURY
By GARRY TRUDEAU

MORNING, CHARLOTTE! WHATCHA GOT FOR ME, BILLY?
TRUMAN! TRUMAN!
A DEUCE. THE HEAD CASE IS GOING TO THE ONSHORE HOSPITAL. HE'S PRIORITY.
HOW ABOUT THE OTHER ONE?
OUT TO THE MEAT FLEET. NO RUSH. HE'S STABILIZED.
OKAY. LOAD 'EM! I'D HELP IF ONLY I HAD THE UPPER BOD STRENGTH.
OKAY, FELLAHS! ON YOUR FEET!
MEAT FLEET?
GB/Trudeau

THE FAR SIDE
By GARY LARSON



The Secret Elephant Aerial Grounds

QUOTE OF THE DAY

"Boy, the things I do for England."

— Prince Charles on sampling snake meat

DAILY CROSSWORD PUZZLE
Edited By TRUDE MICHEL JAFFE

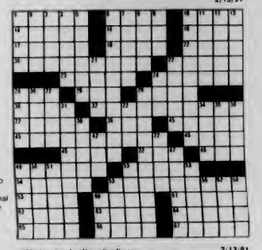
ACROSS
1 Heavenly headwear
6 Mideast port
10 Distort
14 Exclusively
15 Green, in Brest
16 Heard at Lincoln Center
17 Mrs. Schwarzenegger
18 Per person
19 William, the toxophilite
20 Body type that tends to be rounded
22 Blues street in Memphis
23 Pusher pursuers
24 More concise
25 As simple as —
28 Mil. rank
29 Widen the hole
30 Paraphernalia
32 Gymnastic feat
37 Durango farewell
39 Small animal hide
40 Antler parts
41 Designated again
44 Columbus caravel
45 Desire
46 Guernsey grassland
48 Salt
49 Mystery
52 Hits like Strawberry
54 Staggering
55 Not virtuous
59 Fish organ
60 Hot spot
61 Cathode partner
62 This, in Toledo
63 Bog fuel
64 Scrawny animal
65 Light carriage
66 Young ones
67 Abounds

DOWN
1 Part of a harness
2 Actor Bates
3 "The — is my shepherd."
4 Tear-jerker?
5 See 48 Across
6 Far from rare
7 Harvests
8 Mischievous
9 Certain degree
10 Conduit, of a sort
11 Places
12 Lunar valley
13 Not as ruddy
21 Killer whale
22 Beauty's lover
24 Alask., once
25 Getting agent
26 Venerable historian
27 First felon
29 Insect sprays
31 Simple song
33 Russian village
34 Measurement standard
35 Actress Olin
36 Former ruler
38 Recidence
42 Above average grade
43 O.T. book
47 Shocked
49 Carriers on
50 South Bend "fighters"
51 Kind of ray or wing
52 Golf great
53 Subsequently
55 Iris layer
56 Essence
57 First father
58 Certain drumsticks
60 Choose

ANSWER TO PREVIOUS PUZZLE:

M	U	G	S		C	H	E	F		S	Q	U	A	B
A	T	I	T		L	O	D	E		P	U	R	S	E
S	A	G	A		E	A	S	E		R	I	G	I	D
T	H	I	C	K	A	S	T	N	I	E	V	E	S
			K	A	N	E			C	E
C	R	I	S	I	S		S	K	I		R	O	L	L
L	I	N	E		S	P	I	N		D	I	G	I	U
O	N	S	P	E	A	K	I	N	G		T	E	R	M
U	S	E		R	U	N	G		E	V	E	N	T
T	E	S	T		O	D	E		B	I	A	S	E	D
		A	S	I			E	Y	E	S
A	T	S	W	O	R	D	S	P	O	I	N	T	S
D	M	A	N	A		I	G	I	A		O	E	I	A
N	E	P	A	L		P	O	S	A		N	A	N	A
O	X	E	Y	E		S	A	P	S		S	T	E	P

2/13/91



1991 Los Angeles Times Syndicate 2/13/91

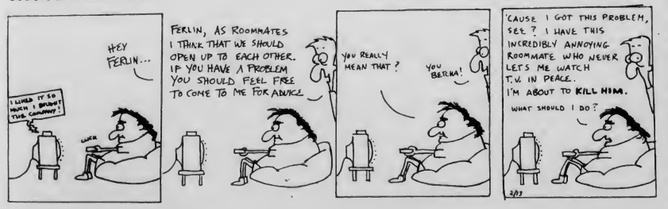
CALVIN AND HOBBES
By BILL WATTERSON

SO WHO IS THIS A JOB FOR?
STUPENDOUS MAN!
WEF! GHH!
SUPER HEROES WEAR SNOW PANTS?
WHEN THERE'S SNOW OUT, THEY DO!
THIS LOOKS LIKE A REAL JOB FOR STUPENDOUS MAN!
WELL OF COURSE THE ZIPPER'S GOING TO GET STUCK IF EVERYONE STANDS AROUND WATCHING ME!

FROTTER
By GARRY PORTER

MY DAD SAYS YOUR LAZY AND WASTE ALL YOUR TIME.
HE SAYS I SHOULD SPEND MY TIME CONSTRUCTIVELY TO BUILD MY CHARACTER.
WHAT DID HE TELL YOU TO DO FOR TODAY?
CLEAN THE GARAGE AND HOMEWORK.
Flop

SNOOKY LANSON
By E. VEZINA & R. SHAUGHNESSY



HEY FERLIN...
I LIKED IT SO MUCH, I BOUGHT THE COMPANY!
FERLIN, AS ROOMMATES I THINK THAT WE SHOULD OPEN UP TO EACH OTHER. IF YOU HAVE A PROBLEM YOU SHOULD FEEL FREE TO COME TO ME FOR ADVICE
YOU REALLY MEAN THAT?
YOU BETCHA!
'CAUSE I GOT THIS PROBLEM, SEE? I HAVE THIS INCREDIBLY ANNOYING ROOMMATE WHO NEVER LETS ME WATCH T.V. IN PEACE. I'M ABOUT TO KILL HIM.
WHAT SHOULD I DO?

TANGELO PIE
By TIM SNIFFEN

Hi, Marcus. You look winded.
Gabriel, you've walked through Haigis Mall before, haven't you?
yeah...
-And haven't you ever gotten fed up with all those skateboarders, racing around and screaming?
I guess...
And if you had the chance to pour glue + hot tar around the mall, then enjoy the resulting misfortune, you'd do it, correct?
Uh-
-And when the skaters found out, if you thought of a way to convince them it was all your roommate's fault...
WHAT?
POUND POUND POUND

MENU

LUNCH
Tacos
Tuna Melt

DINNER
Beef
Fisherman's Plate

BASICS LUNCH
Vegetable Taco
Tuna Melt

BASICS DINNER
Ratatouille
Fisherman's Plate

YOUR DAILY HOROSCOPE
By JEANE DIXON

ARIES (March 21-April 19): The mail brings good news. Consistency will help you get better results in business. Letting children know what is expected of them will encourage them to develop good habits.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20): Trust your own instincts. If a long-distance romance makes you feel like an exile, get out and socialize more. Your creativity is at a peak. Look for new outlets for your talents.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20): Your influence grows at work. Use any spare time to complete important paperwork. A new office or apartment brings great satisfaction. Break out of a rut. Accept a spur-of-the-moment invitation.

CANCER (June 21-July 22): Remain close to your family but enjoy your freedom. Developing your skills as a public speaker will help your career. Travel is favored. Accept an invitation to visit friends at a distance.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22): Review the pros and cons of a recent business proposal. Seek experts' advice before signing. Let a past love fade away; someone more compatible is on the horizon. Avoid making demands.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22): Although overseas travel holds great appeal, postpone it for a more favorable period. Be sensitive to a child's or parent's feelings. Influential people will reward your original ideas.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22): The success of a business partnership will banish any financial worries! Hang tough if others give you a hard time or attempt to deceive you. A change of residence or lifestyle is overdue.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21): An idealistic but focused approach helps advance your career. Use your influence to get loans and expand business. Free-lancers do brilliantly today. Nurture an ailing relationship.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21): Speaking your mind will clear up a misunderstanding. You feel energized after enrolling in an exercise or dance program. Additional education boosts your earning power.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19): Spruce up your wardrobe with carefully chosen accessories. A contemporary image is a big plus in business. Check out stock tips proposed by friends. A prominent individual plays a major role in your career.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18): Beware of strangers bearing gifts. Your snakiely ways may soon get you in trouble. Try tanning yourself in the tropics. You will soon be treated to a night of fine dining and chic dancing.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20): Admit your mistakes and you will win big at work or home. Your financial instincts are right on the money. Take time out to recharge your batteries. Lunch with one of your chums.

■ UMass Theatre Guild

CONTINUED FROM PAGE 8

The UMass Theatre Guild will be maintaining both complete Executive Boards during this semester of transition.

"One of the primary reasons for the merge is there tended to be a lot of overlapping of membership in both groups," said producer Kara Jenkins.

Human resources were not the only lacking factor. The Music Theatre Guild is funded by the Student Activities Trust Fund, but the University Players did not have the same backing. The Guild had over 50 years of experience which gave them a stronger base to work from, while the University Players had to struggle for funds, performance and rehearsal space, and human resources.

"We are offering more because we've consolidated. Less money is spent day to day," said Ms. Jenkins,"but because we are in a transitional period we have only scheduled two productions."

Judy Gagnon, former president of the Players is advisor for both groups. Marc Clermonnt is the associate producer of the new Guild.

The positive effects from the merge are the creation of teams explained Ms. Jenkins.

"We now have a publicity team versus one person putting up flyers for the entire Five College Area. It will make it easier for people to be involved. The work loads will be a little lighter, but it will be a better experience."

The two upcoming productions are Into the Woods and Agatha Christie's Ten Little Indians. Into the Woods is derived from six of the Grimm Fairy Tales and is set to Stephen Soundheim music. Appearances are made by Cinderella and Sleeping Beauty, but Ms. Jenkins warned, "It's not just fluff and bubbles. It's got a few neat messages to be learned."

It will play at Bowker Auditorium March 25-28.

Ten Little Indians auditions will be held March 3-5. A murder mystery, the play will be an altogether new type of production for the Guild, appropriate for their new beginning.

AEROBICS

MORE NAUTILUS
Computerized aerobic machines than any club in the Valley.
Stairmasters • Lifecycles • Gravitron • Biocycle • Treadmills
New • New • New • Life Rower • New • New • New

BETTER MASSAGE
Special suspended oak wood floor • Certified Instructors
• Bench Step • Low Impact • High/Low • Boxercise • Stretch

KARATE SAUNA
Total body conditioning plus the skill of selfdefense.
Largest full-time Karate studio in Western Mass.

AMHERST ATHLETIC CLUB 460 West St. | South Amherst 256-0080 | KARATE HEALTH & FITNESS CENTER

SPRING BREAK
PANAMA CITY BEACH
FLORIDA
• High quality beachfront accommodations for 7 exciting nights
• Round trip chartered motor coach
• Free pool deck parties, activities, & promotions
• Inter-Campus Programs (D /Discount card
• On-location staff for complete assistance
• All taxes, tips, & service charges included
$114 $219
Contact Barbara 549-8156

Council Travel
SPRING BREAK
from Boston
Cancun starting at $489
Jamaica starting at $509
Price includes:
•Round trip airfare & transfers
• 7 nights accommodation & hotel taxes
Low Student Airfares!
CALL FOR MORE INFORMATION
79 South Pleasant Street
Amherst, Ma 01002
413-256-1261
America's oldest & largest Student Travel Agency

SPRING BREAK!!!
cancun mexico Air & Hotel included
Spaces still available!

El Batab/Downtown	$409
Laguna/Across Beach	$479
Solymar/Beach Econ	$509
Las Perlas/Beach Med	$529
Conrad Hilton/Super	$569
Cancun Playa/Deluxe	$599

*Prices based on Quad. occ
Organize a group & get a free trip!
Local Contact: JASON 549-7952
For more info. call 800-331-6002

HEY YOU!
Director Applications Being Accepted Until February 25th for Agatha Christie's
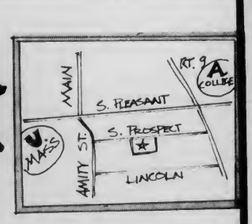
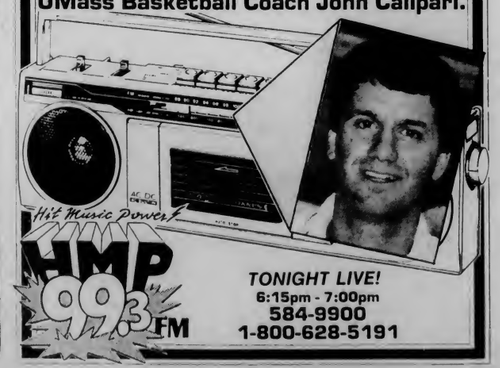
TEN LITTLE INDIANS
A Murder Mystery
Call Theater Guild Office at 545-0415 for an application
The Next Guild Meeting is February 20 !

STEINBECK COLLISION REPAIR & AUTOBODY
53 So. Prospect — Amherst Center
256-8157 256-1385
Shop Registration # RS1212



• Imports & other unibody vehicles are our specialty
• State of art equipment for precision frame and unibody straightening (+ or - ½ mm)
• Over 90 years staff experience
• Accepted by all insurance companies for collision repair or glass replacement
• Advanced European Technology Painting and Refinishing Systems
REMEMBER it's your car and your choice of repair facilities

CALL "COACH CAL"
Special Phone-in Radio Show with UMass Basketball Coach John Calipari.



HMP 99.3 FM
TONIGHT LIVE!
6:15pm - 7:00pm
584-9900
1-800-628-5191

■ John Tate

CONTINUED FROM PAGE 12

ty of Massachusetts men's basketball team huddles before a free throw.

With his work ethic and with his mouth, Tate, a senior from Penn Hills, Pa., is a leads this year's young team.

It hasn't always been this way. Tate says he didn't understand the relationship between hard work and success until it smacked him in the face his sophomore year, when first-year coach John Calipari anchored him at the end of the UMass bench.

When Tate, who starred at Penn Hills High School before coming to UMass, mustered the courage to ask why, Calipari's answer was painfully honest.

"He told me 'you don't play hard and you stink,' and that's the truth," Tate remembers.

"My first reaction was 'he's crazy.' Then I sat down and thought about it and realized he's right . . . I really can't play the game that well. In order for me to play at all, I've got to do all the little things and play harder than the guy I'm playing against just to keep up with him."

"I never thought he'd play here. I told him that," Calipari says. "But his enthusiasm, his intensity and the understanding of his own limits is why he's been able to be such a contributor to this program.

"He's able to play against better players because he plays with passion."

This season, Tate has contributed 6.5 rebounds and four points per game. But the numbers do not reflect Tate's significance to this year's 14-8 UMass team.

Tate has been UMass' high-rebounder in seven games this season, including a three-game stretch in late January in which he collected 12 rebounds at Xavier, 14 at Vermont and 12 at Temple.

Tate ranks seventh on the UMass team in minutes played, second in rebounding behind Harper Williams, and first in floor burns and trips through the layup line in practice.

"I try to lead by example by diving for loose balls, taking charges and getting offensive rebounds," Tate says. "In practice after you've just lost and everybody's getting drilled, you step to the front of the line when everybody else is tired. Or if there's an odd number of guys you go twice to make it even.

"It's something Coach Calipari brought out of me, because I'm naturally probably the laziest person you'll ever meet . . . Extra drills or a few bruises from diving on the floor or taking a charge, I think that's a small price to pay for being remembered as a winner."

Tate's not all heart; in the quarterfinals of the Pennsylvania state tournament his senior year at Penn Hills high, Tate blocked a shot by Allderdice High's athletic star, Will Herndon.

"[Herndon] turned and tried to shoot it and I blocked him. I nearly had a stroke I was so psyched," remembers Tate, who is now paired with Herndon in UMass' starting frontcourt while Tony Barbee recovers from mononucleosis. "I remind him of that all the time."

After the season ends in March, Tate will turn his full attention to graduation and his post-college plans, which he says are still up in the air. Tate is on track to receive a degree in history this year.

And though he knows professional basketball is not an option, Tate promises the lessons learned on the basketball court will not be forgotten.

"Coach Cal has showed me two things: If you work hard you can do anything — he's 32 and he's head coach of a Division I program — and there's no easy way. Shortcuts never really benefit you."

The Valley's newest and most complete weight training facility!
UMass Women Free on Valentine's Day
in The Price Chopper Mall
FLEX Fitness Center
175 University Dr. Amherst •253-FLEX

CLASSIFIEDS

COME TO THE COLLEGIAN OFFICE—CC 113 MON — THURS 8:30-3:30 ● DEADLINE 2 DAYS PRIOR TO PUBLICATION ● CASH IN ADVANCE, 20¢/WORD/DAY FOR STUDENTS

ACTIVITIES

CLUB COMMUNICATION - 1st meeting Thursday, Feb. 14, 5:30pm, Machmer E37 Old and new members welcome! Planning 1st fundraiser of the semester!

TRAIN WITH US!!
Umass the kwon do meets
Mon. & Wed. 6:30-8:30pm
Info? Marty, 6-7003
Marie, 6-1622
Beginners welcome.

ANNOUNCEMENTS

ARMENIAN CLUB MEETING
Feb 13 7:00pm CC901
First meeting of semester

BED AND BREAKFAST- downtown ideal for visiting parents and friends- 549-0733.

DELTA UPSILON WELCOMES all university men to open rush. Dates to remember: FEB. 11,12,14,18,19,21.

DON'T MISS JUDITH BLACK one of New England's foremost storytellers tonight, Hillel House 8:00, Bagels served 7:00-7:30 FREE

DRUM-award winning Black Arts and Literature magazine-now accepting submissions. 115 NAH

PHI ALPHA THETA - Int'l History Honors Society accepting applications from new members. Info -applications in History office Herter. Deadline 2/28.

VIETNAMESE- STUDENT ASSO.
General meeting on Wednesday February 13 at Knowton Basement, Seven O'clock

AUDIO/STEREO/VIDEO

USED STEREO components/vcr's/color tv's: We buy, sell & trade quality equipment, all price ranges. Detailed list (60+ items). S/A/V exchange (anytime) 256-0941

AUTO FOR SALE

1978 CHEVY IMPALA Good cond. BO, 586-4437

1981 CITATION Mechanically sound body damaged parts or fixit $300 253-4057

1989 HONDA ACCORD immaculate condition, 1 owner, AM/FM cassette, 2 door coupe, only 9,200 miles, must see, $9600 or best offer, call Bruce at 256-1215 after 6 PM

ENTERTAINMENT

HOUSE HOUSE HOUSE
Dance, Dance, Dance. John, DJ 549-5316

ESTABLISH CREDIT

DISCOVER CARDS
No cost to apply
Call Mark 546-4814
Leave message

FOR RENT

1 BEDROOM EFF. Apt on Main St. 350 inclusive, Call 253-0574, Ask for Terry/Leave msg

AMHERST, 1 BEDROOM AVAILABLE IN 3 BEDROOM, NEW HOUSE ON BUS LINE, FIREPLACE, BEAUTIFUL!! AVAILABLE NOW CALL 8-4, 665-3328

DOUBLE BEDROOM IN 3 bedroom Pulfton, 340 couple or 255 single, negotiable, + utilities Non-smoking. Adam or Lisa 549-0506

FRIDGE RENTALS CALL R + P 253-9742

LARGE ROOM IN 2 BEDROOM TOWNHOUSE GREAT PLACE TO LIVE. ON BUS ROUTE CLOSE TO CAMPUS CALL 253-4031 LEAVE MESSAGE

SHARE NICE HOUSE 3 miles from campus, 4 acres in backyard, 230 plus utilities, call Debbie 253-5361, evenings

SHARE LARGE MODERN Amherst house on bus route with other students. Own room. $290/month 1st month's rent FREE! 549-0182

WINTER SPECIAL: 1 month rent .99 cents with one year lease
2 bedroom- $450
3 bedroom- $537
Sunderland. Free bus route, laundry facilities, swimming pool, garden plots, short term lease available.
665-3856.

FOR SALE

FUTONS
Menswmpe
For all your futon needs
Available anywhere in U.S.A
Great to sleep on with your sexy valentine
Call to order
1-800-3FUTON1

GREAT VALENTINE'S DAY GIFT
UMASS glow in the dark boxers
Delivered with your personal note
Only $10
Call 546-0424 for details

HUGIABLE, LOVABLE, HANDMADE teddy bears. Perfect for Valentine's Day! Ask for Suzan 546-9481

IBM COMPUTER, hard drive, graphics card, with printer. $800, 253-5734

NEED A COMPUTER? I sell PC's and Mac's very competitive prices, service and individual attention. Call Dana 548-3933

SKIS/BOOTS
Lacroix skits with bindings-180's
Lange boots and Lange heated boots
Very reasonable!
549-9932

SOFABED, TWINBED, TABLE/CHAIRS
Desk, Rocker, etc.
Call 546-2167
On campus

SONY COLOR TV 27", life time warranty service from door to door, one-year old, ex condition $600 neg. Call Ahmed 253-5837

FOUND

BRACELET FOUND UPTOWN this past weekend. Call to describe it. Ask for Denise or leave a message. 549-5458

HELP WANTED

APPLY NOW TO be a tour guide, summer counselor, student admissions representative. Applications available on concourse.

ARE YOUR JOB prospects limited? Need a secondary income?
The business opportunity may be for you. Call 1(800) 226-5025 EXT 16075–

ASSEMBLERS: EXCELLENT INCOME to assemble products from your home. 508-546-1700 Dept. p1307.

CAMP COUNSELORS NEEDED for co-ed, sports oriented camp located in northeastern Pa. near New York City. We have openings for general counselors as well as specialists in both land and water sports. Specialty areas include baseball, tennis, basketball, soccer, lacrosse, hockey, waterskiing, sailing, scuba, WSI, canoeing, windsurfing, gymnastics, archery, fencing, arts & crafts, piano accompanist, drama, radio and rocketry. Pioneering staff needed for both land and canoe trips and for our ropes challenge course. Other openings may be available. Salaries $100-200 per week plus room, board, and travel. We will be conducting on-campus interviews on March 5th. For information call or write: G. Lustig, 60 W 58th St., 29A, New York, N.Y. 10023, tel. 212-724-0113

DON'T GET A JOB —Get a business! Student painters offers highly motivated students practical experience and earnings averaging $5,000-7000 for the summer. Please call 1-800-922-5579.

EARN $300 to $500 per week reading books at home, Call 1-615-473-7440 EXT B-281

HOUSE CLEANING AVAILABLE
By professional, diligent worker
Call Laura 585-8823
References upon request

INTELLIGENCE JOBS. All branches. US Customs, DEA ect. Now hiring. Call 1-805-962-8000 Ext. K-9616.

NEWSPAPER DELIVERERS NEEDED in UMASS dorms. No car required 7-8am 7 days/week. Call 253-7009

$$$ OPPORTUNITY OF a lifetime $$$ Own your own business. Set your own hours. Work while in school. Interested, call 546-7469.

SMALL VERMONT CAMP for girls, seeks commited counselors in horsemanship, wilderness trips, water sports, photography ,video, and more. Sherry Osborn, Camp Catherine Caspers 25 Shawmut Ave. Apt UM Weyland, MA 01778 (508)650-1866

INSTRUCTION

EARN CREDIT learn to Scuba Dive. Basic Classes held Monday, Tuesday, Wednesday, and Thursday 7-10PM in Curry Hicks Pool. Open Water II class held during Spring Break in Key Largo, FLA. Advanced Class held in New England in April. For furthe; information call 546-8401, or drop by Curry Hicks starting 2/4/91.

HOW TO REALLY READ
(At the College Level!)
3 wk crash course, 8 2hr. sessions
From an English Professor
$84 Call 549-6774

LOST

GLASSES SILVER RIMMED in black leather case. Steve 546-3929

POCKETBOOK
Dark green medium sized
Lost Sat Feb 9
Reward if found
Please call Rob 546-3177

PERSONALS

ANYONE WHO SAW the car accident on Mass Ave. last Friday (2/2) at 9pm, please contact Carolyn at 548-8460 or 549-7947 with any information.

BORED CLERK, Please meet me in the Blue Wall tonight 8pm.

HEY KIM MORIN
Good luck at NE's
Just win baby!
-S.P.

MARC SCHARF
Happy 22nd Birthday Bro!
Wish I was there to celebrate with you. Miss you lots!
Love Always
Your CHUNKY sister

MARTY -This is one bet I wouldn't mind losing. Happy Valentines Day!
-Rose

MIKE ANTUNES,
Happy 21st
Now you're burying
for the rest of us.
Dick

TONIA
Get super super psyched for New Englands
Love
S.P

RESUME SERVICE

PERSONALIZED CONSULTATION or laser printing of your original 549-0367

RIDE WANTED

WE NEED A ride to Penn State and back on the long weekend, Feb. 15-18. We will pay for the gas. Please call ASAP Pat 546-6110 Thanx!

ROOMMATE WANTED

$125 MO. Male pref. Call 256-1859
Brittany Manor across from bus-stop

MALE ROOMATE WANTED to share furnished Brndy Wn apartment $175/mo. heat included Willing to negotiate price. Call 15945591

ROSES ROSES ROSES

ROSES ROSES ROSES Deliveries available see Chris- Campus Center Concourse

SERVICES

DISCOVER CARDS
No cost to apply
Call Rob 546-1696
Leave message

SERVICES

AEROBICS NAUTILUS STAIRMASTERS
Lifecycles, freeweights, treadmill, gravitron, step-classes, karate.
Amherst Athletic Club. 256-0080.

DIRT CHEAP RESUMES
Counseling, overnight laser printing
$20, Lisa or Charlie- 665-2831.

PREGNANT?

Needs a pregnancy test, information or support? Call for free and confidential services ALTERNATIVES 33 Main Street Northampton 586-3000 or Greenfield 774-6010

SPRING BREAK

SPRING BREAK PARTY!
Travel to Jamaica, Mexico! And Panama City FLI Concerts! Free Parties! Club discounts! And lots more! For info call Denise 548-7156.

TRAVEL FAIR -Feb. 14- Student Union sponsored by TTRA and Campus Travel (on campus) 545-0500. Music, prizes!

TRAVEL

CAN'T AFFORD SPRING BREAK?
GUARANTEED GREAT PRICES with top collegiate company! Space available to Jamaica, Cancun, Acapulco and Panama City Beach Florida (the "new Daytona Beach")! MC/VISA ARE ACCEPTED! Call Cindy at 549-3538-please leave message!

CARIBBEAN - $189!
The warmth of the Caribbean or Mexican coast for a week!
R/T air, SUNHITCH + m, 212-864-2000

CLUB MED
Enjoy your spring break!!
Added value with each booking
Call Rendezvous Travel 1-800-336-1002

FLORIDA'S NEWEST HOT SPOT
Panama City-$139
Daytona Beach-$189
World's Biggest Beach PARTY
Daytona Beach-$189
Call Erika + Julie at 548-2649 or Siobhan + Terri at 546-5079.

HEY-THERE'S ONLY 30 days left till spring break, book your trip to Cancun with College Tours now. Come see us Feb. 14 in the S.U.B. For further info call Kathy & Jean 253-5140

MONTREAL WEEKENDS $89 price includes round trip motorcoach, 3 days 2 nights hotel suite, Breakfast, FREE admission to Club Metropolis
Reliable Tours
365 Broadway Rt. 1
Lynnfield, MA 01940
617-596-7930

SPRING BREAK TO DAYTONA!
Travel with Yankee Line Tours via deluxe motorcoach March 15-24, 1991.
*Campus pick-up & drop-off
*First class hotel accommodations!
*Best location, excellent night life!
*Only $259.00 (Quad Occ)
For more info contact: Scott (413) 256-0029
Reserve your spot before it's too late!

WAKE-N-BAKE!!! Spring Break '91!! Jamaica/Cancun from $459.00!! A week of fun and sun! The hottest destinations 1-800-426-7710

SPORTS

So. Conn. edges men's gymnastics

Collegian file photo

The pommel horse was one bright spot of the men's gymnastics' team performance as they fell to Southern Conn., 267-259 last night in New Haven.

By MICHAEL MORRISSEY
Collegian Correspondent

The University of Massachusetts men's gymnastics team lost a tough road meet last night to Southern Conn., 267.05-259.6.

The nationally ranked No. 14 team took five of the six events, dropping the UMass record to 3-2.

"They chipped away at us all night," said UMass head coach Roy Johnson. Adding to UMass' demise, Southern Conn. swept the top four individual all-around scores.

One bright spot for the Minutemen was the pommel horse, the only event the team won.

Freshman Joe Haran tied with So. Conn.'s Greg Tricola and Hector Salazar in that event with a score of 8.9.

Haran earned more points for UMass by winning the horizontal bar with a score of 9.25.

After sitting out the meet against MIT, senior Dave DiNucci competed in the vault and the horse. Johnson said he was pleased with DiNucci's performance, although the gymnast still is not competing at 100 percent.

"Dave only performed in two events tonight, and he's usually one of the all-arounds," Johnson said. "He is not at full strength right now."

Southern Conn.'s Salazar scored an impressive 55.05 in the all-around while teammate Shawn Simpson placed with a score of 54.0.

Simpson also received a 9.6 on the floor exercise, his best event.

The Minutemen next host Temple at 1 p.m. on Saturday in Boyden. Johnson said he expects a tough meet against an un-ranked Temple.

Leading the Owls is Bill Roth, who is one of the top five competitors in both the still rings and the parallel bars.

Women's gymnastics to host Bridgeport

By LYNN FRANKEL
Collegian Correspondent

The University of Massachusetts women's gymnastics team (3-1) is hoping to up their record Wednesday night when it hosts Bridgeport at 7:00 p.m. in Boyden.

Head coach Alfie Mitchell said he is looking for a big win in this dual meet. Although Bridgeport does not pose the same level of competition as Towson State or Pittsburgh, Mitchell said the win would help boost morale and give his younger gymnasts more confidence in collegiate competition.

"The team needs a strong, solid performance," Mitchell said. He said the team needs to focus on their performance and not on the other team. Mitchell went on to say that he wants this team to qualify itself for post season competition. The sooner he sees the full potential of his atheletes, the better. After senior Kristen Turmail's knee injury, Mitchell has come to expect great performances from his younger gymansts.

Freshman Margaret Furtado, who placed fourth in the all-around and third on the balance beam against Towson, is expected to step up and help lead the team this season.

Junior Tammy Marshall, who leads the all-around for Massachusetts, is a seasoned veteran. Mitchell said he has confidence in her consistency.

"Her performances are most pleasing to watch," he said. Mitchell said Marshall is a step above the rest of the competition. He said that Marshall enjoys competition and her goal of the season is to meet the qualifications of the National Championships in Alabama. Mitchell said he also expects an upgraded performance from Kim Grady. He said she has increased her difficulty on the floor exercise. Mitchell said if she 'hits it now,' she will be on the right track for the rest of the season.

Minutemen net A-10 win at WVU

MORGANTOWN, W.Va. (AP) — William Herndon scored 21 points and sparked a 16-2 second-half run yesterday to help the University of Massachusetts men's basketball team beat West Virginia in Atlantic 10 play.

Harper Williams scored 22 points and Jim McCoy added 23 as Massachusetts (15-8 overall, 8-6 in the league) avenged last week's 85-82 overtime loss to the Mountaineers in Amherst.

The second-half surge helped Massachusetts negate a career-high 37 points by Chris Brooks of West Virginia (12-10, 7-6). Brooks hit 16 of 19 shots from the floor, and 5 of 13 free throws.

Williams hit for 16 points and McCoy 10 as Massachusetts shot 68 percent from the field en route to a 45-42 halftime lead.

West Virgina took a 57-55 lead after Lawrence Pollard's 3-pointer with 15 minutes left and stretched the margin to 69-64 over the next five minutes.

But Herndon hit a layup and added a free throw when West Virginia's Charles Becton grabbed him from behind and was called for an intentional foul.

Herndon hit a driving layup on the ensuing possession to tie the score, setting the stage for the game-clinching run, which turned a 72-71 West Virginia lead into an 87-74 defecit.

Jeremy Bodkin added 17 points and Pollard tallied 14 for West Virginia.

For UMass, Rafer Giles made 4 of 5 3-pointers, finishing with 15 points, and Tony Barbee, in his second game back after missing three games with mononucleosis, had 14 points.

Massachusetts, 98-89

Massachusetts (98)
Williams 8-11 6-8 22, Herndon 8-8 5-8 21, Tate 0-0 0-0 0, Giles 5-8 1-2 15, McCoy 9-12 5-6 23, Barbee 4-9 6-6 14, Brown 1-3 1-2 3, K. Robinson 0-1 0-0 0, Meyer 0-0 0-0 0, C. Robinson 0-0 0-0 0. Totals 35-52 24-32 98

West Virginia (89)
Brooks 16-19 5-13 37, Greene 3-7 3-5 10, Bodkin 7-11 3-5 17, Leonard 1-8 4-4 7, Boyd 0-4 1-2 1, Pollard 4-7 4-6 14, Basey 1-5 0-0 3, Becton 0-5 0-2 0, Wilson 0-0 0-0 0. Totals 32-68 20-39 89

Halftime UMass 45, WVU 42 Three-point goals Giles 4, Pollard 2, Greene, Basey Fouled out Barbee Rebounds UMass 30 (Herndon 11), WVU 23 (Brooks 9). Assists UMass 15 (Herndon, Barbee 5), WVU 22 (Basey 7). Total fouls UMass 23, WVU 23. Technicals Williams, Calipari. A - &.091.

Ticket Policy

Tickets for Saturday's men's basketball game against Penn State will be distributed to students at the Cage Thursday between 12:30 p.m. and 5 p.m.

Remaining student tickets will be distributed Friday at the Cage, between 2 p.m. and 5 p.m.

One ticket will be given to each student with a valid student ID.

To guarantee a general admission seat in the student section, students with tickets must be at the Cage Saturday by 6:30 p.m.

Cage doors will open Saturday at 5:30 p.m. Tipoff is 7 p.m.

War puts athletics in its place

Greg Sukiennik

Sports, especially those of the professional variety, have always been blown out of proportion in American society.

That is, until something comes along to put games and diversions back in their place. Something like war. The night of January 16, I was upstairs in my room at home, writing my brother a letter. It concerned our beloved Buffalo Bills and their chances of winning Super Bowl XXV. At 6:45 p.m. my lit tle brother came upstairs. "Greg, you have to come down here and see this." I peeked in the den and looked at the TV. We were at war with Iraq, live on national television. Oh, my God.

So much for the Buffalo Bills. Indeed, so much for watching Connecticut vs. Syracuse, or North Carolina vs. N.C. State, both scheduled games that night. How could I think about college basketball or football or even championship monster truck racing when my peers were putting their lives on the line half a world away? For that matter, how could anyone think about sports when a war was on? For the moment, America's obsession with games had subsided, but only because something much more deadly, something real, had taken their place.

For now, at least, the war has been at the forefront of our consciousness, and as usual, sports imitates society. Every team in virtually every level of sport, from the pros to the high schools, has had flag patches sewn on their uniforms. The National Anthem has taken on new significance at sporting events, as, anyone who attended the UMass-Boston University men's basketball game at the Cage can attest to. But what happens when people start getting used to the war? We forget about the real world and jump back into fantasy mode, living vicariously through the exploits of Bo Jackson, Mike Greenwell, Ray Bourque and the like.

There is nothing wrong with sports by themselves. Sports mirror some of the best qualities people can have — dedication, effort, dealing equally well with winning and losing and persistance. Were none of this true, I wouldn't be writing for sports. I'd be spending my afternoons studying (now there's a novel thought) or watching cartoons.

However, while sports have their place, perhaps we ought to keep them in their place. I can't help but feel a bit useless writing about the Bruins while young women and men are risking death in some worthless desert.

Indeed, compared to questions of life and death, what do questions like "Who will the Patriots draft?" or statistics like batting average leaders among switch-hitters batting left-handed on artificial turf during night games in July mean?

I do care, because I enjoy what I do. But my priorities are a little straighter these days.

Greg Sukiennik is a Collegian staff member

With heart, Tate dives in

By SAM SILVERSTEIN
Collegian Staff

It's John Tate's job to grab rebounds, dive after loose balls and throw his 6-foot-8, 240-pound body around on defense. It's also John Tate's job to grab freshmen by the scruff of their neck when they get out of line, pick up the loose balls after practice, and throw in his two cents worth when the Universi-

CONTINUED ON PAGE 11

Collegian photo by Carrie Wyeth

Senior forward John Tate

Largest College Daily in New England

THE MASSACHUSETTS DAILY COLLEGIAN Established in 1890

VOLUME C THURSDAY, FEBRUARY 14, 1991 ISSUE 82

Man said to confess to Galligan slaying

Almost 14 months after University of Massachusetts junior Sharon Galligan was killed, state police are investigating a letter written by a Hampshire County Jail inmate confessing to the slaying, the Daily Hampshire Gazette reported yesterday.

The inmate, William J. Schumann, reportedly sent the Gazette a letter dated Jan. 2 which read: "I happened to run into her on the UMass campus, and I didn't like her much, but I continued to talk to her anyway. Then she told me she was majoring in psychology. That was enough for me to hear."

Schumann wrote that because Galligan, 20, was a psychology major, "she would have grown up to be a torturer and murderer. In fact, she was already plying her trade while in college," according to the Gazette.

Schumann is awaiting trial on charges of setting fire last year to a building at 88 Pomeroy Terrace, which housed the Northampton Area Mental Health Services, according to the Gazette.

Galligan, of Framingham, had occasionally volunteered to work with mentally ill patients. She was stabbed to death on the night of Dec. 18, 1989 in the parking lot of the Hampshire Mall in Hadley.

She was found in her car almost 21 hours later by a shopper. A composite sketch of the assailant was drawn from a description by an eyewitness who underwent hypnosis.

—SARAH DEMASTER

Homosexual couples talk love and marriage

By CHRIS MUTHER
Collegian Staff

Four homosexual couples, all of whom have been together for more than five years, spoke last night in a Valentine's Day panel discussion to dispel stereotypes surrounding gay and lesbian relationships and show that "Valentine's Day is not only for heterosexuals."

Joanne Gold and Jody Shapiro, who have been together for 15 years and were joined in a "commitment ceremony" three years ago, said they have been through many transitions, but said they have managed to stay together through good communication.

"A relationship is not a static thing, it's always changing," Gold said. "Jobs, living situations, issues of being out — it all requires a lot of talking through."

Shapiro said they have discussed having children several times but have run into complications.

"There is a lot of support in this area [for homosexuals], but step out of this area and you're in the real world," she said.

CONTINUED ON PAGE 2

Career fair picketed

By TAMIR LIPTON
Collegian Staff

As job-seeking students passed out resumes at the annual Career Fair in the Campus Center yesterday, a small group of anti-war demonstrators waged a silent protest against the companies they said are 'profiting from the war.'

About 15 students, faculty and staff held placards and passed out anti-war literature to students at the University of Massachusetts as part of a peaceful protest against companies such as Mobil Corp., American Cynamid, GTE, Eli-Lilly, Lincoln Labs at M.I.T., and Exxon Corp.

Raytheon Corp., which manufacturers the Patriot anti-aircraft missile, and Pratt and Whitney, a subsidiary of United Technologies, also a Department of Defense contractor, did not attend after being informed of the protests 'as a courtesy' by Mather Career Center Director Joan M. Stoia.

The fair was interrupted briefly when a woman with her hands painted red to symbolize blood screamed, "Wash your hands, wash your hands" as she was carried across the Campus Center Concourse by a man wearing an army uniform.

Approximately 50 companies attended the Career Fair, which provides an opportunity for graduating seniors to apply and question representatives of various companies.

"They got a right to protest," said Joe O'Brien, a recruiter from Mobil Corp. "I'm used to this sort of stuff, I went to UMass back in the 70s."

The protesters did not interrupt the fair, said Stoia, adding that she supported the students' right to protest.

"The center is here for all students," she said. "If they want to protest, that's their right and its fine with me."

"I think the fair is going great," she said. "I'm very pleased so far."

One of the protesters, Ferd Wulkan, a union organizer, said they were there "to point out that at the same time that we're in this war, there are parts of this country that are profiting from the war.

"My goal is not to say to an individual student not to work for a company," he said. "It's to inform them of how these companies are profiting."

But Mike Mueller, technical manager of American Cynamid, a corporation which researches and produces chemicals, said he was upset about a sheet being passed around by protesters titled, "What these companies won't tell you." He said much of the information regarding his company's work on certain chemicals was false.

For example, he said, the leaflet said American Cynamid, "researches and produces BST, a growth hormone for cows." The leaflet claimed that Bovine Somatotrophin, a growth hormone for cows, causes the animals' immune system to deteriorate and its use means that small farmers can no longer compete without the hormone.

Mueller said his company has stopped producing BST.

"I would say that nearly every company in here is making some money off of the war," Mueller said.

The bottom of the leaflet said: "These companies are part of the war economy which makes killing profitable and takes money from the people at home who really need it. Accepting even an office job means you too contribute to the killing and exploitation that goes on in their names. Is your future a career in killing?"

The Exxon representatives left the fair before noon, citing bad weather conditions.

Senate fails to reject administration's offer

By MARC ELLIOTT
Collegian Staff

A motion to reject the administration's proposal to create a commission to restructure the Student Government Association failed in the Undergraduate Student Senate last night after three hours of debate.

The majority of the senators supported the motion, but at the last minute a roll call vote revealed that the group was two senators short of the necessary minimum 32 for the vote to count.

Twenty-three of the 30 senators present approved of the motion, which stated that the senate would not support the commission but would consider a compromise.

"The Senate rejects, in its current form, the decree handed down by the administration on Febuary 12, 1991 regarding the status of the Student Government Association," read the response.

The response included a possible compromise expressed in the form of a memo written by the Student Attorney General Adam Scales, which would give the Student Senate considerably more power over the commission.

Some believed that the senators opposed to the motion left at the last minute to deliberately sabotage the vote.

In a memo sent by Vice Chancellor for Student Affairs Dennis Madson Tuesday, the administration said it would create a commission made up of students and faculty to restructure the SGA. The memo was met with severe resistance by many senators.

At the beginning of last night's senate meeting, the director of Student Activities Office, Irene Carew, urged the student senate to trust the administration.

"What I'm asking you to do is trust even though it looks awful," Carew said.

Sue Gordon, chairperson of the Board of Govenors, questioned the administration's trustworthiness.

"How can you expect there to be implicit trust between the student government and the administration, when there is unarguable precedence for distrust?" Gordon asked.

Gordon cited the case being pursued against the administration by the student government involving allegations that the administration mishandled the Student Activities Trust Fund.

"I was briefed on the Trust Fund Interest Suit the other day where I learned of the interest 'slush' fund, which was basically mismanaged and abused — being used to entertain, take trips, and fund uneeded positions with no accountability what-so-ever."

Carew admitted that the administration had its problems but was not malicious.

The SGA officers, who requested that the administration take action three weeks ago, told the student senate they had no choice in the matter.

"We are facing an issue of illusion versus reality," said Student Trustee Angus McQuilken. "We have two options. We can either ignore the administration's response, walk around and feel powerful and feel good about ourselves because we have banged our political weights."

"I suggest that the senate accept the offer that has been presented, come here next week, sit down, and haggle about the membership of the commission," he said.

But Sen. Kevin Newnan (Johnson) opposed this view and said the senate was already in the process of restructuring itself and should be allowed to continue.

Interpretations of Whitmore decision abound

By GAYLE LONG
Collegian Staff

University administrators said yesterday they are concerned about incorrect interpretations of plans to restructure the student government while students continued to voice a variety of opinions over the recent developments.

Vice Chancellor for Student Affairs Dennis Madson said the formation of a commission to restructure the Student Government Association did not entail a suspension of powers from the present student government, but rather initiated a partnership between students and administrators.

"I am hoping to provoke a constructive and stimulating partnership," Madson said. "Not only between students, but faculty and staff as well."

Madson said a commission comprising 23 faculty, students, and staff would examine the current structure and make recommendations that would be put up for student approval through a referendum vote later in the year.

But some students rejected the administration's involvement in student government, saying the SGA should work alone.

Student Sen. Kevin Newnan (Johnson) said the administration's idea of a partnership was a "sugar-coated attempt to sidestep student initiated processes."

News Analysis

"If you want to call what Mikhail Gorbechev is doing to the Baltic States a partnership, then I guess it is," said Newnan.

Meanwhile, student senators expressed anger with the administration for calling the commission's forming a "partnership."

Sen. Bob Monahan (Commuters), said the internal problems of the SGA are no reason for the administration to step in.

"If they want constructive talks with student leaders," said Monahan, "they should sit us down and work it out. They don't have to take control of the Student Activities Trust Fund."

"It's like having management set up the labor union," said Sen. Rob Witherall (Moore).

Sen. Ted Chambers (Commuters) said that in 1979, the students controlled the entire budget of the Trust Find, but that infighting between political factions on the Senate has made the SGA's goal of student unionization cloudy.

"There was a line in the sand," Chambers said. "And no one ever crossed it to go over to the administrators. No matter what anyone's political affiliation back then, it was students working with each other and not the administration."

But Madson said the administration had no interest in 'taking over student government."

On Tuesday, the administration announced the forming of a Commission on Student Governance, which would work in

CONTINUED ON PAGE 2

INSIDE:

THURSDAY, FEBRUARY 14, 1991
Page 6:
Mark B. Adler recalls Congressman Silvio O. Conte.
Page 8:
Everywoman's Center says less than five percent of rape victims seek center's help.
Pullout:
The Ricky Ford Quartet starts off the Magic Triangle Series tonight.

WEATHER

Buy your Valentine a parka. Weekend forecast calls for flurries, fog, and freezing cold. Highs 30-35.

THE MASSACHUSETTS
DAILY COLLEGIAN

New England's largest college daily newspaper. Circulation: 19,000. Published every weekday during the calendar semester. The Massachusetts Daily Collegian is a Registered Student Organization of the University of Massachusetts.

113 Campus Center, Amherst, MA, 01003
Phone (413) 545-3500 FAX (413) 545-1592

STAFF

Editor in Chief.....Terry Stamer
Managing Editor.....Jody Gabin
Editorial Editor.....Jeremy Levinson
News Editor.....Gayle Long
Sports Editor.....Adrien Matt
Arts Editor.....Danielle Dowling
Photography Editor.....K.A. Burke
Black Affairs Editor.....Sondra Sutton
Women's Issues Editors.....Rua Kelly, Monique Tabon
Multicultural Affairs Editor.....Alexander Nguyen
Third World Affairs Editor.....Pratip Dastidar
Lesbian, Bisexual, Gay Issues Editor.....Trystan Skeigh
Business Manager.....Susan George
Advertising Manager.....Dave Melnick
Finance Manager.....Beth Patterson
Circulation Manager.....Jim Winterbottom
Subscriptions Manager.....Stacey Rogers
Promotions Manager.....Marc Puskin
Production Manager.....Nicole Dumas
Day Graphics Manager.....Jenn Burns

PROFESSIONAL STAFF

Business.....Brian Harrington, Lori Black, Maureen Majerowski
Graphics.....Rory Evans

TODAY'S STAFF

Night Editor.....Nana Sacchetti
Copy Editor.....Yana "I Will Do The Story" Dlugy
Layout Technician.....Seth Kaye
Photo Technician.....Jeff Holland
Production Supervisor.....Seth Kaye
Typesetter.....Joanne Quimby
Production.....Mike Carvalho, Lisa Jezowski, Stephen Luhan, Ali Woolvich

For Your Information

THURSDAY, FEBRUARY 14

Film and Discussion — "Children of Fire" will be shown at 4 p.m. in Herter Auditorium (room 231). The film deals with the Palestinian uprising as seen through the eyes of the children.

Meeting — The first meeting of Club Communication at 5:30 p.m. in Machmer E-37.

An Analysis of the U.S.-Soviet Summit — A Five College Faculty Panel, sponsored by the Five College Program in Peace and World Security Studies, will be held at 8 p.m. in Converse Hall at Amherst College.

Poetry Reading — Richard Jackson will read his poetry at Memorial Hall at 6 p.m. Sponsored by the MFA program in the English department, as part of the Visiting Writers series.

Non-violence training sessions — at the Congregational Church in Northampton from 5:30 p.m. to 9:30 p.m. In preparation for the rally and action on Saturday 16, 1991.

SATURDAY, FEBRUARY 16

Rally and Non-violent Direct Action — A rally will be held at Westover Air Force base at 1:30 p.m. An affinity group formation and strategy session will be held at Hooker Auditorium at Mount Holyoke College from 9 a.m. to 12 a.m.

Valentine's

CONTINUED FROM PAGE 1

Tim Blake and Rob Ranney, who have been married for over seven years, said they chose to adopt "conventional" terms like marriage over "commitment ceremony" and husband over lover because they thought it was the best way to describe their situation.

"Husband is much more complete and accurate to describe our relationship," Blake said. "It [the definition] doesn't belong to only those sanctioned in a heterosexual relationship."

After passing around an album filled with wedding photos, the couple said they altered the "traditional" wedding ceremony to suit their own needs.

"Instead of exchanging rings, we exchanged earrings," Ranney said. "We also realized the concept of best man/maid of honor wouldn't work, so we had best friends."

Blake and Ranney said their relationship is further complicated because they are an interracial couple and there are several cultural differences.

"Whatever we are going through as a gay, interracial couple, I know that other couples have gone through it worse before," Ranney said.

The couple said they have gained acceptance by each other's family through persistence.

Pat Griffin and Maryanne Jennings, who have been together for over eight years, said their relationship evolved differently because they had met when they were both in their thirties.

"I had been in several relationships before and I decided I wanted this one to work out," Griffin said.

Jennings said one way the couple has been able to make things work is through common interests and differences.

"We have a lot in common, but we are also two very different people," Jennings said. "I think that makes for an interesting mix that keeps things exciting."

SGA

CONTINUED FROM PAGE 1

a helpful capacity with students, faculty and staff.

"We want to work for a stronger student voice," Madson said. "People have pointed out both the good and the bad points of student government, and we want to connect students with faculty and staff for this goal."

Dean of Students Jo Ann Vanin said the commission might come up with more than one idea for the SGA which could benefit the students.

"The commission will review a lot of things," she said. "The more open to ideas the commission is at the beginning, the better the product we could have."

One problem the commission could face, however, is if the referendum was voted down by the students.

"If that happens, we're back to the drawing board," she said.

Irene Carew, the director of Student Activities Office, said she was optimistic that the referendum would pass in May.

"I hope we're not being unrealistic with the May 1 deadline," Carew said. "But I am positive there will be a structure in place for September."

"No one wants to see this thing drag on," Vanin added.

AKOO'L DAY for jeans!

HAPPY VALENTINE'S DAY!

ALL AGES—ALL SHOWS
AT THE
COMEDY ZONE
FRIDAY & SATURDAY 8:30 pm
When you want the BEST*
Fried Rice • Spare Ribs • Buffet
•Live Comedy•
*Advocate 'Best of the Valley' reader poll 1990
Mon-Thurs 5pm-8pm
ALL YOU CAN EAT BUFFET
$5.99
11:30am-3pm
ALL YOU CAN EAT SUNDAY BRUNCH
$6.99
20%
OFF DINNER for Comedy Patrons
Comedy info & reservations 585-8615
PEKING GARDEN
Mandarin/Szechuen Cuisine
Open 7 Days
Route 9-Russell St. Hadley 586-1202

You'd Be Crazy To Go Anywhere Else!
Rosalie, Sarah, Yvette
Tina, Casey, Paula
Aerobics Asylum
CALL NOW
Semester Specials Available
586-7503
or come in for a Free Trial Class!
Offer Ends 2/18/91

FREE
1991
Student Travel Catalog!
Everything you need to know about:
•Student Travel
• Air Fares
• Rail Passes
• Car Rental/Leasing
•Work Abroad
•Study Abroad
•Int'l Student & Teacher ID
& MUCH MORE!!!
CALL for your FREE copy!
Council Travel
79 So. Pleasant St.
Amherst
413-256-1261

WORK FOR THE COLLEGIAN

WORK FOR THE COLLEGIAN

Our Annual Winter Sale
20% Off All Wool
(In stock only)
Feb 11 through Feb 23
11 Pleasant St., Northampton
Mon-Sat 10-5, Thur 'til 9

ACADEMICS: DATE OTHERS WHO WORK IN ACADEME
• Low-cost network serving Amherst and other areas in Northeast.
• Run by Ph.D.'s.
• Information is sent in a plain envelope; privacy assured.
Academic Companions•P.O. Box 193
Clinton, NY 13323

LOCAL

Collegian photo by K.A. Burke

PROTEST — A demonstrator holds anti-war literature outside the Career Fair in the Campus Center yesterday.

Library to receive more coin copiers

By GAYLE LONG
Collegian Staff

Many students returning to the University libraries this month have had to wait in long lines to use the photocopiers, preferring coin-operated machines to the more abundant copy card-operated models.

The University had been seeking to modernize the copiers by phasing out the coin-operated models in favor of 'copy cards,' where students buy cards with magnetic strips indicating the number of copies available on that card.

But Sandra Anderson, assistant director of administrative affairs for the University Library, said the University will take a slower approach to changing the system. Twelve coin-operated machines will be delivered by the end of this week to alleviate backups, she said.

"We should have eased into it," said Anderson. "I didn't think the transition would be so difficult."

As of today, Anderson said there are only two coin-operated photocopiers in the Tower Library. There are no coin-operated copiers in the other libraries, she said.

Anderson said the new system requires less work because workers no longer have to carry, collect and wrap the coins from the machines.

"Coins are labor-intensive," Anderson said. "And the new machines provide the best service for library customers.

The University renewed its contract this year with Boston Copy Company of Canton.

Although the library had blue copy cards in previous semesters which were purchased at reference desks in the libraries and at the University Store, Anderson said, this semester the copy cards are red and are purchased in vending machines located near the photocopiers in the libraries.

The automatic copy card dispensers, said Anderson, accept $5, $10 and $20 bills. If a library customer would like to write a check for the copy card, they should go to the Copy Center, at 151 Whitmore.

Anderson also said people presently holding blue copy cards with copies still on it can exchange them for new red ones at the Copy Center.

"We have a machine which reads the number of copies on the cards," said Anderson. "We will continue to issue replacement cards until March 29."

The minimum amount for a copy card is $5, said Anderson, which allows for 50 copies. Anderson said this is a competitive rate for the area.

By next year, Anderson said, library patrons can expect more card-controlled copiers than coin machines. But for now, she said, the libraries will be receiving more coin machines for peoples' convienence.

Anderson said in the Tower Library, there will be eight coin-operated copiers; two on the main floor, two on the second, and one on the third, fifth, eighth, sixth and ninth.

Also, there will be two in the Physical Sciences Library, and one each in the Morrill Library, School of Management Library, Music Library and one outside the Bursar's Office on the second floor of Whitmore.

New hotline provides information for reservists

By AMY HENRY
Collegian Staff

A toll-free hotline has been created by the National Lawyers Guild to provide information to military reserve officers, their families, or others concerned about the possibility of a draft.

Called the Desert Shield Military Law Project, the hotline was formed in December of last year to provide basic information to people who are trying to escape going to war, said Karen Moulding, hotline coordinator.

"A lot of reservists didn't have anywhere to turn," she said. "Seventy percent of the people who call are in some form of the military reserves. They call us because they never thought this would happen."

The hotline — 1-800-86-NO-WAR — does not give advice but instead refers callers to places they can find help, she said.

"We try to put them in touch with a counselor in their area who can help them with their particular case," Moulding said.

Since its inception the hotline has received a 100 calls a day, she said. The callers are mostly working people, relatives of reservists and people in college, she said.

"People are afraid to call from the base because they might be harassed so they often will have a relative call," she said.

Moulding said reservists told her many recruiters told them they would never see active duty.

"That was said to recruit them," she said. "The military does do some good things for people like giving them money for education."

Honorable discharges and other exemptions from active duty were revoked recently when President Bush passed a Stop Loss Regulation, forcing men and women to remain in the military longer than anticipated, she said.

"The regulation was signed by Bush to make it easier to call up people despite discharges," she said. "A lot of reservists are being told to report even if they have a medical problem."

Other people call who are concerned about the draft and want to be conscientious objectors, she said.

"They want to know how to prepare for the draft now," she said.

The National Lawyers Guild, which is financed by private donations, is also involved in projects concerning women's rights, labor, and other progressive issues, Moulding said.

Founded in 1937, the National Lawyers Guild is an association of over 10,000 progressive attorneys, law students and legal workers in over 200 chapters across the country.

DeFrantz says gender stereotyping is prevalent in sports television

By ADRIEN MATT
Collegian Staff

Subtitled "What's Wrong With This Picture?" by the president of the Amateur Athletic Foundation, Anita DeFrantz, the lecture "Gender Stereotyping in Sports Media" shed some light on the pictures of women in sports last night at Smith College.

"The first question is are women represented in sports media?" DeFrantz, the keynote speaker, asked a predominantly female audience numbering about 75.

She cited the AAF's research results which emcompassed "Gender Stereotyping in Televised Sports" and "Coverage of Women's Sports in Four Daily Newspapers," both of which are monographs published by the Association.

"Out of approximately 264 minutes of total sports coverage over a six-week period, 244 minutes [92 percent] covered men's sports, 12 minutes [5 percent] covered women's sports, and eight minutes [3 percent] covered gender-neutral topics," according to the monographs researching television's role.

DeFrantz explained the research methods involved in compiling the data for both monoliths, the quantitative description and qualitative description as well as the analysis and interpretation.

"When we first began [the research], we knew something was wrong but it wasn't immediately clear why," DeFrantz said. "But through the study we found some amazing results."

Comparing the televised coverage of the NCAAs Final Four (1989) men's and women's basketball tournaments.

CONTINUED ON PAGE 12

Storyteller spins tales of love, food, politics, and men

By EMILY HAYES
Collegian Correspondent

Storyteller Judith Black weaved political comment, fitness do's and don'ts, healthy descriptions of sumptuous desserts and failed relationships into sad and silly tales at Hillel House last evening.

The pre-Valentine's Day performance 'A Hilarious Look at the Insecurities of Single Life' was the second event of the Jewish Arts Festival and took place in the Hillel House Lounge.

Black is a professional storyteller and educator. A Wheelock College graduate, she is now a faculty member of Leslie College's Art Institute and has been telling stories for ten years. An educator and stage performer, she has won Parents Choice Magazine's 'Gold Medal Award' and Boston Parents Paper 'Gold Medal Family Entertainer of the Year.'

The performer confessed to the audience her compulsive trips to Stop and Shop to purchase five pints of Ben and Jerry's ice cream during low periods of her love life. She also succumbed to Entenmann's Pastries and cookies to heal her wounded heart in times of trial. The materialistic Brazillian at the parking garage drove her to binging at Brigham's Ice Cream.

With all the food talk, it was lucky there were plenty of free bagels and cream cheese for the audience of about 60 students.

Black urged them to check out the 'smorgasbord' during a ten minute intermission.

She acted out her relationships with three men during the show: Randy the choir director, the Brazillian with a nice posterior, and Ira, a sophisticated professor of international relations at Brandeis University. All three relationships failed during the performance, which made fun of the 'potholes on the highway' of Black's life. The characters are fictional but they are modeled on real men.'

"Some of them come to the performances and don't recognize themselves," Black said.

Though she joked about escaping the 'liberation police' to buy an issue of Cosmopolitan to be more attractive to the stuffy Ira, Black has always been involved with feminist, environmental, and human rights issues.

To close the show Black proclaimed, "I may teeter and fall in the potholes on the highway of life, but I will always keep my balance."

Photo by Paul Langdon

Storyteller Judith Black

UMass gets hip on recycling in the dorms

By DAVID MASSEY
Collegian Staff

Recycling of solid waste in the residence halls is gaining momentum with the start of the Residential Recycling Program's Blue Box Brigade competition and a new "pilot project" which collects and recycles glass, metal cans, cardboard, and clear plastic jugs in selected residence halls.

Designed by student Laura Gostenhofer for an internship last fall, this pilot project recycled 1.2 tons of material from six residence halls last semester. Gostenhofer, with the help of intern Roger Guzowski, hopes to increase the amount of materials collected and to include more dorms in the program.

"Once students learn that there is a recycling program in their residence hall and understand the importance of recycling, collection rates should greatly increase," Gostenhofer said.

The education coordinator of the program, Cheryl Brush, said students should place all metal food and beverage containers, such as soda and soup cans, glass bottles and clear plastic jugs in the recycling containers located in their buildings.

Cardboard, like pizza boxes, can be recycled only after the paper liners have been removed from the boxes, she said.

"The Residential Recycling Program would someday like to expand the number of buildings under the project as well as expand the variety of the material collected, but the current fiscal crisis at the University makes this impossible at the present time," Brush said.

The program has also started the second Blue Box Brigade competition, in which students compete to discover which residence hall can recycle the most amount of paper.

Rochelle Chambless, the promotions coordinator for this project, said recycling newsprint helps the University in many ways.

"Recycling newspapers in the residence halls helps save the University money by avoiding fees and fines at the Amherst landfill," she said. "It is therefore in the students best interest to recycle as much as possible in their residence halls. Our program is designed to give them that opportunity."

In order to raise interest in the competition, the number of pounds of newspaper collected per person in each building will be recorded and posted, she said. Currently in first place is Chadbourne, with 10.418 pounds per person.

Coming in last is Pierpont with .863 pounds per person. "As you can see, there is lots of room for improvement," Chambless said.

Students can recycle their newspapers by placing them in the blue plastic boxes on their floor. In most cases, these are located in the trash rooms, but blue boxes have also been placed in the kitchens or bathrooms on some floors.

Sherrill Baldwin, the program coordinator, said only newspaper should be placed in the boxes because glossy advertising inserts or cardboard can contaminate the newsprint and slow the recycling process.

Volunteers in the recycling program are planning several events throughout the semester to increase the newspaper recycling by 25 percent over last year, she said.

"Recycling not only saves energy, reduces pollution, and helps extend the life of the Amherst landfill — it will save students money in the long run and it's the law," Brush said.

Check out the new Hadley Pub SOMETHING IS ALWAYS HAPPENING AT THE HADLEY PUB
Thursday Feb 14
Live Squid
Friday Feb 15
Rippopotamus
Saturday Feb 16
Live Squid
Drink Special—65c Busch Draft

INTERNATIONAL CAREERS
Special Career Week Presentation
Today
4:00 PM
Campus Center Room 917
Panelists:
Lawrence Bill
International Sales Manager, Springfield Wire
Barbara Burn
Director, International Programs , UMass
Richard Hyman
Manager, College Relations, IBM
THE MATHER CAREER CENTER
Where Careers Take Off!
Call 545-4945 for details

Scott's LIQUORS
OPEN MON-SAT 8 AM-11 PM Tel: 549-2692
Enjoy the long weekend with...
Scott's Super Specials
Koch's Golden Anniversary 24-12 oz cans $8.99 +dep.
Pink Passion (with free water bottle) 2.0 $4.49
Red, White, Blue 12-12 oz cans $4.99 + dep.
Bacardi Rum (silver only) 750 ml $7.99
Budweiser Reg-Light-Dry 12-12 oz. cans $7.79 +dep.
Smirnoff Vodka 750 ml $7.49
WE WANT TO BE YOUR FAVORITE LIQUOR STORE!
Plenty of Free Parking•Diagonally Across from UMass Stadium
•Next to The Laundry Club
6 University Drive
at Newmarket Center, Amherst
Tele-check for your personal check
Scott's Gift Certificates
Mass lottery Season tickets
MEGABUCKS We Have It
We now have all Mass Lottery games!
Not responsible for Typographical Errors

EXCITING JOBS IN ALASKA
HIRING Men - Women. Summer/Year Round. Fishing, Canneries, Logging, Mining, Construction, Oil Companies. Skilled/Unskilled. Transportation
$600 plus weekly. CALL NOW!
1-206-736-7000, Ext. B407

Problem Skin?
come to
Aesthetics
For an alternative skin care treatment
Deep pore cleansing facials
Lash and brow tinting
Hair removal with wax
lip, brow, bikini, legs, etc.
34 Main St. • 253-9879

Disagreement abounds over eliminated GLB seats

By TRYSTAN SKEIGH
Collegian Staff

Some administrators and students fear the Board of Governors' elimination of two appointed seats representing the gay, lesbian, and bisexual community last semester has discouraged GLB students from becoming involved in student politics and believe the administration should step in.

News Analysis

Other students strongly disagree.

Former LBG Governor Laura Silver, who resigned yesterday after learning that the BOG has lost its power to allocate space in the Campus Center, said GLB students are now reluctant to serve on the BOG because of the "intense homophobia" there.

"The psychological climate at BOG meetings really sucked," she said. "Individuals have made derogatory statements about gays, lesbians and bisexuals in these meetings. The only reason I came back this semester is because no one else wants my job."

"The treatment the other LBG governor and I received while on the board last semester sent a message to GLB students on this campus that they'd better stay in the closet and not get politically involved or they will face a severe amount of abuse and contempt," Silver said. "This is unforgivable."

BOG Governor Bill Hewitt said he does not believe there is homophobia within the Board. "I don't see any homophobia existing at all," he said. "I would say there's a high degree of heterosexism."

Hewitt said administrators and students have misundertood the reasons why the seats were eliminated.

After the October debate, some students argued that the GLB seats were unnecessary because the community was represented by the Third World Caucus, which represents minorities on campus, Hewitt said. "This argument strongly influenced my vote against separate GLB seats," he said.

The BOG power to allocate space was frozen yesterday by the UMass administration as part of a plan to restructure student government. Silver said she had planned to stay on to ensure that the BOG would not revoke LBGA office space, but decided to leave when the administration halted the board's operation.

Silver and Chris Thomas, the second GLB governor, said the administration should have stepped in last semester when the BOG removed the seats.

BOG Governor Guy Glodis, who also voted to remove the seats, said the administration should not be involved with BOG affairs.

Glodis criticized statements made by administrators, arguing that they are out of touch with students. "I think [Campus Center Director] Bill Harris' position on appointed seats is way out of line, and [Assistant Dean of Students] Eileen Stewart has never been to a meeting, so how does she know how a BOG meeting should be run?" Glodis said.

Glodis said he voted to eliminate the seats last semester because he believes appointed seats are 'wrong,' and not because of homophobia. "I don't think the GLB seats should be singled out," he Glodis said. "I want to see all appointed seats gone."

Chris Macek, a teaching assistant at the University's Program for Gay, Lesbian, and Bisexual Concerns, said there is a serious problem with homophobia within the BOG.

Macek noted that out of eleven complaints of gay harassment filed with the Program last semster, seven complaints were associated with events at BOG meetings. Macek said some students filed

CONTINUED ON PAGE 11

The Five College Program in Peace & World Security Studies
PAWSS
Presents:
A MISSED OPPORTUNITY?
AN ANALYSIS OF THE POSTPONED U.S.—SOVIET SUMMIT
with:
A Five College Faculty Panel
ALLAN KRASS, Hampshire College
PETER ROWE, Smith College
WILLIAM TAUBMAN, Amherst College
Thursday, February 14th, 8:00 pm
Converse Hall, Amherst College
This event is free and open to the public. For more information call PAWSS at 549-4600, ext 519

RUSH PIKE
THE FRATERNITY WITH A COMMITMENT TO EXCELLENCE
Spring 1991 Open Rush
Feb 13, 14, 19, 20 8-10 p.m.
418 North Pleasant St., 549-4921
ALL UNIVERSITY MEN WELCOME
• LIFE LONG FRIENSHIPS
• STRONG ATHLETICS
- OLYMPIC WEIGHT ROOM
• CONVENIENT LOCATION

• UNPARALLELED SOCIAL LIFE
• STRESSED ACADEMICS
- Two Computers
- Course Files
• EXCELLENT MEAL PLAN
ΠΚΑ
PI KAPPA ALPHA

EDITORIAL/OPINION

The opinions on this page are those of the individual writer or cartoonist and do not necessarily reflect the views of the Collegian or the University unless otherwise noted.

From the editor

"There is so much to be said in favor of modern journalism. By giving us the opinions of the uneducated it keeps us in touch with the ignorance of the community."
-Oscar Wilde

Recently, concerns have been raised that the Ed/Op section of the Collegian has failed to present a fair portion of sentiment and opinion supportive of the Gulf War. I would like to take this opportunity to explain the processes that govern the selection of submissions as it relates to this issue.

The Ed/Op page receives four to six times the number of submissions it can actually publish. From this pool I must attempt to select a 'fair' sample of our community's opinions and thoughts. The only reasonable manner in which I can pursue this goal is to select a roughly proportionate sample of submissions.

Let me be clear. Submissions have been overwhelmingly against the war in the gulf. Those in support of the war have been few and far between. Accordingly, I try to retain this balance in what gets printed. If there is a bias in this process it is in favor of pro-war pieces; insofar as they are a rarity.

To select submissions any other way would be to distort the manner in which our community expresses itself through the Collegian. It would be irresponsible for me to present a non-representitive sample of submissions.

On one hand, I would ask that people understand that the Ed/Op page simply reflects the input we receive. We cannot be held responsible for the variety of opinions expressed by the community, nor their 'balance.'

On the other hand, like always, I would urge community members on all sides of the issues to feel encouraged to submit their thoughts and opinions for public perusal.

In Peace,
Jeremy P. Levinson
Editorial Editor

YELLOW RIBBON ROUND THE OLD OAK TREE

This place doesn't really suck

Far be it for me to be responsible for replacing the silver lining in every cloud, but Aleathea O'Dell's article ("This Place Really Sucks," Feb. 8) requires a reply.

In her own sarcastic and condescending way, Ms. O'Dell contends that the University of Massachusetts at Amherst is "crumbling" before her eyes, and lists instance after hackneyed instance as proof of her supposedly infallible theory.

As for Add/Drop maladies and the like, hers are no different than what any large university student should expect to deal with at some point in their four-plus years in higher education: with numbers come problems, as any college student remembers from his or her elementary math class.

As for tuition increases and combatting the state administration's lack of regard for this University's needs, I seriously doubt that the Chancellor — or Superman, for that matter — could do very much about the current fiscal melee in Massachusetts; if parochialism is the view of the world that Ms. O'Dell is striving for, she has certainly attained it.

I suggest that a proper remedy to begin to change the situations that she finds unworkable might be to join the SGA, which she so detests, so that she, too, may have the opportunity to change her university, rather than editorialize her college years away.

Lastly, let me emphasize my willingness to embrace Ms. O'Dell's right to express her opinion, but call to her attention that she may contribute to the problems of this university by referring to her adversaries as "mongoloids." With such blatant misuse of an outdated and derogatory term for a group of exceptional people, the campus very likely won't have the opportunity to worry about budget and Add/Drop questions, because it will first be forced to address social issues such as disability oppression.

Kristin L. Hammerton
Sylvan

Amidst the chaos going on in the world we've lost a friend

I had planned to write a column about love. However, as so often happens in the world of journalism, unplanned events transpire, preempting the efforts of columnists such as myself. Last Friday night, a tragedy occurred. While the event was not in the Gulf, Lithuania or New York, it will affect the entire United States. I am writing, of course, about the untimely death of Representative Silvio O. Conte, aged 69.

Congressman Conte, a Pittsfield native, represented the first district of Massachusetts, all of western Massachusetts, to the United States House of Representatives in Washington. He was not a well-known politician outside of Washington and his district, and while few residents of eastern Massachusetts have heard of him, his influence was felt in Boston, Worcester and Cape Cod. Perhaps the first time you heard about Silvio was when he died, but if you live in or near Amherst, Northampton, Springfield, Pittsfield or Greenfield, then he has been your man in Congress for over thirty years.

Conte was a vital governmental figure, helping the entire country, the commonwealth, his district and even this University. He was a Republican from a predominantly Democratic district in a prdominantly Democratic state, the only Massachusetts Republican in either House of Congress. He was, however, a liberal Republican, concerned about medical research and the environment. He is best known, nationally, as an advocate for the poor, but in his district he is well remembered for his dedication to education.

Mark B. Adler

He was the senior Republican on the powerful House Appropriations Committee, and this seniority is what gave our district and our state financial and political respectability. His popularity in western Massachusetts was phenomenal. Few can recall when he had a strong opponant in an election, or when an election had a close margin. His votes in Congress received applause from such liberal groups as the Americans for Democratic Action.

However, his dedication to the G.O.P. was evident every year when he coached his party's congressional baseball team against the Democrats. His victory poems were read from the House floor, much to the amusement of all his colleagues.

Recently, Conte stood out from his party as one of only three Republicans in the House voting against the War Resolution, although after hostilities commenced, he gave his full support to the President. Conte voted with the majority of the Congressmen in the late 60s, when he gave his support for the Tonkin Gulf Resolution, authorizing the Vietnam War. Conte hoped his personal opposition to military confrontation in Iraq would help to rectify his initial support for the Vietnam War. In fact, by 1968, his support turned against Vietnam.

His strong support for education is evident as one walks across this University campus. The new Polymer Research Building, still in progress near Marcus Hall, was already going to be named after him before he died.

Within eighteen weeks, a new Congressman will be elected from the first district. Whoever receives the vote will have to work for years to gain the reputation, power and popularity of Representative Conte. The Commonwealth lost a great friend and an effective politician just as it did when House Speaker Tip O'Neill Jr., a powerful Massachusetts Democratic Congressman and personal friend of Conte, resigned several years ago. Silvio O. Conte will be fondly remembered and missed for many years.

Mark B. Adler is a Collegian Columnist.

Ad tries to sell women

A recent advertisement for FTD flowers, which appeared in the Collegian, both infuriated and disgusted us. The ad read, in large letters, "Send early, Stay late." The not-so-subtle message of the ad was that if you send a woman flowers early, she may let you 'stay late.' This type of advertising infers that a woman can be 'bought' with flowers or a nice dinner, and contributes to the thinking that a woman 'owes' you something in return. This type of advertising plants the idea that men are entitled to something in return for the money spent on flowers or a date — exactly the mentality that leads to date rape.

We resent the tactic that FTD is using to sell their flowers. Such an expression of love should be offered with no strings attached, if it truly is to be an expression of love. Women must not feel that they are obligated or indebted to the giver. This 'payback' mentality makes many women feel subservient to the giver, reinforcing unequal relationships in our society. This type of advertising is irresponsible and deplorable.

Sheila Casey Kelley
Assistant to the Director, Legal Services Office
Two other LSO staff-members signed this letter

Behind the enemy's mask is our government

Picture for a moment the portrait of the perfect enemy. An enemy that's a threat to peace, a threat to stability, a threat to "the new world order" — an enemy that must be stopped.

This enemy has built up a huge supply of military power over the last 10 years, including chemical and nuclear weapons so vast that it is a clear threat to its neighbors, to world stability, and to the very survival of the planet. Wouldn't you agree that such a country must be stopped?

This enemy has attacked its neighbors without provocation and killed hundreds, perhaps thousands of innocent civilians in the process. Wouldn't you agree that any country that would do such a horrible thing must be stopped?

This enemy has censored the news its people hears throughout the Gulf Crisis. Wouldn't you agree that any country that would attack democratic ideals in this manner must be stopped?

This enemy has been known to slaughter its indigenous peoples and to ban them to barren lands where survival is difficult, if not impossible. Wouldn't you agree that any country that would treat its native peoples in such a way must be stopped?

If you answered yes to any of these questions, stop for a moment and look in the mirror. For we have seen the enemy and he is us. The country I'm describing is the United States of America.

The U.S. government is guilty of all these acts, and while so is Iraq, this begs a question: How can the U.S. sit in judgment of Iraq when our government has been guilty of the very same acts?

President Bush has used accusations such as these as moral leverage to justify his war against Iraq. What makes the U.S. more right or Iraq more wrong?

So think about this — especially if you are in favor of this war — what if the bombs were dropping on Boston instead of Baghdad? What if another country chose to judge us so harshly? Just think about it.

One last point...what would President Bush have done if Saddam Hussein (or anyone else, for that matter) formed a coalition and moved 200,000 troops into Costa Rica after the invasion of Panama? What would he have said if another country had given the U.S. an ultimatum to get out by a certain date or face the consequences? What would the president have done if the world had used the arguments outlined at the beginning of this article to justify that the U.S. is an evil force that must be stopped?

Ron Miller
Amherst

Why we need to protest those who profit from war

Why all the fuss about oil companies and defense contractors recruiting on campus? Because one aspect of the war in the Persian Gulf is not being talked about: Who is profiting from it. It's not you, and it's not me, and it's certainly not the people of the Middle East. It's Exxon. And Mobil. And those making the weapons. Here at home.

Marc Kenen

During the fourth quarter of 1990 (Oct., Nov., Dec.,), Exxon's profits were 221 percent higher than those for the same period in 1989. Mobil's profits rose by 46 percent in the same time comparison. For Exxon this translates into a profit of $1,560,000,000 for the three month period. For Mobil this translates into a profit of $651,000,000 for the same three month period. When people cry, "No blood for oil," I guess they got a point.

The Red Cross recently reported that over 5,000 Iraqi civilians have died in the bombing raids. Just yesterday, a bomb made a direct hit on a shelter in Iraq that reportedly killed 700-1000 women and children. It was a special kind of bomb that doesn't explode until a few seconds after impact. Just so those being killed can see what's going to kill them. Maybe it was one of those 'heat-seeking' bombs that zero in on a target that is radiating heat. Like the exhaust from an airplane. Or 1,000 civilians huddled in a shelter.

Who makes these bombs? United States military contractors. Like the ones recruiting this week. Why do they make them? Because the government pays top dollar for them. There's lots of money in making weapons. But eventually you have enough weapons and the government doesn't need anymore, and the ones already made haven't been tested in battle yet and you don't even know if they work. So you start a war, test them, use them so you can make some more.

We're in a recession but don't tell these guys. The military economy is flourishing once again. Star Wars has a new life. Exxon, Mobil and the oil man in the White House are thriving.

War is good for business.

We hear lots about how Raytheon makes this wonderful Patriot missile that's saving Israeli lives. But if we weren't bombing Iraqi civilians, Israeli lives wouldn't be in danger. And what about the Hawk, Trident, AMRAAM, and AEGIS missile systems that Raytheon produces. Are they saving lives in the Middle East? Or, are they destroying them?

United Technologies makes aircraft engines for the military. If air planes are going to drop bombs, they need engines. They also make attack helicopters. In the ground war, we'll need lots of them. The smart investor buys stock in United Technologies. Since the war started on Jan. 16, United Technologies' stock has risen 10 percent. So has Raytheon's. America loves a good weapon. Soon G.I. Joe will have his own little plastic Patriot and kids' rooms across the country will be filled with the sound of Patriots and Scuds in battle. A bright future we have.

This campus seems numb from the war. There are a few who wave the flag and say, "Support the troops." This one I can't figure out. How do you support the troops by sending them to their death? Don't you support the troops by trying to end the war? I read about this logic once in a book called 1984.

There are also a few who are clearly against the war. They have teach-ins, tables, and lots of leaflets but seem paralyzed by the sheer magnitude of what is happening. Meanwhile, the campus administration works towards civility. We even have a 'free-speech area' (since when is free-speech confined to a lounge for an hour a day?). They say, "We don't want anyone to get hurt." I say, "Then stop the bombing."

Meanwhile America sits transfixed in front of the television. Just another video game. Except this time we can't play. We just watch. And root. We cheer when our team hits a Scud. Oops, the debris falls in a neighborhood and destroys a couple hundred of homes. Oh well, have to work on this game. It still has some glitches in it.

Maybe Exxon and Mobil or a military contractor at the Career Fair will hire a few of you. Maybe you can be one of the lucky ones to have a job. I don't begrudge you that. Those picketing the Career Center on Tuesday never had any intention of preventing students from interviewing with those companies. There were only 20 of us there. But the companies pulled out. Why? Because they know they are profiting from the death and destruction of civilian lives and homes. And, they were told that some of us know, too.

And they don't want to be around while the rest of you find out.

Marc Kenen is a UMass graduate student

Given the choice: Critical thought versus blind 'patriotism'

I was shocked to read that someone at Friday's Pro-War rally said,"...free speech and free expression, are exactly what we're fighting for in that part of the Middle East." I'm curious, since our new foreign policy centers around peace, justice, and freedom, why hasn't the U.S. military gone into South Africa to crush the Apartheid system, or moved into countries like China, El Salvador, Israel, and the U.S.S.R.? We have strong ties to all these countries, but each one is guilty of restricting freedom and the murder of civilians. The U.S. doesn't particularly care, because these countries make us a lot of money. This war isn't about freedom, it's about the two things that are as American as apple pie, money and oil!

The U.S. says it will not tolerate naked aggression. A strange statement to make, when in the last ten years the U.S. has bombed and invaded countries like Panama, Grenada, and Libya. The reasons behind the U.S. attacks on other countries were no more sound than Hussein's reasons for invading Kuwait. A good sound thrashing given to a small country by the U.S., however, is just the thing to take everyone's mind off our domestic problems for a while.

It's easy to call Saddam Hussein evil, and compare him to Hitler because of his treatment of P.O.W.'s and the killing of civilians. Apparently it's even easier to forget that in Vietnam it was a common practice to throw Viet Cong P.O.W.s out of high flying helicopters, and to kill and burn entire villages that were suspected of collaborating with the enemy. We simply haven't earned the right to pass judgement on crimes we as a country have committed in the past.

Kevin Dimock

I grow tired of hearing people say that we have to support the war in order to support the troops. The best way to support the men and women serving overseas is to get them home alive. The ways to do this, are of course to either settle with Iraq or simply pull out. Sure, it might bruise the President's massive ego, but does that really matter? Peace with honor is a nice way of saying, "I'm too stupid and stubborn to realize when I've made a mistake."

If the men who founded the United States followed authority as blindly as the Republican Club wants us to, we would still be a British colony. I don't believe this is a just war. And, I for one, do not wish to be placed in the situation where I am forced to kill an Iraqi soldier who has probably been forced into exactly the same position.

Who would force me into a position like that? In a country supposedly based on freedom of choice, who would take away my freedom to choose whether or not I wish to fight? The gang of rich, White, old men in the White House, of course. They will reinstate the draft without a second thought when the death toll begins to mount. And why wouldn't they? Their sons and daughters will never have to fight in the war, they can buy their children's way out of anything. Just let the poor and middle class fight the war for the rich. That is, after all, the way of the wealthy in this world.

I may not be as 'patriotic' as the members of the Republican Club, but at least I've got enough brains in my head to question what the morons on Capital Hill tell us is right. If it comes down to a choice between brains and patriotism, I'll choose brains every time.

Kevin C. Dimock is a UMass student

Sometimes a corpse speaks volumes

IF ONLY THE DEAD COULD SPEAK...

"I hope you know that this (the demonstration) is a very disturbing sight," says a woman in Northampton, with a scowl of disapproval.

"Look at them (the dead soldiers) they just get to sleep all day," condescends a girl in Amherst standing with friends, observing with an air of distaste.

Jennifer Segedy

"Mommy, why are there dead people on the sidewalk?" asks an innocent child.

"Why don't you support our troops?!" a passerby shouts angrily.

In response to this last one, if those individuals had taken a short moment to read our signs, or had asked us what we are about, they would have realized that we are in full support of our troops. We would like them to come home alive. Every day we think of the countless lives that could be saved if we would pull out of the war now. Every time we demonstrate, posing as soldiers, we think of our troops. Lying on the ground, not moving for up to half an hour with a gas mask and a bloody outfit on, thoughts of what the men living through the real experience are feeling continuously run through my mind. There is a huge misconception that Pro-Peace and Anti-War advocates are also Anti-American and Anti-Troops. Is it Anti- American to want life for all of the people engaged in this senseless mess?

One of the most difficult things that I have encountered while doing our theater is witnessing the bewildered expressions of young children who pass by. As I peep up from the ground through my gas mask, I catch the wide-eyed, bewildered stares of small children being tugged past our demonstration by parents who are dreading the coming questions. I think it is disgusting that the attainment of peace in the world is such a struggle. I do not enjoy displaying such facets of life to children, or to anyone, but I feel that our actions are necessary in order to wake people up and make them think about what is going on.

For the woman in Northampton who found our demonstration to be "disturbing," I feel great pity. She perfectly represents the large number of Americans who tune out the war when it starts to upset them. They view the war's reality as an annoying inconvenience to their squeaky-clean American conscience. How dare we shake up her day by sprinkling unpleasant thoughts of war, of death, of reality into her life?!

Pity is also the emotion I hold for the young lady who cleverly deduced that I was dressed up in a bloody soldiers outfit and gas mask for a comfortable, relaxing street corner nap on the concrete. If that was all that she was able to grasp, then she is, like many others, in for some serious trouble in her life. I wish her luck in surviving reality.

I wanted desperately to enlighten her about the real world but being a dead soldier, I could not move. Being a dead soldier, I could not share my knowledge. If only the sight of my dead body had been enough to stir her. If only the countless corpses of past wars were enough to stir our nation. If only the soldiers already lost in the desert storm could tell us why they had to die, and what it is all about. If only the dead could speak.

Jennifer Segedy is a UMass student

Words are just tools

Hi. My name is Matthew Willis. I am writing in response to an article that appeared in the Collegian on Friday, Febuary 8. The article told those demonstrating against the war in the Persian Gulf that,"The freedoms that you are enjoying, free speech and free expression, are exactly what we're fighting for in that part of the Middle East."

I agree that in many ways, American citizens are indeed, lucky. Our government recognizes some basic human rights. Free speech is among these. In many places in the world you cannot simply, "say what you want."

But do you honestly believe we are trying to restore some sort of freedom to the people of Kuwait? Do you honestly believe the Kuwaiti people had freedoms that they previously enjoyed before Iraq invaded its borders? Kuwait is a feudalistic state! Its leaders had no interest in democracy or freedom. They were interested in their oil fields that made them money. Or maybe I'm wrong. I admit I am no expert on Kuwait. In fact, until it hit the news this summer, I had never heard of it. Had you?

Do you really think liberating Kuwait was Bush's intention when we started? Restoring Kuwait's budding democracy? If so, why are we not in South Africa? Why are we not in China?

No, free speech and expression are not Bush's motives. Words are propaganda tools to gain public support. There is clear evidence to support this. I'm not sure why the president got us into this, but it was not for the protection of democracy.

If you really believe that,"the freedoms that (we) are enjoying, free speech and free expression, are exactly what (we're) fighting for" — support this statement with evidence. You must explain why we do not have troops in every other part of the world where the rights of free speech and expression has been violated by a fascist government. You must also address why we are actually allied with many of these governments.

We must understand, not hate, our enemies, if we are ever to truly achieve peace.

Matthew Willis
Hampshire College

Center helps rape victims

By HEIDI BABINSKI
Collegian Correspondent

- Twenty-three percent of women on campus have been victims of rape or attempted rape.
- One in four women have been or will be sexually assaulted within a lifetime.
- One in three women will be raped.
- One in four girls are sexually abused before turning eighteen.
- Every fifteen seconds a woman is beaten.

These statistics from the Everywoman's Center's reveal a need for services at the University of Massachusetts and also cite that college-age students are the group at highest risk for date rape.

But only five percent of the above cases have sought help through the Everywoman's Center on campus, one of the third largest in the state in terms of services offered, said Deb Levy, Volunteer Coordinator of the Counselor/Advocate Program at the center. Assistance is free and available to people across Hampshire County.

"All of the volunteers have been trained to work with women who have been raped, battered, sexually assaulted, who are victims of sexual harassment, victims of incest, victims of child sexual abuse," Levy said. "So they're trained in crisis intervention and in general counseling skills, as well as legal and medical advocacy."

Counseling sessions stress positive coping strategies, sorting out feelings which develop after experiencing violence, Levy said. The counselors answer to emergencies and can accompany victims of violence to the hospital and if necessary, to court, she said.

Levy said the center also staffs a confidential, 24-hour hotline, where a counselor helps victims deal with crises.

"Our philosophy is an empowerment model, where we help to support victims as they make decisions for themselves," she said. "They need to regain a sense of their own control, because as a victim they've had power control used over them."

"Our services are not only for victims who are currently dealing with these issues, but also for people who have had these things happen to them in the past and are presently bothered and need support," Levy said.

Transportation plan unveiled

Plan 'prepares for next American century'

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Bush today unveiled a $105 billion, five-year program to "prepare for the next American century" in U.S. transportation by improving highways and mass transit systems and revamping transportation spending.

The plan released by Transportation Secretary Samuel Skinner includes increases over five years of 39 percent in highway funding to $20.3 billion; and 25 percent in mass transit to $2.9 billion.

It also increases spending for highway safety programs by 34 percent, and contains new incentives for private sector investment in toll roads.

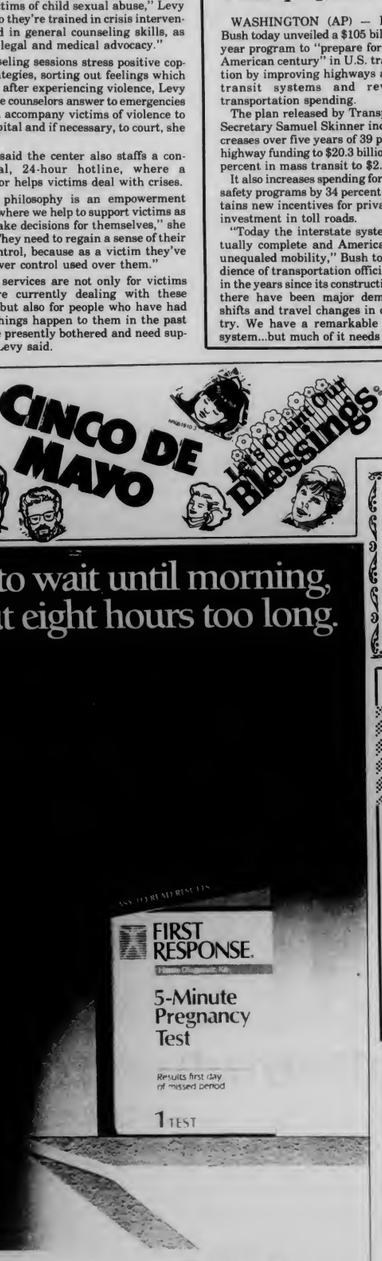
"Today the interstate system is virtually complete and Americans enjoy unequaled mobility," Bush told an audience of transportation officials. "But in the years since its construction began there have been major demographic shifts and travel changes in our country. We have a remarkable highway system...but much of it needs improvement. We need to move forward to meet the transportation needs of future generations."

The administration wants to get private enterprise involved in refurbishing roads and bridges and use tolls and user fees to help pay the costs. He said his plan also will give states and cities more flexibility in spending transportation dollars. They will be allowed to choose whether to spend federal dollars on highways or mass transit systems.

The plan also establishes a new national highway system of 150,000 miles of road that will include the already existing interstate system and principal arterial routes that will be given high priority for construction and repair.

"We've designed new legislation, the Surface Transportation Assistance Act to reform existing highway programs and increase funding for what works, to prepare for the next American century," Bush said.

When you have to wait until morning, nighttime is about eight hours too long.



You've missed your period. You're trying to sleep, but you can't stop thinking about it. You've got to know now.

So you use your FIRST RESPONSE® Pregnancy Test. Now you know. No more wondering. No more worrying. With the FIRST RESPONSE® Pregnancy Test, you can find out if you're pregnant in five minutes any time of the day—even on the first day of your missed period. It's 99% accurate in laboratory testing and it's easy to use.

If you have any questions, call us toll-free at 1-800-367-6022.

FIRST RESPONSE. Home Diagnostic Kits

We'll help put your mind at ease.

Tonya

I LOVE YOU

Trace

Every Tuesday in February

FREE Footlong Sub with purchase of another footlong sub

Reg Footlong Only☆ No Coupon Needed
Also other great specials:

Sat: Any Reg Footlong $2.99*
with purchase of a soda
Sun: Buy one get one for 99¢*

Good only at Rt 9 Hadley and Northampton Stores.
Both Stores Open Late Every Night
*Higher price prevails/Reg Footlong only

SUBWAY®

COME CLEAN WITH US!

Campus Coin Op
107 Sunderland Road, North Amherst
Open 7 a.m.-10 p.m.

SPEEDWASH
11 Pray St., Amherst
NOW OPEN 24 HOURS!

South Towne Commons Laundromat
479 West St., South Amherst
Open 7 a.m.-10 p.m.

REGION

Court allows LaLonde custody of daughter

BOSTON (AP) — The Massachusetts Appeals Court ruled Wednesday a Probate and Family Court judge acted properly in granting custody of a child to her father, despite allegations from the mother of sexual abuse.

In a unanimous ruling, the appeals court held that Virginia A. LaLonde of Marblehead, who was imprisoned in 1987 for contempt of court for removing the child from the state, had failed to prove her allegations of abuse.

Probate and Family Court Judge Mary C. Fitzpatrick had granted legal custody of the child to Stephen H. LaLonde, with physical custody to be shared jointly by the two parents.

"The mother has appealed, claiming principally that the judge was clearly wrong in failing to find that the father sexually abused this daughter," the appeals court wrote. "We affirm the judgement."

In the divorce decree, custody was granted jointly to both parents with physical custody to the mother.

Mrs. LaLonde raised her first complaints of sexual abuse in July 1985 and the child was examined by a court-appointed psychiatrist and by sexual abuse experts at North Shore Children's Hospital.

Over a period of 2½ years, the appeals court said, a variety of experts from various medical, psychological, social service and law enforcement disciplines examined the child to determine the truth.

"Beginning with the interviews with the North Shore trauma team, however, the child repeatedly swung between total retraction and steadfast affirmation of allegations of sexual abuse," the court wrote.

The appeals court said some experts, including Dr. Bruce Eissner, the court-appointed psychiatrist, concluded the child had been caught up in the emotional turmoil and stress of her parents' divorce, but there was no concrete evidence of sexual abuse.

In mid-1986, Mrs. LaLonde fled the state, returning on March 31, 1987, without the child.

She was held in contempt and jailed.

On Oct. 2, 1987, the child was found and taken into custody in Durham, N.C., and returned to Massachusetts.

The child was evaluated by the family crisis team at Cambridge Hospital, which again found no conclusive evidence of sexual abuse, but strong evidence of emotional trauma.

The case was reopened after mediation failed to settle the dispute between the parents.

At the trial, most witnesses testified there was no conclusive evidence of sexual abuse, while experts called by the mother testified the child showed evidence of abuse.

But the appeals court said, "Most certainly the psychological, psychiatric and gynecological evidence did not require a finding of sexual abuse and the judge was not clearly in error in deciding that the evidence had failed to establish that the child had been sexually abused by her father."

The court said the trial judge was within her rights to modify the custody order because of the events that took place during the lengthy case.

State initiates fundraising for Gulf soldiers

By EVE EPSTEIN
Associated Press

BOSTON — The state kicked off fundraising yesterday to give a bonus to residents who serve during the Persain Gulf war. One service woman's mother said the fund will ease her daughter's fears about coming home.

Cynthia Rheault, of Lowell, told those who gathered at the Statehouse that her daughter Rhonda's biggest fear is that veterans returning from the Persian Gulf won't receive a warm welcome.

"I asked her if she was afraid, if she was nervous, or if she was scared," Rheault said of a conversation she had with her daughter in January, shortly before the United Nations deadline for Iraq to leave Kuwait. "She replied, 'My only apprehension is how I will be perceived when I get home.'"

Rhonda Rheault, 25, who signed up for the Army Reserves, is working as a computer programmer in Saudi Arabia.

House Speaker Charles Flaherty, D-Cambridge, and Senate President William Bulger, D-Boston, originally proposed legislation to appropriate state money to create the "Hero's Welcome Fund."

The state offered a similiar bonus to returning veterans after World War II and the Korean and Vietnam wars.

In the spirit of the Weld Administration's entreprenuerial approach to government, Treasurer Joseph Malone suggested that the fund should come from private donations instead.

"As I travel around the state I find more and more people who want to show in a personal way their support for the volunteerswho are serving America in the Persian Gulf region," Malone said.

Flaherty, Malone and Gov. Weld banded together to show bipartisan suport for the fund. Bulger could not attend because he was on his way to the funeral for U.S. Rep. Silvio O. Conte.

A millitary band added patriotic flourish to the celebration, playing the "Star-Spangled Banner," and "God Bless America."

Congressional Medal of Honor winner Tom Hudner, who served 30 years in the Navy, said the fund is a good way to show support for the troops.

"We're sure the troops are going to realize that the Commonwealth of Massachusetts is proud of and in great support of all men and women in the Gulf area," he said.

The legislation proposed by Flaherty and Bulger would have allocated $1.7 milion to pay $300 to any state resident who serves in the military during the war and $500 to those assigned to the war theatre. State officials have set $1.7 million as a goal for the private fundraising effort.

Weld pointed out that some in the military are making great financial sacrifices. In order to compensate them fully for loss of income, it would cost about $20 million, he said.

'It's not as though a payment to returning veterans can ever be a fulll compensation to them and their families for the hardship and the sacrifices they made," Weld said.

But Weld said the fund carries an important symbolic message. "This commonwealth is solidly behind our men and women in the Gulf," he said.

DELTA UPSILON
Welcomes all University Men to OPEN RUSH

RUSH DATES
FEB 11 7 PM Press Night
FEB 12 7 PM Buffalo Wings
FEB 14 8 PM Featuring the band "NON MACHINE"
FEB 18 7 PM Press Night
FEB 19 7 PM Buffalo Wings
FEB 21 8 PM Open Rush

LOCATION
DELTA UPSILON HOUSE IS LOCATED ON 770 NORTH PLEASANT STREET, ACROSS FROM TOPPAN CTR.

ΔΥ

RÉSUMÉS
CopyCat Print Shop
• Great Service • Great Prices
228 Triangle St./Amherst 549-3840

Old Neighborhood®
The Hot Dog Expert's Hot Dog

Old Neighborhood, a leading, million-dollar manufacturer of quality food products, is seeking a professional individual to fill the following position:

Quality Control Inspector/Technician

Responsibilities include visual and physical inspection, sampling, testing of materials and the working environment to ensure conformance to established standards. Individual will perform microbiological testing, environmental swabbing, physical and chemical testing of products during precook, cooking, and postcooking operations.

To be considered, you must have a B.S. in food science with an emphasis on food chemistry, biochemistry or food sanitation. Familiarity with U.S.D.A. inspection procedures a definite plus.

Please forward your resume and salary history to:

Karen Channell
Old Neighborhood
37 Waterhill Street
Lynn, MA 01905

We are an Equal Opportunity Employer.

CONTACT LENS CARE
AT THE UNIVERSITY HEALTH SERVICES

- We take great pride in being able to fit many people who have had difficulty in the past wearing contact lenses.
- We offer a broad array of contact lenses with a large in-house inventory.
- We now offer the new daily wear disposable contact lenses.
- All fittings are done by our eye doctors with experience in contact lens care and solving contact lens problems.
- Emphasis is placed on your ocular health and professional service.

UHS EYE CARE PROGRAM

Convenient hours and convenient on campus location.

For questions or appointments, call 549-2671

Valentine's Day Special

SPECIAL
2 for $19.00
Steak & Chicken Combination or Shrimp & Scallop Combination

Full Bar • Exotic Specialties

Goten OF JAPAN
Rt. 116, Sunderland 413-665-3628
Open Tues.-Sat. at 5pm, Sun at 2
Reservations welcomed

Gift Certificates Available

Pearl Street
10 PEARL ST. NORTHAMPTON, MA
413 584-7771
HMP 99.3 FM
Valentine's Night Dance Party
Thursday, February 14
at Pearl Street Nightclub
WIN: FREE Cape Cod Cuddle & Bubble Vacations at the International Inn
662 MAIN STREET HYANNIS, CAPE COD, MA 02601 (508) 775-5600
INCLUDES: A five course prime rib or lobster diner. A lavish all you can eat buffet breakfast each morning. Complimetary hot and cold hors d'oeuvres and Cape Cod's best chili served early evenings in the lounge. A bottle of champagne, a mid-nite snack pack and a red rose for her, delivered to your room. Use of all hotel facilities.
18 & over welcome

CUDDLE & BUBBLE
IN A JACUZZI® BUILT FOR 2
TM 1988

Education board gripes about on-going problems

By ROBERT W. TROTT
Associated Press

BOSTON — The Board of Regents for Higher Education, fighting for its survival, outlined a five-point doctrine yesterday addressing the state's higher education problems at what could be its last metting.

"There is a death-wish in this state on public education," said board member Mary Lou Anderson, bemoaning what she called a lack of understanding about how the board operates and Gov. William F. Weld's proposal to do away with the panel.

The board's creed, titled "Five Principles of Agreement," agrued that:

"Public higher education has endured disproportionate budget cuts."

The state's budget for higher education in fiscal 1991 is $586 million, a 22.6 percent drop from 1988's $757 million. The overall state budget, meanwhile, has increased from $11.7 billion to $13.9 billion during the same time.

"If everybody had to put up with what we've had to put up with, we would be in a situation where the state deficit of $850 milion would in fact be a state surplus of $4 billion," said Board Chairman Paul Tsongas.

The Regent's contend that the Weld pain calls for cutting $74 million in the fiscal year that starts July 1, a savings Chancellor Randolph Bromery is predicted on closing three to five campuses out of the 29 now in the public higher education system.

"Politics is toxic to academic excellence," said Bromery.

Although second on the Regent's list, keeping politics out of higher education was the board's main concern yesterday. Weld has proposed eliminating the board, along with the chancellor's position and replacing them, along with the State Board of Education and the education commissioner, with a cabinet-level education secretariat.

"We've at least seen a norm that says that politics has no business on the campuses," Tsongas said. "The great concern that we have over the proposals that are forthcoming (is) that we're going to return to the pre-1980 era when politicians felt free to roam freely over the campuses... that prospect should chill every citizen of Massachusetts."

Regent Ronald M. Alman was more blunt. If the board was replaced by a governor-appointed secretariat, he said, "higher education would be prostituted in the Commonwealth."

The regents, who draw no state salary, said laypersons should ovesee the state's higher education system, a sentiment echoed by Holyoke Community College President David Bartley.

"Education is too important to be left to educators, and too important to be left to politicians," he said.

"Tuition increases ravage the aspiriations of working-class families," he said.

Tsongas said any increases in fees would amount to "a tax on working-class families" that can barely afford the cost of college tuitions now."

"Access and diversity are the moral basis of public higher education," he said.

That point was related to the tuition, said Tsongas.

"There's no equal opportunity if you can't afford it," he said.

Weld is proposing a tuition hike of 33 percent, which the board says would make Massachusetts the most expensive public education system in the nation.

The board has opposed closing any colllege campuses, but remains open to regional consolidation. Anderson said abolition of the board would jepordize colleges and universities.

"No college can close as long as we're sitting here," she said.

Bromery, who announced his retirement Monday to protest Weld's budget cuts, received a standing ovation from the board and other attending the hearing. Bromery plans to return to his tenured position as a professor of geophysicas at the University of Massachusetts in Amherst.

UNVERSITY OF MASSACHUSETTS

HOUSING SERVICES
RESIDENTIAL EDUCATION'S
1991-1992

Resident Assistant Selection Process

Qualifications

-Be a full-time undergraduate
-Have at least a 2.2 GPA
-Be free of disciplinary sanction
-For Prince House: Full time graduate or 4$ semester undergraduate RA

APPLICATIONS AVAILABLE NOW
Applications are available in Area Offices and cluster offices.
Also, look for our information table in the Campus Center

APPLICATION DEADLINE TODAY
FEBRUARY 14, 1991
Applications can be turned in at any Area Office between 9 a.m. and 4 p.m.

STUDENTS OF COLOR & INTERNATIONAL STUDENTS ARE ENCOURAGED TO APPLY

The University of Massachusetts at Amherst prohibits discrimination on the basis of race, color, religion, creed, sex, sexual preference, age, marital status, national origin, mental or physical disability, political belief or affiliation, membership or non-membership in any organization, or veteran status, in any aspect of the admission or treatment of students or in employment.

WORLD

Permits required for protests in Boston

By TONY ROGERS
The Associated Press

BOSTON — The City Council approved a resolution yesterday requiring protesters to get permits before demonstrating on city property, overriding opponets who argued that the measure trampled on free speech.

Councilor Albert L. "Dapper" O'Neil, an outspoken champion of a variety of conservative causes, introduced the resolution after demonstrators blocked traffic in downtown Boston Jan. 17 to protest the Persian Gulf War.

Noting that protests on that day alone cost the city $81,000 in police overtime, O'Neil asked his colleagues on the council: "Who pays the bills for this? How do we answer the people who were blocked on Storrow Drive?'

O'Neil said the measure merely called for enforcement of existing statues requiring protesters to get permits from the city's Real Property and Parks departments.

"It's mandated under the city ordinance that they shall have to have a permit," O'Neil said before the council meeting. "My order was just to enforce it. That's what I've been trying to explain to the leadheads out there."

The measure mandated that police immediately oust any protesters without permits from city property, something opponents called a dangerous infringement of First Amendment rights.

"This will have a chilling effect on people who want to protest," Councilor Charles Yancey said. "It's Gestapo-like, something you'd expect out of the Soviet Union in Lithuania."

Councilor David Scondras said he worried that police would arrest even small, orderly groups of demonstrators simply because they might not have a permit.

"This order is mostly symbolic, and when you're making a symbolic statement it's important to look at what you're saying," Scondras told the council. "I will not support the symbolism of police walking up to say, four people and arresting them."

The council removed language from the resolution calling for protesters to pay the costs of damages and overtime incurred as a result of demonstrations. But O'Neil said city demonstration permits already required protesters to pay such costs.

O'Neil said he was outraged by the recent rash of protests, citing one activist group who applied for a permit to place a 120-foot high inflatable condom at the city's government center.

"If they were ever given that permit, I would have been out there with a bow and arrow, and that would have been the end of that," O'Neil said.

"I'm tired of looking out my window and hearing people screeching," he added. "If those [protesters] are young enough and healthy enough to screech, they can join our heroes over there in the Gulf."

The council voted 11-2 for the resolution.

"Mr. O'Neil has reduced the First Amendment to screeching," Scondras said after the vote. "If he doesn't like screeching, maybe he should get into another line of work."

■ BOG

CONTINUED FROM PAGE 5

more than one report.

"We at the Program feel helpless in this situation because we are not in the division of the administration responsible for upholding students' rights within student government," Macek said. "I'm outraged and disgusted that the BOG's situation has gone this far without more direct action by the administrators who are directly responsible for this."

Pat Corrigan, another BOG governor who supports the removal of the BOG seats, does not believe that the meetings contain gay harassment.

"I think the BOG meetings are run as professionally as they can be given the circumstances," Corrigan said. "In a college as diverse as UMASS you're going to get some turbulence. I think it's natural."

Corrigan also disagrees with the view that the BOG is an advisory body. "The BOG is part advisory and part legislative. The committees are advisory," Corrigan said, "but the weekly meetings are legislative in nature."

Corrigan said he opposed the GLB seats "because I disagree with the concept of appointed seats and I think that in particular the LBGA has the least necessity for appointed seats."

Bill Harris, director of the Campus Center, said a memo has been sent to BOG Chairperson Sue Gordon "requesting the BOG reconsider and rescind" the decision to remove the GLB seats. Harris said that although the issue has not been brought to the BOG, it has been discussed in BOG executive meetings.

Attempts were made to contact Gordon for comment but she was not available.

Grant Ingle, director of the University's Office for Human Relations, believes the administration's reluctance to become directly involved in the issue stems from an attitude that homophobia is not as serious a problem as other types of discrimination.

"If this behavior was anti-Semitic or violated the rights of Black students, it wouldn't be allowed, but let's face it," Ingle said, "homophobia is the most socially acceptable type of bigotry. If analogous remarks were made against either of these other groups, that behavior would certainly be dealt with by the administration."

Europeans find a home

By LARS KROIJER
Collegian Staff

The new European Club got off to a "very successful" start with about 70 persons turning out for the first official general assembly yesterday in the University of Massachusetts Campus Center.

According to the club's president, Dimos Silverstriadis, the turnout was much higher than even the wildest expectations of the executive board.

About 34 persons joined the club during the reception after a session of questions and discussion.

"Normally if there are more than 30 people at your first meeting it is considered a success," said David Glass, an officer of the International Student Organization. "So I suppose this can only be possitive for the clubs future."

The club's advisor and head of the UMass political science department, Professor Eric Einhorn, made a short speech where he supported the initiative and stressed the importance of having a non-academic European gathering in the Five College area.

"We will help you out at first, and you have our full support," he said.

Silverstriadis emphasized the importance of the apparent support among the people that attended the meeting. He argued that this and the potential members in the Five College area could make the club grow large and influential in relatively short time.

Kristel Bohm, a UMass sophomore from Holland, said the meeting went well because it was based on a two-way communication where the European Club leaders asked for input from the audience.

In a speech, Silverstriadis announced that the Head of the Delegation of the Commission of the European Communities for the United Nations had accepted a request by the club to give a lecture at the University this spring.

Because of plans to restructure the Student Government Association, it will not be possible for the European Club to become a registered organization this spring. This may cause some economical difficulties, but according to Mikael Knie, the treasurer, there will be some fundraising events to cover the club's expenses.

DOWNHILL SKIING
N90A4370-16

JEWISH UNITY and SOLIDARITY VIGIL

Friday February 15 at 5:30pm
Meet at the Amherst Commons

All 5 College Community Members Are Welcome!
In case of heavy snow...meet at the UMass Hillel House — 5:30pm
For confirmation call — 549-1710 or 549-4131

Come TOGETHER to show concern and support for ISRAEL!

Sponsored by the 5-College Hillel

HAMPSHIRE FITNESS CLUB

Students Get A 10% Discount

With any 3, 6, 9 or 12 month Membership
Hurry Supplies are limited.

We have it all!

- Pool
- Racquetball
- Sauna
- Massage
- Computerized Bikes
- StairMasters
- Aerobics & Aqua-Aerobics
- Nautilus
- Tennis
- Jacuzzi
- Free Weights
- Rowing Machines

at Echo Hill Gatehouse Road
Amherst • 256-6446

■ women's basketball

CONTINUED FROM PAGE 16

Meanwhile, Hewelt is hoping that the Minutewomen can find some balance of their own and record their first win of the season.

"Lisa and Keyburn give us a one-two punch in the frontcourt," said Hewelt. "But we need balance. Having our perimeter players shoot 4-30 [vs. Duquesne] makes it difficult for Keyburn and Lisa because the opposition can key on them."

Hewelt is happy that the Minutewomen have cut down on their turnover total per game. But she's hoping that her team can kick the flu bug that she says is affecting half the squad, control the tempo to their liking and get that elusive first win.

"We'll throw everything we have at them," promised Hewelt.

Collegian photo by Carrie Wyeth

Keyburn McCusker and the UMass basketball team will be hosted by the Bonnies of St. Bonaventure at 7 p.m. tonight in New York.

■ lecture

CONTINUED FROM PAGE 3

the AAF found the types and levels of television production as well as the visual and verbal context of the games' introductions and halftime shows to be very uncomplimentary of women.

The use of statistics, graphic and verbal, was less frequent in women's games thus denying viewers less information about what they were seeing, she said. There were fewer camera angles in the women's productions and most were above court level and 'looking down or at' the athletes, whereas the camera angles for men's games were courtside thus 'looking up' at the athletes. The average number of instant replays were higher in men's (43) games than in women's (34).

DeFrantz cited use of language as an important factor in stereotyping. Female players were constantly 'marked' verbally and visually, and are verbally infantilized. She also said male athletes of color share some of this infantilization.

DeFrantz cited commentator's reference to athletes by their first name, first and last name and last name only. Women were referred to by their first name only 31 times, whereas only the first name was used to identify men 19 times. However, each of those 19 times, the athlete was a person of color, while white basketball players were never referred to by their first names only.

"Yes, there is something wrong with this picture," DeFrantz said in conclusion. "But we also have a great deal of opportunity to adjust it."

■ women's track

CONTINUED FROM PAGE 16

Also returning will be Lennice Johnson, who sat out last week due to tendinitis in her knee. At Smith, Johnson will run in the 200 and the 500.

"Lennice is still getting some treatment but she is gradually getting better," LaFreniere said. "When she runs on Saturday it will hurt some but she will have to suck it up."

A 'very bad cold' has some team members suffering. Lee Ann Ambrose, Cathy Crocker and Tana Henderson have not practiced since Sunday.

"They all feel lousy but they should be able to compete," LaFreniere said. "We are going to go easy on them."

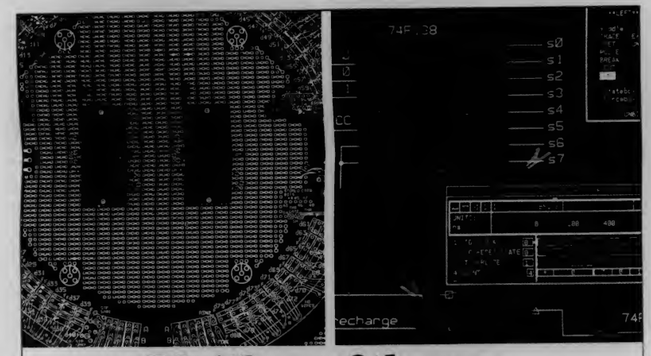
Ambrose and Henderson will compete in the 55- and 200-meter dashes. While Crocker will run the 800.

The UMass throwers will try to continue their recent run of success on Saturday. Simone Marisseau and Diane Ozzolek will both compete in both the 20-pound weight and the shot put.

Kelly Liljeblad will tune up for postseason competition when she runs the 1,500-meter. Michele St. Laurent will do likewise in the 1,000.

"Kelly is ready for the postseason now," LaFreniere said. "She is healthy and is ready to peak. Michelle ran well last week [qualifying for the New Englands] and this is just tune up."

"This is a good chance for us to a track work-out in and get some people ready for the postseason," she said. "It is a good natured meet and we will have some fun."



If either of these makes your pulse race, talk to us.

Having to get a real job isn't so bad.

Not when there's a place where the people get as pumped up about technology as you do.

A place where you work on real stuff right away. And red tape and bureaucracy are kept away.

Of course, there is a catch. We only want software and hardware professionals who like to be on the leading edge of high technology.

That's because our business is helping other high tech companies develop and produce tomorrow's products.

We're involved in electronic design automation, automatic test equipment, telecommunications test, and custom connections. All four of our businesses are market leaders.

Our work environment is, well, collegiate. And among other great benefits, we offer an educational assistance plan with 100% reimbursement—up front.

So talk to us. Or settle for a job that may turn out to be just work.

TERADYNE

Corporate Headquarters: Boston, MA Major Locations: Nashua, NH • Deerfield, IL • Agoura Hills, CA • Santa Clara, CA • Tokyo • United Kingdom

We'll be on campus: February 22, 1991

New Locations

Dances

Ballroom DANCING
to the Big Band Sound of:

LEON KRAFF AND HIS 10 PIECE ORCHESTRA

Saturday, February 23
Hadley American Legion Hall

Located on the North side of Highway 9 between Amherst and Northampton. One block East of stop light in Hadley

8:30-11:30 p.m.

Admission $7.50 at the door-each dance

Mt. TOM Ski Area

STUDENT DISCOUNTS ! !

Great Skiing .
Day & Night.
100% Snowmaking.
Expert Grooming.
&
So Close You Can See It!

$12.00 Midweek and Nights
$18.00 Weekends and Holidays

Bring Your Student I.D.

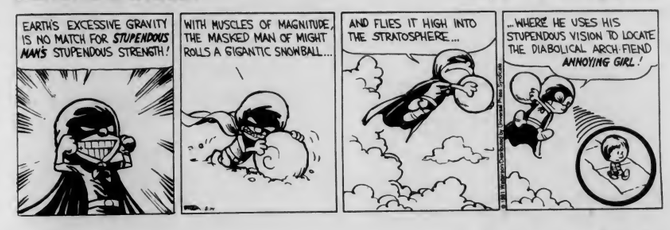
Mt. Tom Ski Area
Route 5 Holyoke MA 536-0416

DOONESBURY
By GARRY TRUDEAU

THE FAR SIDE
By GARY LARSON

In the days before feathers

CALVIN AND HOBBES
By BILL WATTERSON



FROTTER
By GARRY PORTER

SNOOKY LANSON
By E. VEZINA & R. SHAUGHNESSY

TANGELO PIE
By TIM SNIFFEN

QUOTE OF THE DAY

"Happy Valentine's Day"

DAILY CROSSWORD PUZZLE
Edited By TRUDE MICHEL JAFFE

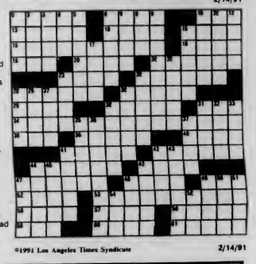
ACROSS
1 Mount —: Martinique volcano
6 O'Neill's Christie
10 "— for the Seesaw"
13 Author Loos
14 Thin layer of ore
15 Fisherty's "Man of —"
16 1974 hit
18 What Jack carried
19 Simple sugar
20 Even
21 Oner
23 City on the Aar
24 Seals
25 Watch out!
28 Type of train
29 Fine steed
30 Hebrew month
31 Accompaniment of cakes
34 February time for lovers
38 Understand
39 Surrounded by
40 Singer Horne
41 Of sinewy tissue
42 Stigmatizes
44 "We — amused": Queen Victoria
46 Joseph's prized possession
47 Papal garments
48 Pesky kid
49 "For — a jolly good fellow"
52 Church calendar
53 One's beloved
56 Town in can. Iran known for earthenware
57 Corrodes
58 Ooze
59 Japanese volcanic mountain
60 Mild expletive
61 Patch up a road

DOWN
1 — Alto
2 Cain's nephew
3 Still burning
4 Hot time, in Paris
5 Spring holiday
6 Pallid
7 Requirement
8 Industrialist's go
9 Nevadan, for one
10 Follow
11 Is at hand
12 Sole
15 Eliot's cruelest month
17 Weary
22 Playing marble
23 — au rhum
24 Ferber novel
25 Lowest male voice
26 Art Deco great
27 Make sinuous
28 "Whom God has joined together, — man..."
30 Stable sound
31 Capital of Yemen
32 Photography pioneer Edwin
33 Unfledged bird
35 Singer Franke
36 Raised in relief
37 Venetian blind strip
41 Criminal
42 Something to sail
43 On the contrary
44 Wall hanging
45 Popular medium
46 Helmet plume
47 Lady Chaplin
48 Gamma's predecessor
49 Loud, to Pierre
50 Character in "Siegfried"
51 Follows young or old
54 Conflict
55 River to the English Channel

ANSWER TO PREVIOUS PUZZLE:

H	A	L	O	S		O	R	I	A	N		W	A	P
A	L	O	N	E		V	E	R	Y		A	R	I	A
M	A	R	I	A		E	A	C	H		T	E	L	L
E	M	D	O	M	D	R	A	P	E		E	A	I	E
			N	A	R	S		T	E	R	S	E
A	B	C		N	C	O		R	E	A	M
G	E	A	R		S	O	M	E		S	A	U	L	T
A	D	I	O	S		K	I	P		T	I	M	E	S
R	E	N	U	M	B	E	R	E	D		N	I	N	A
			H	E	E	D		L	E	A		T	A	R
R	I	D	O	L	E		S	L	U	G	S
A	R	E	L		U	N	E	T	H	I	C	A	L
G	I	L	L		O	V	E	N		A	N	O	D	E
E	S	T	A		P	E	A	T		S	C	R	A	G
S	H	A	Y		T	A	D	S		T	E	E	M	S

2/14/91



©1991 Los Angeles Times Syndicate

2/14/91

MENU

LUNCH
Chicken Pucks
Rotini

DINNER
Egg Roll
Baked Chicken

BASICS LUNCH
Chicken Pucks
Rotini & Veggies

BASICS DINNER
Egg Roll
Baked Chicken

YOUR DAILY HOROSCOPE
By JEANE DIXON

ARIES (March 21-April 19): Get ready to take some giant steps on the career front. The speed with which you cover ground ensures a bright future. Emphasize an optimistic approach to romance. Your confidence is contagious!

TAURUS (April 20-May 20): Slow down if you are running on nervous energy. Sidestep confrontations and postpone making any major career or financial changes. Learn from an older person's experiences.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20): An honest emotional approach will reap rich rewards today; open your heart to someone who wants to be friends. Go over a legal contract with a fine-tooth comb. You cannot afford to be extravagant.

CANCER (June 21-July 22): Your efforts to make a strong impression could produce the wrong effect today. Make full use of your friends' talents but let them share in the profits. Spend more time on your own.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22): A new friendship could be the key to expanding your business. Do not take extra expenses lightly. Steer clear of someone's get-rich-quick scheme.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22): Rely on your intuition where finances are concerned. Your influence in employment affairs grows. Keep your sources secret. Catch up on world affairs. Look forward to a romantic evening.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22): An unexpected financial setback is possible; play it extra safe. Tackling challenges makes you a better person. You may have to make certain concessions to avoid fireworks on the home front.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21): Break loose from the same old routines. New places and experiences are a source of valuable inspiration. Check with experts before making a financial decision. Romance requires extra caution.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21): Any assistance you give others today will result in positive reviews. Contact with VIPs could mean new financial gains. A request is granted. Trust your strong inner voice.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19): Financial twists and turns could disrupt your way of life – do not press your luck. Stop hemming and hawing when higher-ups ask for your opinion. Say what is really on your mind.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18): Continue seeking prosperity through your job. Be willing to go that extra mile. A promotion or raise will follow. Cupid's arrow strikes its target tonight! Celebrate a recent victory.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20): Conservative work habits and financial policies will stand you in good stead now. Special service will bring preferential treatment. Open your mind to higher ambitions.

VALENTINES

SARAH HOT BUNBI To the sexy, sultry redhead on fourth floor crabtree—this is for you Amazon women! Will you be our Valentine? With love, every damn guy in the building

JONATHAN MYEROV
Some call you Slunkweed, messy, L.T. But poopie's the one that does it for me For the past 5 months you've been my man Making me so happy every way you can So this personal I wanted to send to you To say thanks for everything and I Love You!
I hope you have a very Happy Valentine's Day
Love,
Jennifer

INGRIDSON
When you happy
It nike gamare in sun
When you crabby,
It nike godzirre's bum
Merry Varenting Day
Being with you nike rubbing buddhe berry 50 time
Rove Richard Vu

BLUE EYES
Love is not just a fairy tale! Happy
Valentine's Day
Love ya
Pebbles

DIANA. C
Roomy and best friend, you're very special to me. Happy Valentine's Day
Love Toni

JON:G
Friends forever always.
Love, Toni

FROG
I'll do whatever it takes to make you my prince. Anything!
RuffRuf

CRAIG
Happy Valentine's Day
I Love You
Love forever and ever
Cindy

GEOFFREY - Happy Valentine's Day!! I love you always -Kim

PAPA
We nub new
Happy Valentine's Day
Love,
Scuttle and Toonces

KATE -Happy Valentine's Day to my favorite senetor -Love you Joe

* CHAD *
HAPPY VALENTINE'S DAY.
Happy 17 month anniversary! We're still havin fun, and you're still the one! Forget 402, 354 and 444! Tonight you are all mine! Be ready by 7pm! Still love me? I love you. A lot! Wendy SHELLEY RAE- Happy Valentine's Day! Dinner for 2 see you at Beardsleys.

Love, Rich

I'LL ALWAYS LOVE YOU MATTHEW GREEN Happy Valentine's Day, Sweetie. I miss you. Love, Kath

RICH TRAIGER Happy Valentine's Day! I hope our relationship continues to grow because you are very special to me. Love, Laura

JOANNE
To my best friend in the world-
I miss you! Happy V-day!
Love, Dena

TO THE HOT BLUE-EYED BABE
I said I'd never go out with,
I'm glad I did because now I'm the luckiest girl in the world.
I love you!
Christine

DEAREST LAURA
-I was scattered by your refusal, although Ted's consoling words have eased my pain, I still tremble for your embrace. I weep at the thought of our unrequited love. Please reconsider my love muffin. GG

SUZANNE-
Happy Valentine's Day cutie.
Let's make the most of it. Love,
Jayson

TIM GONAD -Since the evening of 10/9/87, I have enjoyed endless days and nights of fun, love and romance! I am looking forward to many more as we spend the rest of our lives together. Will your be my valentine?
I LOVE YOU -JEN

MCNME4-EVER!
HAPPY V-DAY ..TK

DIANE DAVIS- Do you have any idea what you do to me? -Matt -Happy Valentine's Day

SCOTT -
There will never be the need for a fourth time. I'll always love you! Happy Valentine's Day
Love,
All my love,
Anne

GREGG,
It's me from room 124
Just want you to know that one sure thing is that
I Love You.
Have fun in the city this weekend.
Happy Valentine's Day
Love, The Sure Thing

LAURIE -Happy Valentine's Day.
The past five months have been great and it gets better every day.
I love you very much!
MATT

HAPPY VALENTINE'S DAY HANKIE! Will you be mine? Love always, Little Girl

JENNIFER, Happy Valentine's Day! Your the greatest thing that has ever happened to me. I love you so much!.
Chad

DANNY WHITE,
Happy Valentine's Day
I love you always
See you at 6 sharp, my treat
Love, Tracy

RICH CAMPBELL Happy 22nd birthday to my valentine. It'll be a long 12 days without you! I'll miss you. Love, Robyn

HAPPY BIRTHDAY WEEK and valentine's day Joe! Are you gonna keep me? I love you-Keyla

BUD! We're on our fifth valentine's day together, and they've only gotten better! I love you. Always, Pazey

POOH
-I LOVE YOU
—BUG

PATRICK,
Happy Valentine's Day!
I love you
Heather

FOUND -eternal bliss with world's most caring, fun-loving, sincere, gentle, and exhilorationgly beautiful woman. Thank you, Meredith for all you've been to me. Happy Valentine's Day!
Love, Jerry

PURPLEHEAD - U want to wear my boots?? Valentine's is a good time.. To say I love U and for TLS!!! Later later! Grumpy

LANCE CORPORAL BRIAN SNYDER- Valentine greetings to our favorite marine in the Gulf. We love you and miss you Scoobie! Semper Fi- Love, Ari and Duck

MY SWEET THING
I will follow you to the end of the earth (or to Mexico!) Happy Valentine's Day! Love, your Smiley Snuggly Heather

HEY NUMBER 39! Will you be my valentine? I love you! Love, Renee

JEEPS
When I'm not there, In spirit I'll be there.
Love, Rupert

SUSAN
Mon therie
Vivre pour toi mourir pour toi
Ne laissez pas me vie sans toi
Je t'eimereis toujours
DUC

MARY IN 222 CHADBOURNE: I got somethin to say, please be my valentine lo-day. It would make me so happy, gee, I think a getting sappy. I got somethin to say, will me be your valentine today. It would make me so happy, these rhymes go beyond crappy. Oh lovely mary, I direct to you this query: How bout dinner next Saturday?
.XXXOOO
Metalhead

B-MAN:
My soul has become contented,
My heart blissfully enraptured,
And my life more complete since
The day you let me into yours.
You make me just plain damn happy!!
Happy first V-day,
All my love,
Julie

SHEILA, Happy Valentine's Day with warm and loving thoughts
Love, Matt

MY SWEETEST JAMLEE,
Happy 10 months
I Love You
-Yours,
--Putty Tet

SAMEER PITU,
You re the best!
Fond of you too

JERRY-
Mush Mush, Woof Woof
Lisa and Sue

MIKE MURPHY
Happy Valentine's Day
The times spent with you have been very special. Thank you.
Love Tracy

HEY GLENN CHAMUEL.
Happy Valentine's Day Babe!
Love Caryn
P.S Tell me again.

KELLY,
or should I say STUMP!
Cosby Show Thursday night.
What a great way to spend Valentine's Day. Maybe Cupid will make your ultimate wish come true.
From a Secret Admirer

MUFFIN
These past 11 months have been great. I love you more and more every day. Happy Valentine's Day.
Love Always,
Tommy

FUNKY WENCERBEAN,
You stole my heart before I could open my eyes.
To see a world so new I could hardly realize
And how much I love you and love so strong
You were the one with whom I wanted to belong.
As we continue to share our lives and our love
With blessings from the gods in the heavens above
I hope you know how much you mean to me
And that I shall love you for all of eternity.
-Happy Valentine's Day! Happy Anniversary!
Love Always,
Cere Bear

LISA,
Thanks for everything you do, and for always being there for me
You're the Best!
Love, Sue

SOME HANDSOME MAN-
I need you! -I want you! -
I must have you! Please?!
Love, S.

KAREN ANN DELOREY, You are the love of my life. My love grows stronger every day for you. Be my valentine! I love you. Love, Michael Morrissey

TO MY PETITE BALLERINA PRINCESS,
Happy Valentine's Day!
(That makes 3)
I love you baby!
Love,
Your Big Blue-Eyed Boy

MICHELLE B., roses are red, violets are blue, it hasn't taken long for me to fall in love with you. PETE

HAPPY V-DAY 2 my other half on the dance floor. Let's grind all night, then wake me in the morning with e smile. Positively entertaining 24/7
The Cat in the Hat

TAMMY, Thank you for the best 1 year 4 months of my life. Happy Anniversary and Happy Valentine's Day. I love you.
Greg

MISS PIGGY,
I love You!
Oscar

DIANE FONG,
I had a great weekend.
Hope to do it again real soon
Call me
HAPPY VALENTINE'S DAY
JON

SCOTT
There is no one I would want more as a valentine than you I love you -Vin

CRAIG,
Thanks for a memorable year.
From me to you.
Happy anniv. And Val.
I Love You!

S B.
Two years ago today
A dozen roses I gave to you.
Ever since, good times and bad
We've seen each other through
Now, all I want to say,
Is that I love you.
-Ugh

TO THE BLUE eyed babe that I met in the Hatch. How about dinner Thursday night?
Later, FM

TO NICOLE,
I love you and I'll see you this weekend.
Love John (from Bermuda) XO

DAVID,
Will you be my valentine?
Love, DANA

DEAR DAMAGE INC.
We have shared so many beautiful moments in the past 17 months. I want to tell you how much your love means to me and how much I love you back. HAPPY VALENTINE'S DAY sweetheart-see you at Seasons tonight. Love, Turk

BRIAN, Happy Valentine's Day! Our fourth one together. These years have been the best of my life. I don't want it to ever end. I Love You with all my heart. Ingrid

MTSK-1
Happy 2nd V-day!
Concert tickets right?!
Harrier lecture Hall?!
I Love You!
-Your Baby-

SCOTT -Happy Valentine's Day! -We've had a great time -N. Cracker, Key West, 228...and look forward to many more-Love K.

MICHELE
We hope you're having fun in Spain, but come home soon!
I miss isn't the same without you!
Feliz de los enamorados!!
We love you and miss you lots!
Love Robyn and Sheila

TO MY DIE TECH KING-
Did you think I'd forget you this year?
No way man!!
Out of sight definately doesn't mean out of mind!
Happy 4th Valentine's Day!!
Love You (and more, too!!!)
Love, the dream team queen

LUBNER,
I love you muchaa!
Happy Valentine's Day
Love, Stack

MARKY SPARKY! Are you ready to go because our reservation is calling us! I love you! Elizabeth

PAULUS CAECILIUS MAXIMUS-
Semper ame Buzz et The Selecter, quod semper se emedo. --Tue ragazze

JENNG, MICHAELA, SUZANNE -I love you guys. You hot babes!!!

OSCAR MATOS
To the spicy letino guy (bow wow) from the spicy letino woman (meow meow)

HEY RICO SAUVE
Bleme it on the tet penguin!
Happy Slothenine's Day!

HUD PLUMB
One of my life! Remember 1988?
Hugs-n-Kisses!
Snuggles-n-Love!
Forever yours
All my love! Happy Valentine's 1991
-Martha

LENNY LOVER
My favorite valentine for the second time
Love you, Dee

STACI-JOYE
!! Love You!!
Have a very dandy valentine's day!
PPSEE YA. RCK

SONYA - HAPPY VALENTINE'S DAY!!! Let's wiggle it again this weekend!! I'm eagerly looking forward to another special moment with you.
With much love, James

ROB Happy Valentine's Day! I love you. Your little Banana

DAVID,
Will you be my valentine?
Love, DANA

DEAR "BRUTUS"
Happy Valentine's Day! Thank you for the warmth, kindness, and caring you have shown me. The past ten months have been the best of my life!
All of my love, ("George"
P.S. Remember that "I carry your heart"

TAMI MY SHAYNA MADEL-
I love you so much I sometimes think my heart will burst.
Happy five months you beautiful woman
Con Todo Mi Corazon, Ali

TO THAT GROOVY STUD, MAX-
It's time to plow the fields!
Happy Valentine's Day-Boy Toy

MARCELLA TURNER IN BAKER
I hope you have a wonderful Valentine's Day
-An admiring man In Chadbourne

TAM-
The other one got kinda mushy-oops
Wanna play home home sonite? Heh-heh. Ali

MICHAEL WALL -I saw you in Adolecent Psych -I think you're hot! Maybe we could see Ghost tonight and then go to Judies--A shy redhead-Valentine

STONE SWALLOW
Greetings my love
I want you to know that I love you with all my heart
Happy Valentine's Day
Love, Brian

LARA D. -Can I tell you, every day with you is the best day of my life. Looking forward to many more. Happy Valentine's Day. I love you! -- Pat

SUNNY! Happy 22nd Birthday! May all your wishes come true! Love, Marisa, Melissa, Heether, and Elaine

SUZANNE BROONEY
Happy Valentine's Day
Looking forward to one year
Miss you -see you soon
Love Bill

BUNNY,
Happy Valentine's Day, Baby!
I Love You,
Tiger

TO JAMIE my one and only huggable one
Happy Valentine's Day and great five months! I Love You! Your Jess!

MICHAEL BENBENEK - I Love You!
Got a problem??? - What does:
The Pub + Mel'w(?) Mobil +BS2's + York Beach + July 8th -equal?
beautiful, special, wonderful your together - one I will always remember w/ many, many more to come!
Happy Valentine's Day / Anniversary!
Love Always -Ann

ANDREW,
You're handsome and sexy and cure and attractive and charming and I like you a lot
Now you have it in writing and everyone knows
Happy Valentine's Day.

PAT O'KEEFE
Happy Valentine's- Day
I Love You So Much!
Love, Kristine XOXO

DAVID H. CHAIT:
On this second valentine's day together, I just want to tell you how much I love and respect you, of how special you are to me this day and everyday. I Love You- KIM

HAPPY VALENTINE'S DAY to my sweetheart, Donny
Love, Brenda

PAM McCARTHY
Happy Valentine's Day to my smut-mouthed housemate. You're awesome, kiddo. Don't ever change.
XOXO's ADRIEN

JEN BREHM
Happy Valentine's Day! God, do I miss that California weather. We're definately on the wrong coast!
XOXOs ADRIEN

KATHY TIBBETTS -Happy Valentine's Day! Happy one year anniversary!
This has been the best year of my life. I love you more than ever!
Hope today and every day is excellent!
Love your Jimmy
PS- Ask me for your surprise today!

BRITT:
Do they have Valentine's Day In Norway? I still can't believe you cheat in cards. The six of spades doesn't beat everything!! Believe yourself tonight; Don't do anything I wouldn't do.

HEY VICTORIA, What's your secret? (and how can I find out?)

BRENDA
Happy Valentine's Day and always remember those certain things I say to you. Thanks for a great 11½ months I Love You -Don

TONI,
The last 4 months have been the best. You have made me the happiest guy on campus. You are a very special person and I'm glad we're together. Here's to many more 4 months.
Oki Blue Eyes
PS- Happy Valentine's Day

GREGGIEPOO!
Happy first Valentines and congratulations on making a year. I love you only and I'll never let u go! Love, the one you love the mostest

NEIL -Just thinking of you. The first and last time we had spoken was the 10,000 Maniacs concert. Just wanted to say hello.
Jersey Girl

TO THE GUY in tears & bruises
Happy Valentine's Day
Love the girl who eats gum off the sidewalk!

NICOLE, MELISSA AND GINNY
Happy Valentine's Day
I love you!-Lori

JANNA,
You are more beautiful than a sunset in Maine
Let me share in your happiness,
I will only make it greater.
Love You,
Devid

HAPPY VALENTINE'S DAY
To 3-Amy Mackimmie
Lori and Kack

PETE
Happy Valentine's Day
and 5-months together
Thanks for being my best friend.
Elephantshoe
Kack

TO RACHEL HOPKINS of Tri Sigma
You have a dirty disgusting mind- that's why I love you -Happy Valentine's Day -Love Aaan

TO THE HOT BABES in 25 Townhouse (you too Peach & Todd!)
Happy Valentine's Day
Love, Spanky

PRINCESS,
I just wanted to wish you a Happy Valentine's Day. I want you to know that I love you and don't forget. We will have fun Saturday night too.
Love Always,
Kire

HEY MIKE MARA!
I LOVE YOU! The last year has been the best. I hope we have many more. (sorry about the P.O.A. -I couldn't resist!)
Love, Cher(iMera?)

JIM,
We've been through a lot this past year and all I can say is thank you. You've taught me so much when it comes to video games, good restaurants, how to just let loose and have fun, and most of all STAR TREK!!!
Anyway, I LOVE YOU more than you could ever imagine! Happy anniversary and Happy Valentine's Day!
Love always, Kathy

JENNY -Thanks for all the memories
Happy Valentine's Day
Love-Andy

CARY M. -Happy Valentine's Day- Creg

HEY WIN -Happy Valentine's Day! May this special man with the nice cheekbones give you flowers.
Love you, Lise

BOOTS:
Love me and the twishies. 4-ever!
1-4-3! -J.F.

CHRIS- I love you very much. Thank you for everything. Happy Valentine's Day -Bear

CHESLEY, you sure is an exquisite valentine! I love you! Lisa(Sparky)

CA, Happy Valentine's Day, Boo. I love you.
Bri

LISA PRESS
Valerie: it took us four years to talk and I didn't want to wait four more years to say Happy Valentine's Day.
Love, Jeff

KAREN
Hey you are pretty cute.
Let's go out some time.
Happy Valentine's Day
Mr. Macho in Mktg 425

MEREDITH & AMY
Let me show you my new skirt
Happy Val Day, John

BEN
I went to be more than friends
Sincerely, too shy

SILLY
Happy Heart Day.
Thinking of you.
Love,
Goofball

MONIQUE:
Even though it took me an entire semester to get you to talk to me, you finally did. I guess my persistence paid off. I think it may have been the soup. Whatever it was, it worked and I'm glad it did.

CHRIS C.
Welcome home! I am glad you are back. I missed you last semester and I miss you even more now that I am not here!
Happy Valentine's Day
Love Bill

DUC VAN LE
Em lieu Anh
Love Susan B.

ALI-
Happy Valentine's Dey -I love you very much!
Hugs & Kisses
Tetts

YES SCOTT GARSTKA, this ad's for you!! Thanks for all the love and endless support you've given me over the past 18 months. You're everything I've dreamed of and more. I love you very much! Happy Valentine's Day! Love Me

JI LEE
Happy Valentine's Dey to my favorite buddy. I love you.
Diane

GREG -Thanks for taking me back! I promise to make up for it all
Happy Valentine's Day. Love Jody

PAT M. Happy Valentine's Dey-
Falls on a perfect day, don't you think?
Love you, ME
XOXO

Courtney W.
All my love on Valentine's Day!
I hope you'll be mine.
Love one of your many admirers

BERLS-
Hi Hunny Bunny! I just wanted to let you know that you mean the world to me. Happy Valentine's Day!
I love you
Jason

JENNY, Thank you for the most excellent year of my life. JOHN
HAPPY VALENTINE'S DAY

TRICIA, LARA. AND MB
Hope this personal makes you all smile
Happy Valentine's Dey, BRIAN

GINA HUDSON
Your smile brightens my day.
Happy Valentine's Dey BRIAN

DIANE HOLLAND -Happy Valentine's Dey to the nicest and most beautiful girl at Umass -Love, the boy next door

LORI R
Happy Valentine's Day
Hope everything continues to go well
Love
BD

DEAR BOB
Happy Valentine's Day Sweetie
Je T'Adore
Always, Karen

BERN A.K.A. 39
My name is Earl,
I'm lookin' for a girl,
Happy Valentine's Dey!
I Love You!
Mr. Lizard

DEAREST JENNIFER
Roses are flowers,
I hate poems.
Happy Valentine's Dey!
Love, Todd

TO MARY B.
Happy Valentine's Day
I Love You
OPUS

CB,
Thank you:
For listening
For opening up (when you get a chance)
For understanding
For being willing to work and change
And most of all, for being you!
I Love You,
OTPE
P.S. Happy Valentine's Dey

MARY IN 222 CHADBOURNE: I got somethin to say, please be my valentine today!
Love,
Metalhead (Brian)

HUGH, Thank you for bringing me to your world, I love it! Bruce, I love you very much. Please be my valentine just once!
Love, Franny

KATIE will you be my valentine? Now we can be together to put our best effort into our future. ILY- Hugh G.

TIM
Happy Valentine's Dey!
-Hill-

SUZANNE, We're both crazy people, with crazy lives. But we can make it work. Happy Valentine's Dey. I Love you. Micah.

CARE BEAR,
Happy Valentine's Dey! Thanx for being so special, caring, and most of all loving! Everyday with you is valentine's dey. I love you
Ken

THIS IS OUR 3rd V-day together, so I know it's going to be the best. But Friday will be even better.
I LOVE YOU! —Love Always,
Your Fiancee

JEN SITES
You make my life so special.
I hope you will always be my Valentine
I love you
Your big
--Teddy Bear

ADINA ZARCHAN
HAPPY VALENTINE'S DAY! Psyched to have you back from Israel in one piece Lost your number, so please call me at my second home. We can swap intersession adventures. XOXOs Adrien

JUDY -"Hood of my car"! Q. You are the love of my life. My world revolves around you and always will. We've been together for so long yet whenever I see you, my heart still skips a beat. My life is empty when you are not here.
Forever, Chris M.

MARC MOS,
I love you more and more everyday.
HAPPY VALENTINE'S DAY
I'm looking forward to another long weekend with you!
Always and forever,
Judy

MELANIE,
Happy Valentine's Day.
Always remember you are a very special person.
Keep living up to all you expectations.
Love, Todd XO

DIANA COHEN,
You are a great friend
Have e Happy Valentine's Day
Love,
Jon

TONI CAHN,
Thanks for always being there for me. You are a true friend. I LOVE YOU
-JON

KATE McCARTHY -Happy 21st! Not that things will be any different. Partly hard! -Boner

ED- Let's ride the taco tonight! SUE

JODY-
Happy Valentine's Dey, Honey! I love you-Love Always Deb

MDS
Happy Valentine's Dey!
The past five months have meant a lot
Thanks,
Love, Denise

JESS AND LISA
Happy Valentine's Dey!
From a secret admirer
DEC

DOGGY
Gracias por hacerme tan feliz. Cada dia que pasa te amo mas y mas. Feliz dia da San Valentin!

Tu Puppy

ANDREA, my sweetheart in Spain
Wish you were here
I love and miss you
Happy Valentine's Dey, Love Rich

JEN -I know thet we only met last Saturday but I wanted to wish you a Happy Valentine's Day anyway, see you this weekend-Dave

PUMPKIN -Happy Valentine's Dey.
Let's make this one more special than our first.
I Love You
Your big hunk
of e men
PS -Happy Anniversary

ED' SVEN, EAGLE IS A SEX GOD -
AND I WANT HIM!

C J K K
Hope your Valentine's dey is happy!

TED, GREG, TOM, -The sexiest guys at Umass Happy Valentine's Dey -Love from thet hot redheaded cowgirl

HAPPY VALENTINE'S DAY MIKE. I hed a great time Saturday nite. Maybe Ted knows what he's doing. Call me if you went to try something new. Love, Lisa

DENISE
HAPPY VALENTINE'S DAY
Love Always
Quanny

KELLY
Happy Valentine's Day
I love you now and forever
Joe

KAREN,
Your existence fills my every thought. You will ALWAYS be my one and only WOOGIE
Love Always,
ALAN

SWEETNESS
I'll make you happier than 100 fluffy, white smilin' puppy dogs could Love Joey

CHAD
It has been 175 awesome days since my pre-Chad years, sweetie. And everyday I love you more. Happy Valentine's Dey.
Love, Jen

CLN
Hold on my darlin'
To my precious on Valentine's Dey
I Love You
-D.

62 TOWNHOUSE
HAPPY VALENTINE'S DAY
LOVE MISSY

GARY LA GOO, make me wetfest! I love you! Love, The Cute One

JERRY-
Look, Mummy, the sheep went "Beee, Baaa!!!"
Love you, Buddy,
Lisa Bear

JLJF!
I love you perfectly
Always and forever!
Sh-Boom!

D.A.R. -You mean the world to me
Happy Valentine's Dey
I love you- G.L.R.

MIKE C
Happy Valentine's Dey, Honey!
I love you very much!
Love, Jen

D-WOMAN
Last 9 months-Awesome!! Morning breath-How 'bout e kiss? Nice hair! Guido Potential- You're beautiful. Love you, Skeeter

BRENDA STONESTREET
Surprise! I just wanted you to know that the past six months have been the best and I look torward to our big day. I will love you forever. Happy Valentine's Day
Love, Brian

PEGS
Your radiance warms my days and burns in my nights. Compared to your brilliance the sun is a flickering candle in the sky and you are the only light in my eye.
I love you
BRAD

KIEV -Perfect love. Perfect trust - Arielle

BRUCE
Happy Valentine's Dey (-4)
I love you so much!
Love Always,
Sheron

SHANNON,
Happy Valentine's Day -2.
Thanks for everything!
Love, Patrick

CHRIS PISANO
I STILL THINK YOU'RE GORGEOUS

WAX,
Happy Valentine's Day
To the most special person in my life!!
I LOVE YOU!
XXX, MELISSA

GDPS EN EL espacio Infinito de tus pies a tu frente andando me pasare la vida te amo 19

KIRE,
When you least expect it, something wonderful happens...you are my something wonderful.
Happy Valentine's Dey! I Love You!
Love Always, Donna

MIKE NEMETH
I LOVE YOU!
Wanna make out?
JEN

HAPPY VALENTINE'S DAY
To the Goddess
from CREW-MAN

KATIE'S CAUGHT, Kappa, and McGruff-"Three fine babes I know so well!" Happy V-day! I Love You Guys!

DANIELLE -It seems that you might be looking to nuzzle into my life. I moved some stuff around and made a place. It's clean and warm and quiet. Can you come in? Promise I'll keep it nice.
Jason

TO ALL THE beautiful women of Delta Zeta, have an awesome Valentine's Day

LEE 'Dogger' Goldstein
Looking forward to spending Valentine's Day Eve on the 2nd floor hallway with you! Love, Tracey

AMY, KELLY, JILL, & STEPHANIE
Hope you guys all have an awesome V-day. Even if it's without your men. (not you Amy) Until another dey...
Love, Beth

JAMIE, MELISSA, JANET, GRUNTER, KIM, JUDY, RANDEE, LEE, ELENA, AMY, DEBBIE, CARLA, BIEHL, STEIN, BARRIE,- HAPPY VALENTINE'S DAY!!
LOVE, TRACEY

SLOTH
Without you I'm mentally irregular
Yo love,
The guy who looks like him

HAPPY VALENTINE'S DAY JEFF! Maybe this will surprise you; if not I still have Fri. night (Set.-7) Thanks for being my best friend and the only Jeff I'll ever want. Love always, Tracy

ROB "WOLFY" MARCH
Happy Valentine's Day, Hon! After all this time, we're together again. If I may be so bold, I think you are really, really...dashing. Heve e good day. Kathy PS- You're my favorite engineer.

JEFF, Happy THIRD Valentine's Dey! Thanks for being you and helping me be me! By the way, you still owe me a backrub!
Happy V-dey
I LOVE YOU!
Killer

CAROL SENDROWSKI
We have e friendship that won't die but if we are separated, just close your eyes and I will be there. Happy V-day
Love, Jeff

TIGER,
Happy Valentine's Dey! I'll be moochin' for e smoochin'!
Love always,
Bunny

NIKHIL -I hope we spend lots of Valentine's Days together! Thanks for always being there. I love you. Your Pumpkin

CHRISTINE
Wanna play e little
One on one?
Happy Valentine's Dey from
Your favorite soap superster.
I Love You!
--Trenton

D.X. LANGLAIS
The poor person from PolSci 171 would like to e certain farmer to get in touch with her.
Jenn

TERI & JENNY, Always remember that I love you. Happy Valentine's Day!
Love, Ceth

TODD, I love you says it all. Happy Valentine's Dey. Mey there be many more.
Always, Nicole

MICHELLE,
To my little peanut of brittle. Happy Valentine's Dey. Love Leo

RUFUS SAYS:
"Just remember, I do need you."
-and I always will.

JULIE, You're e breath of fresh air
Your love sleve, Hermen

HERMAN,
Where is the Beef?
Your Cupcake,
Julie

KERI,
Meanwhile, the ring comes off its the girls night out! Of course we will miss you next year.
Love Always, Sue & Wendy

TODD,
You rock my world!!
Will you be my valentine?
Love, Wendy

DAVE L,
Glad we made it home sate this time. See you uptown!
Love, Crash

TO THE BEST VALENTINE IN THE WORLD
Happy Valentine's Day Amy Bleke
No boycotting this year
Love, Jeff

TLA -Thanks for a wonderful five months. Happy Valentine's Day, Scutty

TO KARA K
The four months
have been wonderful.
Happy Valentine's Day
Love ET
PS- I am taller

HAPPY VALENTINE'S DAY MAUREEN!
You're still stuck with me.
Hope there's meny more
Love, Creg

CHARLIE
It has only been 5 months. It seems like a lifetime, but e lifetime of complete happiness!
Happy Anniversary!
Happy Valentine's Dey!
I love you
Love,
Ceren

CINDY
Happy Valentine's Dey
Thanks for the b-day
Love, Tom
Abba Rules

TO THE AWESOME Phi Sigma Kappa man who got me water Saturday night when I passed out! Thanx!
Negative Tolerance

TO STEVE LARONDE
On what would have been one year...
Have e nice Valentine's Dey and e nice life.
Love, JC

HAPPY VALENTINE'S DAY
Nadine hope you have a great day
Love you -JR

SWEETIE-
This is our fourth Valentine's Day together, and to be honest, I love you more than ever. You're my lover and my best friend and I promise to love you till the end. Each day I thank God that I have you near. But still sometimes that you'll leave me I fear.
I hope to fill your Valentine's Day with hugs and kisses,
And to answer all your wishes
I love you, Stace

TKP Happy Valentine's Dey! 631

NICOLE G.
These past two months have been special. I love everything about you, especially your mud flaps. Happy anniversary. I love you
Love, Aviider
PS -What color are my eyes?

 L O V E - S N A C K I I I ***
Happy Valentine's Day Chris (Topher), Kathy (Malcom), Brian (Ozzy), Paige (Bruins Babe) and Ed (Love pump, of course)!!! I'm sure the shack will be shaking for this holiday!
Love you – Banks

HEY JULIE,
No hesitation about it
Your my valentine!
Love Rich

JUAN,
If I were you, I'd invest in a pr. of earmuffs-or the phone's gonna be ringing off the hook this semester: 1-800-Jimmy! Face it, your library days are over now that the actual dynamo is around! You're e great "companion"- I hope things work out for us!
HVD "Cutie"!!
Love, Stephanie!

HEY DAVE
HAPPY VALENTINE'S DAY!
MY LOVE IS YOURS ALWAYS
LOVE YOU- MICHELLE

TRI SIGMA OPEN RUSH
Come join the fun
Tuesday 2/19 The roommate game 7-8pm
Wednesday 2/20 Memories 7-8pm
Thursday 2/21 Fun tumblers 7-8pm
Sunday 2/25 Pizza bread! 9:30pm-?
Monday 2/26 Surprise! 7-8pm

TRI SIGMA
Happy V-dey!!
I'm going to miss you guys
Sigmas are forever
Love, Shula

ALYCIA BRAGA
Happy Birthday
Funny Face
I Love You
-Killsey

JENNIFER LYNN CARTER
Are you embarassed enough?
Just want to show you I care!
Happy Valentines's Day!
Love
Gabe

JEFF MCKENZIE -You are my one and only sweetie and always will be. I'm the luckiest girl in the world! I love you Always, Amy

HEY MATT ANDERSON! No. 30- It's not the game I go to see, it's you. Interested? Good luck Set. night. Happy Valentine's Day! Love, your No. 1 fan

KIM A.
Remember "In Your Eyes"
I do and wish I still was
Miss Ye! Campwole

MY PILLOW, You mean so much to me, you wouldn't believe how much I miss you. Happy 20th b-day, Valentine's Day, and 2nd yr anniversary. Wish you were here. GUS BHS'89

HEY MINXI
Je T'aime.
-S B.
P.S. The duck does coo.

TO CHRIS, The beautiful girl with the crystal necklace- I met last Set in Ex Brandywine. Let's meet again. Steve

VOUVER- Thanks for sticking with me. You have made e huge difference in thy life and you're very special to me. Keep the faith Babe! Happy Valentine's Dey! I Love You -J F

SQUEAKY- Sorry for everything. Hope this will be e good Valentine's (finally) Maybe it'll happen someday
Love, 1002

NINA -Each dey I love you more and more. Here's to something that lasts. SEAN

"Next time I fall in love it will be forever"
Happy Valentine's Day!
Love, YFM

PEACH
Will you be by valentine?
Love, Michelle

TO THE LIBIDINOUS MUSCLE-MEN of 2208 JFK:
Happy Valentine's Dey
Your Sweethearts in 1017

SUSAN,
I hope this valentine's dey will remind us of what it's like to be in love.
Brian

JOEY,
My valentine now and forever
I love you
Thank you for making my life wonderful
Love, Lillian

KOJAK IN 310 BAKER:
Happy Valentine's Day
Where is Michigan anyway?
Love ye

MONKEY
Happy Valentine's Dey
I love you
Billy

MATT -The past five months have been terrific. We always made the relationship work in the rough times. I never want to lose you. Happy Anniversary and Valentine's Dey! I love you. D

DAVID BAYUK -These past 2 years have been the best times of my entire life. Simply to say "I love you" is the understatement of the century. I wish there was a word strong enough to express how I really feel about you. You mean more to me than anything else in this entire world. We've come so far and been through so much! I'm looking forward to e wonderful future together!! Happy Valentine's Dey David.."I LOVE YOU!!!" -Barbara

ELIZABETH (My Pretty Squaw)
Though my stories are long
And my voice overbearing
You still listen to me
Showing you're caring
Two pass on my head
Makes me feel really fine
But to make me most happy
BE MY VALENTINE!
I LOVE YOU!!!! -Kel (Fats' son)

ANN B
Happy Valentine's Day!
The past 4 months have been great!
I find myself loving you more each day
Love Always
Michael

LIGORIAH LOO, I can't pighinta tell you. Love your Honeydear

ATOOK- Happy Valentine's Day! It's going to be a great weekend, starting tonight! I can't wait! I love you--Coona

CLASSIFIEDS

COME TO THE COLLEGIAN OFFICE—CC 113 MON — THURS 8:30-3:30 ● DEADLINE 2 DAYS PRIOR TO PUBLICATION ● CASH IN ADVANCE, 20¢/WORD/DAY FOR STUDENTS

ACTIVITIES

ATTENTION ALL WOMEN:
Make some women before spring break
Flex your buzom brains at POWER
Mondays - 7pm CC
All bodies welcome!

FILM SOCIETY MEETING Today CC 165 7:00. Membership meeting all welcome

MOVIE - GHOST presented by SAFA Thursday Feb. 14 C.C.A. $1.50 for 5:00 showing, $3.00 for 7:30 and 10:00.

SIGMA ALPHA MU spring rush
Monday 2/12 Billiards / SW horseshoe 8:00
Tuesday 2/13 Kentucky Fried Chicken Campus Center 8:00
Sammy knows rush
JUST DO IT!!!

ANNOUNCEMENTS

BED AND BREAKFAST- downtown ideal for visiting parents and friends- 549-0733.

DELTA UPSILON WELCOMES all university men to open rush. Dates to remember: FEB. 11,12,14,18,19,21

DRUM-award winning Black Arts and Literature magazine-now accepting submissions. 115 NAH

FAST FUNDRAISING PROGRAM
$1000 in just one week.
Earn up to $1000 for your campus organization. Plus a chance at $5000 more! This program works! No investment needed. Call 1-800-932-0528 Ext. 10

TODAY!! TODAY!! TODAY!!
SUB-Spring Break!
Equalities!
(0-4

UNION VIDEO CENTER GENERAL MEETING!!!!
Tonight in the Commuter Lounge at 7:30
Join us & learn marketable skills in video production!

AUDIO/STEREO/VIDEO

USED STEREO components/vcr/ s'coior tv's/ We buy, sell & trade quality equipment, all price ranges. Detailed list (60 + items). S/A/V exchange (anytime) 258-0941.

AUTO FOR SALE

1976 CHEVY IMPALA Good cond. BO, 586-4437

1961 CITATION Mechanically sound body damaged parts or fixit $300 253-4057

1989 HONDA ACCORD immaculate condition, 1 owner, AM/FM cassette, 2 door coupe, only 9,200 miles, must see, $9600 or best offer, call Bruce at 256-1215 after 6 PM

ENTERTAINMENT

HOUSE HOUSE HOUSE
Dance. Dance. Dance. John, DJ 549-5316
7:00. Membership meeting all welcome

ESTABLISH CREDIT

DISCOVER CARDS
No cost to apply.
Call Merk 546-4614
Leave message

FINAL CALL

LAST CHANCE TO apply for Tour Guide, Summer Counselor, and Student Admissions Representative positions. 2151

FOR RENT

1 BEDROOM EFF. Apt on Main St. 350 inclusive, Call 253-0574, Ask for Terry/Leavemsg

AMHERST, 1 BEDROOM AVAILABLE IN 3 BEDROOM. NEW HOUSE ON BUS LINE. FIREPLACE. BEAUTIFUL!! AVAILABLE NOW CALL 8-4, 665-3326

DOUBLE BEDROOM IN 3 bedroom Puffton, 340 couple or 255 single, negotiable, + utilities. Non-smoking. Adam or Lisa 546-0508

FRIDGE RENTALS CALL R + P 253-9742

LARGE ROOM IN 2 BEDROOM TOWNHOUSE. GREAT PLACE TO LIVE. ON BUS ROUTE. CLOSE TO CAMPUS. CALL 253-4031 LEAVE MESSAGE

ROOM FOR RENT: 5 min. walk to NoHo Ctr. M

SPORTS

Women's gymnastics floors Bridgeport at home, 184-175

Collegian photo by Jeff Holland

UMass sophomore Tammy Marshall springs onto the uneven bars last night against the University of Bridgeport.

By LYNN FRANKEL
Collegian Correspondent

The University of Massachusetts women's gymnastics team rocked Bridgeport 183.6-174.8 last night in the Minutewoman's second home dual meet.

The women crushed Bridgeport in every event, including the all-around.

Head coach Alfie Mitchell, who had expressed confidence in his athletes, was met with hard, well-executed performances from his team.

"The entire team had a great night," said Mitchell. He said it was the type of performance that he had been looking for all season.

Mitchell said his team did an excellent job of taking advantage of the scoring opportunities presented them last night.

Mitchell said the team hit all of the events in this meet, unlike last weekend's meet at Towson.

Junior Tammy Marshall led the team with an outstanding performance. Marshall swept the all-around with a score of 37.8. She swept first in floor, balance beam and vault competition.

Freshman sensation Margaret Furtado posted a personal; best score of 37.3 in the all-around.

Furtado also won the uneven parallel bars and placed second on the beam and vault.

Erin Kleir also had a banner night, placing an impressive third in the all-around with 36.75.

Kleir placed third on the vault, second on the bars, third on the beam and third on the floor.

Kim Grady added to UMass domination, placing fourth in the all-around.

Another personal-best was posted by freshman Erika Finkelman of 9.3 in the floor exercise.

Mitchell said the meet was a great boost of confidence for the team.

He said the experience his younger athletes are gaining early this season will certainly help them in later competitions.

"We ain't afraid," has become a familiar slogan for the gymnasts.

Mitchell said that the team has the self assurance they need to take on the conference's toughest competition.

They will get a chance to prove their slogan at Southern Connecticut this weekend in the team's second away meet.

St. Bonaventure hosts women's basketball

By GREG SUKIENNIK
Collegian Staff

Pardon me for asking, but just what is a "Bonnie," anyway?

Is it an Easter hat? A big fire? Or is she Clyde's girlfriend?

Whatever a Bonnie is, it's also St. Bonaventure University's mascot, and the University of Massachusetts women's basketball team (0-21 overall, 0-13 Atlantic 10 Conference) will be up against a bunch of them tonight at 7:00 p.m. in Olean, N.Y.

The Bonnies, currently 10-11 overall and 3-9 in the A-10, defeated the Minutewomen 78-53 in Amherst on Jan. 19. However, UMass was without Keyburn McCusker for that game, and with McCusker back, coach Kathy Hewelt is confident that UMass can be competitive tonight — given they do certain things.

"We need to keep the tempo of the game where we're comfortable on offense and we need to control the boards," said Hewelt. "Those two things will keep them from running down our throats."

While the Bonnies prefer an up-tempo style of play — they average 67 attempts per game from the floor — they also have potent half-court threats in Sue Shay, Jodi Urich and Beth Gromolwicz, all of whom average double figures in points.

"If we let them have have 60-80 attmepts it's going to be bad news for us," cautioned Hewelt. "And they're very hard to beat at their place."

St. Bonaventure coach Mary Jane Tetford expects a different game from the Minutewomen this time around.

"It won't be an automatic win for us," explained Tetford. "UMass is dangerous. They have to be looking at beating us as being an attainable goal, and with the way the season has been for them, you know they'll be fired up."

Tetford also added that the Bonnies aren't planning to rely solely on the up-tempo game, especially with the emergence of freshman Casey Comoroski — six assists per game — at point guard and with the team's scoring balance. Urich averages 15.7 points per game, while Gromlowicz averages 14 and Shay throws in 11.8 ppg.

CONTINUED ON PAGE 12

Women's track preps for Smith

By DAN WETZEL
Collegian Staff

Saturday will be the last chance for the University of Massachusetts women's track team, the Smith College 'Last Chance' Invitational that is.

The Smith Invitational is a low pressure, non-scoring meet which gives athletes a last chance to qualify for either the New England Championships or the Eastern Collegiate Athletic Conference Championships, according to UMass coach Julie LaFreniere.

"This meet is a nice luxury for us," LaFreniere said. "It gives us the opportunity to get some people qualified and to tune up those that have already made it."

LaFreniere is also looking to get some of her team healthy again. Becky Johnson, after missing the last two meets with a virus, will compete in the 200- and 800-meter runs on Saturday.

"Becky was cleared by the doctors this week and she is dying to run," LaFreniere said. "She will run some short races at Smith and hopefully she will be ready next week."

CONTINUED ON PAGE 12

Swimming preps for NEWISDAs

By CHRIS MIRACLE
Collegian Staff

Gunning for number one.

That's the the goal for the University of Massachusetts women's swimming team as they travel to Orono, Maine to compete in the New England Women's Intercollegiate Swimming and Diving Association's Individual Championships, March 15-17.

The Minutewomen will be going against 17 other swimming programs from around the Northeast region. Top-ranked Boston College is favored to win the event, but from the talent on a few other teams, the meet should be wide open for anyone to win.

"BC is heavily favored," said UMass coach Bob Newcombe. "Depth plays a big part, though, so overall team strength will win it."

Besides the Golden Eagles, the Minutewomen will also have to worry about Connectuicut and Northeastern University, the second and third ranked teams in the Northeast, respectively. The Minutewomen, compiling a regular season record of 8-3, was ranked fourth.

"There is going to be a heck of a battle for second place," Newcombe said. "Our team needs a superb weekend to win and the others don't."

The Minutewomen will be stocked with plenty of weapons in all the events. UMass has qualified 25 out its 27 team members for this postseason meet.

Junior Kiri Binning, New England's top individual scorer, broke the school records this season in the 100-yard backstroke (1 minute, 1.77 seconds), 200 back (2:12.10) and the 200 individual medly relay (2:13.95) and will be competing in all three events this weekend.

Other Minutewomen to watch include freshman Kim Broad (200, 500, 1,000 freestyle), Denise Reimer (50, 100 free) and Jennifer Jackson (100, 200 fly). Kari Edwardsen also will give the opposition a run for their money in the backstroke events, according to Newcombe.

"Our backstrokers should take care of the records they've already set this year and make some new ones," he said.

Allison White will be in the spotlight in the one-meter and three-meter diving events as she qualified for this weekend's meet, the Eastern League Championships, and the NCAAs Division I Championships at Harvard University in March.

"The women have earned what they've achieved this year," Newcombe said. "They just need to believe in all the work that got them here."

The Minutewomen have also waited until this meet to shave down, something most of the other teams have already done. Newcombe says it will give the Minutewomen a psychological boom as well as providing less drag in the water.

Less drag and faster times is what the Minutewomen need to have a chance of knocking off BC. Returning winners from last year's Golden Eagle team include Teresa Holland (100 fly), Rose Marie DeLeo (100, 200 breastroke) and Linda Peterson (100 back).

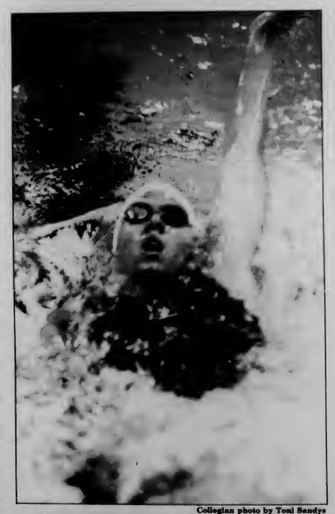
Making her first appearance at the New Englands is Heather Bickle who set a school record last week in the 400 IM with a time of 4:32.20).

BC is not as invincible as last year's team, losing their top sprinters to graduation. At last year's meet, the Golden Eagles set new records in the 200 and 400 relays which UMass broke later on in the meet.

The UConn Huskies, another team hoping to place high in this meet, will look to swimmers Jen Lyons (sprinter/backstroke), Kristen Babcock (distance), Jody Hull (distance), and Daniel Fisher in the breast. Best times for Lyons and Fisher are 52.97 (100 free) and 2:24.40 (200 breast), respectively.

Northeastern will also make this meet grueling for the Minutewomen. Among the Huskies will be the defending one- and three-meter champ, Dana Kozimor, who scored 550 points in the one-meter at Springfield College this year. Janet Bishop also will try to reatain her status as champ in the 500 free and the 100 and 200 fly events.

Other big name teams competing include Providence College and home favorite, Maine.



Collegian photo by Toni Sandys

UMass swimmers travel to Orono, Maine to compete in the New England Women's Intercollegiate Swimming and Diving Association this weekend.

An alternative to Bart

By DAN LEARY
Collegian Correspondent

Tonight at Hampden Theater, the Ricky Ford Quartet will begin this year's Magical Triangle Jazz Concert series. The group features Ford on tenor saxophone, George Cables on piano, Reggie Workman on bass, and Pete "La Roca" Sims on drums.

Ricky Ford began playing tenor saxophone at age 15 after hearing Roland Kirk. He then became so immersed in his musical interests that within two years he found himself at the New England Conservatory. Ford has performed with Charles Mingus, the Duke Ellington Orchestra (under Mercer Ellington), and Lionel Hamton. He has recently released Manhattan Blues on Candid Records.

Pianist/composer George Cables studied at Mannes College where he formed the Jazz Samaritans with Steve Grossman and Billy Cobham. He was heavily influenced by Theolonius Mink and Herbie Hancock. Despite the critical acclaim of his duet albums with Art Pepper and Frank Morgan, Cables is perceived as an accomplished sideman.

Reggie Workman began his double bass work in 1955 with various rhythm and blues groups. During the sixties his creative solos and mastery of either hard bop or free jazz brought him particular prominence. Reggie has recorded with John Coletrane, Theolonius Monk, and Wayne Shorter.

Drummer Pete "La Roca" Sims began his career playing snare drum and timbales in high school. Today he is seen by the jazz community as one of the most innovative and advanced drummers of his time. He has recorded with Sonny Rollins, Jackie McLean and John Coletrane. At one point, having become discouraged by the dominance of rock and jazz rock he ended his musical career to become a lawyer but quickly returned to music.

Talent of this caliber is not easy to find, and is even less easy to find for a low price. So forget about The Simpsons, check out this happening jazz spectacle instead.

The Ricky Ford Quartet, as part of the WMUA sponsored Magic Triangle Series, will perform at UMass in the Hampden Theatre at 8 p.m. Tickets are $5 for students and $7 for the gene..l public.

Cover designed by Mark "Desert" Storm, Danielle Dorfman, and Beth Kerr

A moving slice of life

By HEATHER BELL
Collegian Correspondent

Pains of Youth
Smith College
Saturday, Feb. 9

A boarding house in Vienna in 1923 became the stage for a moving drama filled with black comedy at Smith College this weekend. Pains of Youth which opened February 7 is a startling play based on an excerpt from the lives of seven boarding house residents, and their difficulty facing reality.

Opening with Marie, played by Carrie Bell, scrubbing the floor for her upcoming graduation party, and Desiree (Ada Matasovski) running off to her doctorate exam, the play begins with clear introductions to these characters. Marie is a mothering young woman who is visibly unsure of herself and her relationships with others. Desiree wants to live in a fantasy world, and play through life without caring for others.

As the show progresses we are introduced to Mr. Freder, a suave, sharp tongued alcoholic played by Micheal Stenger. He serves to torment the other characters and bring out the worst in all of them. Freder is infatuated with women he can control and succeeds in turning the shy, quiet housemaid, Lucy (Colleen Kong), into a harlot by the end of the play.

The play revolves around the breakup of Petrell (Micheal Andelman) and Marie, and her difficulties in coping with life afterward. Petrell, mockingly called "Little Boy" by his friends is a naive, seemingly insensitive young man, who immediately becomes involved with Irene (Caty Carr), a cold, cutting redhead. Marie, attempting to cope with the ending of her two year relationship is also becoming intertwined with the unstable Desiree. A voice of reason throughout the play is Alt (Mike Wuerthele), an older gentleman, who plays a fatherly role to all of the characters.

Some of the light changes are a bit obvious, but the actors command the audience to focus on the action.

Many of the actors portray their characters with strength and vitality. Marie is exceptional, full of life and expressing her often violent emotions with the shock value they are intended for. Her interaction with Desiree is also commanding as the play progresses. Stenger gives a performance filled with the quickness and distance Freder demands. Wuerthele gives Alt the quiet sturdiness which is needed to make him useful to the show's meaning.

Each act is ended with an aggressive scene which leaves the audience wondering, shocked, and waiting eagerly for the next act to begin. The dialogue is complex and demands complete concentration to gather all of its meaning. Interspersed with humor the plot in Pains of Youth is offset and leaves the viewer with a sense of reality intact.

If you are up for a walk back to the early 1920's to experience the social conflicts of the time, or would like to witness a passionate drama beautifully written, Pains of Youth will be playing again from February 14 to 16 at 8 p.m. in Theatre 14 at Smith College. Tickets are $2 for students and $4 general admission. Reservations may be made in advance by calling: 585-3220 (Monday through Friday, 1 p.m. to 4 p.m.) clothing close-out.

25% to 75% OFF

(mostly 45%)

esprit calvin klein pandemonium dd sloan lixen

main st. northampton
Faces

BOSTON Celtic Tickets

Register to Win

HAPCO AUTO PARTS

AMHERST
534 Main St.
256-6414

HADLEY
99 Russell St.
Rte 9
586-6464

FREE 1991 CELTIC CALENDAR

BOSTON CELTICS

AMALIE MOTOR OIL

with a purchase of 5 qts of 10-30 or 10-40 Amalie motor oil

Better than it has to be.®

HAPCO AUTO PARTS

...where there's always a parts pro to serve you!
For all your automotive needs foreign and domestic

Hours:
Mon-Fri 8:00-5:30
Sat 8:00-3:00
Offer Expires 2/28/91

AEROBICS

MORE NAUTILUS
Computerized aerobic machines than any club in the Valley.
Stairmasters • Lifecycles • Gravitron • Biocycle • Treadmills
New • New • New • Life Rower • New • New • New

BETTER MASSAGE
Special suspended oak wood floor • Certified Instructors
• Bench Step • Low Impact • High/Low • Boxercise • Stretch

KARATE SAUNA
Total body conditioning plus the skill of selfdefense.
Largest full-time Karate studio in Western Mass.

Four UMass students display their sculptures

By DANIELLE DOWLING
Collegian Staff

In the midst of the corporate jungle, there is beauty.

In less melodramatic terms, there is an art exhibit at the Baystate West Main atrium, located on 1500 Main St. in Springfield.

What makes this exhibit special is that it features sculptures from four University of Massachusetts graduate art students: Karen Dolmanisth, Katheleen Gilrain, Michael Yue Tong and Daniel Zeller. The exhibit, entitled "Four University of Massachusetts Sculptors," features works made of natural materials such as wood and dirt and man-made materials such as steel and concrete.

Photo courtesy of Baystate West

"Picture Five of These," by Katheleen Gilrain, is on display at the Baystate West Main Atrium.

Karen Dolmanisth, who received her BFA degree at the Parsons School of Design and the New School of Social Research, gathers natural materials from the environment with which she designs altars or shrines that express transformation and movement or transition.

Katheleen Gilrain is exhibiting large hanging forms constructed of paper, steel, burlap, wax, paint and rope representing death and the seeds of life. Gilrain says that "a safe, protected place is needed to gain strength during periods of great change in one's life" and adds that the pods she makes "represent a place where one can gain strength."

Michael Yue Tong is a 1990 BFA graduate of State University of New York at Purchase. Born in China, one of Tong's works in this show is "As I Unfold," which he says refers to opening himself to his new American experiences.

Daniel Zeller, an advocate of environmental issues, says that the tension he finds between the comforts of human industry and the force of life in nature that is being destroyed by this industry is a driving force in his work, which consists of materials such as wood, concrete, steel and burlap.

There will be a reception for these four artists on Thursday from 6 p.m.-8 p.m. This exhibition will be on display until March 1. The atrium hours are Monday-Saturday 9:30 a.m.-5:30 p.m.

Domino's Pizza
Amherst/Hadley
256-8911
South Hadley
535-1111
DOMINO'S PIZZA

Buy ANY Large Pizza
GET A SMALL 1-ITEM PIZZA for only $.30c
Expires 3-30-91
1 coupon per order

Buy ANY-Pizza
Get a 2nd of equal or lesser value for only $1.99
expires 3-30-91
1 coupon per order

Buy ANY-Large Pizza for the
PRICE OF A SMALL PIZZA
expires 3-30-91
not good with any other offer

Price Chopping Specials this week at Liquors 44!

BEER WINE LIQUORS

Prices do not include deposit

MICHELOB, MICHELOB LIGHT & MICHELOB DRY case of 2-12 pkg. cans $13.99 + DEP
MILLER, MILLER GENUINE DRAFT, & MILLER LITE $8.49 + DEP case of 24 7 oz. bottles
Labatt's BEER & ALE $14.49 + DEP case of 24-12 oz. bottles
KEYSTONE & KEYSTONE LIGHT $7.99 + DEP case of 24 12 oz. cans SALE 9.99 MAIL-IN-REBATE -2.00
KOCH'S GOLDEN ANNIVERSARY BEER $7.79 + DEP. case of 24-12 oz cans

GALLO CLASSIC WINES MIX & MATCH 2 BOTTLES FOR $4.98 750ML
BLUSH CHABLIS RHINE BURGUNDY RED ROSE PINK CHABLIS FRENCH COLUMBARD CHENIN BLANC
MARTINI & ROSSI Asti Spumante $8.49 750 ML BRUT & EXTRA DRY
FRANZIA BAG-IN-A-BOX $7.49 5 Liter ALL VARIETIES
NAPA RIDGE WHITE ZINFANDEL $3.49 750ML
TOTTS CHAMPAGNE BRUT & EXTRA DRY $4.99 750ML

Smirnoff VODKA $14.49 1.75 L
SCHENLEY WHISKEY $12.79 1.75L
BAILEYS IRISH CREAM $14.99 750 ML
CLUNY SCOTCH $14.99 1.75L
KAHLÚA $11.99 750ML

not responsible for typographical errors
LIQUORS 44
HADLEY Campus Plaza/Route 9 253-9344
TWO LOCATIONS
HOLYOKE 30 Lincoln St. 534-4555
9am to 11pm Monday thru Saturday
SALE PRICES THURS. 2-14-91 THRU WED. 2-20-91
TeleCheck

Rent One of Ours
• Cars
• Trucks
• Cargo Vans
Rent by Day, Week or Month
Special Weekly and Weekend Rates
North Amherst Auto Rental
Rt. 63, 40 Montague Rd. North Amherst, MA
549-RENT (549-7368)
Most Major Credit Cards Accepted
On Bus Route

FRIENDLY
...service,
...people,
...prices.
all under one roof.
Close to Brittany Manor and Riverglade
R+P PACKAGE STORE
505 West St. AMHERST 253-9742

Alternatives to Academics

THURSDAY

Mozart's Last Year, a lecture to be given by Amherst College professor Henry G. Mishkin, will take place at Amherst College in Music Center 3 at 12:15 p.m. Admission is free.

The New German Cinema in Context, a film series featuring the film Warum Lauft Herr R. Amok? (Why Does Mr. R Run Amok?), will take place at Amherst College in Merrill II at 4 p.m. and 7:30 p.m. Admission is free.

Desert Hearts will be shown at UMass in Campus Center Room 803 at 7 p.m. Admission is free.

3 Mustaphas 3 will play at the Iron Horse in Northampton at 7 p.m. Tickets are $11 in advance.

Ghost will be shown at UMass in the Campus Center Auditorium at 5 p.m., 7:30 p.m. and 10 p.m.

African Film Series, featuring the film Sambizanga, will take place at Mount Holyoke College in Dwight 101 at 7:30 p.m. Admission is free.

Art and Artisans: A Celebration of the Margaret Mead Film Festival will take place at UMass in Herter 227 at 7:30 p.m.

Five College Early Music Program Concert, featuring French baroque music for the pardessus de viole and harpischord, will take place at Amherst College in Buckley Recital Hall at 8 p.m.

The Ad Hoc Opera Company will perform a Valentine's Day Concert at the Munson Library Auditorium in South Amherst at 8 p.m.

The Simpsons will be shown at Twister's Tavern at 8 p.m. in Amherst followed immediately by live comedy and then DJ Pure Energy at 10 p.m. Admission is free after 9 p.m.

The Chekov: Visions and Visitations of a Young Girl will be performed at the American International College located on 1000 State St. in Springfield at 8 p.m. with a repeat performance on Friday at the same time. Tickets are $10 for students and senior citizens and $15 for the general public.

Ricky Ford Quartet, as part of the Magic Triangle Jazz Series sponsored by WMUA, will play at UMass in Hampden Theatre at 8 p.m. Admission is $5 for students and senior citizens and $7 for the general public.

Pains of Youth, a compelling examination of 7 medical students in Vienna, will be performed at Smith College Theatre 14 at 8 p.m. Tickets are $2 for students and senior citizens and $4 for the general public. There will be repeat performances on Friday and Saturday.

Margaret Mead Film Festival

Drivin' N' Cryin', with The Vestryman, will appear at Pearl Street at 8:30 p.m. Tickets are $6 in advance and $7 at the door.

Contemporary Cinema Masterpieces Film Series, featuring the film My Life as a Dog, will take place at Hampshire College in Adele Simmons Hall, Ruth Hammen Auditorium at 9 p.m. Admission is free.

Live Squid will appear at the Hadley Pub.

Minibus Sandwich will perform at Sheehan's Cafe in Northampton.

Larry Bell

FRIDAY

Moe, a play to be presented by the newly form Alternative Theatre Group, will be performed at UMass on the 13th Floor of the Tower Library at noon.

Juggling Convention will take place at UMass in the Campus Center Auditorium and the Student Union Ballroom from noon-1 a.m. This event will be repeated on Saturday and Sunday at the same time.

Casselberry and Dupree will perform at the Iron Horse in Northampton at 7 p.m. Tickets are $14 in advance.

The Maze, in 3-D, will be shown at Hampshire College at 7 p.m. and 9:30 p.m. Admission is $1.

Senior Recital, featuring Laura Heyenga on flute playing pieces by Bach among others, will take place at Mount Holyoke College in Pratt Auditorium at 7:30 p.m. Admission is free.

Cool Hand Luke, a film about a convict who becomes a legend, will be shown at the Amherst College Campus Center Theatre at 7:30 p.m. and 10 p.m. The film will be shown again on Saturday at the same time. Admission is $1.50.

Larry Bell will perform piano pieces by Hindemith and Perschetti at UMass in Bezanson Recital Hall at 8 p.m. Admission is $2.50 for students and $5 for the general public.

One Eyed Jake will play at Twister's Tavern in Amherst at 9:30 p.m. There will be a $2 cover charge.

Rippopotamus will play at the Hadley Pub.

Physical Graffiti will play at Katina's in Hadley.

SATURDAY

Egberto Gismonte will perform at the Iron Horse in Northampton at 7 p.m. Tickets are $11.

Zumbyes Concert will be performed by an Amherst college men's a capella group at the college in Johnson Chapel at 8 p.m.

Country Corner Coffeehouse, featuring the sounds of Stonewall Bluegrass and Pioneer Valley Bluegrass, will take place at the congregational Church Fellowship Hall located on 11 N. Main St. in S. Hadley Falls. Tickets will be $7.

Stories of Love, featuring stories and songs with Davis Bates, Rebekka Tippins and John Porcino, will take place at the Northampton Center for the Arts at 8 p.m. Admission is $1 for Pioneer Valley Folklore Society members, $4 for senior citizens and $7 for the general public.

Business as Usual Dance Party, sponsored by the Black Mass Communications Project in conjunction with Def Jam Records, will take place at UMass in the Malcolm X Center at 10 p.m. Free tapes, CDs and back stage passes to the Rap Extravaganza, featuring Queen Latifah, EPMD, Father MC and KWAME which will take place on Sunday at the Springfield Civic Center, will be given away. Admission is free.

Basketball Party will be held at Twister's Tavern in Amherst after the basketball game.

Live Squid will play at Hadley Pub.

Chucklehead will play at Katina's in Hadley.

Eight to the Bar will play at Pearl Street in Northampton.

SUNDAY

Have a Heart Concert, with Rockin' Dave and the Rent Party, Dertonz, Orchestra Chevere, The Sighs, Ray Mason Band, Herschler Brothers, Snap Out of It, Steel Wave and Who's Kiddin' Who, will take place at Pearl Street starting at 3:30 p.m. All ages will be admitted before 7 p.m. 21-and-over only after 7 p.m.

Stories of Love

The Secret World of Odilon Redon, to be followed by a gallery talk at 3 p.m., will take place at the Smith College Museum of Art at 2:30 p.m. Admission is free.

Aspects of Love, featuring pianists Nigel Coxe and Estela Olevsky and soprano Paulina Stark in a special benefit for Amnesty International, will take place at Amherst College in Buckley Recital Hall at 3 p.m. Tickets are $6 for students, senior citizens and children and $8 for the general public.

John Gorka will play at the Iron Horse in Northampton at 7 p.m. Tickets are $8 in advance.

Chris Smither, a folk and blues singer and gutiarist, will perform at the Amherst College Campus Center Frontroom at 8 p.m. Tickets are $1 for students with an Amherst College ID and $7 for those without.

Husbands will be shown at Hampshire College at 8 p.m. Admission is $1.

Back in Black will play at Katina's in Hadley.

The Dertonz

MONDAY

Vocal Workshop, with Julie Nelson, will take place at UMass in The Theatre Department, Room 204 from 5 p.m.-7 p.m.

Classic American Comedy Film Series, featuring te film The General, will take place at Hampshire College at Adele Simmons Hall, Ruth Hammen Auditorium at 7 p.m. Admission is free.

The Arcadia Players will perform at the Iron Horse in Northampton at 7 p.m. Tickets are $10 in advance.

Male and Female, a film directed by Cecil B. DeMille, will be shown at Mount Holyoke College in Gambie Auditorium at 7:30 p.m.

RUSSELL's
Discount LIQUORS Discount
18 Main St. Downtown Amherst 253-5441
Featuring Busch Beer
$10.49 Suitcase
Ringness Dark 6/pk $3.99
Wurzburger Octoberfest or Holiday Only $4.99 6/pk While they last!!
Golden Anniversary Beer cse/cans $7.99
Glen Ellen White Zinfandel 750 ml $3.99
Henri Marchant Champagne Naturally Fermented in Bot. 750 ml $3.99
Zarkoff Vodka 1.75 L $9.49
Knickerbocker 16 oz bots cse $9.99

THE PUB
fun food & spirits
VALENTINE'S DAY
Dinner for Two $16.95
Choice of:
• Top Sirloin Steak •
• Blackened Swordfish •
• Veggie and Pasta • Stirfry with Pesto
• Chicken Cordon Bleu •
All dinners include salad and bread bar
Dinner Served 4:30-9:30
SINCE • 1968
15 EAST PLEASANT·AMHERST

FREE ICE WITH KEGS
Rolling Rock 12 pk $6.89*
Budweiser
Bud, Bud Lite & Dry Case $13.69*
Busch & Busch Lite 12 pk $5.69*
Seagrams Wild Berries Wine Coolers 4 pk $3.49
Seagram 7 750 ml $7.69
Glacier Bay 12 pk $5.49
Jim Beam 750 ml $6.99
Smirnoff Vodka 750 ml
*Plus Deposit
"A New Family Owned Business"
Four Seasons
WINES & LIQUORS
ROUTE 9, HADLEY, Between Burger King and Dunkin Donuts • 584-8174

Pearl Street
this week...
Thurs. Feb 14 8:30pm 18
DRIVIN' N' CRYIN'
Dancing w DJ Job
FIGHT TO THE BAR
HAVE A HEART BENEFIT CONCERT
coming...
CORDELIA'S DAD
THE CONNELLS
LADYSMITH BLACK MAMBAZO
THE TOASTERS
THE BUCK PETS
BOP HARVEY
ASWAD
413 584-7771
10 PEARL ST. NORTHAMPTON, MA

Local bands jam out to help the homeless

By PAUL DEGEORGES
Collegian Staff

On February 17, nine local bands will take the role of social conciousness in music to heart, and to the stage. This Sunday at Pearl Street in Northampton, at 4 p.m. Who's Kiddin' Who; 5 p.m. Steel Wave; 6 p.m. Snap Out of It (formerly Craig Eastman and the Sundogs); 7 p.m. Ray Mason Band; 8 p.m. The Sighs; 9 p.m. The Herscheler Brothers; 10 p.m. Orchestra Chevere; 11 p.m. The Deronz; and 12 a.m. Rockin' Dave and the Rent Party will take to the stage on a mammoth fund raising crusade to raise money for the fight against housing discrimination and homelessness in the Hampshire and Hampden counties. All these bands have been scheduled for a night of great music, for a great cause, the second annual Have A Heart benefit concert.

Rockin' Dave and the Rent Party headlines the event and will definitely make sure that the evening ends with a bang. The band, which has been described as "the Valley's only indigenous Zydeco band," led by Dave ("I'm a little guy but the microphone turns me into a monster") Morrish who is the physical definition of kinetic energy, puts on one of the most intensely enjoyable shows of any band, and every time they take the stage one can hardly help but take to the dance floor.

"We just want people to dance and feel the soul," Dave claims. This is the Rent Party's second appearance at the Have a Heart benefit and when midnight rolls around on Sunday night you can be sure they'll provide enough cardiovascular energy to keep you rockin' well into the morning.

Eighty percent of the proceeds raised will go to the Housing Discrimination Project in Holyoke. Due to severe federal budget cutbacks, the HDP lost over $115,000 in funding allotment this year alone.

The HDP was created in 1989 and has already helped over one hundred families through assistance with "substantiating and resolving discrimination complaints." Without large-scale fundraising projects such as this, the HDP would not be able to survive and a valuable social resource for local communities would be lost.

The other twenty percent of the funds raised will go to support the homeless fund at the Hampshire Community Action Commission, in Northampton. The HCAC, which has also been severely victimized by federal budget cuts, provides financial assistance to help prevent eviction, give shelter to homeless families, and "otherwise assist people living on the street."

This whole day of great music will start at 3:30 p.m. and will be hosted by such well known local legends as Bill Morrissey, Amy Fairchild, Dayna Kurtz and Jim Olsen. This nine band veritable Monsters of Local Music will encompass a wide range of irresistible styles from salsa to swing, folk to blues and just plain old rock.

The show is an all ages event until 7:00 p.m., and after that the Ray Mason Band kicks off the next five hours of 21-and-over only entertainment. The day will run from 3:30 p.m. to 1:00 a.m. The cost for tickets is $8 for 21 and over; $4 for ages 16 to 21; and kids under 16 get in for free. Tickets are available in advance.

Photo courtesy of Brian Harrington

Rockin' Dave and the Rent Party will headline the Have A Heart benefit for the homeless. The show at Pearl Street in Northampton will go from 3:30 p.m. until 1 a.m.

Want to Really Enjoy Spring Break?
Avoid a Sunburn and START TANNING NOW!!
We Have Several Tanning Packages Such As:
5 Sessions for $20
10 Sessions for $30
1 month unlimited for $49
Open Evenings!
We Also Carry "Australian Gold"-the No. 1 tanning accelerator
Hairworks PLUS
CAMPUS PLAZA (next to stop & shop) 253-3334

Heart Shaped Treats ...Edible & Otherwise, for Your Unique Valentine.
Be My Valentine
BE MINE
Compliments
71 N. Pleasant St. (Above Cafe DiCarlo)
Amherst / 256-1551 • Mon.-Sat. 10-5:30
MC/Visa/Amex

湘園
PANDA EAST
CHINESE RESTAURANT
We bring Chinatown to you
Open Hours: Mon-Thurs. 11:30am-10:00pm
Fri. & Sat. 11:30am-11:00pm
Sunday 2:00pm-10:00pm
Lunch Hours: Mon.-Sat. 11:30am-3:00pm
103 N. Pleasant St. • Amherst, MA 01002
(413) 256-8923 (413) 256-8924

WASHINGTON'S BIRTHDAY SOUND SALE
10-50% Off Selected Items
• PANASONIC 12 Disc CD Changers
(Many others to choose from!)
• AMPLIFIERS
Ads, Alphasonik, Blaupunct
• SPEAKERS
All at tremendous savings incl. Pyle & MTX Box Speakers.
There's Too many things to mention, Hurry in for best selection
CUSTOM CAR SOUND
141 A Damon Rd. Northampton • 586-5258
573 Riverdale St. West Springfield • 734-4995
Now Open 7 Days A Week for Sales and Installation
Thursday Nights til 8p.m.

Café Ashley
ROUTE 9 HADLEY, MA 586-6393
LOCATED IN THE HOWARD JOHNSON MOTOR LODGE
Very Fresh Very Economical Very Friendly
VERY OPEN!
7:00 AM – 10:00 PM
7 DAYS A WEEK
BREAKFAST • LUNCH • DINNER

Drivin' N' Cryin' can satisfy a wide variety of appetites

By DAVID KNOCH
Collegian Correspondent

In these days when most rock bands seem to be hung up on their egos and not too concerned with the world about them, it's great to see a band that actually has intelligent lyrics. Not only lyrics that take into account the conditions in which we all live, but lyrics that talk about love and relationships without the typical rock egotism. A band that does this with more than adequate ability is Drivin' N' Cryin' on their new album Fly Me Courageous.

Formed in 1985 by singer/guitarist Kevn Kinney and bassist Tim Nielsen, Drivin' N' Cryin' just recently completed it's full line-up of band members. In fact Fly Me Courageous is the first album that Kinney, Nielsen, guitarist Buren Fowler, and drummer Jeff Sullivan have made that combines their talents.

And talent is something that this band has plenty of. Drivin' N' Cryin' offer something for every listener. There is a powerful rock and roll feel that will appeal to your average classic rock fan, while the aggression tied up in this band coupled with their intelligence will make this album a must for smart heavy metal fans.

In addition, the video for the title song has been featured on MTV's 120 Minutes indicating that many in the music industry as well as a number of Drivin' N' Cryin's fans feel there is an alternative element in this band.

Last of all, Kinney has recorded an album of acoustic folk songs entitled MacDougal Blues and surely Fly Me Courageous would appeal to some in the folk/blues audience.

This band is definitely original. They're not just your typical rock band with a blues feel to them. They expand into every genre of music. The title track, "Fly Me Courageous," is by far their best song. The instrumental work is excellent and full of genuine emotion and the lyrics stir up thoughts that are surely in every American's mind. "Mother America is brandishing her weapons / She keeps me safe and warm by threats and misconceptions."

Rumor has it these guys put on an excellent show. And with the musical ability they show on Fly Me Courageous I can't see how this wouldn't be true. Expect a lot more from this band in the future because even though they've been around for six years and made four albums they've just begun to show their listeners the true talent they have as a complete band.

Drivin' N' Cryin' will appear with special guests The Vestrymen at Pearl Street in Northampton. Doors open at 8:30 p.m. Tickets are $6 in advance and $7 at the door.

Photo courtesy of Island Records

Drivin' N' Cryin' is (from left to right) Buren Fowler, Kevn Kinney, Jeff Sullivan and Tim Nielsen.

charlie's
1 Pray St., Amherst—549-5403 • Open 11am
7 days a Week
Kitchen open til midnight
Game Room with 2 pool tables
Tonight 10c Beer Steamed Baby Franks
9:00p.m. — 12:00 a.m.
Beer of the Month: MOLSON BOTTLES $1.85
Drink of the Week: Sweet Tart $1.75
Food Giveaways
Mon. 10 cent Mozzarella Sticks 9pm-12am
Tues. 10 cent Buffalo Wings 9pm-12am
Wed. 25cent Pizza Slices and 99 cent Nachos 9pm-12am
Thurs 10 cent Beer Steamed Baby Franks 9pm-12am
Sunday 10 cent Potato Skins 9pm-12am
WE ACCEPT MC-VISA-AMEX

Main St RECORDS
SON OF Main St RECORDS
RECORDS • CASSETTES • COMPACT DISCS
IMPORTED, INDEPENDENT & DOMESTIC
MON—WED 9:30-6 SUN 12-5
THURS—SAT 9:30-9
213 MAIN ST. NORTHAMPTON
586-5726
COLLECTABLES • USED
MANUFACTURER'S OVER—STOCKS
MONDAY—SATURDAY 10-5:30
THURSDAYS 10-9 SUNDAY 12-5
21 STATE ST., NORTHAMPTON
586-1707

Spirit Haus Liquor Store
HAPPY VALENTINE'S DAY
Michelob/Michelob Light/Michelob Dry
12 pk cans
$7.39
Amaretto Di Saronno
750 ml
$14.99
Gordon's Gin
1.75 L
$13.99
Piel's Draft Style
case 12 oz bots
$8.49
Rolling Rock Light
12 pk cans
$6.70
Dos Equis Amber Mexican Beer
12 pack bots
$9.99
Cook's Champagne
To enhance the romance
750 ml
$4.39
Pink Passion
2 L w/free squeeze bottle
$4.59
Molson
12 pack cans
$8.69
Southern Comfort
750 ml
$8.49
Sapporo Dry Japanese Beer
case 12 oz bots
$11.99
338 College St. (Rt. 9) Amherst 253-5384

SPRING BREAK TODAY!
TRAVEL FAIR
Campus Travel
Today
TODAY
free
REGGAE CONCERT
the EQUALITES
10 am- 4 pm THURSDAY FEBRUARY 14
STUDENT UNION BALLROOM
sponsored by TRAVEL & TOURISM RESEARCH ASSOCIATION and CAMPUS TRAVEL CENTER

Chucklehead is as goofy and funky as they want to be

By DANIELLE DOWLING
Collegian Staff

Hip-hop funk with a horn section mixing rap, rock and soul.

That's an accurate description of Chucklehead, a band from the Boston area. They have brought their special blend of styles to many college campuses throughout New England as well as clubs in Boston and New York City.

Proclaimed to be at the forefront of hip-hop, the group consists of eight members. Eb-Tide, guitarist and vocalist, was once a member of the Smithsonian Guard Ensemble. He claims to be a slide show enthusiast who enjoys golf and processed cheese.

Huck, on tenor and baritone sax as well as percussion duty, likes body building, gravy and glue. His favorite word is nose. Brainy B, on keyboards and French horn, has endeared people the world over with his posture. Len-E-Len, on tenor sax, enjoys counting in groups of two's and three's.

Ringo Jones just plays bass. John "Scooter" Schachter, on trumpet, is a proud chaperone at the 3-D House of Pancakes. E-Rock, the drummer, can often be found baying at the moon and eating excrement in broad daylight. And last, but not least, there's alto sax player Robert W. Nahf III, who is an Eagle Scout with 73 badges to his name.

The band uses a live rhythm section and live horns as well as samples from pop culture and everyday life. They are said to have an enormous stage presence that breaks the wall between band and audience. Judging from the biographical descriptions, I would suppose that their presence would be goofy as well.

Chucklehead will play at Katina's on Saturday. Admission will be $1 off for college students. Katina's is also offering free bus service from the Southwest Horseshoe. A bus will arrive every hour on the hour from 9 p.m. to 1 a.m.

Photo courtesy of Chucklehead Productions

Chucklehead will play at Katina's on Saturday

SPRING BREAK 91
cancun mexico Air & Hotel included
Spaces still available!

El Batab/Downtown	$409
Laguna/Across Beach	$479
Solymar/Beach Econ	$509
Las Perlas/Beach Med	$529
Conrad Hilton/Super	$569
Cancun Playa/Deluxe	$599

*Prices based on Quad. occ
Organize a group & get a free trip!
Local Contact: JASON 549-7952
For more info. call 800-331-6002

BOSTON BARTENDERS SCHOOL of AMERICA
Be a Bartender
Days/Evenings 1 Week.
Spend Spring Break With Us!
Placement Assistance
(413) 747-9888
1655 MAIN STREET SPRINGFIELD, MA

BETTY RULES!
February 24
Show starts at 8:00 p.m.
JOHN M. GREENE HALL
Smith College Campus
Doors and Box Office Open at 7:00 p.m.
General Admission
Five College Students $5
General Public $8
$10 at the door
On sale at For the Record, Amherst
sponsored by Smithg Lesbian-Bisexual Alliance and Women's Resource Center

The Quill on Green Street's
GREEN DOT SALE
Any Book with a Green Dot gets you 50% Off the Quill's Regular Price.
50% Off Most Children's Books
Recent Best Sellers
All Travel Books
Most Hard Bound Books
MON. - FRI. 8:30AM - 5:30PM · SAT. 10:00AM - 4:00PM
VISA QUILL BOOKSHOP MasterCard
100 GREEN STREET NORTHAMPTON, MASS

KATINA'S
THURSDAY SELECTROCUTION Electronic Flirtation Dance Party FEB 14
FRIDAY PHYSICAL GRAFFITI The Ultimate in Led Zeppelin FEB 15
SATURDAY Progressive Dance Party w/ CHUCKLEHEAD $1 off with college i.d. FEB 16
SUNDAY BACK IN BLACK An AC/DC Tribute All AGES FEB 17
ng•upcoming•upcoming•upcoming•upco
The Machine ..... Friday, Feb. 22
Material Issue w/ 8th Route Army all ages .... Sunday, Feb. 24
Max Creek ..... Friday, Mar. 1
Ronnie Earl & the Broadcasters w/ Treat Her Right .. Friday, Mar. 8
ADVANCE TIX: Katina's, Strawberries, Hilton, Platterpuss, About Music, Main Music
ROUTE 9, HADLEY • 586-4463

Largest College Daily in New England

THE MASSACHUSETTS DAILY COLLEGIAN Established in 1890

VOLUME C FRIDAY, FEBRUARY 15, 1991 ISSUE 83

AP photo

SAUDI ARABIA — Pfc. Nolan of Agawam, MA, who is with the U.S. Army's 1st Armored Division takes a nap on an M1A1 Abrams tank.

235 bodies recovered at bomb site

By EDITH M. LEDERER
The Associated Press

DHAHRAN, SAUDI ARABIA — The allies pressed on with the air war yesterday, but focused on supply lines and troop concentrations after Iraq charged that a U.S. raid on a building in Baghdad killed hundreds of civilians.

Two American airmen were killed in the crash of a U.S. EF-111A electronic jamming and radar-detection jet. The Air Force said this is the 27th U.S. warplane lost in the war. U.S. military officials in Riyadh said it was a combat loss.

In Baghdad, thousands of angry Iraqis marched to a cemetery to bury fellow civilians killed Wednesday in the U.S. bombing of a structure where they had taken shelter.

Baghdad officials say the building was a civilian air raid shelter: the U.S. military says it was an Iraqi command and control center.

On Wednesday, Iraqi officials claimed 500 civilians were killed in the raid. Official Baghdad radio said today that 64 bodies had been pulled out from the rubble, but it apparently referred only to those already identified.

The supervisor of the building said that by sundown Wednesday, 235 bodies had been recovered and hundreds more were believed buried beneath piles of concrete and twisted metal.

Associated Press correspondent Salah Nasrawi and other reporters were escorted to the site of the attack today where they counted at least 40 corpses, many of them decapitated or missing limbs, pulled out between 10:30 a.m. and noon.

As coffins draped in Iraqi flags were lowered into a mass grave, crowds shouted anti-American slogans. "Bush, Bush, you will pay for all crimes shedding innocent blood every day," the mourners pledged.

The issue of civilian casualties was expected to be raised at a closed-door meeting of the U.N. Security Council yesterday.

Iraq's information minister, Latif Jassim, yesterday called U.N. Secretary General Javier Perez de Cuellar "a filthy and criminal conspirator" for "maintaining silence toward the crimes of the Americans and their allies."

A military communique, read on Baghdad radio, called the killing of civilians a premeditated crime. It said more than 130 new allied raids had been carried out against civilian areas, including religious sites.

Iraqi officials said Wednesday night's raids were considerably less intense than those of the previous night, and targeted mainly the downtown Baghdad telecommunications center, inflicting damage to nearby houses and business centers.

Galligan's confessor's letter questioned

By SARAH DEMASTER
Collegian Staff

A Hampshire County Jail inmate's written confession to the 1989 killing of University of Massachusetts junior Sharon Galligan is inconsistent with investigators' information, State Police Lt. Edward Harrington said yesterday.

The inmate, William J. Schumann, sent a letter, dated Jan. 2, to the Daily Hampshire Gazette. Harrington said the newspaper then forwarded it to the Crime Prevention and Control Unit of Northwestern District Attorney Judd Carhart's office, which is conducting the investigation.

Harrington declined to comment on whether investigators have spoken with Schumann since receiving the letter.

"[Investigators] are checking out the letter, as they have checked out all the information we have received," Harrington said. "I can't comment in great depth on Schumann and the content of the letter, but there are some inaccuracies."

Harrington said, for example, that "Schumann indicates in the letter that he had prior knowledge Sharon was going to be at the mall. We know this not to be true because it was a spontaneous decision on her part [to visit the mall], and not many people knew about it."

An excerpt of the letter, published yesterday in the Gazette, read: "I happened to run into her on the UMass campus, and I didn't like her much, but I continued to talk to her anyway. Then she told me she was majoring in psychology. That was enough for me to hear."

Schumann wrote that because Galligan was a psychology major, "she would have grown up to be a torturer and murderer. In fact, she was already plying her trade," according to the Gazette.

Galligan, 20, of Framingham, had occasionaly volunteered to work with mentally ill patients. She was stabbed to death on the night of Dec. 18 in the parking lot of the Hampshire Mall in Hadley, and was found almost 21 hours later in her car by a shopper.

Schumann's description of the assault also differs from

CONTINUED ON PAGE 7

Smith freshman dies this week

By MARK HENSLEY
Collegian Staff

Kimberly Anne Tyler, a freshman at Smith College, was found dead from natural causes on Wednesday in her room at Comstock House, Smith officials said yesterday in a press release.

Tyler, who had not been seen for several days and had not answered her telephone or door, was found by security officers when they unlocked her door at the requests of her basketball coach Jim Babyak and her sister Tami Tyler.

As of yesterday afternoon, officials at Northwestern District Attorney Judd Carhart's office were classifying the death as accidental and were awaiting details from an autopsy.

Tyler was a graduate of Enfield High School in Conn. and was recruited by Babyak for the Smith basketball team. Babyak was unavailable for comment.

Tyler leaves her sister Tami, a junior at Smith, as well as her parents Marilyn and Thomas. A reception for Tyler, who would have been 19 yesterday, will be held for friends today from 7 p.m. to 9 p.m. at the Leete-Stevens Funeral Home in Enfield.

CONTINUED ON PAGE 7

Sanctions on South Africa may be lifted

By RUTH SINAI
The Associated Press

WASHINGTON — If South Africa keeps its promise to release all political prisoners by April 30, the Bush administration will ask Congress to respond by allowing the resumption of some trade with that country, U.S. officials say.

Once the prisoners are freed, the officials said Wednesday, President Bush will certify that South Africa has met most of the conditions imposed by Congress for resuming trade and has also made "substantial progress" toward establishing a non-racial democracy.

If Congress doesn't object within 30 days, the administration can lift the sanctions. The consultation process could begin by early summer, said one official, who like others spoke on condition of anonymity.

The administration wants to reward South African President F.W de Klerk for his efforts to dismantle apartheid, the system that allows South Africa's white minority to dominate the country's black majority.

But it has also been restrained by activists, including the African National Congress, who warn that sanctions should remain in place until South Africa's black majority is granted complete equality, including the right to vote.

The administration expects resistance from some lawmakers, especially those of the Congressional Black Caucus, the officials say. A key caucus member, Rep. Mervyn Dymally (D-Calif) is the new chairperson of the House n'a on Africa.

Some liberal lawmakers are expected to dispute the administration's interpretation of the sanctions law.

Specifically, some have indicated they would challenge the provision in South Africa's security laws that allows indefinite detention of suspects without trial.

"I don't expect we'd lift [the sanctions] all at once" in an effort to mollify Congress, said one official.

"Congress has set a checklist of criteria" for lifting the sanctions, "and we won't deviate from that," he said.

But freeing the hundreds of political prisoners would be the last item on the checklist laid out by Congress when it banned trade with South Africa in 1986, said the official.

The administration likely will ask Congress to lift the ban on imports of agricultural goods from South Africa to allow U.S. companies already operating in South Africa to invest new funds in that country.

INSIDE:

FRIDAY, FEBRUARY 15, 1991

Page 3:
"Peace Corpses" demonstrates against the war yesterday in the Cape Cod Lounge.

Page 5:
Pratip Dastidar comments on the hypocrisy of pro- and anti-war supporters.

Page 12:
Men's basketball at home against Penn State, tomorrow at 7 p.m.

WEATHER

Keep those parkas handy, chance of snow flurries today or tonight. Temps will be 35 to 40 degrees.

SENIORS

THERE ARE OPEN TIMES FOR PORTRAIT SITTINGS

TODAY

FOR THE 1991 YEARBOOK
TIME: 10:00-12:30
PLACE: 177 CAMPUS CENTER
$5 SITTING FEE

Diploma

SALE

All Week! Saturday Feb.16 - Saturday Feb. 23

It's So Good...

- Sony MDR-V6 headphones $89
- Onkyo DX-1400 CD player $159
- Adcom GFA-535 amplifier $249
- NAD 5325 CD player $159
- Denon DCD-660 CD player $249
- 3 free CD's w/Denon DCM-350, DCD-1560, or DCD-2560
- Sony CDP-X33ESD CD player $469
- Sony CDP-85ESD CD carousel $429
- Onkyo TX-811 receiver $169
- NAD 7225PE receiver $269
- Sony STR-GX40ES receiver $299
- Onkyo TX-SV50 Pro surround receiver $499
- Denon DRA-335R/DRM-400/DCD-660 system $655
- Adcom GFA-565 preamp $699
- Hafler XL-280 amplifier $599

We Could Lose Our Shirts

- Kenwood KRC-200f car cass. $159
- Kenwood KRC-410 pull-out car cass. $229
- Kenwood KDC-93R car CD $299
- Sony CDX-A30 trunk CD changer $399
- Boston Acoustics 767 speakers $119/pr.
- JVC HRD-540 VCR $299
- JVC AV-3150S 31" TV $1,199
- Sony MDP-333 video disc player $469
- Sony 1AE-1000 DSP surround preamp $850
- $150 Cash back on any Tera or Proton TV (27" or larger)
- JVC PCW-150 dual cass. port $139
- Proton 320 radio $89
- Sony TCS-430 recording Walkman $95
- Onkyo TA-W200 dual cass $215
- NAD 6325 cass $237
- Sony TC-RX70ES auto-rev cass. $269
- Other cassette decks from $169
- Free calibration with every deck
- Free case of Maxell XLII-90 with every 3-head deck
- Sony DTC-75ESD DAT $799
- Boston Acoustics HD-5 speakers $129/pr
- Boston Acoustics HD-8 speakers $215/pr.
- B&W DM-310 speakers $450/pr.
- Apogee Centaur speakers $1,350/pr.
- Free Supex Vanderstands with Vandersteen 2Ci
- Free Supex Vanderstands with Snell & Paradigm speakers with system purchase
- Save 20% on Snell & Paradigm speakers with system purchase

We Install, call for a quote!

And more!

*These prices are for new (not demo) stock. Some quantities limited.

Demo Sale

Monday Feb.18 Only

Unprintably low prices! Up to 50% off!

Store opens at 10 AM--First come, first served.

A complete list of all sale and demo sale items is now available at the store. No lay-aways, no cash refunds.

Free Shirt

Bring this in for a FREE Sound & Music T-Shirt with a purchase of $25 or more. Limit 1 per customer, while they last!

Sale Ends Sat. Feb. 23

Sound & Music

Millbank Place • 351 Pleasant • Northampton • 584-9547 • VISA & MasterCard accepted

SPRING BREAK
PANAMA CITY BEACH
FLORIDA

- High quality beachfront accommodations for 7 exciting nights
- Round trip chartered motor coach
- Free pool deck parties, activities, & promotions
- Inter-Campus Programs I.D./Discount card
- On-location staff for complete assistance
- All taxes, tips, & service charges included

$114 $219

Contact Barbara 549-8156

THE MASSACHUSETTS
DAILY COLLEGIAN

New England's largest college daily newspaper. Circulation: 19,000. Published every weekday during the calendar semester. The Massachusetts Daily Collegian is a Registered Student Organization of the University of Massachusetts.

113 Campus Center, Amherst, MA, 01003
Phone (413) 545-3500 FAX (413) 545-1592

STAFF

Editor in Chief....Terry Starmer
Managing Editor....Jody Gabin
Editorial Editor....Jeremy Levinson
News Editor....Gayle Long
Sports Editor....Adrien Katt
Arts Editor....Danielle Dowling
Photography Editor....K.A. Burke
Black Affairs Editor....Sondra Sutton
Women's Issues Editors....Risa Kelly, Monique Tabon
Multicultural Affairs Editor....Alexander Nguyen
Third World Affairs Editor....Pratip Dastidar
Lesbian, Bisexual, Gay Issues Editor....Trystan Skeigh
Business Manager....Susan George
Advertising Manager....Dave Melnick
Finance Manager....Beth Patterson
Circulation Manager....Jim Winterbottom
Subscriptions Manager....Stacey Rogers
Promotions Manager....Marc Pruskin
Production Manager....Nicole Dumas
Day Graphics Manager....Jenn Burns

PROFESSIONAL STAFF

Business....Brian Harrington, Lori Black, Maureen Majerowski
Graphics....Rory Evans

TODAY'S STAFF

Night Editor....Sarah DeMaster
Copy Editor....Lavinia Gammon
Layout Technician....Rick Seto
Photo Technician....Dondi Ahern
Production Supervisor....Rick Seto
Typesetter....Kim Frisino
Production....Brad Hutchison, Chris Pirell, Jason Torla

GLOBAL TICKET EXCHANGE
(413) 747-9922

NEIL YOUNG 2/19 Hartford	HALL & OATES 2/16 Sptfd
	LIVING COLOR 2/16
STING 2/8 Hartford	VANILLA ICE New Haven & Sptfd
INXS 2/26 Hartford	PAUL SIMON Hartford

RED SOX — BRUINS — WHALERS & CELTIC tickets.
All concerts — sports & theater tickets
1605 Main St. Springfield • (413) 747-9922

Distinguished Visitors Program Proudly Presents:

Investigative Journalist and Editor

MARTIN LEE

Author of Acid Dreams: CIA, LSD & The Sixties Rebellion

Narco Terrorism:
The Politics of International Drug Trafficking

Tuesday, Feb 19, 1991
8:00 p.m.
Student Union Ballroom
FREE ADMISSION

distinguished visitors program

LOCAL

Guerilla theater stages forth anti-war skit

By DAVID RIVERA
Collegian Correspondent

Guerrilla theater came to the University of Massachusetts yesterday when the "Peace Corpses" staged its fourth anti-war skit for the afternoon crowds in the Cape Cod Lounge.

The dozen members, dressed in gas masks and chemical warfare uniforms, marched into the lounge and proceeded with a second parody of a military press conference, their first being last Saturday in Amherst center.

Collegian photo by Dondi Ahearn

Members of "Peace Corpses" stage die-in in Cape Cod Lounge.

Bill Troper, a UMass graduate student, addressed the crowd while fellow Peace Corpses members fell to the ground around him.

"There is no censorship of the press. We're doing what's best for the American people," replied Troper to the question of military censorship.

The crowd in the lounge was at first unsure and silent in response to what has now been coined, "Death Theater."

"I think that it's a good way for people to vent their frustration with the war," said Susan Bowles, a UMass student who stopped to watch the demonstration.

After the performance began, a Peace Corpses member dressed as an angel, walked among the "dead" soldiers and tapped them with a wand, bringing them back to life.

"I joined the Reserves to make a better life for my family, and now I'm dead," said a Peace Corpses member when revived by the angel.

Michelle Martin, a UMass student who confronted the demonstrators with her own opinion said, "My fiance' is in the Persian Gulf, and I don't think yelling at each other is going to help the troops."

"I think you're sending the wrong messages to the troops. We've committed ourselves, and now we have to support those who are willing to sacrifice their lives," she said.

This demonstration, unlike last Saturday's, did not have a pro-war element. One man, however, who was carrying an American flag and yelling obscenities and patriotic slogans appeared to be part of the skit. Peace Corpses members would not confirm this.

Most of the people in the lounge felt that the demonstration was good and that such demonstrations make people think about the situation in the Persian Gulf.

Collegian photo by Dondi Ahearn

Guerrilla theater members protest the war with masks and fake blood.

"[The war] is not very personal right now, but it will be if there is a draft," said Christine De Roche, who also thought the demonstrators were playing a part in the consciousness of the anti-war movement.

"Guerilla theater needs more people, and we're encouraging people to volunteer and take part in future productions," said Troper, who was arrested by Amherst police on Saturday for a similar demonstration. His defense is now being sponsored by the American Civil Liberties Union.

Man arrested for allegedly altering I.D.

Compiled by MARK HENSLEY
Collegian Staff

Michael R. Smith, 19, of Harvard was arrested yesterday for being intoxicated and allegedly possessing an altered Massachusetts driver's license.

- A man from Kennedy residence hall reported on Wednesday that his watch, camera, and Walkman were stolen from his room while he was next door. The total value was $425.
- Staff at Hasbrouck Laboratory reported the theft of an Ohaus balance scale on Wednesday valued at $95.
- A Vermont license plate was reported stolen from Lot 22 on Wednesday.
- A man reported $40 was stolen from his wallet in Totman Gymnasium on Wednesday.
- A Southwest woman reported yesterday a call of a sexual nature from a male caller.
- A Southwest woman reported on Wednesday that she received several obscene phone calls from a male caller.
- A man reported his passenger door was kicked in Wednesday while his car sat in Lot 42. The damage totaled $100.
- Police blamed careless disposal of smoking materials in a trash can for causing a fire and an alarm in Baker Dormitory on yesterday.

Film shows child's view of life in Palestine

By DAVID RIVERA
Collegian Correspondent

Last night, people saw a view of the Palestinian struggle from an unusual source: children.

"Children of Fire," shown in Herter 231, is a film showing the struggle of the Palestinians of the occupied territories, through the eyes of its youngest citizens. It exposes most people to hard facts about the situation in the West Bank, and the Intifada movement of the occupied lands.

Jean-Khalil Chamoun, a Palestinian who now lives in the United States, decided to return to her home village of Nablus in the West Bank with the goal of making a documentary about the struggle.

"I do my homework, I clean my plate, I wash my hands and then I go outside and throw stones at the soldiers," said five-year-old Madi, a young boy who lives in Nablus.

The movie showed how the occupation is destroying the very culture of the people.

"Each time they kill one, they enrage a hundred," said a young boy whose brother had been killed by an Israeli soldier.

When the film concluded, Chamoun and Mai Masri, the director of the film, fielded questions from the audience. Most of the audience wanted to address the Palestinian problem as a whole, but Chamoun and Masri tried to keep the movie as the main issue.

"I made this movie in hopes of showing the world what was really happening in my homeland. I wanted to show, from the inside out, what the children are living through," replied Chamoun to a question. "There can be no real solution until people start to address creation of a Palestinian state, [and] the Intifada as a form of resistance to the occupiers . . . Intifada means 'to shake off,' and that's what the people in the occupied lands want to do — shake free from its occupation," said Chamoun.

Chamoun and Masri went on to explain that the family structure has disintegrated, and children and women have taken leadership roles, because most older men spend a great deal of time in detention prisons.

Chamoun also told of how she and her film crew were careful to not film anything that might endanger anyone who was filmed.

"I was constantly afraid that the film would be confiscated and might be used to implicate someone — that was my greatest fear," said Chamoun. Chamoun also said the American networks, including PBS, have refused to broadcast the movie.

BOG forms constitutional committee

By AMY HENRY
Collegian Staff

A constitutional committee was formed last night at the Board of Governors meeting to serve as the "think tank" for the Board in assessing the present constitution as well as new ideas, said Susan Gordan, chairperson of the Board.

Gordan said the constitutional committee was formed in response to the Board being politically on the left until last semester.

"I would like to depoliticize the Board. Right now it is 50-50 — 50 percent politics and 50 percent student issues. This takes away from our collective power."

Gordon said she wants to get back to its mission statement which includes focusing more on the needs of the students in the Campus Center.

The five members elected to the committee were Gov. Micah Levy, from the Sylvan area, Gov. Mary Noone, treasurer, Richard Brown, from the South West area, Gov. Caroline Ghilani from the South West area and Ben Preston of the Northeast area. Preston was voted chairperson of the committee.

Preston said, "The intentions of the committee are to design a constitution for the Board which runs more effectively for students' needs."

"The committee welcomes all views and perspectives in the development of a new constitution," he said. "We would like to encourage any member of the student body to attend."

The committee's suggestions are nonbinding, and will be voted on by the Board.

The meeting is next Tuesday at 7 p.m. in the BOG office. "If anyone cannot attend the meeting, I invite them to prepare an idea and put it in the mailboxes of persons who are on the committee, which are located in the BOG office."

In other business:

- Gov. Laura Silver resigned from the Lesbian Gay Bisexual seat.
- Brendan McCarthy was appointed as a Stockbridge representative.

Collegian photo by Dondi Ahearn

A STROLL — A woman braves the wind and rain yesterday to slosh by the Tower Library.

AUDI • BMW • VW-VEHICLES
IMPORTED CARS
Full Service Center
Maintenance, minor & major repairs and used car sales.
One of the area's most capable service and repair facilities.
German trained mechanic since 1951.
Tune-ups • oil changes • brakes • shocks • mufflers
• Windshields (insurance approved), body shop, diesel work and diagnostics
Prompt, Reliable Work At Reasonable Prices
GERMAN AUTOMOTIVE
The foreign car specialist with emphasis on V.W. & Audi vehicles.
605 North King St. (Rt. 5)
Northampton
586-1525
½ mile north of Calder's Established 1974
• U.S. COMPACTS • MERCEDES • PORSCHE • NISSAN • BRITISH CARS • SAAB • VOLVO
• HONDA • TOYOTA • SUBARU • MAZDA

UMass Recyclers
Do It More Than Once

BETTY RULES!
February 24
Show starts at 8:00 p.m.
JOHN M. GREENE HALL
Smith College Campus
Doors and Box Office Open at 7:00 p.m.
General Admission
Five College Students $8
General Public $9
$10 at the door
On sale at For the Record, Amherst
sponsored by Smithg Lesbian-Bisexual Alliance and Women's Resource Center

Chancellor Joseph Duffey
and
Executive Vice Chancellor &
Provost Richard D. O'Brien
cordially invite the Campus Community to a reception
in honor of
Dennis L. Madson
Vice Chancellor for Student Affairs
and
Kate J.G. Madson
University Relations & Development
Wednesday, February 20, 1991
4 - 6 p.m.
Memorial Hall

JEWISH UNITY and SOLIDARITY VIGIL
Friday February 15 at 5:30pm
Meet at the Amherst Commons
All 5 College Community Members Are Welcome!
In case of heavy snow...meet at the UMass Hillel House — 5:30pm
For confirmation call — 549-1710 or 549-4131
Come TOGETHER to show concern and support for ISRAEL!
Sponsored by the 5-College Hillel
For more infromation on programs to Israel contact: Israel Action Center USD-AZ4F
110 East 59th St., New York, NY 10022, 3rd floor, 1-800-27-Israel

Council Travel
SPRING BREAK
from Boston
Cancun starting at $489
Jamaica starting at $509
Price includes:
•Round trip airfare & transfers
•7 nights accommodation & hotel taxes
Low Student Airfares!
CALL FOR MORE INFORMATION
79 South Pleasant Street
Amherst, Ma 01002
413-256-1261
America's oldest & largest Student Travel Agency

PUBLIC NOTICE
WANTED
MUSICIANS INTERESTED IN QUALITY
MERCHANDISE AT LOWEST PRICES
COME TO NEW ENGLAND'S MUSICAL SALE
SAVE UP TO 70%
GIVE—A—WAYS TO FIRST 50 CUSTOMER EACH DAY
RAMADA INN
(former Sheraton West)
1088 Riverdale Street-Rte 5
West Springfield, MA
FALCETTI MUSIC
34th ANNIVERSARY SALE
For more information call 413-538-7970 or 413-543-1002
No dealers or wholesalers

The Quill on Green Street's
GREEN DOT SALE
Any Book with a Green Dot gets you
50% Off the Quill's Regular Price.
50% Off Most Children's Books
Recent Best Sellers
All Travel Books
Most Hard Bound Books
MON. - FRI. 8:30AM - 5:30PM • SAT.10:00AM - 4:00PM
VISA
QUILL BOOKSHOP
100 GREEN STREET NORTHAMPTON, MASS
MasterCard

THE PUB
fun food & spirits
Friday-Saturday-Sunday
Sample Our New Menu
Spicy Chicken Nachos
$2.00
8:00 pm - 10:00 pm
Pitchers of Miller Lite
$4.50
Miller Genuine Draft
12 oz Bots
$1.25
DANCING ALL THREE NIGHTS

EDITORIAL/OPINION

The opinions on this page are those of the individual writer or cartoonist and do not necessarily reflect the views of the Collegian or the University unless otherwise noted.

The hypocrisy of regret

Pratip Dastidar

At 4 a.m. on Feb. 13 hundreds of Iraqi women and children from the middle class Baghdad neighborhood of Al-Amiriya were huddled in the Department of Civil Defence's Public Shelter No. 25. Proud young Americans were very, very busy this night.

Suddenly, American F-117A Stealth bombers swooped out of the night sky like ugly birds of prey. Laser beams from target designators on the bombers mercilessly locked onto the entrance of the building. Microseconds later a 2,000 pound GBU-27 smart bomb, with the high explosive Tritinol, slammed into the doors, detonated, and blocked the exit. The murderers had ensured that the tomb of their victims was sealed. Good morning Baghdad — America calling.

A second GBU-27 bomb wiggled its aerodynamic fins and streaked into the roof of the shelter, cutting through 10 feet of reinforced concrete like butter. The execution was merciless as flesh roasted, organs compressed, and hair sizzled. Over 600 Iraqi people were cremated in their macabre tomb. Some of them may have supported the invasion of Kuwait. They paid for it dearly.

Across the once-prospering land of Iraq this story is being repeated again and again. On the same day as the massacre of Al-Amiriya, 60 refugees heading for Jordan in buses were vaporized by missiles. The Al-Amara marketplace in Basra was bombed, and people were "running like flies."

Mosques are collapsing under bombs, children are being traumatized, entire neighborhoods have been liquidated. There is no water, no gas, no electricity, little food. The roads are so badly cratered that the wounded can't reach hospitals. In the hospitals there are no anaesthetics for the burn victims.

Iraqi propoganda? This information is based on the New York Times, and the testimony of a former U.S. Attorney General. I wouldn't bother to quote Iranian estimates of 100,000 civilian casualties or Jordanian press accounts of American fighter planes blasting Iraqi Red Crescent ambulances with crosses painted on their roof. Only Americans can give you truth.

So why are some of us saying all this?

Well, for a start, let us address the American supporters of this war. Please don't nauseate us with Machavellian concern for dead Arab civilians. Have some courage, show some fighting spirit. Your country is at war, and this is an inevitable and necessary aspect of the greatest aerial massacre in history. Attempts to claim that these attacks are mistakes will not convince anyone on the streets of Rabat, Amman, or Kuala Lumpur. Support your troops and trust your generals.

Only in the world of psychological warfare do baby food factories become biological warfare centers, and civilian shelters become command centers. Five-star hotels are bunkers, trucks are Scud launchers. Well, after all, Iraqis are mobile assets.

How about those that claim to oppose this war? Don't weep for the dead of Al-Amiriya. Hypocricy is worse than patriotism. Most of you only care about the lives of Americans (forget the mandatory lip service to Iraqis — we don't buy it) and your domestic agenda. You all oppose Saddam Hussein. Thank your army for doing a job that you would rather have done through embargo.

How about non-Americans who opposed the Baathist move into Kuwait on Aug. 2, without trying to appreciate the complexities of regional politics? Saddam's Iraq doesn't sell too well with the Americans does it? Do not underestimate the emotional significance of this man for his people.

At this moment of courage and tragedy what do the people of Al-Amiriya need? Might we dare hazard that they need Iraqi doctors to heal them? How about Iraqi soldiers to man anti-aircraft batteries? Some Iraqi engineers to devise countermeasures against laser-guided weapons?

One thing is for sure. They don't need guilty tears, the bombs endorsed by American patriots, and the analysis of expatriate historians and social scientists. May they be blessed with life.

Pratip Dastidar is Collegian Staff.

CAMPUS POND

Last month, the five officers of the Undergraduate Student Government Association took it upon themselves to ask the University administration to dissolve the student government. The administration responded by doing so and charging a commission to create a new government for undergrads.

On Thursday, Feb. 28 the Ed/Op page will run a two-page extra-special bonanza edition exploring the community's views of these events. What lies ahead for student government? Was this a good or bad move in these troubled times? We want to know how you feel. Please have all submissions to the Collegian office by Tuesday, Feb. 26. Have fun.

Why I'm pissed off that five bozos sold student government to Whitmore

Jeremy P. Levinson

Jeez, Why couldn't Vice Chancellor Dennis Madson just leave in peace? Instead we all have to suffer through his last hurrah. He and his fan club, a.k.a the student government officers ("Please, call me Denny") have formed an anti-constitutionalist junta.

From the man who declared that "it is in the best interests of the campus" that student-funded attorneys are forbidden to litigate on behalf of their clients, who insisted he was protecting University women by devastating the Everywomen's Center, we have another round of DoubleSpeak.

Madson must be drooling at this opportunity to give student power one last kick in the ass.

He claims that he "want(s) to work for a stronger student voice." Dennis will never be known as having strained his ears to gauge student sentiment. Rather, he is renowned for scurrying away in a cold sweat from students who have something to say.

Our Vice Chancellor wants a 'partnership' between the students and the administration. Gee, at first, this sounds like the 'partnership' he wanted with graduate students who were poised to unionize. The only partnership Denny wants is one in which students are a silent partner.

The language used here has been around as long as shameful automatons like Madson have been running institutions. Sadly, the five officers of the student government use the same language.

They should know better.

They have been here for years. They have seen Legal Services shackled by an administration who wanted the freedom to abuse students — without having to answer to the law. They've seen the union struggles in which the administrati[illegible]played its anti-union role to a 'T.' Th[illegible] have seen tu[illegible]s arrested, expelled and beaten based on skin color — w[illegible]th the administration either indifferent or th[illegible]ctual perpetrator. They have seen dorms turned into [illegible]ile homes . . . need I go on?

One need not be pa[illegible]ne officers' masturbator[illegible]

[illegible]inner circle to realize that the interests of the students, and the administration often clash. But, the five SGA officers still claim that student power depends on 'help' from Whitmore.

This pretzel logic would have Exxon writing environmental law and Roman Polanski running University Child Care.

Outside of the fishbowl of the University word of this unprecedented action is spreading fast. Trustee McQuilken finally got national coverage . . . but then so did the Rev. Jim Bakker.

There is no basis at all for the actions of the officers or the administration. The bottom line is nothing more complex than administrations prefer students to be seen and not heard. And, the student officers, without any authority whatsoever, helped guarantee this relationship. Not even these people themselves could manufacture justification other than, "We feel like it."

I defy them to try. Let's have an open forum, in the Cape Cod Lounge with the five officers, Madson, Duffey and Jo-Anne Vanin, Dean of Students (I won't hold my breath).

Does it surprise anyone that the five officers have been appointed to the commission charged with recreating the government? Hey, Denny you scratch my back and I'll scratch yours . . . Wait! That's not my back! Clearly, the five officers and the rogues' gallery of administrators on the commission will act as a bloc rendering the token student representatives useless.

Trustee McQuilken claimed that his actions were taken out of responsibility to students who face abuse, discrimination and exclusion. It's swell that this White Marblehead liberal wants to help those, with, uh . . . well less rights than others. He knows damn well that the administration is concerned with one, and only one aspect of this issue: Keeping it out of the news. And, when the make-up of the commission was announced, it didn't reflect this concern at all. Some might call this racism.

There is much more to be said about this disaster. But the new Bottom Line is that the administration has suspended the rules. Clearly, if they disregard the rights of students, we can use any means necessary to put a stop to this. If we don't, all students will feel the effects — for a very long time.

Jeremy P. Levinson is a Collegian columnist.

We want to help you

On Jan. 30, the SGA Officers asked the administration to suspend the Student Government Association and to establish a committee to restructure undergraduate student government on this campus. We in the administration seek to respond constructively to the concerns expressed by the elected leaders of the SGA.

The administration has not suspended student government but has supported the formation of a commission composed primarily of students. Including faculty and staff in its membership, this commission ensures that all the resources on campus can be used to develop a new student government structure that represents all undergraduate students on campus. The product of the commission's work will be placed before the entire student body in the form of a referendum, in May, in order that all students have an opportunity to vote for or against the commission's recommendation.

We have asked the commission to include in its process a public forum on governmental issues. In addition, all students are encouraged to submit suggestions and concerns to the commission.

We are interested in being a constructive partner, working with students to build the best and most effective voice for students. Our campus has greater vitality when its undergraduate student government is strong and effective. We look forward to working with students to strengthen the student government organizations on this campus.

Dennis Madson
Vice Chancellor for Student Affairs

Protesting is patriotic

I am writing to address the issues of patriotism, support for the troops, and the wearing of yellow ribbons. If the word 'patriotism' is used to mean support of the U.S. government's war policy, I affirm my abhorrence for patriotism.

If the slogan 'support the troops' means to support the troops in their military mission to kill or perhaps be killed, I admit to being guilty of not supporting the troops. And if wearing a yellow ribbon signifies my support of our troops fulfilling their mission of war in the Middle East, I abstain from wearing a yellow ribbon. However, if being patriotic means loving this country and all of humanity, and wanting an end to the murderous policies of war-making, count me as patriotic.

Hattie Nestel

ARTS & LIVING

More good jazz musicians at the Horse

By BILL ROSENBLATT
Collegian Staff

Cedar Walton, Ron Carter, Billy Higgins. Wow, wow, wow. Normally, after last night's all-star quartet at Hampden Theatre, we wouldn't expect to see the same level of jazz talent in the Valley for some time to come. But the Iron Horse in Northampton is bringing these three musicians together next Tuesday night.

Each member of this trio is a perfect example of the jazz musician who served his apprenticeship under an acknowledged master and grew to become a master himself. The initial band leaders were different: pianist Walton studied at the Art Blakey University of Hard Bop in the early 60s; bassist Carter lit cool fires as part of the Shorter-Hancock-Carter-Williams team under Miles Davis in the mid-60s; drummer Higgins exploded the boundaries of jazz in the early-60s with the Ornette Coleman Quartet (along with Don Cherry) and developed his supreme sensitivity with Dexter Gordon shortly thereafter.

Since then, the three have developed musical associates that, taken together, comprise just about every important musician in modern jazz. Walton had been a "house" pianist in the 50s for Prestige, a label that was known for its numerous releases of blowing sessions among its all-star artists under rotating leadership. After his Blakey association, he finished out the 60s appearing with, among others, trumpet titans Lee Morgan, Freddie Hubbard and Kenny Dorham.

Like many others of his generation, Walton spent the 70s playing around with electric instruments and didn't get very far, but he came back in 1981 with a beautiful small-label solo piano album. His bold, rhythmically assertive style came into full maturity in the 80s; during that decade's Monk-cover deluge, he became known as one of the few pianists who could play Monk's tunes while sounding completely like himself.

Ron Carter has become one of the undisputed all-time greats of the bass. He left Miles in the late 60s, just before the latter ushered in the fusion era, and recorded a few albums for CTI. Carter, always tasteful, never succumbed to the label's well-known mushy fuzak excesses. He switched to the more vital Milestone label in the mid-70s and produced several exemplars of quiet elegance in small-group jazz; along the way, he experimented with electric bass, cello and "piccolo bass," which is midway between bass and cello. He also appeared as part of the back-to-acoustic V.S.O.P. Quintet along with his Miles bandmates and trumpeter Hubbard.

Carter has probably appeared on hundreds of albums, both as leader and as sideman. He is a virtuoso technician but, not an exhibitionist, and is practically the only bassist who can record solo albums and get away with it. The solo date All Alone is among his most recent releases, as is the evocative Duets with and tenor saxophonist Houston Person.

That brings us to Billy Higgins, perhaps the most versatile of the trio — that he juxtaposed gigs with Ornette Coleman and Dexter Gordon should give you some idea of the man's range. Like Carter, Higgins is a virtuoso of the highest order, yet is known for taste and subtlety rather than showing off. It has been said that the man can power a big band using only brushes. He has not been active as a leader, but has sat in with innumerable jazz greats, from Coltrane to Zoot Sims. He has also reappeared with Coleman-associated musicians from time to time, most recently with the Don Cherry Quartet on Art Deco.

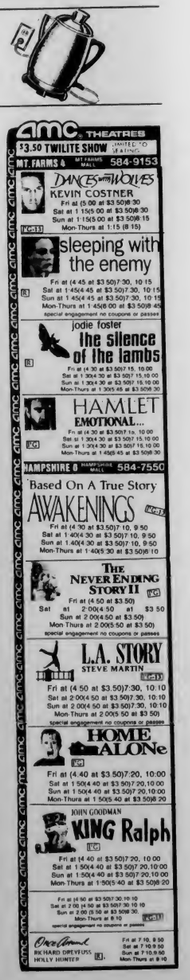
Stern honored

Robert Stern, distinguished professor of music at the University of Massachusetts, has recently been commissioned by the Library of Congress McKim Fund to compose a piece for violin and piano. The composition will be performed at the gala to reopen Coolidge Auditorium, which is now under renovation.

The Coolidge Auditorium has been the home of the Juilliard String Quartet for nearly thirty years. To celebrate the upcoming restoration of the hall, each member of the quartet has commissioned a composer to write an original piece. The Juilliard second violinist, Joel Smirnoff, has selected Robert Stern. Smirnoff has performed Stern's distinctive piece, Night Scene, and has admired the professor's unique musical style.

The commission from the McKim Fund is the latest bit of recognition that Stern has earned. Previous acheivements include awards from the National Endowment for the Arts and the New England Composers Orchestra.

— ANN DARCY



For Your Information

FRIDAY, FEBRUARY 15

Collegian meeting — The Collegian Committee will meet from 3:30 p.m. to 5 p.m. in the Campus Center 905-09.

SATURDAY, FEBRUARY 16

Coffeehouse and Dance — The Men's Resource Connection will sponsor a dance and a coffeehouse from 7 p.m. until midnight at the Unitarian Church in Amherst.

Amazon Rainforest Talk — A talk by Dr. Paul Beaver will be sponsored by the Massachusetts Audubon Society at the Arcadia Nature Center and Wildlife Sanctuary in Easthampton at 2 p.m.

Anti War Rally — An anti-war rally and non-violent direct action will take place at Westover Airforce Base. Ralliers will meet at 1 p.m. at Foodmart on Route 33 and James St. for the march to the main gate. For more information please contact Jim Bosman at 665-4055 or Peter Wagner at 546-2825.

SUNDAY, FEBRUARY 17

Anti War Meeting — An anti-war committee meeting will be held at 2 p.m. in room 304 of the Student Union. The purpose of the meeting will be to establish a strong coalition and define its goals and functions.

MONDAY, FEBRUARY 18

Dramatic Reading — "An Evening with Sorjuana Ines de la Cruz" will be sponsored by the Spanish and Portugese Department at 7:30 p.m. in Seelye Hall 10 of Smith College.

TUESDAY, FEBRUARY 19

Bible Study Meeting — A Bible Study will be sponsored by the Smith Christian Fellowship at noon in Seelye Hall 28 of Smith College.

Anti-War Meeting — An open meeting will be held in the Cape Cod Lounge at 7 p.m. for all those individuals interested in becoming a part of the anti-war movement with a group that has a solid base and unified participation.

Concert — "Take Six" will perform at John M. Greene Hall of Amherst College at 8 p.m.

WEDNESDAY, FEBRUARY 20

Feminist Paper Meeting — The Valley Women's Voice invites all interested women to join at 5 p.m. in Student Union room 321.

THURSDAY, FEBRUARY 21

Maritime Discussion — "Sea Education Association Programs' Presentation" on sailing research vessels out of Woods Hole, MA will be held at 4:15 p.m. at McConnell Hall B05 of Smith College.

Lecture— The English Dept. will sponsor a lecture on "Why the Movies Were Invented" at 8 p.m. in Seelye Hall 10.

■ Galligan

CONTINUED FROM PAGE 1

investigators' accounts, Harrington said.

"We have been aware of Schumann," Harrington said. "But we obviously don't jump at any confessions that come up. We're frustrated, but not so desperate [as to charge Schumann]."

Schumann is awaiting trial on charges of setting fire, last year, to a building at 88 Pomeroy Terrace, which housed the Northampton Area Mental Health Services.

■ Tyler

CONTINUED FROM PAGE 1

The funeral is tentatively set for Saturday, Feb. 16, at either 10 a.m. or 11 a.m., at St. Adalbert's Church on 90 Alden Ave. in Enfield.

An on-campus memorial service will be held, possibly at the end of the basketball season.

Mt. TOM Ski Area

STUDENT DISCOUNTS !!

Great Skiing
Day & Night.
100% Snowmaking.
Expert Grooming.
&
So Close You Can See It!

$12.00 Midweek and Nights
$18.00 Weekends and Holidays

Bring Your Student I.D.

Mt. Tom Ski Area
Route 5 Holyoke MA 536-0416

The INDIA HOUSE
RESTAURANT
Serving in the same location on State St. since 1984
DINNER for 2
$13.95 COMPLETE
ENTREES CHANGE DAILY
SUNDAY—THURSDAY
5 P.M. — 9 P.M.
45 STATE ST.
NORTHAMPTON, MA
586-8344

Now you can afford to dream in color.

Apple introduces the Macintosh LC

If you thought that finding a color Macintosh® system you could afford was just a dream, then the new, affordable Macintosh LC is a dream come true.

The Macintosh LC is rich in color. Unlike many computers that can display only 16 colors at once, the Macintosh LC expands your palette to 256 colors. It also comes with a microphone and new sound-input technology that lets you personalize your work by adding voice or other sounds.

Like every Macintosh computer, the LC is easy to set up and easy to master. And it runs thousands of available applications that all work in the same, consistent way—so once you've learned one program, you're well on your way to learning them all. The Macintosh LC even lets you share information with someone who uses a different type of computer—thanks to the versatile Apple® SuperDrive,™ which can read from and write to Macintosh, MS-DOS, OS/2, and Apple II floppy disks.

Take a look at the Macintosh LC and see what it gives you. Then pinch yourself. It's better than a dream—it's a Macintosh.

For further information please visit the University Store Computer Department Campus Center, 545-2619

The power to be your best.™

© 1990 Apple Computer Inc. Apple, the Apple logo, and Macintosh are registered trademarks of Apple Computer Inc. SuperDrive and "The power to be your best" are trademarks of Apple Computer, Inc. MS-DOS is a registered trademark of Microsoft Corporation. OS/2 is a registered trademark of International Business Machines Corporation.

February 19—February 20

MUSIC MANIA II 4 DAYS ONLY!

EVERYTHING IN THE STORE NOW ON SALE!

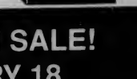
ALL VIDEO ON SALE

7.99 12.99 15.99 NOW ON SALE KATHY SMITH'S WORKOUT SERIES! 10.99 EACH

V-120 VIDEO CASSETTE 3.99

HGX T-120 HIGH GRADE! 3.99

12.99 10.99 12.99 9.99 EACH FIRST TIME EVER ON VIDEO! THE ROCKY & BULLWINKLE COLLECTION



T-120 EHG HIGH GRADE! 3.99

EVERY COMPACT DISC! EVERY TAPE! NOW ON SALE!
FRIDAY, FEBRUARY 15 - MONDAY, FEBRUARY 18
EVERY SINGLE ALBUM TITLE COMPACT DISC ON SALE 10.99 OR LESS!
Some restrictions may apply

DISCWASHER CD CLEANING KIT 9.99

CASE LOGIC CL-15 CASSETTE CARRY CASE 5.79

ALL ACCESSORIES NOW ON SALE

MAXELL XLII 90 4 PACK WITH FREE CASSETTE 9.29

MAXELL UR 90 10 PACK PLUS 1 FREE CASSETTE 10.99

TDK D-90 5 PACK 5.89

TDK SA-90 2 PACK 4.99

NAPA VALLEY S-12 CASSETTE STORAGE 3 FOR 6.99

HADLEY, Russel St. & Route 9.....(413)256-3160
HOLYOKE, 2275 Northampton St.....(413)536-2222
PITTSFIELD, 241 North St.....(413)499-0357
SPRINGFIELD, 1550 Boston Post Rd....(413)543-1517
W. SPRINGFIELD, Memorial Ave.....(413)737-4128
ENFIELD, CT.,Rte. 190 Hazard Ave.....(203)741-3030

Strawberries
RECORDS·TAPES·CDs·VIDEOS
WHEREVER YOU ARE...WE ARE! WITH A CONVENIENT LOCATION NEAR YOU!

DOONESBURY
By GARRY TRUDEAU

SO NOW'S IT GOING, SOLDIER? POST-TRAUMA CITY, I'M GUESSING!
WHA...? DID I GET MOVED AGAIN? WHERE AM I?
ON THE U.S.S. MERCY, SPORT! THE BEST LITTLE HOSPITAL SHIP IN THE GULF!
AND WHO ARE YOU, MAN?
I'M ENSIGN TRIP TRIPLER! BUT THE GANG HERE IN THE SURGICAL UNIT CALL ME "HAWKEYE"!
NO, WE DON'T.
WELL, I'M ENCOURAGING THEM TO!

THE FAR SIDE
By GARY LARSON

"Whoa! Whoa! Whoa! ... You're in my favorite chair again, Carl."

QUOTE OF THE DAY

"The length of a film should be directly related to the endurance of the human bladder."
— Alfred Hitchcock

DAILY CROSSWORD PUZZLE
Edited By TRUDE MICHEL JAFFE

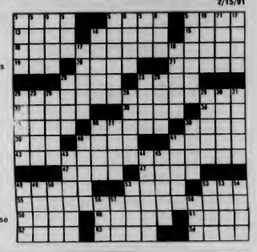
ACROSS
1 Fades
5 Maiden
9 Dash
13 Kitchen staple
14 Crete's capital
15 Protuberance
16 Brants pursuits?
19 Actor Beatty
20 Came down
21 Catkin
22 Notable cookie baker
23 Moderate
25 Clubs in the steeple?
32 Dickens' Drood
33 Like good wine
34 New Guinea port
35 Undiluted
36 Dickens' Oliver
38 Actress Lollobrigida
39 Cable network
40 Layer
41 Annulments: Abbr
42 Sow the publicity?
46 Naturalness
47 Astronaut Shephard
48 Feeling of anxiety
51 Positive
52 Goat
55 Drubs a lifeless Lippizaner?
59 A Gardner
60 Full extent of pitch
61 Fluff
62 Active one
63 Plaster
64 Tryst

DOWN
1 Pillow filler
2 Nastase of tennis
3 Canasta term
4 Sward
5 Follower of a former Chinese leader
6 MIT or RPI
7 Meet the bet
8 Indian tribe
9 Opaque substance
10 Quality for the consolation game
11 Arabian Sea gulf
12 Fit into
14 Punctuation mark
17 Street urchin
18 Excreted
22 "— was in the beginning"
23 Entreats
24 Foster a teton
25 The Reds' Johnny
26 Gland: Comb. form
27 Play a banjo
28 Western Hispanics
29 Highland dance
30 South Gate of "Dallas"
31 Baker's need
36 Digits
37 Fabric weave
38 Advance
40 Shoots the breeze
41 Fray
43 Bed canopy
44 Costa del Sol city
45 Dodge
48 Resting
49 Pianist Peter
50 Weather warning
51 Confined
52 Domingo forte
53 "Say it — so"
54 Allot
56 Sky Altar
57 Rowan or Dailey
58 Of ancient vintage

ANSWER TO PREVIOUS PUZZLE:

P	I	E	T	I	E		A	I	D	I	A		T	W
A	R	I	T	A		S	E	A	M		A	R	A	N
L	O	V	E	S	T	R	I	K	E		P	A	I	L
O	P	E		T	I	L	E	D		R	A	R	I	T
		B	I	A	N			R	I	O	L	E
B	E	W	A	R	E		L	O	C	A	L
A	R	A	S		S	I	E	D	A	I		A	L	E
S	T	I	V	L	E	N	T	I	N		S	I	D	A
S	I	E		A	M	O	N	G		L	E	N	A
		F	I	R	R	O		E	R	A	M	O	S
		A	R	E	N	O	T		G	O	A	T
O	R	A	L	E		S	I	D	A	T		M	E	S
O	R	D	O		S	W	E	E	T	H	E	A	R	T
N	A	I	N		S	A	T	S		S	I	X	D	E
A	S	O			O	R	A	T		R	E	T	A	R

2/15/91



CALVIN AND HOBBES
By BILL WATTERSON

FROM HIGH IN THE SKY, STUPENDOUS MAN TAKES ADVANTAGE OF EARTH'S STRONG GRAVITY!
A DIRECT HIT! STUPENDOUS MAN TRIUMPHS!
WITH ANNOYING GIRL VANQUISHED, THE WHIRLWIND WONDER ZOOMS BACK TO RESUME HIS SECRET IDENTITY!
DID YOU SAVE THE DAY?
JUSTICE REIGNS ONCE MORE!
CALVIN, SUSIE'S MOM JUST CALLED. I WANT TO TALK TO YOU.

TANGELO PIE
By TIM SNIFFEN

Folks, you might recall about a week ago, when we said the word "corn" causes spontaneous combustion.
I exploded.
Apparently, this theory is a fraud! Constructed merely for entertainment value! And as proof, we've decorated the strip with as much corn as possible!
Corn!
CORN!
CORN
MAIZE

SNOOKY LANSON
By E. VEZINA & R. SHAUGHNESSY

I'D LIKE TO PICK UP MY STUDENT LOAN, PLEASE.
BURSAR'S OFFICE
ONE MOMENT...
THE BANK HASN'T SENT YOUR LOAN YET BUT EVEN IF IT HAD IT PROBABLY WOULDN'T BE PROCESSED YET AND EVEN IF IT WERE PROCESSED...
THE COMPUTERS ARE DOWN SO I COULDN'T ACCESS IT AND EVEN IF I COULD ACCESS IT I'M NOT QUALIFIED TO PERFORM THAT TRANSACTION BUT EVEN IF I WERE QUALIFIED TO PERFORM IT I PROBABLY WOULDN'T FEEL LIKE IT AND EVEN IF I DID FEEL LIKE IT MY LUNCH BREAK IS IN THE MORNING AND I'M NOT GOING TO BE BACK IN TIME TO DO ANYTHING!
JUST FORGET IT.

FROTTER
By GARRY PORTER

I CAN'T UNDERSTAND HOW YOU CAN SIT AROUND ALL DAY WITH NOTHING TO DO WITH YOURSELF.
AU CONTRAIRE, MY SCHEDULE IS RATHER FULL.
OH REALLY
WHAT'S SCHEDULED FOR THREE?
LOITERING OUTSIDE THE LIBRARY
MY SECRETARY
AFTERNOON, BANYON
... AND DON'T FORGET ABOUT YOUR 3:30 SENATOR.

MENU

LUNCH
Clam roll
Reuben sandwich

DINNER
Mandarin chicken
Seafood quiche

BASICS LUNCH
Noodles and pea pods
Clam roll

BASICS DINNER
Mandarin chicken
Egg and cheddar florentine

YOUR DAILY HOROSCOPE
By JEANE DIXON

ARIES (March 21-April 19): Understanding your past is the key to building a better future. Find time to let your family know how much you care. Be upfront in both business deals and romance. Act optimistic.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20): Seize a unique opportunity to cement a new alliance. Work will progress nicely if you let go of the past. Try to balance your career and family responsibilities so that neither is slighted.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20): Not a good day for making major purchases. Buyer beware! Friends lend their financial support when you need it most. Your career ambitions receive a boost from a former boss. Show your appreciation.

CANCER (June 21-July 22): Love or good luck could strike today! A stranger or long-distance conversation is involved. Tighten your financial belt. Dance or exercise your cares away. Romance sizzles.

LEO (July 23-Aug 22): Granting a favor helps you smooth over the rough spots in an alliance. Renegotiate a recent agreement. Romance will keep you guessing. Play a waiting game. Issuing an ultimatum will backfire.

VIRGO (Aug 23-Sept 22): You are a smooth operator, able to obtain almost anything you want. Old friends are a source of inside information; use this channel wisely. Stay close to home tonight.

LIBRA (Sept 23-Oct 22): Grand developments could be announced at a group gathering today. News from afar helps a dream come true. Your job forecast is splendid. Pick up the tempo in romance. Reveal your hopes.

SCORPIO (Oct 23-Nov 21): A promotion or bonus is likely, due to your excellent job performance. Welcome an exciting business proposition; it could make you a star! Take a long look at a rocky relationship.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov 22-Dec 21): You are a shrewd money manager. Look for ways to increase your net worth. A savings plan will help. A phone call or letter raises your hopes for a certain relationship.

CAPRICORN (Dec 22-Jan 19): Greater rapport with your teammates will boost profits. There is a logical explanation for a mystery. Put your nose to the grindstone. Romance leads to adventure tonight.

AQUARIUS (Jan 20-Feb 18): Contact with VIP's will put you in a position to make more money. Focus on buying and selling. You sense who has the resources you need. You and your mate are on the same wavelength.

PISCES (Feb 19-March 20): 'If-ty' financial choices add up to trouble; verify accuracy and sleep on the matter for a few days if possible. A little hustle helps you beat out the competition.

BOSTON Celtic Tickets

Register to Win

HAPCO AUTO PARTS

AMHERST
534 Main St.
256-6414

HADLEY
99 Russell St.
Rte 9
586-6464

FREE 1991
CELTIC CALENDAR

AMALIE MOTOR OIL

with a purchase of
5 qts of 10-30 or 10-40 Amalie
motor oil

Better than it has to be.®

HAPCO AUTO PARTS

...where there's always a parts pro to serve you!
For all your automotive needs foreign and domestic

Hours:
Mon-Fri
8:00-5:30

Sat
8:00-3:00

Offer Expires 2/28/91

BLANC AREA

La Cucina di
PINOCCHIO
PIZZA & SUBS
FREE DELIVERY
(limited delivery area)
1177 N. Pleasant St. N. Amherst
Coupons valid for delivery or pick up only 549-3669

any two Calzones $7.00 — One coupon per order - Expires May 31, 1991	$1 OFF any Large Pizza — Limit of one coupon per pizza. Coupons for pick-up or delivery only. Expires May 1, 1991
Free can of Soda with any Large Sub — Limit of one coupon per pizza. Coupons for pick-up or delivery only. Expires May 1, 1991	$1.50 OFF any Large Pizza with 2 toppings — Limit of one coupon per pizza. Coupons for pick-up or delivery only. Expires May 1, 1991
any two Calzones $7.00 — One coupon per order - Expires May 31, 1991	★Twin Special★ 2 Large Cheese Pizzas $11.00 (plus tax) — Additional items $1.20 per pizza. Coupons for pick-up or delivery only. Limit 1 coupon per customer. Expires May 1, 1991
Free can of Soda with any Large Sub — Limit of one coupon per pizza. Coupons for pick-up or delivery only. Expires May 1, 1991	★Twin Special★ 2 Large Cheese Pizzas $11.00 (plus tax) — Additional items $1.20 mper pizza. Coupons for pick-up or delivery only. Limit 1 coupon per customer. Expires May 1, 1991

GRAND OPENING OF COLLEGE NIGHT
at
The Original
NY COMEDY SHOP

AMERICA'S PREMIER COMEDY CLUB
HEADLINE ACTS DIRECT FROM NEW YORK CITY
YOU'VE SEEN THEM ON HBO-LETTERMAN AND ARSENIO HALL
NOW SEE THEM LIVE AT THE

NY COMEDY SHOP
YOU WON'T STOP LAUGHING

This Week Feb 15 & 16
Vinnie Mark
Your headliner! Seen on Rascals
Comedy Hour and Dangerfields in NYC

Walli Collins
Your feature act! He's appeared on the Showtime Comedy Club Network, and Showtime at the Apollo.

Mike Dreina
Your host and emcee! A favorite at clubs and colleges on the east coast

VIP CARD WILL BE ISSUED TO STUDENTS AT THE CLUB. VIP CARDS ARE VALID FOR ½ PRICE ADMISSION FOR 1 FULL YEAR. DON'T MISS THIS EVENT!

Showtimes:
Friday: 9:00
Saturday 9:00 & 10:00
for reservations call
(413) 534-0041

At the Holiday Inn across from Ingleside Mall
Holyoke, Mass.

EXCITING JOBS IN ALASKA
HIRING Men - Women. Summer/Year Round. Fishing, Canneries, Logging, Mining, Construction, Oil Companies. Skilled/Unskilled. Transportation. $600 plus weekly. CALL NOW! 1-206-736-7000, Ext. J402

KATINA'S

SELECTROCUTION Electronic Flirtation Dance Party	FEB 14
PHYSICAL GRAFFITI The Ultimate In Led Zeppelin	FEB 15
Progressive Dance Party w/ CHUCKLEHEAD $1 off with College I.D.	FEB 16
BACK-BLACK An AC/DC All Ages Tribute	FEB 17

The Machine ... Friday, Feb. 22
Material Issue w/ the Rosa Army ... Sunday, Feb. 24
Mob Creek ... Friday, Mar. 1
Donna Earl & the Breadwinners w/ Tracy Ho Hyde ... Friday, Mar. 8
ADVANCE TIX: Katina's, Strawberries, Hilton, Plantsworld, Abed Records

ROUTE 9, HADLEY • 586-4463

SPRING BREAK '91
cancun mexico
Air & Hotel included
Spaces still available!

El Batab/Downtown	$409
Laguna/Across Beach	$479
Solymar/Beach Econ	$509
Las Perlas/Beach Med	$529
Conrad Hilton/Super	$569
Cancun Playa/Deluxe	$599

*Prices based on Quad. occ
Organize a group & get a free trip!
Local Contact:
JASON 549-7952

For more info, call 800-331-6002

PEARSONS'
LAST CHANCE
VALENTINE'S BASH!

TONIGHT!!!!

PEARSONS' HALL
MT. HOLYOKE COLLEGE
10-2 am

$2
2 I.D.'s to purchase alcohol
DJ: Mobile Music Inc.

THIS

SALE SALE SALE

CANCUN
BOSTON DEPARTURE
MARCH 09-16 & 16-23
8 DAYS, 7 NIGHTS

$479.00
per person quad occupancy

OASIS or HOLIDAY INN CROWN PLAZA
Deluxe Oceanfront Accomodations

NO BALONEY, NO HIDDEN CHARGES

If you missed us at Travel Fair call:
800-659-7377 ext 316

Campus Vacations
(800) 659-7377 Ext. 316

Rent One of Ours
• Cars
• Trucks
• Cargo Vans
Rent by Day, Week or Month
Special Weekly and Weekend Rates
North Amherst Auto Rental
Rt. 63, 40 Montague Rd.
North Amherst, MA
549-RENT
(549-7368)
Most Major Credit Cards Accepted
On Bus Route

CLASSIFIEDS

COME TO THE COLLEGIAN OFFICE—CC 113 MON — THURS 8:30-3:30 ● DEADLINE 2 DAYS PRIOR TO PUBLICATION ● CASH IN ADVANCE, 20¢/WORD/DAY FOR STUDENTS

ACTIVITIES

ATTENTION PAGANS! UMPSO meeting 2/17 in Campus Center. Topic for discussion, Astrel Projection

FIRST INVESTMENT CLUB MEETING: Dean Witter Program. Member Stock Contest, bring stock ideas. Tuesday, 2/19/91, SBA108 7pm. New members welcome

JUGGLING EXTRAVAGANZA
The Third Annuel UMass Juggling Convention is this weekend in the SUB!
FREE
Show Saturday, 8pm, in the CCA!

SIGMA ALPHA MU spring rush
Monday 2/12 Billiards / SW horseshoe 8:00
Tuesday 2/13 Kentucky Fried Chicken Campus Center 6:00
Semmy knows rush
JUST DO IT!!

THINK SPRING!
Start getting in shape to
RUN (or walk) FOR RUNAWAYS -on April 6
Interested in staff? Call 549-8044

ANNOUNCEMENTS

ALPHA PHI OMEGA -National Service Fraternity Co-ed experience different from the other greeks -Rush Feb 18-27 Naw Afince House 2/19 6:30

BED AND BREAKFAST- downtown ideal for visiting parents and friends- 549-0733.

DELTA UPSILON WELCOMES all university men to open rush. Dates to remember: FEB. 11,12,14,18,19,21.

DRUM-award winning Black Arts and Literature magazine-now accepting submissions. 115 NAH

OIL CO-OP -Join OCHO OIL CO-OP and save money. Register at 428 Student Union or call 545-0865

PHI ALPHA THETA - Int'l History Honors Society accepting applicaions from new members. Info-applications in History office Hertar. Daadline 2/28

VALLEY WOMEN'S VOICE, monthly feminist paper, invites interested women to join meeting Wednesday Feb. 20 5pm SU 321

AUDIO/STEREO/VIDEO

USED STEREO components/vcr's/color tv's: We buy, sell & trade quality equipment, all price ranges. Detailed list (60 + items). SI-A/V exchange (anytime) 256-0941

AUTO FOR SALE

1976 CHEVY IMPALA Good cond. 80, 586-4437

1981 CITATION Mechanically sound body demaged parts or fixit $300 253-4057

1989 HONDA ACCORD immaculeate condition, 1 owner, AM/FM cassette, 2 door coupe, only 9,200 miles, must see, $9600 or best offer, call Bruce at 256-1215 after 8 PM

ESTABLISH CREDIT

DISCOVER CARDS
No cost to apply
Call Merk 546-4814
Leave message

FINAL CALL

LAST CHANCE TO apply for Tour Guide, Summer Counselor, and Student Admissions Representative positions. 2/15!

FOR RENT

1 BEDROOM EFF. Apt on Main St. 350 inclusive, Call 253-0574. Ask for Terry/Leeve msg

AMHERST, 1 BEDROOM AVAILABLE IN 3 BEDROOM, NEW HOUSE ON BUS LINE. FIREPLACE. BEAUTIFUL!! AVAILABLE NOW CALL 8-4, 665-3326

AMHERST, 1 BEDROOM available in two bedroom apartment, 10 minute walk to UMass, $200 immediate opening

DOUBLE BEDROOM IN 3 bedroom Puffton, 3rd couple or 255 single, negotiable, + utilities. Non-smoking. Adem or Lisa 549-0506

LARGE ROOM IN 2 BEDROOM TOWNHOUSE. GREAT PLACE TO LIVE ON BUS ROUTE. CLOSE TO CAMPUS CALL 253-4031 LEAVE MESSAGE

ROOM FOR RENT: 5 min. walk to NoHo Ctr. M/F 175+ 586-0766. Eves. Roly or Portar

SHARE NICE HOUSE 3 miles from campus. 4 acres in backyard. 230 plus utilities, call Debbie 253-5381, evenings

SINGLE ROOM IN Sunderland. At bus stop. Move in immediately. No money due till March 1st. $170/month- negotiable. 665-2848.

WINTER SPECIAL: 1 month rent .99 cents with one year lease
2 bedroom- $450
3 bedroom- $537
Sunderland...Free bus route, laundry facilities, swimming pool, garden plots, short term lease available
665-3856

FOR SALE

AEROSMITH BACKSTAGE PASSES
TOUR 1991
Call for details 546-2396
Reasonable prices

FUTONS
Metawampe
For all your futon needs
Available anywhere in U.S.A
Great to sleep on with your sexy valentine
Call to order
1-800-3FUTON1

SONY 13" COLOR TV, cable-ready, great picture, perfect for dorm. $70/BO 665-2831 eves.

FOUND

FOUND: CAMERA & SHOES
Call 546-5838 Eves

HELP WANTED

ARE YOUR JOB prospects limited? Need a secondery income? The business opportunity may be for you. Call 1(800) 226-5025 EXT 16075~

CAMP COUNSELORS NEEDED PMAC Northeastern Pa. near New York City. We have openings for general counselors as well as specialists in both land and water sports. Specialty areas include baseball, tennis, basketball, soccer, lacrosse, hockey, waterskiing, sailing, scuba, WSI, canoeing, windsurfing, gymnastics, archery, lancing, arts & crafts, piano accompanist, drama, radio and rocketry. Pioneering staff needed for both land and canoe trips and for our ropes challenge course. Other openings may be available. Salaries $100-200 per week plus room, board, and travel. We will be conducting on-campus interviews on March 5th. For information call or write: G. Lustig, 60 W 66th St., 28A, New York, N.Y. 10023. tel 212-724-0113

DON'T GET A JOB —Get a business! Student peintars offers highly motivated students practical experience and earnings averaging $5,000-7000 for the summer. Please call 1-800-922-5579

INTELLIGENCE JOBS. All Branches. US Customs, DEA ect. Now hiring. Call 1-805-962-8000 Ext. K-9616.

NEWSPAPER DELIVERERS NEEDED in UMASS dorms. No car required. 7-8am 7 days/week. Call 253-7009

INSTRUCTION

EARN CREDIT learn to Scube Dive. Basic Classes held Monday, Tuesday, Wednesday, and Thursday 7-10PM in Curry Hicks Pool. Open Water II class held during Spring Break in Key Largo, FLA. Advanced Class held in New England in April. For further information call 549-8401, or drop by Curry Hicks starting 2/4/91.

HOW TO REALLY READ
(At the College Level!)
3 wk crash course, 8 2hr. sessions
From an English Professor
$84 Call 549-6774

LOST

GOLD BEAD BRACELET lost near or in Whitmore. Please call 253-0418

HP 15-C CALCULATOR lost either Elab or Worcester DC. Please call 6-6187. Thanks

I LOST MY WATCH!!
12/12 in Boyden women's locker room. Black leather strap, black face w/gold. If found please call 549-8026

REWARDS$
Lost an army green coat at Katina's on Fri. Call Stephen at 546-2855

PERSONALS

BETH,
Here's to our first of many Valentine's Days together.
I Love You
Dery!

BILL OF COINS 102 :I lent you my note book in the library. Can we meet again? D

COLLEEN O'BRIEN
Hey Blondie Happy 19th Babe!
It is babe isn't it?
Get ready to party
Love ya!
Steph, Anne & Carmen

DEAR LESLIE,
Have a wonderful birthday!
From all of your friends

DOUGIE
HAPPY BIRTHDAY!
Went some pork?
Present please!
Totts in styrofoam cups tonight.
ALRIGHT!!!
Love you, Sue

EILEEN-BRENDA
A year from today Bercy's won't even be able to harass you! Happy 20th!
Love, Patrick

FAT PIAZZON
Happy Birthday. Your an awesome friend. It's been great getting to know you. Now to celebrate our b-days lets pull some TRICKSTAS cause we are to cool SLICKSTAS HAMSTER

GREG, You are very special to me. Thanks for always being there for me. You make me happy. Happy belated valentina's day! I Love You. Beth HAPPY BIRTHDAY LISA CAVALIERE!!!

(2 days early) Too bad this is only 19, Love ya anyways! -Andree

HAPPY VALENTINE'S DAY
I Love You Christine
Dan

JACK
Why love em and leave em
When you can kill em and landfill em
Digger

JENNIFER MAYCOCK
Happy 19th Birthday. Have an awesome day. 69 DUDE
Love,
Jill, Jen, Alison, Beth, Kim, Haleh and Monica

JOSH MARCHETTE -Be my valentine!
-An Admirer

KIM DONLE
Happy 21st Birthday!
Awesum Excellent Party Time!
Love, Kim, Marcie, Jen, Mike

KRISSY CLOUTIER -Happy 21st Birthday. We'll join you soon! Love you roomies

MA PETITE FLEUR
In the past six months I have found happiness I did not know existed thanks to you. I Love You so much and look forward to celebrating this day for a long long time. Love Always,
The man who wears the hat

MARTY -This is one bet I wouldn't mind losing. Happy Valentines Day!
-Rosie

MELISSA M.
Have a great birthday Sat.
Thanks for being the best friend ever
Love ya,
Ginny

PAM BOYD
You say it's your birthday. Your the best roomie ever. Happy Birthday Sweetie.
Love Jennifer

PAUL
HAPPY ANNIVERSARY AND HAPPY V-DAY
YOUR THE BEST BABY
I LOVE YOU SO MUCH
HEIDI

SCOTTY:
Happy belated valentine! and Happy Anniversary! The past 4 months have been great. Have fun in Vermont and I hope we get to celebrate sometime in the near future.
Love, KiWi

THUMPER
A day late on Valentine's but have a happy 21st b-day!!! See ya in a few days. Then we'll celebrate
Love, BAMBI

TO WALTER with lots of... affection. Can't wait to give you your, um... present. Missed you, glad you're here. Remember, "if you are lucky someday he may buy you a ring." Screw Jeffrey--or actually--not! Happy Sr. 'V' day!
Luv, Jeson

VARSITY WOMEN'S CREW
Walk tall, be confident, and erg until you drop at the crash-b sprints
No regrets!

WAX,
Happy 21st Birthday!!
Get ready for a night
you'll never forget!!
I Love You Always
XXX, MELISSA

PLEDGE DELTA CHI

TOP 10 REASONS TO PLEDGE DELTA CHI
10. Because we live closest to the largest population of women with big hair
9. Large back yard means sporting of approaching scud missiles easier
8. UMass hoop team sometimes mistakes our basketball court for the Cage
7. Brothers never say "you brekk it, you buy it."
6. After you eat our meal plan, you don't have to run to the bathroom
5. Direct hotline to George Bush
4. Long standing relationship with respected bailbondsmen
3. Home of the Neil Diamond Music Marathon.
2. Just never know when Bob Hope will drop in
1. If the whole house banded together, we could easily destroy the New Kids on the Block, including Ringo
Barbecue Friday
4:30-8:00pm
Call 549-6505 for more information

RESUME SERVICE

PERSONALIZED CONSULTATION or leser printing of your original. 549-0367

ROOMMATE WANTED

$125 MO. Male pref. Call 256-1859 Brittany Manor across from bus-stop

ROOMMATE NEEDED FOR one open bedroom in Squire Village townhouse. Male or female for $165/month. On bus route. Call Stephenie or Lesley anytime at 665-4090.

SERVICES

AEROBICS NAUTILUS STAIRMASTERS
Lifecycles, freeweights, treadmill, gravitron, step-classes, karate.
Amherst Athletic Club 256-0080.

DIRT CHEAP RESUMES
Counseling, overnight leserprinting
$20, Lisa or Charlie- 665-2631

LEGAL QUESTIONS? The Legal Services Center offers free legal assistance to fee-paying students. Contact us at 922 Campus Center, 545-1995

PREGNANT?
Need a pregnency test, information or support? Call for free and confidential services
ALTERNATIVES 33 Main Street Northampton 586-3000 or Greenfield 774-6010

SERVICES/WORDPROCESSING

DISSERTATIONS, CASES, PAPERS.
On-campus pickup. Fast! Accurate! Mac/Laser. Spellcheck
Nancy 584-7924

SPRING BREAK

SPRING BREAK PARTY!
Travel to Jamaica, Mexico! And Panama City Fl.! Concerts! Free Parties! Club discounts! And lots more! For info call Denise 546-7156.

TRAVEL

CAN'T AFFORD SPRING BREAK? GUARANTEED GREAT PRICES with top collegiate company! Space available to Jamaica, Cancun, Acapulco and Panama City Beach Florida (the "new Daytona Beach")! MC/VISA ARE ACCEPTED! Call Cindy at 549-3538-please leave message!

CARIBBEAN - $189!
The wermth of the Caribbean or Mexican coast for a week!
R/T air. SUNHITCH + m. 212-864-2000

FLORIDA'S NEWEST HOT SPOT
Panama City-$139
Daytona Beach-$189
World's Biggest Beach PARTY
Call Erika + Julie at 546-0649 or Siobhan + Terri at 546-5079

FLYING SOMEWHERE ON Spring Break? Make your reservations on Northwest Airlines. I'll give you $50 toward your flight! Call Jeff collect at 508-369-5993 -evenings, and let me book you flight

GET SOME!!
Spring Break 1991!!
Jamaica
Cancun
Bahamas
Call Buttermaker
I'll make you a deal!!
253-9015 or 549-0076

MONTREAL WEEKENDS $89 price includes round trip motorcoach, 3 days 2 nights hotel suite, Breakfast, FREE admission to Club Metropolis
Reinebie Tours
365 Broadway Rt. 1
Lynnfield, MA 01940
617-598-9930

WAKE-N-BAKE!!! Spring Break '91!!
Jamaica from $429.00
Cancun from $399.00
A week of fun and sun! The hottest distinations 1-800-426-7710

TYPING

PAPERS WORDPROCESSED and saved for future editing only $1.75 per page. Call Lisa at 253-0367. Pick up and delivery also.

WANTED

CASH FOR GOLD. Unwanted jewlery? Necklaces, watches, rings. We buy anything containing gold. Call 546-3399

SPORTS

Bonnies stave off second-half rally

● Women's basketball produces best offensive stats yet

By GREG SUKIENNIK
Collegian Staff

Not even an unprecedented second-half offense could save the University of Massachusetts women's basketball team from their first-half turnovers (21) as they learned in Olean, N.Y., last night against St. Bonaventure, losing 83-63.

Although the Minutewomen outscored the Bonnies 38-33 in a second half that coach Kathy Hewelt called "our best half of the year," the Minutewomen — now 0-22 and 0-14 in the Atlantic-10 Conference — could not recover from the combination of sloppy play and a balanced Bonnie attack which featured both half-court and fast-break basketball.

The Bonnies (11-11 overall, 4-9 A-10) built first-half leads of 29-16 and 42-23 as Carrie Bordas and Sue Shay did the bulk of the scoring. Bordas hit for 14 first-half points, mostly on short jumpers according to Hewelt, while Shay chipped in with 11 points on shots near the basket.

As Hewelt explained, UMass' first-half turnovers came not from foul-court pressure, but from tough half-court man-to-man defense that made running an offense difficult for the Minutewomen.

"We got through their press, but we had trouble executing our offense," she said. "They put pressure on the wings and we started rushing."

Despite poor play in the first half, in the second half UMass cut down on turnovers, had better control of rebounds and saw improved play by point guard Jessica Schusler.

"We were able to control the boards in the second half, and that both slowed them down and gave us a running game of our own," noted Hewelt.

While Lisa Ireland, Kim Kristofik and Keyburn McCusker were spearheading the rebound effort, Schusler was distributing the ball well and taking charge in general, according to Hewelt.

McCusker and Ireland tied for the team lead in points with 16 each, most of which came in the second half. Ireland and Kristofik teamed up for 21 rebounds.

Meanwhile, Hewelt praised Schusler's take-charge attitude at the point position during the second half.

"Jessica Schusler established herself as a leader tonight," beamed Hewelt. "She took charge on the floor, she was vocal, and that's what you expect from your point guard." Schusler finished with nine points and five assists.

While the Minutewomen did lose, Hewelt was by no means disappointed in her teams' effort.

"St. Bonaventure is a good team, and a 25 point deficit is a pretty big margin to lose," she said. "But I'm proud of our kids. They really dug in in the second [half] when they could've packed it in. I think that says a lot about this team."

St. Bonaventure, 83-63

Massachusetts (63)
Ireland 5-13 6-8 16, Kristofik 3-7 0-3 6, McCusker 6-12 4-4 16, Valentine 1-3 0-0 2, Muza 1-4 0-0 2, Hesser 1-3 0-0 2, Schusler 2-4 4-8 9, Navarez 1-1 2, Moran 2-8 2-2 6, Richard 0-0 0-0 0, Pemperton 1-2 0-0 2 Totals 23-57 16-25 63

St. Bonaventure (83)
Shay 7-13 1-3 15, Linch 3-10 3-3 9, Marquis 3-5 0-0 6, Gromolwicz 7-14 2-3 16, Comoraw- 3-6 0-0 8, McGhee 2-4 0-0 4, Bordas 6-16 6-6 18, Manly 0-1 0-0 0, Hergenroeder 2-6 0-0 5, Pencola 0-2 0-0 0, Paugh 0-0 0-0 0, Gesmar 0-1 2-4 2 Totals 33-78 14-19 83

Halftime Massachusetts 26, St. Bonaventure 50 Three point goals Comoraski 2, Hergenroeder, Schusler Fouled out Manly Rebounds UMass 43 (Ireland 11), SBU 44 (Gromolwicz 8) Assists UMass 10 (Schusler 5), SBU 21 (Hergenroeder 7) Total fouls UMass 14, SBU 20 A – 167

Men's hoop sees A-10 foe Penn St.

● Seniors to be honored

By SAM SILVERSTEIN
Collegian Staff

Seniors Matt Anderson, Rafer Giles, Ben Grodski and John Tate will be honored with flowers and hugs from friends and visiting family before Saturday night's University of Massachusetts-Penn State men's basketball game at 7 p.m. in the Cage.

Then they'll turn their attention to the second game of UMass' 'second season': a five-game stint with four of the top five teams in the Atlantic 10 before the league tournament next month.

The Minutemen got off on the right foot Tuesday night with an uplifting 98-89 win at West Virginia in which they snapped a two-game losing streak (and a 19-year drought in Morgantown, W.Va.) and shattered the school record by shooting 67 percent from the floor.

"It was a good win for us because it was on the road and because we played with a lot of enthusiasm," coach John Calipari said. "Down the stretch we had a chance to fold and we didn't."

Calipari concedes the Minutemen (fifth in the A-10 at 8-6, 15-8 overall) are no longer playing to finish first in the league, but that "every game for us from here on out is just another chance to prepare us for the [Atlantic 10] tournament."

Penn State is in much the same position. After dropping a 69-59 game to Temple Wednesday night in College Park, Pa., the Nittany Lions are fourth in the A-10 and have an identical 8-6, 15-8 record.

Penn State plays a physical, deliberate game that revolves around its strong frontcourt — 6-foot-7 James Barnes, 6-foot-9 Dave Degitz and last year's A-10 Freshman of the Year, 6-foot-6 DeRon Hayes — and steady backcourt.

"They work inside and try to beat you up. If you play cool, you lose," Calipari said.

UMass lost 65-64 at College Park, Pa., in January, as James Barnes hit a pair of free throws with :04 left and a similar foul against PSU went uncalled at the other end of the court at the buzzer.

Game Notes: Harper Williams has finished with 20 points or more in four consecutive games. In his last six games, Williams is averaging 20.5 points, 8.3 rebounds and three blocks.

Team to host Penn State

By GREG SUKIENNIK
Collegian Staff

How good is Penn State University's women's basketball team?

Ask their opponents — Penn State's average margin of victory this year is 28.85 points per game.

They are currently 21-1 overall, lead the Atlantic-10 Conference at 12-1, and are ranked second in the nation behind Virginia. Their starting forward, Susan Robinson, was recently named Windex Women's College Player of the Month.

In short, the Nittany Lions are one tall order for the University of Massachusetts women's basketball team, who will face Penn State tomorrow at 2:00 p.m. When these two teams last met in January, Penn State was just coming off their first and only loss of the year, and took it out on UMass in a 91-27 pasting.

"Penn State is without question one of the top teams in the country," said UMass coach Kathy Hewelt.

Hewelt spoke about the prospect of a mismatch between the top-ranked Nittany Lions and the winless Minutewomen realistically, but also noted the positive effects of playing such a tough team.

"We don't match up with them at any position. We've got a young team going up against a veteran team. But it'll be a great experience to play there because the place will be wild," she said.

"You don't get an opportunity to play a team that good very often, so I think our kids do benefit from the experience," Hewelt said. "But without question it's one of the toughest games we play on our schedule."

Another calling card of the Nittany Lions is team depth. Against UMass, Penn State substituted freely and got good production from all 11 players.

"They're talented all the way down the bench, which helps to keep their starters fresh," said Hewelt.

Gymnasts face nationally-ranked teams, stiff competition

● Southern Connecticut to host women

Southern Connecticut will host the University of Massachusetts women's gymnastics team at 2 p.m. Saturday in New Haven, Conn.

UMass (4-1) is looking to improve its standings in the conference. They are coming off a powerful win against Bridgeport.

The win Wednesday night prepared the team mentally for stronger upcoming competition with the likes of Rutgers and arch rival New Hampshire still to come.

Southern Connecticut, a gymnastics program known for its strength, will inevitably offer UMass some stiff competition.

Head coach Alfie Mitchell, is once again looking to junior Tammy Marshall to lead the Minutewomen. Marshall has performed well in the all-around and her floor exercise has the style and difficulty that warrant superior scores from the judges, according to Mitchell.

Freshman powerhouse Margaret Furtado has stunned crowds, coaches and judges on the way to producing personal best scores. Mitchell said he expects great things from the young 'dynamo' this weekend, as well as for the rest of the season.

Erin Kleir, Kim Grady and Erika Finkelman will also be contributing to the competition. Mitchell said he expects his young team to continue to "hit" their marks and produce hard, consistent exercises.

— LYNN FRANKEL

● Men welcome Temple Owls to Boyden

The University of Massachusetts mens' gymnastics team battles a powerful Temple team at 1 p.m. Saturday in Boyden.

The Owls (4-1) feature two NCAA All-Americans, juniors Bill Roth and Jim Van de Zilver.

While the UMass team (2-2) realizes what they are up against, they are in no way conceding the match.

"The key to us doing well is to hit all of the routines," said UMass co-captain Bill Sayman. He said it will take a near-perfect performance combined with a mediocre showing by Temple to be victorious.

Coach Roy Johnson pointed out that the Owls average 270 points per meet while the Minutemen have not broken 260 yet this year. Temple beat UMass last year in Philadelphia, 273.8-255.65.

Johnson surmised this meet will be the toughest for the Minutemen this year.

He said he thinks the team can take the floor routine and pommel horse if all goes well.

Freshman Adam Gould will perform on the horse and the high bar, as he hopes to break the nine point barrier in scoring on these events.

Johnson said the first 100 fans entering the Boyden gym will receive a free slice of pizza, courtesy of Pizza Hut. He said he hopes for a large turnout.

— MICHAEL MORRISEY

Big Green to host men's track

By KEITH BENNETT
Collegian Correspondent

Intensity will play a predominant role in the Dartmouth Invitational this weekend when the University of Massachusetts men's track team faces Dartmouth and McGill.

UMass coach Ken O'Brien hopes his team can continue to do what they have done successfully all season, which is to exhibit a high level of intensity in the meet.

"The one thing you always can control in athletics is the level of intensity that you maintain," O'Brien said. "One thing that this team has done very well this season has been that they have competed man for man in every event against every team we've competed against."

One example of his teams competitive intensity, was his teams solid third place finish, out of 12 scoring teams in the Eastern Conference Meet last weekend. The Minutemen nearly upset Southern Connecticut for second place, losing only in the final event.

O'Brien does not expect his team will have much of a chance at an upset this weekend, however. Dartmouth has been one of the strongest teams in New England for the past several years, winning the New England titles in outdoor track the past two years, and the heptagonal championships, both indoors and out.

O'Brien said he is hoping for a split in the meet with a victory against McGill, a team which he admits knowing little about. In their meeting last year, Dartmouth won with 108 points. UMass was second with 50 and McGill finished third with 25. O'Brien said he anticipates similar results in this years meet.

In individual events, O'Brien said he expects that UMass can match up fairly well with Dartmouth in the jumping events, the sprints and the hurdles, but he believes Dartmouth will maintain a big edge in the throwing events and the middle-distance and distance events.

"We'll be focusing on just doing the best we can," O'Brien added. "Hopefully we can narrow the gap some from last year."

Sports Notice

Remaining student tickets for Saturday's men's basketball game against Penn State will be distributed Friday at the Cage, between 2 p.m. and 5 p.m. One ticket will be given to each student with a valid student ID. To guarantee a general admission seat in the student section, students with tickets must be at the Cage Saturday by 6:30 p.m. Cage doors will open Saturday at 5:30 p.m. Tipoff is 7 p.m.

Congratulations to the winner of the women's swimming team raffle. She won a snowboard courtesy of Peloton Sports. The swim team would like to thank all those who participated in the raffle for their support.

Skiers enjoy mt. advantage

The homecourt advantage swings in favor of the University of Massachusetts ski team when Amherst College hosts this weekend's competition at Berkshire East in Charlemont.

The meet, which will include over 180 skiers from 10 women's and 9 men's teams, will be a homecoming for UMass. Berkshire East is the team's home mountain.

"Both the men and women are in tight races and skiing on our mountain should give us the edge," said UMass ski coach Bill MacConnell. He said skiing on the familiar mountain will give the UMass skiers a distinct advantage over their competition.

The Minutewomen will be competing against first-place Plymouth State, who is just one point ahead of UMass in the Eastern College Ski Conference.

— GEOFF STOKES

Largest College Daily in New England

THE MASSACHUSETTS Established in 1890

DAILY COLLEGIAN

VOLUME C TUESDAY, FEBRUARY 19, 1991 ISSUE 84

Man sets himself on fire in Amherst

By MEREDITH O'BRIEN
Collegian Staff

A man holding a sign saying "Peace" died yesterday afternoon after setting himself on fire on the Amherst Town Common.

At approximately 1:53 p.m., the man, described by Amherst police as in his 20s, reportedly poured two one-gallon containers of paint thinner on himself, lit a match which went out, then lit a second one which resulted in a fireball engulfing his body.

A police officer was on the scene immediately and put the flames out with a fire extinguisher, after several witnesses on the common had attempted to put out the flames with their coats.

Police said the witnesses were too far away from the man to prevent him from lighting the second match.

Two coats were found on top of the body and a charred denim jacket, which had been used to try and put out the fire, was lying a few feet away, police said.

All witness statements indicate the man acted alone, police reported, adding they had no information whether the man belonged to any peace organization protesting the war in the Gulf.

Although the man did tape his Massachusetts driver's license to the "Peace" sign, police would not comment on the protester's identity, saying his name will be released as soon as the next of kin are contacted.

Police do not believe the man was a student.

The man reportedly purchased the paint thinner at Aubachon's Hardware Store in Hadley some 20 minutes before he immolated himself on the common.

Pamela Jeffreys, an Amherst resident, was arrested for trespassing almost an hour after the incident when she crossed the police line, which encircled the scene, and tried to lay an evergreen wreath at the site of the body.

Jeffreys' daughter Tanya said her mother "ran out of the house" as soon as she was told about the incident on the common.

Witnesses said Jeffreys shouted, "This is a symbol of love and life," as she tried to lay the wreath down.

One onlooker reportedly placed a white Buddha figurine near the body, which police had covered with a sheet.

Jonah Gelbach, a sophomore UMass student, arrived at the scene a few minutes after the flames had been doused.

"It blew my mind seeing someone light themselves on fire," he said. "It puts things into perspective. It makes rallying look insignificant."

Bill Vieira, UMass student and employee at the Lord Jeffery Amherst Inn, located across the street from the common, said as soon as he saw the smoke, he ran outside with a group of coworkers.

"We could see smoke when we were coming out of the Jeffery and people were trying to put it [the fire] out with their coats," Vieira said. "He [the protester] was on his knees in the fetal position."

Elisa Campbell, chairperson of the Amherst Select Board, said this will have an enormous impact on the Amherst community, a community which has been a haven for peace protesters rallying against the war in the Persian Gulf.

"It is really appalling and distressing that someone felt the need to do this," Campbell said. "If this was for the cause of peace, I don't understand it."

A handful of people began gathering at the site about an hour after the incident, some praying and singing in a "spontaneous peace vigil." Early last night, students and area residents laid candles on the ground in memory of the man who gave his life, in what many believe, was a plea for the end of the Gulf war.

An autopsy will be performed tomorrow at the Springfield Municipal Hospital.

On Dec. 9, a 48-year-old Vietnam veteran died after immolating himself in Isleton, California, protesting U.S. military policy in the Persian Gulf.

Collegian staff member Gayle Long and correspondent David Rivera contributed to this article.

Collegian photo by Jeff Holland

SELF-IMMOLATION — Police officers lift the tarp covering the remains of a man who set himself on fire on the Amherst Common yesterday.

Collegian photo by Yana Dlugy

HOUSE FIRE — Lt. Bob Cook (left) and Rusty Thornton, both on-call firefighters for the Town of Amherst, finally rest in front of the house which burned down on No. Pleasant St. early Sunday morning.

House blaze takes life of student

Lit cigarette kills UM senior; housemate in critical condition

By SAM SILVERSTEIN
Collegian Staff

One 22-year-old student was killed and another resident seriously injured when a fire burned the top story and attic of a wood-frame house at 284 No. Pleasant St. early Sunday morning.

Joseph Pirog, from Arlington, died apparently of smoke inhalation, Trooper Jay Bowman of the state fire marshall's office told the Hampshire Gazette yesterday. Pirog was a senior at the University of Massachusetts.

Fire department personnel resuscitated Matthew Peterson, 22, of Framingham at the scene.

Peterson, a former UMass student, is listed in critical condition in intensive care at Baystate Medical Center in Springfield, suffering from second and third degree burns over 42 percent of his body.

Two other people who were in the house at the time of the fire escaped, one by jumping out a second-story window into the arms of two Amherst police officers, according to Amherst Fire Chief Victor Zumbruski.

The fire started when a cigarette ignited a chair in the second-floor living room at about 6:20 a.m., Bowman said. Twenty-seven firefighters battled the blaze, which did an estimated $100,000 worth of damage.

The exact number of people living in the home is unclear.

According to resident Benn Vernadakis, there were no smoke detectors in the house. "Our landlord was too cheap to put in a fire detector. That might have saved a life," Vernadakis said.

"We'd asked him a couple times about it and he said if we wanted one, we should pay for it."

The landlord, George Ray of Middlebury, Ct., had until May of this year to install smoke detectors under a bylaw approved at Amherst Town Meeting in 1990, according to an official with the Amherst Fire Department.

Peace talks do not stop ground attack plans

By PETE YOST
Associated Press

WASHINGTON (AP) — The allies are preparing to wage a ground attack against Iraq and will not suspend their war plans while Soviets and Iraqis talk of a possible peace, top Bush administration officials say.

"There is nothing to be lost by talking" if it will result in an immediate pullout from Kuwait, Secretary of State James Baker III said Sunday.

But there will be no "pause or ceasefire" that would permit Iraq to "reposition, to dig in further, to strengthen its military position on the ground," Baker said on CNN's "Newsmaker Sunday" television program.

President Bush refused to discuss his timetable for a ground attack, but predicted Sunday that Iraq's takeover of Kuwait will end "very, very soon."

National security adviser Brent Scowcroft said the allies "have a certain tempo to our military operations now ... and we're not going to break that tempo" unless Saddam Hussein pulls his troops out of Kuwait now." Scowcroft was appearing on CBS' "Face the Nation."

Iraqi Foreign Minister Tariq Aziz was in Moscow yesterday to meet with Soviet President Mikhail Gorbachev in a last-ditch effort to avert a full-scale ground war.

In Paris, French Foreign Minister Roland Dumas said a date had been set for an attack and that the Persian Gulf was on the eve, or pre-eve of an offensive.

The Soviets and the United States are trying to achieve the same goal in the war against Iraq, Bush said in Kennebunkport, Maine, where he was concluding a four-day stay.

The Soviets seek an end to the conflict "within the mandate of the United Nations resolutions. And that's the key point," said Bush.

Gorbachev "knows very well that the objectives spelled out by the United Nations ... must be met in their entirety," Bush said.

The president's day was punctuated by a war protester who disrupted a church service that Bush was attending.

The man stood and demanded that the United States "stop this bombing" of Iraq. He quieted down when police entered the church, but was dragged out half an hour later following a second outburst.

Nothing short of an immediate, unconditional pullout of Iraqi troops will halt the allied serial bombardment or plans for a ground war, administration officials said.

"The only thing we can really believe is action," said Defense Secretary Richard Cheney on ABC's "This Week with David Brinkley" TV show. "We have to see him pull out of Kuwait."

"If the Soviets can get the Iraqis to pull out of Kuwait unconditionally, rapidly, totally, more power to them," said Baker. But "the campaign plan ... is going to be carried out in accordance with its original terms," he said.

A quick start to the ground war is becoming more and more likely, said House Intelligence Committee Chairman Dave McCurdy.

INSIDE:

TUESDAY, FEBRUARY 19, 1991

Page 3:
Conservatives and homosexuals share harassment.

Page 5:
Meredith O'Brien discusses gender and death.

Page 7:
Alexander Nguyen reminds Asian Americans of their history.

WEATHER

Rain is coming our way. Showers all day but it's going to be mild, highs between 45-50.

THE MASSACHUSETTS
DAILY COLLEGIAN

New England's largest college daily newspaper. Circulation: 19,000. Published every weekday during the calendar semester. The Massachusetts Daily Collegian is a Registered Student Organization of the University of Massachusetts.

113 Campus Center, Amherst, MA, 01003
Phone (413) 545-3500 FAX (413) 545-1592

STAFF

Editor in Chief ..... Terry Starmer
Managing Editor ..... Jody Cabin
Editorial Editor ..... Jeremy Levinson
News Editor ..... Gayle Long
Sports Editor ..... Adrien Matt
Arts Editor ..... Danielle Dowling
Photography Editor ..... K.A. Burke
Black Affairs Editor ..... Sondra Sutton
Women's Issues Editors ..... Rua Kelly, Monique Tabon
Multicultural Affairs Editor ..... Alexander Nguyen
Third World Affairs Editor ..... Pratip Dastidar
Lesbian, Bisexual, Gay Issues Editor ..... Trystan Skeigh
Business Manager ..... Susan George
Advertising Manager ..... Dave Melnick
Finance Manager ..... Beth Patterson
Circulation Manager ..... Jim Winterbottom
Subscriptions Manager ..... Stacey Rogers
Promotions Manager ..... Marc Pruskin
Production Manager ..... Nicole Dumas
Day Graphics Manager ..... Jenn Burns

PROFESSIONAL STAFF

Business ..... Brian Harrington, Lori Black, Maureen Majerowski
Graphics ..... Rory Evans

TODAY'S STAFF

Night Editor ..... Gayle Long
Copy Editor ..... Jody Cabin
Layout Technician ..... Rick Seto
Photo Technician ..... K.A. Burke
Production Supervisor ..... Rick Seto
Typesetter ..... Beth Clark
Production ..... Meg Trudell, Tania Ivany, Paul Specht, Sam Silverstein

For Your Information

TUESDAY, FEBRUARY 19

Peace vigil — everyday at 12 p.m. on the Student Union steps.

Lecture — Noam Chomsky will give a lecture titled "Force and Opinion," at 8:15 at LeFrak Gymnasium at Amherst College.

Caucus Election — The Town of Amherst is sponsoring a causus election from 7 p.m. to 8 p.m.

Writers needed — Spectrum magazine, the literary magazine at the University of Massachusetts is accepting submissions of poetry, photography, art and written works. Please send submissions to Spectrum, 406E Student Union or call 545-2240.

Meeting — of the University Relations and Development Council of Faculty Senate, will be at 4 p.m. in the Whitmore Boardroom.

Meeting — The first meeting of the Investment Club will be at 7 p.m. in the School of Business Administration, room 108.

Information Session — The national Student Exchange will have an information session at 4 p.m. in Campus Center 803.

Lecture — "Prostitution, AIDS, Political Repression: The Impact of U.S. Military Bases on Women's Lives," at 7:30 p.m. in the Main Lecture Hall of Franklin Patterson Hall, Hampshire College.

Information Meeting — For students interested in the UMass/Boston — Paris Study Program, the meeting is in the 3rd floor lounge of Herter Hall at 12 p.m.

WEDNESDAY, FEBRUARY 20

Schlock Rock Concert — Rock n' Roll with Jewish themes in the Campus Center Auditorium , sponsored by the Jewish Arts Festival at 8 p.m. There is an admission fee.

Information Meeting — For all Early Childhood Education students planning on student teaching in Fall 1991 semester at 6 p.m. in Room 22, Furcolo Hall.

Day of Education — A Gulf War Day of Edúcation willl be in the Cape Cod Lounge from 10 a.m. to 5 p.m. Sponsored by the Faculty and Staff for Peace and Justice in the Middle East.

Volunteer Fair — From 11 a.m. to 2:30 p.m. in CC 163, sponsored by VIBES, the Undergraduate Business Club, the Mather Career Center and Human Kindness Outreach.

Brown Bag Lunch Series — "Picturing the past: Studying Clothing through Portrayals," in CC 904-908 at 12:15 p.m. Sponsored by the Women's Studies department.

College Pizza
Spring Special
Small Cheese Pizza $3.50
Large Chees Pizza $5.99
2 Toppings $1.00 extra
549-6098
Must mention this ad
no coupons with the special

Mt. TOM
Ski Area
STUDENT DISCOUNTS !!
Great Skiing .
Day & Night.
100% Snowmaking.
Expert Grooming.
&
So Close You Can See It!
$12.00 Midweek and Nights
$18.00 Weekends and Holidays
Bring Your Student I.D.
Mt. Tom Ski Area
Route 5 Holyoke MA 536-0416

Save UP TO $100

There's nothing like Legend and Lady Legend! The most unique college rings ever designed– only available from ArtCarved. This popular professional look offers more ways to personalize your college ring. Don't delay– visit your ArtCarved representative during this special sales event to see Legend and the many other styles available.
ARTCARVED
Date: Feb 18-22 ONLY Time: 9:30-3:30
Place: Bookstore
Last time for guaranteed graduation delivery!
Special Payment Plans Available

University of Wisconsin Platteville

Study in Seville Spain
Emphasis in Liberal Arts International Business
Courses available in Spanish and in English
Fluency in Spanish not required
All courses approved by UW-Platteville and validated on an official UW-Platteville transcript
$3975 per semester for Wisconsin and Minnesota residents
$4225 per semester for non-residents
Costs include Tuition and Fees, Room and Board in Spanish Homes, Fieldtrips
Financial aid applies
For further information contact
Study Abroad Programs
308 Warner Hall
University of Wisconsin-Platteville
1 University Plaza
Platteville, WI 53818-3099
(608) 342-1726

RUSH
Iota Gamma Upsilon
• Lifelong Friendships
• Leadership Opportunities
• Strong Academics
• Great Location
• and Fun Too!
Dates and Times
Tuesday 2/19 : Sundaes 6:30-7:30
Wednesday 2/20 : Dinner 5:30
Thursday 2/21 : Dessert 6:30
IFT
406 North Pleasant Street - Phone 256-6874 or 549-1100

LOCAL

Skit promotes 'recycling awareness'

By DAVID MASSEY
Collegian Correspondent

As four members of the Residential Recycling Program darted into the dining commons on Friday to promote the Blue Box Brigade competition, lunchgoers fell silent as a lumberjack, a tree, the earth and a Blue (recycling) Box performed a one-minute skit promoting recycling awareness.

Karen McClure, a volunteer in the program who represented a tree, said the objective of this "guerrilla theatre" was "to add a little promotion to the Blue Box Brigade competition."

"This is a competition to discover which residence hall can recycle the greatest amount of newspaper and to increase the amount of materials that are being recycled," McClure said.

In the skit, the tree was cut by a lumberjack, played by Rochelle Chambless, representing the destruction of the forests.

The four members then shouted a slogan to remind the onlookers recycling is an easy way to help preserve the earth's resources.

Farrah Sadiq played the role of the Blue Box, representing the blue boxes found in residence halls in which newspaper can be placed to be recycled. Sadiq then collected newspapers from onlookers for recycling.

The earth was played by Etsuko Yamanaka.

"Recycling is important and if we can come and communicate with these (students), then maybe we can help," she said.

The Blue Box Competition is a project to determine which residence hall can recycle the most paper goods. The winner is determined how many pounds are collected versus how many people live in each hall.

Collegian photo by Yana Dlugy

PROTESTORS — People standing on the sidewalk of the road to Westover Air Force Base in Chicopee Saturday afternoon. A couple of hundred anti-war protestors braved the freezing temperatures to hold a two-and-a-half-hour rally in front of the entrance of the base.

Local Jewish students hold twilight vigil

By ALISON BUCKHOLTZ
Collegian Correspondent

Holding signs saying "Israel you are not alone," "We stand with Israel," and "We are one," dozens of students from the Five-College area gathered on the Amherst Common Friday in a twilight vigil proclaiming Jewish unity and solidarity.

"Our aim is for Jewish students who feel alienated from the peace movement to come together and show support for Israel and the Israelis, who are living day-by-day under constant threat," said senior Alexis Levitt, an organizer of the event.

Jewish students with familial or spiritual ties to Israel may find themselves with different views of the Gulf war issue than their non-Jewish friends, Levitt said.

Even within the Jewish community, opposing views called for "a place that we can come together with our different opinions," according to Levitt.

"It was a shock when I first heard Israel was bombed," said Hampshire College freshman Jonathan Miller, explaining why he chose to attend the vigil. "We need Israel as a state. Hussein can't get away with bombing Tel Aviv, or Haifa, or anywhere else."

"It's very 'politically correct' these days to be against Israel," said Smith College sophomore Beth Janus.

"With the war on, I feel alienated. People don't realize you can support Israel without supporting all of its policies," Janus said.

"There are a lot of complex issues involved" in the war and Israel's place in it, said Amherst College Hillel president Richard Rudenstein. "People tend to simplify them and to stereotype Jews for things they may or may not believe."

"It's hard to come out of the closet as Jews, but people shouldn't assume certain things once we do," said LBGA president Amy Lesen. "We need to say, 'I'm Jewish. Get to know me for who I am.' We have a responsibility to challenge stereotypes."

Stressing the need for Jews to speak "openly and honestly" among themselves, Lesen said, "We all have different opinions, and we all need to have a voice."

CONTINUED ON PAGE 6

Harassment a double-edged sword

Homosexuals, conservative governors, both claim disruptions

Editor's note: This is the third of a three-part series detailing the removal of the Lesbian, Bisexual and Gay Alliance appointed seats from the Board of Governors.

By TRYSTAN SKEIGH
Collegian Staff

After the Board of Governors' voted to remove Lesbian, Bisexual and Gay Alliance seats last semester, both homosexual students and BOG members claim they have been harassed; the former for being homosexual and the latter for supporting the removal of LBGA seats.

News Analysis

Jason McDonald, an 18-year-old gay freshman at the University, says he believes he received harassing phone calls, including a death threat, because of his involvement with a Queer Nation kiss-in in the Republican Club office.

Lesbian, gay and bisexual students formed a campus chapter of Queer Nation, a national militant gay-rights organization to protest the removal of the LBGA seats. McDonald's photo appeared in the Collegian with his name after the kiss-in.

McDonald said because his face and name was associated with Queer Nation, students made him a target for anti-gay harassment.

"After my photo was in the Collegian, and I took part in a silent vigil at the Student Government Association's office, the phone calls began," McDonald said.

McDonald also said his name was chalked on sidewalks around campus. "It was horrible walking through campus to finals," McDonald said. "I would walk to an exam and I would see 'Jason McDonald R.I.P.' chalked on the sidewalk."

McDonald said his Resident Assistant became concerned after he received the death threat, arranging to have him "hidden" at the Campus Center Hotel for a couple of days.

"This whole situation made studying for finals impossible," he said. "I felt overwhelmed by the hatred I felt on campus."

According to Amy Lesen, LGBA spokesperson, the Queer Nation kiss-in also resulted in a backlash against the LBGA Office.

"The LBGA office received a bomb threat," Lesen said, "I believe it was in response to the Queer Nation kiss-in."

Lesen stressed Queer Nation was not part of the LBGA. "There's no official link between Queer Nation and the LBGA, but obviously Queer Nation acted in response to the removal of the LBGA seats. We knew there would be repercussions."

Republican Club member and BOG governor Bill Hewitt says he was harassed by gays after the removal of the LBGA seats.

"I returned home one night and posted on my front door was a photo of two naked men and a message, 'Safe sex brought to you by Queer Nation'," Hewitt said.

Hewitt says he also received threatening phone calls, including one death threat, aimed at himself and other governors.

"I personally received three harassing phone calls," Hewitt said, "two on my answering machine and one in person."

Hewitt said the threats created tension for him and his housemates. "We started locking our doors, and we previously hadn't. There was a certain degree of fear, it was a bit of a shock when it came home through the phone calls and the poster."

Hewitt said he feels the kiss-in was also harassment. "They tore posters down and drew on the walls with markers," Hewitt said. "If the Republican Club had done that to the LBGA Office, the administration would have come down hard on us."

Both Hewitt and Lesen agree both sides need to try to understand and respect each other.

Lesen said she believes education is the key to alleviating homophobia on campus, and she says students need to realize what types of things gays consider harassment.

"The administration hasn't really made it very clear," Lesen said. "It's been an on-going issue for some time."

Hewitt said it is wrong for gays to make a public issue of their sexual orientation. "When gays ask for more because they're gay it's not fair," Hewitt said.

"I think people need to accept each other as people," Hewitt said. "If gay students treat me with respect as a person, then I will treat them the same way."

New president of Columbia fights violence

By STEVEN GUTKIN
Associated Press

BOGOTA, Colombia (AP) — When Cesar Gaviria became Colombia's president six months ago, he faced the daunting, some say impossible, task of controlling both a murderous drug cartel and a violent leftist insurgency.

But few could have predicted the price Gaviria would pay in his search for peace. His strategy of leniency has seemed to bring only more bloodshed.

The last two months have been among the most violent in the history of this nation of 32 million people.

On Saturday, 22 people died and 140 were injured in the explosion of a 450-pound bomb outside a bullring in Medellin, Colombia's second-largest city and home to the nation's most notorious drug cartel of the same name.

Earlier this month, the Medellin cartel shot an elderly woman six times in the face and killed a prominent magazine publisher. The victims, Marina Montoya and Diana Turbay, had been taken hostage by the cartel to pressure the government into granting more concessions.

And broad offensives by Colombia's two remaining rebel groups, the National Liberation Army and the Revolutionary Armed Forces of Colombia have left at least 350 people dead this year. Guerrillas have said they were retaliating for the army's bombing and capture in December of a rebel jungle headquarters.

Some leftist rebels have traded peace for amnesty and a role in rewriting the constitution.

But the president's critics say Colombia is sacrificing its principles by making deals with drug smugglers and granting rebels amnesty, only to face more slayings, kidnappings and bombings.

"The image being portrayed to the world is that of a state which is accommodating legislation to the demands of delinquents," said a recent article in Colombia's leading magazine, Semana.

Gaviria's strategy of accommodation hasn't stopped the violence any more than the tough tactics of his predecessor.

SPRING BREAK 91

cancun mexico Air & Hotel included

Spaces still available!

El Batab/Downtown	$409
Laguna/Across Beach	$479
Solymar/Beach Econ	$509
Las Perlas/Beach Med	$529
Conrad Hilton/Super	$569
Cancun Playa/Deluxe	$599

*Prices based on Quad. occ
Organize a group & get a free trip!

Local Contact:
JASON 549-7952

For more info. call
800-331-6002

Chancellor Joseph Duffey
and
Executive Vice Chancellor &
Provost Richard D. O'Brien
cordially invite
the Campus Community to a reception
in honor of
Dennis L. Madson
Vice Chancellor for Student Affairs
and
Kate J.G. Madson
University Relations & Development

Wednesday, February 20, 1991
4 - 6 p.m.
Memorial Hall

FUN 'N' SUN & $$$$$$$$$

U.S. Concepts, a New York Based Marketing Firm, is hiring Daytona-bound students to work at Springfest '91, March 18-22, 1991.

To qualify you must be 18 years or older and Daytona-bound. You'll get $6/hour and discounted lodging.

If you like the beach and making money, attend a meeting at:
Campus Center, Room 901
Thursday, February 21, 1991
2 — 4 pm
Bring a snapshot of yourself and sign up ..... NOW!

MANAGING MULTIPLE JOB OFFERS

Ethical Dilemmas in the Job Search Process
Special Career Week Presentation
Today
3:35 PM
Campus Center Room 905

Panelists:
Janice Dickstein
College Relations Representative, CIGNA
Deborah Nordstrom, '90
Engineer, Underwater Research Center
Richard Fein
Director, School of Management, UMass

THE MATHER CAREER CENTER
Where Careers Take Off!
Call 545-4945 for details

COOPERATIVE EDUCATION JOB FAIR

Your entrance to summer & semester jobs!

-All Majors-

Thursday, February 21 10:00 AM - 3:30 PM

Campus Center Auditorium

Meet representatives from more than 50 employers

Employer interviews ★ Workshops ★ Field Experience Planning Sessions

AETNA LIFE AND CASUALTY *
AGWAY **
AMERICAN EXPRESS SHAREHOLDERS
AUTOMATIC DATA PROCESSING
BOSTON GLOBE
CAMP DRESSER & MC KEE *
CATERAIR INTERNATIONAL *
CEIMIC CORPORATION **
CHIPCOM
CHUBB AND SON, INC.
DELOITE & TOUCHE
DIGITAL EQUIPMENT CORP.
HILLCREST EDUCATIONAL CENTERS
IBM BURLINGTON **
IBM CAMBRIDGE
IBM CREDIT **
IBM FISHKILL **
IBM MANASSAS **
IBM MID-HUDSON
IBM SOUTHBURY **
IBM TARRYTOWN **
IBM WATSON RESEARCH CENTER **
INTERNATIONAL FOUNDATION OF EMPLOYEE BENEFITS **
JC PENNEY CATALOG *
KEYSTONE PROVIDENT LIFE
LIBERTY MUTUAL INSURANCE *
MASS MUTUAL INSURANCE *
MASS WATER RESOURCE AUTHORITY *
METCALF & EDDY
MONSANTO
NESTLE/WESTRECO
ORTHO PHARMACEUTICAL CO.
RED ROOF INNS *
SONOCO PRODUCTS
STRATUS COMPUTER *
THE TRAVELERS
US DEPARTMENT OF TRANSPORTATION
US DEPARTMENT OF LABOR OSHA
US FISH AND WILDLIFE SERVICE
US FOOD AND DRUG ADMINISTRATION
US OFFICE OF PERSONNEL MANAGEMENT
UNIROYAL CHEMICAL COMPANY
UNITED PARCEL SERVICE
UNITED STATES POSTAL SERVICE **
WINEGARDNER AND HAMMONS *

* Interviewing February 21 at the Campus Center
 Interviewing February 22 at the Mather Career Center

THE MATHER CAREER CENTER
Where Careers Take Off!
Call the Field Experience Office at 545-6265 for more information

EDITORIAL/OPINION

The opinions on this page are those of the individual writer or cartoonist and do not necessarily reflect the views of the Collegian or the University unless otherwise noted.

Reflections on watching a man set himself on fire for peace

We were driving back to UMass from Amherst when we saw the fire on the Commons. We saw two huge flames in the middle of the grass; people ran toward them and started trying to extinguish the fire with their coats. My first thought was, "Are these people crazy? They could get hurt." I thought this was just any old fire.

Then it occurred to me that someone was on fire. A living, breathing human being was engulfed in flames. We parked and ran to the Commons just as the police doused the flames with a fire extinguisher. As the mass of smoke clouded the scene, we walked around. The smoke dissipated; a big heap and two cans of turpentine were all that remained. I looked closer and saw two charred legs jutting out from the heap. Next to the scene, a woman sobbed. As we began to walk away, other people began to cry, with still others just staring blankly, trying to comprehend.

What psychosis is it that allows our government to brag about dropping more tons of bombs in less than a month than it dropped in all of World War II? And what psychosis allows it to label the deaths of human beings "collateral damage?" I saw t-shirts for sale this weekend which had "Operation Desert Storm" written across them, under which U.S. war planes were depicted in all their murderous splendor. What kind of society steps over the homeless in its own streets while it spends $500,000,000 a day in a war which kills, maims and makes homeless hundreds of thousands more? Is this kind or gentle? This is brutality, and sadly, it's run of the mill for this country.

Jonah Gelback

And yet some people talk of principle: "We're fighting this war for freedom. We're fighting this war for self-determination. We're fighting this war now because if we don't, we'll just have to fight it later." The reasoning behind these claims rests on the picture of President Hussein of Iraq as a madman who cares nothing for humanity or the above principles. Yet the United States armed him and the United States told him to go ahead and invade Kuwait. Hussein is a murderous tyrant, yet he manages to offer peace initiatives. Bush, on the other hand, is our purported saint; yet he plunges the world, against its wishes, into holocaust without so much as considering peace.

I saw the fire one hour ago, and as I write I don't know who the person was — male or female; student or not — or why he or she did it. But there is massive symbolism here. People rushed to help, and my first thought was, "They'll get hurt! What can they do?" This is the mindset that allows each individual to wait for the group to act, to wait for leaders — to wait for the police to come and put out the fire.

There are fires raging all over the world, and people are dying in them. There are fires raging all over the world, and our government — the police we're waiting for — is starting them and fanning their flames. There are fires consuming humanity, while I think, "What can I do? I might get hurt!" I drink my soda while flesh crackles and smokes. I hope this changes me. I hope the tears and blank stares yield to action. Because when everyone follows, no one leads, and as long as there is holocaust, smoke will cloud our vision. It's time to put out the fire.

Jonah Gelback is a UMass student

Smashing the romance of war: No one should have to die

Maybe I missed it somewhere, something I just never caught or comprehended.

Maybe everyone else knows it and accepts it, but never really talks about it.

But now that the war is here, we have to face it and come to terms with reality because we're going to see a lot more of it.

Men's lives are not as important as the lives of women or children.

I guess I never really thought about it until I read the Boston Globe on Friday. A front-page article about the reaction of U.S. soldiers stationed in Saudi Arabia to the recent bombing of an Iraqi bunker containing hundreds of civilians finally made me realize the gruesome fact that men are disposable.

The lead read:

"What it came down to yesterday was this: Nobody had looked for the women and children. And that, more than anything, was what stunned the people running this war against Iraq."

I re-read the lead a couple of times, shook my head and moved on. Later in the same article there were more references to the deaths of civilian women and children. Other articles on the same bombing also stated that people were angry about the loss of the "women and children" killed in the attack.

Meredith O'Brien

It was a very odd realization — considering the Globe reported that among the bodies found in the bunker's rubble, Iraqi officials identified 55 men, 48 women and 91 children. More male civilians had died than female civilians, yet it was the women and children's lives our attention was drawn to.

But the more and more I thought about it, the more it made sense. All the sense in the world.

Of course the loss of men's lives is unfortunate, but men are tough and we should not mourn for them. They were there in that bunker either valiantly protecting their womenfolk or cowardly hiding when they should have been out fighting. We should not pity them. But we should pity the defenseless women and children whose lives were ruthlessly taken away.

I mulled the term "women and children" over in my mind, trying to remember where it was I heard it last. Maybe it was on television, a news bulletin about some tragedy where lives were lost, including those of women and children. As the body count escalates, the tragedy grows only if more dead women or two-year-olds are uncovered.

It was something, I realized, I had been brought up with my entire life.

Men fought for their country, so their deaths were expected and honored. Women's deaths are not expected because they are the ones who must stay home to care for the children, so their deaths are devastating and wasteful. Men defend their country. Women defend their children. Men are strong and virile. Women are weak and defenseless, though not quite as defenseless as their children.

So only when women and children die, I finally realized, has a human tragedy occurred. I should seethe and intensify my anger when women and children are killed, for only a coward would kill them instead of another man, another equal.

As of Friday, 55 men were found dead in that bunker's rubble. Normally, I would mourn for all of those found the wreckage, not just the women and children. I thought the loss of life was a loss of life, something to mourn and pray for. I didn't think sex came into play.

But I guess I was mistaken.

Meredith O'Brien is a Collegian columnist

On Thursday, Feb. 21, this section will be dedicated to events and issues surrounding the destruction of student government. This effects all of us and we'd like to know what you think. Please have all submissions to the Collegian by Tuesday night. Thank you for your support.

Au contraire: Amherst is anti-war

In light of the recent articles published in the Collegian, we would like to correct a misconception of the Amherst College community's stance toward the Gulf war.

After reading the top article in Monday's issue ("Grad student arrested in anti-war protest" Feb. 11), it would seem that all Amherst students and faculty agree with the few who have vocally supported the war. Nothing could be further from the truth.

Well over 100 Amherst students protested the U.S. military actions on the Amherst Town Common, Westover Air Force Base and Washington D.C. Amherst students are organizing for the International Day of Student Protest with a Five-College walkout on Feb. 21. The Amherst College faculty is considering a two-day moratorium on classes in early March for a teach-in.

We realize that because of the racist and classist aspects of this war, many Amherst students will not experience the most severe of its consequences. However, great numbers of us are horrified by George Bush's actions throughout the crisis, and will continue to do everything in order to stop it. Anyone with humanity and common sense has a duty to stop the war, and the Amherst College community takes on this obligation with pride, hope and energy.

Anthony Wright
Amherst College

38 people signed this letter — Eds.

To the victimizer from the victim

To the one who didn't care —

What was it that you wanted from me? Two minutes of pleasure? When you looked at me, did you see a toy for you to play with? Did you not see another human being? A person with hopes, fears and emotion just like yourself?

You violated that person.

You went where you had no business going. You used your strength against someone who was no match for it. Does that make you the winner?

You are an animal. You are a slave to your primal instincts.

I am the victim. You took my pride. You made me hollow. Where the power of love should have been, you entered me with selfish disregard. Who are you to rob another person of their humanity?

If only you knew what it feels like to be powerless, powerless as someone stabs deep inside you, powerless as the tears well up in your eyes, powerless as you are left there, aching and empty. The scars never heal, you know.

Jane Doe
UMass

Working for the simple "right" to hold hands

Imagine, if you will, this situation: You are in the Campus Center (or any equally public place) some weekday afternoon. The Concourse is bustling with activity as people rush about to their respective destinations. Next to you a couple embraces with a prolonged kiss and separates, each person heading off to go about their business.

Okay, now let's see a show of hands. How many of you (be honest now) visualize this as a heterosexual couple? Those of you without your hands up are, unfortunately, living in a fantasy world.

If the above couple was indeed a heterosexual one, as is most likely, the greatest reaction might be one of annoyance that these people stopped in your way. Beyond that there would be no public outcry, no sense of outrage, no perception of the act as indecent, immoral, or wrong. In fact it would probably be viewed as cute or romantic.

If, on the other hand, it were a gay or lesbian couple, there is no doubt in my mind that they would be assaulted, at least in a verbal manner, by passers-by. And for no other reason than demonstrating their affections in a way that is accepted, even expected, from heterosexuals.

Don't get me wrong. I'm not a prude who feels that all physical signs of affection should be kept behind closed doors. Quite the opposite, in fact. I would like nothing more than for everyone to be able to express their feelings publicly. But I do not think that it is fair for one portion of the population to blatantly exercise priviledges denied to others.

Unfortunately it is going to take quite a bit of work to turn this society into one where all can love freely and without fear of attack. People must learn, whatever their own religious or personal beliefs, to respect the rights and lifestyles of others (isn't that one of the principles this country was founded on, anyway?). With thousands of years of conditioning behind social hang-ups, this goal will be difficult indeed, but I do not feel it is unattainable. Only a few decades ago, a heterosexual couple kissing in public was considered indecent, immoral and wrong, yet today it is quite common. Perhaps this is a sign that there is hope of even further change.

Heterosexual public displays of affection (Are there, with few exceptions, any other kind?) are painful to those who cannot do the same without harassment. Making this world one where people can express their feelings must begin with the individual. I simply ask that the heterosexual community remember that this priviledge, which is taken for granted, is denied to over a 10th of the population, and act accordingly. What's so wrong about a world where everyone is free to love without fear?

Christopher D. Tatro
Orchard Hill

Register and vote in Amherst's elections

As one of the 14 UMass students running for a seat in the Amherst town meeting, I would like to address a very serious issue concerning the students of this community.

The town of Amherst is facing a multi-million dollar budget deficit and as a result is planning to eliminate the rent control board. The Housing Review Board is of vital interest to the students of this community because it keeps rents reasonable and protects us from rent gouging by Amherst landlords.

At a time when students are facing a $1,000 tuition and fee increase for the next semester, the elimination of the Housing Review Board will mean massive increases in our rents at a time when we can least afford it.

Our only hope for saving the Board is to vote in the town elections on March 26, and in the override vote of Proposition 2 1/2 on May 14.

Students are the economic backbone of this community. We spend $110 million a year in the Pioneer Valley, and the University employs nearly 25 percent of the adults in this town.

Don't let the town government eliminate the one service that it provides for students.

Register to vote in Amherst on Wednesday and Thursday in the Student Union Ballroom.

Jen Wood
Northeast

■ vigil

CONTINUED FROM PAGE 3

To junior Danny Cohen, being Jewish means "we must take part in history — to not let history be made, but to make it ourselves."

After the vigil, participants marched to the UMass Hillel House, where they sang "Hatikvah," ("Hope") Israel's national anthem.

"This is a hard time to be Jewish, and it's a little bit scary," said Rudenstein. "Being together makes it a little easier."

The most important aspect of the vigil, according to senior Hillary Fairbanks, is "to see Jewish people coming together, saying 'we're here, we're visible.'"

"This is a dangerous time," she said. "We're often alienated from mainstream thought, and I fear our opinions will be overlooked." Fairbanks asked for a moment of silence "to realize why we're here tonight, and what it means to be Jewish."

Photo by Alisa Berkowitz

VIGIL — A Jewish student holds a sign in support of Israel at a vigil of Five College students this weekend.

Get Involved!
with campus health issues
SHAB*

- Sponsor health projects
- Represent student health care concerns
- Review UHS budget
- Serve on UHS Search Committees
- Meet other students interested in health care

COME SEE WHAT IT'S ALL ABOUT

Meeting: Wednesday, February 20, 1991
Where: UHS Room 302
Time: 5:00 pm

*Student Health Advisory Board (est. 1971)
University Health Services

OOPS!
Now's the time to call...
North Amherst Motors
78 Old Sunderland Rd., No. Amherst
549-2880
Expert Repairs and Reconditioning
Most Major Credit Cards Accepted

If you care, take the time to listen.

Are you looking for a challenging, rewarding profession? You'll find it, and more, while learning to help people with speech, language and hearing disorders.

Boston-Bouvé College at Northeastern University offers two exciting master of science programs in Speech-Language Pathology or Audiology (the only one of its kind in the Boston area). Both programs are accredited by the American Speech-Language-Hearing Association.

You'll have the opportunity to gain practical experience in our on-campus speech clinic. In addition, both programs include clinical practice in many of Boston's prestigious medical institutions. Graduate assistantships and other financial aid are available.

Call (617) 437-2708, or write Graduate School, Boston-Bouvé College of Human Professions, 106 Dockser Hall, Northeastern University, Boston, MA 02115. Because some people's problems are worth listening to.

Boston-Bouvé College
Northeastern University
An equal opportunity/affirmative action university.

FREE
1991
Student Travel Catalog!
Everything you need to know about:
- Student Travel
- Air Fares
- Rail Passes
- Car Rental/Leasing
- Work Abroad
- Study Abroad
- Int'l Student & Teacher ID

& MUCH MORE!!!
CALL for your FREE copy!
Council Travel
79 So. Pleasant St.
Amherst
413-256-1261

STUDENT COMMENCEMENT SPEAKER

Proposals are solicited for consideration as Student Commencement Speaker

Eligibility:	Graduating University senior
Format:	3-4 "typed" pages, double-spaced (equivalent of 3-4 minutes speaking time); original and one copy. Include your name, local address and telephone number on a separate, attached cover sheet.
Subject matter:	The text should concern education and be relevant to the University and your experience(s) here.
Selection process:	Entries will be reviewed by the Student Commencement Speaker Selection Committee, which consists of students, staff, and faculty. (Author's name will be removed before being given to the committee to ensure objectivity.) Ratings will be assigned and selected authors will be invited to "audition" before the committee. The committee will make the final selection.
Deadline:	Thursday, February 21, 1991, not later than 4:30pm
Submit proposals to:	Paul R. Appleby, Director, Disability Services, 231 Whitmore (545-0892)

TAKE IT ONE STEP FURTHER

If you are interested in a RETAIL MANAGEMENT career, take the first step and meet Osco Drug! We will be on campus:

INFORMATION SESSION
Tuesday, February 26, 1991
7:00 pm - 8:00 pm
Mather Career Center

INTERVIEWS:
Wednesday, February 27, 1991
Interviews will be held at the Career Center and the School of Management

You will find that people with motivation and initiative — those who take that extra step — are rewarded at Osco Drug.

As one of the largest retail drug chains in the country, there is plenty of room to advance. With our ongoing training program, we are behind you every step of the way. You will learn all aspects of the business: buying, merchandising, as well as hiring, training and motivating people to succeed.

We offer a competitive starting salary and a complete, comprehensive benefit package including a health care plan, profit sharing (401-K), merchandise discount, paid vacations and much more. Once you are promoted from a management trainee, you also participate in our lucrative bonus program.

Take that first step now and meet Osco Drug on campus. If you are unable to attend, we would still like to hear from you. Send your resume to: Osco Drug, Recruiting Department, 1818 Swift Drive, Oak Brook, IL 60521; or call 1-800-323-7257.

AMERICAN DRUG STORES
Sav-on Osco Drug
We are an equal opportunity employer.

MULTICULTURAL AFFAIRS

Asian Americans and ethnic treachery!

There are those in our Asian American student community whom, through no fault of their own, suffer from Ken and Barbie syndrome and idolize the current coverperson of Vogue and GQ. They live an identity that has been created by the majority community rather than their own history. Through their frivolous activities in student organizations, which are anything but organized, they misrepresent our community.

It is most unfortunate that these so-called student leaders are recognized as the spokesperson for Asian Americans. Their misrepresentations of all things Asian are obscene, despicable and it is, indeed, ethnic treachery. They have thus formed a Banana Republic.

They identify as Asian Americans through their social clubs because ethnicity has become very trendy in the United States. But close scrutiny reveals nothing Asian in this mentality.

Alexander Nguyen

Could they answer or even ask a few fundamental questions about their root country's past or present?

What did Chinese Americans do when Tiananmen erupted? What did Korean Americans do when all the democracy riots broke out? What are Indian Americans doing as the religious conflicts explode? What are Japanese Americans doing about the 16-hour workdays?

They were chillin' with their babes in their stylin' threads sagging all over their bodies at their hip dances bopping up and down and all around to that three-hour-long redundant monotonous club song with intermittent injections of the month's top 40 number one only to mess up their hair which they spent so much time teasing and curling and sweating all over that expensive provocative fragrance as they demonstrate their miraculous dancing skills which consists of two steps of which one is a vertical jump which was all they could remember from Club MTV as they contemplate whether or not they're ready to take the stage and expose themselves in hope of some recognition but first they have to run to the lavatory to fix their hair and fart.

They are the ones who jump on the bandwagon of comparing Saddam Hussein to Hitler and yet know not the name Pol Pot let alone his real name. They practically fell out of their seats laughing and cheering the movies Good Morning Vietnam and Rambo but what do they know about Viet-Nam.

This unfortunately is the extent of their student activism with the occasional traditional fashion and art thrown in to justify being Asian American. They complain that anything more would be too political. What political statement does this kind of behavior make?

"Oh Asian students are quiet and passive. They never cause any problems. Its all right to decrease funding because they never say anything anyway. Asian students are so good — they are our model minority."

They have done an immense disservice to the peoples of Asia but not only that they have disgraced their own history, the history of Asian Americans, by partaking in this ethnic treachery. The pressures and circumstances of racist America have displaced them from their people.

The Reagan era, materialism and the American way have shaped their dreams. They aspire to be like those European Americans the media portrays as successful, those in movies, on magazines and on television.

As these are their heroes they deny being victims of racism and at times turn around and act racist towards others in and outside the community.

Perhaps a brief overview of our history may be enlightening. Perhaps it might expose the reality of their America and deconstruct their dreams and values.

This is the story of our mothers and fathers and their parents and grandparents. People who left their homes in search of a better life. This is what they found.

Asian migration to the United States began in the mid-19th century with the first Japanese in 1843 and the first Chinese in 1848. For the duration of the century many more came including Filipino, Korean and Indian immigrants who were predominantly men.

Most came as indentured servants to work on sugar cane plantations in Hawaii. Others worked in mines and on railroads in the West. The few women that came also worked in these industries but most did housework and many turned to prostitution. Many of the prostitutes had been kidnapped, bought and sold and had no control over their destinies.

These first Asian Americans struggled to the bones in a land which did not welcome them and excluded them because they were Asians. As the Asian population increased so did anti-Asian sentiment. There are many recorded cases of lynchings and beatings of Asians. Men were looked upon as heathen second-class people and women as erotic Orientals who were sexually subservient.

Asian people were spat upon, molested, abused physically and psychologically, exploited for cheap capitalist labor and denied entry into American society. This is not simply the history of Asian Americans, it is, in part, the history of America.

This vicious racist climate was articulated through government policies against Asians. The California Supreme Court, in 1854, in People v. Hall ruled testimony against whites by Asians, blacks, mulattos and Native Americans invalid. In 1882, the Chinese Exclusion Act, the first federal exclusion law isolating race. was passed prohibiting Chinese to become American citizens. There followed a series of similar policies.

Ozawa v. United States (1922), excluded Japanese citizenship. United States v. Thind (1923), excluded Indians. Morrison v. California (1934), excluded Filipinos. Citizenship through naturalization was denied to all Asians from 1924 until 1943. It took 100 years since the first immigrant until Asians could become citizens.

Not only were Asians denied citizenship, further entry of Asians was similarly denied. The 1907 Gentlemen's Agreement Act against Japanese and Koreans, the 1917 Act against Indians, the 1924 Oriental Exclusion Act against all mainland Asians and the 1934 Tydings-McDuffie Act against Filipinos. This immigration exclusion based on race was not terminated until 1965.

There were other anti-Asian practices such as antimiscegenation laws, low wages, the Alien Land Law and segregated housing. The list of such crimes continues. And then in 1942 President Roosevelt passed Executive Order 9066 incarcerating 120,000 Japanese Americans in ten concentration camps on the West Coast for three years.

Due to the violent environment opportunities were extremely scarce. Asians were pushed into China-Korea-Manila-Tokyo-towns where they had to create their own employment opportunities in order to survive. It was hard for the men to find jobs and most never made it out of their entry level jobs as laborers, factory workers and so on.

Women faced the same story plus added hardships of being women of color. Most worked inside the home or family business taking in additional laundry, sewing, cooking, raising beansprouts and other vegetables in bathtubs and raising chickens. They raised the children and kept the family unit alive. Their work was endless from laboring all day and family all night never taking any time off.

The necessity of feeding the family prevented Asians from learning English which was the key for advancing in the work force. They spent their entire lives doing medial work but their dreams fueled their strength thus they survived all hardships and injustices.

This is the story of our ancestors who out of their dignity, pride and strength we were born. Of course there were highlights in Asian American history but good times come and go whereas hard times come and scar.

The hardships our families endured and the countless sacrifices they made must not be forgotten or ignored. Everything they worked for was for their dream — a better life for the children, for us.

And now some of those children have disgraced this history of struggle and honor. For all the overworked hours, tears shed and blood spilled these students only have their social activities to show for. This attitude must change because the stories from history continue today as new Asians are resettling here.

Though there are no longer such blatant laws against Asians, racism is still an obstacle as social, political and economical barriers are resistant to change.

Today many Asian Americans are still trapped in semi-skilled jobs as maids, waitresses, shop clerks, assembly lines, cooks, cashiers and so on. The necessity for a paycheck still prevents Asians from learning English and leaving their entry-level jobs. As for the student generation who are destined for professional careers there exists the same racism which preset boundaries of mobility.

The student generation is the embodiment of this history of hopes and dreams. Yet these students continually perpetuate the model minority myth, the passive Asian woman and silent minority stereotype because they don't want to be political.

They claim to be rebellious against family traditions and Asian ways. This rebellion is a product of America's pressure to fit in with the crowd. Little do they realize that their ancestors were the revolution. They were the true rebels for they defiantly survived in this hostile environment. Their pure survival is revolution. Now the torch has been handed down and the outlook is dim because these students have not fulfilled the responsibility.

As their actions reflect one culture their mirrors reflect another.

As they are extremely capable they do still suffer from a massive identity crisis. As their actions reflect one culture their mirrors reflect another. It is difficult to be multicultural especially in a society that allows little room for it. But Asian American history proves it possible.

These students have succumbed to the mainstream which one day will turn around and oppress them. As Ward Churchill once said, "Its the most advanced state of colonialism — when you get people to do it to their own." And indeed these students are doing it to us.

These Asian Americans of the Banana Republic are but lost souls with energetic and creative minds waiting to blossom. It is not of their fault and they can change. They can learn to respect their history and reconstruct their views to carry on the story of a viable Asian America.

There still lie many obstacles ahead such as racism in the workplace, in education and everywhere else. There is coalition building to be done with other oppressed groups. There is the problem of refugees and numerous international problems facing Asia. But rest assured, as we tackle these, society will create new ones.

It is debatable whether we are responsible for our past but we are definitely responsible for our future. We must carry out this responsibility with pride, honor and courage. And our first and foremost obstacle are these students. Down with the Banana Republic's ethnic treachery!

Alexander Nguyen is Collegian staff. This article is the opinion of the writer and does not necessarily reflect the views of the Collegian staff.

Black Sheep Brian and the iconograpghy of empire

Valley residents are strongly encouraged to make the pilgrimage to the Black Sheep Deli in Northampton to examine first hand a profound and singular example of the iconography of imperialism. As you enter the building on the corner of Pleasant and Main streets cast your wandering eye onto the back wall directly facing you. There, underneath the obligatory large and billowing yellow ribbon hangs an enlarged laser copy of a color photograph.

Hussein Ibish

A smiling American face beams out at you reassuringly. The solider in his combat camouflage stands erect, proudly dominating the desert landscape, a stark and hostile contrast of barren earth and icy blue sky. Looming in the background is a dark and brooding bedouin, mounted comfortably on his camel which peers seriously toward the camera. On the upper margins of the copy are the words "Brian" and "Saudi Arabia."

To most who see it this appears as a perfectly ordinary and predictable snapshot of a man "just doing his job" and is probably regarded as a kind of rarified travel photo. And yet summed up in this archetypal image is a cultural mindset, a mentality that gave birth to and sustains the imperial enterprise. It is an image so replete with the symbolism of colonialism that it echoes through the centuries of European expansion and reverbarates across the continents of the colonized.

What we see in its most modern incarnation is the central fantasy of colonialists, the wise and powerful military Westerner who dispenses justice and order to the chaotic and exotic East. He stands in all his intrepid glory in the remorseless alien landscape of the heathen, ably assisted by his faithful native complete with exotic animal. He may even be commanding a company of loyal natives (in this case the "good Arabs") but he will certainly be waging war against the rebellious ones (in this case the "bad Arabs"). His role is to tame the wild ways of those forces of disorder that would question the rule of the civilized over the savage. He is the master of the foreign land, conqueror of both man and nature.

Many will be tempted to ask why this is being taken so seriously. After all, they will say, it's just a picture. Of course it shows the desert and a camel, he's in "Saudi," what do you expect to see him standing in front of, the Eiffle Tower? The imagery of colonial mythology is so deeply ingrained in Europe and its settler-colonial offshoots that most people here cannot recognize what is actually being expressed in symbolic language.

The legend of the White man's burden as the bringer of order to chaos and civilization to the primitive, as the bastion of rationality and learning, has been expounded by such writers as Joseph Conrad and Rudyard Kippling.

The power of the myth has extended almost unatenuated into the present day. President Bush has enthused about the noble "sacrifice" that the United States is making in fighting a war from which, he claims, it will not benefit. It can be heard in the concept of "the policeman of the world," read on the pages of the New York Times and seen in the imagery hanging in the Black Sheep. This modern day T. E. Lawrence, this "Brian of Arabia," is the successor of all the Fusliers and gunnery-sargents of the British Raj in India or the foreign legionaires of the French empire in Africa.

Hussein Ibish is a Collegian staff member. This article is the opinion of the writer and does not necessarily reflect the views of the Collegian staff.

Nationally ranked Temple tumbles men's gymnastics

By MICHAEL MORRISSEY
Collegian Correspondent

The University of Massachusetts men's gymnastics team lost big to a superior Temple team Saturday, 272.9-256.55.

Temple took control early in the meet and never looked back, as they swept every event.

The Owls were led by juniors Bill Roth, who won the all-around competition with a score of 57.90, and Jim Van de Zilver, who posted a 54.55.

Roth's 9.85 on the parallel bars was the high score of the match. Coach Roy Johnson called Roth "an outstanding athlete, an outstanding gymnast."

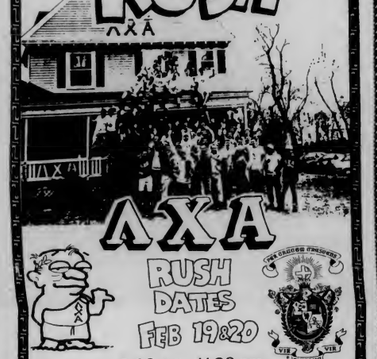
Haran, a freshman, had solid routines on the rings (9.0), parallel bars (9.05) and horizontal bar (9.2).

Senior Bill Sayman performed well on the parallel bars, scoring a 9.0. Freshman Jason Braud had a nice floor routine (9.15), and senior Dave DiNucci, performing with an injured back, scored a 9.25 on the vault.

One controversy early in the match was the inconsistency of the judges' scores. Johnson said that some of the scores baffled him.

"I was real dissatisfied with the scores [on the horse]," he said. "[Some of them] just didn't make sense."

UMass could not overcome a large deficit after faltering in the pommel horse. The Minutemen scored only a 38.9 as a team in the meet's second event, while Temple scored a 45.

LAMBDA CHI ALPHA FRATERNITY
ΛΧΑ ΛΧΑ
RUSH
ΛΧΑ


ΛΧΑ
RUSH DATES
FEB 19&20
9:00 pm - 11:00 pm
the Fraternity of Honest Friendship
Lambda Chi Alpha Fraternity 374 North Pleasant Street 253-9332

Distinguished Visitors Program
Proudly Presents:

Investigative Journalist and Editor

MARTIN LEE

Author of Acid Dreams: CIA, LSD & The Sixties Rebellion

Narco Terrorism:
The Politics of International Drug Trafficking

Tuesday, Feb 19, 1991
8:00 p.m.
Student Union Ballroom
FREE ADMISSION

distinguished visitors program

JUST BECAUSE YOU SKI ALL WEEK DOESN'T MEAN YOU'LL TURN INTO A POOR STUDENT.

$10 COLLEGE DISCOUNT.

Stratton has a lower price for anyone pursuing a higher education. $22 midweek. $28 on weekends and holidays. So you can save $10 any day and every day with a current college I.D. And you get 92 exciting trails, a 12-passenger gondola, plus all the extracurricular fun you can handle. Now, how's that for financial aid? Stratton VERMONT

Call 1-800-843-6867 or 1-802-297-2200.

ROLL UPS
SANDWICH SHOP
331 Russell St., Rt. 9, Hadley
(next to Dunkin' Donuts)
Grand Opening Specials
Over 25 sandwiches all under $3.99 such as...
• Philly Roast Beef • Wrangler
• Veggie Delight w/ avacado AND
• Tuna/Hold the Line MORE!...
FREE SANDWICH
Buy One Get One Free!!
(Lower priced sandwich is free)
One coupon per person per order
Not valid between 12:30-2:00 daily exp.2-28-91
OPEN 7 DAYS A WEEK
586-8255

Cooking at your table

SPECIAL
Tues.-Wed.-Thurs.-Fri. & all day Sunday
Two Dinners for $15
Steak & chicken combo
Two Dinners for $18
Shrimp & Scallop Combo
Both include soup, salad, vegetables, noodles, steamed rice, tea, & ice cream
Full Bar • Exotic Specialties

Goten OF JAPAN
Gift Certificates Available
Rt. 116, Sunderland 413-665-3628
Open Tues.-Sat. at 5pm, Sun at 2
Reservations welcomed

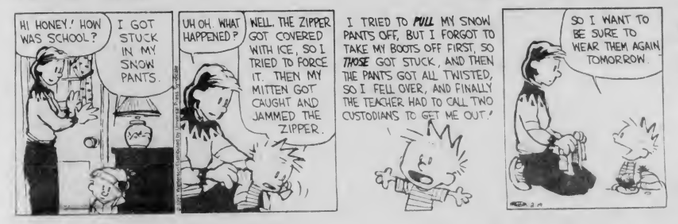
DOONESBURY
By GARRY TRUDEAU

THESE PEOPLE ARE ALLOWED TO BANG AWAY IN FRONT OF THE WHITE HOUSE DAY AND NIGHT?
BOOM! BOOM!
AS LONG AS THEY DON'T EXCEED THE LEGAL LIMIT OF 60 DECIBELS
THE DRUMMING STARTED WITH AN OJIBWA TRIBAL CEREMONY LAST DECEMBER. OTHER ANTI-WAR PROTESTERS HAVE KEPT IT UP EVER SINCE.
BOOM!
PUM!
YOU WANT TO JOIN THEM, LI'?
NO WAY, JOSÉ! I SUPPORT OUR WAR POLICY! 100%! IT'S OUR TROOPS I CAN'T ABIDE!
RUM
BOOM!
OUR TROOPS?
YOU KNOW HOW MUCH MAIL THOSE BOZOS GET? HEY, I'D LIKE A FANCY APO BOX, TOO, BUT NOOO — I'M A CIVILIAN!
GB Trudeau

THE FAR SIDE
By GARY LARSON

Andy looked up in horror. Right in front of Sally, a worm was emerging from his forehead — and he felt himself turning even redder.

CALVIN AND HOBBES
By BILL WATTERSON

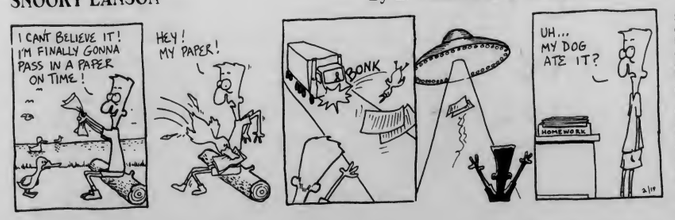


HI HONEY! HOW WAS SCHOOL?
I GOT STUCK IN MY SNOW PANTS.
UH OH. WHAT HAPPENED?
WELL, THE ZIPPER GOT COVERED WITH ICE, SO I TRIED TO FORCE IT. THEN MY MITTEN GOT CAUGHT AND JAMMED THE ZIPPER.
I TRIED TO PULL MY SNOW PANTS OFF, BUT I FORGOT TO TAKE MY BOOTS OFF FIRST, SO THOSE GOT STUCK, AND THEN THE PANTS GOT ALL TWISTED, SO I FELL OVER, AND FINALLY THE TEACHER HAD TO CALL TWO CUSTODIANS TO GET ME OUT.
SO I WANT TO BE SURE TO WEAR THEM AGAIN TOMORROW.

FROTTER
By GARRY PORTER

WELL, BUNYON, THE MONEY'S GONE AGAIN. CHECK THE NEWSPAPER FOR THE CLASSIFIEDS.
LOOK AT THIS ONE, FROTTER, "BRAVE SEEKS SAME FOR POSSIBLE $ AND PL." WHAT DOES THAT MEAN?
DON'T YOU KNOW ANYTHING? THAT MEANS "BEGINNING MARKETSALE FIRM SEEKS SKILLED WORKING MAN FOR MULTIPLE SALES AND MANAGEMENT."
YOU HAVE TO LEARN THE LINGO BUNYON.
OH, LOOK - I THINK I FOUND A JOB THAT REQUIRES TWO MEN...

SNOOKY LANSON
By E. VEZINA & R. SHAUGHNESSY



TANGELO PIE
By TIM SNIFFEN

ROOMMATE FUN with MARCUS
Step 1: At a discreet moment, "borrow" your roommate's library card.
Step 2: Convince some Librarian your roommate is severely ill & needs you to take books out for him.
Remember Annie Wilkes at the end of "Misery"? He looks like that.
Poor dear!
Step 3: Bury the books in a distant field your roommate has never heard of.
LAND MINE AM NOT APPEALIN'
Step 4: Sit back, & anticipate the pathos.
Why so smug?
Ask me in five weeks.

QUOTE OF THE DAY

"In the first place, God made idiots. That was for practice. Then he made school boards."
— Mark Twain

DAILY CROSSWORD PUZZLE
Edited By TRUDE MICHEL JAFFE

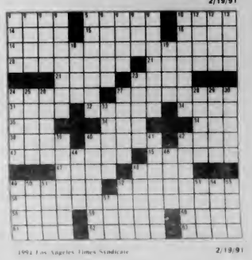
ACROSS
1 Weaver's frame
5 Energy
10 Shootout shout
14 Haulboy
15 Poplar
16 Danielle's dream
17 Joan Leslie Robert Alda film, 1946
20 Recliner feature
21 Exile
22 Procession
23 Zeros
24 Glue
27 Swift hero
31 Fabulist
32 Tale
34 Boy, in Barcelona
35 Stir
36 Dawn deity
37 Cashew
38 Simple
40 Raid's lady
42 Whirlybird
43 Grimm heroine
45 Tradesperson
47 Speaking style
48 Phone
49 Demur
52 Erodes
56 Grimm do-gooders
58 Pay to play
59 Keen
60 Islands off New Guinea
61 14 Across is one
62 Garb
63 Precious

DOWN
1 Ness, for one
2 Theater award
3 A Chaplin
4 Intrusive one
5 Family members
6 More than pleasantly plump
7 Drugstore-wrap seam
8 House addition
9 Without delay
10 Visits unexpectedly
11 General at Bull Run
12 State
13 — Point
18 Green land
19 Take shape
23 Nightingale, e.g.
24 Metal holder
25 Downy duck
26 New Zealand native
27 Hoodlums
28 Common polymer
29 Harden
30 Aircraft blade
33 Rib
39 Crossed the threshold
40 Changed one's mind
41 Masthead listings
42 Noblest knight
44 Buffalo Bill
46 Orient
48 Fonteyn and Markova
49 Yonder
50 Sugar source
51 Specify
52 Advantage
53 "The Way We —"
54 Copper center of Venezuela
55 Belgian river
57 Brame blada

ANSWER TO PREVIOUS PUZZLE:

R	A	M	P		C	H	A	W		D	A	M	E	D
A	L	I	E		P	A	L	E		E	X	I	D	E
D	A	L	E		A	R	I	O		R	I	N	D	S
M		L	K	O	F	M	A	G	N	E	S	I	A
		S	I	T		S	E	E	P
O	E	M		L	O		S	W	A	G	G	E	R
E	X	E	S		E	E	L		R	E	E	S	E
B	U	T	T	E	R	F	L	Y		R	O	K	E
I	D	E	A	L		B	E		E	T	A	L
T	E	R	R	E	T	S		A	L	S		H	R	S
			G	O	T	A		F	U	S	E
	C	R	E	A	M	O	F	T	H	E	C	R	O	P
L	E	A	R	N		A	D	U	E		A	M	M	O
A	N	T	I	C		M	O	L	L		M	A	N	S
S	T	A	K	E		S	T	E	P		S	L	I	T

2/19/91



1991 Los Angeles Times Syndicate 2/19/91

MENU

LUNCH	DINNER
Chicken Burrito	Beef Stew
Hungarian Noodle Bake	Turkey Divan
BASICS LUNCH	BASICS DINNER
Chicken Burrito	Greek Style Skillet
Hungarian Noodle Bake	Turkey Divan

YOUR DAILY HOROSCOPE
By JEANE DIXON

ARIES (March 21-April 19): Taking on additional responsibilities increases your chances for professional advancement. A short trip will provide great pleasure if a delightful companion accompanies you! Keep spending down.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20): Shake off vague worries and get caught up on your bookkeeping. An older relative could require extra attention – give it lovingly. A member of the opposite sex provides the reassurance you need.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20): Catch up on your professional reading. Family relationships will improve if fewer demands are made. Greater cooperation and patience are essential. A wonderful evening for entertaining at home.

CANCER (June 21-July 22): Investments require careful handling. A creative project could turn into a real bonanza. Share your hopes and dreams with someone close to your heart. Romance is sweet.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22): Your hunch is right on target. Chaos could prevail if you undertake new ventures today; leave things as they are. Travel leads to refreshing amusements tonight. Keep spending within your budget.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22): You are more persuasive than ever. People in high places can be brought around to your way of thinking. Financial gains will result. Romance moves into high gear.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22): Conditions are turbulent in business and finance. Go slowly instead of plunging ahead. Sensitivity to other's needs is vital now. Share good news with loved ones. They deserve to know!

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21): An agreement may have been premature. Many alliances are under strain. Lie low but keep abreast of new developments in your field. Family members are very supportive.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21): Your efforts to please VIPs will make them sit up and take notice your talents. Handle routine tasks with dispatch. New plans are being made – get involved. Romance takes on a rosy glow.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19): Communications and travel will spin the wheels of progress today. Place business pursuits ahead of pleasure and success is assured. Promoting new techniques could earn you extra cash.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18): Be wary of schemes that promise instant fame and power. Certain data could be misleading. Special achievements on the job put a new feather in your cap. Go after that new promotion you want.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20): Your colleagues' actions could make you look bad. Beware of guilt by association. To keep your ship afloat, emphasize moderation and self-sufficiency. Save money for investment purposes.

ARTS & LIVING

A wacky Valentine show

By JOHN PURIN
Collegian Staff

3 Mustaphas 3
Iron Horse Cafe
Thursday, Feb. 14

Last Thursday, the Iron Horse was the scene of one of the strangest Valentine's celebrations, with an appearance by worldbeat wackos 3 Mustaphas 3. After a night like that, to quote Steely Dan, "You don't ever wanna do it without a fez on."

For those of you unfamiliar with the legend that is Mustapha, the band is a six piece combo who claim to be from the highly obscure Balkan land of Szegerely. All six minstrels go by the surname Mustapha, which I guess makes them sort of a Slavic Ramones. The band was touring to support of their new Rykodisc CD Soup of the Century, their third major release since forming in 1982. This show was the marathon three-hour finale of a five-week tour which, according to pianist Kemo Mustapha, took them to "pretty much the five corners" of the United States.

The band's repertoire consists mainly of Eastern European folk music, but is arranged in such a way as to highlight the twisted sensibilities of the brothers Mustapha. All members of the sextet are both linguistic and musical virtuosos, switching styles, dialects, and axes with equal finesse. They sang songs in at least a half-dozen tongues, with between song banter in a couple more. Hijaz Mustapha positively wails on bouzouki, and their sound is further textured by such exotic instruments as the Kaval and the Zurna. This naturally produces a rich sonic stew which incorporated everything from Albanian funk, to Zydeco, and at times they created what can only be described as surf music from the Black Sea. Comparable to any one from John Coltrane to Jethro Tull, these Szegerelyan swingers move in a groove all their own.

The festivities began with a song whose Turkish title is translated as "Put Yogurt in the Fridge on Television." It featured an exotic melody hooked to a dance beat worthy of Club MTV.

Soon afterwards, on "Selvar," Sabah Habas Mustapha proved himself a fiery crooner in the Sinatra class, while drummer Houzam cranked out percussive pyrotechnics that would make Keith Moon proud. Actually, the Who are a good band to mention in this context, since many numbers featured some demonic fiddle reminiscent of "Baba O'Reilley."

Perhaps the most accessible tune of the evening was "The Soba Song," a tribute to a type of Japanese noodle which Hijaz described as "like your linguini, or your telegraph wire." In addition to its familiar country-western backbeat, it was also the only song to contain lyrics in English.

Among their other attributes, the Mustaphas proved themselves masters of the segue, switching rapidly from bass throbbing rock n'roll to an ethereal drone that would make good mood music for an opium den, and from a spastic sax solo to a mellow, sparkling a capella.

The music transcended both political and stylistic borders. The Balkan region was long influenced by Muslim culture, and much of the show had a marked Arabic quality. It was nice to be reminded that the Near East produces sounds a lot more pleasant than air raid sirens or Patriot missiles. After this is all over, when the rubble settles, and if this much-hyped New World Order really emerges, we can only hope it sounds like 3 Mustaphas 3.

An unforgettable gig

By JAMES MOLESWORTH
Collegian Correspondent

Ricky Ford Quartet
Hampden Theater
Thursday, Feb. 14

Whew! What a start to the second annual Magic Triangle Jazz Series. Ricky Ford led the quartet with George Cables on piano, Pete "LaRoca" Sims on drums and Leon Malson filling in for Reggie Workman on bass who had to cancel at the last minute.

Collectively, these four do not work as a "regular" group. Ford and Sims have worked together with Mal Waldron in New York. Ford is also familiar with Cables and obviously knew Malson well enough to grab him for the gig at the last minute. Sims, swamped with paper work from his law practice, plays infrequently. Cables is constantly touring the country with Frank Morgan. Yet they put in the kind of performance that is rarely seen, or heard. Playing over two hours, and composing music backstage during intermission, these guys worked really hard.

Ford blew so strong and hard on "Rhythm-a-ning" that he nearly doubled over from lack of breath. Cable needed some ice for his fingers in between sets and after the show Sims looked like he had run a marathon. On top of it all, all four musicians had to leave town that night for other gigs!

They started with a full 10 minute version of Fats Wallers' "Jitterbug Waltz." After that, they rounded out the first set with a collection of Ricky Ford originals which will be released on his next album. Among them were "Setting Sun Blues," (named for the Sunset jazz club in Paris which is one of Ford's favorites) a tune which left the crowd buzzing with anticipation for the start of the second set. No one was disappointed.

The second set consisted of the kind of playing which makes you hum and snap your fingers as you walk to work the next day. Cables had ripped some solid solos in the first set and Malson made people forget the loss of Workman with a couple of velvety smooth parts.

Yet Sims had seemed locked in a cage, providing implications of single and double time through his weaving arms and legs. He looked like an octopus sleepwalking through a feeding frenzy, and when he finally took a solo in the second set, the audience breathed a collective sigh of relief as they sat on the edge of their seats. No, Mr. Sims showed no signs of rust, as he pounded out one of his signature solos, and as he finished, a wry smile of pure happiness moved across his face.

For an encore, Ford played "Red, Crack and Blue," a tune of his own based on a retrograde inversion (or played forwards and then backwards) of the first four bars of the national anthem.

The evening was a complete success, and the sampling of tunes from Ricky Ford's upcoming album should have people waiting in line at record stores. The crowd was hip (a packed house), and the artists were on a higher plane of existence, definitely a once in a lifetime gig. Further evidence that jazz here in the valley is on the rise, and only getting better.

DELTA UPSILON

Welcomes all University Men to OPEN RUSH

RUSH DATES

FEB	11	7 PM	Pizza Night
FEB	12	7 PM	Buffalo Wings
FEB	14	8 PM	Featuring the band "NEW MACHINE"
FEB	18	7 PM	Pizza Night
FEB	19	7 PM	Buffalo Wings
FEB	21	8 PM	OPEN RUSH

LOCATION

DELTA UPSILON HOUSE
IS LOCATED ON
778 NORTH PLEASANT STREET,
ACROSS FROM TOTMAN GYM.

ΔΥ

DELANO'S

57 North Pleasant Street Proper Identification
253-5141 a Must

Tuesday Night's Taco Night
Wednesday Night is Buffalo Bill Lookalike Night
Free Buffalo Wings 9-???
$50 Gift Certificate to winner!

Drinks of the Week

Rum and Coke	$1.75
Kamikaze	$2.00

Beer of the Month

60 oz pitcher of Rolling Rock, Miller, Miller Lite, and Miller Genuine Draft	$4.50

Minutemen win

CONTINUED FROM PAGE 12

"[McCoy] is playing outstanding," Calipari said. "He carried us in the middle of the game when we needed it. That was the Jim McCoy we'd seen before, but hadn't seen yet this year."

Down the stretch the Minutemen beat Penn State with several hard blows and one knockout punch.

A pair of McCoy jumpers carried UMass' lead to 55-47 midway through the second half. A fast break feed from Harper Williams led to a McCoy dunk at the 4:40 mark.

The Minutemen spread the floor to kill the clock and Tony Barbee found a seam, racing in for a tomohawk dunk that left UMass up 65-57, with 1:22 left.

Freddie Barnes kept Penn State afloat momentarily, canning a pair of free throws, tipping in a missed layup, and hitting a 3-pointer to close the Nittany Lions within three, at 67-64.

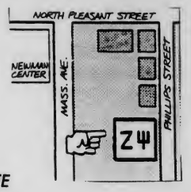
But Rafer Giles padded UMass' lead to 69-64 with a pair of free throws with :25 to play, and the clincher was a Herndon strip that led to a one-hand-behind-the-head, Dee Brown-style dunk by Barbee with :12 left.

"Herndon's strip, Anton Brown's strip. . .that's what I mean about 'stepping up,'" Calipari said. "Getting through this win and making key free throws down the stretch will help us."

McCoy paced four Minutemen in double figures; Herndon added 14, Harper Williams 11 and Barbee 10. Barnes scored 18 to lead Penn State.

RUSH
ZETA PSI
ALL UNIVERSITY MEN WELCOME

All Events 7-9 PM
EXCEPT
CONDOM NITE
6:30 -9PM



TUESDAY FEB. 12 MEET THE BROTHERS NITE
WEDNESDAY FEB. 13 CHIP N' DIP NITE
THURSDAY FEB. 14 BURGER NITE
TUESDAY FEB. 19 PIZZA NITE
WEDNESDAY FEB. 20 CHIP N' DIP NITE
THURSDAY FEB. 21 CONDOM NITE

ZETA PSI
23 PHILLIPS ST.
256-6845

■ seniors

CONTINUED FROM PAGE 12

"He's improved every year," Calipari said. "He's been an integral part of our team."

Anderson, an economics major, is unsure of his plans after he graduates, but said they might include graduate school. "I think I'll find a beach," he said. "It's been a long four years."

John Tate, who spends most of his court time leaning on opponents under the basket, huddling his teammates or consoling the referees, has been an important part in the resurgence of UMass basketball.

Tate has been one of the team's top rebounders since he began coming off the bench his sophomore year. He has led the Minutemen in rebounds eight times this season and had a career-high 14 at Vermont.

"I never expected John to be a good player," Calipari said. "But, I didn't get a chance to measure his heart. He plays with a lot of enthusiasm, and a lot of emotion."

"I really didn't have any expectations basketball-wise," said Tate, a Pittsburgh native. "I just wanted to play."

Tate, a history major, doesn't have any definite plans after receiving his diploma, but said he may attend graduate school.

Grodski, an occasional starter his first two seasons, saw his playing time reduced because of a hip injury last year. Grodski said he has learned to accept his supporting role.

"I don't feel less important because I wasn't statistically a factor," said the Riverhead, N.Y. native. "I still feel important in other roles and that's all that really matters."

"Ben has been such a great leader," Calipari said. "And I think the other guys look up to him for his work ethic."

Grodski, a pre-med major, has been busy applying to medical schools and is also considering teaching.

Giles is a crowd favorite for his timely threes and court control. Giles' 3-pointer at the buzzer in overtime against Rhode Island a few weeks ago was the game-winner and made him the 18th Minuteman to eclipse the 1,000-point mark.

"Rafer's really done so much for the program as far as his attitude and courage on the floor," Calipari said. "Just his demeanor around campus has been a positive thing for our program."

"UMass is what he needed to make him a better person," said Giles' mother, Edith, who flew up from her Richmond, Va. home to attend Saturday's game.

Giles said he hopes to take his sport management degree to law school.

"Since I've been here it's been fun," he said. "I hate to leave it, but I think I'm ready to go home, too."

CLASSIFIEDS

COME TO THE COLLEGIAN OFFICE—CC 113 MON — THURS 8:30-3:30 ● DEADLINE 2 DAYS PRIOR TO PUBLICATION ● CASH IN ADVANCE, 20¢/WORD/DAY FOR STUDENTS

ACTIVITIES

FIRST INVESTMENT CLUB MEETING: Dean Witter Program. Member Stock Contest, bring stock ideas Tuesday, 2/19/91, SBA106 7pm, New members welcome

LECTURE NARCO-TERRORISM: The Politics of International Drug Trafficking Mertin Lee Author of ACID DREAMS Tues Feb 19 at 8:00 SUB

RUSH THETA CHI
Best on cmpus location, best in house meals by our chef Jim, pool table/foozi/hoops/volleyball, cheaper then dorms- Univ. approved housing, recently remodeled entire house, large electronic entertainment center, sun deck, antiion renderings by Weltmanx National Merit Scholar), tightest brotherhood on campus, lifelong friends, stop by to see what you've been missing!
RUSH THETA CHI DATES
Tue Feb 12 Pinnochio's Pizza Night
Thu Feb 14 Buffalo Wings Night
Tue Feb 19 Billiards and Foot Night
Thu Feb 21 Mexican Night
All events in house 7:30-9:00
496 No. Pleasant St. (right next to Newman Ctr.)

UMASS TRIATHLON CLUB meeting tonight, Boyden 249. 6:30. Race news, workout schedule. All are welcome. 6-3324 for info.

ANNOUNCEMENTS

200 EXTRAS NEEDED
For Union Video Center art video called Right Through the Wall. Shoot will happen Sunday March 3rd. Sign up through Union Video Center (545-1336) or Tracy at 586-4318. If you believe in dreams, we need you.

BED AND BREAKFAST- downtown ideal for visiting parents and friends- 549-0733.

DELTA UPSILON WELCOMES all university men to open rush. Dates to remember: FEB 11,12,14,18,19,21

DRUM-award winning Black Arts and Literature magazine-now accepting submissions. 115 NAH

EARN AS MUCH as $1000 organizing white water rafting trips in Maine and New York for Unicorn Expeditions. You bring the people and we take care of everything else. Call 1-800-Unicorn for details

PHI ALPHA THETA Int'l History Honors Society accepting applications from new members. Info-applications in History office Herter. Deadline 2/26

TRI-SIGMA OPEN RUSH!
Tuesday 2/19 through Monday 2/25
Call 549-3811 for information or come by 387 N. Pleasant St.

TRI-SIGMA OPEN RUSH
Tuesday 2/19 through 2/25
Call 549-3811 for information!!

SHLOCK ROCK CONCERT tomorrow night sponsored by Hillel, popular rock'n'roll music with Jewish themes. Be there or be square! CCA 8:00 Admission

VALLEY WOMEN'S VOICE, monthly feminist paper, invites interested women to join meeting Wednesday Feb. 20 5pm SU 321

AUTO FOR SALE

1981 CITATION Mechanically sound body damaged parts or fixit $150 253-4057

ESTABLISH CREDIT

DISCOVER CARDS
No cost to apply
Call Mark 546-4814
Leave message

FOR RENT

AMHERST, 1 BEDROOM AVAILABLE IN 3 BEDROOM, NEW HOUSE ON BUS LINE. FIREPLACE. BEAUTIFUL!! AVAILABLE NOW CALL 8-4, 665-3328

AMHERST, 1 BEDROOM available in two bedroom apartment, 10 minute walk to UMass, $200 immediate opening 549-8273

AMHERST CENTER, quiet room, bus, walk UMass -$275- laundry, utilities included -549-0484

FRIDGE RENTALS CALL R + P 253-9742

WINTER SPECIAL: 1 month rent .99 cents with one year lease
2 bedroom- $450
3 bedroom- $537
Sunderland. Free bus route, laundry facilities, swimming pool, garden plots, short term lease available.
665-3856.

FOR SALE

AEROSMITH BACKSTAGE PASSES
TOUR 1991
Call for details 546-2396
Reasonable prices

BABY IGUANA EASY care complete set up Cheap 253-3904

FUTONS
Metawampe
For all your futon needs
Available anywhere in U.S.A.
Great to sleep on with your sexy valentine
Call to order
1-900-3FUTON1

SONY 13" COLOR TV, cable-ready, great picture, perfect for dorm. $70/BO 665-2831

FOUND

CD DISC. Call MJ or leave a message 665-7336

FOUND: CAMERA & SHOES
Call 546-5838 Eves

HAT
At Haigus Mall
Call Matthew 253-7699

HELP WANTED

DON'T GET A JOB —Get a business! Student painters offers highly motivated students practical experiance and earnings averaging $5,000-7000 for the summer. Please call 1-800-922-5579.

EARN $300 to $500 per week reading books at home -Call 1-615-473-7440 Ext. B-281

INTELLIGENCE JOBS. All brenches US Customs, DEA ect. Now hiring. Call 1-805-962-8000 Ext. K-9616.

NEWSPAPER DELIVERERS NEEDED in UMASS dorms. No car required. 7-8am 7 days/week. Call 253-7009.

ON-CAMPUS FUNDRAISER
Needed: Organized and Industrious fraternity, sorority, or student group to earn hundreds of dollars for an on-campus marketing project.
CALL 1-800-NOW-POST

SMALL VERMONT CAMP for girls seeks committed counselors in horsemanship, wilderness trips, watersports, photography /video, and more. Sherry Osborn, Camp Catherine Caspers 25 Shewmut Ave Apt UM Wayland MA 01778 (508)650-1866

INSTRUCTION

EARN CREDIT learn to Scuba Dive. Basic Classes held Monday, Tuesday, Wednesday, and Thursday 7-10PM in Curry Hicks Pool. Open Water II class held during Spring Break in Key Largo, FLA. Advanced Class held in New England in April. For further information call 549-8401, or drop by Curry Hicks starting 2/4/91

LOST

HP 15-C CALCULATOR lost either Etab or Worcester DC. Please call 8-6187. Thanks.

I LOST MY WATCH!!
12/12 in Boyden women's locker room. Black leather strap, black face w/gold. If found please call 549-8026

LOST
At Career Day
Black Leather Coat
Reward
Call 546-3942

WINTER PARKER
Light blue. Brand name Gerry. Last seen Boyden Rm 251. Please call 8-1937.

PERSONALS

DAVID F.
Thank you very much for being the best brother in the world. I hope you enjoyed UMass. Please visit again!
Love, Stephanie

DEBBY S- Hey woman, hope you had a great birthday
Love you.
The Lawyer, The Twin, and The Roommate

HAPPY 21st BIRTHDAY MARGO! Get ready to celebrate your real birthday! We'll show the bimbos at Barsie's how to really party! Love Ya -Nicole

JILL
I heard Jordans was having a sale. Teracota -buy 1 get 8 free! You're psyched.
Love, Edith

K- HAPPY 21st!!! -Squirrel P.S. I hope you've recovered from Saturday!

KARA NICHOLS:
The countdown is finally over -so shut up and drink, BIMBO! Happy 21st! We love you!
-KKSN

PEEJ
VOUVRAY! This is late! How unlike me-NOT! One more try? I didn't know how much I loved you. Happy V-day Bebe and thank you.
The Wookster
P.S. Happy Birthday -Again!

SCOTT—Well you should pat yourself on the back for putting up with me for 3 whole years! I know I haven't exactly been the easiest person to get along with and I appreciate your patience, (although you haven't been an angel either!) I'm looking forward to many more years of bickering! Happy Anniversary!
Love, Mine

TO ALL OF you who made my 20th birthday awesome-Thank You! You guys are the best--Love Always Lauren

TURK
Happy belated birthday, belated Valentine's Day, and belated Chinese New Year. I'm sorry, I'm a bum, but you love me anyway, and I love you.
Damage Inc.

RESUME SERVICE

PERSONALIZED CONSULTATION or laser printing of your original 549-0367

RIDE WANTED

FREE TANK OF GAS! Ride to Fitchburg State on Rt. 2 needed any Friday of this semester. Greg 253-9949

ROOMMATE WANTED

ROOMMATE NEEDED FOR one open bedroom in Squire Village townhouse. Male or female for $165/month. On bus route. Call Stephenie or Lesley anytime at 665-4090

SERVICES

AEROBICS NAUTILUS STAIRMASTERS Lifecycles, freeweights, treadmill, gravitron, step-classes, karate.
Amherst Athletic Club. 256-0080

DIRT CHEAP RESUMES
Counseling, overnight laserprinting
$25, Lisa or Charlie- 665-2831

PREGNANT?
Need a pregnancy test, information or support? Call for free and confidential services. ALTERNATIVES 33 Main Street Northampton 586-3000 or Greenfield 774-6010

PROFESSIONAL CHEF LOOKING FOR WORK
Culinary school graduate with 7 years experience looking for private catering and/or fraternity/sorority feeding. Call Weyne at 6-6292

SKI TUNES
Wax Ptex
Only $5 for both
Call 546-7212 Rob

CLUB MED
Enjoy your spring break!!
Added value with each booking
Call RENDEZVOUS TRAVEL
1-800-336-1002

SPRING BREAK TO DAYTONA!
Travel with YANKEE LINE TOURS via deluxe motorcoach March 15-24, 1991.
* Campus pick-up and drop-off!
* First class hotel accommodations!
* Best location, excellent nightlife!
* Only $259.00 (quad occ)
For more info contact Scott
(413) 256-0029
Reserve your spot before it's too late!

* * * * * * *

FLORIDA'S NEWEST
HOT SPOT
Panama City-$139

World's Biggest Beach
PARTY
Daytona Beach-$189
Call Erika + Julie at 546-2649
or Siobhan + Terri at 546-5079

VOUCHER TWA -Book before Feb 22 $400-for $200 -Tel 535-2306

WAKE-N-BAKE!!! Spring Break '91!!
Jamaica from $429.00
Cancun from $399.00
A week of fun and sun! The hottest destinations 1-800-426-7710.

TYPING

CHEAP RATES, fast, accurate, dependable, campus pickup and delivery. Adam 253-9117

WORDPROCESSING, FAST, $1.45/page -549-0484

WANTED

CASH FOR GOLD. Unwanted jewlery? Necklaces, watches, rings. We buy anything containing gold. Call 548-3399

TIMBER LAKE CAMPS located in NY's Catskill Mountains seek General Counselors, Athletic Instructors, and WSI's. On-campus interviews. Top salaries/travel allowance. 800-828-CAMP (9-4:30 Weekdays)

WE WANT TO take over your house lease for next year starting in June or August. Call 549-7133

SPORTS

UMass hits stride, 73-64

Collegian photo by Carrie Wyeth

Jim McCoy (20), whose jumper has returned to form in UMass' last two games, scored 25 points in UMass' 73-64 win over Penn State Saturday at the Cage.

By SAM SILVERSTEIN
Collegian Staff

With Saturday's 73-64 defeat of Penn State at the Cage, the University of Massachusetts men's basketball team is on a genuine roll heading into Thursday's Temple game.

The win was UMass' second straight in the Atlantic 10 and raised the Minutemen above the logjam in the middle of the A-10 standings into third place at 16-8 (9-6 in the league.)

The Minutemen held Penn State to 39 percent shooting in the second half, hung on at game's end as the Nittany Lions stayed within range, and got an extraordinary performance from Jim McCoy.

"[The last two games] might be the first full team efforts we've had all year," John Tate said. "It was fun. I think teams are in trouble now. We're all looking forward to Temple."

"The guys are accepting their roles and coming together as a team," coach John Calipari said. "If we can continue to do that we'll be fine."

McCoy made 12 of 15 shots — including 10 straight from the end of the first half into the second — and finished with a game-high 25 points.

In his last two games, including UMass' 98-89 win at West Virginia last week, McCoy has made 21 of 27 shots (77.7 percent) and scored 48 points.

McCoy said his father noticed a few flaws in his shot after last weekend's Duquesne game in hometown Pittsburgh.

"I wasn't holding my follow through and I was jumping too high. I've worked on controlling my jump, and it has worked," explained McCoy, who was weakend by a virus early in the season said he just recently began feeling "a lot better."

CONTINUED ON PAGE 11

Hoop seniors bid Cage fond farewell

By BRETT MORRIS
Collegian Correspondent

A capacity Curry Hicks Cage crowd gave a standing ovation sendoff to the four graduating seniors of the University of Massachusetts men's basketball team before Saturday night's UMass-Penn State game.

John Tate, Rafer Giles, Matt Anderson and Ben Grodski will play their last home game in a Minuteman uniform Thursday against Temple. Each was honored Saturday night by their teammates, coaches, relatives and fans as they exchanged flowers, gifts and hugs at center court.

The celebration didn't end with the pre-game ceremony. Coach John Calipari rewarded all four seniors with a starting spot, again bringing the zealous crowd to its feet.

The four, along with Will Herndon, played more than three minutes together and built a 5-0 lead.

Each displayed the individual talents they've developed during their four years in Amherst. In those three minutes, Anderson's aggressive play, Grodski's hustle, Tate's enforcement of the paint and Giles' coolness and control were all apparent.

Anderson, a key reserve throughout his four years, will leave Amherst known for his assertive play and dauntless attitude. Anderson, with his game-face on, took the first shot Saturday night and played four solid minutes.

"I'm happy with the program and I'm glad I had something to do with it," said the Brewster, N.Y. native. "I hope I've contributed by making someone else better. I think I've made it as far as I could."

CONTINUED ON PAGE 11

Women swim to third in NE

By CHRIS MIRACLE
Collegian Staff

The University of Massachusetts women's swimming team hoped for a better performance, but is happy finishing third at this past weekend's New England Women's Intercollegiate Swimming and Diving Associations Individual Championships at Orono, Maine.

Boston College lived up to as the team to beat, winning with 597 points. Northeastern University (436.5) edged the Minutewomen for second (428).

"Whoever finished second gained the moral victory," UMass coach Bob Newcomb said.

The Minutewomen, besides placing third, also achieved some personal bests and two school records during the three-day event.

Among the standards broken were freshman Allison White in the one-meter dive with 525.5 points and freshman Kim Broad in the 400 individual medley (4:42.24).

"We didn't swim awesome, but we didn't swim poorly either," Newcomb said. "If we swam awesome, we would have placed second."

Highlights from the first day of events include a third place by the Minutewomen in the 200-yard freestyle relay. The team of Keira Cruz, Beth Wadick, Kim Morin, and Denise Reimer combined for a time of 1:40.36.

In the 500 freestyle, Kim Broad placed fourth (5:12.93) while Jen Jackson finished ninth in 5:13.88. In the 200 individual medley relay, Kiri Binning posted a time of 2:11.80 and Laurie Schwarz took 16th in 2:18.88.

The three-meter dive was a bright spot for the Minutewomen as White placed second, accumulating 372.80 points. "Allison dove great," Newcomb said. "She proved how good she can be."

On Saturday, the Minutewomen swam well enough to take third in the 200 medley relay (1:53.64). Jen Saunders finished sixth (4:50.87).

In the 100 backstroke, Barbara Banks finished sixth with a time of 1:02.48.

Women's gymnastics routs S.Conn.

By LYNN FRANKEL
Collegian Correspondent

In its second road trip of the season, the University of Massachusetts women's gymnastics team crushed Southern Connecticut 183.45 to 179.65 Saturday.

"It was a big win," said Mitchell, whose team won all the events. Mitchell said UMass performed with confidence and appears to be ready for this weekend's big meet with Temple.

Sophomore Tammy Marshall tied the UMass record in the all-around with a 38.35.

Marshall also grabbed a first on the vault with a 9.6, bars (9.45), beam (9.7) and floor (9.6).

Freshman Margaret Furtado placed second in the all-around with a 37.05. Furtado also finished behind Marshall on the bars with a 9.25, and placed third on the beam with a 9.4.

Furtado tied for third with teammate Erin Kleir on the floor with a 9.4.

Kleir also placed third in the all-around with a 36.4. Sophomore Lisa Beth Cronen added points to the team's all-around score with her performance on the vault, bars, and floor exercise.

The Minutewomen will host Atlantic 10 rival Temple and Northeastern Sunday, Feb. 24 at Boyden. The meet will start at 1 p.m.

Temple tix

Student tickets for Thursday's UMass-Temple men's basketball game will be distributed today at the Cage between 12:30 p.m. and 5 p.m. One ticket will be given to each student with a valid student ID.

To guarantee a general admission seat in the student section, students with tickets must be at the Cage Thursday by 7 p.m. Cage doors will open at 5:30 p.m. Tipoff is 7:30 p.m.

Students will need to show their student ID with their ticket to enter the Cage.

Minutewomen gain in loss

By GREG SUKIENNIK
Collegian Staff

The lopsided score was expected, and results weren't entirely disastrous.

Though the University of Massachusetts women's basketball team (0-23 overall, 0-15 Atlantic-10 Conference) was drubbed 94-45 by Penn State 23-1 (14-1 in the Atlantic 10), it realized some positive goals that will carry the Minutewomen into tonight's game at Rhode Island (7:30 p.m.) with a chance to pick up that still-elusive first win of the season.

"We felt good about the things we were able to get done on the floor," said coach Cathy Hewelt. "We were playing the No. 2 team in the country on the road, and we jumped out to an 8-2 lead and forced them to call a time-out. That's not a regular occurence when Penn State plays Massachusetts in women's basketball."

Indeed, UMass stunned the 3,212 Nittany Lion fans assembled for the team's last home game by leaping out to a six-point lead in the first three minutes. Maleeka Valentine started the ball rolling with a drive to the hoop. Kim Kristofik chipped in two consecutive lay-ups, and Keyburn McCusker added a layup for good measure to make the score 8-2.

Then Penn State showed up for work, taking the lead back and, according to Hewelt, slapping on a full-court man-to-man press that shook up the Minutewomen.

"Their press gave us some difficulty in the first half, and that allowed them the chance to get into their offensive rhythm," Hewelt said.

UMass stayed within 10 points until late in the first half, when Penn State's Dana Eikenberg nailed two three-pointers to push the lead to 14. A Jenny Kretchmar 3-point heave with 20 seconds left closed the first half scoring at 50-26, Nittany Lions.

Penn State pulled away in the second half, blowing a 24-point lead into a 40-point lead in the first 10 minutes. Kathy Phillips and Susan Robinson scored 14 points during a 22-6 Nittany Lion run that erased all doubt about the outcome.

However, Hewelt noted that the team did accomplish its goals of holding Penn State under 100 points, scoring more than 40, and generally not being intimidated by a team with the potential to win a national championship.

"We were bound and determined not to be intimidated by this team as we were the first time we played them, and we came out guns-a-blazing," Hewelt said. McCusker led UMass with 20 points.

Which leads to tonight's matchup in Kingston, R.I., against Rhode Island. The WRams (yes, their real name) have had a season which roughly parallels UMass', posting a record of 5-18 (1-13 in the A-10).

If UMass is to beat a team this year, this is the team to beat.

"The key for us is to keep our composure," Hewelt said. The WRams will double and triple-team the Minutewomen to counter UMass' height advantage, she said.

"We'll try to get good ball movement and try to be patient on offense — that's key for us," Hewelt said. "They know our strength is inside and they'll be trying to take that away from us, so what we have to do is not settle for the outside jumper."

After tonight's game in Kingston R.I., the Minutewomen will face Temple and Rhode Island at home.

Collegian file photo

In holding nationally-ranked Penn State under 100 points, the UMass women's hoop grabbed some encouragement.

Largest College Daily in New England

THE MASSACHUSETTS DAILY COLLEGIAN Established in 1890

VOLUME C WEDNESDAY, FEBRUARY 20, 1991 ISSUE 85

Body of protester identified

Man who set himself on fire son of Globe columnists

By MEREDITH O'BRIEN
Collegian Staff

Springfield medical examiners yesterday used dental records to confirm the identity of a 30-year-old man who died Monday afternoon after setting himself on fire at the Amherst Town Common.

Gregory D. Levey, a former University of Massachusetts student, held a "Peace" sign as he doused himself with paint thinner and twice tried to light himself on fire. Although Levey taped his Massachusetts driver's license to the sign, police said they wanted to wait until completion of the autopsy and for the next of kin to be contacted before releasing his identity.

Levey was the son of Boston Globe restaurant reviewer Robert Levey, and the stepson of Pulitzer Prize winning columnist Ellen Goodman, both of Brookline.

The parents could not be reached, but Globe spokesperson Richard Gulla said, "We at the Globe extend our deepest sympathies to Robert Levey and Ellen Goodman."

Levey, who graduated from UMass in 1984 with a Bachelor's degree in English, lived alone in Amherst. Police said he worked as a substitute teacher at the South Hadley branch of the Hampshire Educational Collaborative. No one could be reached for comment from the Collaborative at press time.

Police said they are still trying to find evidence to link him to any peace or anti-war organizations.

Amherst Detective Michael Kent said police found "nothing noteworthy" in the search of Levey's home, at 33 Kendrick Place, linking him to any peace groups.

Lt. Edward Harrington, who heads the Northampton Crime Prevention and Control Unit, said he is treating the situation as a suicide, adding that he will continue the investigation and try to determine why Levey immolated himself.

At approximately 1:53 p.m. Monday, Levey poured two one-gallon containers of paint thinner on himself, lit a match, which went out, then lit a second one which resulted in a fireball engulfing his body.

A police officer was on the scene immediately and put the flames out with a fire extinguisher, after several witnesses on the common had attempted to put out the flames with their coats.

Police said the witnesses were too far away from Levey to prevent him from lighting the second match.

University of Massachusetts students reacted with shock at news of the immolation.

"Why? I just don't understand," said Julie Ostrobinski, a junior management major. "I think it was a bold statement, too bold. It's very sad. It's horrible."

Eric Long, junior Hotel Restaurant Travel Administration major said he thought Levey went too far with his political statement. "Someone doesn't have to die to get his point across."

Collegian staff member Tamir Lipton contributed to this article.

People hold vigil in honor of protestor

While flags on the Amherst Town Common flew at half staff, approximately 100 people holding candles gathered yesterday for a silent vigil at the site of Gregory Levey's death.

Holding a "Peace" sign, Levey doused himself with two one-gallon containers of paint thinner and set himself on fire Monday afternoon on the Amherst Town Common.

Jennifer Cannon, a University of Massachusetts junior who honored Levey's death by spending Monday night on the common with three other students, tried to emphasize the importance of Levy's sacrifice.

"He made a statement in favor of peace," she said, "I believe his life was not wasted. I have seen all sorts of community members dialoging about this, people are finally feeling the war on an emotional level." At one point, the silence of the vigil was interrupted by a man who asked the crowd what Levey's sacrifice meant to them. His question sparked pro- and anti-war sentiments among people in the crowd, although many told him the vigil was not the place to discuss political issues.

Darren Shupe, an Amherst College junior who also spent Monday night on the common, expressed his regret that the vigil became politicized.

"We are holding this vigil to foster an awareness of what happened here," Shupe said. "We don't want people to get embroiled over issues, there are more appropriate forums for that."

— MARK HENSLEY

Chomsky raps Cold War, thought control at series

• U.S. blamed for Cold War

By ELIZABETH BUTTS
Collegian Correspondent

Noam Chomsky, a leading radical commentator on U.S. foreign policy, spoke Monday night on "The Cold War: Fact and Fancy," at the LeFrak Gymanasium at Amherst College.

Chomsky, saying the dominant understanding of the Cold War is one of a confrontation between the United States and the Soviet Union, outlined two approaches and understandings of the Cold War.

In this confrontation between two superpowers, Chomsky said Soviet aggression is contained by the United States while the Soviet Union is viewed as a "nightmare" and the United States is the "container of freedom."

According to this argument, "The very existence of the Soviet Union represents aggression," Chomsky said, rendering all U.S. action inherently defensive.

This dualistic, good-bad, noble-evil (U.S.-Soviet) opposition, Chomsky said, "has the childlike simplicity of a fairy tale."

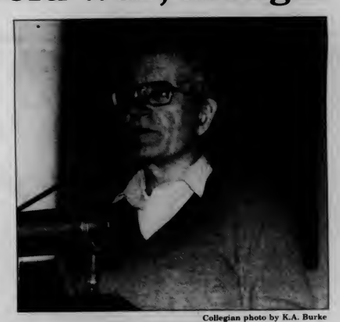
In the face of these dualities, argued Chomsky, "fact is an irrelevance," and behind these dualities is the idea that coexistence with other countries is implausible. The United States must have complete control, Chomsky said.

One approach to the Cold War holds that the United States has a history of worldwide aggression and state terrorism pursued out of a need to protect and promote U.S. trade, Chomsky said. This trade is threatened by other countries' nationalism, he added.

Chomsky said that, regardless of differences throughout the U.S. political system, which he called "miniscule," political powers, regardless of party, have pursued a foreign policy which deliberately failed to reduce the threat of superpower conflict in order to enhance national security.

He cited as evidence Soviet reductions in arms in 1960

CONTINUED ON PAGE 4



Collegian photo by K.A. Burke

Noam Chomsky

• 'Public kept in its place'

By MADANMOHAN RAO
Collegian Staff

Renowned linguist and critic of U.S. foreign policy Noam Chomsky, professor at Massachusetts Institute of Technology, addressed nearly 400 people last night at Amherst College, during the second of a two-part Corliss Lamont series of lectures.

Chomsky, in his talk entitled "Force and Opinion, expounded on thought control in free societies like the United States. "American society is probably the freest society in the world," Chomsky said. "We have a literal commitment to the freedom of speech."

However, the control of thought is more important for free and popular governments than for despotic governments, Chomsky said.

"The public must be kept in its place. If the state lacks force, and the public makes its voice heard, then it must be ensured that the public says the right thing," Chomsky said. "The ignorant masses need to be prevented from interfering in public affairs. Rights and freedoms can be granted to people — but within reason."

The revival of political life and political thought in the 1960s was perceived by the privileged elite as an excess of democracy, and therefore an impending crisis of democracy, Chomsky explained.

"The rabble could not be allowed to fall victim to their own depraved judgements and thus get control of the community," he said. "This attitude of keeping the rascal

CONTINUED ON PAGE 4

U.S. rejects Soviet peace proposal

By NEIL MACFARQUHAR
Associated Press Writer

DHAHRAN, Saudi Arabia — As the allies marshaled land, sea and air forces for a possible all-out assault on Iraqi forces, President Bush yesterday declared that a Soviet plan for ending the Persian Gulf War fell short of U.S. expectations.

The Soviets said it was not up to Bush to accept or reject the peace plan because it was offered to Iraq.

There was no pause in the air war yesterday, and concern grew over Iraqi mines in northern gulf after it was disclosed that a mine blast had disabled a billion-dollar warship, the biggest U.S. material loss of the war.

The U.S. military reported yesterday that another American warplane was lost in combat. Marine Brig. Gen. Richard Neal said the fate of the pilot of the A-10 attack plane was not known.

Baghdad came under repeated bombardment overnight, the heaviest onslaught in several days, AP correspondent John Rice reported from the Iraqi capital. Black clouds of smoke drifted over the city, and streaks of red-and-white anti-aircraft fire illuminated the night sky, he said.

Iraqi Foreign Minister Tariq Aziz took the Soviet peace plan home to Baghdad yesterday from Moscow, where Soviet President Mikhail S. Gorbachev offered the proposal Monday. The Soviet plan is said to include a guarantee that Saddam Hussein can stay in power if he pulls his armies out of Kuwait now.

Iraq offered Friday to pull out of Kuwait, but the offer was rejected by the allies because of conditions attached.

Bush, at a picture-taking session in the White House yesterday, appeared to reject the Soviet peace proposal.

"As far as I'm concerned, there are no negotiations, no concessions," the president said, adding he had conveyed his opinions of the plan to Gorbachev.

Bush noted Gorbachev had asked him to keep details of the plan confidential and said, "I'm going to do that."

"I will respect that request in the interests of thoroughly exploring the initiative," the president said. "But, very candidly. . .while expressing appreciation for sending it to us, it falls well short of what would be required."

In London, British Prime Minister John Major echoed Bush's sentiments, telling Parliament "nothing has yet happened which would incline us to agree to a cease-fire or pause in the conflict."

Soviet Foreign Minister Alexander Bessmertnykh said in Moscow it was not up to Bush to reject the Kremlin peace initiative.

"That plan was addressed to the Iraqi leadership, so he rejected the plan which did not belong to him," Bessmertnykh told reporters.

The Soviet foreign minister, in an address to lawmakers, said the situation was "too delicate" to detail the Kremlin peace plan. However, he indicated the proposal

CONTINUED ON PAGE 2

INSIDE:

WEDNESDAY, FEBRUARY 20, 1991

Page 3:
An Amherst fire claims its second victim as a former UMass student dies.

Page 5:
Columnist Gayle Long says wearing yellow ribbons doesn't mean you're pro-war

Page 8:
Mothers discuss the difficulties of breastfeeding

WEATHER

Don't walk too close to the road! Temps in the 50s will make awful slush puddles! Tonight will be nippy, lows in the 20s.

THE MASSACHUSETTS
DAILY COLLEGIAN

New England's largest college daily newspaper. Circulation: 19,000. Published every weekday during the calendar semester. The Massachusetts Daily Collegian is a Registered Student Organization of the University of Massachusetts.

113 Campus Center, Amherst, MA, 01003
Phone (413) 545-3500 FAX (413) 545-1592

STAFF

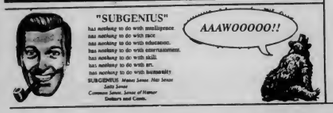
Editor in Chief ..... Terry Starmer
Managing Editor ..... Jody Gabin
Editorial Editor ..... Jeremy Levinson
News Editor ..... Gayle Long
Sports Editor ..... Adrien Matt
Arts Editor ..... Danielle Dowling
Photography Editor ..... K.A. Burke
Black Affairs Editor ..... Sondra Sutton
Women's Issues Editors ..... Risa Kelly, Monique Tabon
Multicultural Affairs Editor ..... Alexander Nguyen
Third World Affairs Editor ..... Pratip Dasgupta
Lesbian, Bisexual, Gay Issues Editor ..... Trystan Skeigh
Business Manager ..... Susan George
Advertising Manager ..... Dave Melnick
Finance Manager ..... Beth Patterson
Circulation Manager ..... Jim Winterbottom
Subscriptions Manager ..... Stacey Rogers
Promotions Manager ..... Marc Pruskin
Production Manager ..... Nicole Dumas
Day Graphics Manager ..... Jenn Burns

PROFESSIONAL STAFF

Business ..... Brian Harrington, Lori Black, Maureen Majerowski
Graphics ..... Rory Evans

TODAY'S STAFF

Night Editor ..... Meredith O'Brien
Copy Editor ..... Pam McCarthy
Layout Technician ..... Mike Carvalho
Photo Technician ..... K.A. Burke
Production Supervisor ..... Mike Carvalho
Typesetter ..... Danielle Dowling
Production ..... Seth Kaye, Jen Fatkin, Mark Sturm



For Your Information

WEDNESDAY, FEBRUARY 20

Schlock Rock Concert — A rock 'n roll with Jewish themes concert will be held in the Campus Center Auditorium at 8 p.m. The concert is sponsored by the Jewish Arts Festival. Admission is free.

Information Meeting — An informational meeting for all Early Childhood Education students planning on student teaching in Fall 1991 semester is scheduled for 6 p.m. in Room 22, Furcolo Hall.

Day of Education — A Gulf War Day of Education will be held in the Cape Cod Lounge from 10 a.m. to 5 p.m. The day is sponsored by the Faculty and Staff for Peace and Justice in the Middle East.

Volunteer Fair — A volunteer fair will be held from 11 a.m. to 2:30 p.m. in CC 163. The fair is sponsored by VIBES, the Undergraduate Business Club, the Mather Career Center and Human Kindness Outreach.

Brown Bag Lunch Series — "Picturing the past: Studying Clothing through Portrayals" will be discussed in the Brown Bag Lunch series in CC 904-908 at 12:15 p.m. The series is sponsored by the Women's Studies department.

Panel Discussion — A panel discussion, "An update on the Persian Gulf Crisis," will be held at 8 p.m. in Thompson 102. The discussion is sponsored by the Five College Program in Peace and World Security Studies.

Information Meeting — The summer studies program to Dijon, France will have a questions session at 5 p.m. in Herter 301.

THURSDAY, FEBRUARY 21

Forum — The Research Council will have a Forum on Current Research Issues, co-sponsored by the Advanced Study in the Humanities from 4-6 p.m. in CC 917.

Recycling Program — Residential Recycling education volunteers will meet at 6:30 p.m. in CC 902, and promotion volunteers will meet in CV 902 at 8 p.m.

Coffee House — An informal reading of various poetry and prose will take place in the first floor of Field dorm at 8 p.m.

Information Session — For students interested in spending a summer in Oxford, England, there will be an important information session at 7:30 p.m. in Bartlett 206. Students can earn up to eight credits while living at Trinity College in Oxford.

SATURDAY, FEBRUARY 23

Read-out — Writers and Artists for Peace in the Middle East are sponsoring a "Read out against the war" event at the Grace Episcopal Church, 16 Spring Street, Amherst from 2-5 p.m.

March — A march for peace will take place from the Hampshire College bus stop to Westover Air Force Base. Marchers will meet at 9 a.m. at the Hampshire College bus stop.

SUNDAY, FEBRUARY 24

Peace Vigil — A vigil for peace in the Middle East on the Amherst Common from 12-1 p.m.

Informal reception — An informal reception for women of African, Asian, Latino and Native American decent will be at 5 p.m. in the Van Meter Lounge. R.S.V.P. 545-4209 or 549-1224. There will be good food, music, a mime performance, and networking for a new group.

Workshop — A workshop on Interfaith Marriage and Relationships will be led by Rabbi Rachel Cowan from 2-5 p.m. in the Neilson Library Browsing Room of Smith College.

■ Soviet peace plan nixed

CONTINUED FROM PAGE 1

called for a withdrawal of Iraqi troops.

Bessmertnykh did not directly link settling the war with Israeli withdrawal from the occupied territories — as Iraq has demanded — but he told lawmakers: "The events in the Persian Gulf give a serious impulse for quickening the tempo for solving all Middle Eastern problems. There is a change in the psychological mood."

Kuwaiti Foreign Minister Sheik Sabah al-Ahmed was quoted as saying his government will not negotiate with Iraq even if Saddam's forces withdraw. "We will not hold talks or negotiations after withdrawal, neither with the present nor with a new Iraqi leadership," Al-Ittihad, a newspaper in the United Arab Emirates, quoted the Kuwaiti minister as saying.

At a Red Crescent distribution center in Baghdad yesterday, thousands of people crowded around five trucks that brought pita bread from Jordan. Dr. Ibrahim al-Nouri, head of the Iraqi Red Crescent, appealed for more international aid, saying medicine and food are in extremely short supply.

An Iraqi military communique broadcast by Baghdad radio said allied air raids hit 65 civilian targets and 179 military targets in the past 24 hours. It said the "barbaric raids" had not demoralized the Iraqi public.

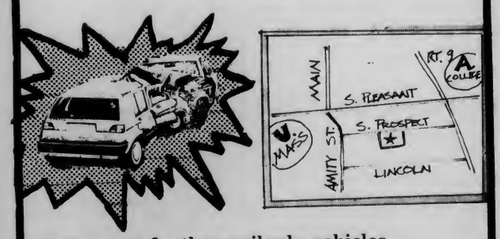
In the war zone, allied forces worked on land, sea and air to strip Iraqi forces of the will and the means to fight.

In northern Saudi Arabia, U.S. troops repositioned themselves, seeking to keep the Iraqis guessing.

STEINBECK COLLISION REPAIR
& AUTOBODY

53 So. Prospect — Amherst Center
256-8157 256-1385

Shop Registration # RS1212



- Imports & other unibody vehicles are our specialty
- State of art equipment for precision frame and unibody straightening (+ or - ½ mm)
- Over 90 years staff experience
- Accepted by all insurance companies for collision repair or glass replacement
- Advanced European Technology Painting and Refinishing Systems

REMEMBER it's your car and your choice of repair facilities

UMASS SKI CLUB

SKI KILLINGTON!!

with the UMass Ski Club
on Saturday, February 23.
Sign up on the Concourse
or in the Ski Club Office
430 Student Union
Only $35

430 Student Union 545-3437

LOCAL

Fire takes second victim, dies of thermal injuries

By TAMIR LIPTON
Collegian Staff

A second victim in the fire that swept through the top story and attic of a house Sunday on North Pleasant Street died yesterday of thermal injuries with complications, said a spokesperson from the Suffolk Medical Examiner's office.

Matthew Peterson, 22, a Framingham resident and a former University of Massachusetts student, was pronounced dead early yesterday morning at the Bay State Medical Center in Springfield.

Peterson was found in a second floor bedroom by firefighters at the two-alarm blaze Sunday morning. The Northampton Ambulance and Critical Response Intervention Team resuscitated him en route to Cooley Dickenson Hospital after he was removed from the house.

Joseph Pirog, 22, a University of Massachusetts chemistry student from Arlington, died in the fire "apparently of smoke inhalation," according to Trooper Jay Bowman of the State Fire Marshall's office.

Two other residents were treated for smoke inhalation at local hospitals.

The fire started when a cigarette ignited a chair in the second-floor living room at about 6:20 a.m., Bowman said.

The building contained no smoke detectors, according to fire officials.

The Town of Amherst recently passed a fire code requiring smoke detectors in apartment buildings. However, owners are not required to comply until May of this year.

The landlord of the building, George Ray of Middlebury, Conn., could not be reached for comment yesterday.

Al Wynne, a UMass Analytical Chemistry professor, called Pirog's death a tragedy.

"He was a good student and a nice guy," Wynne said.

Amherst Fire Chief Victor Zumbruski said one firefighter pulled a muscle in his back during the fire.

Collegian photo by Paul Langdon

REFLECTIONS — Dance major Erika Trubounis practices her routines at the Old Chapel.

Politicians differ on how to save Mass. economy

By JOHN DIAMOND
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON — Call it the hangover of the Massachusetts miracle.

Public officials here and in Massachusetts — Democratic and Republican, liberal and conservative — are engaged in a debate over how much government can do to revive the slumping Bay State economy.

Elected officials have proposed legislation, lobbied Bush administration officials, sought pork-barrel spending and convened economic summit meetings.

But in between the speeches and the press releases some are saying: Don't expect government to solve all the state's problems.

"We can help but it's not the major piece of it," said Rep. Barney Frank (D-Mass). "Government didn't bring about the prosperity and government didn't bring about the downturn."

In Boston, Republican Gov. William Weld criticizes his predecessor, Michael Dukakis for "communicating in a number of ways — anti-business, anti-investment, anti-growth attitudes." Weld's "entrepreneurial government" philosophy, he said in a recent interview with the Associated Press, is to "get out of the way."

Even Rep. Joseph Moakley (D-Mass.), a liberal in the tradition of former House Speaker Thomas P. "Tip" O'Neill, warns Bay Staters not to expect the federal government to rescue the Northeast.

"The problem is the whole country is in the same kind of economic problems," Moakley said. "We were doing well when the rest of the country wasn't doing well."

Former Massachusetts Sen. Paul Tsongas said the philosophy of the economic policy swings with the economy.

"We're like this wild pendulum. We swing between the minimalist Reaganite view, which has allowed the Japanese to devour us on the one hand and then we swing wildly to the Democrats' view that government does everything, an approach which is equally non-productive," Tsongas said.

Beleaguered business leaders appear to be ready for government action. John Gould, head of Associated Industries of Massachusetts, echoed Tsonga's words when he said, "Anybody who says that government action is not a crucial factor in the operation of the economy is not being realistic."

Nicholas Koskores, president of the New England Council, a regional business group, agreed.

"Business and government certainly must cooperate where they can to improve economic conditions here," Koskores said.

Mail found opened in trash room

Compiled by MARK HENSLEY
Collegian Staff

Sixty pieces of opened U.S. mail, mostly Valentine's Day cards were found in the trash room of McNamara residence hall on Friday. Police said an undetermined amount of money was stolen and the matter is being investigated.

Arrests

- Richard J Shurick, 23, of Oxford, was arrested on Saturday in Lot 43 for allegedly operating under the influence of alcohol and was also cited for operating a vehicle with a cracked windshield.
- Robert M. Ryan, 21, of Attleboro, was arrested on Commonwealth Ave. Friday for allegedly operating an uninspected motor vehicle on an expired driver's license.
- Christian J. Theriault, 19, of Amherst, was arrested on Saturday for allegedly operating under the influence of alcohol and was cited for failing to stay within marked lanes and for operating a motor vehicle with defective equipment.
- Joseph J. Tabaka, 25, of Easthampton, was arrested on Saturday for allegedly operating an unregistered and uninspected motor vehicle and attaching number plates assigned to another vehicle.
- John M. Gilmore, 24, of Allston was arrested on Sunday for allegedly driving on an expired license and was cited for operating a vehicle with defective equipment.

Thefts

- A man reported on Sunday that someone entered his vehicle while it was parked in Lot 49 and took cassettes and two compact disks valued at $100.
- Two women from Cance residence hall reported on Monday that their room had been broken into but nothing was stolen.

UMass students to run for Amherst Town Meeting

By ALEX DERING
Collegian Staff

Nine of the 14 University of Massachusetts students who intend to run for the Amherst Town Meeting attended a meeting last night at the Student Government Association office to map out a strategy for the best ways to urge students to register to vote in the town elections on March 26.

"The town of Amherst is facing a deficit of about $3.5 million," said Commuter Area President Ted Chambers, who organized the meeting. "Because of this deficit the town is planning to eliminate the Rent Control Board, which costs approximately $5,000 a year to run. The Rent Control Board exists to protect students from rent gouging by landowners."

"As it is now, if a landowner's mortgage goes up, he or she cannot pass that additional cost onto renters," Chambers continued. "The Rent Control Board would prevent it."

The Rent Control Board, according to Chambers, "...has the most direct, non-abstract benefit to students. We benefit from some of the town's other services, but the removal of this particular one could lead to massive rent increases in the future."

Chambers added that it is "absolutely crucial" for

CONTINUED ON PAGE 4

Feminists criticize army's impact on women

By ANNA REGINA SANTIAGO
Collegian Staff

United States military bases around the world depend on women for their very existence, according to three feminists speaking last night at Hampshire College on the impact of these U.S. bases on women's lives.

Cynthia Enloe, a well-known feminist theorist and writer, discussed "notions of masculinity and femininity" as the foundation of these military bases.

"U.S. bases don't live in isolation," Enloe said. Their existence depends mostly on the work of women living on and around those particular bases, she said.

However, a bigger problem created by these bases has been the growth of an "entertainment industry," resulting in the exploitation of women in those areas, Enloe said.

The Saudi Arabian government has denied Rest and Recreation ("R and R") to American soldiers based there, prohibiting alcohol and the types of entertainment usually associated with "R and R." This has caused concern within the American administration because it would then set a precedent for "R and R" at all U.S. bases, she said.

Enloe said the American government has consistently denied the existence of formal policies on prostitution with countries hosting U.S. military bases. According to Enloe, it is apparent that the United States must now, after these negotiations with Saudi Arabia, admit to having these "formal, written" agreements with their host countries.

According to Ninotchka Rosca, a former political prisoner of the Marcos regime and the national coordinator of the Gabriela Network, a U.S.-Philippines women's solidarity organization, one of the countries most in need of such a policy is the Philippines, which is home to Clark Air Base and Subic Naval Base, the largest military installations outside the United States. Both of these military facilities, along with four smaller ones, are currently the focus of negotiations between Washington and Manila concerning their leases, which expire in the next year.

Rosca said the United States has aligned itself "with the most backward class, the ruling elite of the Philippines" in order to keep control of the vast land on which their bases are located.

"We need our land back to feed our people," Rosca said, referring to the Philippines' rapidly growing population and the control of the majority of its resources by the United States. "We would be happy to get rid of [the United States]."

Jean Grossholtz, feminist peace activist and politics professor at Mt. Holyoke College, read a letter written by a Filipina feminist who reiterated that "the history of the United States is inextricably bound to ours," and stressed the role of the United States in the oppression of Third World women, in particular.

Enloe highlighted her lecture by showing a sample of the 1991 Operation Desert Storm calendar, currently on sale at the Pentagon bookstore. The calendar, which the Pentagon claims is "for the morale of our men and women fighting in the Gulf," depicts White females scantily clad in camouflage.

■ Chomsky raps Cold War ideologies and 1963 that were confirmed by intelligence and ignored by the U.S. government.

CONTINUED FROM PAGE 1

Chomsky also said that Soviet military spending leveled off in the 1970s while the American public was told the exact opposite. Despite this leveling off, President Carter proposed increased military spending, which was put into practice by President Reagan.

In relation to Third World countries, Chomsky said the policy of the United States is that of supporting anyone whose policies are moderate in relation to the United States, however monstrous a regime may be. Chomsky cited the initial U.S. support for Mussolini and Hitler and U.S. policies in Latin America, as testimony to the lengths the United States would go to support their policies.

He quoted Franklin D. Roosevelt, who at one point called Mussolini "that admirable Italian gentleman."

Under the cover of U.S. aid, the development of Third World countries is moderated by the United States and any challenges are crushed, Chomsky said.

"The United States shows (Third World countries) that if they act independently, they will not only be humiliated, they will be destroyed," Chomsky said.

This idea has contemporary applications in the Persian Gulf, he said. The United States and Britain, Chomsky said, are forcing the Gulf confrontation in order to ensure control over oil — essentially, to enforce economic support of them by Third World countries.

Chomsky also pointed out that the use of force by the United States is more feasible than ever before. "Until now, there was always the danger that a U.S. confrontation could blow up into a conflict with the Soviets. . .this deterrence no longer exists."

Chomsky is Amherst's 1990-91 Corliss Lamont Lecturer for a Peaceful World.

Chomsky, an Institute Professor at the Massachusetts Institute of Technology, has written hundreds of essays and over a dozen books on international affairs. Some of his publications include: Necessary Illusions (1989), Manufacturing Consent (with Edward S. Herman, 1988), The Culture of Terrorism (1988), On Power and Ideology: The Managua Lectures (1987), Pirates and Emperors: International Terrorism in the Real World (1986), Turning the Tide: U.S. Intervention in Central America and the Struggle for Peace (1985), and The Fateful Triangle: The U.S., Israel, and the Palestinians.

■ dissent in U.S. society discussed

CONTINUED FROM PAGE 1

multitude under the control of the privileged few has actually been present from 1650 to the present day."

Quoting Political Scientist Harold Glaswell, Chomsky said, "Propaganda must be used to control the masses for their own good." For the masses to ask too many questions is not acceptable, he added.

"The tasks of a system of indoctrination are two-fold: to keep the masses stupid and ignorant and deprive them of organizational structure, and to have the educated articulate minorities share necessary illusions and internalize the necessary values," he said.

Whether all this indoctrination does work, is an interesting question, Chomsky explained. "It is highly successful for the elite, but much less so for the masses."

By way of illustration, Chomsky pointed out that during the Vietnam War era, "The reasons the elite were opposed to the war were either pragmatic, the war was not working, or moral, there was too much napalming of Vietnamese children, but not ideological grounds, i.e. aggression was not considered wrong."

"Two-thirds of the public, on the other hand, were opposed to the war," Chomsky continued, "because it was fundamentally wrong and immoral." Thus, there was a clear disparity, he said.

The same phenomenon was repeated during the Reagan years, Chomsky said. "More people were in favor of welfare funding. Whereas the elites, on the other hand, were intent on spending benefits for the rich. The principle of liberal democracy is to keep the masses out of the political system."

While the United States is approaching the limit of free speech, Chomsky said, there is also, a poverty of political life.

"There is essentially one business party with two factions," he said. "Elections are a mere ritual, and there are no substantive divisions in presidential campaigns. There is a clear vacuity in the political system."

Chomsky also said that terrorism advocated by the United States is perceived to be acceptable if it meets governmental interests, as is the case with terrorism against Nicaragua and Cuba.

■ Students bid for Town Meeting

CONTINUED FROM PAGE 3

students to register to vote in Amherst so a student voice will be on the Town Meeting.

A Voter Registration Drive is scheduled for Feb. 20-21, from 10 a.m. to 2 p.m. in the Student Union Ballroom.

In each of the 10 precincts, eight seats are being vyed for. There are 240 members of the Town Meeting. Each year, 80 seats come up for re-election.

The Precinct 2 student candidates are: Owen Broadhurst, Hollis Crowley, Marjorie Decker, Paul Dionne, and Matthew Pavesi.

Precinct 3 candidates are: Kevin Newnan, Richard Rigney, and Jen Wood.

The Precinct 4 candidates are: Dennis Crowley, Sharon Lang, Rob Murray, and Rob Witherall.

Precinct 9 candidates are: Ken Kaplan and Rich Sugarman.

There will be two write-in student candidates in Precinct 10.

A high student registration is especially important now for the first district congressional seat, which was left empty following the death of Rep. Silvio Conte (D-Pittsfield), Chambers said.

"Obviously, whoever wins that seat will have considerable power," Chambers said. "It would be in the best interests of students if someone who is sympathetic to our needs was elected to fill it."

The primary for that election will be April 30.

Get Involved!
with campus health issues
SHAB*
- Sponsor health projects
- Represent student health care concerns
- Review UHS budget
- Serve on UHS Search Committees
- Meet other students interested in health care

COME SEE WHAT IT'S ALL ABOUT

Meeting: Wednesday, February 20, 1991
Where: UHS Room 302
Time: 5:00 pm

*Student Health Advisory Board (est. 1971)
University Health Services

Largest College Daily in New England
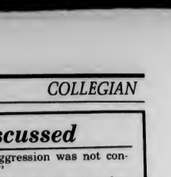
THE MASSACHUSETTS — Established in 1890
DAILY COLLEGIAN
113 Campus Center
STAFF MEETING
FRIDAY, FEBRUARY 22
at 2:30
IN THE NEWSROOM
Business, News and Graphics must attend.

SPRING BREAK
PANAMA CITY BEACH
FLORIDA
- High quality beachfront accommodations for 7 exciting nights
- Round trip chartered motor coach
- Free pool deck parties, activities, & pompoms
- Inter-Campus Programs I.D./Discount card
- On-location staff for complete assistance
- All taxes, tips, & service charges included

$114 $219
Contact Barbara 549-8156

Council Travel
SPRING BREAK - from Boston
Cancun starting at $489
Jamaica starting at $509
Price includes:
•Round trip airfare & transfers
•7 nights accommodation & hotel taxes
Low Student Airfares!
CALL FOR MORE INFORMATION
79 South Pleasant Street
Amherst, Ma 01002
413-256-1261
America's oldest & largest Student Travel Agency



OOPS!
Now's the time to call...
North Amherst Motors
78 Old Sunderland Rd., No. Amherst
549-2880
Expert Repairs and Reconditioning
Most Major Credit Cards Accepted

AREA COORDINATORS
AMHERST COLLEGE IS SEEKING CANDIDATES FOR TWO FULL TIME AND ONE HALF—TIME NINE AND A HALF MONTH AREA COORDINATOR POSITIONS. BEGINNING ON AUGUST 15, 1991, THEY WILL BE RESPONSIBLE FOR THE TRAINING AND SUPERVISION OF RESIDENT COUNSELORS PLUS A RANGE OF SUPERVISORY, ADVISING AND ADMINISTRATIVE FUNCTIONS FOR A CLUSTER OF RESIDENCE HALLS. THE FULL TIME POSITIONS WILL ALSO INCLUDE SPECIFIC PROGRAM—WIDE RESPONSIBILITIES COORDINATING CULTURAL/EDUCATIONAL PROGRAMS AND STAFF SELECTION OF SIX SOCIAL ACTIVITIES COUNCILS. QUALIFICATIONS: BACHELOR'S DEGREE BY MAY, 1991; ABILITY TO RELATE WELL TO STUDENTS; AND ORGANIZATIONAL AND COUNSELING SKILLS PREVIOUS EXPERIENCE IN RESIDENTIAL LIFE AND/OR RELATED MASTERS DEGREE PREFERRED. COMPENSATION: FULL TIME POSITION—APPROXIMATELY $13,000 PLUS BENEFITS; HALF—TIME POSITION—$4,300. ALL POSITIONS INCLUDE ROOM AND BOARD. SUBMIT RESUME, COVER LETTER STATING INTEREST AND QUALIFICATIONS, AND THREE LETTERS OF REFERNCE TO: CHARRI BOYKIN—EAST, ASSISTANT DEAN OF STUDENTS, BOX 2206, AMHERST COLLEGE, AMHERST, MA 01002 BY MARCH 11, 1991
AN EQUAL OPPORTUNITY/AFFIRMATIVE ACTION EMPLOYER

JOB FAIR FOR TEACHERS
Saturday, March 2 9 AM - 3 PM
Northeastern University, Boston
Ell Student Center
Independent Schools all over New England are seeking people of color including African Americans, Latino Americans, Asian Americans and American Indians for teaching positions and internship programs. The Fair will include presentations on independent school job opportunities and workshops on job interviewing and resumé preparation. Representatives from 50 independent schools will be available.
The Fair is free to all
For registration information, call (617) 849-3080
Co-sponsored by Channels for Educational Choices and the Independent School Association of Massachusetts REACH FOR THE POWER...TEACH!!!

COME CLEAN WITH US!
Campus Coin Op
107 Sunderland Road, North Amherst
Open 7 a.m.-10 p.m.
SPEEDWASH
11 Pray St., Amherst
NOW OPEN 24 HOURS!
South Towne Commons Laundromat
479 West St., South Amherst
Open 7 a.m.-10 p.m.

EDITORIAL/OPINION

The opinions on this page are those of the individual writer or cartoonist and do not necessarily reflect the views of the Collegian or the University unless otherwise noted.

Finding meaning in the ugly world we've been given

The tears sting my eyes as I spit out the words in a sorrowful rage. After I saw the flames engulfing a person that used to walk, and talk, and laugh, I didn't want to cry. I didn't want to pity him. And most of all, I didn't want to feel the same way that someone did when they decided to die.

But it wasn't an accident, nor an act of self-pity. It was a final cry for peace from a man who died so that others may live. People on campus may debate his motives, but all we can presume to know is what he told us in his final word to the world: Peace.

So, he died because he didn't want to live in a world where we rejoice in the killing of a people who we have never known. He wanted to die because he knew that the blood of a protester speaks louder than words, banners, or slogans in a society desensitized to its own wrong-doings. He believed it was better to die and make a statement than to cry worthless tears over an individual's inability to make a change in this democracy we live in.

I dread waking up every day to be greeted by technologically advanced societies giving way to the most ancient and base urge of humanity — to kill another human being. The knot in my stomach never stops aching for my country that "fears its enemies more than it loves its children." I fear for the future. I'm 19 years-old and my youthful idealism has fallen away in the face of a world gone mad with a passion for blood.

Rua Kelly

A close friend of mine has a pin that says, "They're Lying." I'm so sick from the lies that fill my ears every waking moment.

Do people really believe the numbers calmly read to us by newscasters, or the battle plans laid out to us by General Schwarzkopf? What are people thinking when one Indiana congressman calmly suggests the use of nuclear weapons in place of a ground war and the Bush administration refuses comment?

Part of my fear stems from the realization that the burning body that I witnessed Monday was the first truth in the war. It was the first thing that we bystanders could almost touch, smell, and taste. The death was the first cold reality that came in contact with real people — with real American citizens. I hear a lot about the raping and pillaging of the Kuwaiti people, but what about the American people who feel deeply about the war?

Bush is concerned about troop morale, but what about ours? hat about the morale of a young person, promised a beautiful world of opportunity by their family and their government, crushed by the realization that all that matters is power, money and strength? What about the morale of a young person, taught to be trusting and loving and to care about their brothers and sisters, and then told that you can't trust anyone? What about the morale of a young person who doesn't know what to believe anymore?

Maybe what I saw Monday showed me all of the pain that I've been feeling about the war, and put a face on it. If we still can, we have to stop the war. So work for peace — for those of us who are still here, and for the one who isn't.

Rua Kelly is a Collegian staff member

I wear a yellow ribbon to show my hope for life, not war

There has been a great deal of discussion about what a yellow ribbon means. To those people who insist that anyone who wears or displays a yellow ribbon is pro-war and pro-policy:

How dare you.

If I choose to wear a yellow ribbon, there is a definite reason. Don't tell me I'm a stupid foolish White girl with no concept of what is going on. Don't condescend to me.

I don't agree with people making money with their "Desert Storm" t-shirts. People making money off death is despicable.

So don't tell me I'm pro-war. Maybe your "brothers and sisters in arms" are fighting this war. So are mine. These are the people I grew up with, people I knew, people I care about.

So don't tell me I don't care about the people over there.

Now perhaps, comes the question, "Don't you care about the civilians in Iraq, Kuwait and Israel who are being bombed everyday? Or do you only care about the imperialistic pigs in the U.S. military?"

This is two-fold: one, I too lose sleep thinking about the people losing their families and friends. They have lost their homes, their property and most of all, their pride and dignity.

Gayle Long

I hope and pray that the "One True God" looks out for them until the leaders of the world — the ones who have really caused this war — get their act together and stop this lunacy.

But to say all the people in the military are imperialistic, materialistic and stupid is ridiculous. You say they are all gung-ho Rambo types with no emotion.

Who are you to judge other people? Have you met these people? All of them? If you could find ONE soldier who cries at night scared that it could be the last time she lies down to sleep — ONE pilot who wakes up in a cold sweat, wondering if civilians were killed by a bomb he dropped.

Interestingly enough, this argument applies to both "sides."

Back to the yellow ribbon. Is it really pro-war to wear one?

Is it pro-war to want the people in the war to come home?

Of course it is, because military people perpetuate hate and war. They don't care about anyone. They don't have families at home waiting for them, praying they come home. Of course not.

It's stupid to wear a yellow ribbon because who would think that a citizen of the United States would care about anything but themselves. They don't care about the civilians of Iraq, they don't care about missiles falling on schoolchildren in Israel.

Let's face it: Americans don't care about the situation in the Gulf, and their military personnel is unimportant, right? Wrong.

I've got news for you.

Some of the people in the United States do care about the people in the Gulf — no matter what their nationality, race or creed. Some people want the fighting to stop, and everybody to live in peace. Maybe a poor, naive thought. But at least it's hopeful. Everytime that I see a yellow ribbon, I will think of the people I know who have left to go to war. I will think of the civilians who have lost everything, and the people who live in constant fear of death.

I will wear a yellow ribbon for the thought of life and peace in the Middle East and the rest of the world.

So don't tell me I'm pro-war. Call it pro-hope.

Gayle Long is a Collegian columnist

Vote for yourself

Unless you have been walking around with your eyes closed for the last few days, you have probably noticed the plethora of posters hanging around campus telling you to register to vote in Amherst today and tomorrow at the voter registration drive being held in the Student Union Ballroom. As one of the 14 UMass students running for a seat in the Amherst Town Meeting, I would like to fill you in on what is going on.

Kevin Newnan

The town of Amherst is facing a multi-million dollar budget deficit, and the town manager has come up with a list of programs and services to be eliminated to make up for the shortfall, unless the town passes an override of Prop. 2½ on May 14.

None of this would mean much to students if one of the services slated to be axed is the rent control board, also known as the Housing Review Board. By regulating rents in the town, the board protect students from rent gouging, and prevents landlords from passing on mortgage payments to students. If it is eliminated, students will be forced to pay massive rent increases at a time when we can least afford it.

The cost of attending UMass has gone up nearly 70 percent in the last three years, and next semester we can all look forward to a $1,000 tuition increase. The elimination of the Housing Review Board would not be such an outrage if the permanent Amherst residents did not have one of the highest standards of living in the state because of us. About 25 percent of the town is employed by the University, and UMass students spend $110 million a year here. And rental properties housing UMass students account for about 20 percent of Amherst's yearly property tax revenue.

Most people think students don't have a right to participate in Amherst town government because they assume students don't pay property taxes here. But they are wrong. The rental market in Amherst is regulated by the Housing Review board, and the board's regulations allow landlords to raise rents if their taxes go up. So students do pay property taxes.

About $2.1 million of the town's annual tax revenue is paid by students. How much we get back for every dollar we put in is difficult to determine, and is the subject of ongoing debate.

Some people in the town would argue that we get a whopping seven cents on the dollar. They say that the students benefit from the town's ambulance services and child care facilities. They also include the costs of hiring additional polics to keep the the town's permanent residents safe from unruly students.

The truth is that the only program in town which primarily benefits the student community is the Review board, which has an annual budget of $5,000. Out of a total budget of $32 million a year, Amherst town spends less than one-tenth of one percent to protect interests of the students who they completely depend upon.

UMass is often referred to as the "sleeping giant" because of the potential impact that students here could have if we were organized. If half of the undergraduates registered in Amherst not only could we save the board, but we could make the difference in the upcoming Congressional election.

Kevin Newnan is a UMass student

Protesting death profits hits the mark

I think that the Career Fair protest organized by Faculty and Staff for Peace and Justice in the Middle East was one of the most useful anti-war actions taken either this semester or last. This action struck right to the heart of the American military-industrial complex. Why is it that some companies are making a great profit while Americans are dying and our economy nose-dives?

Some might have called the protest inappropriate because only representatives of the companies were due to come — not the chief executive officers. Well, to that I respond that if any of the representatives were disturbed by the reality of our protest, or if they were swayed by our arguments, then it is their turn to pass their concerns onto superiors.

Public pressure is the only way to force our government and our society to change its priorities. Again, I thank the organizers of the protest for their insight and planning.

Peter Wagner
Central

Support peace by supporting war

As someone who wholeheartedly supports Operation Desert Storm, I wish to address those who label this war an "oil war." While oil is one reason that the United States is at war, it by no means the major reason. The main reason we are at war is to liberate Kuwait. However, I would like to address the issue of oil. First, whether you agree or disagree, oil is the substance that fuels world industry. I am a proponent of implementing alternative energy sources, especially nuclear power. However, for the time being, the world depends on oil. Protesting the war on the grounds that it is an oil war will not change that fact.

Secondly, if Saddam Hussein marched through Kuwait into Saudi Arabia, like many feared he would, he would control 70 percent of the world's oil reserves (according to former Secretary of State, Henry Kissinger). No doubt Saddam would drive up the price of oil, thus reaping great profits. Now, with these increased revenues, does anyone truly believe that Saddam Hussein will reinvest in the Iraqi people? Of course not. This ruthless killer will further increase his already-developed chemical arsenal as well as nuclear weapons research. People claim the Cold War is over. Therefore, do we want to jeopardize this new relationship with the Soviet Union by allowing Saddam Hussein to throw off this balance of power?

Finally, I just want to address the college students who are protesting this war on the grounds that it is an oil war. If Saddam Hussein is allowed to gain control of these oil resources, it will drive the world into a situation of unemployment and recession. Translation: The already dismal job market for graduating college students will become only grimmer because companies will have to devote money to oil, thus they will inevitably have to cut back on personnel.

The United States and the allies are on the right side of this issue. They are trying to free a sovereign nation and promote stability in the most unstable part of the world. The enemy in this war is Saddam Hussein, not the oil companies and certainly not George Bush. Support peace. Support the war. God bless America.

Glen Caroline
President, UMass Republican Club

Today is the last day to submit columns and letters for our extra-special flashbang edition dealing with events surrounding student government. Please type and double-space your submissions and be sure to include a phone number. Bring 'em to the Collegian in 113 Campus Center basement.

ARTS & LIVING

L.A. Story disappoints as it wallows in shallowness

By MEREDITH O'BRIEN
Collegian Staff
and SCOTT WEISS
Collegian Correspondent

Set in the trendy city of Los Angeles, L.A. Story is a romantic comedy about a confused weatherman, Harris K. Telemacher (Steve Martin) who falls in love with an English journalist, Sara McDowel (Victoria Tennant).

WEISS: This movie, written by Steve Martin, has a whacked view of love and relationships, with a heavy pinch of sarcasm about life in L.A. What can be, and sometimes is, a funny, satirical look at L.A., often gets lost in surrealism and shallow characterizations.

O'BRIEN: Being a big Steve Martin fan myself, I was really disappointed after seeing this movie. It lacked a consistent theme and focus. From satirizing the phony and plastic L.A. lifestyle, the film wildly veers to Martin's ill-fated job as a bizarre weatherman, to his shallow relationship with Trudi (Marilu Henner), to a freeway sign that gives him sage advice and to a carefree clothing store clerk (Sarah Jessica Parker) who has the hots for Martin.

WEISS: I have to agree that I too expected more from a Steve Martin film, and as a while, this movie was a letdown. However, the underlying symbolism that continually satirizes L.A. gives life to the otherwise lacking characters and plot. Martin purposely creates shallow characters to typify the traditional stereotypes for an L.A. Story — the only place where it would be expected that electronic freeway signs would carry the word of God, and still want cable TV.

O'BRIEN: Martin further capitalizes on L.A. stereotypes with Parker's character, SanDeE*, the classic be-bopping L.A. gigglechick who has a perpetual tan, long blonde hair and says "like" all of the time, though Martin gives a unique angle to her beach bimbo personality. When Martin goes shopping in the ultra-hip store that the spacey SanDeE* works at, they become attracted and kindle a brief affair, one that lands Martin in some "difficult" situations including a visit to an institute offering lunch-time enemas.

WEISS: Yes, the California Colonic Institute had an ahh. . .interesting affect on people. . .but the few snappy Steve Martin one-liners throughout the movie proved the most humorous to me. His takeoff of "Hamlet's" graveyard scene, with a cameo appearance by Rick Moranis, also provided some amusement. However, many other attempts at getting some laughter out of the crowd appeared too set up, too forced, and simply fell short.

O'BRIEN: Yes, despite some clever scenes that got the audience laughing, as a whole, this movie attempts to tackle too many things at once. The major plot of the movie, the love story between Telemacher and McDowel (Martin's real-life wife), is too rushed and artificial, completely overwhelmed by the wisecracks and satire of L.A. Though a seemingly good-faith effort by Martin to use L.A.

CONTINUED ON PAGE 7

Photo courtesy of Tri-Star Pictures

Steve Martin sucks face with Victoria Tennant in the comedy L.A. Story.

Tribute band satisfies Zep fans

By KEN KIE
Collegian Correspondent

Physical Graffiti
Katina's
Friday, Feb. 15

While rumors of a possible Led Zeppelin reunion abound, Zep Heads can quench their thirst with Physical Graffiti.

The Zep tribute band put on a fantastic show Friday night at Katina's in Hadley. Authenticity wasn't lacking, as both the look and sound was reminiscent of Led Zeppelin at the height of their success, circa 1971-1975. The clothes, equipment, Jimmy page's wild dancing, and Robert Plant's animated hand gestures added nicely to the illusion.

A crowd of about 200 sang along throughout the entire show.

at times even drowning out the band. It's not that the band wasn't loud enough — my ears were ringing — but the crowd was even louder. Somewhat surprisingly, a good portion of the audience knew the lyrics to the more obscure songs such as "Hots on for Nowhere," and "Your Time is Gonna Come." Of course, everyone knew the words to such classics as "Black Dog," "Good Times, Bad Times," "The Song Remains the Same" and the "Whole Lotta Love/Rock and Roll" medley.

The acoustic "Going to California" provided a nice change of pace from the hard rocking, wall shaking decibels of the rest of the show. One of the night's highlights was the instrumental of "Moby Dick," featuring a ten minute drum solo that, while technically very

CONTINUED ON PAGE 7

Schlock-n-Roll

(To the the tune of "American Pie") "And their singing bye, bye Miss American Knish."

That is akin to just one of the possible popular rock-n-roll tunes that the group Schlock Rock may play tonight at the Campus Center Auditorium.

Schlock Rock is a ten piece group that takes popular tunes and refurbishes the lyrics words that deliver a message or feature a Jewish theme. The group also performs original tunes penned by the band's leader, Lenny Solomon.

Solomon stated that the band's main goal is to foster Jewish awareness and pride. "We want to make Judaism less stiff, less threatening. It's kind of a combination between Weird Al Yankovic and Jewish tradition."

The group will perform tonight in the Campus Center Auditorium at UMass as a part of the Jewish Arts Festival. The show will start at 8 p.m. Admission is $2 for students and $4 for the general public.

— DANIELLE DOWLING

Mt. TOM
Ski Area

STUDENT
DISCOUNTS ! !

Great Skiing
Day & Night.
100% Snowmaking.
Expert Grooming.
&
So Close You Can See It!

$12.00 Midweek and Nights
$18.00 Weekends and Holidays

Bring Your Student I.D.

Mt. Tom Ski Area
Route 5 Holyoke MA 536-0416

RÉSUMÉS
CopyCat Print Shop
• Great Service • Great Prices
228 Triangle St./Amherst 549-3840

RUSH
ALPHA EPSILON PI.

WED. FEB. 20: MOVIE NIGHT
"STRANGE BREW"
9:00

THURS. FEB. 21: LATE NIGHT
8:30 at AEΠ

AEΠ.
ALL YOU NEED.

DIS, DENMARK'S INTERNATIONAL STUDY PROGRAM
affiliated with the University of Copenhagen

STUDY EUROPE IN COPENHAGEN
TAUGHT IN ENGLISH BY DANISH FACULTY

O Liberal Arts (Social Sciences, Humanities, Arts)
O International Business O Architecture

Information Meeting
Wednesday, February 20
301 Herter Hall
3:00 p.m. to 4:00 p.m.
Application Deadline: March 1, 1991

To live the events while you study them is incredibly stimulating

Nicole Ratte, Mount Holyoke College:
The DIS Program has been incredible - a program where I really learned something academically. Copenhagen is great - an active city with so many things going on - I fell in love with Copenhagen! The fact that the teaching is in English is a definite plus.

Mike Whitton, The American University:
An overall excellent experience. One of the best parts was the family stay. Through my host family I really got to see family and social life in Denmark on a more personal level. The field trips and study tours are excellent. They really showed you what your studies are all about - you got to see for yourself instead of just reading about it.

Damian Geistkemper, University of Illinois at Urbana-Champaign:
The classes are taught in English - and they are of outstanding quality - it's one of the more difficult study abroad programs, but I chose it because as long as I was going to spend the money overseas I was going to learn something, too.

DIS, Denmark's International Study Program, is one of Europe's oldest, largest and most highly esteemed study abroad programs recognized and supported by the Danish government.

For further information please contact:
DIS Coordinator
International Programs, University of Massachusetts Amherst
William S. Clark Int. Center (413) 545-2710

The voice of Fela cries out from the Third World

By MADANMOHAN RAO
Collegian Staff

ODOO
Fela Anikulapo Kuti
Shanachie

Nigeria's King of Juju, Fela Anikulapo Kuti, and his 26 piece band, Egypt 80, unleash two new, scathingly brilliant political indictments on their latest album (on Shanachie), ODOO. One of Africa's most controversial musicians and protests artists, Fela vehemently assails corrupt, repressive and abusive political systems, on both half-hour long tracks on this album.

Fela Ransome Kuti was born to middle class Yoruba parents in Abeokuta, Nigeria, on October 15, 1938. Sent to London to study medicine in 1958, Fela instead enrolled at the Trinity College of Music. His primary interest was not conventional European music, but the jazz of the London club scene where he led his own band, Koola Lobitos.

Returning to Nigeria in 1963, Fela incorporated Nigerian and Ghanian influences in his music. He renamed his jazz band Afrika 70 and founded a communal compound and a nightclub. Because he sang in "Afrikanized" English rather than in Yoruba, his records were understandable in several other countries as well. By 1972, Fela was one of the biggest names in West Africa.

Fela sang about the problems and harassment of the urban poor, and denounced the ruling classes and their oppressive regimes. His caustic, pithy, yet amusing commentary applied to societies throughout the Third World, and thus widened the appeal of his music. He also changed his middle name from Ransome (which he regarded as a slave name) to Anikulapo.

Growing irritated by his message, the Nigerian government sent police and army forces to attack and destroy Fela's recording studio and commune in 1974 and again in 1977. Soldiers fractured his skill and broke several of his bones. They threw his 82 year old mother from an upstairs window, resulting in wounds which eventually lead to her death.

During the next several years, Fela was exiled, deported arrested, tortured, and released on numerous occasions, with each change of civilian and military governments. In the 80s, Fela and his band, now named Egypt 80, toured and recorded at prolific rate, always aligning with the poor and exploited people of Nigeria and, by extension, Africa and the rest of the world.

His tumultuous wealth of experience is superbly blended with biting political satire, musical skill and arrangement in his albums Army Arrangement, Black President, Teacher Don't Teach Me Nonsense, Beasts of No Nation, and Live in Amsterdam.

The latest album, ODDO, is an acronym for OVERTAKE DON OVERTAKE OVERTAKE, and roughly translates as "the thing passing has been passed by another passer." The title track is a brilliant masterpiece. It has all the qualities of a Fela classic — slowly building percussive introduction, complex layers of keyboard and guitar rhythms, and jazz-oriented solos on saxaphone and guitar.

Fela then launches into his hallmark call-and-response vocals and cutting lyrics. "Nigeria calls its government 'Federal Military Governemnt,' Libya calls its own government 'Liberation Council,' and Liberia gives its regime the name 'Redemption Council,'" Fela explains. These may be different names, but the correct name is "Soldier Go, Soldier Come," i.e. changes of government mean little more than the shuffling of military regimes.

The reality for the common man remains the same. Fela says:

repression and economic hardship ("Everything come expensive; even water become expensive," "Him come understand his life, enjoyment can never come him way"). Fela's wry narration of some unfortunate realities, such as the ordeal of trying to save for and buy something even as simple as a fan (thanks to continually rising prices), or of travel in an overcrowded bus ("Forty-nine seating, ninety-nine standing"), immediately strikes a chord among those who have experienced the hardships of the Third World.

The second track on the album, "Confusion Break Bones," is a complex, sinuous piece that at first does not engage the listener as well as the scintillating title track does.

There is much more to Fela's performance than just music — his shows have proven to be a grand theatrical extravaganzas of African culture. He has toured the Valley in the past, so if his entourage passes through again, DON'T MISS IT! Until then, ODOO hopefully whet your appetite.

Fela is back! And Fela rules.

■ Physical Graffiti

CONTINUED FROM PAGE 6

impressive, seemed to drag bit.

One of the biggest surprises of the 21-song, two hour set was the tune played after a half-hour break — "Traveling Riverside Blues." It had never been released until this past fall, on the Led Zeppelin boxed set, yet it got the most enthusiastic response of the night. Zeppelin's 1973 version of the Robert Johnson blues classic finally made the Billboard singles chart near the end of 1990.

The band played a fairly wide selection of tunes from Led Zeppelin's twelve year career. The best represented album was 1969's Led Zeppelin II, with five of its nine songs making an appearance. There were four songs from Houses of Holy, and three songs from Presence and the untitled fourth album. Two songs each from Zep's self titled debut album and Physical Graffiti, the set opener, "In the Evening," the long selection from In Through the Out Door finish off the list.

The first encore, "Trampled Underfoot," was dedicated "to Mr. Saddam Hussein." How the crowd sang along with this one is beyond me as the lyrics are almost totally incoherent, to me anyway. The second encore, "Heartbreaker" was highlighted by some excellent guitar work, approaching the quality of the original version.

The show wasn't without its problems, however. The second half was marred by microphone trouble, and the singer missed a couple of lyrics, including singing the same verse twice during "What is and What never Should Be." A tip of the hat should be given to the well-behaved crowd. As densely packed as they were, there were no disturbances as far as I could see which made security's job much easier.

Many people who have seen Physical Graffiti before have told me that they put on a great show, and now I must agree with them.

I'll be eagerly awaiting their next visit to the area, and I suggest that my fellow Zep Heads do the same. These guys are not to be missed.

■ L.A. Story

CONTINUED FROM PAGE 6

as the zany backdrop for an unlikely relationship, L.A. Story falls flat. Thumbs down.

WEISS: Although I don't think L.A. Story is a miserable failure, it gets too confused with seriousness, satire and humor and just wasn't that funny. It might be better to see this one drunk, or wait for it to come out on video. Thumbs down.

Hey, check out the
The UMass Theatre Guild's second
GENERAL MEMBERSHIP MEETING
Wednesday, February 20th
7:00 p.m. room 168 Campus Center
Come find out how YOU can get involved with

Into the Woods
and
Ten Little Indians

NEGOTIATING YOUR SALARY

How much will I get?
How much will I need after graduation?

Special Career Week Presentation
Today
3:35 PM
Campus Center Room 168 C
Speakers:
Mary Scott
President, M E Scott & Co.
Karen Gardiner, '91
Lechmere

THE MATHER CAREER CENTER
Where Careers Take Off!
Call 545-4945 for details

Save UP TO $100

There's nothing like Legend and Lady Legend! The most unique college rings ever designed—only available from ArtCarved. This popular professional look offers more ways to personalize your college ring. Don't delay—visit your ArtCarved representative during this special sales event to see Legend and the many other styles available.

ARTCARVED

Date: Feb 18-22 ONLY Time: 9:30-3:30
Place: Bookstore
Last time for guaranteed graduation delivery!

Special Payment Plans Available

Ready for the DRAFT?

The Legal Services Center, in cooperation with both the undergraduate and graduate student associations, presents this workshop of vital information for everyone who would be affected by the draft, or is interested in military discharge information.

Bill Galvin
Thursday, February 21st
7:30pm Campus Ctr. 162

FOCUS

Experts say breastfeeding is best for babies

By CHRIS MUTHER
Collegian Staff

Shelia Montegomery was startled when she was breastfeeding her baby at a Hadley restaurant and felt a tap on her shoulder.

"The manager told me some people in the restaurant thought I was making a scene," she said. "My baby was feeding under a shawl I was wearing so I didn't understand what the problem was. He told me they said the baby was making too much noise."

Montegomery said the incident is typical of what she has encountered since she started breastfeeding her son James after his birth in July.

"I hate to have to feed him in a bathroom, so I usually have a shawl or light blanket to cover-up with, but I still run into problems," she said.

She said she has gotten looks of "disgust" and rude comments as well.

"One women was watching as I finished feeding James and was burping him and was kind enough to inform me that he was too old to be breastfeeding and if I kept it up I would have serious problems with him," she said.

Montegomery said she has received mixed messages from the medical field and from society about breastfeeding.

"My doctor and nurses were all very encouraging about breastfeeding, but it's definitely been a struggle," she said.

According to Cynthia Dugan, a certified lactation consultant who teaches classes and provides home and hospital consultations for breastfeeding mothers, Montegomery's situation is not that uncommon.

She said if people are not familiar with breastfeeding or have preconceived stereotypes about breastfeeding they tend to get uncomfortable.

"If people can only equate breasts with sexual objects, then they get turned off," she said. "Babies need to eat too, and the bathroom is not a place to have a meal."

Dugan, who lives in Belchertown, said although breastfeeding is the best thing for a newborn, "the act of breastfeeding got lost."

"Women can't ask their mothers how to breastfeed like they once did — during the 50s and 60s women were encouraged to bottle feed, so that generation really can't help today's mothers," she said.

Dugan said the percentage of mothers who were breastfeeding in the late 60s and early 70s was as low as 17 percent. According to a World Health Organization study, the numbers are up, but slipping again.

The study found in 1984, the upward trend peaked at 63 percent of mothers breastfeeding when leaving the hospital, and has been dropping steadily since. In 1987, 57 percent of mothers were breastfeeding and 50 percent in 1990.

Dugan said there are pockets where more breastfeeding takes place in the United States, including Western Massachusetts, where she estimates the percentage of mothers breastfeeding at 85-90 percent. She said other areas of high breastfeeding include California and the mid-West.

The profession of lactation consultant is young, Dugan said, because when women had questions about breastfeeding 50 years ago they could ask their mother, friends or family members.

"That support is no longer there," she said.

She said when baby formula was introduced, it was thought to be better for babies because it was "scientific," now studies have proven that breast milk is better for infants and this is one of the things she teaches new mothers.

"There are clear advantages in breastfeeding children, but women have been told otherwise almost all their lives," she said. "We grew up with baby dolls that had bottles."

Dugan said it is important for the new mother to be in a supportive environment to successfully breastfeed. She said she encourages fathers to join their wives in attending classes.

"Classes are funny," she said. "Years ago there wasn't a need for a breastfeeding class, hopefully some day I'll be out of a job."

A coloring book for kids "Helping Mommy Breastfeed" by Janis Wood Catano with drawings by Marianne Brorup-Weston, is published by the International Childbirth Education Association.

According to Jeanne Rose, president of the International Childbirth Education Association, Inc., an organization based in Minneapolis, there are a variety of reasons why women are not breastfeeding at the same rate they did before formula was sold.

Rose said in 1990, 55 percent of women with children were working outside the home, and now with a recession, that number will likely rise.

Although she stressed that it is still possible to go back to work and breastfeed, Rose said many women do not get the support they need to do so.

"Women often don't get the support they need from their mothers or their husbands, who many times don't realize how important it is that women continue to breastfeed," she said.

Dugan said many women also feel "tied down" when they are breastfeeding an infant or might feel too modest to breastfeed, even with friends and family.

According to Betty Crase, reference librarian in the Center for Breastfeeding Information at the LaLeche League International, the world's largest breastfeeding support network, breastfeeding a baby is better in every way than bottle feeding.

"It is known that formula companies come out strongly for breastfeeding," she said. "Subtle or not so subtle, the message they get out is that if you can't breastfeed it's okay, because their formulas are always there."

She said the goal of LaLeche League International is for babies to have the best — which is breast milk.

"It's estimated if you're bottle feeding an infant it will cost you $4 a day," she said. "Here's an opportunity to give the best to baby, and it's free."

According to a LaLeche League International fact sheet on breastfeeding, it is advantageous to both mother and child.

- Breastfeeding protects babies against illness.

It has been proven that breastfeeding can protect against ear infection, respiratory tract illnesses and gastrointestinal illnesses. It has also been found that breatfeed babies tend to be generally more healthy. Breast milk also can protect babies against allergies.

- Breast milk provides all the nutrition a baby needs for at least the first six months of life.

Breast milk is specifically produced for babies and as a result is a vital fluid that changes to adapt for the baby's digestive system and nutritional needs.

- Mother's "immunize" their babies through breast milk.

Mothers send important antibodies to newborns through breast milk that helps protect the baby against illnesses.

- Breastfeeding enhances development.

In addition to mental development, breastfeeding also enhances facial muscle development.

- Breastfeeding has health benefits for the mother.

Women who breastfeed have a decreased risk of ovarian and breast cancer. It also has been found to help women through postpartum depression.

According to John Kippley, president of the Couple to Couple League, a natural family planning support group in Cincinnati, breastfeeding has an added bonus, it sometimes works as a fertility suppressant.

He said breastfeeding is the world's oldest form of birth control and is still the most widely practiced form of birth control.

Kippley said there are two types of breastfeeding. Cultural breastfeeding, which is widely practiced in Western cultures, and "ecological" breastfeeding, a term Kippley said he and his wife coined in 1968.

"Ecological breastfeeding is different from cultural breastfeeding," he said. "With ecological breastfeeding, the mother keeps the baby with her constantly, and the baby nurses as often as he wants."

He said studies have proven that the constant mother-baby togetherness can delay the return of fertility for an average of 14.5 months after birth.

"This is especially important in developing nations where overpopulation is a problem," he said.

He said in addition to having the baby with her at all times, in ecological breastfeeding, the mother is encouraged to let the baby breastfeed to an age when the baby decides to stop.

"There isn't much support for ecological breastfeeding [in Western culture] because the older the baby gets, the more people feel the woman should stop breastfeeding," he added.

Dugan said there are also physiological advantages for women who are breastfeeding.

"Breastfeeding can help empower women with low self-esteem," she said. "Women get a feeling of pride knowing they are nurturing their baby with their own body."

She said breastfeeding can also help mothers who have been through a difficult birth. She said it helps them overcome a feeling of failure they may have.

Dugan added that breastfeeding helps to relax and calm the mother because high levels of a chemical called prolactin are released in the body when breastfeeding occurs, which has a calming effect.

Montegomery said she was aware breastfeeding was advantageous, but said it was not until she discussed breastfeeding with her doctor that she was ready to do it.

"It has been worth getting up at all hours and putting up with looks and comments to be able to breastfeed," she said. "I'm glad I'm doing it."

Formula ads hook new mothers

By CHRIS MUTHER
Collegian Staff

Paula, who lives in Hadley and asked that her last name not be used, said she chose not to breastfeed after her baby seemed more interested in a bottle than her breast.

"I kept trying, and he never seemed interested, and I knew he had to eat eventually, so he was bottle fed," she said.

Paula said she checked with a pediatrician before she began bottle feeding to make sure she was getting the right kind of formula for her baby.

She said bottle feeding made it more convenient for her to return to work when her maternity leave was finished.

"I was unable to breastfeed, but everything turned out fine," she said.

Cynthia Dugan, a certified lactation consultant, said this is one of the primary reasons why women no longer breastfeed. She said many women doubt their ability to breastfeed and fall back on bottle feeding.

"Formula companies plant the seeds of doubt in women," she said. "It may look like they're pushing for breastfeeding, but they make breastfeeding sound undependable in their ads," she said.

According to Douglas Clemmets, a researcher for Action for Corporate Accountability, a consumer advocacy group in Minneapolis, formula advertisers give a "nod of superiority" to breastfeeding, but word the advertisements in a way that leaves the mother with doubts about her ability to breastfeed.

"Breastfeeding is a physiology and psychological act," he said. "If she's worried about her ability to breastfeed, it will impede on her ability."

He said advertisements in the Third World and the United States encourage self-doubt in women's ability to breastfeed which eventually becomes a "self-fulfilling prophecy."

"No successful company works for the competition," he said. "These companies know that breastfeeding is best, so they try other tactics to get women to use their products."

Clemments said formula companies also win over new mothers by giving free samples of their products to hospitals and giving "freebies" to health care providers.

In 1981, the World Health Organization and UNICEF adopted a global marketing code to ban promotion of infant formula and feeding products, especially in Third World nations.

The International Code of Marketing of Breast-milk Substitutes was adopted by health care providers in 118 nations.

But Clemments said that the code is still consistently broken in almost all of the nations that adopted it.

Dugan said hospitals are under great pressure from formula companies to push bottle feeding.

"The hospital may give a woman a free sample of formula, so she will begin to bottle feed, then her breast milk will dry-up and her baby is hooked," she said. "It perpetuates itself."

Representatives from Nestle and Ross Laboratories, two major manufacturers of infant formula, refused to comment on their company's advertising campaigns.

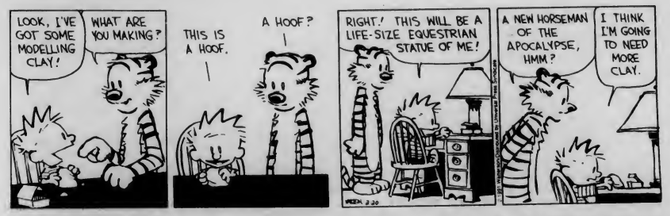
DOONESBURY
By GARRY TRUDEAU

HEY, YOU! CAN'T A GUY SLEEP OUTDOORS IN PEACE?
RUM! PA! RUM!
PEACE IS WHAT THIS IS ALL ABOUT, BROTHER. WE'RE GOING TO BEAT OUR DRUMS UNTIL BUSH COMES TO HIS SENSES!
RUM! RUM!
COULD YOU USE A BASS PLAYER?
A BASS PLAYER? SURE!
PA PUM! PA RUM!
BUT, ELMONT— YOU SUPPORT THE WAR!
DAMMIT, WOMAN, A GI'S A GI!
CAN YOU PLAY AT 99 DECIBELS?
RUM! RUM!

THE FAR SIDE
By GARY LARSON

Famous patrons of Chez Rotting Carcass

CALVIN AND HOBBES
By BILL WATTERSON



LOOK, I'VE GOT SOME MODELLING CLAY!
WHAT ARE YOU MAKING?
THIS IS A HOOF.
A HOOF?
RIGHT! THIS WILL BE A LIFE-SIZE EQUESTRIAN STATUE OF ME!
A NEW HORSEMAN OF THE APOCALYPSE, HMM?
I THINK I'M GOING TO NEED MORE CLAY.

FROTTER
By GARRY PORTER

WHA...? WHAT ARE YOU HIDING IN THERE?
NOTHING YOU'D CARE TO KNOW ABOUT.
OPEN THAT NOW! WHAT ARE YOU TRYING TO HIDE!
DON'T SAY I DIDN'T WARN YOU.
GOOD GOD! I THOUGHT WE HAD FINALLY SHUT THEM ALL UP.
YOU GOTTA BE SURE TO KEEP A LID ON 'EM.

SNOOKY LANSON
By E. VEZINA & R. SHAUGHNESSY

THANKS MR DRUSKY! I REALLY APPRECIATE THIS OPPORTUNITY TO EARN SOME EXTRA MONEY.
SURE SNOOKY! I'M GLAD TO HELP A HARD-WORKING COLLEGE STUDENT ANY WAY I CAN.
IT'S A GREAT JOB AND IT'LL LOOK DAMN GOOD ON A RESUME!
SO HOW 'BOUT GETTING STARTED EH?
CALL ME OVER WHEN YOU HIT SIX FEET!

TANGELO PIE
By TIM SNIFFEN

Look at all these people, Marcus...
And just think-- Any One of them could want to be my friend!
Then how come nobody has—yup, ANY ONE OF THEM! Or ALL of them, for that matter!

QUOTE OF THE DAY

"Laugh and the world laughs with you, snore and you sleep alone."

— Anthony Burgess

DAILY CROSSWORD PUZZLE
Edited By TRUDE MICHEL JAFFE

ACROSS
1 Yesterday's roast today
5 American coast
8 Play a mandolin
14 Inter —: among other things
15 Machu Picchu inhabitant
16 Prefix meaning sacred
17 Misfortunes
18 Hoodlum
19 Encore
20 Famous flight site
22 Famous race horse of 60's
23 Oust
24 Craggy peak
25 Complainer
29 Judy's daughter
33 Ivan of tennis
37 Caroline's daughter
38 Article
39 Impression
40 Malicious
41 Kind of bloomer
42 Asparagus, for one
43 Concerning
44 Poet Thomas
45 Crushed
46 Fencing parry
48 Sunset
50 Stars, in kindergarten
55 Physicist Nikola —
58 Sneak
61 Benefit
62 Site of Bryce Canyon
63 Old horse poem
64 Chinese tea
65 "Venerable" historian
66 Stravinsky
67 Regarding 68 Expel
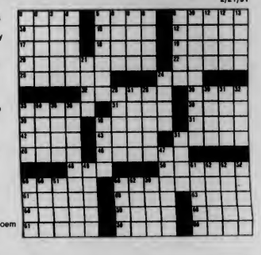
69 Swallow

DOWN
1 Japanese poem
2 Exhausted
3 Obstructs, as a channel, with "up"
4 Dispatch
5 Junior High grade
6 Dwarf buffalo
7 Tub
8 Think —
9 Military hat
10 Peter Pan's friend
11 Bona fide
12 "Exodus" author
13 Salty lake in California
21 Jolly boat
24 Three-spotted card
26 Shiraz native
27 — Dame de Paris
28 Chemical compound
30 Certain type, for short
31 After epsilon
32 —-Ra
33 Revoke
34 Hessian stream
35 Pianist Peter
36 Lawn intruder
40 Summon
44 Moist
47 Nut
49 Hotel employee
51 Powerful demon of Arabian myth
52 Baton —, La
53 Patron
54 Violinist Isaac
55 Bark cloth
56 Uniform
57 Rice drink
58 Saloons, in Soho
59 Univ. on the Rio Grande
60 Marquis de —

ANSWER TO PREVIOUS PUZZLE:

B	A	S	K	I	S	C	I	L	I	S	P	C	O	B
A	T	T	I	C	S	O	A	T	E	R	A	L	L
C	O	R	N	E	R	S	T	O	N	E	L	E	E
O	M	A		N	O	T	E	S		S	A	L	L	O	W
R	E		A	V	A		P	A	C	E	D
		D	E	E	R	E		B	A	T	H	R	O	B	E
			L	I	E	S		S	O	P		S	A	G
S	O	C	I	O		P	I	P	E		C	O	M	O
E	A	R			S	A	L	A	B	L	E
T	R	O	U	S	E	R	S		A	O	R	T	A
		E	W	E		A	C	K		B	I	L	L	A	D	M
A	F	R	A	I	L		O	R	T	S		A	O	U
C	A	B		P	U	R	S	U	I	T	S
I	D	O		A	D	A	M		E	R	N	I	E
D	E	W		M	E	V	E	R		S	I	S	I	E

2/21/91



MENU

LUNCH	DINNER
Pizza	Burger
Ham on Eye	Jalapeno Shrimp
BASICS LUNCH	BASICS DINNER
Pizza	Stuffed Pepper
Bean Buger	Jalapeno Shrimp

YOUR DAILY HOROSCOPE
By JEANE DIXON

ARIES (March 21-April 19):Unforeseen complications could mar an alliance or your public image. Do not insist on applause. You should take some time out to recharge your batteries.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20): Your captivating personality helps you persuade others to follow your example. A private meeting will be very successful. Give your body the care it deserves. Exercise regularly.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20): Friends and money are not a good mix now. It is a mistake to act on a whim. Dress to impress at a social event. No the unexpected for someone who is in need.

CANCER (June 21-July): A small gamble could pay off handsomely. Let go of the past. Forget an unsatisfying long-distance romance. Build something special with someone who wants to take care of you.

LEO (July 23-Aug 22): It may be difficult to finalize property transactions or domestic arrangements today. Do some writing or illustrating on spec. You could be your own best salesperson! Dine at home tonight.

VIRGO (Aug 23-Sept 22): Financial planning will bring greater peace of mind. Goals that have eluded you are within easy reach. Concentrate on one project at a time. Welcome people willing to speak their minds.

LIBRA (Sept 23-Oct 22): Pay more attention to your diet. Younger family members will follow your example. Use your financial shrewdness to solve a problem before it becomes serious. Your faith in loved one is justified.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov 22-Dec 21): Innovative ideas will boost your career. Make wise investments now and you will enjoy abundant financial success. Recycle old ideas to sve money. Romance looks especially enticing tonight.

CAPRICORN (Dec 22-Jan 19): Your well-organized approach and emotional maturity let you rise above both minor problems and petty people. Short trips, extra chores and written communicatios fill your day.

AQUARIUS (Jan 20-Feb 18): You are an expert at getting your way. Refuse to be drawn into other people's sqabbles. You feel closer than ever to a parent or sibling. A favorite wish will soon come true.

PISCES (Feb 19-March 20): Your strong faith in your abilities helps you make the right career choice. Evaluate your eating patterns before embarking on a diet. Even small changes will make you feel and look better.

STUDENTS: REGISTER TO VOTE IN AMHERST

VOTER REGISTRATION TODAY AND TOMORROW FROM 10 am - 2 pm in the S.U.B.

The town of Amherst is facing a multi-million dollar budget deficit and as a result is planning to eliminate the rent control board. The Housing Review Board is of vital interest to the students of this community because it protects us from rent gouging by Amherst landlords. Its elimination will mean massive increases in our rents at a time when we can least afford it. Our only hope for saving The Board is to vote in the town elections on March 26 and in the override vote of Prop 2½ on May 14. Don't let the town of Amherst eliminate the one service that it provides to students. Register and vote.

Any Questions
call Ted Chambers
253-0462 or 5-2145

Meldrim leads UMass at Smith

By DAN WETZEL
Collegian Staff

While many UMass students went home to Boston this weekend, a member of the women's track team won herself a trip there next weekend. Maureen Meldrim performed well enough at the Smith College Invitational to qualify for the New England Championships, which will be held this Saturday at Boston University.

Meldrim, along with her teammates, had to only travel down route 9 last Saturday in order to tune up for the post season.

"We had some really good performances on Saturday, but Mo Meldrim's was the biggest." coach Julie LaFreniere said.

The sophomore won the 5000-meter race in a time of 18:04.2, well under the 18:40 needed to qualify for New Englands. Her previous best was 18:52, set in December at the Harvard Invitational.

"I was very surprised by her performance," Lafreniere said. "The way she had been running I felt it would be a long shot that she would even qualify, let alone run 18:04. Mo is now the seventh seed in New England — she just shattered what I expected."

Diane Ozzolek also did some shattering this weekend. The junior, while winning the 20-pound weight, broke the school record by throwing 46 feet, 9¼ inches. The previous mark was 45-11 1/4.

"Diane did great. She is looking good going into the postseason," LaFreniere said.

Lennice Johnson returned from tendinitis of the knee to qualify for the Eastern Collegiate Athletic Conference Championships. The sophomore was nipped at the line to finish second in the 500 with a time of 76.8.

"Lennice had not run hard for two weeks and still she performs this well," LaFreniere said. "She was just too determined to let her knee bother her. I was expecting her to be in some pain but she looked great."

Michelle St. Laurent won the 1000-meter race in a time 3:01.3. "Michelle was already qualified and this weekend she looked strong and appears to be in top form," LaFreniere said.

"We have 10 people ready to go to Boston and I am just hoping that they are all healthy when we go," LaFreniere said. "If they are, then this weekend should fun."

Walters sets new record at Dartmouth

By KEITH BENNETT
Collegian Correspondent

Sprinter Kevin Walters established a school record in the 200 meters and also won the 55-meter dash in leading the University of Massachusetts men's track team in its dual meet against Dartmouth University on Saturday.

Dartmouth, the defending New England champions in outdoor track, won the meet with 111 points. UMass scored 60 points to finish ahead of McGill University (20), who competed only against Dartmouth. The Minutemen finished with a 3-4 record in dual meet competition.

The junior broke the tape in the 55 at 6.64 seconds and then set the record of 22.50 in a second place effort in the 200. Walters was one of five Minutemen who won their respective events.

Steve Brown concluded an undefeated dual-meet season in the 500 by winning the event in 1:05.03, which was good enough to qualify him for the IC4As.

Seniors Jon Corso and Gerry Squires grabbed the top two spots in the 3000. Corso won the event in a time of 8:34.95 and Squires finished in 8:45.95.

Jeff White and Paul Doyle also finished first and second in their event. White won the 55 hurdles in 8.01, just ahead of Doyle, who ran 8.22.

Junior Pat Ryan was the only other first place finisher for the Minutemen. He captured the 5000 in 15:19.4.

Several athletes scored in more than one event for UMass. Brian Bednarek placed second in the high jump with a leap of 6 feet, 2 inches. He also tied for third in the pole-vault, along with teammate Dave Borges, with a clearance of 13 feet. Borges also finished in a tie for third in the high-jump (6-2) and placed fourth in the long jump with a leap of 20-7 1/2.

A number of athletes turned in their best performances of the season on Saturday. Among those performances were Matt Simon's second place in the 1000 in 2:30.7, Tom Hooper's third in the 800 (1:59.8) and Mike Grey's third in the 400 in 52.43.

A SubGenius Bedtime Story

sit back, relax and let The SubGenius crawl around
inside
your lucky, lucky skull.

CLASSIFIEDS

COME TO THE COLLEGIAN OFFICE—CC 113 MON — THURS 8:30-3:30 ● DEADLINE 2 DAYS PRIOR TO PUBLICATION ● CASH IN ADVANCE, 20¢/WORD/DAY FOR STUDENTS

ACTIVITIES

SOUTH ASIAN CLUB
Elections tonight!
7pm-Rm 911CC
All are welcome

ANNOUNCEMENTS

200 EXTRAS NEEDED
For Union Video Center art video called Right Through the Wall. Shoot will happen Sunday March 3rd. Sign up through Union Video Center (545-1336) or Tracy at 586-4318. If you believe in dreams, we need you.

AXO
Come open rush Alpha Chi
Join us for dinner two nights this week - find out what we are all about!
5:15 Wednesday 2/20
5:15 Thursday 2/21

ALPHA PHI OMEGA -The National Service Fraternity- RUSH, 2/20 Hampden- So side room, 2/21 Cashin, all meetings 6:30

BED AND BREAKFAST- downtown ideal for visiting parents and friends- 549-0733.

BOLTWOOD PROJECT
Fun, friends, credit. Become a friend to a person with special needs. Last meeting TONIGHT! Rm 804-808 7:00pm.

DELTA ZETA invites all University Women to open rush. Parties will begin at 6pm on Wednesday, Thursday & Friday.

DRAFT INFORMATION SESSION -All you want to know & more! Lewis basement Sunday, February 24th 7pm -sponsored by AFSC & NE/Sylvan Area.

DRUM-award winning Black Arts and Literature magazine-now accepting submissions. 115 NAH

PHI ALPHA THETA Int'l History Honors Society accepting applications from new members. Info-applications in History office Herter. Deadline 2/28

SHLOCK ROCK CONCERT tonight 8:00 Campus Center Auditorium sponsored by Hillel -Don't miss the sneak preview on concourse today.

TR-SIGMA OPEN RUSH!
Tuesday 2/19 through Monday 2/25
Call: 549-3811 for information or come by 367 N. Pleasant St.

ULTIMATE FRISBEE PRACTICES open to everyone! Indoors, Tuesday and Thursday evenings. For info call Jed at 256-8799 or Jason 549-4280!

VOLUNTEER FAIR!!! TODAY!
11am-2:30. Volunteer coordinators from local community service agencies will be there. Don't miss out!!!

AUTO FOR SALE

1981 CITATION Mechanically sound body damaged parts or fixit $150 253-4057

ESTABLISH CREDIT

DISCOVER CARDS
No cost to apply
Call Mark 546-4814
Leave message

FOR RENT

AMHERST, 1 BEDROOM AVAILABLE IN 3 BEDROOM, NEW HOUSE ON BUS LINE. FIREPLACE, BEAUTIFUL!! AVAILABLE NOW CALL 8-4, 665-3326

AMHERST CENTER, quiet room, bus, walk UMass -$275- laundry, utilities included -549-0484

FRIDGE RENTALS CALL R + P 253-9742

HIPPEST HOUSE in the world wants housemate -Hatfield, rustic, 5 min from Noho 230 + 247-5248

WINTER SPECIAL: 1 month rent .99 cents with one year lease.
2 bedroom- $450
3 bedroom- $537
Sunderland, Free bus route, laundry facilities, swimming pool, garden plots, short term lease available 665-3856.

FOR SALE

5 STRING BANJO -Bluegrass style $125 247-5248

COUCH (queen size bed) $70 665-3974

FUTONS
Metawampe
For all your futon needs
Available anywhere in U.S.A.
Great to sleep on with your sexy valentine
Call to order
1-800-3FUTON1

SONY 13" COLOR TV, cable-ready, great picture, perfect for dorm. $70/BO 665-2831

WHY WAIT IN LINE? Two Tempie tickets. 665-7426. Leave Message.

ZENITH 248 PERSONAL COMPUTER, IBM compatible, 5.25" dual disk drive, Monochrome monitor,, Logitech mouse, Hundreds of dollars worth of software including Word 5.0, Paint/Write, and Lotus 1-2-3. Asking $850 negotiable
Call Cindy 665-8020

FOUND

HAT
At Haigus Mall
Call Matthew 253-7699

HELP WANTED

DON'T GET A JOB —Get a business! Student painters offers highly motivated students practical experience and earnings averaging $5,000-7000 for the summer. Please call 1-800-922-5579.

EARN $300 to $500 per week reading books at home -Call 1-615-473-7440 Ext. B-281

GREAT SUMMER OPPORTUNITY
Jewish co-ed residential camp seeks counselors and specialists. Capitol Camps, located in the beautiful Catoctin Mountains, one hour from Washington DC offers tennis, water sports, nature, arts, video, gymnastics, radio, drama, journalism, etc. If you are interested in the challenges and excitement of working with campers in grades 3-10, we want you on our team. Good salaries, great fun! Our director will be at the camp fair on March 5. For more information and an appointment, call 1-800-783-2208

INTELLIGENCE JOBS. All branches US Customs, DEA ect. Now hiring. Call 1-805-962-8000 Ext. K-9616.

NEWSPAPER DELIVERERS NEEDED in UMASS dorms. No car required. 7-8am 7 days/week. Call 253-7009

SMALL VERMONT CAMP for girls seeks committed counselors in horsemanship, wilderness trips, watersports, photography, rides, and more. Sherry Osborn, Camp Catherine Caspers 25 Shawmut Ave. Apt UM Wayland MA 01778 (508)650-1866

INSTRUCTION

EARN CREDIT learn to Scuba Dive. Basic Classes held Monday, Tuesday, Wednesday, and Thursday 7-10PM in Curry Hicks Pool . Open Water II class held during Spring Break in Key Largo, FLA. Advanced Class held in New England in April. For further information call 549-8401, or drop by Curry Hicks starting 2/4/91.

LOST

I LOST MY WATCH!!
12/12 in Boyden women's locker room. Black leather strap, black face w/gold II found please call 549-8028

PERSONALS

CONGRATS TO THE BETAS of Alpha Epsilon Phi. We love you all. Love the Alphas

JA'
Sorry it had to be this way but I only did what's best. I hope I didn't spoil everything.
Happy belated V-day
-Marc

 JENNIFER JACKSON ***
Happy Birthday - you sexy goddese you!!! Have a fantastic 19th!
Love, Monica and Jen C.

RESUME SERVICE

PERSONALIZED CONSULTATION or laser printing of your original. 549-0367

ROOMMATE WANTED

ROOMMATE NEEDED FOR one open bedroom in Squire Village townhouse. Male or female for $165/month. On bus route. Call Stephania or Lesley anytime at 665-4090.

SERVICES

AEROBICS NAUTILUS STAIRMASTERS
Lifecycles, freeweights, treadmill, gravitron, step-classes, karate.
Amharst Athletic Club. 256-0080.

DIRT CHEAP RESUMES
Counseling, overnight laserprinting
$20, Lisa or Charlie- 665-2831.

PREGNANT?
Need a pregnancy test, information or support? Call for free and confidential services
ALTERNATIVES 33 Main Street Northampton 586-3000 or Greenfield 774-6010

SERVICES/WORDPROCESSING

DISSERTATIONS, CASES, PAPERS,
On-campus pickup. Fast! Accurate!
Mac/Laser. Spellcheck
Nancy 584-7924

SPRING BREAK

SPRING BREAK PARTY!
Travel to Jamacia, Mexico! And Panama City. Fi ll Concerts! Free Parties! Club discounts! And lots more! For info call Denise 546-7156.

SUBLET

GREAT APARTMENT 2 mi. off campus - North Amherst -Big yard, storage, perfect for two people. Available now! Call 549-6027

TRAVEL

CARIBBEAN - $189!
The warmth of the Caribbean or Mexican coast for a week!
R/T air, SUNHITCH + m, 212-864-2000.

MONTREAL WEEKENDS $89 Price includes round trip motorcoach 3 days 2 nights Hotel Suite, Breakfast FREE admission to Club Metropolis.
Reliable Tours
365 Broadway Rt.1
Lynnfield, MA 01940
617-598-9930

SPRING BREAK TO DAYTONA!
Travel with YANKEE LINE TOURS via deluxe motorcoach March 15-24, 1991.
Campus pick-up and drop-off!
First class hotel accommodations!
Best location, excellent nightlife!
Only $259.00 (quad occ)
For more info contact Scott
(413) 256-0029
Reserve your spot before it's too late!

FLORIDA'S NEWEST HOT SPOT
Panama City-$139
World's Biggest Beach PARTY
Daytona Beach-$189
Call Erika + Julie at 546-2649 or Siobhan + Terri at 546-5079.

VOUCHER TWA -Book before Feb 22 $400- for $200 -Tel 535-2306

WAKE-N-BAKE!!! Spring Break '91!!
Jamaica from $429.00
Cancun from $399.00
A week of fun and sun! The hottest distinations 1-800-426-7710.

TYPING

CHEAP RATES, fast, accurate, dependable, campus pickup and delivery. Adam 253-9117

WORDPROCESSING, FAST, $1.45/page -549-0484

WANTED

CASH FOR GOLD. Unwanted jewlery? Necklacas, watches, rings We buy anything containing gold. Call 546-3399

WE WANT TO take over your house lease for next year starting in June or August. Call 549-7133

SPORTS

Rhode Island denies Minutewomen

Despite 25 points from McCusker, comeback falls short, 67-55

By GREG SUKIENNIK
Collegian Staff

Despite a second half comeback attempt and 25 points from Keyburn McCusker, the University of Massachusetts women's basketball team was unable to overcome a 41-26 halftime deficit, losing 67-55 to the University of Rhode Island last night in Kingston, R.I.

The WRams, now 6-18 overall and 2-13 in the Atlantic-10 , beefited from 26 UMass turnovers. Three three-point goals from Kathy Greenberg, two of which helped the WRams build their halftime advantage, also helped to keep the Minutewomen at bay. UMass falls to 0-24 overall and 0-16 in the A-10.

The Minutewomen had closed the gap to five, 49-44, with eight minutes left by way of an 18-8 run. But Rhody's Mellisa Udicious nailed a 15 — foot jumpshot to end the run and help the WRams regain control of the game.

McCusker, who played the entire contest, kept UMass close in the first half by shooting 9 for 12 from the field. She finished at 12 for 18 from the field on the game, and her 25 points led all scorers. Greenberg led Rhody with 23 points.

However, 26 turnovers, including 18 in the first half, hurt UMass' bid to claim their first win of the season. Also, UMass only visited the foul line six times, while Rhody got 17 chances from the foul line.

Another problem for UMass was offensive balance. While McCusker was posting all — Conference calibre numbers, her teammates were shooting at combined 14 for 37, 37.8 percent clip. The WRams shot 45 percent as a team.

Greenberg, who moved into tenth place on Rhode Island's all-time women's scoring list with her 23 point effort, also added five assists six steals from her guard position to spur on the WRams to their second A-10 win of the year.

Lisa Ireland and Kim Kristofik also turned in double — figure scoring nights for the Minutewomen. Ireland scored 11 points, including a three — point basket, while Kristofik added ten points and grabbed a team-high nine rebounds.

For the WRams, Jen Vaughn was the only player besides Greenberg to hit double — figures. She scored 15 points and hauled down nine rebounds. Teammate Monica Garnes led all players with 10 boards.

While the Minutewomen did come as close to winning as they have all year, they return home with two more regular — season chances to come out on the top end of the score. Those chances include Temple, on February 23rd, and Rhode Island once more on March 2nd. UMass will then most likely hit the road for the opening round of the Atlantic-10 tournament. Opening round games are played at the site of the higher — seeded team.

Rhode Island, 67-55

Massachusetts (55)
Ireland 5-10 0-0 11; Kristofik 5-15 0-0 10; McCusker 12-18 1-2 25; Valentine 2-5 2-2 6; Schusler 1-4 1-2 3; Moran 0-3 0-0 0; Hesser 0-0 0-0 0; Muza 0-0 0-0 0; Nevarez 0-0 0-0 0. Totals 25-55 4-6 55

Rhode Island (67)
Garnes 1-4 3-5 5; Kelsen 3-12 3-4 9; Vaughn 7-12 1-3 15; Baines 0-2 3-4 3; Greenberg 10-17 0-1 23; Webster 0-2 0-0 0; Udicious 1-2 0-0 2; Malone 5-9 0-0 10. Totals 27-60 10-17 67

Halftime Massachusetts 26, Rhode Island 41. Three point goals Greenberg (3), Ireland. Rebounds Massachusetts 36 (Kristofik 9), Rhode Island 33 (Garnes 10). Assists Massachusetts 12 (Schusler 5), Rhode Island 14 (Greenberg 5). Total fouls Massachusetts 16, Rhode Island 9. Fouled out none. A – 150.

Collegian photo by Eric Goldman

Freshman point guard Jessica Schusler attempts to beat a St. Joseph's defender in an earlier A-10 game at the Cage.

Mark Macon

Macon to grace the Cage one last time

By SAM SILVERSTEIN
Collegian Staff

Lots of basketball players are graced with a nice touch. Few are touched with grace.

Temple senior guard Mark Macon, who will make his last Cage appearance at Thursday night's University of Massachusetts-Temple men's basketball game, is one of those few.

Macon is Temple's all-time leading scorer (2,458 points entering last night's game with Rhode Island), and ranks 14th in NCAA history in steals. He has started every game Temple has played in the last four years, spanning 120 games.

After a freshman season that saw the Owls ranked No. 1 in the nation for much of February and into March, Macon was one of 11 finalists for the Wooden award, given annually to the best college player in the United States.

Double and triple-teams and a void at point guard hurt his numbers slightly in his sophomore and junior years, and some fair- weather fans jumped off the bandwagon.

This winter Macon has returned, if he ever left. With Vic Carstarphen anchoring the point guard spot and forward Mik Kilgore shooting well enough to absorb some defensive attention, Macon has hit 44 percent of his shots from the floor and an Atlantic 10-best 41 percent from three-point land.

Shooting statistics aside, Macon is a precious example of the complete basketball package; he is defensively skilled and smart, poised and passionate about the game.

"His preparation for what you end up seeing on TV is on a constant level, and that's a big part of his success," Temple Assistant Coach Dean Demopoulos describes. "He has done that for a large portion of his life. That along with great natural skills has allowed him to reach the level he has attained.

"His first day at practice he was down among the big guys, which I coach. The next thing I knew, and I was looking directly at him, he was on the other side of the lane, and I didn't see him get there. It was the first time that ever happened to me and I knew then he was something different."

Demopoulos, who has seen Macon in practice and on the team bus, defends him to those who read 'aloofness' in his frozen, focused game-face.

"He doesn't get into what outsiders feel," Demopoulos says. "He knows that what he senses and what the coaching staff asks him is all he should care about. He doesn't care about other people's opinions."

Says teammate Michael Harden, who entered Temple with the 6-foot-5, 185-pound McDonald's All-American out of Buena Vista High School in Saginaw, Mich, "He's gotten wiser. He's above a lot of what people think of him.

"People can't really see how great how he is. He does little things that people don't see. His overall presence . . . when he's on the floor, you know he can explode at any time.

"Just having to guard him [in practice] every day, you can feel how good he is. You cannot relax. When the ball's away from him, he'll find it. My sophomore year I had to guard him every day and it was an experience."

Macon has averaged 21.5 points in eight ga?????the-ages at the Cage.

"People can't really see in the stands how smart a ballplayer he is," says UMass forward Jim McCoy. "When he goes to the pros, people are going to see a guy who can play three positions. I think he's proven to everybody this year that he is a first round [NBA] draft pick."

Macon has been known to post the occasional 5 for 21 boxscore, as he did in this season's first UMass-Temple meeting in Philadelphia. On those nights, those parts of his game that do not show up in the paper come to the surface.

"He cares. He's not boisterous. He just like to go out and kick your butt every night, and he'll do anything he can to do that," McCoy says. "If you play against him and feel his hits, you know he doesn't like to lose."

All 2,400 student tickets for Thursday's game were handed out without incident yesterday afternoon at the Cage yesterday, according to Acting Athletic Ticket Manager Thorr Bjorn. The tickets were distributed in less than two hours, with the line stretching from the Cage to the Whitmore parking lot at its longest.

Seniors to lead UM to fifth New England title

By THOMAS A. GEORGE
Collegian Correspondent

Pound for pound, the University of Massachusetts men's swim program holds a winning percentage that is, to be modest, good.

Over the past five seasons, the program has compiled an astounding 56-4 record. This can be greatly attributed to the gang of nine seniors who will be entering the last postseason of their collegiate careers on Thursday in the New England Championships at University of Rhode Island.

The team is gunning for the fifth New England Championship in as many years. All seven senior swimmers will be competing.

Tri-captains Evan Gwilliam, Pete Reich and Jim Robertson will be leading the pack to success.

Gwilliam, an English major from Seekonk, MA, is the butterfly specialist on the squad, swimming the 100- and 200-yard sprints. He hopes to attend graduate school in the Washington D.C. area. Gwilliam is considered the mouth of the team, as he colorfully points out, "Human beings have eyebrows to keep the sweat away from the eyes." He promises to shave his eyebrows for the upcoming races.

In competitive swimming there is a psychological edge that a swimmer can achieve by shaving down and sloughing off the hair and first layer of skin, exposing the nerves. When the swimmer hits the water, the sensation is similar to a turbo charger. Also, shaving reduces drag, and with top level competition wins separated by fractions of seconds, the effect of shaved and tapered troops can make a difference between first and second place.

Reich, a 6-foot-3, 180-pounder, swims the middle distance and sprints in the freestyle. A zoology major from Branford, CT, this dental school hopeful says his goals are to qualify for the Eastern Seaboard Conference meet in the 200 freestyle.

The Easterns are to be held on February 28 in Princeton, NJ. It is the equivalent to ECAC competition in other sports, but is tailored for Ivy league competitors. Controversy surrounds the Easterns because all other schools need to post higher scores, and lower times than that of their Ivy league adversaries, according to UMass coach Russ Yarworth.

Robertson, the senior tri-captain, is shooting to finish within the top four in New England. A freestyler from Newton, he says his options are limitless after his graduation from UMass. At 6-foot-2 and 185 pounds, Robertson completes the trio nicely.

Senior Scott Milbert knows that the swimming program will be close to his family, at least for the next four years. In fact, not only will there be another Milbert swimming for UMass, there will probably be another Reich and Robertson as well. All three seniors have younger brothers that have verbally committed to the University.

Milbert, who hails from Bridgewater, is an engineering major who plans on some international travel after May. A distance freestyler, his goals include a 1.41:55 in the 200 free, and a shot at the Easterns.

Frank Sampson, a physical education major from Melrose, is the individual medley and backstroke star. After hoping to reach his goal of top three in New England, Sampson envisions teaching high school or returning for graduate work.

There are two senior divers who will go to work on the one- and three-meter boards. Bill Rozen and Rich Dockery will look to haul down some points away from the Maine divers, who have a small juggernaut rising. Rozen is looking for a personal best of over 242 in the three-meter event.

Largest College Daily in New England

THE MASSACHUSETTS DAILY COLLEGIAN Established in 1890

VOLUME C THURSDAY, FEBRUARY 21, 1991 ISSUE 86

Levey described as 'gentle'

Friend, former teacher remember intense man, eloquent writer

By MEREDITH O'BRIEN
Collegian Staff

To many people, Gregory Levey's death is beyond comprehension.

Levey, 30, an Amherst resident and 1984 University of Massachusetts graduate, has been called a "wacko" and "insane" for dousing himself with two gallons of paint thinner and setting himself on fire Monday afternoon on the Amherst Town Common — apparently to protest the Persian Gulf War. Minutes earlier, Levey had set down a sign saying "Peace."

To one of his closest friends, this misperception about Gregory Levey "the person" was too much to bear.

"I think a lot of people who do things like this are wacko, but not this kid; he was right there. He is just misconstrued to be crazy," said Charles F. Carroll, who met Levey at UMass 10 years ago.

"He deserves credit for what he did," said Carroll, an Amherst resident and UMass Ph.D candidate in communications. "He put his life on the line for something he believed in. I don't think I would be strong enough to do something like this."

The last conversation Carroll had with Levey was on Dec. 22. Among the topics they discussed were the military build-up in the Persian Gulf, the impending war and the self-immolation of Buddhists who protested the Vietnam War.

"I remember talking with him about the value of life and really discussing the pros and cons of this act [self-immolation]," Carroll said. "He knew all about the implications of this type of act. The Vietnam monks made a profound impression on him for their integrity."

During the Vietnam War, several Buddhists in Vietnam set themselves on fire in protest of the war. Carroll said both he and Levey were Buddhists.

He said they had talked for at least an hour about the Middle East situation, which he said profoundly affected Levey.

"He was absolutely clear about the imminent invasion," Carroll said. "He was just horrified, I know he used the word 'heinous' to describe the whole war theater. He had some of the deepest anti-war feelings I've ever seen. But I had no idea he was considering this."

Described as a quiet, eloquent, intense and gentle man, Levey was the son of Boston Globe food critic Robert Levey and stepson of Pulitzer Prize winning columnist Ellen Goodman. He lived alone in Amherst and worked as a substitute teacher at the South Hadley branch of the Hampshire Educational Collaborative.

CONTINUED ON PAGE 3

UM provost a candidate at Arizona

By MARK HENSLEY
Collegian Staff

University of Massachusetts Provost Richard D. O'Brien confirmed yesterday that he is one of several hundred candidates nominated for the presidency of the University of Arizona in Tuscon.

O'Brien said his candidacy was not significant at this point and that it was normal for administrators to receive two or three nominations a year.

"If I worried about every nomination Chancellor Duffey received, I wouldn't get much sleep at night," he said.

O'Brien did say, however, that he was "keeping all doors open" and if the right opportunity arose he would consider leaving UMass because of the financial problems and the "flux" in higher education.

Officials from the Arizona Board of Regents would not confirm or deny his candidacy but said the list of nominees

CONTINUED ON PAGE 2

War discussed during 'Day of Education'

By TAMIR LIPTON
Collegian Staff

As the U.S. military continued to prepare for a ground offensive against Iraqi forces yesterday, several University of Massachusetts faculty members held a seven-hour lecture series in the Cape Cod Lounge about the war and its far-reaching effects.

Called a "Day of Education," the speeches ranged from economics to the "linkage" of the Palestinian issue to the war. Other topics were media coverage of the war, President Bush's motives, and racism and sexism in the Gulf and at home.

"The goal is to inform people about the war," said Robert Wolff, a professor in the philosophy department. "I view this as a time when citizens talk about the day's events. This is an attempt to make things less puzzling."

Students shuffled in and out throughout the day, leaving the room always filled to capacity. After each speaker, there was a question and answer period.

"It's pointless to predict what's going to happen," Wolff said. "We'll know what happens in a matter of days or weeks.

"It's more important for us to understand what is happening," he said. "Bush very much wants a ground war and therefore it's almost certain that we'll have one."

Communications Professor Sut Jhally said, "A ground war is not going to be as clean," as the American government thinks, and cautioned students to view television coverage critically.

"We need to rethink what television is all about," Jhally said. "It's not a free press. The media are institutions that operate by selling advertisements to us."

Justin Lewis, also a professor of communications, said the war reflects the United States' desire to gain control of the oil regions in the Middle East.

"I guarantee that when the war is over, the U.S. military does not leave," he said. "This is not just a war about the liberation of Kuwait, it's a war about conditions and linkage. Even if Iraq agreed to the Soviet proposal, the war will only end when Iraq is demoralized."

Senate tries and fails to remove speaker and treasurer

By MARC ELLIOTT
Collegian Staff

The Undergraduate Student Senate tried to expel Senate Speaker Dan Chesnicka and Treasurer Karen Talbot from their positions last night but failed because there were not enough senators present to make the vote count.

The failure marks the second week in a row that a vote has failed in the senate because of a lack of 'quorum,' which dictates that more than half of the senate must be present for a vote to count.

Several senators said the failure was not caused by a lack of interest, but by a political strategy led by Student Trustee Angus McQuilken to block progress in the senate.

McQuilken admitted that the failure to meet quorum was a deliberate act by the motion's opponents.

"Yes, I am trying to break quorum," McQuilken said. "A 35-member senate is an unnacceptable injustice."

"People call this a side-stepping of democracy," he said. "A prerequisite of democracy is that those who make the decisions must represent someone, and be accountable to someone. This does not describe our 'Senate' and every student on this campus knows it."

There were 67 senators as of last night, a number that changes frequently because senators are dropped after three absences, said Sen. Jeff Turco (Brown).

Last night 22 of the 41 who attended voted in favor of the motion. During the 45-minute debate before the vote, several senators left the room to break quorum.

Many senators said they were angered and frustrated by the action and viewed it as an attack on democracy.

"I find it distressing when people who had committed themselves to representing their fellow undergraduates in a democratically elected body chose to shirk their duty and disrupt the democratic institution which they have sworn to serve, as did the senate speaker and treasurer," said Sen. Ken Parker (Commuters).

Had the meeting continued, the removal of SGA President Natasha Diephuis would have been the next item on the agenda.

Diephuis spoke briefly during the debate and repeated her reasoning behind the officers' actions three weeks ago when they requested that the UMass administration step in and restructure the student government.

"I was elected by the student body of this campus and I represent the students of this campus when I say that the Senate and the Board of Governors, as they are now structured, do not work for students," she said. "We need to restructure, and the senate can't accept that."

SGA Registrar Rebecca Rudko, who was among the officers who asked the administration to step in, voted on the motion and refused to leave and break quorum.

"I feel it's my duty to continue to stick to it to the end," she said. "I've made it to the end of every meeting."

Sen. Patricia Donoghue (Cashin) and Sen. David Gagne (McNamara) distributed a petition asking Gov. Weld to remove McQuilken after discovering that the senate did not have the authority to do it themselves.

Collegian photo by Jeff Holland

Will Herndon, junior forward, reaches for the basket

Temple bounces into Cage starless for tonight's game

By SAM SILVERSTEIN
Collegian Staff

Temple University star Mark Macon turned an ankle in the final seconds of the Owls' stunning 63-62 loss to Rhode Island Tuesday night at McGonigle Hall in Philadelphia, and is "definitely" out of tonight's 7:30 p.m. Temple-University of Massachusetts men's basketball game at the Cage, Temple officials said last night.

Macon left the arena on crutches and was X-rayed at Temple University Hospital yesterday; the ankle was found to be "significantly" sprained. Macon, who has started 120 consecutive games dating back to his first day in a Temple uniform, has been outfitted with a cast and will be evaluated "day to day," according to the Temple Sports Information office.

With or without Macon however, Temple is still Temple, whom the Minutemen have never beaten in 19 attempts dating back to 1982. The last three meetings between these two teams have been decided by a total of five points, including last February's intense triple-overtime circus at the Cage.

"We've never beaten them with or without Macon," said UMass coach John Calipari, who is taking an I'll-believe-it-when-I-see-it approach to the injury. "They've got three terrific players in [Mark] Strickland, [Donald] Hodge, and [Mik] Kilgore, and [Vic] Carstarphen will try to take the game into his hands.

"They're going to be playing mean and mad and a little bit cornered because of that injury. They're going to come out fighting," he said.

The Owls, 18-7 overall and 11-4 in the Atlantic 10, trail first-place Rutgers in the A-10 race by a game.

CONTINUED ON PAGE 12

INSIDE:

THURSDAY, FEBRUARY 21, 1991
Page 3:
Five College professors lecture on Persian Gulf War.
Pages 4 and 5:
Students debate the UMass administration's involvement in the restructuring of the SGA.
This Weekend:
Read about an upcoming play that might challenge your beliefs about Christianity.

WEATHER

Today is cold but HEY! tomorrow there's sun with highs in the 50's. How about those New England mind games, huh!

ALL AGES—ALL SHOWS
AT THE
COMEDY ZONE
FRIDAY & SATURDAY 8:30 pm
When you want the BEST•
Fried Rice • Spare Ribs • Buffet
•Live Comedy•
•Advocate 'Best of the Valley' reader poll 1990
Mon-Thurs 5pm-8pm
ALL YOU CAN EAT BUFFET
$5.99
11:30am-3pm
ALL YOU CAN EAT SUNDAY BRUNCH
$6.99
20%
OFF DINNER for Comedy Patrons
Comedy info & reservations 585-8615
北京園
PEKING GARDEN
Mandarin/Szechuen Cuisine
Open 7 Days
Route 9-Russell St. Hadley 586-1202

FREE POOL
21 and over
ALL DAY EVERYDAY
21 and over
ROLLING ROCK BOTTLES
$1.75
• 9ft Championship Tables
• Six Large Screen TVs with your favorite sports action
• Full Bar
• Drafts in ice cold mugs
• 25 cent hot dogs
• Pizza and burritos
• Full appetizer menu
• Weekly giveaways
• Great for couples
CASH PRIZES
Pool Tournament
Thursday Nights 7:30
Open:
Mon-Sat Noon-1am
Sun 1 pm-1 am
MICHAEL'S
Billiard Room
And Sports Bar
Rt. 9, Amherst, 256-8284
(Next to Hunan Garden)

Don't Miss
The Annual UMASS
B'Nai Brith Hillel
LATKE VS. HAMANTASH
Debate

FEATURING DISTINGUISHED DEBATERS
For the Latke: For the Hamantash:
LARRY MONETA: Associate Director of Housing Services for Residential Education "The Latke: The Essential Ingredient to a Quality Student Life"
EMANUEL RUBIN: Professor of Music "History "Wagner's Secret Opera: Der Fliegende Hamantash" "The Flying Hamantash"
SUSAN WHITBOURNE: Professor of Psychology "Confessions of an L.L.A. (Latke Lover Anonymous)"
FELICE YESKEL: Coordinator of the Program for Gay, Lesbian, and Bisexual Concerns "The Hamantash: A Feminist Analysis"
Sunday, February 24
11:00 am, Brunch
12:00 pm, Debate
Hillel House at UMass, 388 N. Pleasant St. Amherst

■ provost

CONTINUED FROM PAGE 1

had been narrowed to 48. It is not known whether O'Brien is still in the running because the officials said they would not release names until the interviews begin next month.

The current president, Henry Koffler, was chancellor of the UMass/Amherst campus from 1979 to 1982 before leaving for Arizona.

Koffler underwent a quadruple bypass nine days ago, the student newspaper, the Arizona Daily Wildcat, reported. He apparently wants to resign in order to teach for a few years before retiring, the newspaper said.

About 36,000 undergraduate and graduate students attend the university, which has an annual budget of about $350 million.

Like UMass, Arizona has been having budget difficulties because of the faltering economy.

GLOBAL TICKET EXCHANGE
(413) 747-9922
NEIL YOUNG 2/19 Hartford
HALL & OATES 2/16 Spfld
LIVING COLOR 2/16
STING 3/8 Hartford
VANILLA ICE New Haven & Spfld.
INXS 3/26 Hartford
PAUL SIMON Hartford
RED SOX — BRUINS — WHALERS & CELTIC tickets.
All concerts — sports & theater tickets
1605 Main St. Springfield • (413) 747-9922
0423100B

BETTY RULES!
February 24
Show starts at 8:00 p.m.
JOHN M. GREENE HALL
Smith College Campus
Doors and Box Office Open at 7:00 p.m.
General Admission
Five College Students $5
General Public $8
$10 at the door
On sale at For the Record, Amherst
sponsored by Smithg Lesbian-Bisexual Alliance and Women s Resource Center

THE MASSACHUSETTS
DAILY COLLEGIAN
New England's largest college daily newspaper. Circulation: 19,000. Published every weekday during the calendar semester. The Massachusetts Daily Collegian is a Registered Student Organization of the University of Massachusetts.
113 Campus Center, Amherst, MA. 01003
Phone (413) 545-3500 FAX (413) 545-1592

STAFF
Editor in Chief ..... Terry Starmer
Managing Editor ..... Jody Gabin
Editorial Editor ..... Jeremy Levinson
News Editor ..... Gayle Long
Sports Editor ..... Adrien Matt
Arts Editor ..... Danielle Dowling
Photography Editor ..... K.A. Burke
Black Affairs Editor ..... Sondra Sutton
Women's Issues Editors ..... Rua Kelly, Monique Tabon
Multicultural Affairs Editor ..... Alexander Nguyen
Third World Affairs Editor ..... Pramp Dastidar
Lesbian, Bisexual, Gay Issues Editor ..... Trystan Sheigh
Business Manager ..... Susan George
Advertising Manager ..... Dave Melnick
Finance Manager ..... Beth Patterson
Circulation Manager ..... Jim Winterbottom
Subscriptions Manager ..... Stacey Rogers
Promotions Manager ..... Marc Pruskin
Production Manager ..... Nicole Dumas
Day Graphics Manager ..... Jenn Burns

PROFESSIONAL STAFF
Business ..... Brian Harrington, Lori Black, Maureen Majewski
Graphics ..... Rory Evans

TODAY'S STAFF
Night Editor ..... Nana Sacchetti
Copy Editor ..... Yana I Have Real Equipment Bluy
Layout Technician ..... Seth Kaye
Photo Technician ..... Jeff Holland
Production Supervisor ..... Seth Kaye
Typesetter ..... Joanne Quimby
Production ..... Lisa Jezowski, Ali Woolwich, Mike Reekie, Brad Hutchison

The Quill on Green Street's
GREEN DOT SALE
Any Book with a Green Dot gets you
50% Off the Quill's Regular Price.
50% Off Most Children's Books
Recent Best Sellers
All Travel Books
Most Hard Bound Books
MON. - FRI. 8:30AM - 5:30PM • SAT.10:00AM - 4:00PM
VISA
QUILL BOOKSHOP
100 GREEN STREET NORTHAMPTON, MASS
MasterCard

LOCAL

Profs try to put war into historical perspective

By JASON GEORGE
Collegian Staff

While many eyes focus on the possibility of a United States ground attack against Iraqi forces and the viability of the Soviet peace initiative, three Five College faculty members last night cautioned students to see the current developments from a broader historical perspective.

Professors Robert Haddad of Smith College, Mary Wilson of University of Massachusetts, and Jonathon Berkey of Mount Holyoke College addressed a crowd of about 50 in Thompson Hall as part of the Five College Program in Peace and World Security Studies' "Update on the Persian Gulf Crisis."

Haddad, of Smith's history department, opened his talk by warning that all of the information pertaining to the war will not be fully available for another 50 years or so.

Nonetheless, Haddad was able to offer his views on the crisis, which were openly critical of the way the United States "stumbled" into the Persian Gulf War.

"I don't see the political objectives to be gained by the U.S in this war," Haddad said.

Haddad asserted that the United States is trying to get rid of Iraqi President Saddam Hussein, who is seen as a "threat to the Middle East which was familiar to the U.S."

He said the "familiar" Middle East, primarily Kuwait and Saudi Arabia, was a region where the United States was able to exert indirect control over oil.

Both Wilson, a history professor, and Berkey, a professor of religion, focused on the history leading up to the current crisis.

"Not only do the symptoms of this crisis, but also the causes, need to be addressed," Wilson said.

She cited the Palestinian and other Arab-Israeli conflicts, the unequal distribution of wealth in the Middle East, the spread of democracy in the region, and regional disarmament as issues which must be addressed to ensure lasting stability.

Berkey pointed to the "struggle to find a legitimate form of government in the Arab world" as the key issue in the war and surrounding events.

"This struggle has politicized the region to a very high degree," Berkey said. "The U.S. has emerged to assist anachronistic and oligarchical regimes," leading to the perception of the United States as an enemy of the forces of democracy in the region.

At the start of the panel, the director of the program, Tom Riddell conducted a moment of silence for those who have suffered from the war.

Collegian photo by Jeff Holland

Smith College Professor Robert Haddad makes a point during last night's lecture.

Collegian photo by Paul Langdon

STRIKE A POSE — Art major Kevin McCabe watches for a friend outside the Fine Arts Center.

Oxford program praised for its tutorial emphasis

By AMY HENRY
Collegian Staff

Touted as the oldest summer program offered in Oxford, England, the summer seminar at Trinity College provides a more intimate alternative to a large university as well as the opportunity to meet students from around the world, a student who attended the program last summer said.

"I went there because I couldn't get other courses at UMass," said Tim Bucciarelli, a student who attended the seminar last summer and plans to return this summer. "I had six or seven students in my classes."

Normand Berlin, the acting director of the program, said the University is accepting applications until March 29 for the program, which runs from June 27 to Aug. 7. The cost is $2,600 for UMass students and $2,950 for others. Ten $500 scholarships are available.

An information session will be held at 7:30 tonight in room 206 of Bartlett Hall.

Berlin said small classes at Trinity help students and professors form a tightly-knit community. Through the seminar, students participate in 'tutorials,' in which students confer with professors one-on-one outside of class and often dine together.

"In the tutorial system students can guide the professor in the course of study not the other way around," he said, adding that students are usually required to write a paper a week.

Bucciarelli said the tutorial system greatly enhanced his experience.

"The tutor acted more like a peer than a professor," he said. "The tutor even brought out a lot of quiet students."

To balance academics, Bucciarelli said students can go to pubs, the beer cellar at the school, and sample the 27 types of ale at the Ale Fest also held at Trinity.

Once a week the High Table tradition is held where a distinguished speaker addresses the students. Students dress up and eat a sumptuous meal, Bucciarelli said, adding, "This is a very special event and everyone looks so good dressed up."

To participate in the program, students must take a minimum of one major four-credit course. The curriculum has a wide range, but Bucciarelli said most courses touch on the British culture.

For example, in one course titled, "British Art: Theatre Painting," students learn about theater painting in Great Britain in the 18th and 19th centuries, he said.

Author: CIA used LSD extensively

By DAVID RIVERA
Collegian Correspondent

Martin A. Lee, an investigative journalist, research director and author said Tuesday that LSD and other illegal hallucinogens were discovered and used by United States government agencies long before Tim Leary and Woodstock.

Lee, author of Acid Dreams: the CIA, LSD, and the Sixties Rebellion, said his research has shown that the U.S. government used LSD and other hallucinogens for covert activities and interrogation purposes.

Lee, currently the research director of Fairness and Accuracy in Reporting, a New York-based media watch group, said the Office of Strategic Services, the CIA's predecessor, discovered LSD and implemented it in its research after World War II.

"In the beginning they got so excited, because they thought they had found the perfect truth drug, but they soon found out that sometimes it did what they wanted and other times the subjects they were experimenting on would freak out and have a bad trip," Lee said.

He said that in the mid-fifties the CIA and its branch agencies were in search of the "perfect truth serum" and turned to LSD — lysergic acid diethylamide — as their new drug.

Lee said that after the CIA's initial testing, they realized LSD wasn't the truth serum they had hoped for and looked for other ways to use it.

"One use was to give it to actual CIA agents to see how they would fare under the influence of a hallucinogen," he said. "Things down at CIA headquarters began turning weird, to say the least."

Lee said his research showed that the CIA used LSD in covert operations to discredit and overthrow enemy leaders and politicians.

"In the case of Fidel Castro, [the CIA] wanted to target him this way, so they tried to coat his cigar with LSD," he said. "Needless to say the plan failed, but I've seen documents that show this technique was used in Africa during the sixties in which leaders were overthrown because of the CIA's covert LSD use."

On March 28, Lee will speak on the Persian Gulf War at Hampshire College.

Lee came to UMass as part of the lecture series given by the Distinguished Visitors Program. On March 26, the program will host former model Ann Simonton, who will lecture on sex, power and the media.

Correction

In Monday's Collegian, Amy Lesen was incorrectly identified. She is a member of the steering committee of the Lesbian Bisexual and Gay Alliance. We apologize for any inconvience.

■ Levey

CONTINUED FROM PAGE 1

Authorities are still investigating the incident.

His death shocked area residents, as well as those close to him.

"I was in a state of shock and horror," said one of Levey's former English professors, Jules Chametzky, who also taught Levey's father. "I have no doubt that this was the result of the bombing of the [Iraqi] bunker and the war. This must have affected him deeply."

He said although Levey, an English major, had a hard time speaking in class, when he did speak he was "quite eloquent," especially when discussing injustice and suffering.

"His final paper for the class was late, typical of Greg, always late," Chametzky laughed. "But it was eloquent, clear and well-written. It was very feeling about social realism and oppression."

Carroll said Levey was very intense when it came to discussing religion and politics, subjects he tackled often. "He was very well-pronounced in his arguments, especially about the complacency of America allowing an anti-democratic war to go on," he said.

Carroll said Levey wrote many short stories devoted to peace and humanity. "I imagine that his writings would show an extraordinary commitment to the human existence."

Carroll said it was only in the last couple of years that Levey finally opened up to him and began sharing his feelings.

"Greg was a very quiet person, but he was very deep," he said.

EDITORIAL/OPINION

The opinions on this page are those of the individual writer or cartoonist and do not necessarily reflect the views of the Collegian or the University unless otherwise noted.

Sorry, no sale

For several years, the undergraduate Student Government Association has been plagued by almost complete irrelevance. Several weeks ago, the five current officers, in apparent frustration, asked the University administration to dissolve the student government and create a commission charged with creating a new student government.

On many different levels, these events impact very negatively on our community. Setting aside the fact that these officers had no right whatsoever to do what they have done, this unprecedented move is a major blow to student empowerment.

Firstly, condescending rhetoric aside, the administration has a long and rich history of doing what it can to avoid student input. In the creation of a new government, it cannot but be expected to serve its own interests, not the students'.

Secondly, the five officers have sent a message to all corners of the nation: Students cannot do for themselves and, thus, student empowerment is an impossible goal.

Also, these developments have even further alienated undergrads, if that's possible, from their government. Instead of inspiring students with leadership and reform, these student 'leaders' have reaffirmed the irrelevance of student government to students' lives.

Most importantly, students must realize that an association, dedicated to their interests, is not only a necessity but a possibility. A functional student government can positively impact on our community's life. This will not happen until a student leadership emerges that is willing to work with students to build such an association.

We urge all students to reject the selling out of student government and to politely say "No thank-you" to the University's paternalistic offer of "Help."

If current student leadership is unable or unwilling to work with students in building an association, let them step aside so that those who would work for students' needs may emerge.

Of life and death

The waves of shock still reverberate in our community. Several days ago, a young man took his own life in an ancient expression of protest and hope. It seems clear that the young man who set himself on fire did so as the only means he knew to reject the carnage of war.

His sign said simply, 'Peace.' His real message was that of sacrifice. Giving one's life on behalf of others is the highest form of human interaction. There is little doubt that his death has awakened many across the nation and world.

Also, this man gave of himself in another way. He took upon himself the conscience of our national community and he, on our behalf, rebuked the slaughter that now goes on.

Most of us have been fairly inactive in working for peace. Now, let us take his sacrifice to heart. Let his death inspire us to do what we can to end the slaughter in the Middle East.

A good way to start is to attend today's 'Day of Protest for Peace.' On this day, millions of people across the world will interrupt their daily routine to unite for peace. We have no doubt that this young man's spirit will be with us.

Unsigned editorials reflect the majority opinion of the Board of Editors

The students must lead

Now is the time for action. After a steady decline in student power that lasted nearly a decade, the administration has finally seized the last strands of power from us, the students of the University. If we do not act soon, we will lose all hope of having input into the making decisions that determine our academic fates.

The administrative 'Commission on the Restructuring of Student Government' threatens to take away even the token representation on 'University-wide Committees' allowed to students under the current system. Which is not to belittle student participation in these committees—they have allowed for student input into any one of a number of the University's policies and actions.

Ken Parker

The problem is that when push comes to shove these committees have no power — the Chancellor, or even the Vice-Chancellors can overrule them on a whim. The existence of the Status of Women Committee, for example, did not prevent the Vice-Chancellor for Student Affairs from making drastic cuts to the Everywoman's Center.

Similarly, last fall in response to budget cuts, the administration made its decision to cut even academic departments and eliminate there without any student input whatsoever.

The administration's takeover of student government, though invited by student 'leaders,' has no more legitimacy than students give it. The problem that student government has been so weak in the past that the administration is able to argue that it is in the best interest of students to let it restructure the SGA.

Student government's deterioration, though partially due to a conscious effort on the part of the administration to erode its power, is primarily due to the SGA's failure to involve the vast majority of the students of the University in the governance of the campus.

What does this deterioration mean for you? It means that if you're bothered by 'Alarmnetics' or are concerned by the poor course selection in your major or the high cost of books at the Textbook Annex, the only way you can express your views is to write a letter to the administration. And what do you suppose that would do?

Student government, when it works, advocates for student issues. It researches, arranges meetings and discussions, plans protests and forums, and gets results. SGA press conferences should demand justice for students, not hand over the keys of student government to the administration.

Student versus student conflicts have bogged down the SGA. Now some student have chosen to ally themselves with the administration to stifle their fellow students who oppose them. This undemocratic involvement of the administration cannot be tolerated. The time has come for students on this campus to take a leadership role in determining the future path of the University.

But for student concerns to be addressed on this campus three things need to happen: 1) students like you must get involved in the governance of the University; 2) student government must restructure itself so as to focus on research and advocacy, not playing with the Student Activities Trust Fund; and 3) a Campus Council must be formed with representatives from the undergraduate and graduate student governments and the Faculty Senate to serve as an advisor/policy-making body that works with the Chancellor, under the Board of Trustees, to govern the campus.

Before either item two or three can happen, the students of this campus must begin to look at student government, not as a 'joke' or waste of time, but as our last, best shot at having input into the administrative decisions that so deeply impact our lives. We must unite against the repressive tendencies of the University administration, focusing our energy on the issues which most deeply impact our lives.

Student empowerment doesn't mean students will push the administration around or hurt the campus' other constituencies: it means increased student participation, involvement, and sharing of ideas. It means a better run school, something we desperately need in these difficult economic times. In fact, if we, the students of the University, do not act soon to lead the University onto a more democratic course, there might not be any University left to lead.

Ken Parker is an SGA senator

We're just trying to do our best

I am going to try to explain things one more time. From the people I have talked to, the general consensus is that students are bored with the Senate's problems. I have been told to try and fix all the problems that it currently has. So that is exactly what the other four officers, and myself, have done. I agree that asking the Administration to suspend Student Government without a vote was extremely undemocratic, and we did it realizing we wouldn't have the full support of the Senate, but our hopes were to build a stronger, workable, structure.

You notice I don't use the word government for our future plans, we don't need a government, we need an advocacy body. One that will let the student's voice be heard, without getting wrapped up in all of the politics that we so frequently do.

None of us woke up on Wednesday morning and decided to screw over the senate. We have put lots of thought and ideas into this. We don't have only our ideas either, we listen to others talk, and take note of their ideas. I can sincerely say that I believe in what I did and I think I can speak for the other four as well. We have put so much energy into this project, energy that could have gone into academics, socializing, or changing Student Government from within, but the latter cannot be done. We took a huge step in our actions and our reputations are clearly on the line, we wouldn't have self inflicted these wounds if we didn't really believe our actions would have a positive, lasting effect.

The Senate body has now spent the last three weeks doing exactly what we are trying to prevent. They haven't kept quorum, they voted to disapprove the actions of "the gang of five," and called each other names. How do these three things benefit the student population on the whole? They don't, but that is what we are supposed to be doing. The body did elect seven men to a constitutional drafting committee, I won't belittle that at all, the seven, along with much outside help, has made some necessary, but obvious changes. The problem with this committee is it has no legitimate ties to the University. The commission that Dennis Madson has set up does have that tie. If we could all put our energy into this commission, it really can work. We have to put aside our political and personal feelings, sit down together and write a constitution. I realize this is difficult, and it is also difficult to swallow the amount of administration/faculty members on it, but it is a very competent and knowledgeable group. I don't think I am being naive in my statement that everyone on this commission is working for the students. I have two more years on this campus and I have no intentions of putting the SGA on top of a mountain that can't be climbed. I will continue to put all my energy into this, as will the four officers.

Rebecca Rudko
SGA Registrar

War debate shouldn't be a war

We are concerned about increasing hostility in campus debate about how to achieve peace in the Middle East. We recognize that the issues concerning this war are complex, entailing a confusing array of explanations for why we entered it and proposals for how peace is to be achieved. Some of us have reached definite conclusions about the origins of this war and the means to peace, but others of us are less certain.

Meanwhile, as the war continues, emotions concerning events in the Persian Gulf will intensify. It is important that as a community we grapple intelligently with our feelings and engage in civil discourse over the issues the war poses.

Let us remember that diversity of thoughts and freedom of speech do not mean the right to restrict and hurt others with opposing views. It will be hard for those who have strong emotions and convictions to pause and realize that such expressions may appear belligerent and aggressive to those with opposing views. In the midst of our distress, let us not make war on each other.

David Schimmel
Joyce Berkman
Co-chairs, Chancellor's Commission on Civility

"All newspaper editorial writers e r do is come down from the hills when the battle is over and shoot the wounded."

—Anonymous

Administration take-over of student government
Partnership or paternalism?

Whitebread clique, administration set out to screw students

'We know what is best for you, dear. Honestly. You may not see it that way now, but one day, you'll thank us."

Now who could have an attitude like that? Parents? No. I don't know about yours, but mine aren't quite so patronizing. They just gave the old "because I said so, that's why." Mussolini? Doubt it. I don't see him killing himself to give an excuse, no matter how lame, for anything. Communist Russia? Oh, please. Ditto. Whitmore? Wait, we may just have something here...

Once, we had one of the most powerful and effective student governments in the country. We controlled how our money was spent. We had a voice. We fought against the administration if they started to work against students. Now, we've sold out to them.

Actually, we haven't. Five selected students — Angus McQuilken, Dan Chesnicka, Natasha Diephius, Rebecca Rudko, and Karen Talbot — have handed us over to Whitmore, since they don't want to give up their Wednesday nights. God forbid, they might miss Night Court. The SGA isn't working, too many people are arguing and debating. Instead of being happy there is debate (a quaint trait of democracy), they are irritated. How dare someone argue with them.

So what they did is offer us up as a sacrifice to Whitmore. They, of course, are spared. In fact, they will be working with the administration on a commission to rule — uh, I mean to help out — the students. They are going to restructure. Sure. Five people get to tell 25,000 students how our government should be run. That's democratic.

Pamela McCarthy

Sorry, folks, but this whole thing reeks. I wonder if the the three words "cutting a deal" is in these jokers' vocabulary. It should be. I don't think it's at all a coincidence that they effectively demolish student empowerment, get their Wednesday nights off, and still maintain their power. One thing is for sure, they are learning to be "real" politicians — in the fine tradition of Richard Nixon and Ronald Reagan.

Granted, since the SGA has no officially recognized power, the administration could have taken it over any time it wanted to. But there is a fundamental difference between that and what happened.

We were sold out by people we elected. The big lie we are being force fed is that the only way to fix student government is to trash it. All in order to achieve peace, harmony, and happiness at UMass.

Without our permission, of course.

How is taking away our voice going to help us? It won't. It will help the administration — we won't be a thorn in their side for long. It will help the Chesnicka five; they can keep some power, a title for their resumes, and get some letters of recommendation. But it won't help us. They seem to think we are only lowly grunts who don't know how to think for ourselves.

How are five White, middle-class students along with a White, middle-class administration going to restructure student government to meet the needs of all the students? Believe it or not, many of the students are not White. Many of the students come from working-class backgounds. Do the members of this commission honestly think they can decide what all the students want? Do they really believe they know about the problems that students of color and working-class students face? I doubt it. Speaking as a White, middle class woman, I don't see any of the Five representing my interests or concerns. My student senator was supposed to do that. But that wasn't good enough for five people.

When we ask why, we'll get the "it's in your best interests" routine. Translated, that means: Because we say so, that's why.

Pamela McCarthy is a Collegian columnist

Administration take-over hinders change in student government

There has been much talk recently over what the SGA has done, is doing, and will do. The answer is that the SGA has done little, is doing even less now, and if the current ongoings continue, will do no more. This is sad but true.

In my three years as a UMass student I saw co-candidates run and win the SGA presidency, never to be ratified by the Senate. I saw someone embezzle $1200, and I saw a historic harassment case. But none of these events meant anything to the average student. The Senate was on a track of its own, and clearly one that was not for student empowerment. Without a doubt a change was needed and necessary to empower students.

This year, that change was recognized by the Senate. The Senate voted to move into a constitutional convention, to rewrite its constitution and restructure itself. Our Speaker Dan Chesnicka never even gave it a chance. The Senate never had a chance to move into a convention. So, instead of trying and working with the people who elected him (the Senate), he went and sold out to the administration. With him was the Registrar, President, Trustee and Treasurer.

David Gagne

It is because of this very act of selling out to the administration that the SGA will do even less for students. Why would the administration want students to have a stronger voice? This is not the first time the 'leaders' have screwed up. Over the past year, each one of them has taken turns either trying to get rid of the Greeks, Area Governents, or dismantle the National Honor Societies. Our Trustee was trying to replace an elected chairman with someone else. Why was a Trustee, elected to watch over tuition and fees, getting involved with trying to covertly unseat a chairman? And lastly, our Treasurer misappropriated over $17,000 of students' money. Yet, these five people still call themselves student leaders.

Although a large discussion cannot be entertained here about the following, real student leaders are pursuing a lawsuit against the administration where a possible 18 million dollars may have been illegally used. This is, or rather was, students' money. Yet the same administration wants us to trust them. Maybe these five people will, but I certainly cannot.

The Senate has responded to the actions taken by these 'leaders.' We voted overwhelmingly 30-13 to disapprove of them. The Senate has its own committee restructuring the SGA now to advocate for students. But this has been overlooked by the administration; namely D.L. Madson. I have spoken to him many times. Each time I have asked for one condition to be met: allow the Senate to continue to restructure itself and if by May 1 we have nothing, let the administration do its thing in September. Each time he said no; the administration must be involved. The administration's proposal is definitely anti-student. The five 'leaders' get an automatic berth on the commission, even though they no longer represent the students. The administration has 8 seats, the 'leaders' 5 and the Senate 3. In fact, the administration also opened 3 seats for people who are not officers in any organization. Irene Carew, Director of Student Activities, said if the work is not done by May 1, the administration will do it over the summer. The truth is the administration doesn't want a strong student voice. Look what the administration did with the Legal Services Office, and Madson took control of our Trust Fund in 1985. I could go on but the point is clear: let the administration worry about the Faculty Senate, let the students worry about the Student Senate.

David Gagne is an SGA senator and vice president of Sylvan Area Government

If people really want a voice for students, unionization is the only way

One way of getting power is through property. As students, we generally have no property, and thereby no power. The problem with restructuring the SGA is that even if it is arranged so that it operates efficiently and with the involvement of the student body, it still operates solely in the fantasy realm of the campus. The real world is seldom entered by students, unless they're protesting or buying things.

Students exist in a state of limbo, they're no longer kids, yet not quite adults. They participate in a world which loves to control them, as it is so easy to do, and most of the time the students aren't aware that it is happening. When organized, however, students can be extremely powerful. This was demonstrated in the protests against Vietnam in the '60s, and more recently in Tienanmen Square at that protest.

A couple of weeks ago, I attended a meeting which discussed plans to get students elected in town council. During this meeting it was mentioned that students in other countries had organized themselves into student unions, run separately from the universities. These student unions are actual unions, much like the worker's unions which sprung about during the industrial revolution. These students have much more power than the SGA ever will, restructured or not. If students in this country organized, on their own bought or rented property, and not on state-owned or university-owned property, they could begin to feel how much power they can manipulate for themselves.

Instead of restructuring the SGA, why not abolish it altogether. Let the University decide on what to spend the money we give it. In the meantime, we should organize off campus, and gain some tangible clout which the administration could really feel. Imagine what the threat of a student strike could do. It's about time students organized and pushed their opinions and desires with real economic and political power, and not just what we are given.

Why not take advantage of this time when the SGA is in such a rut, and the state needs to be reminded about the large group of people it so easily exploits, but never listens to. Let's end the cutbacks on education, the only non-violent asset this state seems to have. It is time for student mobilization. Instead of letting others use the power we have, let's try using it for ourselves.

Yves Grant
Webster

Ed/Op page, like usual, will be irrelevant

The title of this page is "Editorial/Opinion." So far this semester, all that I have seen are the opinions of the page's Editor, Mr. Jeremy Levinson. Mr. Levinson's abuse, his unimpeded access, to the editorial page is a disservice to the integrity and legitimacy of the Collegian, and to the quality of discourse on your page. Your advertisement for this very specially designated page on, as you termed it, the "destruction of student government" is an indication of your lack of dedication to journalistic ethics. The purpose of an editorial page is to provide a forum for discourse among members of the community, not to fulfill the egotistical political agenda of its editor.

In regards to the restructuring effort towards the Student Government Association, I expect that this page contains no surprises. I expect we will see the same old opinions from the same old people who have the same old ideas. As I have stated before, as soon as I see a criticism from someone that I don't already know, I will perhaps question the path that we have chosen. Your editorial page has been a source of great support and inspiration to me over the past few weeks due to the very lack of substantive criticism that I have seen there. If no one but Mr. Levinson and two others have thus far found this issue important enough to write about, then I can only assume that people either a. don't care or b. support the SGA officers in their attempt to bring about a more responsible and effective student governance structure for undergraduates on campus.

We have before us an unprecedented mechanism for change. We are pulling together a commission from all areas of campus, to explore the problems with the old, and come up with a structure for the new. Student Government on this campus has for too long existed as a game, as a big joke, as a debate club. We have before us an opportunity to change all that, to create an organization which will work for the interests of undergraduate students. It is not an issue of lost power, we don't have any real power, it is a question of lost potential. Our strength is in our numbers, in our intelligence, and in our dedication to what we know is right. Until we have a structure which can accommodate that, we are forfeiting our potential to have our voices heard, from Whitmore, to the Amherst Selectboard, to Beacon Hill.

Angus G. McQuilken
Student Trustee

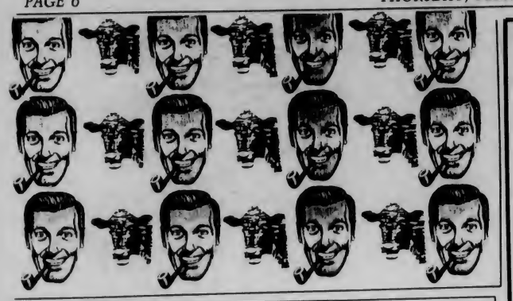
Angus/Administration right to stop 'children'

I would like to begin this article by thanking Trustee McQuilken, the man who has saved this university from the antics of an immature student government. Jeremy Levinson's whiny article is just another example of the grossly distorted views that breed on this campus. I seriously doubt that Dennis Madson is "drooling at this opportunity to give student power one last kick in the ass."

Throughout the four years that I have been at this University, the student government association has deteriorated into nothing but power-hungry children, slandering anyone in their path to power, shoving misguided and misrepresented views down our throats.

McQuilken should be congratulated for taking the necessary steps to help the entire student body. The administration should also be thanked for their patience in previous matters and for stepping in only when asked. I lost faith in the student government long ago, and I speak for the silent majority. Perhaps the good and bad in our government can be distinguished. McQuilken is definitely one of the good guys; Thank You Angus!

Jennifer Rego
Amherst



Ready for the DRAFT?

The Legal Services Center, in cooperation with both the undergraduate and graduate student associations, presents this workshop of vital information for everyone who would be affected by the draft, or is interested in military discharge information.

Bill Galvin
Thursday, February 21st
7:30pm Campus Ctr. 162

Summer Housing in New York City

Will you be working, doing an internship, or enjoying a summer in New York? You can live in the heart of Greenwich Village as an NYU Associate or take a course in our exciting summer sessions if you wish.

- Minutes from New York's business and cultural centers
- Apartment-style and traditional residences; single and double occupancy
- Outstanding sports-recreation facility
- Includes the New York Experience, an enjoyable noncredit program exploring careers and culture in New York City
- Over 1,000 undergraduate, graduate, and professional courses offered day and evening

at New York University

Housing available May 19-August 10
For more information and an application, call toll free
1-800-282-4NYU Ext. 840
New York University is an affirmative action/equal opportunity employer.

NYU Summer Housing
14-A Washington Place
New York, N.Y. 10003

Pearl Street

this week...
CORDELIA'S DAD
Upstairs—18+ Dance Party
THE CONNELLS

coming...
THE TOASTERS
NRBQ
ROOMFUL OF BLUES
THE BUCK PETS
BOP HARVEY
ASWAD

next week..
MINIBUS SANDWITCH
BORDERLAND
LADYSMITH BLACK MAMBAZO
THE EQUALITES

Pearl Street is open Sun-Sat 11a.m.-1:00a.m. Every Wed is Ladies Night. Thurs-18+, Fri and Sat-Top 40 Hotter with DJ Johhy. Advance Tix Available at Stop in Interiors Record Stores, Tix action 800-382-8000 and For The Record in Amherst

413 584-7771
10 PEARL ST. NORTHAMPTON, MA

Selection, Service, & Value you can depend on!

Prices do not include deposit

BEER

COORS, COORS LITE, COORS GOLD $11.99 + DEP case of 2 12 pkg. bottles
BALLANTINE BEER case of 2-12 pk. cans $7.99 + DEP
BECK'S BEER $8.99 + DEP 12 pack bottles!
SAM ADAMS DOUBLE BOCK $4.99 + DEP. 6 pk. bottles
PEPSI case of 24 12 oz. cans $5.99 + DEP.

WINE

GALLO WHITE ZINFANDEL $3.29 750ML
August Sebastiani PROPRIETORS WHITE ZINFANDEL, WHITE, RED, BLUSH, FR. COLOMBARD, CHENIN BLANC, WHT. GRENACHE, GAMAY BEAUJOLAIS $5.49 1.5L
BALLATORE GRAN SPUMANTE $3.99 750 ML
E. GUIGAL COTES DU RHONE $6.49 750ML
COUSINO-MACUL CHARDONNAY $3.99 750ML

LIQUORS

BALLANTINE SCOTCH $21.99 1.75 L
STOLICHNAYA VODKA $18.99 1.75L
FLEISCHMANN'S GIN $8.99 1.75L SALE 11.99 MAIL-IN-REBATE -3.00 AFTER REBATE
POPOV VODKA $10.49 1.75L
CANADIAN L.T.D. $9.99 1.75L SALE 12.99 MAIL-IN REBATE -3.00 AFTER REBATE

not responsible for typographical errors

LIQUORS 44

HADLEY Campus Plaza/Route 9 253-9344
◄ TWO ► LOCATIONS
HOLYOKE 30 Lincoln St. 534-4555
9am to 11pm Monday thru Saturday

SALE PRICES THURS. 2-21-91 THRU WED. 2-27-91
VISA MasterCard Discover
TeleCheck

Rent One of Ours
• Cars
• Trucks
• Cargo Vans
Rent by Day, Week or Month
Special Weekly and Weekend Rates
North Amherst Auto Rental
Rt. 63, 40 Montague Rd.
North Amherst, MA
549-RENT
(549-7368)
Most Major Credit Cards Accepted
On Bus Route

SPRING BREAK
PANAMA CITY BEACH FLORIDA
• High quality beachfront accommodations for 7 exciting nights
• Round trip chartered motor coach
• Free pool deck parties, schwires, & promotions
• Inter-Campus Programs i.D /Discount card
• On location staff for complete assistance
• All taxes, tips, & service charges included
$114 $219
Contact Barbara 549-8156

BLACK AFFAIRS

African Americans and the War?

African Americans will once again show their loyalty for a country that has repeatedly disrespected them.

Statictics show that African Americans make up a great portion of the soldiers in the Middle East compared to the amount of African Americans in this country.

America will financially prosper from it's immoral invasion in the Middle East. Wall Street has already shown the effects of a seemingly successful war, but no matter how much blood of the African Americans is spilled, and it will be spilled, the only people to receive the financial gains of the war will be the European American males and his female counterparts.

After the war is over, and the African American soldier comes home and realizes that the majority of the soldiers who died were their own friends and family of the same color skin, the ticking will undoubtedly begin!

When the African American soldiers come home and realize that their children or they themselves can not afford to go to school because the avalibility of student loans has been cut by the very same president who sent them to fight. The ticking will continue!

When the African American soldiers wake up and realize that the president who sent them into war ACROSS THE WORLD, refused to sign a civil rights bill, and wanted to eradicate minority scholarships, the ticking will get louder!

Finally, when the war is over and these soldiers realize that the true benefactors of the war are the power elite, and that the president has been lying to them then THE BOMB MIGHT JUST EXPLODE! This country has used and abused its people of color and continues to get away with it (history speaks for itself).

Douglas Greer

This country has dealt, except in a few cases, with the so-called scholastic intellectual African Americans, the ones who would cry out from the pulpit not to hate the people who are hating you. These are the ones who always talk over the bargain table, the ones who would cry out that nonviolence is the way. No matter how much physical, and mental punishment your children, your wives and yourself are subjected to.

This country has always been on the edge of a major armed uprising. The African American leadership is in transition and the new generation of African American youth is somewhat lost.

Maybe these soldiers, who will come home to face the injustices will become the new leaders.

These new leaders will not be as forgiving as their forefathers in their fight against oppression. They will be trained to kill first and talk later. If these new leaders ignite this new generation, like the previous leaders ignited theirs, the president of the United States will have more than he can handle.

This generation of African Americans is frighteningly violent. If united as one, they will be the most powerful militant opposition this country has ever faced.

So, Mr. Bush, be careful. The injustices that you are slowly incorporating into police for the future of America, could be the very same police to bring America down.

If these soldiers don't get their just dues, this country will have more than demonstrations to worry about. Believe me, when that time comes, I'm going to TAKE TEN!

Douglas Greer is a University of Massachusetts student.

How do you feel about the war in the Persian Gulf?

Kenley H. Obas, sophomore
"I wish that when Uncle Sam tries to play police in another country I hope he realizes that blood will be shed and lives will be lost. This is something men and women of color cannot afford."

Angela Mccray
"I feel that this war is just another step in the conspiracy to get rid of our African American men. I oppose this war whole heartly especially when our men and women have to die for a country that does not give total equality."

James A. Jemison
"I'm adamantly against the war in the gulf. The freedoms America claims to be fighting for have always been hollow for African Americans. The freeedom to be killed in Bensahurst or Howard Beach, that's not freedom. Americas idea about freedom , justice , and equality have included slavery, incarceration of the Japanese and a myriad of other crimes against humanity . If America can not develop the values it professes in the U.S., how can they possibly fight for such thing abroad."

"There is more to this war than just getting Saddam out of Kuwait. This war is definitely a racial war, because Africans Americans are the prime targets for this white-American conflict."
— Leah Mcgowen

"What Bush needs to do is take care of unemployment, homeless, and racism before worring about anyone else's problems. Worry about your own burning house before you worrry about anyone else's house."
— Keith Campbell, junior

"I care about all my friends amd friend's families who are in the war. I am praying for their safe return."
— Virgil Hickman, sophomore

"I'm opposed to it and I feel for the families who have relatives over there, and I also feel that the U.S. should take care of their own problems at home before anyone else's."
— Michelle Alleyne

"The war is something that could have been avoided.. This is somthing which our congress does not agree with. They will however start to realize that maybe extra measures for peace should have been taken once the bodies of young men and women start comming home."
— Sondra Sutton, sophomore

KATINA'S

THURSDAY FEB 21 — SELECTROCUTION High Tech Dating Game
FRIDAY FEB 22 — THE MACHINE A TRIBUTE TO PINK FLOYD
SATURDAY FEB 23 — Progressive Dance Party w/ WMUA's Christina Rosetti dance contest • prizes
SUNDAY FEB 24 — Polygram recording artist MATERIAL ISSUE Dave Sharp of the Alarm & 8th Route Army FREE admission • prizes • food
SATURDAY MAR 2 — Cocktail/ New Music Listening Party FRONT 2:42 doors open at 4:00 pm
All ages

ng•upcoming•upcoming•upcoming•upco
New Music Cocktail Party
new music from Jesus Jones.....Wednesday, Mar 6
Maggie's Dream
29 Palms
Ronnie Earl & the Broadcaster with Treat Her Right
...Friday, March 8

ADVANCE TIX: Katina's, Strawberries, Hilton, Platterpuss, About Music, Main Music
ROUTE 9, HADLEY • 586-4463

Do not Read!

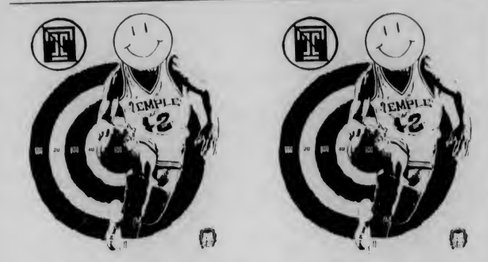
By SONDRA SUTTON
Collegian Staff

Ladies, are you tired of Brothers trying to front on you, and Brothers, are you fed up with Sisters who juice you for everything you have? Well, the Black Affairs page wants to know. If you have any problems dealing with school, relationships or life in general, send them to the Black Affairs page. Questions will be answered by three different mystery writers. Questions may be submitted anonymously. You may drop off your questions in the Black Affairs box located in 113 Cagpus Center in the Collegian. Keep in mind that questions will only appear on the page if room allows. Address the questions to 'Tales From the Black Side.'

Malcolm X

Today we remember the death of one of the greatest black activitists, Malcolm X. On Feburary 21, 1965 Malcolm spoke his last words, but now in the year 1991 his thoughts still exist in the Black community. Due to Black Americans like Malcolm X we have the oppurtunity to voice our opinions without dodging a hose, or running from a dog. Looking at America now, much has changed, but our job has just begun. We have killed the dogs, but we must now destroy the drugs. I would like to thank Malcolm X for his accomplishments and his inspiration.

–KENLEY H. OBAS



New Locations

Dances

Ballroom DANCING
to the Big Band Sound of:

LEON KRAFFT AND HIS 10 PIECE ORCHESTRA

Saturday, February 23
Hadley American Legion Hall

Located on the North side of Highway 9 between Amherst and Northampton. One block East of stop light in Hadley

8:30-11:30 p.m.

Admission $7.50 at the door-each dance

FRIENDLY
...service,
...people,
...prices.
all under one roof.

Close to Brittany Manor and Riverglade

R+P PACKAGE STORE
505 West St. AMHERST 253-9742

Cruise Ship Jobs
HIRING Men - Women. Summer/ Year Round. PHOTOGRAPHERS TOUR GUIDES. RECREATION PERSONNEL. Excellent pay plus FREE travel. Caribbean Hawaii, Bahamas, South Pacific, Mexico. CALL NOW!! Call refundable 1-206-736-7000, Ext. 600N1

$ave, $ave, $ave ...at Scott's Liquors!

Scott's LIQUORS
OPEN MON-SAT 8 AM-11 PM
Tel: 549-2692

Bud Dry 6-12 oz bottles $3.79 + dep.

Sauza Gold Tequila 750 ml $8.99

Zarkoff Vodka 1.0 $5.99

Golden Anniversary Beer — Koch's Golden Anniversary 12-12 oz cans $3.99 +dep.

Miller Genuine Draft 12-12 oz. cans $7.89 +dep.

Captain Morgan Spiced Rum 750 ml $7.99

WE WANT TO BE YOUR FAVORITE LIQUOR STORE!
Plenty of Free Parking•Diagonally Across from UMass Stadium
•Next to The Laundry Club
6 University Drive
at Newmarket Center, Amherst

Tele-check for your personal check
Scott's Gift Certificates
Mass lottery Season tickets
MEGABUCKS We Have It
We now have all Mass Lottery games!
Not responsible for Typographical Errors

Problem Skin?
come to
Aesthetics
For an alternative skin care treatment
Deep pore cleansing facials
Lash and brow tinting
Hair removal with wax
lip, brow, bikini, legs, etc.
34 Main St. • 253-9879

CLASS OF '91!
Party Time!
91 Days to GRADUATION
Sunday Night, Feb 24
Celebration at
TWISTERS

91c Draughts-Miller Genuine Draft
91c Maule Wowie Shots
Dance Music all night
Free Peanuts

TWISTERS TAVERN

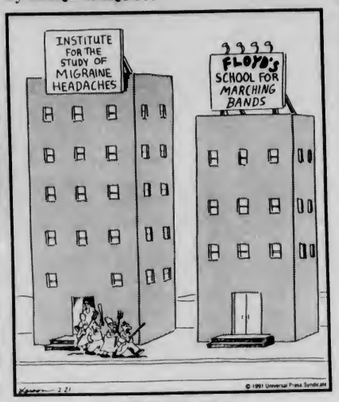
30 Boltwood Walk, Downstairs, Amherst 253-2663

TWISTERS
NONONONONO COVER
Thurs 21
8:00 Simpsons on the BIG SCREEN
8:30 All New Live COMEDY-Open Mic
Post Game UMASS Basketball party with D.J. W.D.
Fri 22
NO COVER
Setty and the Acoustic Wave
Sat 23
NO COVER
Juke Box Dance Party
30 Boltwood Walk
Amherst, MA

DOONESBURY
By GARRY TRUDEAU

BOOM! BOOM! BOOM! BOOM!
TAKE IT, ELMONT!
HOT DAMN! A SOLO!
BOOM! BOOM!
KAZOOOOM! SLAP! WHUPA! TUNK! TUNK! ZOOM!
WHAT THE HELL IS THAT?
WE BELIEVE THEY'VE ADDED A BASS PLAYER, SIR.
BOOM! BOOM!

THE FAR SIDE
By GARY LARSON



The dam bursts

QUOTE OF THE DAY

"Understand that we don't want to fight. Understand we are much too young to die. Understand no one will survive."

— The Scorpions

DAILY CROSSWORD PUZZLE
Edited By TRUDE MICHEL JAFFE

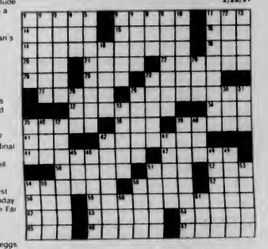
ACROSS
1 Enjoy the sun
6 Embrace
11 Corn on the —
14 Garret
15 Western
16 '— in the Family'
17 Block off author Irving?
19 Marvin or Grant
20 Three — match
21 Musical symbol
22 Unhealthy looking
24 Ship shaped clock
25 Palindromic name
26 Emulated an expectant father
27 High-priced inventor?
29 Post bib garment
32 Pliant
34 Comedian
35 Path start?
38 Luke
39 African river
41 Musical aptitude
42 Attractive to a buyer
44 Suit part
47 Way to a man's heart
50 Nosh
51 Violinist Kavalian
52 Fleet VIP
54 Censure
56 Table scraps
57 — Grant Ed Asner role
58 Hack
59 Shave Red?
62 Bachelor's final words
63 Hersey's bell town
64 A Ford
65 Morning mist
66 — on Sunday
67 Cowt of the Far East

DOWN
1 Partner of eggs
2 Made amends
3 Use a machine gun
4 Relatives
5 Movie script
6 — Rica
7 Recent
8 From — Z
9 Perceived by feelings
10 Take to the pulpit
11 Phone Lesley-Anne?
12 Table spread
13 Extinguished candles
18 Wanders
23 Celtic Neptune
26 South American plain
28 Whitney or Wallach
29 Prepares eggs
30 Purse
31 Convent
33 Word with coil or plug
35 Collection
36 Henley participant
37 Confront Clara?
39 Nunnery
40 — — the fields we go
42 Isolate
43 African language group
45 Actress Merkel
46 One of the Marianas
48 Eagle's weapons
49 Aphrodite's beloved
51 Michigan's Ann?
53 Louvre, for one
54 Etcher's need
55 Radio's "Vic and
56 Strauss's "Die Frau — Schatten"
60 Part of S & L
61 La la lead-in

ANSWER TO PREVIOUS PUZZLE

L	O	D	M	P	O	W	E	R	E	D	R	A	W	E
O	D	E	A	B	E	L	A	J	O	N	E	S	T	S
D	I	N	D	E	R	E	L	L	A	J	O	N	E	S
M	A	R	E	S	T	A	I	L	S	P	O	I	N	T
		L	I	N	E		N	I	L	S
C	E	M	E	N	T		G	U	L	L	I	V	E	R
L	I	A	R	S	T	O	T	S		I	N	O	U	T
A	D	O	R	E	S	S	E	S		D	E	A	L	E	R
M	E	R	E		R	A	N	G	E		G	Y	R	O
P	R	I	N	C	E	S	S		D	E	A	L	E	R
				T	O	E		S	E	A
A	C	C	E	P	T	E	D		E	A	S	A	W	A	Y
F	A	I	R		E	D	G	E		D	O	M	E	S	T
A	N	E			R	E	A	G	E	R		A	D	E	R
R	E	E	D			D	R	E	S	S		D	E	A	R

2/20/91



CALVIN AND HOBBES
By BILL WATTERSON

MY ESSAY IS ENTITLED "AFTER SCHOOL AT MY HOUSE." ...AHEM...
"IT'S NOT THAT I MIND BEING CHAINED IN THE BASEMENT, IT'S JUST THAT WHEN THE MEAT IS THROWN DOWN, THE RATS HAVE THE ADVANTAGE OF NUMBERS, AND THEY..."
WHAT, MISS WORMWOOD?
ANOTHER PARENT-TEACHER CONFERENCE?!
I TOLD HER TO EXPECT YOU TO DENY EVERYTHING

By E. VEZINA & R. SHAUGHNESSY

YOUR FIRST DUTY IS TO GO GET ME A CRATE OF HOT DOGS.
FOOD STORAGE
LARD
HOT DOGS
INGREDIENTS: STRING, FIBERGLASS, RIBOFLAVIN, CARAMEL COLOR, GALVANIZED RUBBER, SPITTLE, GUARGUM, FRAGRANCE, F.D.C. MAGENTA #4, NATURAL AND ARTIFICAL BEEF FLAVORING.
HOT DOGS
DOSAGE SHOULD NOT EXCEED TWO (2) IN ANY TWENTY-FOUR HOUR PERIOD.
KEEP OUT OF REACH OF CHILDREN
HOT DOGS

TANGELO PIE
By TIM SNIFFEN

stomp stomp stomp stomp LEAF
-PLEASE! YOU'VE GOT TO BE MY FRIEND! I HAVE ALMOST NONE! SAY YES!
THUD
OKAY!!
WHAT?
Well, aren't you sort of... desperate?

FROTTER
By GARRY PORTER

I NEVER THOUGHT IT WOULD HAPPEN. THE GOP IS TRYING TO ATTRACT GAYS TO THE PARTY.
UH-HUH
I CAN'T BELIEVE IT. I MEAN, I THOUGHT WE WERE SUPPOSED TO BE THE SOLID CONSERVATIVES. THE REPRESENTATIVES OF TRADITIONAL AMERICAN VALUES.
WHAT IF PEOPLE START THINKING WE'RE ALL GAY?
DON'T WORRY. WE'LL MAKE SURE PEOPLE WILL STILL SEE YOU AS STUFFY, CALLOUS, SELF-SERVING ELITISTS.
OH, WELL, THAT'S NOT SO BAD.
YEAH, I CAN LIVE WITH THAT.
ELITE, HUH?

MENU

LUNCH
Grilled Chicken Sandwich
Pot Roast

DINNER
Tacos
Eggplant Parmagana

BASICS LUNCH
Grilled Chicken Sandwich
Eggplant Parmagana

BASICS DINNER
Vegetable Taco
Rice & Veggie Pilaf

YOUR DAILY HOROSCOPE
By JEANE DIXON

ARIES (March 21-April 19): Discuss your long-range plans with family. If buying a new home, make certain you take your spouse's preferences into consideration. This is no time to take unecessary financial risks.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20): Smooth over any problems with relatives by extending an invitation to them. An attractive member of the opposite sex could ask you out tonight. Stay home if you are not interested.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20): Diplomacy helps you avoid embarrassment. Perform more services for yourself to hold down family expenses. A professional relationship takes an interesting turn.

CANCER (June 21-July 22): A positive attitude helps you get through difficult financial negotiations today. Do not suggest major changes. Romance will make an about-face if you become more attentive.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22): Do not be afraid to speak your mind to those in authority today. You could find a romantic partner especially demanding this evening. Plan to spend some time alone.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22): Do not expect too much from your co-workers now. An older person helps you cut through red tape. Show your gratitude! Write to or seek out friends who want to hear from you.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22): Trouble may be brewing on the home front. Avoid a confrontation by exercising more diplomacy. An influential person appreciates your no-nonsense attitude. Financial speculation should be avoided. Practice makes perfect!

SCORPIO (Oct 23-Nov 21): Your self-confidence is on the rise, helping you handle more work than usual. Teamwork is the key to even faster progress. Confide in a closemouthed pal if you need to let off steam.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov 22-Dec 21): Your business associates are more cooperative than in the recent past. Do not gamble with jointly owned funds. Give your loved one an unexpected treat this evening.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19): Beat your competitors to the punch! Originality counts big with prominent people. Let common sense be your guide if trying to sort out a romantic problem. An impulsive promise will not be kept.

AQUARIUS (Jan 20-Feb 18): Your friends rally around you. Do not worry about asking them for favors. Make full use of the telephone and mail instead of taking expensive business trips. Set new personal goals.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20): Today will be a very special day. Expect a lot of attention and good-natured ego-crushing. Be especially kind to co-workers, particularly those you are indebted to.

GRAND OPENING OF COLLEGE NIGHT at The Original NY COMEDY SHOP

AMERICA'S PREMIER COMEDY CLUB
HEADLINE ACTS DIRECT FROM NEW YORK CITY
YOU'VE SEEN THEM ON HBO-LETTERMAN AND ARSENIO HALL
NOW SEE THEM LIVE AT THE

NY COMEDY SHOP

YOU WON'T STOP LAUGHING

This Week

Nick Dipaolo
MTV Half Hour Comedy Hour, Evening at the Improv, NYC

Diane Jones
A Favorite at clubs and colleges along the East Coast

Mick Lazinski
Rascals Comedy Hour, VH1 Stand Up Spotlight

VIP CARD WILL BE ISSUED TO STUDENTS AT THE CLUB. VIP CARDS ARE VALID FOR ½ PRICE ADMISSION FOR 1 FULL YEAR. DON'T MISS THIS EVENT!

Showtimes:
Friday: 9:00
Saturday 8:00 & 10:00
for reservations call
(413) 534-0041

At the Holiday Inn across from Ingleside Mall
Holyoke, Mass.

Save UP TO $100

There's nothing like Legend and Lady Legend! The most unique college rings ever designed–only available from ArtCarved. This popular professional look offers more ways to personalize your college ring. Don't delay– visit your ArtCarved representative during this special sales event to see Legend and the many other styles available.

ARTCARVED

Date: Feb 18-22 ONLY Time: 9:30-3:30
Place: Bookstore
Last time for guaranteed graduation delivery!

Special Payment Plans Available

AREA COORDINATORS

AMHERST COLLEGE IS SEEKING CANDIDATES FOR TWO FULL TIME AND ONE HALF—TIME NINE AND A HALF MONTH AREA COORDINATOR POSITIONS BEGINNING ON AUGUST 15, 1991. THEY WILL BE RESPONSIBLE FOR THE TRAINING AND SUPERVISION OF RESIDENT COUNSELORS PLUS A RANGE OF SUPERVISORY, ADVISING AND ADMINISTRATIVE FUNCTIONS FOR A CLUSTER OF RESIDENCE HALLS. THE FULL TIME POSITIONS WILL ALSO INCLUDE SPECIFIC PROGRAM—WIDE RESPONSIBILITIES COORDINATING CULTURAL/EDUCATIONAL PROGRAMS AND STAFF SELECTION OF SIX SOCIAL ACTIVITIES COUNCILS. QUALIFICATIONS: BACHELOR'S DEGREE BY MAY, 1991; ABILITY TO RELATE WELL TO STUDENTS; AND ORGANIZATIONAL AND COUNSELING SKILLS. PREVIOUS EXPERIENCE IN RESIDENTIAL LIFE AND/OR RELATED MASTERS DEGREE PREFERRED. COMPENSATION: FULL TIME POSITION—APPROXIMATELY $13,000 PLUS BENEFITS; HALF—TIME POSITION—$4,300. ALL POSITIONS INCLUDE ROOM AND BOARD. SUBMIT RESUME, COVER LETTER STATING INTEREST AND QUALIFICATIONS, AND THREE LETTERS OF REFERNCE TO CHARRI BOYKIN—EAST, ASSISTANT DEAN OF STUDENTS, BOX 2206, AMHERST COLLEGE, AMHERST, MA 01002 BY MARCH 11, 1991

AN EQUAL OPPORTUNITY/AFFIRMATIVE ACTION EMPLOYER

Every Tuesday in February

FREE Footlong Sub with purchase of another footlong sub

Reg Footlong Only☆
No Coupon Needed
Also other great specials:

Sat: Any Reg Footlong $2.99* with purchase of a soda
Sun: Buy one get one for 99¢*

Good only at Rt 9 Hadley and Northampton Stores.
Both Stores Open Late Every Night
*Higher price prevails/Reg Footlong only

SUBWAY®

Spirit Haus
Liquor Store

Sapporo Dry Japanese Beer
case 12 oz bots
$11.99

Wurzburger Hofbrau-Octoberfest or Holiday Beer
case 12 oz bots
$18.79

Samuel Adams
case 12 oz bots
$18.79

Miller Genuine Draft
case 12 oz bots
$12.99

Jägermeister Liquer
375 ml
$7.99

Koch's Golden Anniversary Beer
case 16oz bots $9.49

Gordon's Citrus Vodka
750 ml
$6.49

Gordon's Gin
1.75 L
$13.99

Crystal Creek White Zinfandel
750 ml
$3.69 2 for $6.99

Purple Passion
2 L $4.49

338 College St., Rt. 9, Amherst 253-5384
Master Card and Visa accepted

"Get Called For Traveling"

with UMass basketball

2 People Will Be Sent to:
PHILADELPHIA for the
Atlantic 10 Championship Playoffs.

includes:
- transportation
- overnight accommodations
- tickets
- spending money

Register Here!

Hit Music Power HMP 99.3 FM

THE PUB-15 East Pleasant St, Amherst
JOE'S CAFE-33 Market Street, Northampton
Hurry!-Deadline is February 24, 1991

ROLL UPS
SANDWICH SHOP
331 Russell St., Rt. 9, Hadley
(next to Dunkin' Donuts)
Grand Opening Specials
Over 25 sandwiches all under $3.99 such as...
• Philly Roast Beef • Wrangler
• Veggie Delight w/ avacado AND
• Tuna/Hold the Line MORE!...

NOW COUPON FREE SANDWICH COUPON
Buy One Get One Free!!
(Lower priced sandwich is free)
One coupon per person per order
Not valid between 12:30-2:00 daily exp 2-28-91

OPEN 7 DAYS A WEEK
586-8255

Main St RECORDS SON OF Main St RECORDS

RECORDS • CASSETTES • COMPACT DISCS

IMPORTED, INDEPENDENT & DOMESTIC
MON—WED 9:30-6 SUN 12-5
THURS—SAT 9:30-9
213 MAIN ST. NORTHAMPTON
586-5726

COLLECTABLES • USED
MANUFACTURER'S OVER—STOCKS
MONDAY—SATURDAY 10-5:30
THURSDAYS 10-9 SUNDAY 12-5
21 STATE ST., NORTHAMPTON
586-1707

PLEASANT ST. THEATER
27 Pleasant St.
Northampton
586-0935

5 Academy Award Nominations

"MAGNIFICENT AND MOVING"
CYRANO DE BERGERAC
A film by JEAN-PAUL RAPPENEAU
PG

Starts Friday
Cyrano de Bergerac
weekdays and Friday at 6:15 and 8:50 pm/Sat and Sun at 3:30, 6:15 and 8:50

JEFF BRIDGES CYBILL SHEPHERD
TEXASVILLE

Texasville
weekdays at 6:50 and 9:15 pm/Fri, Sat and Sun at 4:25, 6:50 and 9:15 pm
First Show on Fri, Sat and Sun is $3.50 admission
No discount on Friday first show/Sat and Sun first show $3.50

RUSSELL'S
Discount LIQUORS Discount
18 Main St. Downtown Amherst 253-5441

Beck's Beer 12 pk $8.99

Featuring Busch Beer
$10.49 Suitcase

Wurzburger
Octoberfest or Holiday
Only $4.99 6/pk
While they last!!

Golden Anniversary Beer cse/cans $7.99

Zarkoff Vodka 1 L $5.99

Sutter Home
White Zinfandel
750 ml $3.99
Kendell Jackson
Sauvingnon Blanc
750 ml was 8.99
now 6.99
Many More In Store Specials (especially on wines)

Captain Morgan 750 ml $7.99

All beers plus deposit ★ Delivery Available ★

CLASSIFIEDS

COME TO THE COLLEGIAN OFFICE—CC 113 MON — THURS 8:30-3:30 ● DEADLINE 2 DAYS PRIOR TO PUBLICATION ● CASH IN ADVANCE, 20¢ /WORD/DAY FOR STUDENTS

ACTIVITIES

FREE INTRODUCTORY LECTURE Thur 7:30 for those struggling with eating disorders. For a 10 week class run by a psychologist and a nutritionist. 48 N. Pleasant St Room 205

UMASS FILM SOCIETY meeting tonight 7:00 CC174- All Welcome!

ANNOUNCEMENTS

AXO
Come open rush Alpha Chi
Join us for dinner two nights this week - find out what we are all about!
5.15 Wednesday 2/20
5.15 Thursday 2/21

BED AND BREAKFAST- downtown ideal for visiting parents and friends 549-0733.

COME OVER TO Greenough Snack Bar to chow great food, listen to groovy tunes, and rap with that special someone

DRAFT INFORMATION SESSION All you want to know & more! Lewis basement Sunday, February 24th 7pm -sponsored by AFSC & NE/Sylvan Area.

DRUM-award winning Black Arts and Literature magazine-now accepting submissions. 115 NAH

FAST FUNDRAISING PROGRAM
$1000 in just one week
Earn up to $1000 for your campus organization. Plus a chance at $5000 more! This program works! No investment needed. Call 1-800-932-0528 Ext. 50

TRI-SIGMA OPEN RUSH!
Tuesday 2/19 through Monday 2/25
Call 549-3811 for information or come by 387 N. Pleasant St.

WANTED: BANDS
For southwest week
Contact Michelle
Or Sharon at SWAS
545-0960
Deadline: April 15th

AUTO FOR SALE

$300 1978 BUICK CENTURY runs great
$400 1981 Dodge Colt runs great -253-3908

FOR RENT

1 BEDROOM APT in Puffton. Take over lease in March. Option to renew. Steve 549-6203

AMHERST, 1 BEDROOM AVAILABLE IN 3 BEDROOM, NEW HOUSE ON BUS LINE, FIREPLACE, BEAUTIFUL!! AVAILABLE NOW CALL 8-4, 665-3326

AMHERST CENTER, quiet room, bus, walk UMass $275- laundry, utilities included 549-0484

FRIDGE RENTALS CALL R + P 253-9742

HIPPEST HOUSE in the world. wants housemate -Hatfield, rustic, 5 min from Noho 230+ 247-5248

STUDIO IN AMHERST $460 w/utils Call Scott 253-0820. After 6pm

FOR SALE

5 STRING BANJO -Bluegrass style $125 247-5248

COUCH (queen size bed) $70 665-3974

ZENITH 248 PERSONAL COMPUTER, IBM compatible, 5.25" dual disk drive, Monochrome monitor, Logitech mouse. Hundreds of dollars worth of software including Word 5.0, Paint/Write, and Lotus 1-2-3. Asking $850 negotiable Call Cindy 665-8093

HELP WANTED

CAPE SUMMER COD CAMP COED
Need enthusiastic, dedicated people to work/live with kids. Beautiful location, excellent program, competitive salaries. Loads of fun.
Call Doug/Chad at 546-2527 for more info and application

DREAM JOBS NOW! Spring/Summer want a paid vacation in paradise? Hawaii, Calif., Fla, cruise ships, nat pks and more. 100's of address/tel -s guaranteed.
Call 1-900-226-2644 $3/min.

EARN $300 to $500 per week reading books at home -Call 1-615-473-7440 Ext. B-281

EASY WORK! Excellent Pay!
Assemble products at home.
Call for information
504-641-8003 Ext. 598

HELP WANTED Full or part time. Apply in person Copycat Print Shop 228 Triangle Street Amherst

INTELLIGENCE JOBS. All branches US Customs, DEA ect. Now hiring. Call 1-805-962-8000 Ext. K-9618

SMALL VERMONT CAMP for girls seeks committed counselors in horsemanship, wilderness trips, watersports, photography /video, and more. Sherry Osborn, Camp Catherine Caspers 25 Shawmut Ave Apt. UM Wayland MA 01778 (508)650-1806

INSTRUCTION

EARN CREDIT learn to Scuba Dive. Basic Classes held Monday, Tuesday, Wednesday, and Thursday 7-10PM in Curry Hicks Pool. Open Water II class held during Spring Break in Key Largo, FLA. Advanced Class held in New England in April. For further information call 549-8401, or drop by Curry Hicks starting 2/4/91.

LOST

BROWN LEATHER JACKET Saturday night probably from JOA. Will identify. Please call Mike. 546-1355

DIAMOND RING & WEDDING BAND in a purse. 545-2703 eves. 253-9431

PERSONALS

BRENDAN,
Thanks for making my Valentine's Day extra special. I don't know what it was that made me talk to you, but the soup definately helped!
Love, Monique

CHRIS GROVE
Happy 21st!!
Love
Your favorite twin sis

CONGRATULATIONS TO CHI OMEGA'S newest pledges! Amy, Traci, Rachael, Laura, Jacqui, Jess, Janet, C.C, Beth, Colleen, Debbie, Shari, Andrea, Emily, Dolores, Julie, Jodi M., and Jodi S!!!

DIGGER
If it doesn't kill me
It will make me stronger. Right?
Jack

FIDILA
Happy 19th Birthday!
Watch-out all you tall, green-eyed, Italian men
Love Jim

HAPPY BIRTHDAY KAT!! Olive hue. Violets can't be for ever!

KAREN KITSON
Happy 21st Birthday!
Vic is back and he's smoother than ever
Take it! —Love,
Kristan & Kristen

KELLIE CASSIDY -Congrats! Best of luck with our new pledges. Love, the sisters of Sigma Delta Tau

KENNEDY
Was assassinated
But
COOLIDGE
Bled more!
Congrats on the
Blood drive

LITTLE BRITCHES, You've got a deal. Besides, I couldn't go to Little Italy with anyone else. Let's talk. -Trigger

LIZ, SUE, PAULA, MELINDA
Thanks for always being here. You guys are awesome! SQUIGGLY! I love ya!
Thumper

MY SECRET ADMIRER
Who are you? Loved the poem!
Call me. The one you admire
Joe F

ON FEBRUARY 18, 1991
A person lit himself on fire
in the name of
Peace.
Please think about that today

SUSAN
Happy Belated Birthday!
From, The Crew

SUZANNE!
Welcome to Sigma Kappa!
I'm very happy to be your big sister!
Love, Ginny

TIFFANY, KELLIE, AND SARAH- Your hard work and long hours payed off. Thanks for a great rush! Love, the sisters of Sigma Delta Tau

TO NEIL??; the good looking guy on crut ches who bought a rose at Slop and Shop. Wish it had been for me! Hope you come in again soon

TO THE ADMIRING man in Chadbourne (Pete)- Thanks for the rose. it made my V-day!
A flattered woman in Baker

RESUME SERVICE

PERSONALIZED CONSULTATION for laser printing of your original. 549-0367

ROOMMATE WANTED

ROOMMATE NEEDED FOR one open bedroom in Squire Village townhouse. Male or female for $185/month. On bus route. Call Stephanie or Lesley anytime at 665-4090

SERVICES

PREGNANT?
Need a pregnancy test, information or support? Call for free and confidential services. ALTERNATIVES 33 Main Street Northampton 586-3000 or Greenfield 774-6010

PROFESSIONAL CHEF LOOKING FOR WORK
Culinary school graduate with 7 years of experience looking for private catering jobs and/or fraternity/sorority feeding. Call Wayne at 6-8292

SERVICES/WORDPROCESSING

DISSERTATIONS, CASES, PAPERS,
On-campus pickup - Fast! Accurate!
MacLaser, Spellcheck
Nancy 584-7924

SKI THIS SPRING BREAK!

KILLINGTON FROM $199
Park City, Utah and Breckenridge Co.
From $699
For info. Call Jon at 549-4226

SPRING BREAK

SPRING BREAK PARTY!
Travel to Jamaica, Mexico! And Panama City. Fr.! Concerts! Free Parties! Club discounts! And lots more! For info call Denise 546-7156

SUBLET

GREAT APARTMENT 2 mi. off campus - North Amherst -Big yard, storage, perfect for two people. Available now! Call 549-6027

TIFFANY & AMY

THANKS FOR THE VALENTINE!
You guys are the best!
Love, your "KID"

TRAVEL

CAN'T AFFORD SPRING BREAK?
Guaranteed great prices! Space available to Jamaica, Mexico and Panama City Beach, Florida (the "new Daytona Beach")! MC/VISA are accepted! Call Cindy at 549-3538 -please leave a message!

CARIBBEAN - $189!
The warmth of the Caribbean or Mexican coast for a week!
R/T air, SUNHITCH + m, 212-864-2000.

CLUB MED
Enjoy your spring break!!
Added value with each booking.
Call RENDEZVOUS TRAVEL
1-800-336-1002

FLYING SOMEWHERE ON SPRING BREAK?
Make your reservations on Northwest Airlines. I'll give you $50 toward your flight! Call Jeff collect at 508-369-5993 evenings, and let me book your flight.

GET SOME!!
Spring Break 1991!!
Jamaica
Cancun
Bahamas
Call Buttermaker
I'll make you a deal!!
253-9015 or 549-0076

MONTREAL WEEKENDS $89 Price includes round trip motorcoach 3 days 2 nights Hotel Suite Breakfast FREE admission to Club Metropolis
Reliable Tours
365 Broadway Rt 1
Lynnfield, MA 01940
617-598-9930

SPRING BREAK TO DAYTONA!
Travel with YANKEE LINE TOURS deluxe motorcoach March 15-24, 1991
Campus pick-up and drop-off!
First class hotel accommodations!
Best location, excellent nightlife!
Only $259.00 (quad occ)
For more info contact Scott
(413) 256-0029
Reserve your spot before it's too late!

* * * * * * *
FLORIDA'S NEWEST
HOT SPOT
Panama City $139
* * * * * * *
World's Biggest Beach PARTY
Daytona Beach $189
Call Erika + Julie at 546-2649
or Siobhan + Terri at 546-5079

WAKE-N-BAKE!!! Spring Break '91!!! Jamaica from $429.00
Cancun from $399.00
A week of fun and sun! The hottest destinations 1-800-426-7710.

TYPING

CHEAP RATES, fast, accurate, dependable, campus pickup and delivery. Adam 253-9117

WORDPROCESSING, FAST, $1.45/page. 549-0484

WORD PROCESSING SERVICES Will type papers, manuscripts, etc. $1.50 per page. Excellent spelling and grammar guaranteed. References. Flexible hours evenings +weekends. For information 548-9753

WANTED

CASH FOR GOLD. Unwanted jewlery? Necklaces, watches, rings. We buy anything containing gold. Call 546-3399

TIMBER LAKE CAMPS located in NY's Catskill Mountains seek General Counselors, Athletic Instructors, and WSI's. On-campus interviews. Top salaries/travel allowance. 800-828-CAMP (9-4:30 Weekdays)

WE WANT TO take over your house lease for next year starting in June or August. Call 549-7133

SPORTS

When needed, Williams steps up scoring

By BRETT MORRIS
Collegian Correspondent

At the beginning of February, The University of Massachusetts men's basketball team learned that its No. 2 scorer, Tony Barbee, would be out for some time with mononucleosis. The Minutemen needed someone to immediately fill the scoring void caused by Barbee's absence.

Enter 6-foot-7 sophomore forward Harper Williams.

Collegian photo by Jeff Holland
Harper Williams

"When Tony Barbee went out we went to [Williams] and said 'Harp, you're going to have to score more,'" coach John Calipari said.

And Williams did.

Starting three weeks ago, when Barbee first went out, Williams has been on fire. In the last six games, he has averaged 19.3 points and has scored 20 or more points four times, including two consecutive games with 23.

"You can attribute it to the fact that Tony got hurt and we needed someone to step up," Williams said. "The previous games I wasn't really thinking of offense. I wasn't aggressive."

"We've been told to look for him more," guard Anton Brown said. "He's shown everybody that he can score."

Williams has also elevated the other facets of his game. In the last six games he has averaged 7.8 rebounds and three blocked shots. In the same span, he broke his own UMass single game record with nine blocks against Rhode Island and had a career-high 17 rebounds against West Virginia.

He ranks second in the Atlantic 10 in blocks (1.92) and third in rebounding (8.0), and was named the USAir Atlantic 10 player of the week of Feb. 10.

"We're just saying, 'Let's go to him, let's jump on his back,'" Calipari said. "He's scoring, hitting free throws and rebounding. He's our best player right now."

Williams' recent scoring surge has opened up the court for UMass' other shooters, including Barbee, who returned last week against Duquesne.

Jim McCoy scored 25 points against Penn State last Saturday and 23 against West Virginia the game before. In addition, Rafer Giles has averaged 15 points and Will Herndon 14.5 in UMass' last six games.

"He's taking the heat off Jim," Calipari said. "He's no longer the only guy to score.

"The kind of games he had last year as a freshman . . this is the kind of player we thought he could be," Calipari said.

Williams, a native of Bridgeport, Conn., averaged 8.7 points and 5.2 rebounds a game as a starter his freshman season. He led UMass in rebounding in nine games and scored in double figures in 10 games. He was also named to the Atlantic 10 All-Freshman team.

"I think he's one of the top five players in the league," Calipari said. "His biggest attribute is not his shooting skills, his running skills or his hands, it's just that he is a competitor.

"As his skills catch up to his heart, he's going to be great. His mental approach to the game is what winners are all about."

Women's swimming faces best in East

By CHRIS MIRACLE
Collegian Staff

Last weekend's competition included the best of New England. Starting today at Princeton, N.J., the best in the East will begin to make waves at the Eastern Women's Swim League Championships.

The University of Massachusetts women's swimming team hopes to be one of those teams shining at the top after this weekend's competition.

Allison White, who set a school record in the three-meter dive at the New England Championships (425.50), has qualified for the Eastern Championships in the one-meter dive. At the New Englands, White finished second in this event.

Barbara Banks qualified last weekend for the Easterns in the backstroke with a time of 1:02.48.

"Barbara shocked me in last week's meet in qualifying,"UMass coach Bob Newcombe said.

The Minutewomen will have to perform to the best of their ability in order to keep their heads above water in trying to match up to the other Eastern teams.

Penn State, last year's champion, will be ready to make a defense of their title as the Lady Lions are currently ranked 15th in the nation. Kristen Lilly will provide some leadership for Penn., relying on her experience from last year when she won five events; two individuals and three relays.

Grace Cornelius will have the comfort of the home crowd behind her as she competes for Princeton University in her two best events, the 100 butterfly and the 200 freestyle. Cornelius has also qualified for the NCAA's in March.

A strong contingent of Big East teams, including Pittsburg, Villanova and Syracuse will also be showcasing their talents at the Easterns.

Villanova, ranked nationally for the first time in school history, notched the 25th spot in this year's final rankings.

Swimming for the Wildcats, who finished second behind Pitt in the Big East tournament, are freshman Lisa Flood and sophomore Mary Dowling. Flood has already qualified for the NCAA's in the 100 and 200 breastroke events.. Dowling, competing this weekend in the 500 freestyle, won three events (200,500,and 1650 free) at the Big East tourney.

The Orangemen, who finished third in the Big East, have a gaggle of swimmers who all have a shot at qualifying for the NCAA's. Among them are Lisa Bock, the school's 100 freestyle record holder, Michelle Ciesienski, 100 breastroke school record holder, Laurie Casch (1650 free), and Jennifer Patterson (100, 200 backstroke).

Boston University will be the only other team representing the Bay State at this weekend's meet.

Also swimming for the Tigers is sophomore Michelle Russell in the 50 and 100 backstroke. Russell holds her school record in the 100 back.

Brown, Columbia, Dartmouth and Cornell will be sending at least one swimmer to represent their teams at this weekend's event.

Sports notice

Temple Tix are sold out. To guarantee a general admission seat in the student section, students with tickets must be at the Cage tonight by 7 p.m. Doors will open at 5:30 p.m. Tipoff is 7:30 p.m.

Students will need to show their student ID with their ticket to enter the Cage.

The UMass Rugby Football Club is holding a general information meeting Tonight at 7 p.m. in Boyden (room to be announced – check bulletin board in Boyden by men's lockers.) All University men are welcome to attend.

■ Temple

CONTINUED FROM PAGE 1

Macon takes with him 22 points and five-rebounds a game, along with a long list on intangibles. In his place, coach John Chaney will start senior Michael Harden, who has logged less than 10 minutes a game this season with the arrival of Carstarphen.

Seldom-used senior Shoun Randolph is the likely candidate to step into Chaney's seven-man rotation; Temple's five usual starters average more than 30 minutes a game.

What the Owls lack in quantity, however, they make up for in quality. Hodge, a seven-foot junior, Strickland and Kilgore are rated by Calipari as future NBA draft picks, and Carstarphen has contributed 10 points and 3.8 assists per game since transferring from Cincinnati into Temple's starting point guard spot this winter.

In his last four games, Cartarphen has notched an astonishing six assists to every one turnover he has committed within Temple's patented walk-it-up offense.

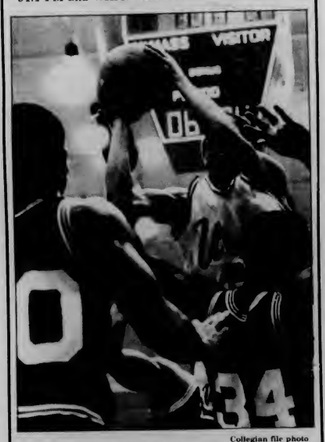
By pushing the ball after missed baskets and applying a full court press, the Minutemen will try to lure the Owls into a running game, according to senior forward John Tate.

"You're not going to get them to run with you all the time, but it's important they run some of the time. We've just got to keep attacking them," Tate said.

The Minutemen enter at 16-8 overall and in third place in the Atlantic 10 at 9-6. Bolstered by Tony Barbee's return from mononucleosis and Jim McCoy's return to form offensively, the Minutemen have played their best basketball of the season in winning two straight.

After tonight, UMass wraps up its regular season on the road against Rutgers Sunday, and Rhode Island next Wednesday. The Atlantic 10 tournament begins Saturday, March 2.

Game Notes: The game will be broadcast on WMUA 91.1 FM and WHMP 99.3 FM.



Collegian file photo
Jim McCoy, who has hit 21 of his last 27 shots, and the UMass Minutemen will try to snap a 19-game losing streak tonight against Temple.

Lobo breaks high school scoring mark

LUDLOW (AP) — Southwick High School senior Rebecca Lobo has captured the state high school basketball career scoring record — for girls and boys — with three games yet to go in the regular season. The 6-foot-4 center's 55 points against Ludlow High School Tuesday night gave her 2,565 career points and Southwick an 85-34 league victory over Ludlow High School.

The previous career mark had been held by Bryan Edwards, who amassed 2,563 points before he graduated from Cohasset High School in 1988. The girl's record of 2,562 points had been held by Sarah Behn, who graduated from Foxboro High School in 1989.

Lobo came out of the game for good to a standing ovation after scoring the record-setting basket with 4 minutes and 52 seconds remaining to play.

"I don't think this will really hit me while I'm still playing," Lobo said after cutting down the net.

"I just wanted to get it over with, so that now the focus can be on the team — like it should be," she said. "I didn't expect to do it this soon, though. I thought it would take all three games this week and maybe the first tournament game as well."

Lobo hit 26 of 38 shots from the field and all three freethrow attempts. She also collected 28 rebounds, blocked two shots and had seven assists as Southwick raised its record to 16-3.

On Monday night, the honor student, who is headed to the University of Connecticut, scored 62 points in Southwick's victory over Hampshire Regional High School.

Will this play challenge your belief in Christianity?

By HEATHER BELL
Collegian Correspondent

Out of the culture shock between Eastern and Western religion, Richard Ballon has created an engaging new drama. In the Name of God delicately intertwines past and present modes of thinking about Christian religion while re-examining traditional views. A powerful and moving piece, the play also sharply focuses questions regarding the Christian faith. One should be cautioned, however, to keep an open mind while viewing In the Name of God, because just as it can raise questions about faith, it can strengthen faith as well.

Ballon, a graduate student at the University of Massachusetts, spent three years in Asia teaching English. The play was inspired from his experiences and need to communicate the differences between Buddhism and Christianity. One of his most important experiences while in Thailand came when speaking to a man who had been a Buddhist monk for ten years. He was told, "You truly understand a culture when you are able to look back at your own culture and realize they are very much the same."

According to Ballon the play was directly woven from a poem he wrote beginning with the line: "Would you trust a father who sacrificed his son?" Ballon hopes the show will provoke the audience to question Christianity, to strengthen faith and "open a new light on religion." After five revisions Ballon has developed a very modern piece on religion with a pro-humanist perspective.

Under the capable and sure direction of Ballon and stage manager Cathy Bloch, an energetic and solid cast promises to give a commanding performance. Bloch would like the audience to walk away with a "sympathetic view of Jesus." The dialogue demands the audience's concentration and understanding of the Judeo-Christian Bible.

The geometric modular set has been designed by Ken Sammonds, a professor at the UMass nutrition department. With different configurations of the various platforms, the play moves quickly and easily through space and time. Drew Flint, a recent graduate of UMass is the lighting designer, and Francessca Werenko, a current student, is the costume designer. The cast of 16 includes about two-thirds UMass students who come from a variety of backgrounds and majors.

Combining religion, faith, the social reality of man and modern commercialism, Ballon's work treats each of these issues with respect and a sense of realism threading a string of dark comedy throughout the play.

The first act involves a talk show interview with Mary, the mother of God. The act moves through a series of events exposing Jesus to the modern world. Act two continues to explore various interpretations of Christian religion since Jesus' death and Jesus considers his second coming.

By interspersing the play with humorous points, Ballon lets the audience digest all of the messages he is sending without uprooting ingrained Christianity and yet posing important questions. If you are up for an evening of thought provoking, quality entertainment, you won't want to miss this one.

In the Name of God will be performed Feb. 21-23 at 8 p.m. in Hampden Theatre at UMass. Tickets are $3 for students and $5 for the general public. Reservations can be made by calling 545-2511.

this weekend

The magic of Floyd recreated at Katina's

By KEN KIE
Collegian Correspondent

Pink Floyd fans get ready to welcome The Machine to Katina's Friday night.

Although they play exclusively Pink Floyd, don't give them a "tribute band" label. Guitarist and lead singer Joe Pascarell prefers the term "cover band," because, for one thing, they don't try to look like Pink Floyd. "They don't really even have a look," he explains. "The music is the main thing with them. That's what I liked about them. We just go up there in street clothes and play music, just the way they are." Another reason is that, rather than offering up straight copies of Floyd songs, The Machine provides its own interpretations.

There are, of course, exceptions to that rule. Some aspects of Pink Floyd's music can't be changed to a great extent. Take, for instance, guitar solos. "They're a pretty guitar-heavy band," explains Pascarell. "Some of them you have to play the same, just like you have to sing the lyrics. They're just that good."

The Machine is pretty good, too. Last year, The Boston Globe said of Pascarell, "he sings like Roger Waters and plays like David Gilmour." That's high praise even for someone not doing Pink Floyd.

The Machine — Pascarell, bassist Adam Price, drummer Todd Cohen, and keyboardist Sarah Gardener — started out about three years ago in Rockland County, New York. They've been doing strictly Pink Floyd for a little over a year now; before that, the other stuff they played was greeted with a "C'mon, let's hear some more Floyd" reaction from the crowd. The band responded, and so has their ever-growing following.

"We do all the obvious Pink Floyd, which is a lot of material, and then we do lot of the obscure stuff, too," says Pascarell. One of the "obvious" Floyd tunes you won't be hearing is the song from which the band takes its name: "Welcome to the Machine." Pink Floyd used as many as eleven people to perform that one live, so, when the four members of The Machine try it "it just doesn't sound that great," according to Pascarell.

Although they have but four members, they also have a digital sampler to provide such key effects as the helicopter in "Another Brick in the Wall" and the cash register from "Money." After all, a Pink Floyd show without that would be like Gone With the Wind without the "Frankly my dear, I don't give a damn" line.

"Most bands are posers but we're really sincere," says Pascarell. "We don't have any gimmicks and there's no B.S. involved with our music."

If you're looking for music with no B.S. or any other artificial ingredients, check out The Machine. And if you're a Pink Floyd fan, don't even consider missing out on this great cover band (not tribute band) this time, or the next time they come to town.

The Machine will play at Katina's in Hadley on Friday. The show will start at 8 p.m. Tickets are $6 for those 21 and over and $8 for those 18, 19 and 20.

An esoteric Journey

By ANGIE LANDRY
Collegian Correspondent

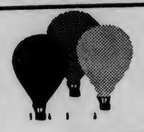
Shall I compare thee to a Summer's day?
Golden fruit, candelabras, and Ezmyreldan birds set a simple yet elegant scene for the Hampshire Shakespeare Company's performance of Love's Journey, playing at the Grace Church Parish Hall on the common in Amherst. This play, based on Shakespeare's sonnets, was conceived and adapted by Brian Marsh and Timothy Holcomb and was first performed at the Bookmill in Montague last Spring.

Although the dialogue was taken from 31 of the sonnets, it still tells a compelling story. Beginning with the courting, flattery, and seduction, then moving on to lust, jealousy, and arguments, and finishing with the reunion and love, the three actors, Kay Lyons, John Gould, and Timothy Holcom bring the audience through the stages of a romantic relationship.

As a rule, Shakespearean drama is not for everyone, and Love's Journey is no exception. Due to the lack of action and abundance of script, much of the dialogue is difficult to understand, and monotonous. And although the performance lasted less than an hour, it came close to reaching the attention-span-overload-limit. A background in the sonnets is a definite bonus to an audience member.

"My mistress' eyes are nothing like the sun," but then again, neither is this production. It does not dazzle, but it is a good way to spend an evening. Seating is limited, so get there early and bring a friend. At worst, you can both wonder why anyone would take the time to paint pineapples and dead birds gold.

Love's Journey will be performed at Grace Church Parish Hall on Feb. 22-23.



SURVIVAL TIPS FOR THE FIRST YEAR ON THE JOB

Speaker: Douglas Willett
Vice President Travelers Insurance

Special Career Week Presentation
Today
4:00 PM
Campus Center Room 176

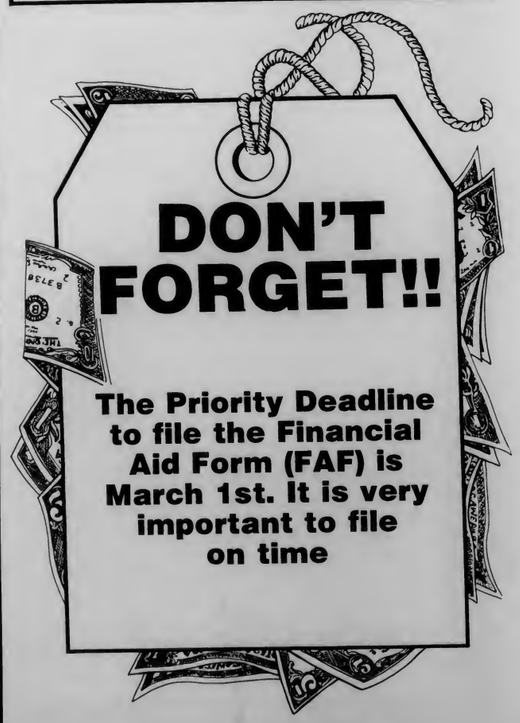
THE MATHER CAREER CENTER
Where Careers Take Off!
Call 545-4945 for details

UMASS SKI CLUB

SKI KILLINGTON!!

with the UMass Ski Club
on Saturday, February 23.
Sign up on the Concourse
or in the Ski Club Office
430 Student Union
Only $35

430 Student Union 545-3437



DON'T FORGET!!

The Priority Deadline to file the Financial Aid Form (FAF) is March 1st. It is very important to file on time

Alternatives to Academics

THURSDAY

Mozart's Last Year, 1791, a lecture by Henry G. Mushkin, will be given at 12:15 in Amherst College Music Center 3. Admission is free.

Everything's For You, a film by Abraham Ravett of Hampshire College, will be shown at the Smith College Mendenhall Center for the Arts' Green Room at 3:30 p.m.

The New German Cinema in Context film series will present Fassbinder's Chinese Roulette at Amherst College in Merrill II at 4 p.m. andn 7:30 p.m. Admission is free.

A Japanese Tea Ceremony will be held at Mount Holyoke College in Eliot House from 7 p.m. to 8:30 p.m. Reservations are required. Call Nobue Socho Yamashita at 538-2054.

The Fire THIS Time: Politics and Fiction a lecture by acclaimed novelist John Wideman (Philadelphia Fire) will take place at Hampshire College's Adele Simmons Hall at 7 p.m. Admission is free.

The African Film Series will present La Vie est Belle at Dwight 101, Mount Holyoke College. Showing at 7:30 p.m. Admission is free.

Making Sense Out of Suffering a lecture by Peter Craft of Boston College will be presented at the Smith College Nielson Library Browsing Room, 7:30 p.m. A question and answer session will follow. Admission is free.

Mount Holyoke College Student Dance Concert will feature a wide range of dance forms choreographed and danced by students. The concert will take place at 8 p.m. at Mount Holyoke College's Kendall Hall Studio Theatre with repeat performances on Friday and Saturday. Tickets are $3 for adults; $4 for students; $1 for children and elders. Advance ticket purchase recommended.

Why the Movies Were Invented a lecture by Louis Menand of Queens College and the Graduate Center at CUNY will be held at Smith College in Seeley Hall 10 at 8 p.m. Admission is free.

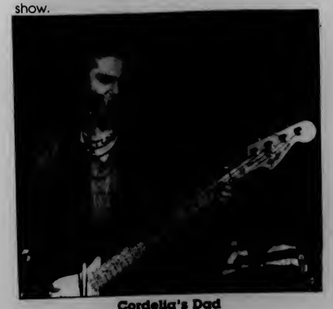
Asian Studies, Canons and Translation: Thoughts of a Working Translator a lecture by Richard H. Minear, professor of History at UMass, will examine aspects of translation. The lecture will be held at Memorial Hall at 8 p.m. with a reception by UMass President/Chancellor Joseph Duffey. Admission is free.

In the Name of God, a play by Richard Ballon, is a startling comedy that takes a look at the Judo-Christian Influence in America on both a psychological and commercial level. The play will be shown at UMass Hampden Theatre at 8 p.m. with repeat performances on Friday and Saturday. Tickets are $5; $3 for students/elders. For info call: 545-2511.

Speed the Plow, a play by David Mammet, directed by Douglas Anderson, takes a humorously satirical look at the business of Hollywood. The show will take place at Amherst College's Fayerweather Studio Theatre at 8 p.m. with repeat performances on Friday and Saturday. Admission is free but reservations are required; call 542-2277 for info.

The Conformist, a film by Italian director Bernardo Bertolucci, will be shown at Hampshire College's Adele Simmons Hall, Ruth Hammen Auditorium at 9 p.m. Admission is free.

Cordelia's Dad, with Sad Cafe, will perform at Pearl Street, Northampton. This is an 18 and over show.



Cordelia's Dad

The Tony Rice Unit will take to the stage at the Iron Horse Cafe, Northampton, at 7 p.m. Tickets are $11 in advance.

Post Game Basketball will take place at Twisters Tavern in Amherst after the UMass-Temple game. Rah-rah. At 8 p.m., The Simpsons will be shown and following the Simpsons there will be comedy routines from 8:30-9:30 p.m. No cover.

FRIDAY

Mo, a play written by John Guilderson and directed by Sean Kelly, will be performed by the Alternative Theatre Group at UMass on the steps of the Student Union Building at 12:15 p.m.

Concert to Honor Konrad Wolff, in memory of the pianist and teacher, will take place at 8 p.m. at Smith College's Sage Hall, Room 2. The performance will feature compositions by Wolff, and selections by Mozart and Beethoven. The event is free and open to the public. The Falcon and the Snowman will be shown at the Amherst College Campus Center Theatre at 7:30 p.m. and 10 p.m. with repeat showings on Saturday and Sunday. Admission is $1.50

Really Rosie, by Maurice Sendak, a play where a little girl casts her friends for an imaginary movie, will be performed at Smith College's Helen Hills Hills Chapel at 8 p.m. with repeat performances on Sunday at 8 p.m. and 2 p.m. Tickets are $1 to $3. Call Kate for advanced reservations: 585-7332.

Sara Hickman/Cliff Eberhart will perform at the Iron Horse Cafe, Northampton, at 7 p.m. Tickets are $7 in advance.

Rippopotamus plays at Pearl Street with D.J. Job.

The Machine will perform at Katina's.

Settle and the Acoustic Wayz will play at Twisters in Amherst at 9 p.m. No cover.

SATURDAY

Weaving Tales with John Porcino – In the morning, a benefit performance of imagination and music for all those who love to hear stories. In the afternoon, a hands-on workshop for all who would like to tell stories. Performance starts at 10:30 a.m.; workshop at 1 p.m. at the UMass Bezanson Recital Hall. For registration information call: 545-0519.

WMUA's Anti-Censorship Benefit features rap, R-n-B performers doing their stuff in the UMass Student Union Ballroom form 8 p.m. to 1 a.m. For information call Christina Rosetti at 545-2876. Tickets are available at Tix Unlimited.

Urban Bush Women perform Praise House, a multi-disciplinary piece examining the revelatory experiences of southern African American women artists. Inspired by the life of folk artist Minnie Evans, the show will be performed at Umass Bowker Auditorium at 8 p.m. Tickets are $22; $20; Half price for students; 10 per cent off for elders. For info call: 545-2511.

Benjamin Verdery, classical guitarist, will perform at Amherst College's Buckley Recital Hall for the Annual Amherst guitar festival at 8:15 p.m.

Louis C.K. will provide wacky, screwball stand-up comedy in the Amherst College Campus Center Frontroom at 9 p.m. Tickets are $5; $1 with an Amherst College I.D.

The Oyster Band with June Tabor will perform at 7 p.m. at The Iron Horse Cafe, Northampton. Tickets are $10 in advance.

Progressive Dance Night takes place at Katina's Nightclub. Dancing with D.J. Job, gets groovy at Pearl Street, Northampton.

Sophomore Speakeasy Party – suds and swing at Mount Holyoke College's Chapin Auditorium from 10 p.m. to 2 a.m. All are invited to come and celebrate the 20's in style.

SUNDAY

The Annual Latke vs. Hamantashen Debate follows a brunch at 11 a.m. at the UMass Hillel House Lounge. For info call: 549-1710.

Mount Holyoke College Faculty Recital, featuring Melinda Spratlan and Gary Steigerwalt, and music by Handel, Purcell, Charles Ives, Brahms and Debussy, will take place at Pratt Auditorium from 4 p.m. to 5:30 p.m.

Shawn Covin, folk music great and Columbia recording artist performs in Amherst College's Buckley Recital Hall at 8 p.m. Tickets are $10; $3 with an Amherst I.D. For info call: 542-5770 or 542-5773.

Dr. John, the ambassador of New Orleans music is in – this time with a group, and will perform at the Iron Horse at 7 p.m. and 10 p.m. Tickets are $15 in advance.

Material Issue plays back-to-basics Rock and Roll at Katina's Nightclub. Easthampton's own 8th Route Army opens the all ages show.

Material Issue

Five College Choral Festival, featuring choirs from each of the five colleges, will perform music ranging from Rennaissance to contemporary. The festival, which will include a combined performance of all fourteen participating choirs, will be held at Smith College's John M. Greene Hall at 7:30 p.m. Admission is free.

91 Days Before Graduation Party will take place at Twisters Tavern in Amherst.

The 14th Annual
PROFESSIONAL AGRICULTURE CONVENTION

Student Displays
Industrial Exhibits
Meadow Muffin Contest
Guest Speakers
Free Admission

Monday
FEBRUARY 25, 1991
10 am - 4 pm
UMASS CAMPUS CENTER AUDITORIUM
Sponsored by:
STOCKBRIDGE SCHOOL OF AGRICULTURE
Guest Speakers:
RM 163 C
Free Admission
10:30 Dave Swendsen
"Natural Resource Law Enforcement"
12:30 Dan Beaudette
"Agriculture Financing"
2:00 Paul Millette
"Today's Farmer Complying with Todays Environmental Laws"

Jrban Bush Women to perform Praise House

On Saturday night, Urban Bush Women will perform raise House in Bowker Auditorium at the University of assachusetts. Urban Bush Women was established in 84 by Artistic Director Jawole Willa Jo Zollar as a vehi- le for the exploration of cross-cultural diversity and heatrical constants.

Using contemporary idioms and interdisciplinary forms, he company presents dance/theater works rooted in the olklore and religious traditions of African Americans hroughout the diaspora.

Through the immediacy of live music, the drama and it of the spoken word, a cappella vocalizations based on ield hollers and chants, and most especially the force and pirit of movement, the company explores the struggle, rowth and transformation of the human spirit.

The performers take us from the particular — a birthing eremony, a teenage pajama party, a rural church, a hot ummer night — to the universal, a sisterhood forged in ar, the dignity found through suffering, the joy wrested om survival. They create a sense of community on stage, inging and dancing for all of us about our common manity.

raise House examines the relevatory experiences of outhern Black women artists. In particular, it is inspired by the life of folk artist Minnie Evans, who found her calling through a vision in which she was commanded to "paint or die."

A character modeled on her is the central figure whose visionary path unfolds in a series of scenes synthesizing text, song and movement. Other characters accompanying her on her sublime and sometimes terrifying journey of the spirit are her mother and grandmother, an itinerant street preacher and a chorus of angels.

The work is a collaboration involving Jawole Willa Jo Zollar as director-choreographer, co-choreographer Pat Hall-Smith, composer Carl Riley, writer Angelyn DeBord and visual artist Leni Schwendinger.

This performance is presented by The Fine Arts Center and New WORLD Theater.

New WORLD Theater is also scheduled to present two more plays this spring, both by women artists. Sisters, by Marsha Jackson, on Sunday, March 3, and Letters to a Student Revolutionary, by Elizabeth Wong, on Thur.-Sat., March 28-30 and Thur.-Sat., April 4-6. Letters to a Student Revolutionary is a New WORLD Theater original production.

Urban Bush Women will perform Praise House on Feb. 23 at 8 p.m. Tickets are $22 and $20.

The Urban Bush Women will perform Praise House, a play inspired by the life of folk artist Minnie Evans.

LAST CHANCE FOR EXCHANGE
FOR FALL 91/SPRING 92

WITH ROOTS HERE AT UMASS, STUDENTS CAN BRANCH OUT TO ONE OF OVER 90 COLLEGES AND UNIVERSITIES ACROSS THE UNITED STATES THROUGH THE NATIONAL STUDENT EXCHANGE PROGRAM

INTERESTED?! PLEASE ATTEND ONE OF THIS MONTH'S INFORMATION SESSIONS, FROM 4-5 PM:

THURSDAY, FEBRUARY 21, CC 803
WEDNESDAY, FEBRUARY 27, CC 803

FREE ICE WITH KEGS

Sam Adams Double Bock 6 pk	$4.99*
Bud, Bud Lite & Dry Case	$13.69*
Busch & Busch Lite 12 pk	$5.69*
Rolling Rock 12 pk	$6.89*
Popov Vodka 1.75 L	$10.49
Seagrams V.O. 750 ml	$9.89
Seagrams 7 750 ml	$7.69
Jim Beam 750 ml	$6.99
Kahlua 1.75 L	$28.99

*Plus Deposit
FOUR SEASONS
333 Russel St.
Hadley, MA 01035
"A New Family Owned Business"
Four Seasons WINES & LIQUORS
ROUTE 9, HADLEY, Between Burger King and Dunkin Donuts • 584-8174

Union Program Council and the Duke Ellington Committee Present:
AN EVENING OF JAZZ WITH
BRANFORD MARSALIS
(recently seen with Sting & the Grateful Dead)
THURS. FEB. 28
at 8 pm
in the UMass Fine Art Center
TIX available at the box office
$9 UMass students, $12 Others
charge at 545-2511

THE PUB
fun. food & spirits
After the UMASS-Temple Game
Genuine Draft Long Neck 12 oz.
$1.25
SINCE • 1968
15 EAST PLEASANT-AMHERST

Largest College Daily in New England

THE MASSACHUSETTS DAILY COLLEGIAN Established in 1890

VOLUME C FRIDAY, FEBRUARY 22, 1991 ISSUE 87

Saddam accepts Soviet plan; Bush skeptical

MOSCOW (AP) — Iraq and the Soviet Union have agreed on steps that could lead to an Iraqi withdrawal from Kuwait and an end to the Persian Gulf War, a Kremlin spokesperson said early this morning.

The Kremlin spokesperson, Vitaly Ignatenko, made the announcement after more than two hours of talks between President Mikhail S. Gorbachev and Iraq's foreign minister, Tariq Aziz, on the terms of a Soviet peace plan proposed earlier this week.

He said the two sides agreed on eight points, starting with an Iraqi agreement to a full and unconditional withdrawal from Kuwait.

The pullout would be monitored by the United Nations, he said.

The White House expressed "serious concern" about the plan, but said it would consult with coalition partners about the initiative that would result in an Iraqi withdrawal from Kuwait.

Spokesperson Marlin Fitzwater said, in the meantime, the U.S. and its allies will "continue to prosecute the war."

Fitzwater said President Bush had not decided whether to begin a ground war. Bush himself went to the theater and was not available to comment.

Gorbachev called Bush last night to brief him on details of the plan. The president thanked him for his efforts, "but raised serious concerns about several points in the plan," Fitzwater said.

"The president has indicated there could well be some difficulties here," Fitzwater said. It was far from a rejection, but the White House resisted questions about whether there was anything positive in the proposal.

"I don't want to give it any characterization," Fitzwater said. "The war itself continues. We will continue to seek compliance with the U.N. resolutions and the president will make decisions concerning the ground war as appropriate."

In the administration's view, the Soviet plan deals primarily with an Iraqi withdrawal from Kuwait and an assurance that Saddam's troops will not be attacked as they leave.

The 12 U.N. Security Council resolutions go much further imposing an economic boycott against Iraq. "They were imposed for a purpose, and lifting them requires more than just a pullout," said an official, who spoke on condition of anonymity.

The administration believes the sanctions should be kept in force even after complete withdrawal, he said.

"It sounds like this may be what we're looking for, Saddam getting out without condition," said Sen. Trent Lott (R-Miss.).

200 anti-war demonstrators hold peace rally

1 of 400 held yesterday in U.S.

43 peace protesters arrested

By CHRIS MUTHER
Collegian Staff

By MEREDITH O'BRIEN
Collegian Staff

Before the rally on the Amherst Common, some 200 UMass students rallied on the Student Union Steps for peace. The UMass Coalition for Peace and Non-intervention in the Middle East, the organizers of the 12:30 p.m. rally, urged students to walkout of classes at noon.

"Some of us have classes, all of us have a war," rally organizers shouted to students.

Rally organizer Jennifer Cannon, a junior Women's Studies major, said over 400 colleges and universities around the country were staging similar protests yesterday.

Eyad Kishawi, a UMass graduate from Lebanon who spoke at the rally, said the U.S. bombing of Baghdad is equivalent to the bombing of Hiroshima.

"A whole area is devastated in minutes. People are blocked in by rubble," he said. "They have no access to food or medical care. Four hundred people have died because of U.S. Smart Bombs."

He added the cluster bombs used by the U.S., that have been declared illegal by the United Nations, make it impossible to rescue injured civilians.

"The U.S. is not after peace, the U.S. is after oil, and this is what we need to recognize," he said.

Kishawi also praised Gregory Levey, the 30-year-old man and UMass graduate who set himself on fire Monday afternoon on the Amherst Town Common, as a "martyr for peace."

Amy Finklestein, a sophomore English major, said Bush is using the war as a cover to escape from other issues.

"George Bush is using the war to hide from other important issues like the environment and economic problems," she said.

Finklestein also urged students not only to wear yellow ribbons to support the troops, but red ribbons as well to show support for nonviolence against women.

James Arthur Jemison from the Black Mass Communications Project said there is a fundamental hypocrisy in the way African-Americans are treated by the United States government.

"We've fought in every American war, and died in large numbers," he said. "What freedom do we have? We were given rights that should have been ours long ago."

Jemison added that 12 percent of the population in the United States is African-American, but 30 percent of those

CONTINUED ON PAGE 4

Collegian photo by Yana Dlugy

Protesters block traffic yesterday at Amherst Town Common.

Collegian photo by Dondi Ahearn

A protester is restrained by a police officer yesterday at the Amherst Town Common.

Forty-three peace protesters were arrested yesterday afternoon after they blocked intersections in the Amherst center for over an hour.

The arrests followed an anti-Gulf war rally of nearly 600 students and area residents on the Amherst Town Common — the site of Gregory Levey's death.

Monday afternoon, Levey died after dousing himself with paint thinner and setting himself on fire in an apparent protest to the war in the Gulf. The site of the self-immolation was covered with candles, yellow flowers, yellow ribbons, roses and peace poems. Two make-shift tents had been erected at the site where people have been holding 24-hour vigils since his death.

After the rally, the 600 protesters, carrying signs saying "Smart bombs don't kill children, stupid leaders do," marched to the North Pleasant St.-Main St. and North Pleasant St.-Route 9 intersections, clogging the entire downtown Amherst area for nearly an hour.

Jessica Bernstein, one of the 40 "peace keepers" who tried to keep protesters organized, said the group decided to block traffic to "make people do things to stop the Persian Gulf War."

"There should be no business as usual," Bernstein, 20, a Hampshire College junior said. "This war has become a part of our daily lives. People should be up in arms over this."

Amherst Police Chief Donald Maia, flanked by 11 badgeless troopers dressed in riot gear, warned the protesters, at the Main St. intersection, to either move out of the street or be arrested.

Angry motorists tooted their horns and shouted at protesters standing in front of the cars. A full Peter Pan bus was trapped between the two sets of protesters for at least a half hour.

After a heated verbal exchange with police, the protesters on the Main St. corner joined those on the Route 9 intersection.

Before a taunting group screaming, "People united will never be defeated," Maia arrested the protesters blocking the road and escorted them to a waiting mini-bus.

As the bus pulled away, protesters encircled it with a human chain and followed it down North Pleasant St. and College St. The bus full of protesters was forced to stop several times because people sat down in front of it. It took the bus nearly an hour to travel less than a half mile to

CONTINUED ON PAGE 4

Vanin named interim vice chancellor

By MARK HENSLEY
Collegian Staff

Jo-Anne Vanin, currently dean of students and associate vice-chancellor for Student Affairs, was named interim vice chancellor for Student Affairs, yesterday, by President-Chancellor Duffey and Provost Richard O'Brien.

Vanin is taking over for Dennis Madson, who after 12 years as vice chancellor for Student Affairs, is leaving in March to become vice president for Student Affairs at Lewis and Clark College in Portland, Ore.

"I am delighted to turn my responsibilities over to Dr. Jo-Anne Vanin," Madson said in a press release yesterday. "Dean Vanin is a person of great integrity and presence. She has dedicated her career to the service of college students, and I am certain the Student Affairs division will benefit from her strong leadership."

Vanin's appointment will be effective on Feb. 24 and will run 15 months to June 1992.

In the press release, Duffey expressed his pleasure at Vanin's appointment.

"Jo-Anne is a strong educational leader and marvelous advocate for students and their concerns," Duffey said. "She has worked very well with both students and administrators and I am extremely pleased that she accepted the appointment."

Since 1989, when Vanin became dean of students, she has dealt with some tough problems including the extensive protests launched by students and community members against the University's defense-related research.

"I am delighted and honored by this opportunity to serve as vice chancellor," Vanin said in the press release. "I look forward to helping sustain the excellence of the University throughout the 90s."

Vanin added that despite the "challenges of these fiscally constrained times," she has confidence in the Student Affairs staff and would "strive to continue the strong commitment to access and quality programs and services for all students . . ."

O'Brien, in the press release, expressed his confidence in Vanine.

"Jo-Anne Vanin is dynamic and dedicated, and I am very pleased that she has agreed to step in to a position that is so central to the well-being of the students here," he said. "She has contributed much already as dean of students, and we look forward to her continued clear thinking and direction."

In Dec. 1990, Vanin was promoted to associate vice chancellor of Student Affairs, replacing William Weitzer, who left for a

CONTINUED ON PAGE 4

INSIDE:

FRIDAY, FEBRUARY 22, 1991

Page 3:
Rep. Stanley Rosenberg offers alternative to Gov. Weld's furlough plan.

Page 5:
Michael Savio says shorter grace period for fire alarm installations could have saved lives.

Page 12:
UMass men's basketball falls to Temple, 80-70.

WEATHER

Jack Frost is still nipping us in the but, it's going to be mild today — around 50 degrees.

THE MASSACHUSETTS
DAILY COLLEGIAN

New England's largest college daily newspaper. Circulation: 19,000. Published every weekday during the calendar semester. The Massachusetts Daily Collegian is a Registered Student Organization of the University of Massachusetts.

113 Campus Center, Amherst, MA, 01003
Phone (413) 545-3500 FAX (413) 545-1592

STAFF

Editor in Chief ..... Terry Starmer
Managing Editor ..... Jody Cabin
Editorial Editor ..... Jeremy Levinson
News Editor ..... Gayle Long
Sports Editor ..... Adrien Matt
Arts Editor ..... Danielle Dowling
Photography Editor ..... K.A. Burke
Black Affairs Editor ..... Sondra Sutton
Women's Issues Editors ..... Risa Kelly, Monique Tabon
Multicultural Affairs Editor ..... Alexander Nguyen
Third World Affairs Editor ..... Pratip Dastidar
Lesbian, Bisexual, Gay Issues Editor ..... Trystan Skeigh
Business Manager ..... Susan George
Advertising Manager ..... Dave Melnick
Finance Manager ..... Beth Patterson
Circulation Manager ..... Jim Winterbottom
Subscriptions Manager ..... Stacey Rogers
Promotions Manager ..... Marc Pruskin
Production Manager ..... Nicole Dumas
Day Graphics Manager ..... Jenn Burns

PROFESSIONAL STAFF

Business ..... Brian Harrington, Lori Black, Maureen Majerowski
Graphics ..... Rory Evans

TODAY'S STAFF

Night Editor ..... Sarah DeMaster
Copy Editor ..... Lavinia Gammon
Layout Technician ..... Nicole Dumas
Photo Technician ..... Dondi Ahern
Production Supervisor ..... Nicole Dumas
Typesetter ..... Kim Frsino
Production ..... Brad Hutchison, Chris Prell, Jason Torla

For Your Information

FRIDAY, FEBRUARY 22

Coffee Social — Sponsored by the Lesbian, Bisexual, Gay Alliance. 3 p.m. to 6 p.m., 803 Campus Center. All welcome.

Dance — "Everybody dance now . . ." Sponsored by the LBGA. 9 p.m. to 1 a.m., 10th floor Campus Center, $3 donation. Play — "In the Name of God" by Richard Ballon. Hampden Theatre, Southwest, UMass 8 p.m.

Workshop — Dance workshop, "Approaches to Performance,"with Urban Bush women. Scott Gym, Smith. 10:30 a.m.- noon. limited to 25.

SATURDAY, FEBRUARY 23

Read-out — Writers and Artists for Peace in the Middle East are sponsoring a "Read out against the war" event at the Grace Episcopal Church, 16 Spring Street, Amherst from 2-5 p.m.

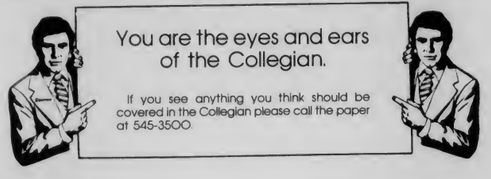
March — A march for peace will take place from the Hampshire College bus stop to Westover Air Force Base. Marchers will meet at 9 a.m. at the Hampshire College bus stop.

SUNDAY, FEBRUARY 24

Peace Vigil — A vigil for peace in the Middle East on the Amherst Common from 12-1 p.m.

Informal reception — An informal reception for women of African, Asian, Latino and Native American decent will be at 5 p.m. in the Van Meter Lounge. R.S.V.P. 545-4209 or 549-1224. There will be good food, music, a mime performance, and networking for a new group.

Workshop — A workshop on Interfaith Marriage and Relationships will be led by Rabbi Rachel Cowan from 2-5 p.m. in the Neilson Library Browsing Room of Smith College.



You are the eyes and ears of the Collegian.
If you see anything you think should be covered in the Collegian please call the paper at 545-3500.

Rent One of Ours
• Cars
• Trucks
• Cargo Vans
Rent by Day, Week or Month
Special Weekly and Weekend Rates
North Amherst Auto Rental
Rt. 63, 40 Montague Rd.
North Amherst, MA
549-RENT
(549-7368)
Most Major Credit Cards Accepted
On Bus Route

THE SPUR
Fun • Food • Spirits
Friday and Saturday
Sample Our New Menu
Vegetarian Nachos
$2.00
8:00 pm - 10:00 pm
Pitcher of Miller Lite
$4.50
Absolut Jello Shots
$1.00
SINCE • 1968
15 EAST PLEASANT·AMHERST

The INDIA HOUSE
RESTAURANT
Serving in the same location on State St. since 1984
DINNER for 2
$13.95 COMPLETE
ENTREES CHANGE DAILY
SUNDAY—THURSDAY
5 P.M. — 9 P.M.
45 STATE ST.
NORTHAMPTON, MA
586-6344

ENJOY THE REWARDS OF RESEARCH:
If you plan to start a research career upon graduation, start your job search at Tufts University, Boston Campus. Tufts' Boston Campus is comprised of the Medical, Dental and Veterinary Schools, the Sackler School of Biomedical Sciences, and the U.S.D.A. Human Nutrition Research Center on Aging. We have an ongoing need for science graduates in a variety of exciting medical science research areas including: Biochemistry, Pathology, Anatomy and Cellular Biology, Molecular Biology, Physiology, and Neuroscience.
Tufts offers an excellent salary and benefits package including tuition assistance. Our Representative will be on campus soon – check Career Services Office for the date – or call or write to Tufts University, Ilene Granstein, for information, 200 Harrison Ave., Boston, MA 02111, (617) 956-6600. An Affirmative Action/ Equal Opportunity Employer.
TUFTS UNIVERSITY

ADVOCATE BEST OF THE VALLEY 1989
Hunan Garden Restaurant
MANDARIN/SZECHUAN CUISINE
The Best Chinese Buffet
AND PRICES IN TOWN
Buffet Served 5-8 PM Sun-Thurs Brunch Served Sun. 11:30 AM-3:00 PM
ALL YOU CAN EAT
Children Under 10 $3.00
$5.99
(1) Hot and Sour Soup
(2) Chicken Fingers
(3) Chicken Wings
(4) Fried Wontons
(5) Pan Fried Ravioli
(6) Beef with Snow Peas
(7) Szechuan Spiced Chicken
(8) Sweet and Sour Chicken
(9) Roast Pork Fried Rice
(10) Vegatable Fried Noodles
(11) Chinese BBQ Pork
(12) Broccolli in Oyster Sauce
We Deliver in Amherst 5-10:00 PM-Everyday
Minimum $15 plus $2 Delivery Charge
TAKE OUT SERVICE • FULL COCKTAIL MENU
10 BELCHERTOWN RD, AT RTE. 9, AMHERST, MA 256-0251, 256-0252

BETTY RULES!
February 24
Show starts at 8:00 p.m.
JOHN M. GREENE HALL
Smith College Campus
Doors and Box Office Open at 7:00 p.m.
General Admission
Five College Students $5
General Public $8
$10 at the door
On sale at For the Record, Amherst
Sponsored by Smithg Lesbian-Bisexual Alliance and Women's Resource Center

RÉSUMÉS
CopyCat Print Shop
• Great Service • Great Prices
228 Triangle St./Amherst 549-3840

LOCAL

House proposes deferred payment for state workers

By MARK HENSLEY
Collegian Staff

The House of Representatives has proposed a deferred payment plan as an alternative to Gov. Weld's plan to furlough all state employees, Rep. Stanley Rosenberg (D-Amherst) said yesterday.

The plan calls for state employees to work a certain number of days this year without pay in return for compensation when they retire or stop working for the state.

The deferment plan, which would replace Weld's 10-day furlough plan, is aimed at saving $94 million in state wages, and if approved would be a part of state government's attempt to close this year's $850 million budget deficit.

The number of days employees would work with deferred pay would be proportional to their salary, according to Rosenberg.

All state employees who earn less than $20,000 would work one or two days this year with deferred pay, with the number of days increasing proportionately with salary to a maximum of 15 days.

Senator John W. Olver (D-Amherst) said the plan was an improvement, but said it still placed the burden of the state's deficit on the shoulders of state workers.

"It removes a portion of the sting, but for people to lose any pay when they have gone without raises for several years is really a heavy burden," Olver said.

Olver added the proposal seemed especially unfair in light of the raises Weld has given to some of his "top managers."

Rosenberg has similar objections to the plan and said he is working on some alternatives.

"I consider [the deferment plan] some progress, but not satisfactory," he said. "It is in effect a loan from the employees of the state to the Commonwealth."

In place of the deferment plan, Rosenberg is advocating a plan calling for the public sale of "special-issue-mini-bonds" which he said would spread "the responsibility and the opportunity of solving the state's problems throughout the Commonwealth."

Critics of his plan, however, feel it is unwise to take out long-term loans to finance current operating expenses, Rosenberg said.

Along with the deferment plan, Democrats are working on a counter-proposal for Weld's plan to make state employees pay 25 percent instead of 10 percent of their health insurance.

According to Rosenberg, finding a workable health-insurance alternative will be difficult, but he emphasized that the unions' right to collective bargaining should be honored in the negotiating process.

Rosenberg said, as it now stands, the Weld's budget-cutting proposals would affect all state employees regardless of union membership.

Poll finds SGA request popular

70% of students agree with restructuring SGA

By MARC ELLIOTT
Collegian Staff

Almost 70 percent of the student body agreed with the Undergraduate Student Senate officers' request that the administration step in and restructure student government, according to a survey conducted by Project Pulse.

The survey was taken at Vice Chancellor Dennis Madson's request one week after the Senate officers made their request, and five days before he issued a memo on Feb. 11 announcing his decision to suspend the Student Government Association.

Question 21 on the survey asked students if they supported the Senate officers' actions.

"Given that the constitutional convention could not occur within the Senate," read the question, "to what extent do you agree with the actions of the student leaders in calling for a suspension?"

Ten percent said they strongly agreed with the actions, while 57 percent said they somewhat agreed.

The survey also said only 11 percent of the student body know who their student senator is, and 77 percent do not think their opinions are represented by their student senator.

The questions were written by Madson with the help of Project Pulse administrator Julie Lam, said Mary Ellen Sailer of the Student Affairs Research and Evaluation Office.

President of Commuter Area Government Ted Chambers said he did not believe the results are accurate because of the wording of the questions.

"I question the legitimacy of this survey considering that it was written by the Vice Chancellor of Student Affairs," he said. "I am not surprised that the administration released the results of a survey showing that the students support their actions. It is pure propaganda."

Director of Student Activities Irene Carew defended the wording of Question 21, saying the Student Senate could not write its own constitution despite the creation of its own drafting committee three weeks ago.

"Once they brought a proposal back to the Senate, they would debate and send it back, and it would go back and forth like that," said Carew.

Student Trustee Angus McQuilken said he believed the survey was valid.

"Question 21 makes an assumption that the Senate is not capable of restructuring the whole Student Government Association [itself]," said McQuilken. "I believe that, given the results on the other 25 questions, this is a fair, logical, and above all, accurate assumption."

Orchard Hill President Jeff Markuns criticized what he termed Madson's "apparent ignorance of the SGA," referring to Question 19 which asks

CONTINUED ON PAGE 6

Israeli representative; war changes Middle East dynamics

By ALISON BUCKHOLTZ
Collegian Correspondent

Israelis recognize that, although the United States and allied forces now support their position in the Gulf, this war has changed the dynamics of the Middle East and will alter the course of world diplomacy, said Micha Balf, an Israeli representative for the kibbutz movement.

In his discussion, "Israeli Perspectives on the Persian Gulf Crisis," at the Hillel House on Wednesday night, Balf focused on postwar dynamics.

"The U.S. will have a lot more leverage in the Middle East, but other countries will also have leverage on the U.S.," he said. "Linkage (of the Israeli-Palestinian conflict) could come out of the USSR's involvement, and it's clear that the U.S. will move to put pressure on all policies in the Middle East after the war, including Israel's.

"Israel, in turn, is also going to have leverage for refraining from striking back," he said.

Within Israel, internal dynamics have also changed how ordinary citizens view a solution to the Palestinian situation, said Balf.

"People in Israel think that after the war will be a good time for a solution to the conflict," and there will be corresponding pressure from outside of Israel, he said.

Willingness of the Arab states to talk to Israel will determine the success of these talks. "The Israeli public is not as intransigent as it is made to appear," Balf said. "Before Egypt sat down at the table with Israel, no one in Israel thought there was a chance for peace with them. But after the talks, people were rejoicing," he remembered.

"Israel is very interested in sitting down with Syria, but there is no indication that either Syria or Saudi Arabia will talk to Israel right now," he said.

The new leadership that might emerge out of the Palestine Liberation Organization will also help determine a solution to the postwar situation, he said. "Many PLO supporters talk on a consistent basis with the Israeli left," he said, "but none of them condemned the missile attacks on Tel Aviv. Dialogue is less comfortable given this reaction. It has forced people to re-examine the purpose of talks."

"Some on the Israeli left feel like we're in a bottleneck," he said. Regardless of a possible crisis in official dialogue, "the general feeling among Israelis is that we can't demonize Palestinians," Balf said.

Arguments and counter-arguments about the war are as prevalent in Israel as they are in every other country, but Israel is unique because "the peace movement is composed entirely of soldiers," he said, alluding to the fact that every citizen must serve in the army.

"The peace movement in Israel came out in favor of this war and challenged the anti-war movement in the U.S. to re-examine its position — how can you oppose a war against a despot who attempts to destroy only civilian targets?" he asked.

Collegian photo by Dondi Ahearn

STAR GAZING — Amherst local Chris Johnson waits for a friend on Route 9 last night.

BOG to allocate space despite administration ban

By AMY HENRY
Collegian Staff

Despite the recent letter from the administration to the community, relinquishing the Board of Governor's ability to allocate space, Chairperson Sue Gordon said the BOG will continue to serve this function.

Gordon presented a letter stating the BOG could not have this power revoked "until such time as either side wishes to alter it by opening timely and open negotiations in good faith." The letter, written April 4, 1985, was signed by Vice Chancellor for Student Affairs Dennis Madson and Provost Richard O'Brien, the same administrators who signed the letter to the community.

Gordon said because the BOG has not been asked to be on the commission, nor did discussion take place on the state of the BOG before they were told their power to allocate space was rescinded, the current letter is not binding.

"There's no hole in my argument. They have breached a contract," she said. "If the administration is not going to take this document seriously then we will not take their letter seriously."

In addition, Gordon said a letter contradicting the first letter was written to the Collegian by Dennis Madson on Feb. 15, 1991 stating, "The administration has not suspended student government but has supported the formation of a commission composed primarily of students."

CONTINUED ON PAGE 4

amc THEATRES
$3.50 TWILITE SHOW UNITED TO TWILITE
MY FARM'S 4 584-9153
DANCES WITH WOLVES
KEVIN COSTNER
Fri at 1:15/5:00 at $1.50/8:30
Sat at 1:15/5:00 at $3.50/8:30
Sun at 1:15/4:45 at $3.50/8:10
Mon-Thurs at 8:15
sleeping with the enemy
Fri at 1:40/4:45 at $3.50/7:30, 10:15
Sat at 1:40/4:45 at $3.50/7:30, 10:15
Sun at 1:40/6:00 at $3.50/8:30
Mon-Thurs at (8:00 at $3.50/8:30
Scenes from a Mall
Fri at 1:45/5:00 at $3.50/7:45, 10:00
Sat at 1:45/5:00 at $3.50/7:45, 10:00
Sun at 1:45/6:15 at $3.50/8:45
Mon-Thurs at (8:15 at $3.50/8:45
special engagement no passes or passes jodie foster
The silence of the lambs
Fri at 1:30/4:30 at $3.50/7:15, 9:50
Sat at 1:30/4:30 at $3.50/7:15, 10:00
Sun at 1:30/6:15 at $3.50/8:30
Mon-Thurs at(6:45 at $3.50/8:30
HAMPSHIRE 584-7556
Based On A True Story
AWAKENINGS
Fri at 1:40/4:30 at $3.50/7:10, 9:50
Sat at 1:40/4:30 at $3.50/7:10, 9:50
Sun at 1:40/5:30 at $3.50/8:10
Mon-Thurs at(5:30 at $3.50/8:10
HEsaid, SHEsaid
Fri at 1:50/4:40 at $3.50/7:20, 10:00
Sat at 1:50/4:40 at $3.50/7:20, 10:00
Sun at 1:50/5:40 at $3.50/8:20
Mon-Thurs at(5:40 at $3.50/8:20
special engagement no coupons or passes
L.A. STORY
STEVE MARTIN
Fri at 2:00/4:50 at $3.50/7:30, 10:10
Sat at 2:00/4:50 at $3.50/7:30, 10:10
Sun at 2:00/5:50 at $3.50/8:30
Mon-Thurs at(5:50 at $3.50/8:30
HOME ALONE
Fri at 1:40/4:30 at $3.50/7:10, 9:50
Sat at 1:40/4:30 at $3.50/7:10, 9:50
Sun at 1:40/5:30 at $3.50/8:10
Mon-Thurs at(5:30 at $3.50/8:10
JOHN GOODMAN
KING Ralph
Fri at 1:50/4:40 at $3.50/7:20, 10:00
Sat at 1:50/4:40 at $3.50/7:20, 10:00
Sun at 1:50/5:40 at $3.50/8:20
Mon-Thurs at(5:40 at $3.50/8:20
special engagement Sun 3/24 no coupons or passes
NOTHING BUT TROUBLE
Fri at 7:30,10:10
Sat at 7:30,10:10
Sun at 9:30
Mon-Thurs at 8:30
special engagement Sun 3/24
no coupons or passes
THE NEVER ENDING STORY II
Fri at 2:00/4:00 at $2.50
Sat at 2:00/4:00 at $2.50
Sun at 2:00/4:00 at $2.50
Mon-Thurs at 6:30 at $2.50

Cruise Ship Jobs
HIRING Men - Women. Summer/Year Round. PHOTOGRAPHERS, TOUR GUIDES, RECREATION PERSONNEL. Excellent pay plus FREE travel. Caribbean, Hawaii, Bahamas, South Pacific, Mexico. CALL NOW! Call refundable 1-206-736-7000, Ext. 600N1

Council Travel
SPRING BREAK
from Boston
Cancun starting at $489
Jamaica starting at $509
Price includes:
•Round trip airfare & transfers
•7 nights accommodation & hotel taxes
Low Student Airfares!
CALL FOR MORE INFORMATION
79 South Pleasant Street
Amherst, Ma 01002
413-256-1261
America's oldest & largest Student Travel Agency

SPRING BREAK
PANAMA CITY BEACH
FLORIDA
•High quality beachfront accommodations for 7 exciting nights
•Round trip chartered motor coach
•Free pool deck parties, activities, & promotions
•Inter-Campus Programs I.D./Discount card
•On-location staff for complete assistance
•All taxes, tips, & service charges included
$114 $219
Contact Barbara 549-8156

anti-war rally

CONTINUED FROM PAGE 1

fighting in the Persian Gulf are African-American.

Eric Thompson, a representative from the "Peace Corpses," a UMass anti-war theater group, said many people support the war because they do not have enough information to understand it.

"There is a difference between those who support the war because they don't understand it and those who support it because they want to kick some ass," he said. "We need to get information to those who don't understand and get their voices heard."

Bridget Hynes, an international relations graduate student and a rally organizer said the rally was held in an effort to further educate students about the war.

She said her organizafion is "miffed" that the United States seems reluctant to negotiate a peace agreement.

"If the Soviets can negotiate a settlement, why should we continue the killings?" she said.

protesters block traffic

CONTINUED FROM PAGE 1

the police station on Main St. due to protester blockage.

Police roughly pushed protesters out of the way, grabbing the ones sitting on the ground and shoving them toward the sidewalk. At several points, protesters rolled logs and threw tree branches into the bus' way chanting, "The whole world is watching."

Several of the protesters blocking the bus were arrested.

When the bus was at Seeyle St., one street over from the police station, protesters effectively stopped the bus for over 10 minutes, prompting Maia to call in 10 more riot police.

Several people were arrested for writing on the police station with chalk and magic marker. One woman was chased up Main St. by two police after she scrawled, "Stop the killing" on the side of the building.

Michael Berry, a 21-year-old Amherst College senior and protest organizer said although the protesters were not expecting the "world to stop" because they blocked traffic, he did expect people to think more about the war.

"People can't just go about their business and ignore that thousands are dying," he said.

A group of about 20 Amherst College students, holding a "Stomp Iraq" sign, and 10 Amherst high school students, held up American flags and tossed eggs at the protesters. Small groups of counter-demonstrators verbally clashed with peace protesters.

Jo-Anne Vanin

CONTINUED FROM PAGE 1

position at Weslyan University in Conn. on Jan. 4.

When she first came to UMass, Vanin replaced William Field who had served for nearly four decades as the first dean of students.

Collegian file photo

Jo-Anne Vanin, interim vice chancellor for Student Affairs

BOG

CONTINUED FROM PAGE 3

Other Business:

- Michelle Joseph resigned from the Third World Caucus and Rochelle Josiah has been appointed in her place.
- A motion to reappoint two seats to the Lesbian Bisexual Gay community was amended and tabled.
- Monday, Feb. 25, at 4:30 p.m. the constitutional committee of the BOG will hold a meeting in the Campus Center to discuss membership.

50% to 80% OFF SALE
3 DAYS ONLY
ALL SKI EQUIPMENT, CLOTHING, ALL SKI ACCESSORIES, SNOWBOARDS, ALL MAKES ALL MODELS 50-80% OFF RETAIL PRICES.
★ DYNASTAR ★ FISCHER ★ ATOMIC ★ ★ KASTLE ★ PRE ★ BLIZZARD ★
Water Skis, Rollerblades, Tennis Equipment, Mountain Bikes (Hadley store only) are also reduced for this sale!
COMPETITIVE EDGE
Ski & Bike Outlet
Route 9, Hadley 585-8833
Route 5, Holyoke 538-7662
February 22nd - 24th
Friday 10-8, Saturday 10-6, & Sunday 12-5

安城中國飯店
Amherst Chinese Food
Homestyle Cooking
Fresh vegetables from our own farm
DO NOT USE MSG
253-2813
62 Main Street
253-7835
Amherst

FREE POOL
21 and over
ALL DAY EVERYDAY
21 and over
ROLLING ROCK BOTTLES $1.75
• 9ft. Championship Tables
• Six Large Screen TVs with your favorite sports action
• Full Bar
• Drafts in ice cold mugs
• 25 cent hot dogs
• Pizza and burritos
• Full appetizer menu
• Weekly giveaways
• Great for couples
CASH PRIZES Pool Tournament Thursday Nights 7:30
Open:
Mon-Sat Noon-1am
Sun 1 pm-1 am
MICHAEL'S
Billiard Room And Sports Bar
Rt. 9, Amherst, 256-8284
(Next to Hunan Garden)

EDITORIAL/OPINION

The opinions on this page are those of the individual writer or cartoonist and do not necessarily reflect the views of the Collegian or the University unless otherwise noted.

Who decides what is called news

What is news? On first thought, this may seem to most people to be a ridiculous question. After all, most of us read the newspaper, or at least watch the nightly news now and then. But how often do we ask ourselves,"What is news?" Or perhaps, more appropriately,"Who determines what is news?"

For example, if a well-respected member of Congress were to officially propose a resolution calling for the impeachment of President Bush, would most of us consider this newsworthy? If such a congresperson deemed the President guilty of "high crimes and misdemeanors," would we want to know, even if we believed the charges were frivolous?

Steve Moore

How many members of our well-informed University community are aware that exactly this has recently occurred? Although you would not know it from reading your daily paper, or by watching the network news, House Resolution 34 was officially introduced to Congress on Jan. 16 of this year.

This resolution called for the impeachment of President George Bush for committing high crimes and misdemeanors, conditions set forth in Article 2, Section 44 of the U.S. Constitution for removal of the president from office. The resolution cited five articles of impeachment. It was submitted to Congress by Henry Gonzalez of Texas, who was first elected to the House of Representatives in 1961, and has served continuously since.

Gonzalez is perhaps best known as an advocate for the rights of Hispanic U.S. citizens. While he may be considered one of the more liberal members of the House, he is by no means a fringe figure. He is a well-respected member in good standing.

While it is clear that many Americans would consider House Resolution 34 to be irresponsible, surely it is news. The American people should know that at least one of its elected members of Congress deems President Bush deserving of impeachment. Why have we not been informed?

This question, and others like it, are especially important in these days of press censorship by the military. We hear the right shouting their well-worn battle cry, "The media is biased!" Yes, . . . but toward whom? NBC is owned by Westinghouse. And this just scratches the surface.

The government slant of the media is becoming increasingly evident, as witnessed by the network coverage of the Jan. 26 peace rally in Washington D.C. This demonstration drew an estimated 350,000 war protestors, and a couple of thousand war supporters. ABC evening news began its coverage that evening with a two to three minute story about the "thousands of supporters" then about 10 seconds to the "several thousand anti-war demonstrators." The picture painted for the American public was of a large pro-war rally marred by a small group of miscreants. It was truly Orwellian.

While polls show that the majority of the American people support greater constraints upon media coverage of the war, it needs to be pointed out that there is already just one story coming through the mainstream media; that is the point of view of the government, filtered through the perspectives of the various media organizations.

In essence, the mainstream media has become a fourth arm of the government. This is a recipe for fascism. If recent polls speak the truth, one might reasonably fear that the "majority" of Americans will be cheering their approval and support as we are herded into a state of martial law. We need to start asking ourselves "What is news," and "Who is creating it?" And why?

Steve Moore is a UMass student

The second casualty of war: Youth

The front page photo in Friday's Collegian framed Private First Class Nolan sun bathing on an M1A1 Abrams tank in Saudi Arabia.

I wondered why "M1A1 Abrams" was familiar. While rummaging through papers, I came across a Christmas card from a friend at West Point. I looked at the picture he sent of himself in uniform in his dorm-like room. Then I noticed it. He had an M1A1 Abrams poster on the inside of his door, no doubt extolling the features of the tank. The backside of the photo read: "Sometime in October, 1990." U.S. troops were already in Saudi by then. I wonder how long the M1A1 has been in use, and what percentage of Army personnel is qualified to operate the tank.

Adrien Matt

The connection between soil here and sand over there hits home with me because I, like many of you, know guys that are there.

Pat and I go back a couple of years. His older sister and I are close friends. She was married in August, and in August, the last thing on Pat's mind was his sister's wedding. Pat was stationed at Fort Knox.

Pat told me about the tanks he drove, how high-tech they had become in a short span of time, and how much he enjoyed his job. Secretary of Defense Dick Cheney's dismantling of Army ground forces put Pat out of a job at Fort Knox. In July he got word he would be in Germany in December, driving tanks over there.

In August Pat spoke of "that huge ashtray" — of how the halls were getting more and more empty as President George Bush called on the professional soldiers, the nation's finest ground forces (read: tank drivers from Fort Knox).

The day the bombing started a Cable News Network field reporter broadcast that the United States' newest ground forces were in place, "fresh from Germany." She said it so matter-of-factly I almost didn't catch her words. I halted midway through the room upon hearing "ground troops fresh in from Germany." My heart skipped a beat — Pat's there. Wow. He's only 22. That's so young.

Two weeks prior I had heard that my father's girlfriend's son was in Saudi Arabia. We went to high school together. An Air Force pilot, he was given leave for Christmas. His mother Carol said she wondered if it was the last time she would see him. I'm sure his wife is wondering the same — and he's only 20.

They say the first casualty of war is the truth. If truth is the first, youth is a tight second. That kind of experience has got to age you. I know my father returned from Vietnam with more than calendar years behind him.

I was in Los Angeles on Jan. 16. Even in California it was hard not to stay in and watch the news. I looked at CNN for the first hours of the bombing — completely mesmerized — thinking "We're at war."

Plans to drive down to San Diego, the country's largest Naval Base, were delayed as I stared at the TV, agape. Somehow I got on Interstate 5 and leaned forward to catch every word on a National Public Radio station. I watched the moderate traffic and its drivers, wondering if they knew we were at war.

As the burnt orange sun was setting over the Pacific Ocean to my left, it happened upon the silhouettes of U.S. Naval ships off the coast, and all I could think was, "My country's at war."

Adrien Matt is a Collegian staff member

This tragedy should have been prevented

This past Sunday I decided to get up early to study. My ambition was shattered, however, when I learned from my roommate that his brother's apartment had burned down and a friend, Joseph Pirog, had died in the fire. I was stunned. I had seen Jay two days earlier at the coffee shop. I was further stunned to learn that a second person, Matthew Peterson, was injured in the fire and was in critical condition. Sadly, he died of his injuries early Tuesday morning. The most tragic aspect of this fire is that it may have been avoided if there had been just one smoke detector in the house.

When the well-intentioned Amherst Town Meeting approved the the smoke detector bylaw last May, I questioned why landlords were given up to 12 months to comply. I can understand the need for a grace period in order to install the smoke detectors, but why not make it for 90 days? Or even 180 days? Certainly this would give landlords sufficient time to install the detectors.

I remember thinking how horrible it would be if a death occurred during the 12 month grace period due to the lack of a smoke detector. I suppose that I could have written a letter to the Collegian or to an Amherst newspaper, but I figured "What good would it do?" Perhaps if I had not been so apathetic I would have made a difference this past Sunday. Perhaps I could be havng a beer with Jay at the Amherst Social Club today instead of attending his funeral.

There is a simple lesson here, and it took this tragedy to make me realize it: One person can make a difference. It is true that I would never have seen the fruit of my effort, but Jay or Matt might be alive today because of it.

As a non-resident of Amherst, I appeal to the townspeople to call a special session of the Town Meeting to discuss the immediate implementation of the smoke detector bylaw. If need be, give landlords seven days to comply. This may seem like a short period of time, but they've already had nine months to comply.

I think it's sad that it took two deaths to motivate me into writing this letter. It shouldn't have had to come to this. Everybody seems to be trying to find some good in all this tragedy. For me, I hope it's this letter. I know it can't bring them back, but perhaps it will help avert this kind of tragedy in the future.

Michael Savio
Amherst

The other occupation: Remember Palestine

"They are burying us alive. They are burying our childhood." These are the words of Hana, a young girl living in the city of Neblus, a city on Palestine's occupied West Bank. The matter of which she speaks is the Israeli invasion and the subsequent abuse of Palestinians, young and old alike, by the Israeli Army. The quote itself is taken from a documentary, "Children of Fire," recently shown here at UMass. The film focuses on the effects of the Occupation through the eyes of the children. The children of Palestine feel their homeland slipping away from them, being stolen away from them, and with this loss of homeland comes the feeling of a loss of childhood and innocence. These are children who were forced to become adults far ahead of their time in the face of machine gunfire, beatings, and all of the violence associated with an occupation.

The documentary depicts scenes of small school children throwing stones at the Israeli soldiers in the only kind of self-defense they know. They dream of someday becoming soldiers and of driving the Israeli Army out of their land and restoring peace and unity to Palestine.

How many of us have forgotten the Intifada and its struggle for freedom? Or for that matter, how many of us even knew, understood, or cared from the start? To be fair, no one can blame us, the American people, for we are limited to what the mass media choose to reveal to us, and, in the wake of the current Gulf War, many other world events, such as the Baltic fight for freedom, as well as the Intifada, have been overshadowed.

I support the United States government, our government in all its endeavors, yet I ask of them, is it fair to immediately respond to the plight of Kuwaitis while ignoring the injustices being incurred by the Palestinians of the West Bank? The United States government has expressed displeasure towards Israeli policy, and the United Nations has admonished their policies, as well.

Displeasure is not enough. The government must stand behind its words, and we in turn must stand behind our government and work for peace in Palestine. End the Intifada: End the Occupation.

Darcey L. Francis
Amherst

"Patriotism is the veneration of real estate above principles."

— George Jean Nathan

SGA

CONTINUED FROM PAGE 3

students if they were aware that the SGA has no constitution.

"I am appalled at the lack of knowledge Vice Chancellor Dennis Madson has shown about the SGA, and his deliberate attempts to force certain answers," he said.

"He was unaware that the SGA constitution exists, shown by Question 19. He stated that the Senate could not draft a new constitution itself, reading Question 21, and he did not ask if any students knew, or felt comfortable approaching the SGA officers," continued Markuns.

Sen. Dave Gagne also said the survey was inaccurate.

"In talking to many students, they are unsure as to what has really happened," said Gagne. "Without the knowledge of the SGA or its background, it is hard to make any sound judgement. That is why the SAREO poll, I feel, is not an adequate response."

Marines scare Iraqi intruders

NEAR THE KUWAIT BORDER (AP) — Marines guarding their camp got a lesson in how close the war really is when a dozen figures appeared about 200 yards out in the darkness.

A sentry shouted "Halt!" and the figures hit the ground. The jumpy Marines grabbed their guns and locked and loaded. The unexpected guests jumped up and ran.

The Marines believe the men were "line-walkers," or Iraqi deserters coming across the border to give themselves up, said Capt. Doug Simmang, 31, of Dallas, Texas, commanding officer of the 2nd Marine Division infantry company.

"We scared them off, but we learned our lesson," Simmang said. Since then, leaflets with a list of simple commands in Arabic — "Hands up," "Surrender," "Stop or I'll shoot" are a few — have been distributed to the troops in hopes of easing communication problems.

• Early Bird Specials 3 months $80
• Pro-Rated Semester Special
Call for details
in The Price Chopper Mall
FLEX Fitness Center
175 University Dr. Amherst • 253-FLEX

KATINA'S
IMACHINE A TRIBUTE TO PINK FLOYD FEB 22
Progressive Dance Party w/ WHMA's Christine Russell FEB 23
MATERIAL ISSUE Dave Sharp of the Alarm & 8th Route Army FEB 24
Cocktail Flow Music Listening Parties FRONT $42 MAR 2
ROUTE 9, HADLEY • 586-4463

AREA COORDINATORS
AMHERST COLLEGE IS SEEKING CANDIDATES FOR TWO FULL TIME AND ONE HALF—TIME NINE AND A HALF MONTH AREA COORDINATOR POSITIONS, BEGINNING ON AUGUST 15, 1991. THEY WILL BE RESPONSIBLE FOR THE TRAINING AND SUPERVISION OF RESIDENT COUNSELORS PLUS A RANGE OF SUPERVISORY, ADVISING AND ADMINISTRATIVE FUNCTIONS FOR A CLUSTER OF RESIDENCE HALLS. THE FULL TIME POSITIONS WILL ALSO INCLUDE SPECIFIC PROGRAM—WIDE RESPONSIBILITIES COORDINATING CULTURAL/EDUCATIONAL PROGRAMS AND STAFF SELECTION OF SIX SOCIAL ACTIVITIES COUNCILS. QUALIFICATIONS: BACHELOR'S DEGREE BY MAY, 1991; ABILITY TO RELATE WELL TO STUDENTS; AND ORGANIZATIONAL AND COUNSELING SKILLS. PREVIOUS EXPERIENCE IN RESIDENTIAL LIFE AND/OR RELATED MASTERS DEGREE PREFERRED. COMPENSATION: FULL TIME POSITION—APPROXIMATELY $13,000 PLUS BENEFITS. HALF—TIME POSITION—$4,300. ALL POSITIONS INCLUDE ROOM AND BOARD. SUBMIT RESUME, COVER LETTER STATING INTEREST AND QUALIFICATIONS, AND THREE LETTERS OF REFERNCE TO: CHARRI BOYKIN—EAST, ASSISTANT DEAN OF STUDENTS, BOX 2206, AMHERST COLLEGE, AMHERST, MA 01002 BY MARCH 11, 1991
AN EQUAL OPPORTUNITY/AFFIRMATIVE ACTION EMPLOYER

Domino's Pizza Amherst/Hadley 256-8911 South Hadley 535-1111
Buy ANY Large Pizza GET A SMALL 1-ITEM PIZZA for only 30c Expires 3-30-91 1 coupon per order
Buy ANY-Pizza Get a 2nd of equal or lesser value for only $1.99 expires 3-30-91 1 coupon per order
Buy ANY-Large Pizza for the PRICE OF A SMALL PIZZA expires 3-30-91 not good with any other offer

"Get Called For Traveling" with UMass basketball
2 People Will Be Sent to:
PHILADELPHIA for the
Atlantic 10 Championship Playoffs.
includes:
- transportation
- overnight accommodations
- tickets
- spending money
Register Here!
Hit Music Power HMP 99.3 FM
THE PUB-15 East Pleasant St, Amherst
JOE'S CAFE-33 Market Street, Northampton
Hurry!-Deadline is February 24, 1991

DON'T FORGET!!
The Priority Deadline to file the Financial Aid Form (FAF) is March 1st. It is very important to file on time

ARTS & LIVING

Origin of and debate over the word "jazz"

By BILL ROSENBLATT
Collegian Staff

The word "jazz" is part of our English vocabulary as well as that of many other languages by adoption. But where did the word come from? What does it mean? The answers are not widely known and are particularly relevant during African-American History Month.

The Harvard Dictionary of Music claims that the word came into usage around 1917, and that its origins are unknown. Well, maybe unknown to the Harvard folks. "Jazz," like the music it has come to denote, comes from the same place as all other Black cultural elements: Africa. It is derived from the West African word "jasm," meaning "sex."

Substitute a different vowel and you may get the idea. You'll also understand one of the reasons why some African-Americans object to the term. The music's connection with sex comes from the fact that it was played at brothels in New Orleans early in this century. Presumably, "jasm" was a word much used there, and the White clientele chose to identify it with the music. It was known initially as "music to jazz by," or more simply "jazz music."

You may already know that the Blues, another major African-American musical idiom, are rife with sexual innuendo. "I'm the Honeydripper," "Shake Your Moneymaker," "Wang Dang Doodle" and many other songs would have mortified the Tipper Gores of the 30s through 50s if the entertainment industry weren't so segregated. "Rock 'n' roll," which evolved from the Blues, was also a euphemism for sex.

But "jazz" was different in a very important way: the term was coined by Whites, who controlled the music business (still do) — not by the African-American musicians themselves, who coined the term "rock 'n' roll" and titled their own Blues songs. To "jazz" musicians, the music probably didn't have a label, but was simply the music they created on Western instruments since the White slavemasters banned their traditional African drums.

This is the main reason why some feel that "jazz" is a racist term; sometimes the same is said about names for sub-genres of the music such as "Dixieland," "swing" and "bebop." All were invented by White musicians or critics.

Of course, there are other objections to the word "jazz." Jazz musicians are artists, and few true artists like having their work pigeonholed with a word or phrase. Just ask Pat Metheny how he likes being called a "fusion guitarist" or REM how they like being called "college pop."

In any case, various people have proposed alternatives to "jazz." All have their

CONTINUED ON PAGE 8

Jones' display is more than it appears to be

By LEAH ARINIELLO
Collegian Staff

Afro Am 110 and Women's Studies 187 aren't the only ways to get a crash course in culture. In celebration of Black History Month and International Women's Week, become enlightened through art.

Behind the red and green doors of the New Africa House, in the Augusta Savage Gallery, is a collection of art that gives insight into the human condition that words in textbooks find hard to relay. The artist, Brenda Jones, displays what seem to be ordinary portraits of black men and women. But the colors, shading and details bring out emotions from a troubled past.

Art Review

"The Storyteller," a series of three portraits charged with bright red and green oils, depicts a man in a rocking chair. In a somber suit he rocks back and forth while his hands passionately try to be the voice of his tales. What could he be trying to say?

"Do Not Go Gentle Into the Good Night," the name of another series, and also the title of a poem by Dylan Thomas, continues the theme of the storyteller's tales. One portrait uses reds and yellows to convey the tiredness and agony of an old woman. Why is there so much pain wrinkled into her face? In a separate painting, "Dancers," there is a young woman dancing in a washed out background. She has no harsh crevices on her face because she has no expression. Where are her eyes, her nose...her smile?

"I Know Why The Caged Bird Sings" is a collages and drawings. Pastels form a girl with a puzzled expression desperately peering from behind the bars of a cage. Why is she in there?

The storyteller might be trying to say that even in all her pain, the old woman still grabs on to her last breath, the woman with all her sadness continues to dance and the young girl trapped still sings. The storyteller says never give up life for death.

"Do not go gentle into that Good Night; Rage, rage against the dying light"—Thomas.

Brenda Jones' exhibit is up until March 7. Who knows whose cage you might open with your new knowledge.

Save UP TO $100
There's nothing like Legend and Lady Legend! The most unique college rings ever designed—only available from ArtCarved. This popular professional look offers more ways to personalize your college ring. Don't delay—visit your ArtCarved representative during this special sales event to see Legend and the many other styles available.
ARTCARVED
Date: Feb 18-22 ONLY Time: 9:30-3:30
Place: Bookstore
Last time for guaranteed graduation delivery!
Special Payment Plans Available

The 14th Annual
PROFESSIONAL AGRICULTURE CONVENTION
Student Displays
Industrial Exhibits
Meadow Muffin Contest
Guest Speakers
Free Admission
Monday
FEBRUARY 25, 1991
10 am - 4 pm
UMASS CAMPUS CENTER AUDITORIUM
Sponsored by:
STOCKBRIDGE SCHOOL OF AGRICULTURE
Guest Speakers:
RM 163 C
Free Admission
10:30 Dave Swendsen
"Natural Resource Law Enforcement"
12:30 Dan Beaudette
"Agriculture Financing"
2:00 Paul Millette
"Today's Farmer Complying with Todays Environmental Laws"

Summer!
Make it the Best
Work with us at Thompson's Clam Bar, the finest seaside restaurant on Cape Cod. We currently have outstanding opportunities for talented individuals to join our team. Candidates should call Cheryl at (508) 432-1000 to arrange an interview.
* Porters
* Bus Persons
* Dining Room Waitstaff
* Cocktail Waitstaff
* Dishwashers
* Prep Cooks
* Line Cooks
Thompson's CLAM BAR
Snow Inn Road • Harwichport, MA 02646 • 508-432-1000

Summer!
Make it the Best
Work with us at the Wychmere Harbor Hotel and Beach Club, the finest seaside resort on Cape Cod. We currently have outstanding opportunities for talented individuals to join our team. Candidates should call Cheryl at (508) 432-1000 to arrange an interview.
* Waitstaff (Full and Part Time)
* Night Security
* Commissary
* Beach Attendants
* Receptionists
* Snack Bar
* Busing
* Porters
* Bellhops
* Front Desk Staff
* Cashiers
* Laundry
* Breakfast Cook
* Cold Prep
* Line Cooks
* Assistant Night Line Supervisor
* Dishwashers
WYCHMERE HARBOR Hotel and Beach Club
Snow Inn Road • Harwichport, MA 02646 • 508-432-1000

Carter, Higgins and Walton are a Tight trio

By JAMES MOLESWORTH
Collegian Correspondent

Cedar Walton, Billy Higgins and Ron Carter
Iron Horse
February 19

Ceder Walton, Billy Higgins and Ron Carter, a trio? No, more like an oligarchy of the jazz world with their performance the other night cementing that title. By the end of the evening however, it seemed more like the Ron Carter/Billy Higgins Duo. with accompaniment from Cedar Walton.

And while it may have been Ron Carter's group, the night belonged to Billy Higgins.

Billy Higgins is truly a master. His brush work is unparalleled. His entire drum set would transform into a deep warm, red glowing fire, and his brushes were the marshmallows, held in the flame just long enough so that they turned the perfect shade of brown, just the way you liked them as a kid.

Standing tall as his bass, Ron Carter let sail the kind of notes that should make all bass players green with envy. Then he'd cruise through his signature "glisses," that should make all bass players even greener. Near the end of the second set, Ron Carter and Billy Higgins played a duo piece which I'll be humming for weeks, as they changed tempos and went through long series of individualistic chord progressions, yet always returned to the melody perfectly in sync.

As for Cedar Walton, he put in a fine performance, yet seemed to be satisfied with staying in the background. He didn't take a solo all evening. His right hand tinkled over the ivories like five little butterflies, but he only teased with his left, keeping the way clear for the java like warmth of Carter's bass play.

This group is tight, with a capital "T." Their chord punctuations, as a group, would hit you like a sip of scotch, a slight bite at first, then mellowing into a warm glow that engulfs your entire body. The "trio" exhibited the highest level of play that you can find, and to borrow from the popular beer advertisement:

"It doesn't get any better than this."

PAD offers courses

Performing Arts Department Study Discounts, available from the UMass Arts Council, for study in music and dance are available for eight weeks of group study in ballet, popular guitar, violin and piano. These courses are set to begin the first week in March.

The courses that will be offered are: ballet for beginners, on Monday and Wednesday mornings; violin for teens and adults, on Thursday evening; two afternoon piano classes for beginners, on Tuesdays and Thursdays; and popular guitar for beginners, on Thursday evenings.

Private instruction is also available in voice, guitar, piano and band and orchestra instruments. Registration will take place through Thursday, Feb. 28 at the PAD office in the Old Chapel on UMass.

— DANIELLE DOWLING

■ jazz

CONTINUED FROM PAGE 7

merits, but none of them seem ideal. "Black Classical" is heard perhaps most often. This term attempts to put jazz on the same level as "European Classical" (or what most of us know as just "classical"), and this is certainly deserved. But to me, "classical" implies "dead" and "wax museum," i.e., the purely Western notion of art for art's sake. Yet jazz is very much alive and partially non-Western.

Archie Shepp, UMass Afro-Am professor and musical giant, uses the term "Afro-American Instrumental." This term succeeds in avoiding being value-laden, but it ignores the fact that some of the music is vocal, and that most great jazz instrumentalists are said to achieve "vocal quality" on their axes.

Living drumming legend and UMass adjunct music faculty member Max Roach prefers "America's Classical Music," as does Dr. Fred Tillis, music professor and Fine Arts Center Director. Jazz is this country's most important musical-cultural product, but the term obscures its African heritage, and in any case I still have problems with the connotations of "classical."

There have been others, and I have tried several out myself, but I keep coming back to "jazz." It is easier to say, it is used by most musicians nowadays, and the vast majority of the public is unaware of its unflattering origins. No one thinks of New Orleans whorehouses in the context of Duke Ellington or John Coltrane, while in contrast, "n*gg*r" evokes immediate images of slavery and blatant cracker racism.

Shorn of its origins, "jazz" is a non-committal word. It avoids the challenge of trying to be purely factual by not trying at all; it describes by not describing, in a Zen sort of way. It's flexible enough to allow for the often healthy debate on what is and isn't jazz. And now that you've read this column, at least you are aware that some people don't consider it harmless. Today, "jazz" stands as a positive word for a positive music. It may not be perfect, but it's . . . well . . . close enough for jazz.

JAM STOMP DANCE
CAPE VERDIAN STUDENT ALLIANCE
Sat. 23 Feb
10 PM-Until
MALCOM X CENTER
SOUTHWEST AREA
Food will be served (while it lasts!)
RAP reggae hip hop house
PRESENTED BY BLACK MASS COMMUNICATIONS PROJECT
MCP

This Sunday, February 24th

the TOC LOUNGE
will open at 4 PM
so you don't miss any of the action when UMass takes on Rutgers

THIS FRIDAY 2-6 PM
THE TOC SEAFOOD BAR

PEEL 'N' EAT SHRIMP
$ 4.25/HALF DOZ
FRESH STEAMERS
$ 4.50/'BUCKET'

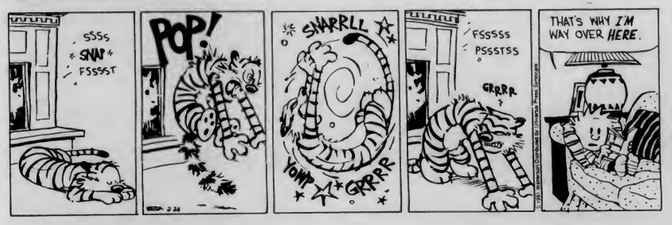
AND 12 OZ DRAFTS
MICHELOB $ 1.15
SAM ADAMS $ 1.45
(BOSTON ALE)
ONLY AT THE TOC LOUNGE
11th FLOOR CAMPUS CENTER

DOONESBURY
By GARRY TRUDEAU

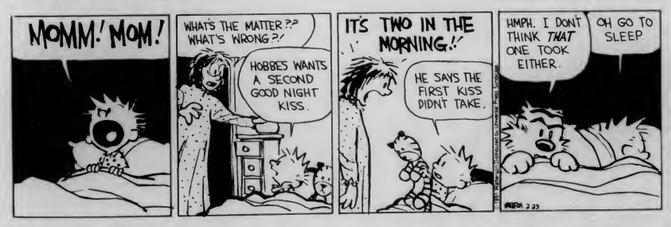
THE FAR SIDE
By GARY LARSON

"OK, ma'am — it's dead. In the future, however, it's always a good idea to check your shoe each time you and the kids return home."

CALVIN AND HOBBES
By BILL WATTERSON



CALVIN AND HOBBES
By BILL WATTERSON



MOMM! MOM!
WHAT'S THE MATTER? WHAT'S WRONG?
HOBBES WANTS A SECOND GOOD NIGHT KISS.
IT'S TWO IN THE MORNING!
HE SAYS THE FIRST KISS DIDN'T TAKE.
HMPH. I DON'T THINK THAT ONE TOOK EITHER.
OH GO TO SLEEP

TANGELO PIE
By TIM SNIFFEN

knock knock
Hi Bonnie, remember me? You and your boyfriend have been harassing me for weeks about being single.
Yeah! Hi!
I just wanted to share these photos of Ted making out with the Taco Bell cashier down at the Mall.
I think you'll agree, this brings our dealings to an abrupt end...
AAAAAA!

SNOOKY LANSON
By E. VEZINA & R. SHAUGHNESSY

HEY FERLIN! GUESS WHAT! I GOT A JOB WORKING IN THE CAF!
RUN... SEE TENNESSEE!
GREAT. SO NOW YOU CAN SWIPE ME SOME GRUB.
WELL... I DON'T THINK SO. I MIGHT GET FIRED.
ALL RIGHT THEN. HAVE FUN GLUING YOUR CULTURE CLUB RECORDS BACK TOGETHER TOMORROW MORNING.
FOOD STORAGE

NOTICE

Mandatory Staff meeting today at 2 p.m. in the newsroom

DAILY CROSSWORD PUZZLE
Edited By TRUDE MICHEL JAFFE

ACROSS
1 Please, in a way
5 Demolished, in Devon
10 Short-billed swamp bird
14 Twist
15 Venerate
16 Ended
17 Diva's forte
18 Extreme fright
19 Give up
20 Bettor's stamping grounds
23 A Turner
24 Educators' gp
25 Very small
28 Submission to destiny
33 Solo
34 Seethes
35 Nero's 151
36 Writer Lardner
37 Member of the birch family
38 Prejudice
39 Airline abbr.
40 Adjust components
41 Mountain crest
42 Representative
44 Trapper
45 Able seaman
46 Like — of bricks
47 Slot machines
55 Seaweed
56 Perfect "10"
57 Concerning
58 Get up
59 Light lunch
60 Put away
61 Malt drinks
62 Armored vehicles
63 Coal containers

DOWN
1 Party line?
2 Radiance
3 Cut a bit
4 Making possible
5 Plunder
6 Turkish city
7 Ditty
8 Lest a father
9 Wine bottle
10 Kind of climber
11 Baker's need
12 Renovate
13 God of war
21 Tardy
22 Blue waters
25 Reduced
26 The best
27 Like a musical sound
28 Sweet treat
29 That last word
30 Colder
31 Blackboard
32 Penny pincher
34 Dart to and fro
37 Scaremonger
38 Wave a weapon about
40 Culture medium
41 Shortly
43 Old-time storehouses
44 Hunts
46 Toward the rear
47 Green vegetable
48 Diamond or Armstrong
49 Otherwise
50 Author Farber
51 Cult hero Jamea
52 Concerned with 53 Walked
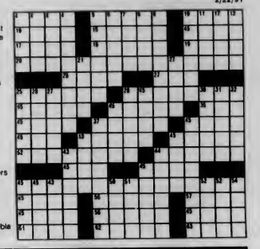
54 Stitches

ANSWER TO PREVIOUS PUZZLE:

H	A	S	H		E	A	S	T		S	T	R	U	M
A	L	I	A		I	N	C	A		H	I	E	R	O
I	L	L	S		G	O	O	N		A	G	A	I	N
K	I	T	T	Y		H	A	W	K		E	S	S	O
U	N	S	E	A	T			T	O	R
				L	E	M	O	N		W	H	I	N	E	R		L	I	Z	A
				I	D	E	A		C	A	T	T	Y		L	A	T	E
				F	E	R	N		I	N	R	E		D	Y	A	N
				I	R	O	N		T	I	E		C	L	E
				T	E	S	L	A		E	V	E		A	W	A	R	D	S
				A	V	A	I	L		P	U	S	S	Y	F	O	O	T
				P	E	K	O	E		U	T	A	H		R	U	N	E
				A	N	E	N	T		S	P	E	W		T	E	R	N

2/22/91



MENU

LUNCH
Fish munchies
American chop suey

DINNER
N. E. scrod
Chicken fajita

BASICS LUNCH
Fish munchies
Macaroni and tomatoes

BASICS DINNER
Potato mushroom delight
Chicken fajita

YOUR DAILY HOROSCOPE
By JEANE DIXON

ARIES (March 21-April 19): Do more than is required if hoping to impress higher-ups. New alliances are beneficial. Seek experts' advice on investments. Community events hold special interest for seniors.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20): A clash of wills is sure to bring issues forward. You will win big if you make intelligent concessions. An older person offers invaluable advice; follow it to the letter.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20): Conduct your own research. Other people are only too happy to follow your lead. Your self-confidence grows by leaps and bounds. Romance looks wonderfull Develop a dormant talent.

CANCER (June 21-July 22): A teen-ager responds to encouragement not lectures. Be a good listener. Get together with old friends for some inexpensive fun. A potluck supper or dessert party holds appeal.

LEO (July 23-Aug 22): Substitue telephone marketing for expensive travel. Your romantic feelings for someone are reciprocated. A prized relationship becomes even more meaningful. Wear your heart on your sleeve.

VIRGO (Aug 23-Sept 22): Tighten your financial belt and enlist familiy's cooperation. Complete important paperwork before leaving the office. A chance social encounter could lead to new romance. Go slow.

LIBRA (Sept 23-Oct 22): A financial gamble will pay off! Put extra profits back into the business. A well-timed career move will bring new prestige. Many people want to climb aboard your success train. Be choosy.

SCORPIO (Oct 23-Nov 21): The work scene will be lively today. Make decisions about investments, savings and insurance based on facts not hunches. Your investigative skill is a major asset, use it wisely.

SAGITATARIUS (Nov 22-Dec 21): Your appearance tells others a great deal about you. Buy high quality clothes when they go on sale. Someone from your past asks a special favor. Cooperate if it does not involve money.

CAPRICORN (Dec 22-Jan 19): Make allowances for your partner's occasional mistakes. Big gains are possible in family relations if you put yourself on the line. Show your children your tender side.

AQUARIUS (Jan 20-Feb 18): Have the courage of your convictions. Higher-ups will be impressed with your perseverance. Look for bargains in electronics, fashion and cars. Relax at home this evening.

PISCES (Feb 19-March 20): By being truthful you will improve a close relationship. Investigate stocks and real estate as possible investments. An older person's advice is right on target.

■ Women's track

CONTINUED FROM PAGE 12

Mo Meldrim qualified for the New Englands last week with a stellar performance and now she would like to keep the momentum going in the 5000-meter race.

According to LaFreniere, Lennice Johnson will compete in the 600-yard race and should perform well.

The UMass throwers will also make an appearance at B U.. LaFreniere will look to Samone Marissua in the shot put and Diane Ozzolek in the 20-lb weight.

In the 4x800-meter relay, LaFreniere will send out a formidable foursome in Becky Johnson, Crocker, Liljeblad and Ambrose.

"If Cathy Crocker feels okay, then our relay should be strong," LaFreniere said. "There is no way we will beat Providence, but we could finish 2nd or 3rd."

"Overall I would like the team to finish anywhere in the top ten. That will be nice, but it will be tough," LaFreniere said. "We will need our sick people to get better and have the rest of the team perform to their abilities."

Largest College Daily in New England

THE MASSACHUSETTS Established in 1890

DAILY COLLEGIAN

113 Campus Center

STAFF MEETING
TODAY
at 2:30
IN THE NEWSROOM
Business, News and Graphics must attend.

■ Men's track

CONTINUED FROM PAGE 12

performances from the individuals on the team they could finish as high as fifth or sixth in the competition.

All of the other UMass athletes will be competing in the trial heats in their events on Friday. The top finishers from the Friday trials will advance to the finals, which will be run on Saturday.

Kevin Walters will compete in two events for the Minutemen. He will be looking to advance to the finals both in the 55 and the 200.

"Walters is a solid bet to pick up some points in both events," O'Brien said.

Steve Brown, coming off of an undefeated dual meet season and a second place finish in the Eastern Conference Meet, should advance to the finals in the 400. He enters the meet seeded third.

O'Brien also hopes to advance Matt Simon in the 1500. He is seeded eighth in the meet.

Also competing for the Minutemen will be Bill Wallace and Ben Nichols in the 1000, Jeff White in the 55 hurdles, Pat Ryan in the 5000 and the 4 x 400 and 4 x 800 relay teams.

■ gymnastics

CONTINUED FROM PAGE 12

Mitchell said that being at home is certainly an advantage.

The crowd plays a key role and the athletes expect a certain course of events. UMass' strongest event is the floor exercise and Mitchell says his team can extend their lead or make up for lost points during this last event.

A strong performance is expected from Tammy Marshall and freshman Margaret Furtado. Also competing in the all-around will be Erin Kleir and Kim Grady.

Everyone who comes up has to come through,' said Mitchell.

There is also the possibility of seeing a new face on the balance beam Sunday. Transfer student Dayna Curran, formally of the University of New Mexico is awaiting the Assistant coach's decision as to whether or not she will make the line-up for Sunday's meet.

Mitchell said the team must do what they are capable of and not have many breaks. He said that breaks in a meet at this level of competition could be very costly.

UMass to host fencing tourney

If you didn't understand why your mother told you not to play with sharp objects, perhaps Boyden Field House is the place for you to be tomorrow afternoon.

The University of Massachusetts Fencing Club will be hosting the men's New England Collegiate Fencing Championship. The tournament is to be held on Saturday, February 23, from 11 a.m. to 7 p.m. in the Boyden Gymnasium. Among the schools to attend are Harvard, Brown, MIT, Trinity and the University of Connecticut.

UMass fencing club president Edward Roaf, Jr. said that both men's and women's teams from UMass will be competing. He noted that both teams have a good chance to do well.

The UMass fencing club currently has a record of 3-1. They have defeated teams from the Universrity of Connecticut, Trinity College and Fairfield University.

—GREG SUKIENNIK

The Quill on Green Street's
GREEN DOT SALE
Any Book with a Green Dot gets you
50% Off the Quill's Regular Price.
50% Off Most Children's Books
Recent Best Sellers
All Travel Books
Most Hard Bound Books
MON. - FRI. 8:30AM - 5:30PM · SAT.10:00AM - 4:00PM
VISA
QUILL BOOKSHOP
100 GREEN STREET NORTHAMPTON, MASS
MasterCard

GLOBAL TICKET EXCHANGE
(413) 747-9922
INXS 2/26 Hartford | STING 3/8 Hartford
PAUL SIMON 3/6 Hartford
GRATEFUL DEAD Albany 3/23-25
RED SOX — BRUINS — WHALERS & CELTIC tickets.
All concerts — sports & theater tickets
1605 Main St. Springfield • (413) 747-9922

Want your dorm to show its true colors?
WELL GET BUSY
AND RUSH ON DOWN TO KENNEDY
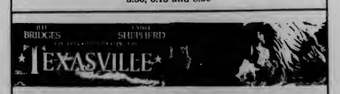
SCREEN GRAPHICS
16 Armory Street
Northampton MA 01060
584-2124

PLEASANT ST. THEATER
27 Pleasant St.
Northampton
586-0935
5 Academy Award Nominations

"MAGNIFICENT AND MOVING" —New Yorker, BOSTON GLOBE
CYRANO DE BERGERAC
A film by JEAN-PAUL RAPPENEAU
Starts Friday
Cyrano de Bergerac
weekdays and Friday at 6:15 and 8:50 pm/Sat and Sun at 3:30, 6:15 and 8:50



Texasville
weekdays at 6:50 and 9:15 pm/Fri, Sat and Sun at 4:25, 6:50 and 9:15 pm
First Show on Fri, Sat and Sun is $3.50 admission
No discount on Friday first show/Sat and Sun first show $3.50

■ Men's hoop

CONTINUED FROM PAGE 12

throws and finished with a game-high 20 points. Mik Kilgore scored 16 points and grabbed 11 rebounds and Vic Carstarphen made four of six three-pointers to add 16.

The win, coupled with Duquesne's upset win over Rutgers last night, elevated the Owls (19-7, 12-4 in the Atlantic 10) to a tie for first place in the league. UMass dropped to 16-9, 9-7.

"We wondered all along how we'd shape up without [Macon]," said Temple coach John Chaney. "I figured we had a chance if Mik Kilgore played well . . . I said to my players 'forget about Mark Macon. Be yourself and give us what we need.'"

Macon sprained his right ankle Tuesday night against Rhode Island and did not make the trip to Amherst. He is expected to miss at least one more game.

The Owls never missed a beat. After Jim McCoy scored the first two times he touched the ball and Will Herndon pogoed over Temple's James Spears for a one-handed dunk on an offensive rebound, Temple took a 20-8 lead with a 13-2 run that featured two consecutive three-point bombs from Carstarphen.

Spears hit a soft-touch baseline jumper that pushed Temple's lead to 13 points with 4:25 in the first half and earned a kiss from Chaney.

UMass came alive thereafter, stretching a 15-4 run over the last four minutes of the first half into the the early minutes of the second and taking a 41-39 lead on a Barbee jumper.

Rafer Giles, playing his last home game, kept the Minutemen even with three three-pointers in a six minute span midway through the half, the last of which left UMass within a point, at 59-58, with 6:10 to play.

But that was as close as the Minutemen would come. With Hodge leading the way, the Owls dominated from there on out.

UMass now turns its attention to Sunday's date at Rutgers. The Scarlet Knights have won 10 of their last 11 — the lone loss coming at the hands of the No. 1 team in the country, UNLV — before last night's Duquesne matchup. Forward Keith Hughes is making a run at A-10 Player of the Year honors, averaging 20.7 points and 9.7 rebounds a game. December in the Cage, Mike Jones hit a 10-foot jump shot with two seconds left to lift Rutgers to a 67-65 win.

Temple, 80-70

Temple (80)
Strickland 4-5 O-O 8; Kilgore 4-11 6-11 16; Carstarphen 4-7 4-8 16; Harden 3-5 3-6 10; Spears 4-6 2-2 10; Randolph O-O O-O O. Totals 23-42 27-41 80.
Massachusetts (70)
Williams 3-6 3-4 9; Herndon 2-6 O-O 4; Tate 2-2 O-O 4; Giles 4-12 O-O 12; McCoy 7-18 4-4 18; Barbee 6-18 3-6 17; Brown 2-5 2-3 6; Meyer O-O O-O O. Totals 26-67 12-17 70.
Halftime Temple 39, Massachusetts 37. Three point goals Carstarphen 4, Kilgore 2, Harden, Giles 4, Barbee 2. Rebounds Temple 33 (Kilgore 11), Massachusetts 37 (Barbee 6). Assists Temple 7 (Kilgore 3), Massachusetts 12 (Barbee, Brown 4). Total fouls Temple 16, Massachusetts 25. Fouled out Williams. A - 4,058.

Collegian photo by Carrie Wyeth

Jim McCoy led the UMass basketball team with 18 points last night, but Temple put five players in double — figures in their win over the Minutemen last night at the Cage.

MAKE YOUR MARK.
Women's Shoes, Clothing & Accessories
Zanna • 187 North Pleasant Street • Amherst
413.253.2503
ZANNA

CLASSIFIEDS

COME TO THE COLLEGIAN OFFICE—CC 113 MON — THURS 8:30-3:30 ● DEADLINE 2 DAYS PRIOR TO PUBLICATION ● CASH IN ADVANCE, 20¢/WORD/DAY FOR STUDENTS

ACTIVITIES

25 + CLUB: General meating/social. Discuss activities, elections, socialize Thursday, 2/28, Campus Center room 917. 7:30pm. Dues $3 to vota

ATTENTION PAGANS! UMPSO meeting Sunday 7:00 in the Campus Center 805-809. Topic for discussion: Astral Projection BLUEWALL DANCE, cash bar, first fifty free -February, Friday 22. 9-1am -I.S.A.

COME JOIN US at Friday night services with Julius and Carolyn Lester. Feb. 22 -7pm in the Hillel House Lounge.

THE KINGDOM OF GOD IS A CELEBRATION! Come experience it! Inter Varsity Christian Fellowship meeting tonight 7:30pm Campus Center rm 162

RUN FOR RUNAWAYS 10K
Saturday April 6!
Steff meeting for all interested -Sunday, Feb.24 8:15 pm -Nawman Center, Classroom One

ANNOUNCEMENTS

ATTENTION ALPHA CHI sisters and pledges
Roses are red
Lilies are white
I hope you have a date
Because your date party is tonight!
Love Arleigh and Stacey

BED AND BREAKFAST downtown idea! for visiting parents and friends- 549-0733.

OIL CO-OP Join OCHO Oil Co-op and save money. Register at 428 Student Union or call 545-0865

PHI ALPHA THETA -Int'l History Honors Society accepting applications from new members. Info-applications in History Office Herter. Deadline 2/28

TRI-SIGMA OPEN RUSH!
Tuesday 2/19 through Monday 2/25
Call 549-3811 for information or come by 387 N. Pleasant St.

FOR RENT

1 BEDROOM APT in Puffton. Take over lease in March. Option to renew. Steve 549-6203

AMHERST, 1 BEDROOM AVAILABLE IN 3 BEDROOM, NEW HOUSE ON BUS LINE. FIREPLACE, BEAUTIFUL!! AVAILABLE NOW CALL 8-4, 665-3326

AMHERST CENTER, quiet room, bus, walk UMass -$275- laundry, utilities included -549-0484

HIPPEST HOUSE in the world wants housemete -Hatfield, rustic, 5 min from Noho 230 + 247-5248

STUDIO IN AMHERST $460 w/utils. Call Scott 253-0820 After 6pm

WINTER SPECIAL: 1 month rent .99 cents with one year lease.
2 Bedroom- $450
3 Bedroom- $537
Sundarland, trea bus routs, laundry facilities, swimming pool, garden plots, short tarm lease available. 665-3656

FOR SALE

5 STRING BANJO -Bluegrass style $125 247-5248

ACT NOW! 2 ona way plana tickats to LA $200 for both. Fly on Tues. Feb. 26 -call now 549-1832

MAC 512KE & extra drive. Software $600.00/BO call 548-9334

COUCH (queen size bed) $70 665-3974

SOFABED -EXCELLENT- CONDITION
On campus
Beige mixed
Asking $150.00
549-3574 Maria

ZENITH 248 PERSONAL COMPUTER, IBM compatible, 5.25" dual disk drive, Monochrome monster, Logitech mouse, Hundreds of dollers worth of software including Word 5.0, PaintWrite, and Lotus 1-2-3. Asking $850 negotiable. Call Cindy 665-8020

FREE BRUNO'S PIZZA

BOOK A HOUSE/DORM party with RACKADISC and have free food. Call 586-9900 for details (limited to UMass & Amherst College)

HELP WANTED

GREAT SUMMER OPPORTUNITY
Jewish co-ed residential camp seeks counselors and specialists. Capitol Camps, located in the beautiful Catoctin Mountains, one hour from Washington DC offers tennis, water sports, nature, arts, video, gymnastics, radio, drama, journalism, etc. If you are interested in the challenges and excitement of working with campers in grades 3-10, we want you on our team. Good salaries, great fun! Our director will be at the camp fair on March 5. For more information and an appointment, call 1-800-783-2208

HELP WANTED Full or part time. Apply in person Copycat Print Shop. 228 Triangle Street Amherst

INTELLIGENCE JOBS. All branchas. US Customs, DEA ect. Now hiring. Call 1-805-962-8000 Ext. K-9616.

INSTRUCTION

EARN CREDIT learn to Scube Dive. Basic Classes held Monday, Tuesday, Wednesday, and Thursday 7-10PM in Curry Hicks Pool. Open Water II class held during Spring Break in Kay Largo, FLA. Advanced Class held in New England in April. For further information call 549-8401, or drop by Curry Hicks starting 2/4/91.

LOST

BROWN LEATHER JACKET Saturday night probably from JOA. Will identify. Please call Mike. 546-1355

DIAMOND RING & WEDDING BAND in a purse- 545-2703 eves. 253-9431

GOLD FEATHER/LEAF EARRING - Between Campus Center and Sylvan 2/18p.m. Heidi 8-5995

LOST GREY BACKPACK with important documants! $Reward 546-3682

PERSONALS

22nd FLOOR JOA-
You guys are the best- thanks for being there! I love you! Love, Alissa

CHRIS GROVE
Happy 21st!!
Love
Your favorite twin sis

CONGRATULATIONS TO THE new pledges of Kappa Kappa Gamma: Jen, Monica, Kim, Joanne, Karla, Heather, Jill, Suzanne, Sharon, Kristen, Jen, Lisa, Nicole, Michella, Alaxis, Michelle, Emily, Malanie
Love the sisters of KKG

CONGRATULATIONS TO THE new pledges of Sigma Kappa!
Paige, Sarah, Tracy, Suzanne, Candace, Kristan, Elizebeth, Darcie, Susan, Dana, Jeanne, Jannie, Tami, Davine, Jamie, Kelly, Kathy, Laura, Jodi, Suzanne and Jen
We are so proud!
Love, the sistars of Sigma Kappa

DIGGER
Love is for poets!
Oops, I'm a poet #&@!§
Jack

GET INTO THE MUSIC...
It'll eat you free. HOUSE -DJ John 549-5316 eves.

HAPPY BIRTHDAY BILLY C ! Remember, you created an agency! Love, Nancy

HAPPY BIRTHDAY HEATHERANNI
Love, The Cool Club 17

HEY SARA! Happy Birthday! Celebrate the big 21 in style. Your Twin

KENNEDY
Was assassinated
But
COOLIDGE
Bled more!
Congrats on the
Blood drive

MARSHWEED HAPPY 21st. Save tonight for me. I love you Garbanzo

MELISSA AND RACHEL-
Happy Birthday!
Let's go crazy!
Always beware of scalp.
Love from the nuts on 3rd floor Melville!

ME SO JEN
Call me at 10pm please
-Jason

MICHELLE,
It's been a great three weeks! Hope for more to come! I'm not sure how it all happened, but who cares let it happen.
Love, Snippy

TRACY LIBUCHA IS TURNING 22!
Happy birthday you old bat.

MY SECRET ADMIRER
Who are you? Loved the poem!
Call me. The one you admire.
Joe F.

ON FEBRUARY 18, 1991
A person lit himself on fire
in the name of
Peace
Please think about that today.

TO THE ADMIRING man in Chadbourne (Pena)- Thanks for the rose, it made my V-day!
A flattered women in Baker

RESUME SERVICE

PERSONALIZED CONSULTATION on laser printing of your original. 549-0367

ROOMMATE WANTED

LG SUNNY SINGLE in beautiful Noho apt. Great location 233 & Elec. 584-4078

WOMAN WANTED FOR 3-bdrm apt. in Noho: 1 large bedroom, newly painted, bright place. Available now! Call Jess at 584-2750

SERVICES

LEGAL QUESTIONS? Tha Legal Services Canter offers free legal assistance to fee-paying students. Contact us at 922 Campus Center, 545-1995

PREGNANT?
Need a pregnancy test, information or support? Call for free and confidential services. ALTERNATIVES 33 Main Street Northampton 586-3000 or Greenfield 774-6010

SERVICES/WORDPROCESSING

DISSERTATIONS, CASES, PAPERS, On-campus pickup Fast! Accurate! Mac/Laser, Spellcheck Nancy 584-7924

SKI THIS SPRING BREAK!

KILLINGTON FROM $199
Park City, Utah and Breckanridge Co. From $699
For info. Call Jon at 549-4226

SPRING BREAK

SPRING BREAK PARTY!
Travel to Jamaica, Mexico! And Panama City Fl.! Concerts! Free Parties! Club discounts! And lots more! For info call Denise 548-7156

SUBLET

GREAT APARTMENT 2 mi. off campus - North Amherst -Big yard, storage, perfect for two people. Available now! Call 549-6027

TRAVEL

CAN'T AFFORD SPRING BREAK? Guaranteed great prices! Space available to Jamaica, Mexico and Panama City Beach, Florida (the "new Daytona Beach")! MC/VISA are accepted! Call Cindy at 549-3538 -please leave a message!

CARIBBEAN - $189!
The warmth of the Caribbean or Mexicen coast for a week!
R/T air, SUNHITCH + m, 212-864-2000

MONTREAL WEEKENDS $89 Price includes round trip motorcoach 3 days 2 nights Hotel Suite, Breakfast FREE admission to Club Matropolis.
Reliable Tours
365 Broadway Rt 1
Lynnfield, MA 01940
617-598-9930

* * * * * * *

FLORIDA'S NEWEST HOT SPOT
Pensma City-$139
* * * * * * *
World's Biggest Beech PARTY
Daytona Beach-$189
Call Erike + Julie at 546-2649 or Siobhen + Terri at 546-5079.

TYPING

CHEAP RATES, fast, accurate, dependable, campus pickup and delivery. Adam 253-9117

FAST, ACCURATE TYPING w/ spellcheck and boldface $1.45/pg. Call Greg 546-0259

RESUMES, PAPERS, anything typed or typeset. Fast, professional service. Affordable rates. KCommunications, 256-6373

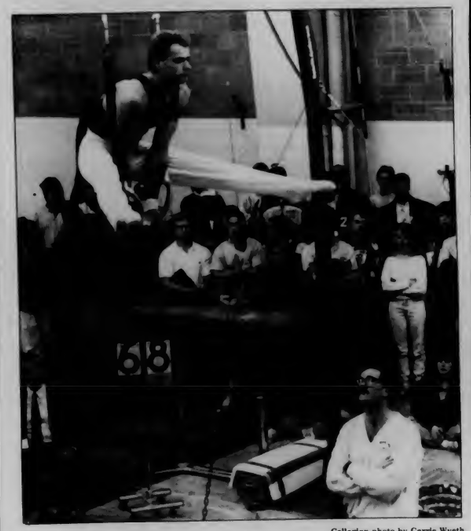
WORDPROCESSING, FAST, $1.45/page -549-0484

WANTED

NEED MONEY?? Sell your answering machine to me, Adam 256-6695

WE WANT TO take over your house lease for next year starting in June or August. Call 549-7133

SPORTS



Collegian photo by Carrie Wyeth

The men's gymnastics team will host teams from Army and Air Force tomorrow at 1 p.m. at Boyden Gymnasium.

Temple claws to 20th straight, 80-70

By SAM SILVERSTEIN
Collegain Staff

Without its best player, Temple could have played like a lamb fattened for the kill. Instead, the Owls played like a cornered lion.

The Owls stretched their all-time record against the University of Massachusetts men's basketball team to 20-0 with an 80-70 Mark-Maconless win last night at the Cage.

Temple raced to a 13-point first half lead, lost it all to a furious UMass rush midway through the game, then commandeered the win down the stretch with an 11-2 run that left the Minutemen trailing 70-60, with 1:35 to play.

The Owls missed six of 14 free throws from there on out, but the Minutemen were already spent. An after-the-fact three-pointer by Tony Barbee spared UMass its worst loss of the season.

"I wasn't real happy with the way we ended the game," UMass coach John Calipari said. "[Temple] missed all those free throws and we just did not make a play to get back into it.

"That team was inspired, and we just didn't pick our game up a notch. We had every player out there get beat to loose balls."

Said UMass' Jim McCoy of the last six minutes of the game: "We went cold. They took all good shots. They worked the clock down and got the ball inside, and it worked."

Center Donald Hodge made 12 of 14 free

CONTINUED ON PAGE 11

Collegian photo by Carrie Wyeth

Will Herndon (34) was held to just four points in Temple's 80-70 win over UMass last night.

Track teams striving for top ten finishes at New England

● Women rely on people who got them there

By DAN WETZEL
Collegian Staff

This weekend the University of Massachusetts women's track team will head to Boston University to compete in the New England Championships. UMass (12-2) will be looking for strong performances from the people who got them there.

Lee Ann Ambrose is one of those people. The junior will defend her New England Championship in the 400-meter race. She is the favorite in that race.

"Lee Ann should be able to defend her title in the 400," head coach Julie LaFreniere said. "She is is very strong right now and it will be tough for anyone to beat her."

UMass' other New England champion, Becky Johnson, will attempt to shake a late season virus to once again take top honors in the 1000-yard race.

"Becky is feeling a lot better, but realistically I can't say she will win," LaFreniere said. "She has lost so much conditioning, her performance will depend on how fresh she feels."

Michelle St. Laurent will also compete in the 1000 and, according to LaFreniere, should be a factor.

"The way Michelle has been running, I wouldn't put anything past her," LaFreniere said. "She is sharp enough and therefore has a good chance to place."

This will be freshman Kelly Liljeblad's first post season race, but that shouldn't keep her from challenging to place in the mile.

"Kelly will be running against some tough competition and that will hopefully bring out her best," LaFreniere said.

Cathy Crocker, who has been ill all week, will try to perform up to par in the 800-meters.

CONTINUED ON PAGE 10

● Men's coach expects tough competition

By KEITH BENNETT
Collegian Correspondent

The University of Massachusetts men's track team has qualified 14 individuals and three relay teams to compete in the New England Championships at Boston University this weekend. The meet will feature the top track and field athletes from 32 colleges and universities across New England.

UMass head coach Ken O'Brien is hoping that the Minutemen can finish somewhere between sixth and tenth place in the meet.

O'Brien expects a two way battle for the top spot between BU and Northeastern University. The next three spots, he says, should be divided between Rhode Island, Connecticut and Boston College.

After those five teams, O'Brien expects his team to be very competitive for one of the next five spots. He expects the Minutemen's competition for the sixth place to come mainly from the University of New Hampshire and Southern Connecticut.

The competition begins Friday night and O'Brien hopes to score some points in the meets first event, the pentathlon. Dave Borges, Joe Kourafas, Brian Bednarek, Paul Doyle and Jeff Peterson will all represent UMass in this five-event competition. Each athlete competes in the 55-meter hurdles, the long jump, the high jump, the shot put and the 1000.

O'Brien also hopes to get some points from seniors Jon Corso and Gerry Squires on Friday. They are the fourth and fifth seeded runners in the 5000.

The only other final which the Minutemen will be involved in on Friday is the distance-medley relay. The UMass relay team is not among the seeded teams and O'Brien called the squad a longshot to place, but said that with some outstanding

CONTINUED ON PAGE 10

Minutewomen home to face Temple

By GREG SUKIENNIK
Collegian Staff

They may not have won yet, but the University of Massachusetts women's basketball team keeps improving. They're hoping that their improvement will translate into a win this weekend.

The Minutewomen, 0-24 overall and 0-16 in the Atlantic-10 Conference, return to Curry Hicks Cage for an afternoon game tomorrow, against Atlantic-10 Conference rivals Temple University. Tipoff is at 2 p.m.

UMass coach, Kathy Hewelt, is cautiously optimistic about the Minutewomen's chances of knocking off the Owls largely because of their improvement in handling the basketball against pressure defenses. However, Hewelt points out that other aspects of UMass' game have to be sharp if they hope to be competitive against the 11-13 overall, 8-6 A-10 Owls.

"Rhode Island's press didn't bother us," noted Hewelt of the Minutewomen's 67-55 loss to the WRrams this past week. "We learned something from that first-half experience, and chipped the lead down to five."

"But," continued Hewelt, "when you have a young team like we do, and you're not used to making decisions in a tight ballgame, you make mistakes, and that's what we did."

While the Minutewomen are turning the ball over less frequently and are coming closer to the opposition, scorewise, they will have to deal with a Temple team that features frontcourt players like Tonya Koel and Sonya Perry, and a backcourt that gave UMass fits with pressure defense.

"There's no doubt it's going to be a tough, physical game," said Hewelt. "They're going to come right out and press us, and we'll see just how well we've learned to deal with pressure."

Offensively, UMass needs to regain some offensive balance to keep the Owls from keying in on Keyburn McCusker. McCusker has been playing well of late, including a 25-point outburst against Rhody, but the rest of the Minutewomen need to step up if they're to be competitive, as Hewelt explained.

"The keys for us are tempo and ball-movement," she said. "We did well moving the ball around, but we missed the open jumpers. When [Temple] is doubling down on Keyburn — which they will do — we need to get that ball movement and hit the open shots."

Meanwhile, point guard Cherrie Muza suffered a hyperextended knee last week and saw limited time against Rhody. Her status is listed as day-to-day.

"I think Temple is a beatable basketball team, but we need to deal with their pressure and move the ball well," Hewelt said.

Gymnasts to hold meet at Boyden Sunday

By LYNN FRANKEL
Collegian Correspondent

The University of Massachusetts will play host to Temple University and Northeastern this weekend in the Minutewoman's first home tri-meet of the season. The meet is scheduled for 1 p.m. Sunday in Boyden, and is being sponsored by Pizza Hut. The first 100 people to arrive at the gym will receive free pizza.

Head coach Alfie Mitchell is expecting a tough meet. Although he doesn't know much about the caliber of the Temple team, he said they have had a strong program throughout the years. Northeastern will be the team to beat Mitchell said. He said that Northeastern is the stronger of the two and expects them to be tough in the all-around and the floor exercise.

"We can't blow any event," said Mitchell. He said his team must be on all the way through the meet in order to ensure a win.

CONTINUED ON PAGE 10

Largest College Daily in New England

THE MASSACHUSETTS DAILY COLLEGIAN Established in 1890

VOLUME C MONDAY, FEBRUARY 25, 1991 ISSUE 88

Allies begin ground offensive

Troop casualties light, US general says

AP Photo

Kuwaiti soldiers pause to pray inside their homeland as a Kuwaiti armored column, rear, heads north toward Kuwait City Sunday morning, as the ground war gets underway.

By MORT ROSENBLUM
AP Special Correspondent

DHAHRAN, Saudi Arabia (AP) — American and allied troops stormed Kuwait by land, sea and air early Sunday and wrested pieces of the emirate from Iraqi forces. By day's end, U.S. paratroopers were reported holding outer edges of Kuwait City.

The huge Desert Storm offensive, striking along a 300-mile front, also swept up into southern Iraq in the largest American-led invasion since World War II.

Allied casualties were "remarkably light," and 5,500 Iraqi prisoners were taken by late afternoon, said overall commander Gen. H. Norman Schwarzkopf. He gave no figures for U.S. dead and wounded.

Led by hundreds of tanks, troops from 11 nations raced across the desert battlefield, at times under pounding rain. Aircraft screamed in low, attacking through greasy black smoke from 200 oilfield fires. Some defenders tried to hold their positions — "They're fighting, they're resisting," said a Marine colonel — but Schwarzkopf hailed the first day as a "dramatic success." No information was available on Iraqi casualties.

One column of Saudi and Kuwaiti troops who punched 20 miles into Kuwait was "moving like a knife through butter," Associated Press photographer Laurent Rebours reported from the front. But a U.S. military source cautioned that the campaign could take "a good several days of heavy fighting."

Hours after the invasion jumped off about 4 a.m. Sunday (8 p.m. EST Saturday), Saddam Hussein went on official Iraqi radio to urge his troops on. "Fight them and show no mercy," the Iraqi president said.

Iraqi military communiques later asserted that the offensive "has so far failed utterly," and claimed to have "wiped out" paratroopers dropped behind Iraqi lines in western Kuwait.

President Bush, in a television address late Saturday in Washington, announced he had ordered the attack in the "right and just cause" of freeing Kuwait from Iraqi occupation. Bush adviser Brent Scowcroft spoke of a further objective Sunday: eliminating Iraq's offensive military power.

The long-expected ground assault came just eight hours after a deadline set by the Desert Storm allies for Iraq to begin a pullout from Kuwait.

The Iraqis dismissed that ultimatum as "shameful." The Bush administration at the same time rejected a Soviet-sponsored plan for a slower-paced withdrawal.

A Soviet spokesman said Sunday that a "very real chance" at a negotiated peace had been missed, and that Bush had acted with the "instinct for a military solution."

The offensive climaxed a 7-month-old crisis that began with Iraq's invasion of Kuwait last Aug. 2, intensified with the buildup of more than a half-million troops on each side, and exploded into warfare Jan. 17 when the anti-Iraq coalition launched a devastating air campaign against targets in Kuwait and Iraq.

Most adjusting to door alarms but some irritated

By KATHERINE T. LAMOTHE
Collegian Staff

In the month since Housing Services activated the door alarm system in the residence halls, many University of Massachusetts students have adjusted to the system and are only using the designated doors, according to Housing and Student Security officials.

However, some students say the new system is a waste of money and that doors are still being illegally used, particularly in the early hours of the morning. Others are angry because they had no input as to which doors could or could not be used.

Chris Fenton, a sophomore living in Crabtree Residence Hall, said he agreed with the policy of only using one designated door, but feels that it should be enforced with staff as well as students.

"I feel it's basically a good idea," he said, "but it's still annoying that the maintenance people use the doors." He added while the staff members do have keys when they use the doors in the morning, the alarm still goes off.

In a notice given to University employees, vendors and contractors, Joseph Zannini, executive director of Housing Services, explained the keys were only effective to delay the alarm for 15 seconds.

For student security receptionists and supervisors, the alarms have made the work of catching students using the wrong doors much easier, Carol Radzik, director of student security said. Before the alarms were activated, she said, "we had no idea if people were propping up doors. Now we know where people are violating security procedures."

The propping of doors has been a problem for receptionists, according to Chris Demers, who works in Crabtree. "We check doors every 45 minutes," he said, "but so much can happen between checks."

Pierce Parker, a junior who works as a receptionist in Brooks Residence Hall, said the new policy is "an excellent idea."

"If the purpose of the alarm is to keep people outside of the dorm," except by using the front door, he said, "it serves its purpose by deterring people."

Some students, such as senior Dominick Vene, said they feel that in a time of fiscal crisis for the University, the alarm system is too costly.

"I think it's an incredible waste of money at a time when money could be spent elsewhere," he said. He added that the alarms, along with the new telecommunications system and cable television, is coming at a time when the student population is declining.

Fenton said students in his residence hall were upset because they had no input as to which door would be the designated access door. "It would have been nice if they had consulted us about what door to use," he said.

Zannini said he has met with students, individually and in groups, to discuss complaints about the system. After explaining to them the reasoning behind the system, he said, "they come to understand [Housing's] concern for safety."

Levey vigil continues

Amherst residents upset by 24-hour vigil

By MEREDITH O'BRIEN
Collegian Staff

Almost a week after Gregory Levey set himself on fire on the Amherst Town Common in protest to the Persian Gulf war, a continuous 24-hour vigil honoring his death has caused heated controversy among Amherst residents.

In two three-feet-tall makeshift plastic tents — filled with sleeping bags, thermoses, food, books and gold-painted Buddha figurines — members of the Leverett Peace Pagoda, as well as other area residents, had camped out on the common since Levey's death Monday afternoon.

The muddy site where Levey doused himself with two gallons of paint thinner and set himself on fire, has been completely enshrined. The area has been ringed by small stones, and covered by dozens of candles, incense, yellow flowers, yellow ribbons, roses and peace poems. Pieces of plywood and cardboard boxes have also been laid next to the site for people to kneel on.

Hattie Nestel, of the Leverett Peace Pagoda, said she had been on the common since she got out of jail last Tuesday. She had been serving time for her action during an anti-war protest at Westover Air Force Base in Chicopee.

Nestel, sitting cross-legged in one of the tents Thursday, said she had been constantly praying for Levey's spirit and courageous act of peaceful protest.

On Friday, the Amherst Select Board voted to have the two tents removed from the common and to allow the symbol-laden site to remain until March 18 — one month after Levey's death.

Select Board Chairperson Elisa Campbell said the board voted to have the tents removed as a safety precaution.

"There have been a lot of threatening calls made to the Town Hall," Campbell said. "There are many in town who are angry that someone did this on their common."

She said people have called saying if the tents were not removed people "would get rid of them."

"Clearly people are genuinely concerned about this," Campbell said. "People may see this mourning of a suicide as saying self-immolation is okay, thinking it encourages people to do something similar. They consider it dangerous to other's mental health."

While both tents were supposed to be down Saturday, only one was taken down yesterday morning. The other came down early yesterday afternoon.

A handful of people, gathered next to several pick-up trucks covered with "Desert Storm" stickers, stood next to the common yesterday holding large American flags in support of the Persian Gulf war.

Campbell said similar groups of people have verbally clashed with the peace protesters since the 24-hour vigils began.

During Thursday's anti-war protest, where 43 people were arrested for blocking traffic in Amherst center, members of the ad hoc committee coordinating the peace vigils, were soliciting donations to build a monument on the common for Levey.

Campbell said before anything could be built on the common, it would have to be voted on, but, she added, a monument to Levey would create huge controversy. "Let's not start a war on the Amherst Town Common over peace," she said.

INSIDE:

MONDAY, FEBRUARY 25, 1991

Page 3:
Hundreds gather at Grace Episcopal to share artistic views of war.

Pages 7:
Cordelia's Dad — a good time was had by all.

Page 8:
Men's hoop blows an A-10 game lost in overtime at Rutgers.

WEATHER

Sun! Clouds! Flurries! We'll have it all! Temperatures will soar to 40!

Clarification

The Collegian reported Friday that Town of Amherst Police estimated that 600 anti-war protesters attended the Thursday rally and action downtown. Police later revised the figure to 1,200 persons.

THE MASSACHUSETTS
DAILY COLLEGIAN

New England's largest college daily newspaper. Circulation 19,000. Published every weekday during the calendar semester. The Massachusetts Daily Collegian is a Registered Student Organization of the University of Massachusetts.

113 Campus Center, Amherst, MA, 01003
Phone (413) 545-3500 FAX (413) 545-1592

STAFF

Editor in Chief ..... Terry Starmer
Managing Editor ..... Jody Cabin
Editorial Editor ..... Jeremy Levinson
News Editor ..... Gayle Long
News Editor ..... Adrien Matt
Sports Editor ..... Danielle Dowling
Arts Editor ..... K.A. Burke
Photography Editor ..... Sondra Sutton
Black Affairs Editor ..... Rua Kelly, Monique Tabon
Women's Issues Editors ..... Alexander Nguyen
Multicultural Affairs Editor ..... Pratip Dastidar
Third World Affairs Editor ..... Trystan Skeigh
Lesbian, Bisexual, Gay Issues Editor ..... Susan George
Business Manager ..... Dave Melnick
Advertising Manager ..... Beth Patterson
Finance Manager ..... Jim Winterbottom
Circulation Manager ..... Stacey Rogers
Subscriptions Manager ..... Marc Pinskin
Promotions Manager ..... Nicole Dumas
Production Manager ..... Jenn Burns
Day Graphics Manager ..... Brian Harrington, Lon Black Maureen Majerowski
Graphics ..... Rory Evans

PROFESSIONAL STAFF

Business ..... Chris Mather
Copy Editor ..... Preston P. Forman
Layout Technician ..... Camille Pansewicz
Photo Technician ..... K.A. Burke
Production Supervisor ..... Camille Pansewicz
Typesetter ..... Terry Starmer
Production ..... Mike Atkins, Susan Tomaski, Traci-Ann DiSalvatore

TODAY'S STAFF

Night Editor ..... Chris Mather
Copy Editor ..... Preston P. Forman
Layout Technician ..... Camille Pansewicz
Photo Technician ..... K.A. Burke
Production Supervisor ..... Camille Pansewicz
Typesetter ..... Terry Starmer
Production ..... Mike Atkins, Susan Tomaski, Traci-Ann DiSalvatore

AREA COORDINATORS

AMHERST COLLEGE IS SEEKING CANDIDATES FOR TWO FULL TIME AND ONE HALF—TIME NINE AND A HALF MONTH AREA COORDINATOR POSITIONS. BEGINNING ON AUGUST 15, 1991, THEY WILL BE RESPONSIBLE FOR THE TRAINING AND SUPERVISION OF RESIDENT COUNSELORS PLUS A RANGE OF SUPERVISORY, ADVISING AND ADMINISTRATIVE FUNCTIONS FOR A CLUSTER OF RESIDENCE HALLS. THE FULL TIME POSITIONS WILL ALSO INCLUDE SPECIFIC PROGRAM—WIDE RESPONSIBILITIES COORDINATING CULTURAL/EDUCATIONAL PROGRAMS AND STAFF SELECTION OF SIX SOCIAL ACTIVITIES COUNCILS. QUALIFICATIONS: BACHELOR'S DEGREE BY MAY, 1991; ABILITY TO RELATE WELL TO STUDENTS; AND ORGANIZATIONAL AND COUNSELING SKILLS. PREVIOUS EXPERIENCE IN RESIDENTIAL LIFE AND/OR RELATED MASTERS DEGREE PREFERRED. COMPENSATION: FULL TIME POSITION—APPROXIMATELY $13,000 PLUS BENEFITS. HALF—TIME POSITION—$4,300. ALL POSITIONS INCLUDE ROOM AND BOARD. SUBMIT RESUME, COVER LETTER STATING INTEREST AND QUALIFICATIONS, AND THREE LETTERS OF REFERNCE TO: CHARRI BOYKIN—EAST, ASSISTANT DEAN OF STUDENTS, BOX 2206, AMHERST COLLEGE, AMHERST, MA 01002 BY MARCH 11, 1991

AN EQUAL OPPORTUNITY/AFFIRMATIVE ACTION EMPLOYER

Want your dorm to show its true colors?
WELL GET BUSY AND RUSH ON DOWN TO KENNEDY SCREEN GRAPHICS
16 Armory Street
Northampton MA 01060
584-2124

HAIRCUTS $10
Bucci
A HAIR SPACE
25 N. Pleasant Street • Amherst • 256-0733

Council Travel
SPRING BREAK
from Boston
Cancun starting at $489
Jamaica starting at $509
Price includes:
•Round trip airfare & transfers
•7 nights accommodation & hotel taxes
Low Student Airfares!
CALL FOR MORE INFORMATION
79 South Pleasant Street
Amherst, Ma 01002
413-256-1261
America's oldest & largest Student Travel Agency

• Early Bird Specials 3 months $80
• Pro-Rated Semester Special
Call for details
in The Price Chopper Mall
FLEX Fitness Center
175 University Dr. Amherst •253-FLEX

* SUN & FUN * KIDS & CAMPING *
* * SWIMMING & BOATING * *
* OUTDOOR LIVING * *
Timber trails, a 9 week resident Girl Scout camp in the Berkshires, is looking for staff...
UNIT LEADERS * * RIDING INSTRUCTORS
SMALLCRAFT & WATERFRONT INSTRUCTORS
COUNSELORS * * REGISTERED NURSES
COOKS * * * * KITCHEN STAFF
Call or write: Eric R. Munson, Jr., Timber Trails Camp, HC 68 Box 158, Tolland, MA 01034
(413) 258-4592

Summer!
Make it the Best
Work with us at Thompson's Clam Bar, the finest seaside restaurant on Cape Cod. We currently have outstanding opportunities for talented individuals to join our team. Candidates should call Cheryl at (508) 432-1000 to arrange an interview.
* Porters
* Bus Persons
* Dining Room Waitstaff
* Cocktail Waitstaff
* Dishwashers
* Prep Cooks
* Line Cooks
Thompson's CLAM BAR
Snow Inn Road • Harwichport, MA 02646 • 508-432-1000

The 14th Annual
PROFESSIONAL AGRICULTURE CONVENTION
Student Displays
Industrial Exhibits
Meadow Muffin Contest
Guest Speakers
Free Admission
Monday
FEBRUARY 25, 1991
10 am - 4 pm
UMASS CAMPUS CENTER AUDITORIUM
Sponsored by:
STOCKBRIDGE SCHOOL OF AGRICULTURE
Guest Speakers:
RM 163 C
Free Admission
10:30 Dave Swendsen
"Natural Resource Law Enforcement"
12:30 Dan Beaudette
"Agriculture Financing"
2:00 Paul Millette
"Today's Farmer Complying with Todays Environmental Laws"

Summer!
Make it the Best
Work with us at the Wychmere Harbor Hotel and Beach Club, the finest seaside resort on Cape Cod. We currently have outstanding opportunities for talented individuals to join our team. Candidates should call Cheryl at (508) 432-1000 to arrange an interview.
* Waitstaff (Full and Part Time)
* Night Security
* Commissary
* Beach Attendants
* Receptionists
* Snack Bar
* Busing
* Porters
* Bellhops
* Front Desk Staff
* Cashiers
* Laundry
* Breakfast Cook
* Cold Prep
* Line Cooks
* Assistant Night Line Supervisor
* Dishwashers
WYCHMERE HARBOR
Hotel and Beach Club
Snow Inn Road • Harwichport, MA 02646 • 508-432-1000

LOCAL

Levey found 'disoriented' two days before his death

Two days before he set himself on fire on the Amherst Town Common in protest of the Persian Gulf war, Gregory Levey appeared at an area resident's home disoriented and freezing cold.

According to Lieutenant Edward Harrington, who heads the Northampton Crime Prevention and Control Unit, Levey appeared at the home of Skinner State Park Caretaker Karen Mead last Saturday at 4 a.m. after having spent an undetermined amount of time atop Skinner Mountain, located on Route 116.

Levey had no recollection of how he got to the mountain or why he was there, Harrington said.

Harrington said Levey was transported by ambulance to Northampton's Cooley Dickinson Hospital, where he was reportedly treated and released for hypothermia, a subnormal lowering of the body temperature.

Mead told the Union-News last week Levey had appeared at her house, which is on the side of Skinner Mountain, carrying a bag with a blanket and a butcher knife inside.

While authorities said there were no traces of alcohol or drugs in Levey's blood, they refused comment on his psychiatric state or mental history.

Sources close to Levey said he was a recovering alcoholic.

Last Monday afternoon, Levey doused himself with two gallons of paint thinner and set himself on fire. He had set down a sign saying "Peace" next to him.

Levey, an Amherst resident and 1984 University of Massachusetts graduate, was the son of Boston Globe food critic Robert Levey and the stepson of Pulitzer Prize winning columnist Ellen Goodman.

While Levey had no formal ties to any peace organizations, police said they are still investigating the incident.

— MEREDITH O'BRIEN

Collegian photo by K.A. Burke

The 24-hour vigil at the site where Gregory Levey set himself on fire on the Amherst Common last week.

Chabad House, Hillel plan campus Purim celebrations

By LISA GLASSMAN
Collegian Correspondent

On Wednesday night the Chabad House will sponsor a celebration of Purim, a commemoration of a Jewish victory thousands of years ago, according to a Chabad House rabbi.

According to Rabbi Chaim Adelman, Purim commemorates the defeat of Haman, whose goal it was to massacre the Jewish people, according to Rabbi Chaim Adelman of the Chabad House.

"Purim is the celebration of our victory in the Persian Gulf — that is, the Jews survived to see the downfall of Haman 2,346 years ago in ancient Persia," Adelman said.

According to Rabbi Saul Perlmutter of the Hillel House, this ancient story occurred when Mordechai, a Jew in the town of Shushan, heard about Haman's desire to massacre the Jews.

"He told his cousin Queen Esther of these plans, and she in turn told King Achasueros. The king became furious and had Haman killed — thus saving the Jewish people," Perlmutter said.

Since then, said Perlmutter, "the Jews commemorate their victory over the tyrant Haman during Purim."

Purim, he said, "has come to represent the Jews' long history of strength and resistance against their persecutors throughout time. It celebrates the Jewish identity, spirit, and unity."

There will be a number of activities in the coming week to celebrate Purim, Perlmutter said.

On Wednesday at the Hillel House will be the Megillah reading at 7 p.m., followed at 8 p.m. by the Purim Carnival, complete with games, costumes, contest prizes, food and fun, Perlmutter said.

The Chabad House at 30 N. Hadley Road is also sponsoring several celebrations on Wednesday, beginning at 6:30 p.m.with a Purim party, Adelman said. On Thursday at 4:45 p.m., the Chabad House will continue rejoicing with a "traditional Purim feast and megillah reading," he said.

Over 100 students attend Volunteer Fair for charities

By FARRAH SADIQ
Collegian Correspondent

A fair to recruit student volunteers and match them to organizations attracted over 100 students on Wednesday, said to a fair organizer.

The fair, which was held in the Campus Center, was sponsored by the Volunteer Initiative Blending and Education Service, the Undergraduate Business Club, the Mather Career Center, and Human Kindness Outreach, the Volunteer Fair was held in response to the success of last semester's fair, Heidi Nagler, a staff member from VIBES, said.

The aim of the fair was to recruit students who wished to donate their time for community service, she said.

Nagler said prospective volunteers were offered many diverse opportunities to usefully employ their time and skills. She said some volunteer options included the Northampton Survival Center Center, the Residential Recycling Program or a United Way Service.

Students were also offered the chance to become a Big Brother or Sister to youngsters in the Hampshire County area, plan activities for the elderly through the Salvation Army, or provide care and companionship for chronically ill, developmentally delayed children at the Northampton Pediatric Unit.

Jean Akers of the Salvation Army said her organization was looking for students to visit area nursing homes on the weekend of March 9 and 10, and "brighten up an elder's day".

The Northampton Pediatric Unit will be starting its second semester Volunteer Program on February 27. Margaret Johnson of the Unit described the program as a seven week "course" designed especially for students.

"Students feel more comfortable when they come in as a group of volunteers," Johnson explained. "The idea was very succesful last semester. They make friends with the residents, organize activities for them like going swimming, or on a picnic."

Other organizations recruiting included: Sojourn, Jessie's House, the Northampton Pediatric unit, the Boy Scouts and the International Language Institute.

Nagler, a VIBES staff member, explained her service helps students find volunteer positions that fit their schedules.

"VIBES is a sort of middle man," she said. "What we're shooting for is to match the needs of the services with the students who can provide them.'

Nagler added those students who could not make it to the fair could contact the VIBES office in Room 100 of the School of Business Administration at 549-5590.

Area artists share war feelings in Amherst 'read-out' Saturday

Poets, musicians talk of war through craft

By MICHAEL MANGIARACINA
Collegian Correspondent

Over 100 community members and students filled the Grace Episcopal Church parish hall in Amherst on Saturday to take part in a "read-out" against the war. The event was organized by Writers and Artists for Peace in the Middle East, a newly formed anti-war group.

Organizer Bella Halstead said she was happy with the standing room only attendance and hoped that the event would provide an outlet for members of the art community who oppose the war.

"Poetry speaks to the emotions that we feel, rather than to the head," she said, citing her inspiration for establishing Writers and Artists for Peace.

Halstead has drawn on the resources of several local peace groups to give support to her group's cause. She hopes in the future, the work of painters, sculptors, and actors may be incorporated into similar events.

Over 50 participants addressed the audience with poems, prose and songs in the three-hour event. Mostly original material by valley writers was read, interspersed with the work of such authors as Stephen Crane, Emily Dickinson, and Mark Twain.

The majority of the readings were not about the Gulf War specifically, but concentrated instead on the effects of war historically.

The works ranged from a Civil War song, to tales of World War II, Vietnam, and the current war in the Gulf. Several pieces were also read about Greg Levey, the Amherst man who set himself on fire last week. The afternoon concluded with the entire audience joining in a South African "freedom song."

—For Your Information—

MONDAY FEBRUARY 25

Meeting — The first meeting of Omicron Delta Epsilon, the economics honor society, will be at 6 p.m. in Machmer E-16. All are welcome.

Meeting — Clean Water Action is sponsoring a general meeting at 7 p.m. on 98 Main St. in Northampton.

Lecture — The School of Management's Production and Operations Management Program will sponsor the appearance of Vaugh Beals, the chairman of Harley-Davidson Motorcycle Company at 7:30 p.m. in the Student Union Ballroom.

Math Anxiety Workshop — Conducted in Lederle Graduate Research Tower 1634 from 4:30 p.m. - 6 p.m.

Speaker — Author Leonard Fein will lecture at the Neilson Library at Smith College at 4:15 p.m. and at Amherst College's Octogon Buiding in the Babbot Room at 8 p.m.

TUESDAY, FEBRUARY 26

Meeting — A meeting of the Black/Jewish Coalition, for Movie Night, will be in New Africa House at 7 p.m.

Brown Bag Discussion — Sponsored by Counseling and Advising for Older Students. Bring lunch to discuss problems with the changes in learning in Machmer E-21.

Peace Action Meeting — Sponsored by the Committee on the Middle East will meet at Bangs Community Center in Amherst at 7:30 p.m.

WEDNESDAY, FEBRUARY 27

Brown Bag Lunch Series — "Multiculturalism: A German Perspective" in Campus Center 904-908 at 12:15 p.m. Sponsored by the Women's Studies Department

Time Management Workshop — "The Time of Your Life," a video and presentation workshop from Phi Beta Sigma in 803 CC at 7 p.m.

Information Meeting — The National Student Exchange will hold an information from 4 p.m. - 5 p.m. in CC 803.

Purim Celebration — The Chabad House will host a Purim Party at 6:30 p.m.. The event is free and open to Jews of all backgrounds and affiliations.

FRIDAY, MARCH 1

Jumaa Salat — Sponsored by the Muslim Student Association at 12:30 p.m. in CC 805.

STEINBECK COLLISION REPAIR
& AUTOBODY

53 So. Prospect — Amherst Center
256-8157 256-1385

• Accepted by all insurance companies for collision repair or glass replacement

• Imports & other unibody vehicles are our specialty

REMEMBER it's your car and your choice of repair facilities

AUDITIONS
AUDITIONS
Agatha Christie's Murder Mystery
TEN LITTLE INDIANS
March 3 and March 4
7 pm
Campus Center Rm 101
A Production of UMASS Theatre Guild

American Express
Announces A Great New Travel Program.

Now students can get the Card and get 3 roundtrips on Continental Airlines, for only $129 or $189 each.

There's only one way to cover a lot of territory without spending a lot of money. And that's by getting the American Express® Card. It's the only card that offers an exciting new travel program exclusively for students—including three roundtrip certificates on Continental Airlines.

Just look at the map and pick the place you'd like to visit. If it's on your side of the Mississippi River, you can use a certificate to fly for only $129 roundtrip. Or, you can cross the Mississippi for $189 roundtrip.

You have your pick of more than 150 cities in the 48 contiguous states. And you can fly almost anytime—because there are no blackout dates. But you must make your reservations within 14 days of the day you leave. And the maximum stay is 7 days/6 nights and must include a Saturday night.

In addition to this great travel program, you'll also enjoy all the benefits of Cardmembership as well as other exclusive student privileges. They include a quarterly magazine filled with informative articles on summer jobs, careers, campus life. Plus valuable discounts from leading retailers.

But remember, there's only one way to get all this—and that's by getting the American Express Card. Just call us (have your bank address and account number on hand). What's more, with our special student offer, it's easier to get the Card now while you're still in school than it may ever be again.

So get the Card. And get ready to cover new territory on either side of our Great Continental Divide.

Membership Has Its Privileges®

CALL 1-800-942-AMEX

If you're already a Cardmember, there's no need to call. Information about your certificates will be arriving soon.

TRAVEL RELATED SERVICES
An American Express company

CONTINENTAL

Complete terms and conditions of this travel offer will arrive with your certificates. Continental Airlines alone is responsible for fulfillment of this offer. American Express assumes no liability for Continental Airlines' performance. © 1991 American Express Travel Related Services Company, Inc.

EDITORIAL/OPINION

The opinions on this page are those of the individual writer or cartoonist and do not necessarily reflect the views of the Collegian or the University unless otherwise noted.

Gregory Levey was no 'wacko'

When I first heard last Monday someone had set himself on fire on the Amherst Town Common to protest the war, it seemed so incredible to me that I could hardly respond. My mind was ignited with images and memories from twenty years ago during the Vietnam War when a number of Buddhist monks immolated themselves in Saigon. I am Buddhist and these monks, not unlike Christ or other Christian martyrs, are like patron saints to me. But there were several attempted self-immolations in America at the time, and in contrast to the stoic and serene monks, some of these other acts seemed inchoate and chaotic, leading many to believe that they were merely suicidal acts by troubled souls rather than the ultimate protest. I assumed that this terrible deed done earlier this day was the act of a disturbed mind.

Then I learned the name of the young man who committed this extreme act and realized that he had been a friend of mine off and on for more than ten years. I can attest to the fact that he was a deeply religious man with a profound conscience and a great love for other people. I last saw him over Christmas when we rode the bus to Boston together. We spent the entire trip talking about religion and politics, family and friends. He had recently become more and more involved with Eastern religion and I have been Buddhist for a long time. His mind impressed me very much. I remember thinking how much he had matured since the last time we had talked, how much more refined his thinking had become, how composed his emotions were, how respectful his attitude was, and how committed he was to his principles, even if he was, at times, intense. Although I hadn't seen him in a month, I can assure you this was not a desperate act by an unstable man. If he was a troubled man, it was the threat of war which troubled him, for the impending war on Iraq was the main topic of our conversation.

C. F. Carroll

What then is the meaning behind my friend's extraordinary sacrifice, if we cannot dismiss it simply as instability or insanity? I cannot say specifically for I do not know his specific intentions, but I would like to speak to the spirit of his deed. As with Christianity, death has always played a primary role in Buddhism: symbolically, psychologically and actually. Despite the fact that Buddhists are pledged against killing, they have historically assumed many risks in attempting to resolve injustice. The supreme sacrifice for a Buddhist is self-immolation, since it is an act that goes beyond the self to protest the inhumanity inflicted on others. Some would say that it is difficult for Western culture to understand because we put such a high value on life. We are the "Now Generation." Our motto is "Live for Today!" But there is another side to living for today which is often ignored or understated, and that is that not everyone survives until tomorrow. Among youth, murder and suicide are the highest causes of death. Drugs and alcohol also take very heavy tolls. And now the war adds a whole new dimension of violent death to our lives. When we say that we do not understand death as symbolic protest, does it not imply that we are somehow resigned to the meaningless death that we live every day?

For the monk, self-immolation is an ethical act, but it is only ethical when it is committed as a result of the purest and noblest effort. In Buddhism, right mind must always precede right action. That is why some, not all, of the attempts at self-immolation have failed. The well meaning, but misguided soul does not have the moral strength to overcome the horrible consequences of the act and ends up screaming and running wildly around in pain. But for the monk, there are no screams. Only peace. This is because it is a selfless act even though it is an act of self-immolation, the monk is already in heaven.

That is why the Buddhist monks in Vietnam sat so peacefully in the midst of the scorching flames. It is the same reason that my friend was also able to succeed in his quest. It was just.

Henry David Thoreau once advised to make an extreme statement in order to make an emphatic one. But it was also Thoreau who said that "we begin to die not in our senses or extremities, but in our divine faculties." Greg Levey died in a blaze so that others can live and, in so doing, he became alive. He took the high road. This is the slow road to death, the road of unlived life, the road to purgatory and hell. Could it be that Greg's death means that we stop and ask ourselves the question, "What road am I on?"

C. F. Carroll is a UMass graduate student

Death gives birth to discussion of war

A week ago today, Greg Levey poured paint thinner over himself and lit a match. Before he did it, he stapled his license to a sign he made that said, "Peace."

My first thought was, "Geez, that's not what I'd call a peaceful way to go." Then I thought, "What can he do for the peace movement now? He's dead."

I was wrong.

Greg Levey, be he insane and in dire need of help or a devout Buddhist who honestly felt that he had to shun the evil of the war, did something that no other person in Amherst, Massachusetts, or America was able to do.

Pamela McCarthy

Greg Levey got us to think about the war.

Greg Levey made us face some embarrasing facts.

We don't really think about the war. We'll spout platitudes and cliches about the war. We'll be good little protesters, who would rather march, be seen in our tie-dyes, and play guitar instead of doing any real organizing. We'll weep and wring our hands over the soldiers who are fighting and the civilians who are being maimed and killed from our bombs. But we will also happily drive our cars, crank our heat up high, and shrug our shoulders when funding for alternative energy gets cut. We're in a very comfortable position. We get the best of both worlds — we are not only morally superior to everyone else, but we are fed, clothed and housed at the expense of the people we claim to want peace with.

Why do you think we are in the middle of this war? Justice? Peace? We are in it to gain control over the region's resources, so we can continue to drive our cars, crank our heat up high, and shrug our shoulders when no one will even think about alternate energy sources.

Has anyone given anything up to stop the war? Has anyone done anything besides protest and chant? Write letters to our representatives, perhaps? Flood the White House with phone calls? Even accept the fact that we may have to give up some of our luxuries if we truly want peace?

So many peace protesters have been angry about what Levey did. How dare he kill himself. Who did he think he was, anyway? The general attitude is that this guy got more attention for doing something they stick you in a rubber room for, and the peace protesters can't share in the glory.

Right-wingers have called Levey anti-American, unpatriotic, and a radical. I look at these people, and I just want to laugh. It's easy for them to support the war. They aren't the ones ducking bullets. They aren't the ones who have to dig trenches in the desert and fight another nation over oil. To all of you good American citizens, why don't you show some real support for the war, if that's what you truly believe? Sign up. I hear the Army, Navy, Air Force, and Marines are looking for a few good people. If you aren't going to sign up, then shut up.

Greg Levey has been called selfish for what he did. That's hilarious. He died in the most painful, agonizing, brutal way anyone could die. Who are we to call Greg Levey selfish? What have we given up? Granted, I'm not going to kill myself over the war. There is still a lot of debate over whether he was genuine or just plain sick. But he did make us face up to one thing: we haven't done anything to stop what is happening. Anything at all.

We just can't stand facing the fact that we aren't the pure and moral beings we claim to be. Underneath it all, we aren't really willing to fight for what we believe in.

Pamela McCarthy is a Collegian columnist

CORRECTION

Last Friday, in "Who decides what is called news," we misidentified the owner of NBC TV. That network is owned by General Electric. Westinghouse owns a major affiliate of ABC.

We regret any confusion.

Bloody, yellow ribbons

Gayle Long's editorial, "I wear a yellow ribbon to show my hope for life, not war," only shows her naivete about the symbolism of war and American politics, and ultimately about war itself.

Long overlooks the fact that symbols are communal acts: how the viewer of a symbol interprets it is as important as what is meant by its wearer. Anyone can wear a symbol and claim to have a private meaning for it, as Long does. I could wear a peace symbol and intend it to mean I'm pro-war, or wear a swastika and claim to love all humanity. But of course, everyone who saw these images would interpret them far differently.

For Long, her yellow ribbon may mean she's, "for the thought of life and peace in the Middle East and the rest of the world." But most will interpret her ribbon as support for United States soldiers. And for most who bear ribbons, support for the troops necessarily means supporting the soldiers' duty: To enforce American political policy. Most feel that the best way to ensure the soldiers' safety is to, "get the job done and bring them home." Doing the job boils down to one primary thing: killing.

When I see a yellow ribbon I see only red, for there is innocent blood on it, on the hands of every American soldier, and on the hands of every citizen who supports the war. Life? Peace? You've got to be kidding, Gayle.

Linda Babcock
Northampton

Believe the lies - It's your patriotic duty

Last Thursday, our conscience came kicking and screaming into existence. Millions interrupted their lives to take a stand against the massacre in the Persian Gulf. In Amherst, 1,200 people, according to police, gathered on the Town Common.

A young Palestinian reminded us that what Americans call Desert Storm, he and his people call genocide - "Support your troops on your own soil." During the day, dedicated to murdered Black leader Malcolm X, people reminded each other that no government can totally destroy the spirit of its people. An enclave was carved out of Amherst. It was a place to escape the Nobody-Gets-Killed, Extra-Guy-Every-25,000 Corpses War.

When folks decide to challenge the tide of blood-thirst and flag waving that is sweeping the nation, they do it together. In this rally, hundreds took to the street, blocking the main intersections in town (If you were irked - it's time to rethink your priorities.) The theme was simple: As tens of thousands are murdered in our name, there can be no Business as Usual.

Eggs were thrown from an Amherst College building. Young children, mothers and their babies moved to the other side of the crowd and the eggs were ignored. Said one cop, "If you don't wanna get hit by eggs, get the hell out of the street."

"Send George Bush, Send Dan Quayle, Send Neil Bush when he gets out of jail!" Protesters talked about what the media refuses to: The over-representation of African Americans in the Armed Forces and their concentration in the most dangerous jobs. (The Secretary of Defense is 'proud to be able to offer these opportunities to young African-Americans." Gasp.) Vietnam vets told their younger confederates of the nightmare that battle makes of the rest of your life - "Veterans were disrespected by those who refused to listen to the reality of war."

Jeremy Levinson

The police filmed the whole thing. Then they left, returning in force clad in riot gear. They came in on the side of Business as Usual.

Amherst's finest loaded a bus with prisoners. It took over an hour to travel the quarter mile to the police station. The street wouldn't give way. Cops pushed and hit people out of their way. Log barricades had to be removed - a little gasoline might've helped. Scores of bodies formed a wall in front of the bus and it ground to a halt for a while - some large nails would've been useful. If the police wanted to stifle the community's conscience, they'd have to work at it. And that they did: Shame! Shame! Shame! the fingers were pointed at the cops. Who was enforcing the law, anway - the cops or the protesters?

Finally in front of the shiny new $11 million police station, the prisoners were unloaded. A young women drew a chalk peace sign outside of the station. She was chased for a block before being tackled and lead away. In all, 43 people were hauled away for standing their ground.

The crowd provided its own soundtrack: "Peace Now! Negotiate Now!" Some cried. Some laughed. It's a feeling like no other to be fighting for what's right. It's hard to escape a society that licks its chops with every dead enemy.

There were all sorts of people there. Each gave what they could. Some volunteered to be arrested. Some stayed out of the cops' way. They all stayed together, one cell in a global organism demanding peace.

I'll never forget what one middle-aged women said to me: "I really wish I could grab a flag and join the war's cheerleading section. It'd be a lot easier...I just can't."

It seems that the United States does have some warriors to be proud of. Warriors fighting for peace and justice - in our own backyard.

Jeremy P. Levinson is a Collegian columnist

DOONESBURY
By GARRY TRUDEAU

WHAT'S THIS?
I DUNNO... SOME MOVIE. I NEEDED A BREAK.
MIND IF I TUNE IN THE NEWS?
WHAT? I THOUGHT YOU HATED WAR COVERAGE!
I DO. I JUST LIKE TO SCOPE THE NETWORK SCUD STUDS.
GO! THE REST OF YOU SAVE YOUR-SELVES! I'LL BE OKAY!
TWO MINUTES TO AIR, ROLAND.

THE FAR SIDE
By GARY LARSON

"Wait, wait, wait . . . I'm confused. Bob, you're the one who's claiming your Siamese twin, Frank, changes into a werewolf every full moon?"

QUOTE OF THE DAY

"I'm too shy to express my sexual feelings, except over the phone to people I don't know."
— Garry Shandling

DAILY CROSSWORD PUZZLE
Edited By TRUDE MICHEL JAFFE

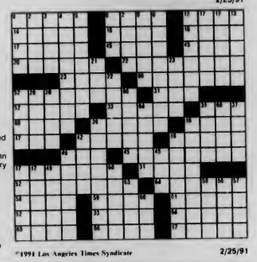
ACROSS
1 Weighing instrument
5 Enfant terrible
10 Hence
14 Amused responses
15 Rocky, to Stallone
16 Semester
17 Second Commander-in-Chief
18 Particle
19 Inter —
20 Speak rapidly and foolishly
22 Embarrassed
24 Egyptian cross
26 Short operatic solo
27 Jamboree attendee
31 Tax agcy.
32 Hot under the collar
33 Jar
35 Past
38 River valley
39 Actor Wallace
40 Scheme
41 Weather dir.
42 Scottish poet Robert
43 Excuse
44 Lovey-dovey sound
45 Opinionated
47 Struts
51 High time
52 Waterfall
54 Golf club
58 Author Leon
59 Yannick — of tennis fame
61 Unsophisticated
62 — up: study
63 American Indian
64 Becomes weary
65 Emmets
66 Shout
67 Sound of contempt

DOWN
1 Lively dance
2 Muslim judge
3 Captain of the "Pequod"
4 Thrash
5 Being
6 Bikini top
7 Decays
8 Waikiki welcome
9 Gall
10 Warehouses
11 Ignited again
12 — for the mill: resources
13 Nebraska livestock center
21 Film company abbr
23 Green land
25 More immense
27 Await
28 Algerian seaport
29 Connecticut university
30 Prevailing tendency
34 Malicious burning
35 Disembarked
36 Mongolian desert
37 Auricular
39 Liveliness
40 Banana's relative
42 Hog
43 Quantities
44 Goes after
46 Rep. party
47 Diving acronym
48 Burr or Copland
49 Be parsimonious
50 Cross the goal line
53 Chinese coin
55 Novice
56 Always
57 Take it easy
60 Underworld goddess

ANSWER TO PREVIOUS PUZZLE:

S	O	N	G		D	E	G	A	S		P	H	O	T
A	M	U	R		O	V	E	R	T		R	I	L	E
G	A	M	E		C	A	N	T	O		A	S	P	S
O	R	I	E	N	T	E	R	M	I	T	E	S
		S	T	E	R	O	L		M	O	R	O
H	A	M		V	I	V	E		S	P	I	R	I	T
A	G	A		A	N	I	M	A		S	E	I	N	E
R	O	T	A		E	N	A	C	T		S	O	D	A
P	R	O	D	U	C	E	N	T	S		G	I	S
S	A	L	E	S		F	O	R	A		R	A	E
		O	P	A	L		A	F	R	I	C	A
E	N	G	I	N	E	E	R	A	L	E	P	I	S
L	A	I	C		E	L	M	A	N		S	H	U	I
A	P	S	E		P	L	E	B	E		T	E	L	A
N	E	T	S		S	E	R	E	S		A	R	A	B

2/25/91



©1991 Los Angeles Times Syndicate 2/25/91

CALVIN AND HOBBES
By BILL WATTERSON

AUGH! WHO DID THIS?!
THE DAME'S SCREAM HIT AN OCTAVE USUALLY RESERVED FOR CALLING DOGS, BUT IT MEANT I HAD A CASE, AND THE SOUND OF GREENBACKS SLAPPING ACROSS MY PALM IS MUSIC TO MY EARS ANY DAY. AFTER ALL, I'M NOT AN OPERA CRITIC. I'M A PRIVATE EYE.

FROTTER
By GARRY PORTER

THIS IS INCREDIBLE! THEY'VE BEEN TRAINED TO RUN THE MAZE. THEY'VE DONE IT HUNDREDS OF TIMES...
AND NOW THEY'VE SUDDENLY STOPPED FOR NO APPARENT REASON. MY GOD— THE IMPLICATIONS FOR CONDITIONED LEARNING!
THIS COULD BE THE GREATEST DISCOVERY SINCE PAVLOV!
HEY, I'VE GOT MY PRIDE, MAC.
YEAH, THERE'S ONLY SO MUCH IT'LL DO FOR A PELLET.

REX ROCKETT
By IRA SHERAK

STREAKING ACROSS THE SOLAR SYSTEM IS A NEW KIND OF HERO.
HE IS REX ROCKETT, SUPER SPACEGHT AND HE IS HEADED OUR WAY!
HE IS A MAN WITHOUT FEAR A MAN WHO CARES ABOUT TRUTH, JUSTICE AND...
HOW DO I LOOK?

TANGELO PIE
By TIM SNIFFEN

And Now, PREVIEW DAY where, instead of running any actual strips, we present a choice selection of upcoming panels
Tomorrow, we'll see this.
WHAM!
On Friday, Marcus says:
—and yet continually fail to realize that the truly shallow thing around is in fact their OWN SHALLOW EXISTENCE!
And some time in April, this plant will say:
WOO! BILLIE JEAN... IS NOT MY LOVER... YEAH! HURT ME!!
—Stay Tuned!

MENU

SORRY.
NO MENU

YOUR DAILY HOROSCOPE
By JEANE DIXON

ARIES (March 21-April 19): Unusual support comes from a former employer. Do not close out your career options; they may look more enticing later on! Play it smart; hide your ambition when around your co-workers.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20): Romance is lively. Let friends and family know how much they mean to you. Using impractical soles techniques could prove costly. Choose business confidants with greater care.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20): You will make powerful contacts today; use them judiciously. Career demands could collide with social engagements. Your recent efforts will be royally rewarded with a bonus or promotion.

CANCER (June 21-July 22): Staying busy while you are on the sidelines will produce handsome profits. Be more money-minded than usual. Although traveling on impulse can be fun, it could also prove expensive. Use common sense.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22): A good day to catch up on paying your bills and balancing your checkbook. Certain domestic arrangements could need an overhaul. Seek family members' cooperation. A platonic relationship intensifies.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22): Take care of any financial problems early in the day. Seek expert advice. Get your priorities right; do not let underlying conflicts interfere with what must be done. Romance has to wait.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22): Do not try to escape from your responsibilities. By focusing on one project at a time, you will accomplish more. Team effort can boost profits. A job offer sounds attractive; investigate!

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21): A new admirer may not be all you hope. Do not wear your heart on your sleeve. Socially, your life is opening up in all kinds of ways. Be especially attentive to family.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21): Call in your markers, collect on old debts and demand the best from your associates. Influential people see you in a different light; if you know your fuse is short, lie low.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19): You feel tempted to veer off in several directions. Take your work hour-by-hour. Shake off your insecurity. Go to a party and be pleasant. Concentrate on putting others at ease.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18): Step back from the rat race and look objectively at those who have supported you. Treat them with respect and they will give even more. Recycle old projects to earn new projects.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20): Hondie finonciol matters odroitly. Personnei questions also demond finesse. Do not go overboard in romance until you have tested the emotional waters! Music or art could be o second source of income.

ARTS & LIVING

The raw, live Celtic-punk is much better than the canned

By KEN KIE
Collegian Correspondent

Cordelia's Dad
Pearl Street
February 21

Amherst's favorite Celtic-punk band, Cordelia's Dad, played to a packed house Thursday night at Pearl Street. Sad Cafe, the opening band, warmed up the crowd nicely with some very strange stuff. They distributed fruit and toys to various audience members and Bradford, the guitarist/lead singer sang through a walkie talkie and . . . a traffic cone? Yep, and it was one of the more original things I've seen at a live concert. I couldn't help but think that they are to music what the Flying Karamazov Brothers are to juggling — great at what they do, using props, and, at times, hilarious. It wasn't hard to tell they were having a ball up there.

Cordelia's Dad played about half of their superb, self titled album, including such crowd favorites as "Poor Man's Labor," "Banks of the Lee," and "Will the Circle Will be Unbroken," the last with Bradford form Sad Cafe singing harmony.

Early in the show, bassist/lead singer Tim Eriksen announced that this would be their last Pearl Street performance. Guitarist Tom King explained, "We've been traveling all over New England, and, you'd be surprised, but there are a lot of nice people in the music business. But right here in Northampton is one place that isn't."

It seemed that the rough feel of a live show suits their music much better than the polished studio sound of their album. Besides, on the album, you don't get any of their comical between-song banter. "Dude, get high off our excellent folk-noise music," said King in the night's anti-drug message. "It's great," he said later, "your sitting there, drinking coffee, the waitress comes over to take your order. I love the Iron Horse." Cordelia's Dad will be playing at the Iron Horse in April.

A good-sized portion of the audience slam dances though the show, making viewing difficult for those of us sitting and taking notes. It was a much better reaction than they got last April opening for The Dead Milkmen at the S.U.B. At that show most of the crowd didn't pay them much attention; they have come a long way in less than a year.

For the encore, they jammed with Sad Cafe through a truly bizarre version of "Que Sera Sera." I kid you not.

Their album, which came out last spring, was the best selling local album for over seven months and is available on CD. Twelve of the thirteen songs are traditional folk songs. The one exception, "My Frozen Hedgehog," was penned by a King. A wide range of musical styles is represented here; from the hardcore "My Pretty Little Pink," to the a capella version of the hymn 'Idumea," here called "When sorrows encompass me 'round." Every aspect of the album is great — King's guitar, Peter Irvine's drums — but Eriksen's voice is the true standout.

These guys are just too good to not make it really big sometime soon, so try to catch them while they are still well known just in this area. Those of you who like any good music, and those of us who consider ourselves fans of the best band in the area will be sure to catch them in April.

Working around the clock tonight? Discover Kinko's.

For most of us, there just aren't enough hours in a 9 to 5 day to get some of our important projects done on time. And that's why we're open 24 hours. Every day. So no matter when you need a helping hand and a friendly face, you'll find them at Kinko's.

3¢ Late Night Copies!
Come into Kinko's between 10p.m. and 6a.m. and get great service and great copies. Just 3¢ each for single-sided, self serve 8½ x 11" black & white copies on 20 lb. white bond. Good at listed location through 6/30/91. One coupon per customer. Not valid with any other offer.

Open 24 Hours*
253-2543
220 N. Pleasant St.
(Across from Carriage Shops)
* Closed Sat. midnight - Sun. noon

kinko's the copy center

Study in London, England

University of Wisconsin Platteville

Liberal Arts
International Business
Criminal Justice

Mainstream classes with British students, plus specially designed courses for American students.

All courses approved by UW-Platteville and validated on an official UW-Platteville transcript.

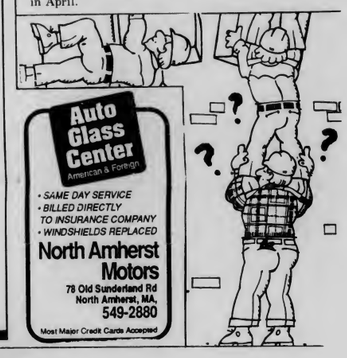
$4,325 per semester for Wisconsin and Minnesota residents.
$4,675 per semester for non-residents.

Costs include:
Tuition and fees
Home-stay accommodations with meals
Fieldtrips

Financial aid applies.
Summer Program also available.

For further information contact:
Study Abroad Programs
308 Warner Hall
University of Wisconsin-Platteville
1 University Plaza
Platteville, WI 53818-3099

(608) 342-1726



Auto Glass Center
American & Foreign
• SAME DAY SERVICE
• BILLED DIRECTLY TO INSURANCE COMPANY
• WINDSHIELDS REPLACED
North Amherst Motors
78 Old Sunderland Rd
North Amherst, MA,
549-2880
Most Major Credit Cards Accepted

CLASSIFIEDS

COME TO THE COLLEGIAN OFFICE—CC 113 MON — THURS 8:30-3:30 ● DEADLINE 2 DAYS PRIOR TO PUBLICATION ● CASH IN ADVANCE, 20¢/WORD/DAY FOR STUDENTS

ACTIVITIES

25 < CLUB. General meeting/social. Discuss activities, elections, socialize. Thursday, 2/28, Campus Center room 917 7:30pm. Dues $3 to vote.

TONIGHT SPECTRUM General meeting 6:00pm Room 803 CC -Be there!!

TRAIN WITH US!!
UMass Tae Kwon Do
Every Mon & Wed 8:30-8:30pm
Marty 6-7003, Marie 8-1822
Beginners Welcome

ZAP! KAPOW! BANG!
Now that we have your attention...
UMass Quilting Club
General Meeting
Tonight, 7:00 P.M.
CC162
Everyone Welcome!

ANNOUNCEMENTS

BED AND BREAKFAST- downtown ideal for visiting parents and friends- 549-0733.

CONGRATS TO THE 16 new Delta Zeta pledges! Get psyched for an amazing semester. Love the sisters of DZ.

ON CAMPUS FUNDRAISER
Needed: Organized and industrious fraternity, sorority, or student group to earn hundreds of dollars for an on-campus marketing project.
Call 1-800-NOW-POST

PHI ALPHA THETA -Int'l History Honors Society accepting applications from new members. Info-applications in History Office Herter. Deadline 2/28.

ENTERTAINMENT

RACK-A-DISC is still the best for DJ's and live entertainment. Call anytime 586-9900, ask about our specials.

FOR RENT

1 BEDROOM APT in Puffton. Take over lease in March. Option to renew. Steve 549-8203

AMHERST, 1 BEDROOM AVAILABLE IN 3 BEDROOM, NEW HOUSE ON BUS LINE, FIREPLACE, BEAUTIFUL!! AVAILABLE NOW CALL 8-4, 665-3326

AMHERST, ONE BEDROOM in a two bedroom apartment
Call now -549-8273

EMERGENCY SITUATION! Looking for 1 person to take over my lease ASAP. $250/mos -546-7037/leave message

HIPPEST HOUSE in the world wants housemate -Hatfield, rustic, 5 min from Noho 230 + 247-5248

STUDIO IN AMHERST $460 w/utils. Call Scott 253-0820 After 6pm

WINTER SPECIAL: 1 month rent .99 cents with one year lease.
2 Bedroom- $450
3 Bedroom- $537
Sunderland, free bus route, laundry facilities, swimming pool, garden plots, short term lease available. 665-3858

FOR SALE

5 STRING BANJO -Bluegrass style $125 247-5248

ACT NOW! 2 one way plane tickets to LA $200 for both. Fly on Tues. Feb. 26 -call now 549-1632

"BIANCHI BIKE"
in great condition
Color: Black
Quick release wheels, toe clips, leather seat, steel frame
$260 or Best Offer
Call
Marta
546-0923

FUTONS
Metawampe
Top quality gold bond futons
Delivery anywhere in U.S.A.
Sleep with us and save!
1-800-3FUTON1

MAC 512KE & extra drive. Software $600.00/BO call 548-9334

NEED A COMPUTER? I sell PC's and Mac's -Very competitive prices. Service, and individual attention. Call Dana 546-3933

SIMS BLADE SNOWBOARD
New!
Retail: ----359
Selling for: 225
Interested? Call Kim 549-5594

FREE BRUNO'S PIZZA

BOOK A HOUSE/DORM party with RACKADISC and have free food -Call 586-9900 for details (limited to UMass & Amherst College)

FOUND

FOUND: Red/brown glasses in the Fine Arts Center on 2/21. 546-0736

GUESS WHO'S 21?

DIANE KAKRIDAS is legal today so stay off the roads- Happy Birthday to the hot Greek chick from Winchester.
Love, bill

HELP WANTED

EARN $300 to $500 per week reading books at home. Call 1-615-473-7440 Ext. B-281

HELP WANTED Full or part time. Apply in person Copycat Print Shop. 228 Triangle Street Amherst

INTELLIGENCE JOBS. All branches. US Customs, DEA ect. Now hiring. Call 1-805-962-8000 Ext. K-9618.

INSTRUCTION

EARN CREDIT learn to Scuba Dive. Basic Classes held Monday, Tuesday, Wednesday, and Thursday 7-10PM in Curry Hicks Pool. Open Water II class held during Spring Break in Key Largo, FLA. Advanced Class held in New England in April. For further information call 549-8401, or drop by Curry Hicks starting 2/4/91.

LOST

DIAMOND RING & WEDDING BAND in a purse 545-2703 eves. 253-9431

EMBROIDERED JEAN JACKET Nov90 - Bring to Campus Center Info Desk ASAP

LOST GREY BACKPACK with important documents! $Reward 548-3682

NARDELI'S OR SUNSET COURT!
Were you there on Fri. 2/15?
I lost my camera -Pentax IQ zoom
Reward for information leading to its return.
Contact: Joanna 8-7207

PERSONALS

BABY DEE!!!
HAPPY 21ST-SICK!
GIMME SOME PAW
WE RE BASHIN-UNHH UHH
GUESS WHO

BRIAN,
Thanks for the best Valentine's Day ever. I feel like I've fallen in love with you all over again.
Love, Brenda

DEAR JENN:
Happy Birthday!!!
Roses are red
Violets are blue
You're twenty today
And I'm not.
I Love You,
Todd

DIANE KAKRIDAS
Happy 21st -get ready for tonight
Love, Sherri & Tania

HEY UMASS!
I kicked Corey's P*s butt yesterday
That'll be 20 bucks buddy boy

ON FEBRUARY 18, 1991
A person lit himself on fire
in the name of
Peace.
Please think about that today.

ROB- (My life)
Happy 21st Birthday
Luv, Shelly- (Your life)

TRI SIGMA welcomes their newest pledges Suzanne, Valerie and Rachel.
Congratulations!

RIDE WANTED

RIDE NEEDED TO CORNELL 3/1 return UMass 3/3
Call Julia 6-6364

ROOMMATE WANTED

LG SUNNY SINGLE in beautiful Noho apt Great location 233 & Elec. 584-4078

WOMAN WANTED FOR 3-bdrm. apt. in Noho: 1 large bedroom, newly painted, bright place. Available now! Call Jess at 584-2750

SERVICES

PREGNANT?
Need a pregnancy test, information or support? Call for free and confidential services. ALTERNATIVES 33 Main Street Northampton 586-3000 or Greenfield 774-6010

SERVICES/WORDPROCESSING

DISSERTATIONS, CASES, PAPERS,
On-campus pickup. Fast! Accurate! Mac/Laser, Spellcheck
Nancy 584-7924

SKi THIS SPRING BREAK!

KILLINGTON FROM $199
Park City, Utah and Breckenridge Co
From $699
For info. Call Jon at 549-4226

SPRING BREAK

SPRING BREAK PARTY!
Travel to Jamaica, Mexico! And Panama City FL! Concerts! Free Parties! Club discounts! And lots more! For info call Denise 546-7156.

SUBLET

GREAT APARTMENT 2 mi. off campus - North Amherst -Big yard, storage, perfect for two people. Available now! Call 549-6027

TRAVEL

CAN'T AFFORD SPRING BREAK?
Guaranteed great prices! Space available to Jamaica, Mexico and Panama City Beach, Florida (the "new Daytona Beach")! MC/VISA are accepted! Call Cindy at 549-3538 -please leave a message!

CARIBBEAN - $189!
The warmth of the Caribbean or Mexican coast for a week!
R/T air, SUNHITCH + m. 212-864-2000.

CLUB MED
Enjoy your spring break!!
Added Value with each booking.
Call RENDEZVOUS TRAVEL
1-800-336-1002

FLORIDA'S NEWEST HOT SPOT
Panama City-$139!
World's biggest beach party
Daytona Beach-$189
Call Erica or Julie- 546-2649 or Siobhan or Terri- 546-5079
March 8 deadline -March 8 deadline

MONTREAL WEEKEND $89 Includes round trip motor coach 3 days 2 nights Hotel Suite, Breakfast, FREE admission to Club Metropolis.
Reliable Tours
365 Broadway Rt. 1
Lynnfield MA 01940
617-598-9930

TYPING

CHEAP RATES, fast, accurate, dependable, campus pickup and delivery. Adam 253-9117

FAST, ACCURATE TYPING w/ spellcheck and boldface. $1.45/pg. Call Greg 546-0259

RESUMES, PAPERS, anything typed or typeset. Fast, professional service. Affordable rates. KCommunications, 256-6373

WORDPROCESSING, FAST, $1.45/page 549-0484

WANTED

WANTED: G.D. spring tour tickets
Looking to buy, sell, trade. Landover, Albany, and Nassau. Call 546-2396

TIMBER LAKE CAMPS -located in NY's Catskill Mountains seek: General Counselors, Athletic Instructors, and WSI'S. On-campus interviews. Top salaries/travel allowance. 800-828-CAMP (9-4:30 weekdays)

SPORTS

Overtime technical buries UMass in 103-96 defeat

By SAM SILVERSTEIN
Collegian Staff

Referee Len Wirtz' decision to slap Coach John Calipari with a technical foul 30 seconds into overtime buried the University of Massachusetts men's basketball team in a five-point hole from which they never escaped, dropping a 103-96 Atlantic 10 game to Rutgers yesterday.

Rutgers' guard Earl Dunan hit a free throw and converted a layup and foul into a 3-point play following the technical giving Rutgers a 85-80 lead.

"When they called that T on coach Cal, that changed the course of the game," Will Herndon said. "We didn't expect it."

More bad news was in store for the Minutemen. Anton Brown had fouled out just three seconds prior to the technical and teammates Harper Williams, John Tate and Tony Barbee soon followed suit .

"I did not swear," Calipari said. "I said 'Call it down the other end' . . . do you believe they'd call a T in a one-point game in overtime? Why take it out of the players' hands?"

Jim McCoy added a pair of athletic 17-foot jumpers immediately after the call, but Rutgers (18-8 overall, 13-4 A-10) won a battle of free throws down the stretch making 15 of 21 in overtime.

Keith Hughes scored a game-high 33 points — 22 in the first half — and Duncan added 22, including 9 in overtime.

UMass trailed by 2 with nine seconds left in regulation but forced overtime when Barbee took a pass from Brown, lost the handle momentarily, then found Herdon for an uncontested layup at the buzzer.

"That was an outstanding basketball game," Calipari said. "This was probably the first time we got a little down and fought to get back into it. We had been playing without any intensity. Today we picked it up."

UMass held a 5-point lead at 5:09 after Mike Jones picked up his final foul and left the game. Barbee posted up Duncan for a 10-footer and strung together four free throws with McCoy to put UMass up 74-69 .

Jones tormented McCoy on defense in the first half as the Scarlet Knights surged to a 15-2 lead. Twice Jones stripped McCoy, aiding Rutgers' fast-breaks.

While Jones was off the floor, UMass cut the score to 17-10 but Hughes scored 12 of Rutgers' next 20 points as the Scarlet Knights rebuilt a 37-22 lead.

Hughes-and-Company went cold in the final 7:30 minutes as UMass closed it to 44-40 at halftime with an 18-7 run that included three consecutive 14-foot jumpers by McCoy and a Barbee double-clutch layup over Brent Dabbs.

As the Atlantic 10 Tournament begins Saturday, March 2, the Minutemen (16-10 overall, 9-8 in the A-10) are one of five teams jockeying to stay out of seventh place. The A-10's bottom bracket is cornered into a back-to-back game situation and UMass would benefit from a day's rest heading into Sunday's play.

"I wanted to prepare our team for the [A-10] Tournament," Calipari said of the play against Rutgers. "This game shows we can play with any team in the League if we play with intensity because that's the best team in the League."

UMass plays its final game of the regular season Wednesday at Rhode Island.

Rutgers, 103-96 OT

Massachusetts (96)
Giles 2-6 2-2 7; Brown 3-3 0-0 6; C Robinson 0-0 0-0 0; McCoy 11-18 7-8 30; Barbee 9-21 5-5 23; Anderson 0-0 0-0 0; Williams 0-9 1-10 19; Herndon 2-3 1-2 5; K Robinson 1-2 0-0 2; Tate 2-2 0-0 4. Totals 36-64 22-28 96

Rutgers (103)
Duncan 5-18 11-13 22; Carter 1-2 5-6 7; Jones 3-4 3-4 9; Lamoureux 1-2 0-0 2; Stokes 0-0 0-0 0; Hughes 13-26 5-11 33; Smith 5-8 5-6 15; Drury 0-0 0-1 0; Lumpkin 0-0 0-0 0; Dabbs 5-11 4-7 16. Totals 33-71 33-48 103

Halftime UMass 40, Rutgers 44. Regulation UMass 40, RU 36. Overtime UMass 16, RU 23. Fouled Out Brown, Barbee, Williams, Tate, Jones, Dabbs. Rebounds UMass 36 (Herndon 6), RU 40 (Hughes 16). Assists UMass 15 (Giles 5), RU 20 (duncan 20). Total Fouls UMass 31, RU 22. Technicals Calipari (UMass coach) A - 7,484

Temple thwarts comeback bid, 55-41

Second-half charge falls short, but Hewelt sees improvement

By GREG SUKIENNIK
Collegian Staff

A few clutch baskets can spell the difference between a win and a loss in the game of basketball.

Temple University, suffering from 34 percent shooting and confronted with a resurgent second-half effort from the University of Massachusetts women's basketball team, got crucial baskets from Wendee Booher and Jane Catanzaro in the final two minutes, enabling them to defeat the Minutewomen, 55-41 on Saturday afternoon.

The Minutewomen, now 0-25 overall and 0-17 in the Atlantic-10 Conference, came storming back from a dismal first half to shoot 56.5 percent in the second half and draw within nine points of the Owls, 48-39, with two minutes left.

At that point, UMass coach Kathy Hewelt decided to let her defense try and stop the Owls instead of attempting to get the ball back by fouling and hoped Temple missed their foul shots.

"Temple is a pretty good foul-shooting team, and we felt that it was important for us to play good position defense and go for the legitimate steal rather than foul," explained Hewelt.

But UMass turned the ball over on their next possession, and Booher hit a running jumpshot with 1:20 to go. And when Catanzaro nailed a three-point goal with 0:41 left, Temple had effectively ended the game.

Hewelt added that with her team's depth problems and the personnel she had on the floor at the end of the game, UMass couldn't pressure the Owls as she would have liked to.

"In the second half, we changed our line-up and found some chemistry," she said. "But it wasn't a pressing line-up. We needed to come out and press and we were unable to do that."

The first half was a genuinely ugly display of basketball for both teams. UMass attempted a mere 13 shots from the field in the half, hit four and turned the ball over 20 times. Temple shot just as poorly as UMass did [10 for 31] and had problems getting their offense to work properly.

"I wasn't pleased at all with our offense," noted Temple coach Charlene Curtis. "I felt we did a good job defensively in the first half, but we didn't do a good job on the offensive end." Temple employed a one-three-one halfcourt trap that gave UMass fits in the first half.

"It was a pretty disasterous half for us, no question," said Hewelt. "But if you look at the turnaround, you see there is some potential on this team."

The Minutewomen stayed even with the Owls in the second half, scoring as many points [29] and handling the Owls' pressure defense better. Seven second-half points from Cherrie Muza and six from Trish Hessel complemented Keyburn McCusker's team-high 16 points and provided some scoring balance for the Minutewomen.

"I'm proud of our kids," praised Hewelt. "We turned this into a real ballgame in spite of the first half, and it's great to be in that position. It shows that we're capable of that, and that says a lot for these kids at this point of the season."

Temple, 55-41

Temple (55)
Hasenprand 2-9 3-4 7; Perry 1-4 4-5 6; Koel 4-12 4-4 12; Booher 1-1 0-1 2; Catanzaro 2-5 2-2 7; Clark 2-2 1-3 5; Rougier 0-2 2-4 2; Copeland 0-1 0-0 0; Inzano 1-2 0-0 2; Wickers 2-6 2-2 6; Morris 2-6 2-2 6. Totals 17-50 20-29 55

Massachusetts (41)
Kristofa 1-3 0-0 2; Ireland 3-5 0-0 6; McCusker 5-12 6-10 16; Valentine 0-0 0-0 0; Schuser 0-1 0-0 0; Muza 3-7 1-2 7; Nevarez 1-1 0-0 2; Moran 1-3 0-1 2; Hessel 3-4 0-0 6. Totals 17-36 7-13 41

Halftime Temple 26, Massachusetts 12. Three-point goals Catanzaro. Rebounds Temple 34 (Hasenprand, Koel 6), UMass 30 (McCusker 5). Assists Temple 12 (Catanzaro 3), UMass 11 (Muza 3). Total fouls Temple 18, UMass 22. Fouled out Perry, Ireland. A - 105

Collegian photo by Yana Dlugy

Minutewoman Maleeka Valentine drive to the basket against Temple Saturday. The team was within 10 points of the Owls with two minutes remaining in the game, but came up short, losing 55-41.

Collegian photo by Yana Dlugy

Although the still rings was not the gymnastic team's strongest performance, the Minutemen outshined both Army and Air Force this Saturday at Boyden scoring 266.5 points.

Men's gymnastics turns service academies red

By MICHAEL MORRISSEY
Collegian Correspondent

In the most thrilling meet of the year, the University of Massachusetts men's gymnastics team rose to their own high expectations and defeated two of the United States service academies Saturday, scoring 266.5 points. Army placed second with 264.9 and Air Force scored 259.15.

UMass (4-3) hit almost every routine in what could only be described as a perfect team victory. The Minutemen won three events outright and tied for the lead in the floor exercise.

Sophomore Steve Christensen led the way for UMass, finishing first in the all-around competition with a score of 54.4. Christensen's rings (9.5) and pommel horse (9.6) routines carried UMass early and set the tone for what was to come.

The big test for the Minutemen was the horse, which has been the weakest event for the team this year.

The team took the event with a score of 43.65, as co-captain Mitch Hall explained: "We knew horse was the event we had to hit. We really concentrated on it hard, and it worked out. Everyone just raised it a level."

The Minutemen went neck and neck with Army down to the final event, the high bar. Army kept close with team spirit and a solid all-around by Pat Dominigue.

"When we went into the final event leading by point one [.10], we were just pumped," Hall said.

UMass finished strong, as freshman Joe Haran placed first (9.3) and finished with an all-around score of 54.1.

Glenn Stubbs and Mitch Hall followed suit by placing third (9.0) and fourth (9.05) in the high bar.

UMass won the vault with superb routines by freshman Jason Braud (9.35) and senior Dave DiNucci (9.25) who placed first and second.

"This is definitely our best meet to date. Absolutely," DiNucci said. "Everybody hit, pretty much, and we did a hell of a job."

"We're gonna enjoy this victory and we're gonna use it in practice to help us go against Syracuse [next Saturday]," Johnson said.

Largest College Daily in New England

THE MASSACHUSETTS DAILY COLLEGIAN Established in 1890

VOLUME C TUESDAY, FEBRUARY 26, 1991 ISSUE 89

Bush reacts to report of Iraqi withdrawal

White House reacts coldly to troop withdrawal proposal; Fitzwater claims there's been no official contact with U.N.

Compiled from AP wire reports

The White House reacted icily yesterday to a Baghdad radio dispatch that Saddam Hussein had ordered his troops to withdraw from Kuwait. "The war goes on," President Bush's spokesman declared.

White House press secretary Marlin Fitzwater said, "We've heard the radio reports. There's been no contact with our government. No authoritative contact with the U.N. that we're aware of, so that really we don't consider there being anything to respond to."

One senior military officer in the Pentagon derided the Baghdad report and said, "They want us to pause. They want us to stop." The official, who demanded anonymity, noted that the report came just a short time after a Scud launch into Dhahran killed at least a dozen U.S. servicemen.

Over the last 48 hours, the administration has hardened its war aims, expressing a desire not only to drive Iraq out of Kuwait but also to break Saddam's military machine and undermine his rule.

The administration appeared intent on making Saddam bow to every U.S. demand before considering a halt to the war. Bush had insisted that any Iraqi withdrawal be completed within a week and that Saddam's willingness to withdraw must be expressed "publicly and authoritatively" to the United Nations.

Saddam's order, in line with a Soviet peace plan, was announced as his troops were being pummeled on the battlefield and were surrendering by the thousands.

A Soviet plan last week was rejected by Washington, but the Soviets yesterday presented undisclosed new proposals at a closed U.N. meeting in New York. The Soviets had said Iraq should complete a pullout within three weeks; the allies had said it should be done within a week.

The broadcast interrupted regular programming at 1:35 a.m. Baghdad local time (5:35 p.m. EST) to announce the development, 48 hours after the allies had launched a massive ground offensive to liberate Kuwait.

It said Foreign Minister Tariq Aziz has conveyed this decision to the Soviet leadership, but did not say how the contact was made.

"The (Iraqi) leadership had stressed its acceptance to withdraw in accordance with U.N. Security Council resolution 660 when it agreed to the Soviet peace proposal," the Iraqi announcement said.

"In compliance with this decision, orders were issued to the armed forces for an organized withdrawal to the positions in which they were before the first of August 1990," the radio said, quoting an official spokesman, whom it did not identify.

No specific date for a withdrawal was given.

National security advisor Brent Scowcroft called Bush with news of the Baghdad radio report while the president was playing racquetball on Capitol Hill in the House gymnasium. Bush returned to the White House, going directly to the living quarters rather than to the Oval Office.

U.S. officials said there were "flurries of speculation" during the day that the Soviets might present a reworked version of their peace initiative at the United Nations, but a Monday afternoon session ended with no concrete results.

The report of the withdrawal order came as the coalition was marking remarkable success in its ground assault to oust Iraqi occupiers from Kuwait. Bush called Gen. Norman Schwarzkopf, the Desert Storm commander, to praise the early battleground victories.

President Bush said earlier that allied forces were advancing decisively against Iraqi forces. "The news is good," Bush said of the battlefield successes.

Desert Storm forces yesterday smashed scores of Iraqi tanks and scooped up thousands more prisoners, the U.S. command reported. Military officials said American units were having "tremendous success" in their first battle with the tough Republican Guard.

Before the deadly Scud attack, the command reported U.S. losses so far as "extremely light." It also reported the loss of four U.S aircraft, three of whose pilots were rescued.

The command said 18,000 Iraqi troops were taken prisoner in the first two days of the all-out ground offensive to free Kuwait of Iraq's control.

Marines and U.S. paratroopers tightened their grip around Kuwait City. But one U.S. official said "it's going to be a while" before the Americans or allied Arab troops fight house to house to retake the capital.

Saudi commander Lt. Gen. Khalid bin Sultan said the Iraqis continued a reported terror campaign of "rape, murder and torture" in the city, and warned they would be "held responsible before an international court."

In bomb-battered Baghdad, military communiques claimed unbroken triumphs for Iraq's troops.

The ruling party's newspaper urged Iraqi soldiers to "strike with all your force to salvage the nation from the abyss of slavery."

The Desert Storm offensive was launched early Sunday along a 300-mile front stretching from the Persian Gulf coast deep into the western desert.

Under cover of fighter bombers, columns of tanks and troops from the United States, Saudi Arabia, France, Britain and seven other nations rumbled across the Saudi border, kicking up billowing clouds of dust as they rolled up mile after mile of Iraqi-held territory.

The unfolding strategy appeared aimed at pinning down the Iraqis in Kuwait City with marines and Saudi and Kuwaiti forces, while sending powerful allied armored forces through Iraq to loop around Kuwait's western borders and confront the Republican Guard units dug in along its norther frontier.

U.S. airborne troops leapfrogged by helicopter at least 50 miles into Iraq on Sunday to establish a forward support base. Military sources said Army units had punched more than 70 miles into Iraq.

AP photo

A member of the U.S. Marines Second Division guards an Iraqi prisoner captured in Kuwait Sunday on the first day of the ground war.

Man collapses at Boyden Gym

By MARK HENSLEY
Collegian Staff

Richard J. Roger, 35, of Mattapan, collapsed and died Sunday night after playing a pick-up basketball game at Boyden Gym, University police said.

Roger died of an apparent heart attack and probably had a heart condition for several weeks, Springfield medical examiner Dr. Loren Mednick said. Mednick said there were no signs of drug use and he added that Roger's death was of natural causes.

Roger apparently had no affiliation with UMass and police said he was visiting a friend in Amherst.

University police arrived at the scene at 5:49 p.m. and were assisted by the Amherst Fire Department personnel. Roger was taken to Cooley Dickinson hospital in Northampton and was pronounced dead at 6:35 p.m. by Dr. Donald Rogers.

State employees face 'deferred salary plan'

By MARK HENSLEY
Collegian Staff

Amid outrage and frustration among state employees and politicians, the Massachusetts House will debate today a series of budget-cutting proposals including a deferred salary plan for state employees.

The proposal calls for state employees to work up to 10 days this year but receive payment for these days only when they retire or stop working for the state.

The plan, which is seen by many as an improvement over Gov. Weld's original plan to furlough all state employees, is still receiving heavy criticism from state employees and politicians.

Massachusetts Society of Professors President John Cole called the proposal a "breach of faith and possibly illegal."

Cole said the MSP, which is still reeling from the state's refusal to fund negotiated pay raises for the faculty and librarian union, is lobbying heavily against the proposal.

Sara Lennox, a professor in the Germananic Language and Literature Department and the chairperson of the Social Thought and Political Economy major at the University of Massachusetts said if the deferred payment plan is instituted, many professors she has spoken to say they will refuse to work.

"If they don't pay us, we don't work," she said.

Lennox said many faculty members feel if the state can't pay them now and hasn't been able to give them a raise in the last three years, there is no reason to believe that they would be paid in the future.

"It's hard for me to believe that we're ever going to see that money again," she said.

Lennox said it is unfair for state employees to shoulder the burden of a statewide problem and added it would have serious implications for students.

"Their courses won't be completed," she said. "That's a terrible thing for the state to do to both the employees and students of state universities in the middle of the semester."

Among other proposals being debated today is one which calls for state employees to pay 25 percent instead of 10 percent of their health insurance costs.

This proposal, combined with the deferment plan and the lack of raises for faculty in the last three years, is seen by faculty members as one more way in which the state is reducing their real income, Lennox said.

Representative Stanley Rosenberg (D-Amherst) has proposed selling "special-issue-mini-bonds" in place of the deferment plan and said if the state is forced to borrow it should borrow enough to pay state employees their full salaries for this year.

INSIDE:

TUESDAY, FEBRUARY 26, 1991
Page 3:
UMass professor offers expert advice to students interested in law school: apply early.
Page 5:
On Women's Issues page, Maggie Magner decries pornography.
Page 12:
Men's swimming wins fifth consecutive New England Championship title.

WEATHER

Flurries this morning, giving way to fair skies this afternoon. High near 30.

THE MASSACHUSETTS
DAILY COLLEGIAN

New England's largest college daily newspaper. Circulation: 19,000. Published every weekday during the calendar semester. The Massachusetts Daily Collegian is a Registered Student Organization of the University of Massachusetts

113 Campus Center, Amherst, MA, 01003
Phone (413) 545-3500 FAX (413) 545-1592

STAFF

Editor in Chief ..... Terry Starmer
Managing Editor ..... Jody Cabin
Editorial Editor ..... Jeremy Levinson
News Editor ..... Gayle Long
Sports Editor ..... Adrien Matt
Arts Editor ..... Danielle Dowling
Photography Editor ..... K.A. Burke
Black Affairs Editor ..... Sandra Sutton
Women's Issues Editors ..... Risa Kells, Monique Tabon
Multicultural Affairs Editor ..... Alexander Nguyen
Third World Affairs Editor ..... Pratip Dastidar
Lesbian, Bisexual, Gay Issues Editor ..... Trystan Skeigh
Business Manager ..... Susan George
Advertising Manager ..... Dave Kelnick
Finance Manager ..... Beth Patterson
Circulation Manager ..... Jim Winterbottom
Subscriptions Manager ..... Stacey Rogers
Promotions Manager ..... Marc Pruskin
Production Manager ..... Nicole Dumas
Day Graphics Manager ..... Jenn Burns

PROFESSIONAL STAFF

Business ..... Brian Harrington, Lori Black, Maureen Majewski
Graphics ..... Rory Evans

TODAY'S STAFF

Night Editor ..... Sam Silverstein
Copy Editor ..... Jody Cabin
Layout Technician ..... Rick Seto
Photo Technician ..... K.A. Burke
Production Supervisor ..... Rick Seto
Typesetter ..... Beth Clark
Production ..... Tania Ivanv, Meg Trudell, Paul Specht, Sam Silverstein

For Your Information

MONDAY, FEBRUARY 25

Meeting — The first meeting of Omicron Delta Epsilon, the economics honor society, will be at 6 p.m. in Machmer E-16. All are welcome.

Meeting — Clean Water Action is sponsoring a general meeting at 7 p.m. on 98 Main St. in Northampton.

Lecture — The School of Management's Production and Operations Management Program will sponsor the appearance of Vaugh Beals, the chairman of Harley-Davidson Motorcycle Company at 7:30 p.m. in the Student Union Ballroom.

Math Anxiety Workshop — Conducted in Lederle Graduate Research Tower 1634 from 4:30 p.m. - 6 p.m.

Speaker — Author Leonard Fein will lecture at the Neilson Library at Smith College at 4:15 p.m. and at Amherst College's Octogon Buiding in the Babbot Room at 8 p.m.

TUESDAY, FEBRUARY 26

Meeting — A meeting of the Black/Jewish Coalition, for Movie Night, will be in New Africa House at 7 p.m.

Brown Bag Discussion — Sponsored by Counseling and Advising for Older Students. Bring lunch to discuss problems with the changes in learning in Machmer E-21.

Peace Action Meeting — Sponsored by the Committee on the Middle East will meet at Bangs Community Center in Amherst at 7:30 p.m.

WEDNESDAY, FEBRUARY 27

Brown Bag Lunch Series — "Multiculturalism: A German Perspective" in Campus Center 904-908 at 12:15 p.m. Sponsored by the Women's Studies Department

Time Management Workshop — "The Time of Your Life," a video and presentation workshop from Phi Beta Sigma in 803 CC at 7 p.m.

Information Meeting — The National Student Exchange will hold an information from 4 p.m. - 5 p.m. in CC 803.

Judge dismisses students' suit against Harvard Law School

CAMBRIDGE (AP) — A judge has dismissed a suit filed by Harvard Law School students charging that the college had failed to hire minorities, women and homosexuals to tenured faculty positions.

In a ruling issued yesterday, Middlesex Superior Court Judge Patrick Brady upheld the school's argument that under state law, people who can bring suits for employment discrimination are employees, or rejected employees or would-be employees who were deterred.

Brady said the student group, as an unincorporated association, could not be a party to a lawsuit.

Law school students, in a suit filed Nov. 20, 1990, charged that the University had for years excluded women and minorities. The students, who formed a group called the Harvard Coalition for Civil Rights, alleged that the resulting lack of diversity harmed their education

Harvard had filed a motion to dismiss the suit Feb. 11. School officials said the students painted an inaccurate picture of the law school's recent hiring history, and were not in a position to bring the suit.

The law school has 61 tenured professors, including three Black males.

According to the student coalition, about 8 percent of the law school's 65 tenured and tenure-track faculty are women, compared with a 23.7 percent average at law schools around the country approved by the American Bar Association.

But while Harvard currently has five female professors, 10 of the 55 faculty members hired in the last 20 years have been women, according to University officials.

Of the 26 professors hired in the last 10 years, four of them, or 15 percent, have been Black, the school said.

College Pizza
Spring Special
Small Cheese Pizza $3.50
Large Chees Pizza $5.99
2 Toppings $1.00 extra
549-6098
Must mention this ad
no coupons with the special

RÉSUMÉS
CopyCat Print Shop
• Great Service • Great Prices
228 Triangle St./Amherst 549-3840

Union Program Council and the Duke Ellington Committee Present:
AN EVENING OF JAZZ WITH
BRANFORD MARSALIS
(recently seen with Sting & the Grateful Dead)
THURS. FEB. 28
at 8 pm
in the UMass Fine Art Center
TIX available at the box office
$9 UMass students, $12 Others
charge at 545-2511

This Is No Way To Take Your LSAT.

If you've set your sights on law school, there's no better LSAT preparation than Stanley H. Kaplan.

Our LSAT prep will open your eyes with score-raising strategies and techniques. We'll help you master everything from Analytical Reasoning to Reading Comprehension.

Our classes are live – and lively. All our class and study material is based on the "new" LSAT. And you can review lessons, and get additional help as needed in our TEST-N-TAPE® lab, open days, evenings and weekends for your convenience.

Visit our Center today and see for yourself.
And watch the scales tip in your favor.

STANLEY H. KAPLAN
Take Kaplan Or Take Your Chances

Free Information Seminar
March 5 7:00pm
RSVP 549-5780
358 N. Pleasant Street
Amherst, MA 01002

LOCAL

The ups and downs of making motorcycles

Collegian photo by Jeff Holland
Vaughn Beals

By MIKE LINSKEY
Collegian Correspondent

"I haven't been this busy in months . . .I'm supposed to be retired, although some prefer to say I'm unemployed," said Vaughn Beals, Chairman of Harley-Davidson Motorcycle Company in a light moment during a speech about the success of his company before a full Student Union Ballroom last night.

Beals can afford to joke now, but his outlook was not nearly so jovial a mere six years ago.

In 1985 the Harley-Davidson Motorcycle Company was in shambles, losing customers and profits to Honda, its major Japanese competitor, and flirting with bankruptcy as a result of considerable fiscal mismanagement.

Beals, though, took the reins of the company and successfully persuaded the International Trade Commission to give Harley-Davidson tariff relief from Japanese competitors, who were essentially selling high-quality Harley-Davidson clones for 50 percent less than their American rivals.

The Japanese eventually found ways around the tariff, but Beals said its passage "gave Harley-Davidson some much needed psychological aid."

The most important factor in Harley Davidson's turnaround was "realizing the problem was with us. . .not the Japanese," Beals said. "All parts of a company must function well and together. It takes complete, irrevocable management commitment to succeed."

By maintaining a "close to the customer" philosophy, overseeing the complete modernization and redesigning of his company's product line, and borrowing three business programs successfully instituted by Japanese rivals, Beals soon reversed the company's woeful fiscal trends.

Implementing a system called the "materials as needed" approach — where warehouse space and money are saved by building merchandise as it is ordered rather than overstocking — Beals watched inventory fall by 75 percent in only three years. Beals allowed worker input into shop-floor decision making "because the front-line workers know more about what has to be done than management ever could," and provided workers with statistical training to better monitor their own work quality.

As a result, productivity rose by 50 percent and warranty claims decreased some 70 percent by 1988.

Harley-Davidson's profits are up in essentially every area, Beals said, and its owners now look forward to success throughout the nineties and beyond. By remaining loyal to its customer base — and by improving its overall business performance — Harley-Davidson has risen from the depths of near fiscal disaster to re-establish itself as one of the premier motorcycle companies in both America and the world.

Index tackles censorship creatively

By HEIDI McCANN
Collegian Correspondent

Editors of the yearbook at the University of Massachusetts, have chosen an unusual approach to the sensitive issue of censorship in one focus of the 1990-91 Index.

Two pages will include four or five photographs of art, cited in the past as obscene, such as Michaelangelo's "David" and the Mapplethorpe works.

Accompanying these controversial and previously censored images will be both a note from the staff and stickers allowing the reader to censor as they wish.

Index Managing Editor Kristin Bruno said the editors chose this subject since censorship was a big issue in the past year both nationally and internationally.

"We're not in the business of glamourizing," she said. "This is an attempt to show both the good and the bad of the year."

Feedback from students in response to the feature has been "overall positive" said Bruno, although she admits some see it "as a gimmick."

Bruno said that the Index staff is "in the business of news" and coverage of this issue comes in light of controversies of the past year such as the arrest of the rap act 2 Live Crew and funding for the National Endowment for the Arts.

So far Bruno has not encountered red tape involving the concept, and the Index's publishing company, Walsworth, has given the green light.

Bruno said the yearbook picked the idea for the focus from the Associated Collegiate Press/College Media Advisors Journalism Convention held in Washington, D.C., which Index editors attended last November. She said the convention's theme was anti-censorship and the First Amendment.

Prospective law students: apply early

By PRESTON P. FORMAN
Collegian Staff

Like gangster Al Capone's plea to the electorate "to vote early and vote often," K. Dori McCracken recommends much the same advice to prospective law school students.

McCracken, the University's pre-law advisor, said starting the process of applying to law school early is one of the foremost suggestions she gives to the 400 or so University of Massachusetts students and graduates who visit her every year.

"Students who come in early their junior year we can help out a lot more [than students who are rushing to complete applications]," said McCracken, who has been the advisor for 12 years. "Too many come in their senior year when all they want to know is 'Where can I get in?'"

She said students interested in pursuing of law should register with the Pre-law Advising Office and speak with her early in their undergraduate careers. She said although there is no prescribed undergraduate course of study for the field, a strong background in writing and analyzing skills prepares students well for the rigors of law school.

In addition to taking a broad range of liberal arts courses, McCracken also recommends students take accounting courses, which are highly valued by law schools.

After getting a base in the liberal arts, students should sometime their junior year begin to research potential law schools using books such as The Official Guide to U.S. Law Schools, which is available in her

CONTINUED ON PAGE 4

SGA Senators fight for public higher ed.

By AMY HENRY
Collegian Staff

University of Massachusetts Student Government Association Senators stressed the need for access to quality public higher education to members of the House and Senate yesterday morning at the Statehouse.

Commuter Area Senator Ken Parker, project coordinator for the Statehouse Action Project, said, "I feel we have a pretty good core of people who support higher education and hopefully we can draw in more supporters to this group."

If Gov. Weld's plan to change grants into loans and have sliding tuition is ratified, students of a lower economic status would be prevented from attending public institutions of higher education, according to a proposal to "rescue" higher education submitted by the Statehouse Action Project.

Student Senators proposed a "guaranteed student access" plan that would set up separate financial aid accounts to insure access to all students.

To insure quality, SGA Senators proposed pay cuts for public employees and closing one or two state colleges in geographically dense areas.

Restructuring options discussed included giving campuses autonomy, shifting authority away from the Board of Regents, having Board of Trustee representatives named at individual campuses and not appointed by the governor, and authorizing student governments to investigate waste in their campus administrations.

Parker said he and other Senators are preparing a four-part plan to help students address budget cuts and the future of higher education. The plan will include presentations to State legislators, one-on-one meetings between students and legislators representing their town, and a mail and phone lobbying campaign.

All interested students in this project should call the Student Government Association office at 545-0341.

Collegian photo by Jeff Holland
BACK TO THE BARN — Stockbridge students lead Marietta from the Agricultural Fair in the Campus Center Auditorium yesterday.

$225 worth of liquor, beer stolen

Compiled by MARK HENSLEY
Collegian Staff

Beer and whiskey valued at $225 was discovered stolen Saturday morning from the Faculty Club in Stockbridge House in what police officials said was the second break-in there in six months.

Police, who are still investigating, said a rear window had been broken and 10 bottles of liquor and two six-packs of beer had been stolen.

Arrests

- Christopher Billington, 20, of Amherst and Steven Petrillo, 21, of Lawrence were arrested early Saturday morning for allegedly being disorderly after UMass police assisted Amherst Police with a fight in progress near the center of town.
- Alex Bruce Macdonald, 56, of Amherst was arrested early Saturday morning for allegedly operating under the influence of alcohol and was cited for failing to stay within marked lanes.
- Matthew H. Guidera, 20, of Amherst was arrested early Saturday morning for alleged disorderly and annoying behavior.
- Jeffrey A. Kurash, 20, of Wakefield and Kevin Dussault, 19, of Wakefield were arrested Saturday night for allegedly being minors in possession of alcohol.
- Steven M. Rothbard, 21, of Clark, N.J., was arrested early Sunday morning for allegedly operating under the influence of alcohol.

Vandalism

- A man kicked in a glass door in the lobby of Field residence hall Friday night. He was identified by Student Security from a sign-in sheet, was located by police, and agreed to pay for the window.

■ law school

CONTINUED FROM PAGE 3

office. The book describes the almost 180 law schools in the country and also suggests other books that give insight into the activities of the typical attorney.

"This is important especially for underclassmen because it tells the student what it's like to be a lawyer," she said. "Too many have this 'L.A. Law' attitude about the profession."

Last year, 454 University students applied to law schools and 272 students received one or more acceptances; a 60 percent acceptance rate, which is slightly above the national average, McCracken said.

"The competition is very keen and applications to law schools are increasing every year," she said. "People who don't get in anywhere either have a profile that didn't fit with the schools in which they applied or they applied to a school way out of their league."

McCracken said students should apply to eight law schools: two schools which seem to out of reach, four schools with criteria which are similar to your own and two "just for love." By "spreading" applications over the spectrum, students better their chances for acceptance letters, she said.

And the dreaded LSAT? "If you have no difficulties with standardized exams and you are disciplined then you probably don't need a law preparation course like Kaplan's," she said. "If you suffer from test anxiety or you know you won't study for the exam, then it's perhaps worth the $700 course to you."

Above all, start the process early, she said. "Even if you later decide not to go to law school, it's not wasted time because the skills necessary for a legal career will help you in any job."

Collegian photo by Jeff Holland

CUED UP – Senior geology major George Stevens lines up a shot at the Student Union game room last night.

Amherst Fire Dept.
is now recruiting for
VOLUNTEER FIRE FIGHTERS

Join the student force
Engine Company 3
Gain Valuable Experience
Serve your Community

For information see our table in the Campus Center Concourse
call 256-4080

Largest College Daily in New England

THE MASSACHUSETTS Established in 1890

DAILY COLLEGIAN

113 Campus Center

CORRESPONDENTS MEETING
Thursday, February 28
6:00 p.m.
IN THE NEWSROOM
All correspondents must attend.

Coping With Our Feelings About The War

by:
Lynn Bechtel and Kent Pocy,
Mental Health,
University Health Services

Fran Deats,
Employee Assistance Program
University Health Services

All of us--faculty, staff, and students--are touched in some way by the war in the Persian Gulf. Many people have friends and relatives who are serving in the Armed Forces in the Gulf or who are on active alert as reservists. Many of us wonder if a draft could be reinstated. Some of us have family and friends who reside in the Middle East. For some, the Middle East is home. Since most news reports are accompanied by statements about censorship from both sides, none of us has a clear sense of what's going on and no one knows what's going to happen next. While some of us hold strong opinions in favor of or opposed to the war, many of us aren't sure how to think about our involvement and our opinions change from moment to moment based on the latest uncertain news. Whether we think being at war is good or bad, it is a big deal, and most of us experience a wide and sometimes painful range of feelings about the war. We might feel anxiety and fear. Sometimes we'll feel sad. Or we might experience confusion, helplessness and anger.

It's crucial for our individual and community health that we find ways to address and cope with our feelings. The first step in coping is recognizing that these feelings exist and that they're a normal response to a very high stress situation. Beyond that each of you will, of course, find your own ways to cope, but here are some suggestions:

1. Find safe people to talk with about your feelings, but do talk about it.

2. Find a balance between watching the news all the time and constantly discussing the war, and completely avoiding all news and discussion.

3. Find some way to take action. This can range from writing letters to people in the Gulf, to speaking out in a public way or to taking political action of some kind.

4. If you speak out about the war try to do so with respect for differing opinions. As tension about the war increases, the tolerance for opposing views seems to decrease which then creates even greater tension. Remember that violence begets violence.

5. Nourish friendships and community.

If feelings about the war become greatly distressing or overwhelming, you may want to talk with a professional counselor.

The Mental Health Division of UHS provides short-term individual counseling for students and Kaiser members whose site is UHS. For information or to make an appointment call 545-2337 between 8 - 5 weekdays. For problems requiring immediate attention there is an Urgent Care Clinic, Monday-Friday from 1 - 3 pm at 127 Hills North.

The Employee Assistance Program provides brief individual counseling and support for all University faculty and staff as well as referrals to other community supports and resources. For more information or to make an appointment call 545-0350.

ATTENTION!!

Student Applications are now being accepted for the Commission Student Governance. Pick up and return applications to the receptionist in 420 Student Union Building by Friday, March 1st at 4:00p.m. Any and all undergraduates are encouraged to apply.

Criteria:
1) Applicants should be aware that this will be a significant time commitment through May 1st.
2) Applicants should be commited to the task of restructuring undergraduate student governance.
3) Applicants should come in with an open mind, innovative ideas, and a willingness to listen.

EDITORIAL/OPINION

The opinions on this page are those of the individual writer or cartoonist and do not necessarily reflect the views of the Collegian or the University unless otherwise noted.

The war against free press goes on

Meredith O'Brien

Every day on page two of the Boston Globe there is a little gray box in the lower left-hand corner. It reads: "Press restrictions imposed by the U.S.-led military command in Saudi Arabia require journalists to work under military escort and to submit their reports to military censors."

Whenever CNN or another network broadcasts footage from the Gulf, there's a disclaimer at the bottom of the screen saying, "Cleared by the U.S. [Saudi, Israel or Iraqi] military."

When Today show anchorperson Faith Daniels was talking live via telephone to an NBC correspondent stationed in Saudi Arabia recently, she asked him if a military censor was standing next him. (His report had been given rather stiffly.) He said, "Yes."

Since the war started, dozens of journalists working on asssignments have been detained by the military, in some instances, detained even after producing their press credentials. A Time magazine photographer was held by U.S. military police in Saudi Arabia for more than 30 hours, after he was blindfolded, searched and asked to name the governor of New York.

Saturday night, after President Bush made his extremely brief statement as to why the United States so stupidly dashed a chance at peace to rush into a ground war that will cost hundreds of unnecessary deaths, Secretary of Defense Dick Cheney announced the suspension of press briefings "until further notice."

(The very next day Desert Storm Commander General H. Norman Schwarzkopf, and other military briefers gave the press information on the ground war, though even less than was given during the air war.)

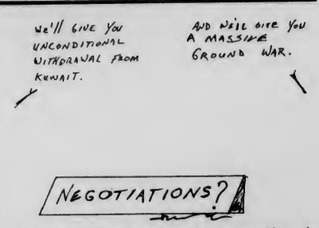
But that was it. No more real info – a virtual press black-out.

The Persian Gulf war has now moved into another, more deadly phase of ground fighting. But we really won't find out what is really happening, we won't know the real story, maybe until it's all over, when it's too late to do anything about it.

The military claims it has to restrict the press for reasons of "national security." They claim that without restrictions the media would run rampant and disclose all kinds of information – including the locations of U.S. troops in combat, their progress and their military strategy, with the media taking every U.S. military secret they could find and handing it over to Iraqi President Saddam Hussein on a silver, bullet-proof platter.

Members of that arrogant group of so-called professionals, they say, need a leash. Reporters and photographers shouldn't be allowed to roam around and find stories without military escorts, the government proclaims. For if the press were allowed to find their own stories, who knows what they could say?

Does the Bush administration honestly believe that journalists would willingly disclose information that would endanger the lives of Americans in combat? Did uninhibited press access to combat raids during the Vietnam War cost American lives? Or is there something we're not supposed to know, tactics or targets the military has selected that could possibly be objectionable to the public that could turn the tide of public opinion over toward the peace protesters?



Even though our country is at war, martial law was never declared. Never was it announced that the civil rights of Americans, including the media, had been suspended until further notice.

Why aren't more people up in arms about this? Why aren't the people protesting for an end to the Gulf war protesting the limitations placed upon the media to provide them with accurate and uncensored news reports?

We are in the dark. We really have no idea what is going on over there. The government is asking us to trust them and their propaganda, while disregarding Iraqi government statements.

If we are, as Bush so often spews, truly fighting for freedom over there in the desert, why is one of our most integral freedoms being trampled?

Meredith O'Brien is a Collegian columnist.

Levey died for peace, could have lived for it

I am shocked and disgusted at your recent editorial condoning and even honoring the self-immolation of Gregory Levey.

There is no telling what kind of good a dedicated person like Levey could have done had he decided to band together with others to spend a lifetime working for peace. He chose to die for peace instead of living for it. How can you accept public suicide as a substitute for long-term activism?

From the articles in your paper, I have learned that Levey was an intelligent and honorable man who sincerely believed his death could improve the world. This does not change my opinion. Levey's death was a foolish and unnecessary act.

Mark Daly
Hampshire College

Self-immolation a true act of sacrifice

Gregory Levey's tragic self-immolation has provoked a variety of responses. One of these is the denial of the effect his act had on his purpose: what he did was unimportant to his cause, peace. He could have acted otherwise and produced "better" results.

Levey's act was that of a courageous supreme sacrifice, a painful suicide, as a demonstration of protest against violence and for peace. This is one of the most intense forms of protest imaginable.

A sign at the vigil, at the site of his statement, bears repeating: "These are many causes for which I will die, but none for which I will kill." This is pacifism at its best, doing Gregory Levey honor, and it, along with Levey's statment, is not to be trivialized or denied.

Thomas Hutcheson
Northampton

Unpatriotic radicals should burn as well

I'm sure by now everyone has heard about the live inferno that recently occurred for all the world to see. I was not able to enjoy the festivities as I am taking the present semester off to take part in the Co-op program. I am writing to let UMass in on how the real world feels about this particular person's act.

Guess what. . .NOBODY CARES! To every person I have spoken to, not one person has expressed any bit of sorrow for what occurred. The general reaction is that he was a crazy idiot. The anti-war sentiment is fine and acceptable. Most people accept the minority opinion in regards to the United States stance. But if someone thinks that committing a public suicide is the way to gain support for a cause, he or she is sadly mistaken. Most people just don't care. If he had mental problems, that would be another story.

I'm sure there are going to be people that disagree with me. But no one has to die like he did. And if there are other unpatriotic, anti-American radicals who feel they must die to stand up for the anti-war sentiment, then let them all burn on the Common. . .maybe they can get paint thinner at a bulk rate.

Timothy Rondeau
Keyport Life Insurance Company

Invasion of lounge makes me very unhappy

On Wednesday, Feb. 20, the established left of the University of Massachusetts held a "Day of Education" in the Cape Cod Lounge in order to discuss the war in the Persian Gulf. The Cape Cod Lounge (CCL) is an inappropriate place to hold such a forum. For me, the CCL is a comfortable room in which I relax between classes. It's a sanctuary from the pressures of school and campus politics. It's a place to be light.

Last Wednesday, the room I feel most comfortable in was changed. It was crowded as usual, many familiar faces as well as others who had come to listen to the forum. No light conversation was acceptable. The air was heavy. I didn't want to listen to any more war rehash: Right, left, middle, whatever. Feeling uncomfortable, I left. I walked past an empty Student Union Ballroom and kept going. I was very unhappy.

Many of the people "participating" in the "Day of Education," wanted to relax and feel comfortable, but instead were forced to listen to more war. Not that the war or what people had to say was unimportant. It's just that the lounge is not the place. Any one of the empty rooms in the Campus Center would have been more appropriate. I hope that the reason that the CCL was chosen as the event's site wasn't born from a fear of low attendance.

Michael Hazzard
Northampton

Don't make a hero out of selfishness

After reading countless articles and editorials in countless newspapers during the last several days, I find it impossible not to respond with my own opinion. I feel that it may be somewhat more valid than most because I work at the hardware store where Greg Levey bought two gallons of paint thinner last Monday, so from the beginning I have been directly involved. I have not slept well since Monday, not because I'm upset by an unnecessary death, but because this man is being made into a hero for his actions.

An emotionally disturbed man committed suicide in downtown Amherst on Monday. He is not a hero, he is not a martyr, he was not courageous, he didn't make a sacrifice, he made a spectacle. No cause is furthered by his action, and he threw away the only life he had here. He died in a very unnecessary and selfish way and, in my opinion, did nothing more than add one more lifeless body to the accumulating count.

The fact that people are making him appear as a hero absolutely repulses me and seems to be telling the world that what he did was good. That is warped and disturbing, and I am afraid for anyone who believes that suicide is an acceptable means of making a point.

My brother is in Saudi Arabia right now and if he dies, it will be a tragedy. He may not want to be there, but at this point he will choose to defend his life rather than die thousands of miles from home. He would never commit suicide, he has a cause for which to live. I may not respect the war or its results, but I have the highest respect for my brother and the rest of the troops there.

It is much more effective to live for a cause than to die for one, especially at your own hand.

Thomas Fons
Amherst

'Civility' is phony

I must take issue with the Feb. 21 letter to the Collegian that urged those who debate about the war in the Persian Gulf to practice, "civility."

Although the writers are no doubt well-intentioned, the term serves to cloud the brutality in which our country is currently engaged. We witness on CNN, for example, British generals, appearing to be the epitome of "civility" and politeness, speaking with refined, impeccable, upper-class diction about the human lives they destroy as they bomb bunkers. Meanwhile, human flesh burns in the center of Amherst, concretely reminding us of the 20,000 Iraqi people reported killed, and the future victims of chemical warfare for whom the U.S. hospitals are preparing with a sense of inevitability.

Under these circumstances, perhaps it is in fact "uncivil" to mute our protest with civility. Certainly, we must retain basic human dignity as we discuss these political issues, but a posture of "civility" can be a cruel and hypocritical gesture in the face of the anti-human behavior of those who wage this war.

Ellen McCracken
Department of Comparative Literature

Wrong message sent

On February 18, 1991 a man immolated himself on Amherst Town Common. Some are calling him a hero, and some are calling him a martyr. They say he gave his life for peace. I say he was a selfish man who took his life for no good reason. The men and women in the Gulf do not want to die. Everyday they wake up wondering if they will make it to sunset. This man knew when and where he was going to die, he took no risks. The taking of his life benefited no one.

The fact that he chose to make a public spectacle of his violent death does not make him a hero, but shows that he was emotionally unstable. The only heroes in this war are our brave soldiers.

I am sure I speak for everyone when I say we want the soldiers to come home, but they are doing an important job and I, at least, will support them 100 percent. I wear a yellow ribbon to remind myself and others of the soldiers everyday while we safely proceed through our everyday lives. We, at home, have no idea what they are going through each day. So to dress up in camouflage, splatter yourself with blood and pretend to be a dead soldier is nothing less than an insult to the men and women in our military forces.

I ask all the anti-war demonstrators, "Can you not find any better way to show that you want the troops home, than to condone public suicide?"

On Thursday, Feb. 21, 1991, a group of anti-war protesters blocked off traffic on Route 9 in Amherst. Does preventing decent, hard-working people from getting to and from work aid in expediting the return of the soldiers? Does preventing buses from carrying students, who depend on them for transportation to and from school, bring the soldiers home any quicker? I do not know about you, but I came to this University to study and learn, not to make a nuisance of myself to the people who live here. So, to the anti-war protesters, if you think you are getting a message across to the people of Amherst, it may not be the one you expected.

Donna Sanford
Amherst

Undergrads enlighten students on environment issues

By KATHRYN CRAWFORD
Collegian Correspondent

Two University undergraduates are sharing their enthusiasm for the environment by teaching "Recycling Education," an environmental studies seminar covering issues from global politics to personal energy conservation.

Kathleen Osowski, a senior political science and environmental studies major, and Jim McCombe, a senior education major with a concentration in environmental education, are instructing this course as the conclusion of their education at the University of Massachusetts.

Originally developed by Sherill Baldwin, director of the Housing Services Residential Recycling Program, this three-credit course has been offered for four semesters through the School of Education.

Osowksi and McCombe, under the supervision of faculty sponsors, have developed their own curriculum involving field trips, guest speakers, individual projects and assigned readings.

For field trips, the class will visit the Northampton landfill and the University's waste water treatment facility in Hadley, where it will see state-of-the-art disposal of wet and dry waste. The class also plans to visit Springfield's MERF plant, where both the University and the Town of Amherst process recyclables.

Osowski and McCombe have invited several interest groups and companies active in environmental issues to speak to the class.

UMass' Environmental Health and Safety Department will talk about the treatment of hazardous waste on campus.

A representative of Plastics Again, in Leominster, will discuss recycling Styrofoam. Clean Water Action will talk about environmentally-friendly consumerism.

As part of the Recycling Program, students are responsible for recording, weighing and bagging accumulated newspapers and recyclable waste in the residence halls and the municipal plant once a week.

Students are also encouraged to do a final project targeting local environmental abuses such as the use of styrofoam plates and cups at the Newman Center. Other projects range from convincing the University to use recycled paper in the hundreds of copy machines on campus to devising a means of composting food waste in the DCs.

Trash Trivia

"Did you know," asked McCombe, dumping a garbage bag full of trash over the floor during class, "that the average person produces three to four pounds of trash a day? That UMass generates 12 PVTA buses full of trash daily? That the United States can fill the Houston Astrodome twice a day with the garbage it produces?"

These numbers have been increasing dramatically in the last 15 years because of the increase of convenience packaging, said McCombe.

Using hand-drawn posters, McCombe demonstrated that in 1960, Americans produced 2.65 pounds of trash per day, and 3.58 pounds in 1986.

McCombe said that residents of New York City, "representatives of America's Throwaway Society," produced an estimated five pounds of trash per day in 1990. Approximately 60 percent of that garbage is packaging.

With increased awareness of environmentally safe shopping and careful recycling and composting, the problem could be reduced by 85-90 percent, Osowski said.

Osowski and McCombe led an animated discussion on "The Three R's Solution"— Reduce, Re-Use, and Recycle or compost — and how people on a local level can help alleviate the global problem.

Students from communities all over the United States and international locations described in class how their hometowns were or were not promoting recycling and energy conservation projects.

"Did you know that 1.6 billion ball-point pens and 2 billion disposable razors are thrown out each year? Or did you know that enough steel is disposed of in a year to completely rebuild Manhattan?" asked McCombe.

This seminar is no easy A. The assigned book is The Recycler's handbook; Simple Things You Can Do, by The Earth Works Group. With homework assignments, a mid-term and a final, weekly "runs" and the final project, Osowski and McCombe's students work hard to make a difference.

"We had to turn away people who wanted to take the class," said Osowski, reflecting on the obvious need on campus and in the community for more environmental education.

"I took the class because it is socially and environmentally relevant," said junior Peter King. "I've always been interested in recycling," said freshaman French major Elizabeth Roberts. "I wanted to help out."

Environmental Facilitators

Osowski became interested in teaching students about environmental issues her sophomore year while she was involved with TEAMS, teaching English as a second language to junior high students from Cambodia and Laos.

In an independent study her junior year, she talked to school systems here in the Valley and in her hometown of Wilmington, Del., about different ways of presenting environmental issues to children. She talked to more than 2,000 students in Wilmington about global warming, acid rain, the rain forests and the importance of recycling. Last semester she taught a one-credit colloquium with McCombe called "One Person's Impact."

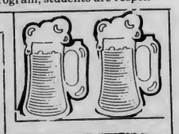
Osowski plans to keep teaching environmental studies at other universities or school systems for the next couple of years after graduation. She plans ultimately to be an environmental lawyer.

McCombe began actively pursuing his interest in environmental issues his junior year when he became involved in the Recycing Program. He was offered a position as educational coordinator for the program, and did an independent study teaching a one-hour workshop in the dorms on recycling. After a summer as the nature director at a camp in southern Massachusetts for homeless and foster kids, he began teaching "One Person's Impact" with Osowski.

"With all those problems out there, Kathleen and I got together and decided to do something about them. . .I don't think of myself as a teacher, but as a facilitator," he said.

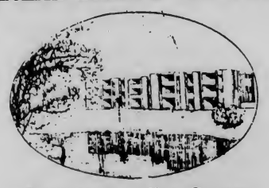
McCombe plans to continue his interest in environmental education and nature appreciation for children after he graduates. Ultimately, he would like to work with school systems, helping schools implement environmental studies into the curriculum.

FREE 1991 Student Travel Catalog!
Everything you need to know about:
• Student Travel
• Air Fares
• Rail Passes
• Car Rental/Leasing
• Work Abroad
• Study Abroad
• Int'l Student & Teacher ID
& MUCH MORE!!!
CALL for your FREE copy!
Council Travel
79 So. Pleasant St.
Amherst
413-256-1261



Now's the time to call...
North Amherst Motors
79 Old Sunderland Rd., No. Amherst
549-2880
Expert Repairs and Reconditioning
Most Major Credit Cards Accepted

FREE RENT OPTION



Brandywine offers Country Living with convenience
• On UMass Bus Route • Nearby Shopping • Situated on well landscaped acres with pond.
• One and two bedroom apartments include fully equipped kitchen and wall to wall carpeting.
• Swimming pool, laundry facilities, responsive management.
• Stop and we'll show you what we have to offer.
• Affordable rents include gas, utilities (heat, hot water and stove).
BRANDYWINE AT AMHERST
16 Brandywine Drive, Amherst
Rental Office Open Daily 10-4
Limited Time Offer – 549-0600

COMEDY NIGHT
featuring
AL DUCHARME performed at Comedy Connection, Catch a Rising Star & Stitches also appearing
STEVE HURLEY
Tuesday Feb. 26
9:00 pm
$1.00 cover
and at 7:30
Shep Richard's Band

Rock & Roll with
THE MANY
Thurs., Feb. 28th
9:00 P.M.

JAZZ
March 3
Monday
Jeff Holmes
Jazz for a Monday Evening
8:30 pm

the hatch
GROUND FLOOR/STUDENT UNION

WOMEN'S ISSUES

Whose freedom of speech?

Women who act or speak out against the brutality of the pornography industry are constantly getting bad press. We've been called "Nazis," "anti-sex," and most commonly "pro-censorship." Nothing could be further from the truth. The "truth" is that the public and the media have not been listening to what anti-porn activists are saying, promoting and proposing. Many women advocate the implementation of a Civil Rights ordinance such as the one drafted by Andrea Dworkin and Katherine McKinnon. Under this ordinance women can file a suit against pornographers that demonstrates the way in which a specific piece of pornography has violated her freedom of speech, choice, right to privacy, etc. Are you listening? There is no Prior Restraint. There is no censorship. Each specific piece is viewed, evaluated and judged on an individual basis.

Middle-class women view pornography as Playboy's "College Campus" issue and have a Smith College student speak for all women in saying that she was treated well. The majority of pornography is not at all like that Playboy spread but are, in fact, brutal rapes, maiming, bondage and murder all in the name of kinky lust.

Herein lies yet another myth, the notion that the majority of pornography out there is soft-porn, and can't be that harmful. Granted, Playboy has to regulate its material to appease its advertisers. Playboy is also losing money. More and more men are turning to the more violent, hard-core porn as their sex-translated-to-violence appetites increase. The evidence is there, its simply being ignored. Is it any wonder that we don't hear about this in Newsweek or Time magazine — their distributing company is owned by pornocrats. The studies have been done, they're simply being suppressed. Is it any wonder we don't question the effects of pornography — the U.S. government is the number one producer of pornography. This is what gets "our boys"in the mood to kill while overseas, and you had better believe that Desert Storm is also being fought with the weapon of our bodies, our humiliation and pain being exploited to invoke "fighting spirit" in our troops. . .and it's not the Playboy "College Campus" issue that they're showing.

Women who fight against pornography are fighting for their voice, their freedom, their speech. The Civil Rights Ordinance is not censorship (can we all say it together now — NO PRIOR RESTRAINT). We expect to get trashed and threatened by the porn-loving pigs of this community, but not by so-called "liberal" men and especially by other women. A recent popular trend in pornography seems to be a practice in which a woman is abducted, raped and videotaped — the tape being sold to pornographers. This could be you — be careful, pornography hurts us all.

Maggie Magner is a UMass student. This article is the opinion of the writer and does not necessarily reflect the views of the Collegian staff.

Margaret Magner

The Freedom of Speech is not written in the Constitution as an "active" freedom. It states what people cannot do, what Congress cannot do, ways we cannot restrict others' speech or freedom of expression. So for people who have a voice, they must be allowed to sound it. White, heterosexual men have a voice. Women are silent. People of color are silent. The assumption made by the (Great White) Founding Fathers of our nation was that everyone would have a voice, or at least everyone who should have one, already did. Women must create that right for themselves because the Freedom of Speech only applies to those who have speech, it clearly does not offer expression for those who are silenced by racism, poverty, patriarchy and homophobia.

Another myth about the anti-porn activist is that it is an issue concerning only White, middle-class women. Women of color are targets of pornocrats — lynchings, foot-binding and savage-taming are popular racist themes using women of color to depict the ultimate in sexual subordination.

EWC: A success story?

By RUA KELLY
Collegian Staff

Over the last few years, students at UMass have become de-sensitized to the cold reality of budget cuts. We have stood in longer lines for classes, paid more money every semester, and accepted that we must "grin and bear it." However, there came a time during the fall of 1990 when women on this campus could not be silent any more. The Everywoman's Center, UMass' facility for women in crisis with a national reputation, was disproportionately cut by Vice-Chancellor Dennis Madson. One-quarter of its budget was sliced, cutting more "frilly" positions such as publicity and outreach as well as the crucial counseling service. This 25 percent cut was administered despite the fact that Madson only had to cut his budget by 4.7 percent.

The Everywoman's Center had always offered support groups and individual counseling on issues such as bulimia and anorexia, incest, or coming out as a lesbian or bisexual — all offered through the counseling program. In addition, it provided "short-term personal and couples counseling, referrals to private therapists and counseling call-in hours." When this service was eliminated by Madson, undergraduate and graduate women organized a high-publicity campaign asking for the counseling program to be restored. It was unsuccessful — but the goal was not forgotten by the Center.

Since the budget crisis began, Everywoman's Center has increasingly relied on outside funding from private individuals, government grants and fundraising events. This campaign blossomed with the media coverage gained, and now the counseling position is going to be restored for the spring semester. Money came from many sources, but the most generous donation was from the other four colleges — to the tune of $10,000.

According to the head of the Center, Carol Wallace, "The Everywoman's Center has made a decision that our number one priority was counseling. [Our] Advisory Board has assisted us with the administration to get their support for working to restore this position."

Wallace noted that the support of both Dennis Madson and Joanne Vanin, the Dean of Students, was crucial.

News Analysis

Wallace attributes the success of the Center to much hard work by their staff, as well as "students this fall (who) did a lot of work in letting administration know how important counseling was.

The administration heard loud and clear that these are services students depend on and it really made a difference."

So, can we call the struggle of the Everywoman's Center a success story? For the thousands of women who depend on its services, it is certainly a victory — but a bittersweet one.

What a sad realization it is that women's survival in today's world filled with violence against them is in no way guaranteed by the government. That alternative sources of funding were available to the Everywoman's Center is exciting, but the fact that an organization as crucial as the EWC had to provide a large chunk of its own funding is disturbing. We can only be grateful that women victimized by eating disorders, rape, or battering can still get help.

An ALANA celebration

A celebration party for women of African, Latina, Asian and Native American descent took place Sunday, Feb. 24 in Van Meter's recreation room. An early evening dinner reception, the event was "organized for one night so that women of color could get together and enjoy each other's culture and enjoy each other's company," says the coordinator of the function.

To liven things up a bit, Motoko Dworkin from the department of Asian studies here at UMass, did a mime performance. Originally from Japan, Motoko performed "Self Introduction," "Caliban," and "A Mother."

When asked about "Caliban," Motoko reminisced with the audience about a story she read as a child that had inspired her performance as both an opressor and as the oppressed.

The event attracted a variety of women, including some students from the Five College area. Mount Holyoke College student Andrea Calderon, offers, "Women of color have always needed to unite, to have a space to meet and enjoy each other's company." She further adds, "This is the basis for coalition building, ideas spring out of events like this. I would like to see things like this happen more."

Mount Holyoke College student, Bina Fernandez believes,"Women of color in the valley need to get together." At the close of the event, Bina handed out flyers for a conference dedicated to "Celebration of Women of Color." The conference will take place March 1-10 1991 at Mount Holyoke College.

When asked for a final comment about the celebration as a whole, Umass senior Ramani Sripada said of the turnout, "There was lots of diversity; I think it went really well."

MONIQUE TABON

Women's Forum

Wednesday, February 27: Francine Jobatey will be speaking on "Multiculturalism — A German Perspective" in the Campus Center from 12 p.m. to 1 p.m. Sponsored by the Women's Studies Department.

Also on Wednesday: May Stevens, artist, speaks on "Whose Agenda? False Dichotomies and Uneven Ground" at Hampshire College. The event will be held in Franklin Patterson Auditorium at 7 p.m.

Friday, March 1: Deadline for applications to teach at the Free Women's School in Northampton. For more information, call 584-5164.

Wednesday, March 6: Norma Dana and Nancy Fish speak on the topic of "Welfare Mothers and Education" in the Campus Center from 12 p.m.-1 p.m. This event is part of the Women's Studies Brown Bag Lunch Series.

Thursday, March 7: Susan Day on "Women's Roles in Judaism from a Feminist Perspective" at the Hillel House Lounge, 7:30 p.m. Sponsored by Hillel.

Friday, March 8: Women's Pentagon Action presents its Annual International Women's Day Celebration at the Unitarian Society Meeting House at 220 Main Street in Northampton. Call 665-4307 or 586-9809 for more information.

Saturday, March 9: FUGAZI plays UMass to benefit Necessites/Necessidades (battered women's shelter in Northampton) as part of Violence Against Women week. Stop by the POWER office on the third floor of the Student Union for more information.

Sex trade in the Philippines

We have all heard stories about some of the restful and relaxing activities many soldiers engage in. While acknowledging that some "love relationships" form abroad, we find more which are economic in nature. This prostituting of native women is found to be acceptable by many. Some even see these women's choice to become prostitutes as part of their culture. The popular myth of the subservient Asian woman supports this thinking. However, when the beliefs about prostitution are matched with reality, the sale of sex becomes increasingly disturbing.

Renee Caruso

Prostitution is said to be the world's oldest profession. However, the logistics of this "profession" vary greatly between regions. A woman in the United States, before resorting to the sale of her body, may collect unemployment checks or other like payments. Many other countries have no such nets. One of these countries is the Philippines.

Life is wretched for many men and women in the Philippines. However, it is harder for women to obtain both an education and a regular job. For many women in the Philippines, prostitution is the only way to gain enough income to survive. Thus, these women are slaves to a social and economic system. This system is one which the United States has helped to create and sustain. After many years of domination, the United States finally gave the Philippines their freedom. However, the presence of the United States is still most surely felt. Remaining on the archipelego are six U.S. military bases. The largest of these are Subic Naval Base and Clark Air Base. And as often happens, the thousands of soldiers housed on and around these bases provide a strong demand for prostitution. In Olongapo City, the R&R headquarters for the Subic Naval Base, there are an estimated 7,000 prostitutes who work the city's 500 bars nightclubs and hotels. Birth control is often not in use. Within this dynamic, many women bear Amerasian children, one per day in Olongapo. Having little or no money, women are forced to abandon their children, in the hope that they will be recovered. Often times the children who are picked up are sold into labor, or into prostitution themselves, at a rate of $250 per child. Some prostitutes are as young as seven-years-old. There are 3,000 such street children in Olongapo City alone.

Other problems have also arisen due to the Military Bases' link with the sex trade. In a Federal Report it was shown that AIDS arrived to the Philippines through the bases. Though the percentage of people tested HIV positive doubles every six months, clinics around the bases refuse to care for those infected. Such necessary health care is also not taken care of by the government of the Philippines. Though the government receives $450 million in "aid" (or rent) from the United States, the United States dictates the allocation of this money. Consequently, $400 million of it goes into the upkeep of the bases. The remaining $50 million goes towards infrastructure (roads, etc.) surrounding them. In the end, there is no money left for basic human needs.

Though the situation is dire, 150 women's groups have united under one heading to battle this oppression. They call themselves the Gabriela Network and are fighting for the removal of all U.S. Bases from the Philippines. Like soldiers everywhere, they are fighting for their lives.

To find out more about women's struggles in the Philippines, contact;

The GABRIELA Network
P.O. Box 343, New York, NY 10018

Renee Caruso is a UMass student. This article is the opinion of the writer and does not necessarily reflect the views of the Collegian staff.

The Women's Issues Page needs an army of women to cover the issues and events concerning women on this campus and the Five College Area. Anyone who wants to write, come down to the Collegian, CC 113 (the basement) and talk to Monique or Rua.

ARTS & LIVING

Exuberance and energy abound in Really Rosie

By DANIEL JOKELSON
Collegian Correspondent

Really Rosie
Smith College
Saturday, Feb. 23

Imagine a lazy, warmer-than-it-should-be-'cause-it's-February kind of afternoon, you're inside a bright white chapel jammed with four to seven-year-olds and their glaring moms and dads, surrounded by clotheslines with laundry, when suddenly there's this spunky little girl with a black boa and her shlumpy pals singing, dancing and basically exploding all over the pulpit. This was the scene I was surrounded by Saturday afternoon as Maurice Sendak's Really Rosie burst onto the stage at the Helen Hills Chapel in Northampton for a three-performance run last weekend.

Really Rosie is a musical with the script and lyrics by Sendak and music by Carol King, and it first came out in the 70s as an animated movie. It is the story of a slightly vain but sweet young girl, Rosie, who with her brother Chicken Soup and their neighborhood friends — Kathy, Alligator, Johnny, Pierre and others — go through the process of "filming" a movie. The real focus, though, of the musical is on the kids, their view of the world, which is an infinitely joyful and vibrant one.

Rosie is the "director," who throughout the course of the play (about a day) tries to keep her friends' attention by luring them with dreams of Hollywood stardom and with juicy plots that they can all help become realities by acting in them. The play includes "screen tests" done by some of the kids that come from Maurice Sendak's Nutshell Library, including Chicken Soup With Rice, Pierre, One Was Johnny and Alligators All Around, interspersed with shrieks from their Brooklyn Jewish mothers, interjections of "I don't care!!" from a sulky Pierre (a terrific performance by Kelsey Flynn), tidbits of useless knowledge from the nerdy Johnny (well acted by Katy Smith) and the continuous shouts, stunts, cries and cheers from the whole gang. The play finishes with an incredible finale, "Chicken Soup With Rice," which culminates an hour of amazing energy and creativity pretty perfectly.

Probably the most wonderful and hard-to-believe aspect of this production was the ability of the actors, all Smith College first and second year students, to create an atmosphere of eight-year-old pals. I mean, these women became kids. Their faces contorted to all extremes and they really went with the current of their emotions. I along with the rest of the audience, was captivated by their innocence, emotions, expressions, and how much fun they were having. I didn't think about the fact that women were playing boys, or that Rosie (a strong performance by Alexandra Ornitz) was just a little tall for a 10-year-old. Christy DeRoche, an audience member, said, "I didn't realize until I looked at the program partway into it that the actors surrounding Rosie were college students."

"I loved it — it was great! It was better than Cats!!" said Mark Federman, a UMass junior who plans to teach and write children's literature after college.

It was the ensemble that gave Really Rosie its energetic, kid-like feel. Every cast member participated in creating the situations in songs like "The Ballad of Chicken Soup" and "Screaming and Yelling," with

CONTINUED ON PAGE 10

Connells to provide pop at Pearl Street

By ANDREW BROADHEAD
Collegian Staff

With The Connells in town tonight, true fans of romantic guitar pop should have no doubts about where to spend the evening. When this North Carolina combo takes the stage at Pearl Street, in support of their fourth album One Simple Word, the guitars will jangle and the introspective lyrics will flow.

Released late last fall, the Hugh Jones-produced album has been on the Rockpool and CMJ album charts for 14 weeks. It's an eclectic collection of songs of all sorts. There are wistful rockers like "Stone Cold Yesterday" and "One Simple Word" but there are also melancholic ballads like the aching "Waiting My Turn."

CONTINUED ON PAGE 10

Photo courtesy TVT

The Connells will appear at Pearl Street tonight.

DELANO'S

57 North Pleasant Street
Tuesday Night's Taco Night 9-???
Wednesday Night is Liz Taylor Lookalike Night, Free Buffalo Wings 9-???
$50 gift certificate to winner
All free to Delano's customers only
LIVE! The 4 Plays 50s and 60s music Starting March 2
Every Sunday! 9-???

FREE FREE

Drink of the Week
Captain Morgan & Coke $2.00
Shooter of the Week
Jagermeister $2.50
Beer of the Month
60 oz. Miller, Miller Lite $4.50
Miller Genuine, and Rolling Rock Pitchers

All-Star Doorman Pat "The Poser" Southwick Fri. and Sat. Nights

IT'S NOT TOO LATE!

MENTAL HEALTH DIVISION GROUPS
SPRING 1991

Joining a group at Mental Health Services may be one of the best decisions you make this semester. Groups give you the opportunity to discuss your concerns with other people who confront the same difficulties.

The following groups are currently accepting members:

TUESDAY
Decision-Making for Problem Drinkers	1:00 - 2:30 pm
Bi-sexual Support Group	2:00 - 3:30 pm
Advanced ACOA Group (Unstructured)	3:00 - 4:30 pm
Exploring Lesbian, Gay, Bi-sexual Identities	7:00 - 8:30 pm
WEDNESDAY
ACOA (Structured)	9:00 -10:30 am
Self-Exploration Group (Short-term Personal Growth)	3:30 - 5:00 pm
THURSDAY
Women In Transition (Over 25, in process of separation/divorce)	12:45 - 2:15 pm
Chronic Medical Illness Support Group	3:30 - 5:00 pm

All groups require a pre-group interview, which gives you a chance to ask some questions and figure out if the group will be helpful. For information, or to schedule an appointment, call 545-2337. Groups begin early to mid-March, so call soon.

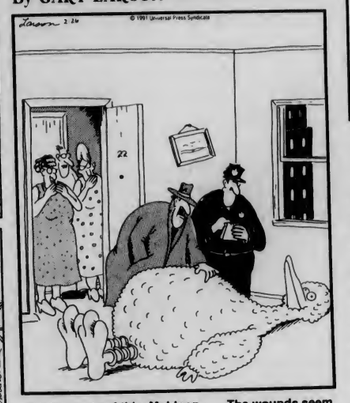
DOONESBURY
By GARRY TRUDEAU

GOOD MORNING. I'M STILL MAJOR R. "BUZZ" FOGG UNTIL FURTHER NOTICE. TODAY WE'RE ACTIVATING THE PRESS POOL FOR SECTOR J.
THE BUS WILL BE LEAVING OUT FRONT AT 1900 HOURS...
MAJOR, WILL WE HAVE ACCESS THIS TIME TO ACTUAL CASUALTIES? YOUR PEOPLE HAVE REALLY BEEN HIDING THE BODY BAGS.
RICK, THE REASON YOU CAN'T EYE-BALL BODY BAGS IS THAT WE NO LONGER DESIGNATE THEM AS SUCH. THE TERM IS INOPERATIVE.
I SEE. WELL, WHAT DO YOU CALL THEM NOW?
UM... HUMAN REMAINS POUCHES.
SUGARCOATING IT, EH, MAJOR? DON'T YOU THINK THAT'S INSULTING THE PUBLIC'S INTELLIGENCE?

THE FAR SIDE
By GARY LARSON



"Make a note of this, Muldoon. . . . The wounds seem to be caused by bird shot . . . big bird shot."

CALVIN AND HOBBES
By BILL WATTERSON

I KEEP TWO MAGNUMS IN MY DESK. ONE'S A GUN AND I KEEP IT LOADED. THE OTHER'S A BOTTLE AND IT KEEPS ME LOADED. I'M TRACER BULLET. I'M A PROFESSIONAL SNOOP.
IT'S A TOUGH JOB, BUT THEN, I'M A TOUGH GUY. SOME PEOPLE DON'T LIKE AN AUDIENCE WHEN THEY WORK. ENOUGH OF THEM HAVE TOLD ME SO WITH BLUNT INSTRUMENTS THAT I'M A PHRENOLOGIST'S DREAM COME TRUE.
SNOOPING PAYS THE BILLS, THOUGH. ESPECIALLY BILL, MY BOOKIE, AND BILL, MY PROBATION OFFICER.
SO WHEN A TALL BRUNETTE OPENED MY DOOR WITH A CASE FOR ME, MY HEART DID A FEW CALISTHENICS AND I TOOK THE JOB.

TANGELO PIE
By TIM SNIFFEN

Hi, I'm Gabe, from your Psych class. You know, we have that test Friday, + maybe it would help if we studied together.
I dunno... two males, spending time alone? Rumors could start. I don't think— wait, I do have an idea—
WHAM!
Now we're bonded.
...what was that for?

FROTTER
By GARRY PORTER

WHAT'S THIS?! WHAT HAPPENED TO THE ESCAPE, TO THE REVOLUTION?
THE RESEARCHERS MADE A FEW CONFESSIONS... YEAH, PIZZA EVERY FRIDAY. HERE'S CAR IN THE WATER AND THAT WILL GET HIS BRAIN BACK WHEN THEY'RE DONE WITH IT.
I CAN'T BELIEVE YOU'RE SELLING OUT! WHERE'S YOUR SELF-RESPECT?
IT'S NOT SO BAD HERE...
BESIDES, FROM WHAT WE'VE HEARD IT'S A JUNGLE OUT THERE.

SNOOKY LANSON
By E. VEZINA & R. SHAUGHNESSY

I CAN'T DO IT! I CAN'T STEAL THIS FOOD FOR FERLIN
FOOD STORAGE
IT JUST WOULDN'T BE RIGHT!
I WON'T COMPROMISE MY MORAL STANDARDS BECAUSE OF A STUPID THREAT.
SNOOKY'S CALORIE CLUB RECORD COLLECTION
I'LL GO BACK! I'LL GO BACK!

QUOTE OF THE DAY

"If Wade Boggs were hitting ahead of Wade Boggs, Wade Boggs would have 30 home runs."
— Wade Boggs

DAILY CROSSWORD PUZZLE
Edited By TRUDE MICHEL JAFFE

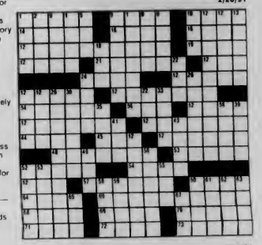
ACROSS
1 Sweetener
6 Quarrel
10 Foot part
14 Phantom's haunt?
15 Napoleonic isle
16 Rocky Mt. state
17 Warning to the unlistened, with 66 Across
19 Collar for a scholar
20 Poker pot
21 In the chair
23 GI's entertaining friend
24 Use a wheelbarrow
25 Case or class starter
27 Strong fiber
31 Coastal refuge
34 Combat zones
36 Life force: Abbr.
37 Lady Chaplin
40 Exteriors
42 Snared
44 Chem. compound
45 Mod speech or sound
47 Make bundles
48 Mid-length story
51 Firth of Clyde isle
52 Club for a golfer
54 "— — at an index": Goldsmith
56 She, objectively
57 Ancient harp
60 Turner
64 Toward the mouth
66 See 17 Across
68 Tire anagram
69 Gen. Robert
70 Have a yen for
71 Villainous visage
72 Marquis de —
73 Where the Alamo stands

DOWN
1 Pop
2 "Once — a time..."
3 Swell bloke
4 Comic Johnson
5 Joplin opus
6 Cuts
7 Folded
8 Adjoin
9 Kind of measure
10 Surface for Gretzky
11 Cause of comment at 17 Across
12 Shut
13 Give homage
18 "A rose — rose..."
22 Batman and Robin, e.g.
24 Dressed
26 Fitting
27 Ump's call
28 Neighbor of Turkey
29 See 11 Down
30 Likeness
32 6-legged carpenter
33 Golf goals
35 Withered
38 Leningrad's river
39 Yemen's capital
41 Memorable Maglie
43 Fictional whaler
46 Cursed
49 Ex-G.I.
50 Renée of silents
52 Fingerprint feature
53 Peculiarly strange
55 Also
58 Kinds of breads
59 SE Kansas city
60 Old Greek instrument
61 Trojan War hero
62 Exploding star
63 Lincoln at 14
65 — Alte
67 Play section

ANSWER TO PREVIOUS PUZZLE:

S	C	A	L	E		B	R	A	I		E	R	G	O
H	A	M	A	S		B	O	L	S		E	R	M	A
A	D	A	M	S		A	T	O	M		A	L	I	A
G	I	B	E	R		S	H	E	E	P	I	S	H
					A	N	K	E		M	A	R	I	E
B	O	Y	S	C	O	U	T		L	A	S
I	R	A	T	E		G	R	A	T	E		A	G	O
D	A	L	E		P	O	E	R	T		P	L	O	T
E	N	D			D	U	E		A	L	I	B	I
		C	O	O		D	O	G	M	A	T	I	C
S	A	S	H	A	T	S		W	O	O	D
C	A	T	A	C	L	Y	S	M		U	T	E	R
U	R	I	S		N	O	A	H		N	A	I	V	E
B	O	N	E		C	R	E	E		T	I	R	E	S
A	N	T	S		Y	E	L	L		S	N	O	R	T

2/26/91



©1991 Los Angeles Times Syndicate 2/26/91

MENU
Sorry, no menu

YOUR DAILY HOROSCOPE
By JEANE DIXON

ARIES (March 21-April 19): Domestic affairs may test your patience. Chose your words carefully, especially in conversations with those in authority. Handle routine matters yourself. A parent-child relationship improves.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20): Your special talents will be praised and rewarded today. Rely on high technology to save yourself time and effort. Home life could become complicated later this afternoon.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20): Keep an appointment with your doctor of dentist. Neglecting your health would be a big mistake! Your dedication to your work attracts favorable notice from someone influential.

CANCER (June 21-July 22): Be more specific when dealing with facts and figures. Carelessness could cause financial hardship. Your popularity increases when a member of the opposite sex seeks you out.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22): Refrain from making casual promises you will not want to keep. A family member's mood improves, reducing domestic tension. You're able to cut through some government red tape. Reward loyal subordinates.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22): Your energy level may be lower than usual. Avoid scattering your forces. A family quarrel can be resolved if you control you temper. Rely on your sense of humor!

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22): Postpone making any major financial moves. A pet can be a joy if you provide good care. Think twice before allowing unforeseen events to change your long-term plans. Family ties are strengthened.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21): Guard your financial resources. Unrewarding projects can be eliminated if you are willing to change your routine. A desire to travel grows stronger. The time is not right. Wait a little while longer.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21): Young parents need more time alone. The cost of a reliable babysitter is a good investment. A neighbor or friend may ignore your advice. Keep in touch with the folks at home.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19): Your associates may be unwilling to endorse your ideas. Play a waiting game. Romance holds great promise. Admitting that a problem exists could remove an obstacle to your love relationship.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18): You may be asked to write something today. Do not try too hard to sound witty. The mail is likely to bring good news. Take better care of your health; eat rather lightly.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20): A good day to mend some emotional fences. Careful handling of mutual funds could lead to higher profits. Avoid contacting someone from your past while in a nostalgic mood. Share secrets with loved ones.

Not one of Woody Allen's best films, but still good

By DAN LEARY
Collegian Correspondent

In Woody Allen's latest film, Alice, Mia Farrow plays the title role as a woman who exchanged her youthful dreams for the stability and security of a husband. Now, after 16 years of marriage, Alice's unfulfilled dreams return to haunt her in the form of back pain. She goes to an acupuncturist, a Dr. Yang, who prescribes for her a number of herbal remedies that have magical results designed to help Alice overcome her affliction.

Film Review

The film deals with basic human conflict of active versus passive existence in life. In order to reach self-fulfillment a person must undergo emotional and physical hardship which amounts to taking chances and leaving oneself open to failure.

Alice's mother, a failed actress, stressed the necessity of having a stable husband and not to take risks. So Alice followed her mother's advice and married into a world of wealth and a safe and easy path through life. Through her combined experiences with Dr. Yang and a lover, played by Joe Mantegna, Alice comes to recognize her spiritual needs for a life of substance and action.

In her last meeting with Yang, Alice confesses her fear in embarking on a new less stable life and momentarily longs for her secure happy life. Dr. Yang explains to her that her former life had only "the illusion of happiness" and upon closer inspection she found herself to be unfulfilled and therefore unhappy.

Woody Allen borrows elements from Alice's Adventures in Wonderland to authenticate this modern day fairy tale. The first time Dr. Yang appears he's waddling across his office checking his watch in a manner that it is suggestive of the White Rabbit.

Yang's herbal prescriptions take the place of the "eat me" and "drink me" charms from the original tale but still retain the same magical effects.

As well as providing many of the movie's funniest moments the herbs allow Alice to become invisible, communicate with Muses, and summon the spirit of her former boyfriend played brilliantly by Alec Baldwin.

In one of the best scenes in the movie, Alice dreams that she and her sister walk through time back in to their childhood. This is a sequence that Allen has used in other films such as Annie Hall and Crimes and Misdemeanors whereby instead of thinking about a scene in the past, a character will physically enter the past and either watch the scene in progress or converse with the people of the past. The great thing about these sequences is that they give the audience a clear and honest idea of what the character thinks about the memory. In Alice this scene shows the schism between the sisters; Alice, in her naivety, idolizes her parents seeing them as a naval hero and a movie star, and her sister, a crushing realist, sees them as phony and boring. Revealing as the scene was, it didn't explain enough of Alice's relationship with her mother.

Alice contains a handful of wonderful performances including William Hurt's, who in his usual dullness plays Mia Farrow's aloof and patronizing husband. Joe Mantegna gives an equally strong performance as Alice's lover whose first appearance marks the beginning of her spiritual change.

Although Alice may not be among the best of Woody Allen's films, it is still a great movie. This is a movie that you can watch from start to finish and never find yourself distracted by any poor acting or lapses in the story. The spell Alice casts is a captivating one. See this movie. Or don't, and lead a hollow life.

■ The Connells

CONTINUED FROM PAGE 8

The album builds on the solid reputation established by their previous albums. 1986 saw the release of their debut album Darker Days, 1987's Boylan Heights enhanced what Trouser Press called, "A fragile, vaguely Celtic, melodic sense." Their watershed album Fun and Games, stayed in college radio top 10 charts for a long while in 1989.

The Connells were formed by guitarist and bassist brothers Mike and David Connell in 1984. With Peele Wimberly on drums and Doug MacMillan on lead vocals, the band started gigging in the Carolinas area. George Huntley joined in on guitar and keyboards as the band began to firmly establish itself as a prominent band in the South.

With each album their fan base has slowly spread across the country. A U.K. release on Elvis Costello's Demon Records assured them of popular acceptance in England. Each recording session has seen them working with a different prominent producer.

Smithereens/R.E.M. producer Don Dixon helped make Darker Days a driving folk-pop delight. Let's Active frontman Mitch Easter saw them on their first U.S. tour and eagerly offered to produce Boylan Heights, garnering praise from such mainstream press as Rolling Stone and Musician. Gary Smith (Pixies/Throwing Muses) produced their third album, Fun and Games, which was critically and popularly praised.

The Connells are a charming thinking man's pop band that combine words and melodies to moving effect. It promises to be a neat show.

■ Really Rosie

CONTINUED FROM PAGE 8

hand motions, gestures and vociferous reactions to the turn of events in each song, and the leads, all strong and consistently boiling over with spirit, still blended in easily.

The leads were Ornitz, Flynn, Smith, Gael Levin as the exuberant, hopeful Alligator, Charlotte Fuller as Rosie's "secretary" and the vampire's wife in the coming attractions for Rosie's flick, and Gabriel Flynn as Rosie's kicked out little brother Chicken Soup who's disappearance is the source of Rosie's creative screenplay.

By the time the show ended, with Chicken Soup covered in tinsel, wearing a soup bowl hat, surrounded by shouting kids and the joyful piano playing of Sharon Choffman, we were all back in our own childhood neighborhoods.

Photo courtesy UMass Department of Music and Dance

Salvatore Macchia will perform tonight with the New England Camerata at 8 p.m. in Bezanson Hall, UMass.

Pearl Street
THE CONNELLS
The Vestrymen
Tuesday, February 26
8:00pm 18+
Advance Tix available at Pearl St.
For the Record in Amherst,
Strawberries Record Stores,
Ticketron (800) 382-8080
10 PEARL ST. NORTHAMPTON, MA

GLOBAL TICKET EXCHANGE
(413) 747-9922
INXS 2/26 Hartford | STING 3/8 Hartford
PAUL SIMON 3/6 Hartford
GRATEFUL DEAD Albany 3/23-25
RED SOX — BRUINS — WHALERS & CELTIC tickets.
All concerts — sports & theater tickets
1605 Main St. Springfield • (413) 747-9922
04223/0002

Working around the clock tonight? Discover Kinko's.
For most of us, there just aren't enough hours in a 9 to 5 day to get some of our important projects done on time. And that's why we're open 24 hours. Every day. So no matter when you need a helping hand and a friendly face, you'll find them at Kinko's.
3¢ Late Night Copies!
Come into Kinko's between 10p.m. and 6a.m. and get great service and great copies. Just 3¢ each for single sided, self serve 8½ x 11" black & white copies on 20 lb. white bond. Good at listed location through 6/30/91. One coupon per customer. Not valid with any other offer.
Open 24 Hours*
253-2543
220 N. Pleasant St.
(Across from Carriage Shops)
*Closed Sat. midnight - Sun. noon
kinko's the copy center

FREE POOL
Tuesday Night Ladies Night Your choice of tables
ALL DAY EVERYDAY
21 and over
ROLLING ROCK BOTTLES $1.75
• 9ft. Championship Tables
• Six Large Screen TVs with your favorite sports action
• Full Bar
• Drafts in ice cold mugs
• 25 cent hot dogs
• Pizza and burritos
• Full appetizer menu
• Weekly giveaways
• Great for couples
CASH PRIZES Pool Tournament Thursday Nights 7:30
Open:
Mon-Sat Noon-1am Sun 1pm-1am
MICHAEL'S
Billiard Room
And Sports Bar
Rt. 9, Amherst, 256-8284
(Next to Hunan Garden)

DID YOU KNOW...
...That Comprehensive Dental Services Are Available to You Through the University Health Services?
Examinations and consultations are covered by your health fee.
Routine dental care, including cosmetic bonding and root canals, is available at reasonable rates.
Convenient On Campus Location
Ground Floor of University Health Services
uhs
For Appointments or Questions Call: 545-2400
Monday - Friday 8:00 AM - 5:00 PM

Collegian photo by Carrie Wyeth

QUICK TURNS PAID OFF — Junior Marci Blacker placed 28th out of 66 with a time of :41.72 and first among UMass female skiers at the NCAA's Eastern Championship this weekend. The team took the Eastern College Ski Conference title last weekend, bettering Boston University and Plymouth State.

■ men's swimming

CONTINUED FROM PAGE 12

tribute to the sophomore class.

"The only way you can win is by having 17 or 18 swimmers go and place," he said in reference to qualifying swimmers for higher competition. "Its just a showing of the tremendous depth that we've got."

Next on the agenda is the Eastern Seaboard conference meet in Princeton, N.J. on Thursday. UMass has qualified in the 100 and 200 back as well as the 800 free relay.

Darwin throws in Red Sox bullpen

By DAVE O'HARA
The Associated Press

WINTER HAVEN, Fla. (AP) — At 35, right-hander Danny Darwin is beginning a new chapter in a major league career that started with the Texas Rangers in 1978.

"Here I am, back in the American League," Darwin said yesterday after his first workout with the Boston Red Sox.

Darwin, who missed the first two workouts as he honored a Little League commitment in Houston, threw from the bullpen mound for about 10 minutes, quickly proving that he's on par or ahead of other pitchers.

"He was impressive," manager Joe Morgan said. "He must have thrown 40 straight strikes, keeping the ball down both on the inside and down and out. That's what pitching is all about."

"I've been working out in Houston and I'm anxious to get going here," said Darwin, who led the NL with a 2.21 ERA in 1990. "I feel that for the first time I'm on a team with a chance to go to the World Series, and I want to do my share."

Darwin earned a steady job with Texas during the 1979 season and spent the next five years with the Rangers.

Traded to Milwaukee, he was with the Brewers less than two years before being dealt to Houston on Aug. 15, 1986.

Now, after compiling a 44-33 record for the Astros, including 11-4 in each of the last two seasons, he's returning to the AL. He struck it rich in the free agency market, signing a four-year contract for a guaranteed $11.8 million.

"I'm happy to be here, but there's really not much difference pitching in the American and National leagues," he said. "The National League may have more speed, but baseball is baseball wherever it is played."

Darwin has pitched in 488 major league games — 280 in relief and 208 as a starter.

He has offered to do whatever the Red Sox want, but Morgan emphasized that Darwin is being counted upon only as a starter. He is expected to replace 17-game winner Mike Boddicker, who signed with Kansas City.

"It really doesn't make much difference to me," Darwin said. "It seems my entire career has been divided between starting and relieving except two years ago, when I pitched in 68 games without a start. I've been blessed with the type of arm that can handle either relief or starting.

"I'm ready to do whatever I'm asked. I have only one goal. All I want to do is win."

In Houston last year, Darwin made his first 31 appearances in relief, posting a 2-1 record with two saves and a 2.40 ERA.

He then became a starter and went 9-3 with a 2.14 ERA in his last 17 games.

In addition to ERA, he led the NL with a .786 winning percentage and the fewest walks (1.7) per nine innings.

■ women's gymnastics

CONTINUED FROM PAGE 12

bars and "never let up."

Mitchell said he was pleased with the way his team handled the small breaks in the competition.

"We did not let the breaks snowball," he said. "I'm very proud of them."

Marshall rocked Boyden gym as she also won the vault (9.75), bars (9.45), balance beam (9.65) and floor (9.6).

Sophomore Kim Grady also hit a personal best in the all-around with a 37.45. Grady also scored an impressive 9.3 on the vault and a 9.3 on the bars.

Mitchell said the women are "really pulling together as a team."

The team looks forward to tough competition from Springfield and Rhode Island at 7 p.m. Wednesday in Boyden.

Collegian photo by Jeff Holland

Sophomore Tammy Marshall performs an arch-over during the Northeastern-Temple meet. The women soundly defeated the schools they hosted on Sunday in Boyden.

CLASSIFIEDS

COME TO THE COLLEGIAN OFFICE—CC 113 MON — THURS 8:30-3:30 ● DEADLINE 2 DAYS PRIOR TO PUBLICATION ● CASH IN ADVANCE, 20¢/WORD/DAY FOR STUDENTS

ACTIVITIES

25 + CLUB: General meeting/social Discuss activities, elections, socialize Thursday, 2/28, Campus Center room 917, 7:30pm. Dues $3 to vota

BENEFIT:
For Necessities/Nacassidades
FUGAZI
The Brood
Zu-Zu's Palats
TRI-PRODUCTION OF UPC POWER AMC
March 9, 7pm SUB

HUNGRY???
Sweats N More can fix that
Delicious ice cream, subs, cookies, brownies, and much more!
Open nightly -Field House

INDEX YEARBOOK General meating tonight at 6:30 CC103 New members always welcome. Call 545-0848 for info.

UMASS CHESS CLUB
7-11pm in the Bluewall (tuesdays)
All are welcome

ANNOUNCEMENTS

BED AND BREAKFAST- downtown ideal for visiting parents and friends- 549-0733

"CHI OMEGA"
Open rush is on!! Call 549-6460
Monday 2/25 - Dinner at 5pm
Tuesday 2/26 - Movies & Popcorn at 8pm
And Wednesday 2/27 - Dinner at 5pm
Come get to know the sister and pledges of CHI-O!!

FREE TEDDY BEARS!!
Just come into the Ulstore computer dept. and tell an IBM rep. give you a 5 minuts demo. (while supplies last)

ON CAMPUS FUNDRAISER
Needed: Organized and industrious fraternity, sorority, or student group to earn hundreds of dollars for an on-campus marketing project.
Call 1-800-NOW-POST

UPC MEETING TONIGHT 8:30 904 Campus Center. New members always welcome! Get involved in concert production!

ENTERTAINMENT

RACK-A-DISC is still the best for DJ's and live entertainment. Call anytime 586-9900 ask about our specials

FOR RENT

1 BEDROOM APT in Pulfton. Take over lease in March. Option to ranew. Steve 549-6203

AMHERST, 1 BEDROOM AVAILABLE IN 3 BEDROOM, NEW HOUSE ON BUS LINE, FIREPLACE, BEAUTIFUL!! AVAILABLE NOW CALL 9-4, 865-3326

AMHERST, ONE BEDROOM in a two bedroom apartment
Call now- 549-8273

EMERGENCY SITUATION! Looking for 1 person to take over my lease ASAP. $250/mos -546-7037/leave massage

HIPPEST HOUSE in the world wants housemate -Hatbed, rustic, 5 min from Noho 230+ 247-5248

STUDIO IN AMHERST $460/ w/utils Call Scott 253-0820. After 8pm

WINTER SPECIAL: 1 month rent 99 cents with one year lease
2 Bedroom- $450
3 Bedroom- $537
Sundartand, fraa bus route, laundry facilities, swimming pool, garden plots, short term lease available 665-3856

FOR SALE

5 STRING BANJO -Bluegrass style $125 247-5248

ACT NOW! 2 one way plana tickets to LA $200 for both Fly on Tues Feb. 26 -call now 549-1632

"BIANCHI BIKE"
In great condition
Color: Black
Quick release wheels, toe clips, leather seat, steel frame
$260 or Best Offer
Call
Marta
546-0923

FUTONS
Matswampe
Top quality gold bond futons
Delivery anywhere in U.S.A.
Sleep with us and save!
1-800-3FUTON!

MAC 512KE & extra drive Software $600.00/BO call 548-9334

NEED A COMPUTER? I sell PC's and Mac's. Very competitive prices. Service, and individual attention. Call Dana 546-3933

SANYO AM/FM TWO BAND STEREO Stereo integrated amplifier, semi-automatic, turn table, double-cassette deck with high speed dubbing, continuous play, synchronous dubbing, automatic level control system, counter, C.D.-outlat...GREAT STEREO!!
MUST SELL — Model GXT707
$90
Please call Theresa at 6-0923

FREE BRUNO'S PIZZA

BOOK A HOUSE/DORM party with RACKADISC and have free food -Call 585-9900 for details (limited to UMass & Amherst College)

HELP WANTED

AMUSEMENT PARKS, holiday resorts, Disneyland, 6 Flags, are hiring. Great fun and get paid too! Reserve position by calling 1-805-682-7555 Ext K-1370

CAPE SUMMER COD CAMP COED
Need enthusiastic, dedicated people to work/live with kids. Beautiful location, excellent program, competitive salaries. Loads of fun.
Call Doug/Chad at 546-2527 for more info and application

CHRISTMAS, spring break, summer travel FREE. Air couriers needed and cruise-ship jobs. Call 1-805-682-7555 ext. F-1426

EARN $300 to $500 per week reading books at home. Call 1-815-473-7440 Ext B-281

GREAT SUMMER OPPORTUNITY
Jawish co-ed residential camp seeks counselors and specialists. Capitol Camps, located in the beautiful Catoctin Mountains, one hour from Washington DC offers tennis, water sports, natuve, arts, video, gymnastics, radio, drama, journalism, etc. If you are interested in the challenges and excitement of working with campers in grades 3-10, we want you on our team. Good salaries, great fun! Our director will be at the camp fair on March 5. For more information and an appointment, call 1-800-783-2208

HELP WANTED Full or part time. Apply in person Copycat Print Shop. 228 Triangle Street Amherst

INTELLIGENCE JOBS. All branches US Customs. DEA ect. Now hiring. Call 1-805-962-8000 Ext. K-9618

PRESTIGIOUS NORTHEAST SUMMER camps naar NYC seek specialists in sports, art, theatre, dance, music, magic, circus, scienca, waterfront, horsemanship. On campus interviews 3-5-91. Call 800-869-6083 or write French Woods, P.O. Box 800, Pomona, NY 10970

INSTRUCTION

EARN CREDIT learn to Scuba Dive. Basic Classes held Monday, Tuesday, Wednesday, and Thursday 7-10PM in Curry Hicks Pool. Open Water II class held during Spring Break in Key Largo, FLA. Advanced Class held in Naw England in April. For further information call 546-8401, or drop by Curry Hicks starting 2/4/91.

LOST

DIAMOND RING & WEDDING BAND in a purse. 545-2703 eves. 253-9431

EMBROIDERED JEAN JACKET Nov90 - Bring to Campus Center Info Desk ASAP

LOST GREY BACKPACK with important documents! $Reward 546-3682

REWARD$$$
Black & gold onyx earing lost Thursday night outside, near Washington 2-21-91
Please call 548-2426
Sentimental Value!!!

SILVER CHARM. Resembles flattened nickel. Very sentimental. Please call 253-2282 -Reward

PERSONALS

DENISE "NINI" HENRY
It's your birthday and I just wanted to say - Have A Day!
Lots of love, Farles

HEY DIII
Happy 21st B-day!
Sorry we're late, but
That's normal for us!
It's time to party with the gals!
We love you. Oh sick Di
Mabin & Roni!

His name is RUSS, it isn't Guss
In the morning he runs for the bus
And if there's two people he hates, it's got-ta be us. But today is his birthday and we won't let him down. So Happy Birthday to Krusty the Clown! Love S & S

MEREDITH
Happy 20th B-day!
Have a great day
Love, --Lori, Holli, Julie,
Laura, Stacey, Julie, and Missy

ON FEBRUARY 18, 1991
A person in himself on fire
in the name of
Peace
Please think about that today

POKIE, Happy one year anniversary!
I Love You! Always, Poochie

SELINA- I can't find you. Please- anothar phona message- Tim

TO MISS K.O.W.
Happy birthday to you
Thinking of you today
And always
Love, C.B.A. of JQA

RIDE WANTED

RIDE NEEDED TO CORNELL 3/1 return UMass 3/3
Call Julia 6-8364

ROOMMATE WANTED

LG SUNNY SINGLE in beautiful Noho apt Great location 233 & Elec. 584-4078

WOMAN WANTED FOR 3-bdrm apt in Noho- 1 large bedroom, newly painted, bright place. Available now! Call Jess at 584-2750

SERVICES

PREGNANT?
Need a pregnancy test, information or support? Call for free and confidential services ALTERNATIVES 33 Main Street Northampton 586-3000 or Greenfield 774-6010

SERVICES/WORDPROCESSING

DISSERTATIONS, CASES, PAPERS.
On-campus pickup. Fast! Accurate! MacLaser, Spellcheck
Nancy 584-7924

SKI THIS SPRING BREAK!

KILLINGTON FROM $199
Park City, Utah and Breckenridge Co From $699
For info Call Jon at 549-4226

SPRING BREAK

SPRING BREAK PARTY!
Travel to Jamaica, Mexico! And Panama City FL! Concerts! Free Parties! Club discounts! And lots more! For info call Denise 546-7156

SUBLET

GREAT APARTMENT 2 mi off campus - North Amherst -Big yard, storage, perfect for two people Available now! Call 549-8027

TRAVEL

CAN'T AFFORD SPRING BREAK? Guaranteed grsat prices! Spaca available to Jamaica, Mexico and Panama City Beach, Florida (tha "new Daytona Beach")! MC/VISA are accepted! Call Cindy at 549-3538 -please leave a massage!

CARIBBEAN - $199!
The warmth of the Caribbean or Mexican coast for a week!
R/T air. SUNHITCH + m, 212-864-2000

FLORIDA'S NEWEST HOT SPOT
Panama City-$139
World's biggest beach party
Daytona Beach-$189
Call Erice or Julie- 546-7649 or Siobhan or Terri- 546-5079
March 8 deadline March 8 deadline

MONTREAL WEEKENDS $89 includes round trip motor coach 3 days 2 nights Hotel Suite Breakfast. FREE admission to Club Metropole
Reliable Tours
365 Broadway Rt 1
Lynnfield MA 01940
617-598-9930

SAVE $100 Spring break in Cancun! From Boston $379 -Call Now Jean/Kathy -253-5140

TYPING

CAMPUS PICKUP AND DELIVERY, fast-cheap- accurate work -Lisa 256-6695

RESUMES, PAPERS, anything typed or typeset Fast, professional service Affordable rates KCommunications, 256-6373

WANTED

TIMBER LAKE CAMPS -located in NY's Catskill Mountains seek General Counselors, Athletic Instructors, and WSI'S. On-campus interviews. Top salaries/travel allowance. 800-828-CAMP (9-4:30 weekdays)

SPORTS

Indoor track teams place in top 10 at New Englands

• Ambrose, Crocker finish races, endure medical complications

By DAN WETZEL
Collegian Staff

University of Massachusetts women's track coach Julie LaFreniere has "mixed feelings" over her team's performance at the New England Championships this weekend.

UMass scored 13 points finishing them 10th among 34 teams.

"It was a tough weekend for us," LaFreniere said. "I couldn't have asked for a better effort from the kids but it seemed the world was against us."

UMass was beset with bad luck from the start as star Lee Ann Ambrose, after winning the trials and being seeded first, was unable to defend her Championship in the 400-meter race because of a severe asthma problem.

"It was so bad that Lee Ann couldn't breathe," LaFreniere said. "When she ran the trial she went out fast and held her breath for the first 200 meters. She was dead at the end of the race but she wouldn't let anyone pass her. It was one of the gutsiest performances that I have ever witnessed. Lee Ann ran a 56-second 400, without being able to breathe.

"After the race we took her to the hospital and she missed the finals the next day. Now she is at home in Gardner."

Ambrose was not the only UMass athlete to receive medical care, Cathy Crocker also went to the infirmary due to a chest cold. Crocker finished seventh in the finals of the 800-meter and was sent home early by LaFreniere due to the illness.

"Cathy just wouldn't stop coughing," LaFreniere said. "She had been sick all week but you can't keep a senior out of this meet because of a cold. The coughing just got out of control."

On the bright side Mo Meldrim continued her hot streak by finishing third in the 5,000 with a time of 17:38.49. Meldrim's time is down by 1:15 from December and next week she will compete at the Eastern Collegiate Athletic Conference Championships.

"Mo was the highlight of the meet," LaFreniere said. "I was happy when she made New Englands and now I am ecstatic that she is going to ECAC's. She is very, very happy and so am I."

In the 600-yard Lennice Johnson placed fourth with a time of 1:28.27.

In the 1,000-meter defending champion Becky Johnson finished fifth with a time of 2:42.97. Johnson had been out a month with a virus.

"She ran with a lot of heart but she just didn't have the conditioning," LaFreniere said. "Missing that month has really killed her chances this season.

"The team couldn't have worked harder. We just got stuck with some hard luck or else I feel we could have finished seventh. Losing Lee Ann is devastating but we had to send her home. However, I am very proud of my team. No one was afraid to run hard."

• Men end postseason

By KEITH BENNETT
Collegian Correspondent

The University of Massachusetts men's track team finished ninth in the New England Championships this weekend at Boston University.

Northeastern University scored 125 points to edge the host Terrier's, who scored 115, for the team title. Rhode Island was third with 108 and Boston College was a distant fourth with 49.

"I had hoped for a finish somewhere between sixth and 10th place," said UMass head coach Ken O'Brien. "Although it would have been nice to have placed higher among the second five teams, I think that the kids performed very well."

Steve Brown was one of four athletes who brought home medals for UMass. He accounted for six of the Minutemen's 16 points with a third place finish in the 400-meter run with a time of 49.23 seconds.

Matt Simon, Bill Wallace, Brian King and John Raach combined to run the two-mile in 7:49.90, placing fourth.

Joe Kourafas rounded out the scoring for UMass with a fifth place in the pentathlon, scoring 3,306 points.

"Although there were four or five additional places we could have scored in, I think that the team, on the whole, performed better than they have all season," O'Brien said. "Overall, it was a real good championship meet for the team."

Swimmers, divers make waves in postseason

• Men take fifth straight championship title

By THOMAS A. GEORGE
Collegian Correspondent

The University of Massachusetts men's swimming team captured its fifth New England Championship title this weekend. The Minutemen topped the field by over 100 points in a scoring fete hosted by Rhode Island.

With a total score of 671.5, the Minutemen shot down the Boston College Eagles who placed a far second with an even 457. Also in the top five were URI with 393, Maine 331.5 and Providence College 319.5.

Numerous New England as well as UMass varsity records were shattered. Plaques bearing the name, event and time were taken down as new records were made above the pool in Boyden.

"One of the longest-standing UMass varsity records was broken, it will be good to see that one come down." said coach Russ Yarworth.

With a time of six minutes, 51.29 seconds, the 800-yard freestyle relay record fell. Swimmers Curt Sawin, Pete Reich, Joe Morris and Chris Barrett scored nicely to drive the team further ahead.

Freshman Mark Stoelting also made history in the 100 and 200 backstroke. This backstroke superstar set New England records with times of 52.01 in the 100 and 1:54.14 in the 200.

Sophomore Jay Peluso lead the team in scoring, placing first in the 200 individual medley in 1:54.04, a personal best.

He placed third and second in the 100 and 200 breast with times of 59.29 and 2:09.47, scoring 53 points, the second highest scorer in the meet.

"Jay contributed greatly to the victory," Yarworth said. "He was definitely a very important part of the meet."

Yarworth was quick to point out that most of his high scorers were sophomores.

"Truly a significant accomplishment when you consider that we graduated 13 seniors last year," he said. "It's a real

CONTINUED ON PAGE 11

• Binning, Broad break school records

By CHRIS MIRACLE
Collegian Staff

The University of Massachusetts women's swimming team finished fifth out of 34 teams at the Eastern Championships held at Princeton University this weekend

Seven swimmers from the 27-member roster qualified to compete at Easterns, and in doing so, established school records for UMass.

Kiri Binning broke her own record in the 200-yard backstroke, finishing in two minutes, 9.63 seconds.

Kim Broad bettered her time by 12 seconds, posting 17:30.18 in the 1,650 freestyle, placing 16th. Broad set her former record at the New England Championships one week earlier. She also improved her time in the 500 freestyle (5:10.0) by two seconds.

"Kim went nuts this weekend," UMass coach Bob Newcomb said. "She swam exceptionally well. Kiri also made a great effort this weekend."

Freshman Allison White proved she belonged among the best divers in the East, placing 16th in the three-meter dive. White qualified to compete at the N.C.A.A. Division I Zone A Diving Championships at Harvard Unuiversity on March 8, in the one-meter dive.

"Allison was a little intimidated at first, but she made a good effort," Newcomb said. "She's young and still learning.

"Everyone swam well, "Newcombe said."It was a big accomplishment to score out of the 34 teams. The team had an exceptional year."

White will be the only Minutewoman to continue postseason competition. UMass will be lose Binning, an exchange student from Australia (back, individual medley), Leslie Cromwell (IM, breast), Maureen Murphy (fly, free), Reimer (free), Angie Ng (fly) and Tonia Stafford (free) to graduation.

Collegian photo by Carrie Wyeth

For the fifth consecutive year, the men's swimming team returned to Amherst with the New England Championship title. The team belittled Boston College, Rhode Island, Maine and Providence College.

Gymnasts remain undefeated

By LYNN FRANKEL
Collegian Correspondent

The University of Massachusetts women's gymnastics team defeated both the Northeastern Huskies and the Temple Owls in its first tri-meet of the season to better their record to 7-1.

The team swept all events, and boasted 184.80 total points to Northeastern's 181.50 and Temple's 179.0.

Sophomore sensation Tammy Marshall broke the school record with a score of 38.45 in the all-around. The previous score stood at 38.05.

Head coach Alfie Mitchell said he was pleased with everyone's performances. Mitchell said the team was ahead after the first two events, vault and uneven parallel

CONTINUED ON PAGE 11

Sports Notice

Interested Spikers: The Certs/Trident SpikeFest '91 will be held March 9 and 10 in Boyden Gym. This single-elimination co-rec tournament is open to registered UMass undergrads without varsity volleyball experience. Rosters are due Monday. March 4. A mandatory team captain meeting will be held at 5:30 p.m. on Wednesday, March 6. Call the intramural office for more details at 545-2693/0022.

Largest College Daily in New England

THE MASSACHUSETTS DAILY COLLEGIAN Established in 1890

VOLUME C WEDNESDAY, FEBRUARY 27, 1991 ISSUE 90

U.S. soldier wounded in Iraq

Weapons make 24-hour bombing a reality; military maps out strategy to further invade

Compiled from Associated Press pool reports

ON THE IRAQI BORDER — The lone U.S. casualty during the 18th Airborne Corps' thrust into Iraq was a soldier wounded on reconnaissance patrol deep in enemy territory.

The commando was sightly hurt in a brief fire fight that was monitored over radios along the front. The patrol was dropped into Iraq on Sunday.

Shortly after arriving, they were surrounded by Iraqi troops and gunfire quickly erupted. The three commandos put in a call for help.

Troops listening to the urgent call for assistance could hear gunfire over the shouting voices.

When the commandos came back on the air it was to yell "I've got one down," meaning a soldier had been hit. He called for air strikes.

Moments later, a call went out to the commandos saying, "There are two F-14s. make that four F-14s on their way."

The radio went silent for a while until commandos called back.

"Thank you very much," said the calm voice. "Iraqis are flying everywhere."

The commandos were later safely picked up and the soldier's wound was described as minor.

In Northern Saudi Arabia, trailing the forces advancing into Iraq and Kuwait are the U.S. Army's Civil Affairs units, which help deal with civilians caught up in the war.

Civil affairs specialists moving into Iraq expect an entirely different reception than their counterparts in Kuwait.

"On the one hand, we will be viewed primarily as liberators, and on the other as invaders," said Lt. Col. Dwayne Aaron, the XVIII Corps' head of Civil Military Affairs.

The XVIII Corps' thrust, launched Sunday, moved into southern Iraq, a vast, largely unoccupied desert.

"We plan to try to maneuver our operations to avoid those places" that are inhabited, Aaron said.

Working under Aaron is Lt. Col. Ken Biser, who says the main job of the units initially is "to prevent civilians from interfering with the military operation, and then to stabilize population."

If the operation passes through a populated area, civil affairs personnel locate local government officials and administrators, if there are any around.

The XVIII Corps has indications that much of the civilian populations has left southern Iraq.

For those who remain, "We hope they stay home," said Biser

Meanwhile on an air base in the Persian Gulf — F-16 pilots have been flying after dark in planes equipped to turn night into day, the commander of the 421st tactical fighter squadron said.

Two F-16 squadrons based here are exclusively using planes equipped with the Low Altitude Navigation and Targeting infrared for Night (LANITIRN) system for night flying, said Lt. Col. Thomas Rackley, whose squadron is from Hill Air Force Base in Utah.

The system has three features: an infrared sensor that creates a picture of the target on the ground, one that creates a picture of the terrain ahead, and radar that enables the pilot to follow the terrain.

The F-16s, not originally designed for night operations, can now blast the enemy 24 hours a day, preventing the Iraqis from using darkness for cover.

The F-16s join some of the all-weather, day-night F-15E Strike Eagle fighter-bombers that also have been using the technology since the start of the air war Jan. 17.

The U.S. military has released some videotapes showing the clarity the LANTIRN pods produce in following smart bombs and missiles to their targets.

AP photo

Amman, Jordan — A Jordanian yesterday listened closely to the broadcast on Baghdad radio by Iraqi leader Saddam Hussein when he announced he would withdraw troops from Kuwait.

U.S. disregards Iraqi retreat

'War goes on' despite apparent withdrawal

By WILLIAM M. WELCH
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON — The White House yesterday blasted Saddam Hussein's broadcast statement of withdrawal from Kuwait, saying it "contains the same diatribe as his previous comments, with no commitment to comply with the 12 United Nations resolutions."

Said spokesman Marlin Fitzwater, "The war goes on."

The Pentagon reacted warily to Iraqi troop movements from Kuwait, viewing it as a retreat under fire. "We must continue to prosecute the campaign until we are absolutely sure that any withdrawal is true both in letter and in spirit," said one military source.

The White House reacted cooly to the Iraqi withdrawal statements from the beginning, seeing no sign that Saddam was ready to meet coalition conditions. Late Monday night, President Bush tightened the terms for a cease-fire, saying that Saddam must "personally" announce an unconditional withdrawal and agree that Iraq will pay war reparations and renounce its annexation of Kuwait.

CONTINUED ON PAGE 4

Mass. House rejects Weld's proposed budget plans

AP photo

Lt. Gov. Paul Cellucci

By MARK HENSLEY
Collegian Staff

The Massachusetts House rejected late Monday evening the proposed deferred salary plan, Gov. Weld's furlough plan, and a proposal to raise the share of health insurance paid by state employees from 10 percent to 25 percent, Rep. Stanley Rosenberg (D-Amherst) said yesterday.

In place of the furlough and deferred payment plan, the House has proposed to borrow the needed money from the Annuity Fund.

The Annuity Fund is an investment fund made up of voluntary contributions by state employees who share in the profits of the fund.

As of yesterday evening, it was not clear how much money would be borrowed, but Rosenberg said the fund had plenty of money to cover the $90 million which would have been saved by the deferred salary plan or the furlough plan.

According to Rosenberg, all of the state employee unions, who lobbied heavily against the furlough and deferred payment plans, appeared to be in favor of the Annuity Fund plan.

Weld's original plan to furlough state employees for 10 days received heavy criticism. As a counterproposal, House Democrats suggested a deferred payment plan in which state employees would work between two and 15 days between April 15 and June 30 but would be paid for those days only when they retired or stopped working for the state.

State employees rejected a separate proposal to borrow the $90 million from the state pension fund because they "are understandably skittish about people tapping into [it]," Rosenberg said.

For the last 40 years, the state was supposed to match one-for-one every dollar which was put into the pension fund by state workers every month, but has not done so.

Still under debate yesterday were alternatives to the health insurance plan, one of which called for state employees who earn over $25,000 to pay an increased portion of their health insurance.

Man who died in Boyden misidentified

By MARK HENSLEY
Collegian Staff

The man who died at the Boyden Gym while playing basketball Sunday was misidentified by the Springfield medical examiner and University police, authorities said yesterday.

His real identity is Craemen J. Gethers, 40, whose last known address was New York City, NY, police said.

Gethers died Sunday evening from an apparent heart attack after playing a pick-up basketball game at Boyden Gym.

He was originally misidentified because at the time of his death, he was carrying a false Massachusetts driver's license which had his picture on it but listed his name as Richard J. Roger, 35, of Mattapan, Springfield medical examiner Dr. Loren Mednick said.

Gethers' true identity was discovered when Lt. Michael Grabiec, of the UMass Police Department, recognized Gethers from police files and confirmed his identity using fingerprints, Mednick said.

Gethers was a mathematics major at the University from the spring of 1972 to the spring of 1975 and again during the fall of 1980.

Gethers was reportedly visiting a friend in Amherst, police said on Monday. As he went for a shot while playing basketball, he called a time-out and then collapsed.

He was taken to Northampton's Cooley-Dickinson Hospital where he was pronounced dead at 6:35 p.m. by Dr. Donald Rogers.

According to Mednick, Gethers had probably been suffering from a heart condition for several weeks and should not have been exerting himself.

Mednick added that there were no signs of drug use and that the cause of death was natural.

INSIDE:

WEDNESDAY, FEBRUARY 27, 1991

Page 3: UMass residents gripe about the hassles of the single sex bathroom policy.

Page 8: Twin Peaks fans asked to write letters to save the show.

Page 12: Men's hoop gears up for "krunch time" tonight at URI.

WEATHER

Clouds and flurries expected all day with temps only reaching the 30s.

THE MASSACHUSETTS
DAILY COLLEGIAN

New England's largest college daily newspaper. Circulation: 19,000. Published every weekday during the calendar semester. The Massachusetts Daily Collegian is a Registered Student Organization of the University of Massachusetts.

113 Campus Center, Amherst, MA. 01003
Phone (413) 545-3500 FAX (413) 545-1592

STAFF

Editor in Chief ..... Terri Starmer
Managing Editor ..... Jody Gabin
Editorial Editor ..... Jeremy Levinson
News Editor ..... Gayle Long
Sports Editor ..... Adnen Natt
Arts Editor ..... Danielle Dowling
Photography Editor ..... K.A. Burke
Black Affairs Editor ..... Sondra Sutton
Women's Issues Editors ..... Rus Kelly, Monique Tabon
Multicultural Affairs Editor ..... Alexander Nguyen
Third World Affairs Editor ..... Pratip Dasidar
Lesbian, Bisexual, Gay Issues Editor ..... Trystan Skeigh
Business Manager ..... Susan George
Advertising Manager ..... Dave Melnick
Finance Manager ..... Beth Patterson
Circulation Manager ..... Jim Winterbottom
Subscriptions Manager ..... Stacey Rogers
Promotions Manager ..... Marc Pruskin
Production Manager ..... Nicole Dumas
Day Graphics Manager ..... Jenn Burns

PROFESSIONAL STAFF

Business ..... Brian Harrington, Lori Black, Maureen Majerowski
Graphics ..... Rory Evans

TODAY'S STAFF

Night Editor ..... Meredith O'Brien
Copy Editor ..... Pam McCarthy
Layout Technician ..... Mike Carvalho
Photo Technician ..... K.A. Burke
Production Supervisor ..... Mike Carvalho
Typesetter ..... Danielle Dowling
Production ..... Mark Sturm, Jen Fatkin, Tracey Richman

Mt. TOM
Ski Area

STUDENT
DISCOUNTS ! !

Great Skiing
Day & Night.
100% Snowmaking.
Expert Grooming.
&
So Close You Can See It!

$12.00 Midweek and Nights
$18.00 Weekends and Holidays

Bring Your Student I.D.

Mt. Tom Ski Area
Route 5 Holyoke MA 536-0416

For Your Information

WEDNESDAY, FEBRUARY 27

Purim Celebration — The Chabad House will host a Purim party at 6:30 p.m. Admission is free and open to Jews of all backgrounds and affiliations. The house is located at 30 N. Hadley Rd. For more information cal 549-4094.

Brown Bag Lunch Series — "Multiculturalism: A German Perspective" in Campus Center 904-908 at 12:15 p.m. Sponsored by the Women's Studies Department

Time Management Workshop — "The Time of Your Life," a video and presentation workshop from Phi Beta Sigma in CC 803 at 7 p.m.

Information Meeting — The National Student Exchange will hold an information from 4 p.m. - 5 p.m. in CC 803.

Peace Prayers — In the Newman Center Chapel from 1 p.m. - 5 p.m.

THURSDAY, FEBRUARY 28

Purim celebration — The Chabad House will hold a late megilla reading at 4:45 p.m. All are welcome, no charge.

Meeting — The ALANA Honor Society will sponsor a meeting of the semester in the library of the New Africa House at 5:30 p.m. All interested are welcome.

Membership Meeting — The Graduate Employee Organization will hold a membership meeting in the Campus Center Auditorium from 5 p.m. to 7 p.m.

FRIDAY, MARCH 1

Jumaa Salat — Sponsored by the Muslim Student Organization in CC 805 at 12:30 p.m.

SATURDAY, MARCH 2

Relationship Seminar — At the College Church in Northampton will begin at 8:30 a.m. For more information, please call the church office at 586-0057.

Games Tournament and College Bowl — UMass wil host the 1991 Northeast Regional Games Tournament and College Bowl through Sunday in the Campus Center Basement and the Student Union Ballroom. Admission is free.

March and Rally — in Springfield at Mason Square at 11 a.m. For more information, please call 584-8975.

Gay, Lesbian, and Bisexual Cafe — Featuring singer/songwriter Erica Wheeler, at Hampden Theatre at 8 p.m. For more information, call 545-4824.

Student Empowerment Workshop — Sponsored by the Commuter Area Government from 12 p.m. - 6 p.m. Check the information desk in the CC for room number.

SUNDAY, MARCH 3

Five College Gulf Coalition Meeting — at 7:30 p.m. in the East Lecture Hall at Hampshire College. For information, please call 549-4625.

Auditions — Open call for the UMass Theatre Guild production of Agatha Christie's Ten Little Indians will be at 7 p.m. in CC 101. Call 545-0415 for more information.

IT'S NOT TOO LATE!

MENTAL HEALTH DIVISION GROUPS
SPRING 1991

Joining a group at Mental Health Services may be one of the best decisions you make this semester. Groups give you the opportunity to discuss your concerns with other people who confront the same difficulties.

The following groups are currently accepting members:

TUESDAY
Decision-Making for Problem Drinkers	1:00 - 2:30 pm
Bi-sexual Support Group	2:00 - 3:30 pm
Advanced ACOA Group (Unstructured)	3:00 - 4:30 pm
Exploring Lesbian, Gay, Bi-sexual Identities	7:00 - 8:30 pm
WEDNESDAY
ACOA (Structured)	9:00 -10:30 am
Self-Exploration Group (Short-term Personal Growth)	3:30 - 5:00 pm
THURSDAY
Women In Transition (Over 25, in process of separation/divorce)	12:45 - 2:15 pm
Chronic Medical Illness Support Group	3:30 - 5:00 pm

All groups require a pre-group interview, which gives you a chance to ask some questions and figure out if the group will be helpful. For information, or to schedule an appointment, call 545-2337. Groups begin early to mid-March, so call soon.

OOPS!
Now's the time to call...
North Amherst Motors
78 Old Sunderland Rd., No. Amherst
549-2880
Expert Repairs and Reconditioning
Most Major Credit Cards Accepted

Council Travel
SPRING BREAK
from Boston
Cancun starting at $489
Jamaica starting at $509
Price includes:
•Round trip airfare & transfers
•7 nights accommodation & hotel taxes
Low Student Airfares!
CALL FOR MORE INFORMATION
79 South Pleasant Street
Amherst, Ma 01002
413-256-1261
America's oldest & largest Student Travel Agency

ADVOCATE BEST OF THE VALLEY 1989

Hunan Garden Restaurant

MANDARIN/SZECHUAN CUISINE

The Best Chinese Buffet AND PRICES IN TOWN

Buffet Served 5-8 PM Sun-Thurs Brunch Served Sun. 11:30 AM-3:00 PM

ALL YOU CAN EAT $5.99
Children Under 10 $3.00

(1) Hot and Sour Soup
(2) Chicken Fingers
(3) Chicken Wings
(4) Fried Wontons
(5) Pan Fried Raviolli
(6) Beef with Snow Peas
(7) Szechuan Spiced Chicken
(8) Sweet and Sour Chicken
(9) Roast Pork Fried Rice
(10) Vegatable Fried Noodles
(11) Chinese BBQ Pork
(12) Broccolli in Oyster Sauce

We Deliver in Amherst 5-10:00 PM-Everyday
Minimum $15 plus $2 Delivery Charge

TAKE OUT SERVICE • FULL COCKTAIL MENU
10 BELCHERTOWN RD, AT RTE. 9, AMHERST, MA 256-0251, 256-0252

LOCAL

Author discusses effects of war on Israelis

By JASON GEORGE
Collegian Staff

Noted Jewish author, educator, and activist Leonard Fein shared his impressions of how the Persian Gulf war has transformed Israel's view of the United States and its own global role in a presentation yesterday at Smith College yesterday.

Fein, who spent most of last week in Israel, particularly in Tel Aviv and Jerusalem, spoke of the paradox in Israeli society resulting from the threat of SCUD missile attacks by Iraq.

Since the onset of the war, Israel has suffered repeated Iraqi SCUD missile attacks. Although many buildings have been damaged, few Israelis have been killed.

"When there is no place where you can be safe," Fein said, "it creates a level of fear such as Israelis have not experienced hitherto."

Conversely, Fein also mentioned that many people he met in Tel Aviv seemed more concerned about the details of the television show thirtysomething than about the danger of SCUD attacks.

"The human system is capable of terrific adaptation," Fein explained. "Eventually, the gas mask becomes something you just lug around."

Fein offered four major Israeli perceptions which he said have been altered as a result of the current Persian Gulf war.

Two points which Fein linked closely together are the changing Israeli perceptions of the United States' military capability and its "political will" to carry out the war to a decisive finish.

While claiming not to offer a judgement of the "morality and wisdom" of the war, Fein said the United States is "fighting less Saddam Hussein than the ghosts of Vietnam."

"President Bush's stubbornness [in carrying out the war] is based on the understanding that this war won't make sense unless the U.S. has a clear, decisive victory," Fein said.

"Many Israelis thought that the United States would not have the will and competence to stay the course of the war," he added.

Fein also referred to what he called the "incipient revolution in military doctrine." Although Iraq's SCUD missile attacks on Israel have been largely ineffective, Fein noted that other potential Israeli rivals in the Middle East, particularly Syria, have more technologically advanced weapons.

"The antidote will not always arrive in time for the poison," Fein said, referring to his belief that Israel will need more advanced technological aid from the United States in the future.

Fein added that the war has only created a greater level of mistrust between Israelis and Palestinians.

Fein said he believes Jews in Israel must be either for the transfer of Palestinians out of the occupied territories of the West Bank and the Gaza Strip or for the creation of separate Palestinian state.

Hilson sends UMass troops in Gulf care packages

Although it will probably take many months to arrive, University of Massachusetts students who are serving in the Persian Gulf will be able to read campus news, courtesy of the efforts of Arthur Hilson.

The Collegian, along with notes from home and UMass mementos, are being sent to the 24 troops in Saudi Arabia and on ships in the Persian Gulf, said Hilson, director of Public Safety and Veteran's office.

"This will let them know that we still care about them and that they are important to us," he said.

He said the packages, which are sent once a week to the 23 men and one woman in Gulf, contain words of encouragement from him and letters from members in the community.

Hilson said he is launching a letter writing campaign in support of a bill recently introduced in the House of Representatives which calls for additional economic and educational rights for those assigned to the Persian Gulf.

Hilson, who served two tours of duty in Vietnam, said he is glad there is a "different mindset" in the public concerning soldiers.

"People during Vietnam confused the war with the warrior. And no one deplores war more than someone who served in one," he said. "We have right now a large outpouring of support totally unlike what we experienced in Vietnam. I'm pleased to see this kind of support for the men and women now there."

— PRESTON P. FORMAN

Collegian photo by Jeff Holland

Public Safety Director Arthur Hilson

Bathroom policy unpopular

By AMY PRENDERGAST
Collegian Correspondent

Students and administrators disagree over the single-sex bathroom policy which has been heavily enforced over the past two semesters. Some students contend the policy is unnecessary, while residential staff members insist that the policy is for safety and privacy.

In Orchard Hill, there is one male and one female bathroom per floor, each located on the two separate wings of each building.

Mary Beckwith, residential director of the Dickinson and Webster Residential halls said, "We enforce single-sex bathrooms here. Although at first there was resistance, I've only had a handful of residents documented for it this year. It has been a gradual process, and this is the first year it is not an issue."

Before the fall semester of 1989, the single-sex bathroom policy was rarely enforced, with male and female residents sharing the bathroom located on their floor with their hallmates.

Freshman Craig Simpson, who lives directly across from the women's bathroom on the sixth floor of Webster said, "I really think the bathrooms should be coed because I know that no one on this floor would object. There should at least be certain hours during the day that we can use the bathroom, like late at night or early in the morning."

Freshman Hollis Crowley, Dickinson resident, said, "I think the majority of people either don't care one way or the other about the bathrooms, or enjoy the privacy of single-sex."

In Northeast and in the towers of Southwest, there is only one bathroom per floor, and the opposite gender has to either go upstairs of downstairs to use the facilities.

Paul Vasconcellos, residential director of the Thatcher, Johnson, and Lewis Residence halls said, "People really respect the single-sex bathroom policy here in Northeast. I have only seen one person this whole year for a violation of the policy."

Although some Northeast residents called it a "pain" to walk up or down the stairs to use the bathroom, Lewis Residential Assistant Kelly Garrett's main concern is the safety of women.

"I believe that having single-sex bathrooms and enforcing policy, which I tend to do, makes it more difficult for a man to isolate a woman or get her in an isolated position."

Sophomore Heidi Nadel of John Adams disagrees, "If someone is going to commit a rape, they are going to do it whether its a coed bathroom or not."

Vivian Ostrowski, residential director of John Adams said, "We are fighting a whole history and culture that never paid attention to the bathroom policy. I think that single-sex bathrooms are a positive thing for the floor community. We do enforce the policy here, although I haven't seen a huge amount of violations."

Many students are finding it difficult to adjust to the newly-enforced policy, because they are accustomed to the lenient attitudes of the past when both sexes frequently used the same bathrooms.

Senior Lenny Burd, who lives on the 21st floor of John Adams for his fourth year said, "Freshman and Sophomore year, no one even talked about a bathroom policy. Junior year it was mentioned, and now my senior year it is hell. I was written up four times last semester because of it."

Safety is an issue particularly in the Southwest towers because there is only one bathroom per floor, according to residential assistants. Residents walk up or down closed and often secluded, stairwells late at night.

Frustration is common among residents who encounter inconsistency among the residential assistants when enforcing the policy.

Sophomore Moira Konig of John Adams said, "What is the use of going up or downstairs when there are guys from those two floors in the bathrooms? If this policy is for my safety, then wouldn't I be safer in a bathroom with guys I know and live with?"

Konig says each floor should be able to vote on the policy. "If no one on the floor objects to a coed bathroom, then we should be able to keep it that way."

A peace group with 'vision'

20/20 project grapples with issues of peace

By DAVID MASSEY
Collegian Correspondent

People don't mind being a pebble as long as they know they are part of an avalanche.
— Eric Kolbel, an activist minister from New York

Saving the world — many citizens would love to assist in this daunting venture but often do not have the time to sort through the maze of complicated issues facing the nation in the 90s.

But Lois Barber has given them an outlet for activism. Some call her organization "McPeace." Others label it "instant activism," or cite it as an example of democracy in action. With over 10,000 subscribers in 34 states, the program 20/20 Vision is steadily becoming a strong voice for peace all over the country.

Barber, the mastermind behind this five-year-old organization based in Amherst, formed the group 20/20 Vision in order to "engage citizens in effective communication with policy-makers, to redefine American priorities and shift spending from military defense to defense of the environment and human needs."

She points out that serious problems are present in today's society. We live with the constant threat of nuclear war, she said, while catastrophic environmental damage looms closer.

Barber, a former Amherst citizen organizer and educator, said she "could see in my friends and neighbors that they cared deeply about these issues, but they didn't know what to do." This organization gives citizens a way to spark change, she said.

For a fee of $20 dollars a year, once a month, 20/20 will send a subscriber, who requests information, the most "vitally important" 20-minute recommended action to influence key policy makers on issues relating to military and environmental policy.

This month's national recommended action deals with the role of the media in the Persian Gulf war, offering background and essential action that needs to be taken. It urges the subscriber to contact the five major national news directors and offers advice for topics to discuss concerning the poor coverage of the war. Names, addresses, and phone numbers are provided.

Photo courtesy of the 20/20 Vision project

Lois Barber

Ralph Nader, a well-renowned environmental activist, said "20/20 Vision focuses the time and energy of busy citizens where it counts — influencing legislators and policy makers, when it counts — right before critical votes."

The organization contains 75 local district projects in 150 Congressional districts of the 435 that exist in the United States. They are run by volunteers who work with legislative specialists and researchers in order to come up with the most effective action one person could take in 20 minutes to help cut military spending and shift it over to humanitarian and environmental needs.

Each local volunteer group makes an independent action recommendation for subscribers regarding local concerns. This peace organization, which has recently become international, has expanded its program into British Columbia Canada and has formed an affiliate in England. Rapidly gaining in numbers, Barber said she hopes to double the amount of subscribers by 1991.

20/20 also has an "at large" program for those living in Congressional districts not

CONTINUED ON PAGE 4

■ ground war continues

CONTINUED FROM PAGE 1

Fitzwater had lain the ground work for the military's obligations during the uncertain Iraqi withdrawal.

"We will not attack unarmed soldiers in retreat. But we will consider retreating combat units as a movement in war," he said Monday night. Army Lt. Col. Steve Roy, a Pentagon spokesman, elaborated this morning:

"We can pursue the enemy, fight toward the ground objective, engage the enemy at every opportunity, take prisoners, destroy the enemies' personnel, equipment, vehicles, lines of communication, bridges, supply depots and continue to encircle the enemy to obtain his destruction or surrender or both."

The British said yesterday that Saddam's forces must retreat without their weapons. Fitzwater had recommended that Iraqis should simply "lay down their arms and leave."

Said Roy: "By laying down their weapons we mean all fighting gear from pistols and knives on up to air defenses and tanks. The soldiers can keep their survival gear such as gas masks, chemical weapons protection, knapsacks and canteens, but that's it."

Fitzwater said President Bush called the White House Situation Room at 5:20 a.m. and learned of yesterday's radio speech by Saddam. He reviewed a text of the address and then met with key advisers.

Among other things, Saddam said: "Dear brothers, I applaud your victory. . .you have faced 30 countries and the evil they brought here. Good will triumph over evil. Brave Iraqis, you have won, you are victorious."

It didn't look anything like that from Washington, where military reports indicated that coalition forces were moving quickly throughout the battlefields of Iraq and Kuwait. Reports from Kuwait City were of retreating Iraqi troops.

This Is No Way To Take Your LSAT.

If you've set your sights on law school, there's no better LSAT preparation than Stanley H. Kaplan.

Our LSAT prep will open your eyes with score-raising strategies and techniques. We'll help you master everything from Analytical Reasoning to Reading Comprehension.

Our classes are live – and lively. All our class and study material is based on the "new" LSAT. And you can review lessons, and get additional help as needed in our TEST-N-TAPE® lab, open days, evenings and weekends for your convenience.

Visit our Center today and see for yourself.

And watch the scales tip in your favor.

STANLEY H. KAPLAN
Take Kaplan Or Take Your Chances

Free Information Seminar
March 5 7:00pm
RSVP 549-5780
358 N. Pleasant Street
Amherst, MA 01002

FLAGS / All Weather 3'x5' nylon

qty. "PEACE" sub. tl. ____ at $31 ea $____

qty "POW—MIA" ____ at $29 ea $____ shipping $1.50 ea. pc. ____

JPM Exhibits
Dept CL
P.O. Box 402
Newark, NY 14513

NYS only: 7% tax
enclosed ck. or M.O.
$____

name
address
city/state/zip

Also available: foreign national and historical.
WRITE FOR QUOTE

■ 20/20 Vision project

CONTINUED FROM PAGE 3

organized yet, Barber said.

Barber, a "frustrated" peace activist, said she felt the existing peace organizations had not provided volunteers with quick, significant actions they could take. She also said many peace movements only temporarily rally around issues.

"When the crisis disappears, so does all the energy and people," Barber said.

Longtime 20/20 volunteer Scottie Faerber said the program is designed for busy people who still want to become active in political issues.

"It appeals specifically to really busy people and it gives them a very precise, focused task that they can do," she said.

This project deals with interconnected issues of military and environmental policy, ranging from attempting to stop nuclear testing to strengthening the United Nations. It attempts to untangle some of the complicated issues, confusing legislative processes, and gives subscribers a voice to bring about change.

In Wisconsin, local 20/20 subscribers successfully got their senator to reject Victor Stello Jr.'s appointment as head of clean-up for all nuclear weapons plants in America, Barber said. Several years ago, Stello allegedly covered up key facts regarding the Three Mile Island nuclear power plant accident.

On a national level, Barber said she, "can't help but ask if 20/20 had had a million subscribers" we might not be in ground war with Iraq. The war in the Middle East has spurred Barber and her team of volunteers to work even harder to find solutions to conflicts.

Detractors have called 20/20 "superficial" and "trivial" – it's too easy, they charge. Barber answers her critics by saying, "It works. Easy or not."

"It's very important for people to do what they can, for people to take the first step," she continued. "Most people don't write persistently to their elected representatives, so getting people to write or make a phone call for 20 minutes a month is actually a very big step for a lot of people," but this project is only one of many means of causing change, Barber said.

What do elected officials feel about this organization? According to Barber, most elected representatives rely on their well-informed constituents as an aid in making major policy decisions.

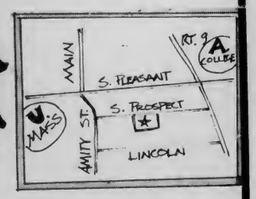
And Bob Edgar, a six-term Congressman from Pennsylvania said that this project "produces exactly the kind of citizen input that Congress both needs and responds to."

Those intereрested in joining 20/20 Vision can call 549-4470 or write 30 Cottage St., Amherst 01002.

STEINBECK COLLISION REPAIR & AUTOBODY

53 So. Prospect – Amherst Center
256-8157 256-1385

Shop Registration # RS1212



- Imports & other unibody vehicles are our specialty
- State of art equipment for precision frame and unibody straightening (+ or - ½ mm)
- Over 90 years staff experience
- Accepted by all insurance companies for collision repair or glass replacement
- Advanced European Technology Painting and Refinishing Systems

REMEMBER it's your car and your choice of repair facilities

University of Massachusetts
1991-1992 Year in Paris Program

Accepting immediate applications for study in Paris from student with a minimum of college intermediate proficiency in French and from majors in most departments.

FINANCIAL AID AVAILABLE

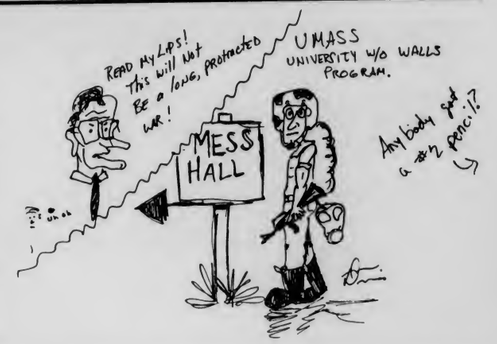
For further information, please contact the Director of the Program, Professor Gerald Volpe, in the French Department at the University of Massachusetts in Boston at (617) 287-7560. Brochures and application forms may be picked up in the French Department Office at UMASS/Amherst or at the William Clark International Center.

EDITORIAL/OPINION

The opinions on this page are those of the individual writer or cartoonist and do not necessarily reflect the views of the Collegian or the University unless otherwise noted.

Victory is not good enough?

A.R. Santiago



George Bush, of course, is unconvinced and won't call off the war just because Saddam's doing what the allies had insisted he do a long time ago. It's too late, after all Saddam already missed his Saturday deadline. Bush says he wants public assurance from the Iraqi president. This whole thing isn't really that much different from fisticuffs in grammar school, is it?

"Do you give up?" a little bully asks his opponent, as he holds the poor tyke in an arm lock that only a professional contortionist could successfully accomplish without inflicting excruciating pain on himself.

"No!" the idiot answers.

"Oh no? What if I do this?" referring to the bully's second maneuver, of grabbing the tyke's tongue and twisting it into a ball.

"Okay, maybe."

"No, that's not good enough. Apologize to me."

"Why? You're the bigger guy. You knew I couldn't possibly overpower your strong, muscular physique. Of course, the tongue hold did help your cause."

"So, are you going to say you're sorry?"

"I'm not fighting you. I guess I must be."

"Uh-uh. That's not good enough. Fall on your knees and scream your apology out loud so the entire playground can hear."

"Isn't that a little beneath you? Do you have to flaunt it and humiliate me, to make you and your peons happy? Everyone knows already anyway. It'll probably be on the front page of the school newspaper, if we had one."

"Don't you understand? I have an image to protect. What will it take for you to say a simple apology? Do I have to pull your entire tongue out?"

Well, you know the rest. Inevitably, the tyke apologizes profusely for fear of losing the other half of this tongue and the bully is appeased, until his next puny victim comes along.

George Bush wants nothing short of Saddam Hussein falling on his knees in defeat, in abject humiliation, for all the world to see. And if he doesn't, the Iraqi people, as well as the other nationalities currently living in that country, will be continually bombed, killed or maimed until he does give in.

If the United States had professed right at the start of this war that its aim was to take Saddam himself by the tongue, step on it and insist for an apology, maybe then there would be an excuse for Bush's stubborn reluctance to end the war. This supposed war of protecting morality and freedom and democracy isn't all it was cracked up to be, is it, when Bush has the audacity to say that he is willing to bomb, kill and maim simply because he hasn't heard an apology from Saddam. Human lives, the ones he supposedly wants to protect, could be saved if he were to actually use his brain.

To speculate whether or not Saddam Hussein will say "I'm sorry" and concede to the Americans and their coalition partners seems hardly appropriate when there are thousands of lives at stake. You could say it is immoral for George Bush and his coterie of military advisers to suggest that a public humiliation of Saddam Hussein is the only way to end this war, IF they had any morals at all in the first place. They would rather sacrifice some more lives just to see the look on Saddam Hussein's face when he publicly gives up.

Hello in there, Georgie. You don't really have to try that hard at being the next Hitler yourself. You're getting there.

A.R. Santiago is a Collegian columnist

Patriotism for profit: A stroll through the mall

While walking through the Hampshire Mall for the first time since the war's eruption, I was overcome by the array of pro-war sweatshirts on sale in various stores. I noticed also that a simulated Stealth bomber has been installed as a kiddie ride.

I've been struggling for a concrete definition of "patriotism." My visit to the mall enabled me to formulate and answer: Patriotism, as a social phenomenon triggered by the Gulf Crisis, could be defined as a highly marketable commodity.

One sweatshirt in particular caught my intrest. The words "Desert Storm" were printed on it, along with an American flag displaying the peace symbol. If I may point out the glaring semantic absurdity, the words "war" and "peace" are antonyms. They simply cannot coexist. For those who agree with this statement yet still believe this war to be a means of future peace, I would just like to say that a gasoline fire cannot be stopped by pouring more gasoline on it.

As a father, and as a human being, I consider this war to be an ethical abomination. Attempts to further glamorize it and make money from it are equally bankrupt acts. I intend to boycott offending stores, in the mall and elsewhere, and I sincerely hope that many others will do the same.

Kevin Smith
Amherst

Join a frat and the 'chicks' will fall all over you

It wasn't even necessary to read the words on the poster because the picture said it all. While sitting in Hasbrouck 134, my eyes fell upon an Alpha Epsilon Pi flyer hanging in the front of the room. From high up on the wall, they stared down at me. It was a "cozy" threesome.

The male was dressed in a sweatshirt and sweatpants which displayed the Greek insignia, and flanked on his sides, like pieces of meat, hung two buxom babes. The two long-legged, full-figured women were scantily clad. Dressed in the traditional UMass February attire of tank-tops, high-heels and mini skirts, this is male depiction of women as shallow at its best. This profane and distorted version of gender roles both repulsed and infuriated me.

It is an utter disgrace that the degradation of women is used as a recruitment technique to reel in potential members to an organization. How is it possible that the men who are to join automatically become masters of the opposite sex? I highly doubt that these are the little "sex kittens" that your pledges would be encountering every weekend, as you have advertised.

Everyday, we are bombarded with stereotypes. Soap operas, advertisements, television shows and upbringing all play a part in the formulation of our perspective. Alpha Epsilon Pi is not alone in its serious misrepresentation and distortion of women's roles in society. If this rush poster is an accurate reflection of the disrespect towards women that these men possess, I challenge them to do some serious self-reflection and prove to the campus community that my accusations are unfounded.

Marie-Elena Grant
Amherst

Editor's note two other people signed this letter.

Weld's budget makes the wrong people pay

Well, the University is about to undergo heavy sedation and go under the knife again. The surgeon: Governor William Weld. The problem: The state did not take enough income to cover expenses. The proposed solution: Cut expenses that assist the working-class, the middle-class and the poor while giving Weld's cronies in Boston big pay raises. The effect: Governor Weld's budget plan is going to be disastrous for the Commonwealth. University students, faculty and classified employees have had to deal with these shortcomings in a rather diverse way: Students don't get the classes they need; the faculty has to deal with either consolidation of some departments or the closing of others; and, lastly, the classified staff gets to lose paid holidays, pay more for health care and possibly lose our tuition waiver and/or get laid off.

Governor Weld wants to furlough 63,000 state employees, at no pay, for 10 working days. That effects our vacation pay and sick pay. Further, he wants us to increase our health insurance premiums by 150 percent. If this goes through, the average state worker will cough up $2,000-3,000 out of our already low pay. We have not had a pay-raise in almost three years (Last time, we took less money so we could keep our medical, holidays, tuition waivers, etc.).

The effect of these changes, in our contract and in our lives, is immense! State workers and students in the Commonwealth are again scapegoats for a wasteful government that throws away millions of dollars on foolishness, on consultants, and on over-paid administrators. Meanwhile, Weld wants to eliminate the tax, passed last year, on consulting fees. . .the kind that fat-cat lawyers get or fancy consultants get for doing who-knows what. Whose side is this guy on anyway?

Four of the unions at the University have presented ratified contracts to the governor, and all it takes is a stroke from Wild Bill's pen to make them law. But, you know this guy. . .money for nothing and you work for free.

If you are with me on this one, place a call to a representative or senator and maybe together we can do something about it.

Scott Labonte
Member, AFSCME –1776

"Television is democracy at its ugliest."
— Paddy Chayevsky

Everyone seems to forget the other tragedy

Two tragedies visited Amherst this weekend. The town suffered the deaths of Gregory Levey, who set himself on fire in an alleged anti-war protest, and of Jay Pirog and Matt Peterson, who died when their house on North Pleasant street burned down. The latter two deaths, at least in the press, don't seem to be as important as the former, since they weren't for "the cause."

Why is it that someone lights himself on fire next to a sign with a slogan on it, he is suddenly a hero? Why is it that a suicide gets front-page coverage in the Collegian and the Hampshire edition of the Union News, along with touching editorials and candlelight vigils? Where are the vigils for Jay and Matt?

According to newspaper interviews with people at the vigil, Mr. Levey is a martyr. He died to stop the killing of the war with Iraq. If he is so against killing, why did he kill himself? This guy wants to die, so he's a hero, but Jay and Matt, who wanted to live and had bright futures ahead of them, are relegated to page 3 of last Wednesday's [Feb. 20] Collegian. Their deaths don't count because they're not politically correct? Is that it?

The peculiar irony of the situation is that nobody knows for sure if Mr. Levey was even involved in the anti-war movement. According to interviews with his neighbors and movement leaders conducted by the Union News, Mr. Levey had nothing to do with protesting the war. But little details like that somehow always seem to slip by this town's political activists.

My older brother lived in that house with Jay and Matt and their friends. If my brother had stayed home that night, he might be on page 15 of the Union News now, overshadowed by an unstable person who decided to go out with maximum press coverage. What would the Amherst pseudo-intellectuals say if there was a sign on the front lawn of my brother's house that said "Peace"? Would Jay and Matt then be heroes? Then would their lives be as important as someone who kills himself publicly? Is that all it takes to have the Collegian glorify suicide? A slogan?

Tim Farrar
Orchard Hill

Editor's note: 15 people signed this letter.

The cops did good

Commendations to Amherst Police Chief Donald Maia and his officers. Proffesional self-restraint largely marked the conduct of the police in their handling of the student peace protesters last Thursday [in the center of Amherst]. Chief Maia's responsible leadership of his officers reflected sensitivity and intelligence, qualities that are especially necessary in dealing with peaceful civil disobedience.

Mark Will
Amherst

PET CARE KAL KAN

M&M MARS

1. Mars, Incorporated is ...

A. A privately owned, multi-billion dollar, global company

Uncle Ben's, Inc.

CHOCOLATES ETHEL·M

B. #1 worldwide in confectionery products, pet food and rice

C. Producer of five of the top ten confectionery products in the U.S.

D. Looking for bright, motivated individuals, interested in another way of doing business

E. All of the above

Dove INTERNATIONAL

Information Services International

MARS ELECTRONICS international

Information Session - March 7, 1991
featuring Guest Speaker Ron Bixler discussing "R&D Opportunities in Chocolate"

Interviews - March 8, 1991
with Steve Rizk and Rosemary Gover

Check your Placement Office for more details

THIRD WORLD AFFAIRS

The U.N. Emperors have no clothes on

JAN. 13, BAGHDAD, IRAQ SADDAM HUSSEIN: [The U.N. resolutions] are American resolutions. This is an American age. What America wants today is what happens and not what the Security Council wants.
PEREZ DE CUELLAR: I agree with you as far as the issue concerns me.

The transcript of this conversation between Saddam Hussein and the Secretary General of the United Nations has been condemned by the United Nations as a breach of diplomatic faith. The United States has declined to comment. No one refutes the transcript.

Pratip Dastidar

Even as you read this article, American, French and British youth stride through the villages of Iraq. Women, children and old men are steeling themselves for the humiliation of colonial rule.

Euro-American tanks rumble past mosques and an entire generation of Iraqi youth is in stunned captivity or smouldering bunkers. A dark shadow seems to be settling over the South.

Enough serious talk.

Meanwhile in the Empire all is well. This is the delightful world of yellow ribbons and Coca-Cola, funky music and pizza. American centrists tell us that the United Nations has ushered in a New World Order and call Saddam a tyrant. American rightists say the United Nations is finally coming to its senses (but warn of complacence. . .) and call Saddam a gangster. American leftists bask in the hope of a new age of internationalism championed by the United Nations (not perfect, but the best there is. . .) and call Saddam a cuckoo-head.

All in the name of the United Nations. So what is this august body in New York that does so much to re-distribute the wealth of the planet and protect the weak? Permit some more pontification of the sort that this annoying page delights in (you can call for sanctions against us whenever you care to. . .).

The United Nations has six principal organs — the most representative one is the General Assembly of 160-odd countries. This organ is a pseudonym for the rest of the planet.

The heart of U.N. power goes by the ironic name of the Security Council. Secretive and all-powerful, this is the United Nations. Welcome aboard and buckle your safety belts. You have entered the bizarre world of Insecurity.

"The Republic of China, France, the Union of Soviet Socialist Republics, the United Kingdom of Great Britain and Northern Ireland, and the United States of America shall be permanent members of the Security Council," from Article 23, U.N. Charter.

TRANSLATION: The five august permanent members mentioned above own and control the farce that they created at a Georgetown estate called Dumbarton Oaks in 1944 over port and sherry. Simultaneously, the same schemers hatched a plot to control the global financial system through multilateral banks.

The criterion for membership to the world of the Insecurity Council is control over vast numbers of nuclear warheads and hegemonic power. In the case of the not-so-great Britain and the pretentious French, the status of colonial grandfather suffices.

"Decisions of the Security Council on procedural matters shall be made by an affirmative vote of nine members.

Decisions of the Security Council on all other matters shall be made by an affirmative vote of nine members including the concurring votes of the permanent members," from Article 27, U.N. Charter TRANSLATION: To make the Insecurity Council more palatable, 10 nations are permitted as non-permanent members with a two-year term. They may then ineffectually blather and bleat before the Emperors. Those who embarrass the Emperors shall be duly whipped into place (as Yemen and Cuba will soon be for daring to vote against the glorious Superpower onslaught on Iraq). The term concurring vote is Insecurity slang for the veto. This is the remarkable power bestowed on club members (the aforementioned Emperors) whereby they can insolently defy the entire world with a yawn and the thump of a clenched fist.

"While the Security Council is exercising in respect of any dispute or situation the functions assigned to it in the present Charter, the General Assembly shall not make any recommendation with regard to that dispute or situation unless the Security Council so requests," from Article 12, U.N. Charter.

TRANSLATION: The General Assembly (i.e. — the world) shall speak only when spoken to. Its other functions include reading the minutes of the Insecurity Council, proposing endless studies and recommendations, approving the budget (controlled by the Emperors, needless to say) and endlessly debating non-issues.

So what do the delegates of the General Assembly that are co-operative with the Empire do? Surprise, surprise. . .they enjoy life in the Big Apple, and throw chic parties where they marvel at Iraqi Baathists or Cuban internationalists over champagne with words like: "Such silly behavior...they really should grow up."

Occasionally an earnest delegate proposes in the United Nations that countries of the South should exchange media information directly without relying on Reuters or the Associated Press. Such silly behavior. The unfortunate delegate in question was promptly forced to resign and the guilty United Nations Educational Scientific and Cultural Organization was sanctioned.

So why do countries of the South participate in this elaborate farce? The answer is tragically simple. In an age of imperial darkness pragmatism is preferable to annihilation. It is wise to send ambassadors to the court of the Emperors to pay tribute rather than risk their displeasure.

Remember that the credit ratings of Southern countries and their access to loans is linked to good behavior in the court.

However, this humiliating status quo was acceptable as long as the Emperors argued among themselves. The Big powers neutralized the beast called the United Nations because they could not cooperate on the enjoyable practice of thrashing so-called Third World countries. This tendency to disagree was the last hope for Iraqi defiance as is evident from Saddam's conversation with the Secretary General.

The destruction of Iraq has exposed the farce. The Emperors have no clothes on. It will not be long before emerging powers like India and Brazil question their arrogance. Smaller states will also realize that the bizarre logic of economic strangulation and high-tech bombardment can be meted out at the will of the Emperors and legitimized in pompous U.N. resolutions.

There are alternatives beyond the imagination of the befuddled Euro-American Left or Right. We have our own regional bodies, devoid of vetoes and colonial masters. They go by acronyms such as the South Asian SAARC, the African OAS, the Latin American OAU, the South-East Asian ASEAN. . .

In 1955, a movement called the Non-aligned Movement was born in Bandung, Indonesia. A framework for a future assembly of the South lies latent, awaiting rebirth.

Many in the South recognize the danger of the United Nations farce. A United Nations without a veto can never exist. Never forget the fact that the Emperors refused to sanction the creation of this body unless they had the veto.

Naive idealists who believe in reforming this illusion exhibit historical amnesia. The foundation of the skyscraper in New York where the Emperors hold court is built on the veto, as Bush, Major, Gorbachev, Mitterand and Deng know only too well.

A day will come when the Emperors will gloat in the halls of the United Nations at delegates from the South, who will duly nod in respect. Simultaneously, the real business of the South will be conducted in bilateral, regional, and pan-Southern bodies. Till then we will continue to recite:

"We the peoples of the United Nations determined to save succeeding generations from the scourge of war...[ad nauseum]"

Pratip Dastidar is a Collegian staff member. This article is the opinion of the writer and does not necessarily reflect the views of the Collegian staff.

A Requiem for the U.S. Left

The American Left has a very confused ideology vis-a-vis the Third World. Unlike most informed conservatives in the United States, they are unable to articulate a clear and consistent opinion on the subject.

The informed American conservatives view the Third World strictly in terms of national interest. People in the Third World have a healthy respect for such views because they make no false pretenses of being concerned with the welfare of the people of the Third World. Hence, the Third World can set clearer policy objectives and can indeed negotiate with the conservatives.

Rabi Dutta

The Left (insofar as it exists in the United States), on the other hand, endeavors to speak on behalf of the people of the Third World. The 4 billion dispossessed people of the Third World could survive without the fashionable screamings and crocodile tears of the luxury-ensconced American Left. The the omniscient Left truly bears the burden of civilizing the so-called uncultured people of the Third World, who know not what is good for them.

The best among the American Left (e.g. Noam Chomsky) rage with messianic zeal about imperialism, and then mesmerize the sycophantic audience by advocating conflict resolution by the hallowed veto-empowered oligarchy of the United Nations.

This article about the American Left would not have been written if they were not dangerous to the people of the Third World. They are dangerous because a fair number of honorable semi-expatriate scholars of the Third World are so feeble-minded that they cannot see through their agenda.

These honorable semi-expatriate scholars in the social sciences undergo the brain-washing of liberal institutions like our esteemed University and metamorphose into showpiece mouthpieces of the non-conformist dissent movements of America.

Their manufactured writings then reverberate through the American Left and create a catch-22 situation, where the American Left in all its wisdom thinks that these scholars who got their doctorates in the Unites States are indeed the epitome of the thoughts of Third World people. Their foreign accents rather than being a handicap provide them with an unwarranted credibility. Indeed it is a brave new world for these honorable men and women.

The American Left should do well to confine itself to the problems within American society and avoid being a spokesperson for the people of the Third World. The people of the Third World may be poor, but they are not deaf and dumb.

In any case, if poverty is the criterion of social awareness then the Helmsleys, Trumps, and Icahns are indeed more progressive than the American Left. There are enough people in the Third World to speak for themselves. The Left can hear their utterances when the leaders and people of these nations speak.

Yes, there are tyrants and money-grabbing leaders in the Third World, but that is the problem of the people of those countries, not the problem of the American Left. The people of the Third World very rarely oblige the people of the United States with lessons in economics and history. As a matter of professional etiquette, if not for anything else, the intellectuals of the Left should reciprocate this courtesy by sharply limiting their patronizing attitude towards the Third World.

Whenever people of one nation have decided to speak righteously about the conduct and aspirations of the people of other nations, they have usually done so under the garb of some kind of uniform framework — be it democracy, international communism, Christianity, or Islam. They have tended to forget that cultures and nations are different and just as individuals solve their problems in their own peculiar way, so do nations.

Most truly sovereign Third World states feel more comfortable seeing the world in terms of the legitimate (or for that matter illegitimate) interests of nations than through the astigmatic vision of the American Left.

Rabi Dutta is a UMass student. This article is the opinion of the writer and does not necessarily reflect the views of the Collegian staff.

FREE RENT OPTION

Brandywine offers Country Living with convenience

- On UMass Bus Route • Nearby Shopping • Situated on well landscaped acres with pond.
- One and two bedroom apartments include fully equipped kitchen and wall to wall carpeting.
- Swimming pool, laundry facilities, responsive management.
- Stop and we'll show you what we have to offer.
- Affordable rents include gas, utilities (heat, hot water and stove).

BRANDYWINE AT AMHERST

16 Brandywine Drive, Amherst
Rental Office Open Daily 10-4
Limited Time Offer — 549-0600

ARTS & LIVING

Don't lynch Twin Peaks

By JODY GABIN
Collegian Staff

It's Saturday night, you're at home moping because you can't seem to find anything to do or anyone to do it with. Homework's too boring and you feel lame doing work on a Saturday night anyway. The clock ticks on. . .8 p.m., 9 p.m., 10 p.m. Suddenly you think, "Wait! Twin Peaks! Maybe Agent Cooper will get together with Audrey this week!"

You turn to ABC. [You know, that network that's been getting all that good press lately about being so "inventive?"] You sit through half-a-dozen commercials, anxiously awaiting sight of that familiar robin perched in a tree.

"And now," the announcer cries, "welcome back to the ABC Saturday Night Movie." You gasp. You squint at the TV. Tears well up in your eyes. That's not Dale Cooper. That's not Frankenleo chasing Shelley around with a hatchet. It's a lame Arnold Schwarzenegger flick. . . .

ABC has recently decided to put Twin Peaks on hiatus. David Lynch and Mark Frost, creators of the off-beat nighttime soap, are pleading with fans to help keep the show on the air.

"We feel that there are people out there that really love the show," Lynch told reporters. "We're in trouble and we need their help."

Over the summer, ABC executives decided to move the show from Thursday to the Saturday night "death" slot. Lynch and Frost are asking fans write

CONTINUED ON PAGE 10

Better than a pack of Fruit Stripe

By MARK ANDERSON
Collegian Correspondent

Material Issue
Katina's
Sunday, Feb 24

Power Pop /pa'wer pop/ n (probably some hack rock critic made it up) 1.(1970) The hybrid of traditional 4-chord rock, bubblegum, and 60's Byrds-y guitar pop. Practiced by such bands as Cheap Trick, Raspberries, the Beat (not to be mistaken for the English Beat), Sweet, the Knack, the Records, Shoes.
2. (1991) Material Issue.

The band Material Issue played at Katina's recently and as their album title indicates, it was an International Pop Overthrow. With an emphasis on Pop. The trio were on stage for a little over an hour and performed a tight set with many songs from their major label debut (I.P.O.) in addition to material from various indie releases in the last few years.

Produced by Jeff Murphy of the arguably best power pop combo from the above list (Shoes), Int'l Pop Overthrow contains some real popular music gems. The band makes no claim to offer more than just good, hummable pop tunes, and for what it's worth, they come through in spades. As the cover sticker on I.P.O. proudly proclaims, "This ain't no British, Techno-Pop, Rap, Disco, Skinny Butt, Mall Band . . . this is Material Issue." (For my money, that woulda made a damn good album title too.)

Pleasing as a pack of Fruit Stripe Gum, the songs "Diane," "Very First Lie," "Chance of a Lifetime," "There Was A Few" and the title track could all be singles in their own right. Their current single "Valerie Loves Me" can be seen on MTV and I wouldn't be too surprised if we see these lads surfacing on Letterman or Saturday Night Live sometime in the next few years.

Originally from Chicago, Jim Ellison, Mike Zelenko and Ted Ansani grew up on soups like Cheap Trick and Sweet and less known acts like Zion Illinois' Shoes. They began playing in 1985 and in 1990 earned the distinction of best unsigned mand on the indie scene (according to Cashbox magazine, at least). They inked with Polygram within the last six months and "Now," in Jim's words, "we wanna throw pop back in people's faces."

And throw they did. On Sunday night, Material Issue performed for some fifty-odd eager popsters and Katina's regulars. Although Mr. Ellison's hammy stage antics looked a little contrived and often times outright goofy, their delivery was down and those hooks were making all but the most resistant lend an ear. In the same odd way that British vocalists seem to drop their accent once the first note is sung, Jim Ellison's vocals had a strange Cockney flavor, adding either some extra kick or some extra pretentiousness depending on your disposition. In addition to their originals, Jim et al treated the crowd to Sweet's "Blockbuster" and breathed life into a tired, nearly cliches cover — the Byrds' "Rock and Roll Star."

In their own words, "whenever I just can't go on, I turn the radio on. It's a good thing. It's a good thing." And when the day comes that I hear Material Issue on the radio it will be a good thing.

Photo courtesy Mercury Records

Material Issue is (from left to right) Mike Zelenko, Jim Ellison and Ted Ansani.

AUDITIONS

TEN LITTLE INDIANS

An Agatha Christie Murder Mystery

March 3 & March 4
Campus Center Rm 101
7 pm

CALLBACKS:
March 5

SHOW DATES:
May 6, 7, 8

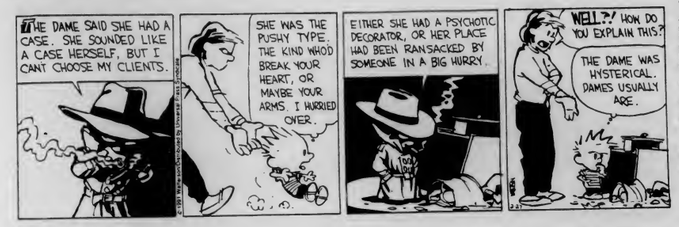
DOONESBURY
By GARRY TRUDEAU

GOOD AFTERNOON, PEOPLE. AT THE PRESENT TIME, I'M MAJOR E. "BUZZ" FOGG AND THIS IS THE SECTOR J PRESS POOL BUS.
WE'RE GOING TO TRY TO CATCH UP WITH A CAV UNIT, AND HERE ARE THE GROUND RULES: NO QUESTIONS ABOUT ACTIONS, CASUALTIES, MORALE OR POSITIONS!
ESPECIALLY POSITIONS! DON'T ASK TO SEE THE FIELD COMMAND! NOR ARTILLERY BATTERIES! NOR THE AID STATION, NOR LOOKOUT POSTS!
UM... HOW ABOUT THE LATRINE? IT'S BEEN A LONG RIDE.
NEGATIVE. THE ENEMY WOULD LOVE TO CATCH US WITH OUR PANTS DOWN!

THE FAR SIDE
By GARY LARSON

The birth of head-hunting

CALVIN AND HOBBES
By BILL WATTERSON



THE DAME SAID SHE HAD A CASE. SHE SOUNDED LIKE A CASE HERSELF, BUT I CAN'T CHOOSE MY CLIENTS.
SHE WAS THE PUSHY TYPE. THE KIND WHO'D BREAK YOUR HEART, OR MAYBE YOUR ARMS. I HURRIED OVER.
EITHER SHE HAD A PSYCHOTIC DECORATOR, OR HER PLACE HAD BEEN RANSACKED BY SOMEONE IN A BIG HURRY.
WELL?! HOW DO YOU EXPLAIN THIS?
THE DAME WAS HYSTERICAL. DAMES USUALLY ARE.

TANGELO PIE
By TIM SNIFFEN

So, now that you've slugged me in the mouth, are we close enough to study for the Psychology test?
Hold on. There might be some technicalities.
I thought so. For FULL bonding to take place, we have to either: 1) Both shed 1 pint of blood; 2) Commit a major crime, or 3) Fall down a flight of stairs.
MALE BONDING MADE EASY
Forget it. I'll just go home and shoot myself— make the inner journey.
Then you're blowing me off? Maybe there's some bonus for that!

SNOOKY LANSON
By E. VEZINA & R. SHAUGHNESSY

SNOOKY'S CULTURE CLUB RECORD COLLECTION
PLEASE PLEASE PLEASE PLEASE PLEASE PLEASE DON'T DO IT!
SMASH
YOU'LL REGRET THIS! OH, REALLY?
I'LL TAKE THIS TO THE HIGHEST AUTHORITY!
SNOOKY'S FILE DEPT.
Dear Boy George

FROTTER
By GARRY PORTER

ALL RIGHT, WE'VE ALL AGREED THAT WE MUST ESCAPE. THE CONSTANT PERSECUTION OF US IN THE NAME OF EXPERIMENTATION IS SIMPLY NOT JUSTIFIABLE. GENERAL ROSENWEIG WILL DESCRIBE THE PLAN.
POST X WILL LIFT THE CAGE COVER FOR EXACTLY 2.3 SECONDS AT A TIME. CATAPULT Y WILL PROJECT US ONE BY ONE TO SAFETY. ANY QUESTIONS?
HOW CAN YOU BE SURE IT WILL WORK?
WE'VE GOT SOME VOLUNTEERS TO TEST IT WITH.
GET A MOVE ON, JIMINY!

QUOTE OF THE DAY

"It's better to be wanted for murder than not be wanted at all."

— Marty Winch

DAILY CROSSWORD PUZZLE
Edited By TRUDE MICHEL JAFFE

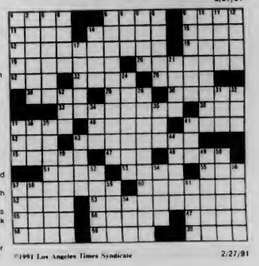
ACROSS
1 — squmante
5 Lowers the lights
9 "— silly question . . ."
13 Put on weight
14 Currency
15 Eng or Chang
16 Tchaikovsky ballet, with "The"
18 Mountain lake
19 Beseech
20 Oberon's spouse
22 Bando or Mineo
23 L.A. problem
25 Seed coating
26 Sonora Indian
28 Border
30 Maternally related
33 With little assurance
36 Explanation
37 Briisher of yore
40 Member of a pool
41 River in Zaire
42 Brouhaha
43 Shortest routes
45 Slip
47 Seaport of NW Morocco
48 Page
51 Gasp for breath
53 Needle case
55 Partner of tuck
57 Was a party to
60 Remove the harness
62 Elizabeth or Robert
63 Stravinsky ballet
65 Rose's love
66 Singer Mills and namesakes
67 Smiggler's catch
68 Complain
69 Historic periods
70 Hook's sidekick

DOWN
1 Choreographer de Mille
2 Finnish baths
3 Iota
4 Enlarge: Abbr
5 Advanced degrees
6 Pen filler
7 Contest
8 Mideast nation
9 Reach
10 Tchaikovsky ballet
11 Diva Te Kanawa
12 Pavlova
14 Distaff title
17 Copal or amber
21 Low card
24 Adolphe Adam ballet
27 Groove
29 Certain chocolates
31 Aviv lead-in
32 Scan
34 Japan or Siam ender
35 Actor Chaney
37 "— Joey"
38 Actress Lupino
39 Delhes ballet
41 Function
43 Twisted
44 Notable Root
46 Shiny fabric
49 Hymn of praise
50 Capricious
52 Plains Indian's home
54 Madrid ones
56 Aspect
57 First person
58 Fortes pitcher Newsom
59 Earl — Biggers' Chan creator
61 Chills
64 Pablo's aunt

ANSWER TO PREVIOUS PUZZLE:

S	U	G	A	R		S	P	A	T		I	N	C	H
O	P	E	R	A		E	L	O	P		D	O	L	O
D	O	N	T	G	E	T	U	P		E	T	O	N
A	N	T	E		S	E	A	T	E	D		U	S	O
			C	A	R	T			U	P	P	E	R
S	I	S	A	L		S	E	A	P	O	R	T
A	R	E	N	A	S		O	N	A		D	O	N	A
F	A	C	A	D	E	S		T	R	A	P	P	E	D
E	N	D	L		R	A	P		S	H	E	A	V	E
		N	O	V	E	L	L	A		A	R	I	A	N
W	E	D	G	E			A	D	A	I	R
H	E	R		T	R	I	G	O	N		L	A	N	A
O	R	A	D		Y	O	U	R	D	A	I	L	Y	J	O	B
R	I	T	E		E	L	S	E		C	R	A	V	E
L	E	E	R		S	A	D	I	E		T	E	X	A	S

2/27/91



©1991 Los Angeles Times Syndicate 2/27/91

~~MENU~~

LUNCH
Processed Slop
Beef Flavored Slop

DINNER
Chicken Flavored Slop
Slop Burgers

BASICS LUNCH
Tofu Flavored Slop
Soy Bean Slop

BASICS DINNER
Organic Slop
Tofu Slop Burgers

YOUR DAILY HOROSCOPE
By JEANE DIXON

ARIES (March 21-April 19): Long-sought-after goals will move withIn reach if you are persistent. Handle money matters with special care and read the fine print. A favorite hobby helps you relax.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20): Relying too heavily on other people could lead to inertia and laziness. Clear your schedule to cancentrate on top-priority projects. Learn to delegate. Romance is on a roll.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20): Help a friend ar relative wha is having an emotional crisis. Trust your hunches at work. Organize your desk and files. Travel will fulfill your desire for adventure; plan a weekend getaway.

CANCER (June 21-July 22): Take advantage of your access to privileged information. Self-improvement courses may be the key to quicker career advancement. Mate or partner is in a cooperative mood.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22): Your hame life becomes happier, especially if you are married to a Capricorn. You feel more secure than in the recent past. Avoid bragging about your accomplishments. A great evening to dine out.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22): Career or business affairs move ahead nicely. Contact influential people in your profession. Innovative ideas receive a fair hearing. Complete joint financial arrangements.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22): Prepare to see a cherished dream come true! A new ally makes a thrilling proposal. Do not be afraid ta take risks, you have everything ta gain. Put your cards on the table.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21): Reassess your values and adjust your sights before you land in hot water. Quiet meditation proves helpful. Talk things over with trusted associates, but follow your own instincts.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21): Guard against falling victim ta seasonal ailments. If you can afford it, take a vacation in a warmer climate. Mate or partner asks far a special favor; do your best to comply.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19): Your humanitarian instincts come to the fore, bringing improvements where needed. Be fair when handling family finances. Give a loved one the benefit af the doubt; you may not have all the facts.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18): Curb a tendency to indulge in gloomy thoughts. You have more going for you than you realize! A special introduction adds glamour to your social life.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20): Keep your business deals to yourself until they come to fruition. Romance could blossom in a most unlikely place! Do not be afraid to show your feelings. Discuss your ideas with loyal friends.

Twin Peaks

CONTINUED FROM PAGE 8

ABC Entertainment president Robert Iger, demanding the show return to a weeknight.

The address is: Robert Iger, Entertainment President, ABC, 2040 Avenue of the Stars, Los Angeles, CA 90067.

And remember, "The owls are not what they seem."

Get Involved!

with campus health issues

SHAB*

- Sponsor health projects
- Represent student health care concerns
- Review UHS budget
- Serve on UHS Search Committees
- Meet other students interested in health care

COME SEE WHAT IT'S ALL ABOUT

Meeting: Thursday, February 28, 1991
Where: UHS Room 302
Time: 5:00 pm

*Student Health Advisory Board (est. 1971)
University Health Services

- Early Bird Specials 3 months $80
- Pro-Rated Semester Special
- Call for details

in The Price Chopper Mall

FLEX Fitness Center
175 University Dr. Amherst •253-FLEX

WHAT'S THE LATEST!

Guest Speaker
David Shumsky '88
MIT Lincoln Labs
Resumes and Interview Techniques By the People Who Do the Hiring
TODAY
1:25 PM
CURRY HICKS ROOM 16

Interested in a co-op? Listen to your peers' frank appraisal of their recent co-op positions!!

ENGINEERING
TODAY
4:00 PM
E-LAB 304

MANAGEMENT
TOMORROW
4:00 PM
SOM 109

All students welcome! Refreshments will be served.

THE MATHER CAREER CENTER
Career Planning and Placement • Cooperative Education • Internships
Fraternity/Sorority Park - on the Orchard Hill bus route. (413)545-2224.
Where Careers Take Off!

Largest College Daily in New England

THE MASSACHUSETTS Established in 1890

DAILY COLLEGIAN

113 Campus Center

CORRESPONDENTS MEETING

Thursday, February 28
6:00 p.m.
IN THE NEWSROOM
All correspondents must attend.

Stockbridge Dean's List, Fall '90

The following students achieved a 3.5 GPA or better with at least 12 graded credits last semester.

Animal Agriculture: Amy L. Roberts Arboriculture and Park Management: Robert E. Aldrich, George T. Clancy, Kelvin C. Mustard, Patrick I. Parker, James D. Redman, Charles H. Rounds, Jr. Equine Industries: Gretchen R. Foster, Tracy E. Taylor Floriculture: Karen J. Larson, Janet A. Mason Fruit and Vegetable Crops: Douglas J. Coldwell Landscape Contracting: Harry E. Hasey, James S. Norcross, Craig R. Putriment, Kip B. Wilson Turfgrass Management: Paul Antoniazzi, David W. Cranmer-Gordon, Ronald P. Dobosz Jr., Thomas A. Edmundson, Robert T. Fenton, Mark J. Kuchera, Richard T. Lawlor, Michael T. Marshall. John W. Merkl, Mark C. Richards, Anthony J. Stefanik, David A. Stowe, Christopher R. Tivy, Michael G. van Slooten, Peter A. White, Eric A. Zars.

In the Dean's List published on February 12, The Collegian erroneously printed that Stockbridge Dean's List students had achieved a 3.25 GPA. The Collegian regrets this error.

Amherst Fire Dept.
is now recruiting for
VOLUNTEER FIRE FIGHTERS

Join the student force
Engine Company 3
Gain Valuable Experience

Serve your Community
For information see our table in the Campus Center Concourse
February 27-March 1
or call 253-9237

CELEBRATE, IT'S PURIM

7:00pm Megillah Reading

8:00pm Party, Carnival, Food, Dancing, Costume Contest with Prizes

wednesday, february 27
UMass Hillel House
388 N. Pleasant St.

COME IN COSTUME!

AP photo

WE'RE GONNA MISS YA, MIKE — Kansas City Royal Mike Boddicker stretches out during practice yesterday at the Baseball City Stadium in Haines City, Fla. Boddicker, newly acquired by the Royals as a free agent, is a former Boston Red Sox.

Red Sox warming up in Florida

● Greenwell suits up

By DAVE O'HARA
The Associated Press

WINTER HAVEN, Fla. — Mike Greenwell, a new member of baseball's $3 million-a-year club, suited up a couple of days early and got in some hitting at the fourth day of training for the Boston Red Sox yesterday at Chain O'Lakes Park.

After Roger Clemens and several other pitchers threw in the first live batting practice, Greenwell did some hitting against the coaches.

He knocked several shots over the right-field fence, including one drive that sounded like a gunshot and brought people out of their condos beyond.

Facing batting coach Richie Hebner shortly after noon, Greenwell hit a curving line drive down the right-field line. It cleared the fence and a culvert, then smashed through a side window of a van rented by WHDH-TV, Channel 7, of Boston.

"I heard it," Greenwell said of his glass-shattering shot more than 400 feet from the plate. "I knew it hit something besides the fence."

Channel 7 sports director John Dennis said, "I'm certainly glad I wasn't in there. It's going to be a little breezy taking our film to the airport, though."

Cecilio Guante, a veteran right-hander signed to a minor league contract for a trial with Boston, remained the only absentee among 24 pitchers on the training roster. Guante is being delayed by a visa problem in the Dominican Republic.

In addition to Greenwell, the pitchers and catchers were joined in the workouts by Ellis Burks, Scott Cooper, Tim Naehring, Carlos Quintana and Jody Reed.

General manager Lou Gorman announced that right-hander Eric Hetzel, who has divided the last two years between Boston and Pawtucket of the International League, had agreed to a one-year contract.

● Clemens at 100%

By DAVE O'HARA
The Associated Press

WINTER HAVEN, Fla. — Five months ago he was battling back from a severe case of tendinitis in his right shoulder.

Sidelined for three weeks in September, Roger Clemens returned to help the Boston Red Sox win the American League East championship, finishing with a 21-6 record and a major league-leading 1.93 earned run average.

Now the big right-hander, a three-time 20-game winner and two-time Cy Young Award choice since 1986, is 100 percent healthy again and chomping at the bit.

Working from the mound for the fourth consecutive day, Clemens became the first pitcher to throw live batting practice in the Red Sox training camp Tuesday.

He was scheduled to throw for 10 minutes, but went a couple more. He threw a total of 59 pitches — 25 to John Marzano, 31 to Ellis Burks, then finished with three to Mike Greenwell. That amounted to about half a regular season game.

"I feel good, not as tired as I thought I might be after throwing four days in a row," Clemens said. "But batting practice is for the hitters. I'm ready to start pitching."

Clemens, who has struck out 1,424 batters in less than seven major league seasons, said he was "pretty close to full speed." But he emphasized that he is not going to overextend himself.

"I probably threw consistently around 84 miles an hour today, and I pumped a few in around 87," he said. "I think I could get it up to 90 right now, but throwing batting practice is kind of tough because you try to make things comfortable for the hitters."

"Roger just put that ball right in there," Manager Joe Morgan said after watching Clemens mix a few sliders and forkballs with his fastball. "It's not surprising. He's been working out at home and there's no reason he shouldn't be throwing well."

CLASSIFIEDS

COME TO THE COLLEGIAN OFFICE—CC 113 MON — THURS 8:30-3:30 ● DEADLINE 2 DAYS PRIOR TO PUBLICATION ● CASH IN ADVANCE, 20¢/WORD/DAY FOR STUDENTS

ACTIVITIES

25 + CLUB: General meeting/social. Discuss activities, elections, socialize. Thursday, 2/28, Campus Center room 917 7:30pm. Dues $3 to vote.

AHORA OUR FIRST general meeting will be today at 7:00pm in Wilder Hall (BCP). Nominations will be taken for election.

ATTENTION
Accounting Association meeting
Tonight 7:00 SOM Lobby

FUN-FILLED NIGHT for Purim at the Hillel House, tonight Feburary 27. Megillah reading at 7:00, Purim Carnival at 8:00.

LOOKING FOR AN ALTERNATIVE to the usual Friday night?
Central Area Govt presents a Bluewall Coffeehouse for all UMass students on Friday March 1st 8pm-12pm. Tickets sold at the door. $2 Central residents, $3 all others.
Stop by for a most excellent time.

ANNOUNCEMENTS

ATTENTION MORTAR BOARD MEMBERS-
Meeting tonight at 7:00pm in the lobby of SOM. All are urged to attend.

BED AND BREAKFAST- downtown ideal for visiting parents and friends- 549-0733.

"CHI OMEGA"
Open rush is on!! Call 549-8460
Monday 2/25 - Dinner at 5pm
Tuesday 2/26 - Movies & Popcorn at 8pm
And Wednesday 2/27 - Dinner at 5pm
Come get to know the sisters and pledges of CHI-O!!

FREE TEDDY BEARS!!
Just come into the Ustore computer dept. and let an IBM rep. give you a 5 minute demo. (while supplies last)

GREEK HONOR SOCIETY
Attention: Order of Omega members,
Important meeting Wed
Feb27 at 9PM -AEP
(food/fun)

LAST CHANCE TO rush Alpha Phi Omega! National Service Fraternity the ultimate coed college experience. Wed 2/27 SUB 415 7:30

ON CAMPUS FUNDRAISER
Needed: Organized and industrious fraternity, sorority, or student group to earn hundreds of dollars for an on-campus marketing project.
Call 1-800-NOW-POST

WORKSHOP ON VIOLENCE AGAINST WOMEN- this Thursday at 6pm Campus Center rm 903
Sponsored by SWE

AUDIO/VIDEO/TV

USED STEREO Components/VCRs/sColor TV's We buy, sell & trade everything from budget systems to high end separates. Detailed list, 50 + items. Call anytime: S/A/V Exchange 256-0941

AUTO FOR SALE

1975 SPITFIRE. Rebuilt motor, good body, free parts car, $900 -323-9470

1987 JEEP WRANGLER V-6 automatic, 47,000 miles, med. blue w/ black top and interior. Much more $7595 -546-3142

BUICK $300 Do you want a reliable car or don't you? 253-3906

A VERY SPECIAL BIRTHDAY

LAST TIME I wrote a rhyme, but on this day, I have a little more from myself to say.... Jen, you are the best thing that has been in my life. I can't stand being away from you. Everytime I see or hear you, I smile. Very happy I've been with you and I know I'll be for a very very long time.
HAPPY BIRTHDAY! I Love You Jen!
Deve

ENTERTAINMENT

LIVE FROM BOSTON Hear the hard driving alternative sound of The Many Live at the Hatch Thur Feb 28th.

RACK-A-DISC is still the best for DJ's and live entertainment. Call anytime 586-9900, ask about our specials

FOR RENT

1 BEDROOM APT on Pulpton. Take over lease in March. Option to renew. Steve 549-8203

AMHERST, 1 BEDROOM AVAILABLE IN 3 BEDROOM, NEW HOUSE ON BUS LINE. FIREPLACE. BEAUTIFUL!! AVAILABLE NOW CALL 8-4, 665-3326

EMERGENCY SITUATION! Looking for 1 person to take over my lease ASAP $250/mos -546-7037/leave message

HIPPEST HOUSE in the world wants housemate. Hatfield, rustic. 5 min from Noho 230 + 247-5248

STUDIO IN AMHERST $460 w/utils. Call Scott 253-0820 After 6pm

WINTER SPECIAL: 1 month rent .99 cents with one year lease
2 Bedroom- $450
3 Bedroom- $537
Sunderland, free bus route, laundry facilities, swimming pool, garden plots, short term lease available 665-3856

FOR SALE

5 STRING BANJO -Bluegrass style $125 247-5248

APPLE 2C COMPATIBLE computer with monitor, software and modem $300 or BO -call 546-3946

DIGITECH GSP-5 Signal processor analog dist. stereo effects $300/BO -Mike 6-4806

FUTONS
Metiswimpe
Top quality gold bond futons
Delivery anywhere in U.S.A.
Sleep with us and save!
1-800-3FUTON1

MAC 512KE & extra drive. Software $600 obo/BO call 548-9334

NEED A COMPUTER? I sell PC's and Mac's -Very competitive prices. Service, and individual attention. Call Dane 546-3933

SANYO AM/FM TWO BAND STEREO Stereo integrated amplifier, semi-automatic, turn table, double-cassette deck with high speed dubbing, continuous play, synchronous dubbing, automatic level control system, counter, C.D.-outlet. GREAT STEREO!!!
MUST SELL — Model GXT707
$90
Please call Theresa at 6-0923

SEGA GENESIS WITH 6 games $250 -Call 546-3946

SUNDAY RIVER
Lift tix
Two all-day reduced
549-7279

USED 125PD TOURING bike for $95 Good condition Call 6-2571

FREE BRUNO'S PIZZA

BOOK A HOUSE/DORM party with RACKADISC and have free food Call 586-9900 for details (limited to UMass & Amherst College)

FOUND

BRACELET, 2/22 in Student Union. Call 665-2227 to describe. Leave message.

HELP WANTED

CAPE SUMMER COD CAMP COED
Need enthusiastic, dedicated people to work/live with kids. Beautiful location, excellent program, competitive salaries. Loads of fun.
Call Doug/Ched at 548-2527 for more info and application

EARN $300 to $500 per week reading books at home. Call 1-615-473-7440 Ext. B-281

HELP WANTED Full or part time. Apply in person Copycat Print Shop 228 Triangle Street Amherst

INTELLIGENCE JOBS. All branches US Customs, DEA ect. Now hiring. Call 1-805-962-8000 Ext. K-9616.

INSTRUCTION

EARN CREDIT learn to Scuba Dive. Basic Classes held Monday, Tuesday, Wednesday, and Thursday 7-10PM in Curry Hicks Pool. Open Water II class held during Spring Break in Key Largo, FLA. Advanced Class held in New England in April. For further information call 548-8401, or drop by Curry Hicks starting 2/4/91.

KNOW YOUR RIGHTS!

DO YOU HAVE questions about your rights? Do you think your civil rights have been violated? Find out! Contact the Legal Services Center, 922 Campus Center, 545-1995.

LOST

BLACK-RIMMED EYEGLASSES in red case -Call Debbi at 546-2411

DIAMOND RING & WEDDING BAND in a purse. 545-2703 eves. 253-9431

EMBROIDERED JEAN JACKET Nov90 - Bring to Campus Center Info Desk ASAP

HEAVY SILVER BRACELET lost on 2/23 near 149 Brittney. If found please call Kristen 253-5474.

KEYS ON HALF the world key chain Please call Andrea 256-6695

REWARDS!!!
Black & gold onyx earring lost Thursday night outside, near Washington 2-21-91. Please call 546-2426
Sentimental Value!!!

SILVER CHARM. Resembles flattened nickel. Very sentimental. Please call 253-2282 -Reward

PERSONALS

AMOLS
Rooftops, MJ, DH. Sandbed, mehonhighway, dcheese, awesome-4some, mowgrass, strip, Olivers, KD, Chris.
Thanks! Happy 21!
Love, Audra

ATTENTION ALL UMASS MEN-
Watch out for Jean M. on her 21st
And keep your clothes on!
Love the LHS

AXO WELCOMES
All their newest pledges!
Here's to a great semester. Good Luck!
Love the sister of
AXO

BLONDE TECHY
We met at a general meeting
I'd like to see you again
Please respond
The Follower

HAPPY BIRTHDAY BILLY!
Have fun uptown, but watch out for those big hairs!
I Love You!
Gin

HEY CRAIG YOU SLUG!
Sorry so late, but I was afraid you'd say no so...Will you be my Valentine?
Love, ESPY

IGU WELCOMES NEW PLEDGES: Heather Ann, Amy, Chenora, Erin, Devra, Amy, Erica, and Melissa.

MECKY,
This is an outrage!
I saw Bush on TV but something else was entirely unrepresented!
HAPPY BIRTHDAY!
-Marie and Andrea

ON FEBRUARY 18, 1991
A person lit himself on fire
in the name of
Peace
Please think about that today

POINT
You might not look it,
but your finally 18
Happy birthday!
Love, Merry

SELINA- I can't find you. Please- another phone message- Tim

TRACEY BROMLEY
Happy 21st Birthday!
We love ya!
Shell, Deb

PIZZA

COLLEGE PIZZA
"Subs " Salads " Spaghetti"
Spring Special
Large cheese $599
Small cheese $350
2 toppings only $1 more
Must mention this ad
549-6098 - 549-8073

RIDE WANTED

RIDE NEEDED TO CORNELL 3/1 return UMass 3/3
Call Julie 6-6364

ROOMMATE WANTED

N. AMHERST, 5 minutes to UMass. Female to share 2 bedroom apt., $195. 549-4721

WOMAN WANTED FOR 3-bdrm. apt. in Noho: 1 large bedroom, newly painted, bright place. Available now! Call Jess at 584-2750

SERVICES

PREGNANT?
Need a pregnancy test, information or support? Call for free and confidential services. ALTERNATIVES 33 Main Street Northampton 586-3000 or Greenfield 774-8010

SERVICES/WORDPROCESSING

DISSERTATIONS, CASES, PAPERS, On-campus pickup. Fast! Accurate! Mac/Laser. Spellchecks. Nancy 584-7924

SPRING BREAK

SPRING BREAK PARTY!
Travel to Jamaica, Mexico! And Panama City, FL! Concerts! Free Parties! Club discounts! And lots more! For info call Denise 546-7156.

SUBLET

GREAT APARTMENT 2 rm. off campus. North Amherst -Big yard, storage, perfect for two people. Available now! Call 549-6027

TRAVEL

CAN'T AFFORD SPRING BREAK? Guaranteed great prices! Space available to Jamaica, Mexico and Panama City Beach, Florida (the "new Daytona Beach")! MC/VISA are accepted! Call Cindy at 549-3538 -please leave a message!

CARIBBEAN - $189!
The warmth of the Caribbean or Mexican coast for a week!
R/T air, SUNHITCH + m, 212-864-2000

FLORIDA'S NEWEST HOT SPOT
Paneme City-$139
World's biggest beach party
Daytona Beach-$199
Call Erice or Julie- 546-2649 or
Siobhan or Terri- 548-5079
March 8 deedline -March 8 deadline

TYPING

CAMPUS PICKUP AND DELIVERY, fast-cheap- accurate work -Lisa 256-6695

CHEAP RATES!, Fast!, Accurate!, Dependable!, Campus pickup and delivery. Adam 253-9117

FAST, ACCURATE TYPING with spellcheck and boldface. $1.45/pg Call Greg -546-0259

RESUMES, PAPERS, anything typed or typeset. Fast, professional service. Affordable rates. KCommunications, 256-8373

WANTED

CASH FOR GOLD. Unwanted jewelry? Necklaces, watches, rings. We buy anything containing gold. Call 546-3399

TIMBER LAKE CAMPS -located in NY's Catskill Mountains seek General Counselors, Athletic Instructors, and WSI'S. On-campus interviews. Top salaries/travel allowance. 800-828-CAMP (9-4:30 weekdays)

SPORTS

'Krunch time' in Kingston

By SAM SILVERSTEIN
Collegian Staff

For the University of Massachusetts men's basketball team, tonight's game is a monster.

One loss separates five teams, including UMass, bunched in the middle of the Atlantic 10 men's basketball standings.

Every team in the league has one game left before this weekend's A-10 tournament at the Palestra in Philadelphia.

When all possible combinations and permutations are run through the computer, one thing becomes clear: If UMass looses to Rhode Island tonight in Kingston (7:30 p.m.), the Minutemen will join the bottom three teams in the league for Saturday's dreaded first-round tournament 'play-in.'

Since the league expanded to 10 teams and added an extra round to its postseason tournament in 1983, just one first round team, St. Bonaventure in 1984, has advanced as far as the final round. No team seeded lower than fifth has ever won the championship.

UMass is currently 16-10 overall and tied with George Washington for sixth in the league at 9-8.

"It's as big a game for us as we've had all year," coach John Calipari said.

In Sunday's 103-96 loss at Rutgers, and last week's game against Temple, UMass fell behind by double digits to start the game. The Owls held a 20-8 lead midway through the first half, and Rutgers raced to a 15-2 lead in less than four minutes Sunday.

The trend could force some changes in UMass' starting lineup tonight, according to Calipari. John Tate could step into Will Herndon's spot, and Anton Brown may start for Rafer Giles, Calipari said.

"If we play [tonight] like we started against Rutgers and Temple, we'll come back 9-9. We were just tentative, which is another word for playing scared."

For Rutgers, Scarlet Knights star Keith Hughes scored 33 points and grabbed 16 rebounds and Earl Duncan scored nine of his 22 points in overtime.

Jim McCoy scored 30 points for UMass, and Tony Barbee added 23. Harper Williams scored 19 points and blocked three shots.

The previous meeting between UMass and URI Feb. 1 provided one of the most memorable moments of the season, when Rafer Giles floated home a three-pointer at the buzzer in overtime to carry the Minutemen to a 70-67 win at the Cage.

With the shot, Giles also became the 18th player in school history to score 1,000 career points. Giles and McCoy scored 17 apiece and Herndon had 15 points and nine rebounds.

The Minutemen were outrebounded 46-33, and trailed for much of the game.

"They outplayed us and we ended up winning on a three-point shot," Calipari said.

Rhode Island (11-15, 6-11) rocked Temple with a 63-62 win last week at McGonigle Hall in Philadelphia, where the Owls had not lost in more than four years. The Rams returned to earth Saturday with a 78-76 loss to St. Joe's.

Leading scorer Eric Leslie missed most of the past three weeks with an injured shooting hand, then returned Saturday and scored six points in 15 minutes off the bench. Leslie is the No. 3 scorer in the A-10 with 19.9 points a game.

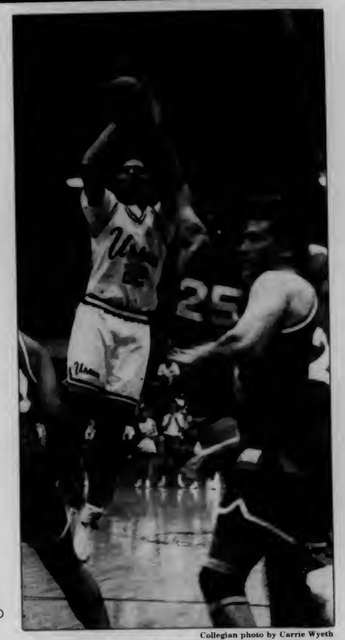
Freshman Carlos Cofield emerged offensively in Leslie's absence, scoring in double figures in six of his last seven games. Cofield scored a career-best 22 points against St. Joe's.

Junior center Jeff Kent ranks second in the A-10 in rebounding at 8.5 per game.

Game notes: The game will be broadcast on WMUA 91.1 FM and WHMP 99.3 FM.

Atlantic 10 Standings

	A-10 rec.	A-10 pct.	Overall rec.	Overall pct.
1. Rutgers	13-4	0.765	18-8	0.692
2. Temple	12-5	0.706	19-8	0.704
3. West Virginia	10-7	0.588	17-9	0.654
4. Duquesne	10-7	0.588	13-13	0.500
5. Penn State	10-7	0.588	15-11	0.577
6. Massachusetts	9-8	0.529	16-10	0.615
7. George Washington	9-8	0.529	16-10	0.615
8. St. Joseph's	6-11	0.353	10-16	0.385
9. Rhode Island	6-11	0.353	11-15	0.423
10. St. Bonaventure	0-17	0.000	5-21	0.192



Collegian photo by Carrie Wyeth

Tony Barbee, shown shooting against Boston University, and the Minutemen face Rhode Island in Kingston at 7:30 tonight in their final regular season game.

Gymnasts prepared to perform against Springfield, URI

By ADRIEN MATT
Collegian Staff

All Alfie Mitchell expects is consistency.

The coach of the University of Massachusetts women's gymnastics team will not ask for more, just more of the same when it hosts Springfield College and Rhode Island at 7 p.m. in Boyden gym.

In its third tri-meet of the season, the 7-1 Minutewomen can be expected to score in the 183 to 184 point range, according to Mitchell, "with a few good all-arounds."

Sophomore Tammy Marshall and junior Kim Grady will compete in the all-around. Marshall has posted the highest team average with 37.79 points and Grady boasts a 36.2 average.

"I'm expecting her to come up," said Mitchell of junior Erin Kleir who averages 36.45 points in the all-around. "She hasn't hit every event yet and she's capable of doing it."

Margaret Furtado will also compete in the all-around.

"When she's on, she's great," Mitchell said of the freshman who averages 36.34. Furtado is averaging 9.5 on the uneven parallel bars, 9.4 on the balance beam and 9.3 on both the vault and floor.

Rhode Island, traditionally tough competition, has been scoring in the 180 to 185 team-point range this season and is backed by a seasoned coach, Charlie Connery.

"We've beaten them [for the past two years], but not by a wide margin," Mitchell said cautiously.

Competing in the all-around will be seniors Vicki Hughes and Lan Incardon. Incardon has qualified for the New England Regional meet for the past two years, according to Mitchell.

Like UMass, the Rams will also compete with a sophomore-laden team.

Springfield, however, boasts more veterans than UMass and URI combined. The team, coached by 11-year veteran Cheryl Raymond, has been scoring team points in the 170-181 range. UMass has won the past three meets against Springfield.

UMass competitors will include: sophomore Abby May on beam (9.55 personal best score), sophomore Lisa Beth Cronen (9.15) on bars, freshman Erica Finkelman (9.3) on floor, freshman Angela Jent on both vault and bars and junior Dana Curren, a transfer from New Mexico, on the beam.

Collegian photos by Jeff Holland

CAL IN ACTION — Just a few of the many game faces UMass men's basketball coach John Calipari displays for the players, referees and fans.

Bush declares cease-fire

By TERENCE HUNT
Associated Press

WASHINGTON — President Bush announced last night that "Kuwait is liberated. Iraq's army is defeated." He said that at midnight "all United States and coalition forces will suspend offensive combat operations."

In an Oval Office address, Bush said the allied forces would implement a permanent cease fire when Iraq releases all coalition prisoners of war, hostages of third-country nations and the remains of all those who have been killed in action.

He also said Baghdad must comply with all United Nations resolutions. Iraqi officials said earlier in the day that they are ready to comply with some, but not all of the resolutions.

He also said the suspension of combat operations was dependent upon Iraqi forces not firing on coalition troops and no more Scud missile attacks.

After 100 hours of ground war, Bush said, "The Kuwaiti flag flies above the capital of a free and sovereign nation and the American flag flies above the embassy" in Kuwait City.

"This war is now behind us," Bush said. "Ahead of us is the task of achieving a potentially historic peace" in the Middle East.

Bush made his dramatic announcement on the 42nd day of the war with Iraq.

The cease-fire came after a tank battle in southern Iraq ended any serious threat from Iraq's ballyhooed Republican Guard.

"It is up to Iraq whether the suspension on the part of the coalition becomes a permanent cease-fire," Bush said, adding later: "If Iraq violates these terms, coalition forces will be free to resume military operations."

Bush said it was not time for gloating or euphoria, but for pride in the troops of the coalition.

The president spoke as commander in chief of 537,000 American forces in the Gulf, and the head of an unprecendented international coalition marshalled to counter Saddam Hussein's invasion of Kuwait on Aug. 2.

Seven months ago, Bush said, the nation drew a line in the sand and said Iraq's ag-

CONTINUED ON PAGE 2

AP photo

An American special forces soldier is mobbed by jubilant Kuwait City residents Tuesday night as the city was liberated from Iraqi forces.

Largest College Daily in New England

THE MASSACHUSETTS Established in 1890

DAILY COLLEGIAN

VOLUME C THURSDAY, FEBRUARY 28, 1991 ISSUE 91

Deaths lead to questions about smoke detector law

By TAMIR LIPTON
Collegian Staff

A "political decision"in Amherst may have cost two people their lives.

No one will ever know, but if the house at 284 North Pleasant St., which burned down Feb. 17, had been equipped with smoke detectors, the lives of Joseph Pirog and Matthew Peterson, both 22, may have been saved.

The house contained no smoke detectors and, according to a law adopted last spring by the town, was not required to have any until April 28 of this year, said Paul Lalonde, assistant fire chief for the town of Amherst.

Last April, Town Meeting members decided to adopt section 26E, chapter 148 of Massachusetts General Law, which mandates that all residential areas must be furnished with smoke detectors. The law was enacted by the state on Feb. 15, 1990, but Town Meeting members gave landlords one year from the adoption date in April to install detectors.

But a fire official from the state fire marshal's office in Boston said Town Meeting members misinterpreted the law and had the authority to allow landlords less time to install the detectors.

"I don't think the law sets a date by which towns [that adopt the law] must give a certain amount of time," said Fire Safety Code Engineer Philip O'Sullivan, from the fire prevention department at the state fire marshal's office in Boston. "It's up to the town to determine what the compliance date is."

The town's attorney, Robert Ritchie, confirmed yesterday that it would have been legal to require less time.

"It was a political decision to give landlords one year," Ritchie said. "It would have been legal if they had made it less than a year."

But Lalonde said landlords were given a year to install smoke detectors because "that's the way the law was regulated by the legislature. The town had to give them a year."

O'Sullivan said this confusion stems from a well-intentioned but poorly written law.

"Everyone I've talked to is confused about it," he said. "The reason towns think they have to give a year to comply is because of what it says in section four."

Section four says that buildings regulated by this act must be equipped with smoke detectors "no later than one year, from the effective date of this act," in towns with a population of 50,000 or less.

"It says, 'and no later than one year, from the effective date of this act,'" O'Sullivan said. "Well, the effective date of the act is Feb. 15, 1990."

Lalonde said he was confused by this interpretation of the law, saying "it says

CONTINUED ON PAGE 7

Victims' friends recall life before tragedy

By MARIA SACCHETTI
Collegian Staff

The second week in March would have brought a double celebration to 284 North Pleasant St. this year, as Jay Pirog and Matt Peterson both turned 23.

But their closest friends said yesterday the days will only add to the memory of two hopeful lives taken too soon.

Joseph Pirog of Arlington died early Sunday Feb. 17, as fire swept the two story white Colonial he shared with five friends. Matthew Peterson of Framingham died Tuesday, Feb. 19 from burns sustained in the fire.

"We miss them severely," said their housemate, Timothy Corely, yesterday. Corley sustained minor injuries in the fire.

The housemates and friends have banded together for support while living in scattered apartments until they can find a place of their own.

They are tired and grieving, and overwhelmed by the outpouring of help from the community. The Laundry Club took the soot out of their clothes, Seasons restaurant donated food, Ritz camera donated film for memorial pictures, and Mike's Westview provided relief.

But they cannot stop wondering if things would be different today if the shrill scream of a smoke alarm had ripped through the house instead of silence and flames.

Benn Vernadakis said he asked his landlord three times over the last year and a half to install smoke alarms. The smoke alarms never came, but a searing fire did, gutting the house. Amherst fire investigators blame a lit cigarette for the fire.

"He said if we wanted them we should put them in," said Vernadakis of his landlord, George A. Ray, co-owner with Charles E. Ray, both of Middlebury, Conn. "We never foresaw anything like this happening."

George A. Ray has told the Collegian that he refuses to comment.

For now, the housemates say, they are picking up the pieces. They are remembering the 'family' that lived together, some who had been friends for five years. And the party they planned for Matt, born on March 10, and for Jay, born four days later.

On their last night together, Pirog, Peterson, Vernadakis, Corley, and some friends gathered to "sit around and drink a few beers and listen to music," Corley said. "We had the best night with both of them. They were both so happy."

"Jay was my best friend," Vernadakis said, adding that they had planned to drive their motorcycles West for the summer. "He had, out of anyone I knew, everything together. He would party with the best of us, but he got a 4.0 in his last semester."

Pirog was a UMass senior studying chemistry and animal science. He played the trumpet and dreamed of going to University of Colorado at Boulder, where he could continue his studies and the ac-

CONTINUED ON PAGE 8

INSIDE:

THURSDAY, FEBRUARY 28, 1991

Page 3: Senate starts impeachment proceedings against SGA president; ousts speaker and treasurer.

Pullout: Branford Marsalis, the man is everywhere, and he's here tonight! See This Weekend.

Page 12: Jim McCoy shines as the UMass Minutemen defeat URI, 82-70.

WEATHER

Cold tonight but warmer tomorrow with highs in the 40s. Don't lose the wool socks yet!

House approves budget package

By MARK HENSLEY
Collegian Staff

The Massachusetts House of Representatives approved a $150 million budget balancing package yesterday as a part of its effort to cut $850 million from the state budget by June 30, Rep. Stanley Rosenberg (D-Amherst) said.

The most controversial aspect of the package is a proposal to borrow $90 million from the Annuity Fund, an investment fund made up of voluntary contributions from state employees. The loan would be taken out in the form of state bonds sold to the Annuity Fund as an investment.

The loan replaces Gov. Weld's plan to furlough all state employees for 10 days. Weld, who has said non-essential parts of state government would have to be shut down should borrowing become necessary, is adamantly against the Annuity Fund proposal.

"I take [Weld's] comments as a reminder that we have a deadline and that we have to act," Rosenberg said.

Rosenberg approved of the Annuity Fund proposal but had originally proposed to sell the bonds to the general public in order to spread the burden of the deficit.

Walter A. DeFillipi (R-W. Springfield) said the loan plan "stinks," and that Massachusetts already spends approximately eight percent of its budget paying off debts and has the worst bond rating in the country.

DeFillipi criticized the entire budget package saying that "no cuts with any validity" had been made and that an opportunity to make state government more efficient was lost.

DeFillipi said companies across the country were finding ways to cut back and become more efficient while Massachusetts continued to find ways to avoid cutting back.

"Businesses are disenchanted with the Com-

CONTINUED ON PAGE 6

THE MASSACHUSETTS
DAILY COLLEGIAN

New England's largest college daily newspaper. Circulation: 19,000. Published every weekday during the calendar semester. The Massachusetts Daily Collegian is a Registered Student Organization of the University of Massachusetts.

113 Campus Center, Amherst, MA, 01003
Phone (413) 545-3500 FAX (413) 545-1592

STAFF

Editor in Chief....Terry Starmer
Managing Editor....Jody Gabin
Editorial Editor....Jeremy Levinson
News Editor....Gayle Long
Sports Editor....Adrien Matt
Arts Editor....Danielle Dowling
Photography Editor....K.A. Banke
Black Affairs Editor....Sondra Sutton
Women's Issues Editors....Rua Kelly, Monique Tabon
Multicultural Affairs Editor....Alexander Nguyen
Third World Affairs Editor....Pratip Dastidar
Lesbian, Bisexual, Gay Issues Editor....Trystan Skeigh
Business Manager....Susan George
Advertising Manager....Dave Melnick
Finance Manager....Beth Patterson
Circulation Manager....Jim Winterbottom
Subscriptions Manager....Stacey Rogers
Promotions Manager....Marc Pruskin
Production Manager....Nicole Dumas
Day Graphics Manager....Jenn Burns

PROFESSIONAL STAFF

Business....Brian Harrington, Lori Black, Maureen Majerowski
Graphics....Rory Evans

TODAY'S STAFF

Night Editor....Maria Sacchetti
Copy Editor....Yana Still No Real Lenses Dhigy
Layout Technician....Super Seth
Photo Technician....Alexandra Rizzo
Production Supervisor....Stressed Out Seth
Typesetter....Quimby
Production....Cole Slaw, Mike "Go Home" Reekie, STU Luhan, SubGenius

For Your Information

THURSDAY, FEBRUARY 28

Purim celebration — The Chabad House will hold a late Megillah reading at 4:45 p.m. All are welcome, no charge.

Meeting — The ALANA Honor Society will sponsor a meeting of the semester in the library of the New Africa House at 5:30 p.m. All interested are welcome.

Film Series — The Program for Gay, Lesbian and Bisexual Concerns will sponsor a film, "Law of Desire" at 7 p.m. in Campus Center room 803. Free.

Lecture — Sponsored by Western Massachusetts Solidarity, there will be an educational forum at the Unitarian Society in Northampton from 7 p.m.-9 p.m. There will be a dance following from 10 p.m.-1 a.m.

FRIDAY, MARCH 1

Jumaa Salat — Sponsored by the Muslim Student Organization in CC 805 at 12:30 p.m.

SATURDAY, MARCH 2

Games Tournament and College Bowl — UMass will host the 1991 Northeast Regional Games Tournament and College Bowl through Sunday in the Campus Center Basement and the Student Union Ballroom. Admission is free.

Gay, Lesbian, and Bisexual Cafe — Featuring singer/songwriter Erica Wheeler, at Hampden Theatre at 8 p.m. For more information, call 545-4824.

Student Empowerment Workshop — Sponsored by the Commuter Area Government from 12 p.m.-6 p.m. Check the information desk in the CC for room number.

■ war ends

CONTINUED FROM PAGE 1

gression would not stand.

"America and the world have kept their word," he said.

Bush said he has asked Secretary of State James Baker to work with the United Stations Security Council on "the necessary arrangements for this war to be ended" formally.

"At every opportunity, I have said to the people of Iraq that our quarrel was not with them but instead with their leadership," Bush said. "This remains the case. You the people of Iraq are not the enemy. We do not seek your destruction. We have treated your POWs with kindness.

"We must now begin to look beyond victory in war. We must meet the challenge of securing peace."

Run a $3 million business sooner than you think.

$3 million. It's a lot of responsibility. It's a lot of challenge. And it's where you can be in just 3-5 years with Walgreens. That's the average time it takes for our Management Trainees to be running their own operation with 25-30 employees and approaching $4 million in sales. And that's just the start because there are plenty of ongoing opportunities available.

We're the nation's largest retail drugstore chain—a $6 billion company and an American retail success story. Over the last 5 years we've added 562 new stores and averaged over 16% annual growth. And our rapid pace of expansion continues unabated.

Take our growth, award winning management, plus an outstanding in-depth training program, and you've got the beginnings of a great future.

We're looking for talented individuals to become Management Trainees with opportunities nationwide.

CAMPUS INTERVIEWS
March 1st
See your placement office for sign-up information

If unable to see us on campus, send a resume or letter to our corporate headquarters: Don Moseley, Management Recruiter, Walgreen Co., 200 Wilmot Road, Deerfield, IL 60015. Equal Opportunity Employer.

Walgreen Co.

PLEASANT ST. THEATER
27 Pleasant St. Northampton 586-0935

"THE SHELTERING SKY" RIVETS THE ATTENTION." — Newsweek, THE NEW YORK TIMES

THE SHELTERING Sky

R

Sheltering Sky
weekdays & Fri at 6:30 and 9:05 pm/Sat and Sun at 4, 6:30 and 9:05 pm

Tales from the Winnipeg film group

Tales from Winnipeg Film Group
weekdays at 7 and 9/Fri at 5:45, 7:40 and 9:35/Sat and Sun at 3:45, 5:45 and 7:40, 9:35

First shows on Fri, Sat & Sun $3.50 admission

fast friendly delivery
256-8911 HADLEY
535-1111 S. HADLEY
(Free Delivery to Mt. Holyoke)
Not valid in Northampton

Clip And Save
Pick-Up Or Delivery
2 Medium Pizzas & 2 Toppings $9.99
Order 2 medium Domino's Pizzas with 2 toppings and pay only $9.99. Sales tax where applicable.
Valid at participating stores only. Not valid with any other offer. Limited delivery areas to ensure safe driving. Customer pays sales tax where applicable. Drivers carry less than $20

Clip And Save
Pick-Up Or Delivery
Large Cheese & 1-Topping Pizza
Only $5.99
One Coupon Per Person
Offer Expires 3/31/91
DELIVERED IN 30 MIN. OR LESS
NOT GOOD WITH ANY OTHER OFFER SC

DOMINO'S PIZZA

SPRING BREAK
Prices from $419 complete
JAMAICA! CANCUN! BAHAMAS!

STARTING MARCH 2, 1991 THROUGH APRIL 6, 1991
BOOK NOW LIMITED SPACE!
Spring Break is Just AroundTheCorner! (Based on Quad Occupancy)
MASTER CARD, VISA and AMERICAN EXPRESS Accepted

VACATION SPECIALISTS PRESENTED BY ADVANCE TRAVEL SERVICES, INC.
For information Contact: CHRIS "BUTTERMAKER" AT 549-0076

COMPLETE PARTY WEEK INCLUDES:
R.T. airfare (from select cities) airport/hotel transfers, 7 nights hotel accommodations at selected hotel, three hour advance get squainted party cruise, beach parties, free admission into select nightclubs, all hotel taxes & gratuities included, and advanced travel tour hosts on location

(Departure Tax Not Included) U.S. $6.00 - Mexican $12.00 - Bahamas $8.00 - Jamaica $18.00

RUSSELL'S
Discount LIQUORS Discount
18 Main St. Downtown Amherst 253-5441

Featuring Busch Beer
$10.49 Suitcase

Kahlua Full liter $16.99

Sam Adams Your Choice $4.99 6/pk
Busch Kegs 41.95

Sutter Home White Zinfandel 750 ml
Tellwride Beer 6/pk 4.25
Many More In-Store Specials (especially on wines)

Koch's Golden Anniversary 16 oz bots $9.49

Gilbeys Vodka Full liter $6.99

Zarkoff Vodka 1.75 L $8.99

All Beers plus deposit Delivery Available

LOCAL

Senate removes officers, tries to impeach president

By MARC ELLIOTT
Collegian Staff

The Undergraduate Student Senate removed Speaker Dan Chesnicka and Treasurer Karen Talbot from their positions and began impeachment proceedings against President Natasha Diephuis last night.

The SGA president must be tried by the Student Supreme Court and convicted by a two thirds senate majority to be offically impeached.

President Diephuis questioned the senate's ability to represent the students.

"In my opinion the senate doesn't represent the student voice," she said. "A student came up to me last night in the Hatch, who I didn't know, and told me that she supported the officers' request for a commission and told me that she felt that the senate had never represented her or the other students and those are the people I'm representing."

The senate elected Sen. Jeffery Turco as interim speaker and Patricia Donoghue as interm treasurer, after they ran unopposed.

The motion to remove Chesnicka and Talbot from their positions was presented by Sen. David Gagne (McNamara) and passed 26 to 12 with two abstentions.

Board of Governors Chairperson Susan Gordon spoke in favor of the removal, denouncing the officers' actions on Jan. 30 when they asked the University of Massachusetts administration to step in and restructure the SGA.

"It was my intention tonight, as a student leader to encourage the senate to take the proper principled stand on the issue," she said. "That is, to send a message to the campus community that the Senate will not break apart, that the officers have abused their positions, abandoned their mission and otherwise, done a great disservice to the student body."

Chesnicka said that his removal did not concern him very much.

"I only wish the senate spent as much time correcting its shortcomings as it does trying to figure out who to blame," Chesnicka said. "I believe my energy is far better utilized working on the commission to build a more effective SGA than it is swinging a gavel in anarchy."

Karen Talbot was unavailable for comment.

Toward the end of the meeting the number of senators dwindled and the senate did not have the required number present needed to officially respond to the administration's role in restructuring student government.

The commission, which is holding its first meeting at 4:30 p.m. today in room 803 of the Campus Center, will proceed without senate input unless the senate elects six students to sit on the commission by 5 p.m. Friday, according to the director of student activities, Irene Carew. If no one is elected by that time, Carew said, President Diephuis will pick the student representatives to the commission.

Student Attorney General Adam Scales expressed regret that the senate was not able to pass any response to the administration's decree of Feb. 12, which created the commission.

"Although we took care of some vitally important housekeeping details, we have failed utterly to fulfill our responsibility to the students of this campus by representing them on the commission, or rather, the 'syndicate' as I like to say," he said.

Many senators now question the validity of Talbot and Chesnicka's positions on the commission now that they have been removed.

Carew said that they would remain on the commission and will still be recognized by the administration as the treasurer and speaker.

Sen. Kevin Newnan (Johnson) made fun of the administration's stance. "It's like saying that Nicolae Ceausescu is still recognized as the leader of Romania, even though he was ousted and executed," Newnan said.

Photo by Heather Norfleet

CAPPUCINO UNDER CLOUDS — Lisa Ginsburg takes a break from schoolwork to relax downtown and sip a cup of cappucino.

Doctors give compulsive eating and bulimia workshop

By ALEXANDER NGUYEN
Collegian Staff

"The statistics on eating disorders are startling, and reflect the tyranny of societal standards of beauty and the pressure to be thin," said last night Dr. Amy Kahn, a licensed psychologist based in Northampton.

Kahn, who has 15 years of experience in group facilitation and psychotherapy, and Arleen Thomson, a nutritionist registered with the American Dietetic Association with 17 years of experience, are providing The Eating Disorders Recovery Program focusing on treatment for compulsive eating and bulimia.

The program is giving a free introductory workshop tonight at 48 North Pleasant St. in room 205 at 7:30. The free workshop is being given to inform people of the 10-week program offering a psychological, nutritional and fitness approach for the recovery from eating disorders.

"Last year 60 million Americans, of which 90 percent were women, spent $30 billion on weight loss programs and 90 percent of them regained the weight," Thomson said.

"Some of the goals for participants are to reduce preoccupation with food, body image improvement, break the binge-purge/binge-starvation cycle, achieve healthy eating behavior and establish ongoing post-group support," she said.

Some of the program's methods will be to give presentations on the psychology and physiology of compulsive eating and bulimia, relaxation techniques such as meditation and guided imagery and guidance on exercise for weight control and stress reduction, Thomson said.

"Compulsive eating, anorexia nervosa and bulimia are the three major eating disorders that are pervasive and growing among women in the United States as well as most Western countries. While they are distinct syndromes that differ in the degree of psychopathology and in the physical presentation of the patients, they have basic commonalities," Kahn said.

Kahn said that dieting leads to weight gain and a cycle of binging and starvation and binging and purging through laxatives and/or self-induced vomiting.

"These eating disorders damage the body and can be life threatening," Kahn said. "Many average weight or slightly above average weight people, predominantly women, attempt to lose ten pounds through calorie restricting diets only to rebound and gain 30 plus back," she said.

Laxative abuse damages the colon and may lead to the need for a colostomy, she said. Vomiting damages the teeth, stomach, throat and esophagus, and can cause dehydration which in turn can cause an electrolyte imbalance leading to arrhythmia and cardiac arrest. Both laxative abuse and self-induced vomiting become addictive, she said.

More information concerning the Program and free workshop can be acquired from Arleen Thomson, 548-9385, or Amy Kahn, 548-9477.

Students raise money for Israel

Hillel to send funds to aid sites hit by Scuds

By TAMARA SILBERMAN
Collegian Staff

Operation HOPE, a fundraising drive for the hundreds of people in Israel whose property was damaged by Iraqi Scud missiles, is being run by students at Hillel.

The drive is named after the Hatikva neighborhood in southern Tel Aviv, which was the first neighborhood to be bombed. 'Hatikva" means hope, according to Esther Mattes, head of the raffle committee for Hillel, the largest Jewish student group on campus.

"We hope to raise over a thousand dollars," Mattes said.

Operation HOPE will hold a raffle and is planning to give away a remote-control compact disc player as first prize. Parents and relatives of Operation HOPE committee members have donated money for the disc player and many local businesses have donated smaller prizes, she said.

Rabbi Saul Perlmutter said he was pleased that UMass students have found a way to get involved.

"Many people have felt powerless to do anything about this terrible situation," he said. "Operation HOPE is not only to benefit those unfortunate families in the Hatikva neighborhood whose homes have been destroyed, but also to give us a concrete way to be involved. This is a wonderful way to show we care."

According to Yehudit Heller, program director of UMass Hillel, similar groups at the University of Pennsylvania and Brandeis University have already raised several thousand dollars.

Raffle tickets will be on sale next week. The drawing will be at the Bluewall Cafeteria dance on April 6, Mattes said.

Students to go to Washington to lobby for increased financial aid

By THOMAS A. GEORGE
Collegian Correspondent

Fifty University of Massachusetts students are preparing to leave Saturday for the nation's capitol to lobby members of the U.S. Congress for increased financial aid.

SAFA, Students Advocating Financial Aid, is a Registered Student Organization formed in 1979 to allow interested students to view the inner workings of government.

In the fall SAFA recruits new members, develops specific lobbying goals and targets, and raises funds. Over the past three weeks, SAFA members have attended 10 hours of training on financial aid programs, congressional procedures, and lobbying techniques.

Gerry Grady, former UMass business manager as well as a one-time Congressional candidate, is the advisor to SAFA. He has been at the University since 1959.

"Gerry is a mentor to all of us at SAFA," said member Jeff Cronin. "Listening to his political war stories is one of the best parts of the trip."

The students divide into teams of three or four and each team is assigned certain legislators to interview. Special interest is paid to members of the education, legislative and appropriations committees, and the Massachusetts delegation.

Students hope to convince legislators that federal appropriations for needy and qualified students in higher education should not be reduced and that financial aid funds should not be used to finance new educational programs, according to the official 1991 SAFA policy.

Proposals providing for income contingent aid, block grants, and direct loans, require futher study and testing, and

CONTINUED ON PAGE 6

EDITORIAL/OPINION

The opinions on this page are those of the individual writer or cartoonist and do not necessarily reflect the views of the Collegian or the University unless otherwise noted.

Will all the 'good' Americans please stand up

I saw a peacenik bumper sticker yesterday whose slogan, "Peace is Patriotic" led me to write this column. I began to wonder what precisely is patriotism and why the war protesters continually have to reaffirm their allegiance to this country. Simply, 'patriotism' is a love of, or at least a dedication to, one's nation, or one's 'fatherland' - as the root of the word implies. What does it mean for something or someone to be 'American?' We are not discussing residents of Chile, Panama or Canada; rather, we limit ourselves to the United States when we refer to America.

The Young Americans for Freedom say that someone is a 'Good American' if he or she promotes traditional conservative values, whatever those values might be. Good Americans support the War. ('Good' Egyptians support the war too, and many of them hate America.)

This leads us to consider xenophobia. A blind hatred, or fear, of foreigners is American. Nativism and blind emotions without rationale are typically American. "Love it or leave it" is American. I always said that "Love it or change it" is American. "Patriotism is the last refuge of a scoundrel," is a great quote to throw at someone who wraps themselves up in the flag and calls people 'UnAmerican.' Try it sometime and watch the ensuing confusion. (Lisa Simpson said that 'Prayer' is the last refuge of the scoundrel. Perhaps there is a connection here for someone else to explore.) To sum up these folks, anything or anyone who agrees with them is 'American,' and all else is treason: Liking vodka, driving a Honda or speaking Spanish.

Mark B. Adler

The issue of Puerto Rican statehood has been in the news recently. Some Congressional Republicans are trying to kill a referendum because they know that the Puerto Rican Congressional delegation would be strongly Democratic. Instead of admitting to their partisan antics - a tactic that is very American - they chose to be racist instead, wondering if Puerto Ricans could assimilate well into 'our' culture. These closed-minded men seem to forget that 'our' culture is based on a conglomeration of other cultures.

Freedom is American. However, freedom of speech is not. The ACLU is dedicated to preserving the natural and civil rights upon which this country has thrived, yet Michael Dukakis's patriotism was questioned upon his membership in the ACLU. When the Young Communists League held a national convention here on campus three years ago, the Young Republicans marched outside the Student Union singing the National Anthem. While the Young Republicans believed that Communism is not American, the Young Communists joined in the singing.

Burning the flag is UnAmerican. For the protestor, their demonstration displays an anger, frustration and hatred for a governmental system that doesn't work for them. And yet, that very system, however, told them that their protest was acceptable: The Supreme Court upheld flag burning and the Congress refused to adopt an amendment prohibiting it. Flag-burners are not UnAmerican, they are merely annoying.

A P.O.W. in Vietnam was being tortured by his captors. They showed him T.V. footage of protesters burning the flag. The Communist interrogators asked, "How can you love a country where the people burn their own flag?" His reply was that he loved his country because people were allowed to burn their own flag. That veteran was very patriotic and he was a good American.

Yes, protesting war is patriotic. Protesting itself is patriotic. These people are good Americans. They may or may not be good people, but their dedication to this country can not be questioned. Frankly, I do support the war (with reservations) but people who think the war has anything to do with patriotism are sick.

They are bad Americans.

Mark B. Adler is an Collegian Columnist.

Standing behind war, Israel

As an American Jew, I feel that what George Bush is doing is the right thing. First off, I believe that he did not directly plunge into the war. After a considerable amount of attempts of negotiation with Iraq, he finally gave an ultimatum. He gave this ultimatum because he wanted Saddam Hussein to know that the United States is serious about getting Iraq out of Kuwait. Why? Because Hussein was going into Kuwait and killing innocent people and taking away their freedom. If the United States did not interfere with these wrongful doings, there would be the possibility of Hussein turning into another Adolph Hitler. Once he conquered Kuwait, he might have attempted to spread his power and continue killing innocent people, and eventually attack the Jewish state of Israel. Of course we cannot be sure of what the future would have held if the U.S. did not interfere, yet the chance that something could have happened was too dangerous.

I believe that Bush knew exactly what he was getting into. If we had waited longer to do something about it, the losses would already have been accumulating. Personally, I have two grandparents, several aunts and many cousins that are living in Israel. Most of them live in the suburbs of Tel Aviv, while my grandparents live in Tel Aviv. One of the Scud missiles that were launched against Israel, approximately three weeks ago, landed on my grandparents street. Luckily, they were not hurt, but they did have to move to my aunts house for safety. My grandfather also had opportunity to leave the country before the war started, free of charge. However he chose not to. The point that I am trying to make is that the people of Israel also know what is happening to them. They are well aware of the consequences that they are facing, yet they choose to stay in their homeland and give support for their country. I believe that they are also giving the U.S. support. I'll always remember the time that my grandmother explained to me the pride that the Israelis have in serving their country. If for some reason they cannot serve their country, they feel as though they have no loyalty and that they are left out. I believe that this is a main reason why Israel is so strong.

As a supporter of the war, I do not want to see Israel diminished or destroyed. And in the long term effects, I believe that this is what we are also preventing.

Mark Todtenkopf
Orchard Hill

Seven other people also signed this letter. — Eds.

"If I had a rocket-launcher, some son of a bitch would pay."

— Bruce Cockburn

Action outweighs inconvenience

As one of those who took part in last Thursday's actions in Amherst center, I want it known that I am not proud of such actions or the fact that I participated. But, I approve of these types of actions. I approve because it is quite clear that a majority of Americans are apathetic to our situation — a war in a foreign land and economic disaster at home. Our government spends a billion dollars a day to destroy lives in a foreign land while spending at home is slashed and hacked; we thus destroy ourselves. The actions on Thursday were purposely designed to disrupt the average apathetic American going about their normal daily business. It is too damn bad that we may have upset your routine lives for a few minutes or hours. Think about what our involvement in the Gulf is doing to the lives of the people in that region and beyond. What you experienced is insignificant compared to what the people in Israel and it occupied territories, Jordan, Saudi Arabia, Kuwait, Iraq, Egypt, Syria and its occupied territory, Qatar, the UAE, Yemen, etc. are experiencing all day, every day.

Next time a jet flies over your head try to imagine what you would feel if it was dropping bombs on you. It is far too easy for Americans to go to war in foreign lands while we remain safe and unaffected at home. The apathy must end. Think about what we are doing.

Wake up, America. I would point out that our press is censored. This means that you only get to see and hear what our military allows you to see and hear. By censorship, they control your mind, they form your opinions, and in fact they tell you how you should react to what they present--how free are you under censorship?

I would like to thank and praise the Amherst police for maintaining their restraint in last Thursday's events. They conducted themselves with great professionalism and kept the events from turning ugly.

Kevin McCann
Leverett

Turning the 'ideology of White women' into power for all women

Minu Sebastian's column (Feb. 11, "The ideology of the 'White woman') attacked me where I am almost certain there was no intent.

I work for the Valley Women's Voice and this 12-13 year old newsjournal is about to die. She dies because there aren't 10 women/people willing to work 10 hours per week. It's not always 10 hours — and it's not hard work — in general it's projects.

Projects like balancing the books, taking the advertising folders out of the drawer and finding out who owes us money. Call them up, send them a bill. Prepare a balance sheet. Like advertising, or outreach, or editorial board.

The reason the paper is dying is because the 'White feminist' of UMass aren't empowered enough to run it and the 'peoples of color' don't choose to be woman-identified. The catch 22 is that the paper empowers and it can be woman anything: Womanist, woman/man, The Valley People's Voice, The Valley Women People's Voice, The Valley Rainbow-colored Voice — anything.

The purpose of the VWV, broadly, was to allow a space for articles by and for women. Without exception, the women with whom I've worked were the most conscious of race, class and gender issues of any people I've met. I was proud to engage with women who fought over the inclusion of sensitive language. It's not 'low-class;' it is 'poor-class.'

When it came to the war on/in Iraq, these women/people gave the most uniform voice I've heard since Jan 16, 1991. Not one woman/person questioned any of the strong, angry words of protest, shame and misery against the United States' invasion of Iraq.

In spring, 1990, if I had had time, I would have written an article for the VWV on women people in the military and it would have mentioned the gender-based disparities in pay. At the time, I couldn't forget the absurdity of women people in combat situations in Panama not getting combat pay.

Minu Sebastian is correct; that isn't the point. The First World is waging a war against the Third World over hegemony and all I can do in protest is immolate myself on the Amherst Town Common, commit acts of terrorism and violence or prepare to turn in my citizenship. All three acts are meaningless, shallow, sincere and loaded with practical problems. I'll be dead; I'll go to jail; I'll be Danish?

The VFW fought First World hegemony. It provided a place for woman people to meet and exchange ideas and to expose some of those generally radical ideas to a generally hostile public. In the space of that place, we worked on modeling collective-building and consensus.

Today at the VWV there are money and advertisers and submissions but no office manager or bookkeeper. I wish we could have lured the women/people of UMass, women/people like Minu Sebastian, to us. Why we failed is complicated: But, it wasn't our ideology. The ideology was in the clear.

Amy Sandridge
Member, Valley Women's Voice collective

FBI agents help local residents to a recent opinion poll.

Circumvent gov't war censorship

Currently there is a lot of talk about the government's censorship of the news in the Persian Gulf. While I agree that there are limits being put upon the press, in many ways the press has only itself to blame for the poor coverage given to the crisis.

True, the press can blame the government for the poor coverage because they simply have no room to maneuver. Reporters cannot work individually but in pools, the military decides where the pools can go, and where they may investigate. Furthermore, every bit of writing and photography must be passed through military censors before it is published. While these are horrendous conditions for a 'free' press to be operating in, what has the press done to change the situation?

Robert Keane

If history has taught us anything, it's that the government isn't going to just let the press stroll in and get the news: it has to be pursued. William Kovach, curator of the Nieman Foundation at Harvard, blames the journalists for not fighting for more journalistic freedom. "Yes, we are controlled, but it is our own fault," he says. "We are ill-prepared, we are ill-trained, and we didn't raise hell when these rules first came down."

This problem is only the beginning, however. Sensationalism and downright laziness have also crippled the press' effectiveness in the Middle East. Throughout the war (and for weeks before it), the press has force-fed the public gagging amounts of the following subjects: retired generals trying to predict the future, protesters flooding the streets, and families in the United States wishing their loved ones a safe return. Now don't get me wrong. These are very important topics and they should be covered, but my point is that this is all we are getting, and after a while it becomes monotonous and bland. Even the sight of a teary-eyed mother sitting alone begins to loose its emotional effect, we have simply become numb to it.

NOT CLEARED BY MILITARY CENSORS

The solution? Simple: have the press begin reporting on different topics pertaining to the war, topics not subject to government censorship. What kind of topics? Well, there are huge gaps in the war coverage, not only in its progress, but also its past. What is the history of the Iraq-Kuwait conflict? Where are the articles pertaining to Saddam Hussein's rise to power? When was the last time you read an article that dealt with the never ending fighting between the Arabs and the Israelis? These are extremely important topics pertaining to the crisis, and are not necessary to have knowledge of to get a more comprehensive view of the situation. This information is not off-limits, and would be perfectly legal to print (to be fair, I will admit that such articles have been published, but you have to dig for them).

This lack of information by the press is sad, but it isn't surprising. It's always been easier for the media to get ratings by pulling emotional strings rather than educate the public. Come on now, which would you rather see, a long boring article on the history of an oil feud, or a reporter thrusting a microphone in the faces of of some hapless parents asking,"How do you feel, knowing that your son may well be dead?" It's a lot easier for the press to manipulate people emotionally than it is to clue them in on how we got into this mess in the first place.

Yes, the government is censoring what could be important news to the public. Yes, the press is fighting with one hand tied behind its back. It is the duty of the press, however, to tell the people the whole story. It isn't enough to ignore the past, go for the cheap tear-jerker to get ratings, and when the coverage is of poor-quality, say, well, it's all the government's fault. The press can do better. The people deserve it.

Robert Keane is a UMass student

Conservative arguments don't hold up in Board of Govs.

Interviewing faculty, staff, students and reviewing A-V tapes about the controversy that occurred last semester with the removal of the appointed Lesbian, Bisexual, and Gay Alliance seats from the Campus Center Board of Governors has revealed the possibility of two different, though equally suspect motives on the part of the conservative governors who engineered their removal.

Ed Corrigan, in his speech introducing the motion for debate last October, said that the main issue was "why the gays need seats." Corrigan argued that gays have no interest in campus center operations.

Ted Maravelias, co-sponsor of the motion to eliminate the seats, offered a different argument. Maravelias argued against all appointed seats, saying they are undemocratic. Maravelias said that the LBGA seats were only the first of a number of appointed seats he had targeted for elimination.

Later, a third argument evolved that, because Third World Caucus appointed seats are supposed to represent all oppressed minorities on campus, GLB students did not need their own seats.

The views expressed by Maravelias and Corrigan were refuted by students, administrators, and most notedly, Bill Harris, Director of the Campus Center. The BOG serves as an advisory board to his office.

Trystan Skeigh

Harris said that gays have a variety of interests in the campus center, and he also believes the BOG's structure should include a mix of appointed and elected seats in order to ensure that his office receives feedback from a variety of student interests.

Former LBGA governor Laura Silver also addressed the argument that the LBGA should not have appointed seats, arguing that gay students need to be protected from the possibly dangerous and traumatic experience of having to reveal their sexual orientation to the whole campus in an open election.

Clearly, upon examining the arguments presented by both sides, the inconsistencies evident in the conservative position are clear.

The original argument that gays have no interest in the Campus Center virtually disappeared in the face of strong refutation and was replaced with the newer idea that gays could be represented by the Third World Caucus, a group that, historically, has never served as a voice for gays.

Maravelias' argument about democracy and the legality of appointed seats is a legitimate conservative position. Yet this argument appears fraudulent when one remembers that Maravelias voted, the same night he presented this argument, for the inclusion of an additional appointed seat for Stockbridge School, as did every other conservative governor present that night.

Obviously, there are unspoken motives on the part of the conservative governors.

Frankly, homophobia is the first possibility that comes to my mind. However, to be fair, there is another possibility.

Within student government there is currently a stand-off between liberals and conservatives.

Although it is true there are gay republicans, for the most part, GLB students on this campus tend to be liberals. It is possible that the conservative governors focused on the GLB seats because those were the most vulnerable liberal positions.

However, regardless of whether the conservatives eliminated those seats out of conservatism or homophobia, it was still a shameful action. Recalling the derogatory marks about gays that I heard while visiting a BOG meeting, it is painfully clear that the conservative governors capitalized on homophobia to achieve what may have been, ultimately, a conservative gain.

Trystan Skeigh is a Collegian staff member

The president has lost my support

When the conflict in the Gulf began and American troops were deployed in the region, the most compelling argument that the Bush administration put forth to justify this deployment was that a multi-national force had been pulled together and, following United Nations guidelines, was countering the aggression of one well-armed and conquest-minded dictator. Despite objections, I supported Bush's policy.

That is, until now!

The Soviet Peace Plan was a good start toward ending this war and Bush ignored it. By doing so he has pointlessly endangered the lives of the allied soldiers and shattered the already shaky moral high ground that the war effort stood on. Now that I have made my position clear, I would like to address arguments that propose to justify a continued offensive against Iraq, in particular, the initiation of a ground war.

Many have said that the Soviet plan's timetable was too slow or that it left Iraqi troops too much leniency as to where they could withdraw to. This objection that the Soviet plan was flawed in some way is the most convincing one, but still, it is flawed mainly because of Bush's own words. He said,"we will set the timetable as to when the ground offensive will begin."

If this were true, then Bush could have given the Soviets a few days to hammer out the details, a luxury that the Soviets asked for and Bush denied when he set his own timetable of noon on Saturday. In fact, by doing so, Bush allowed himself to be rushed into a ground war, something he claimed he would not allow to happen.

Another line of thinking about continuing the war is that the U.S. would look bd. That is, that we would do all the work, and the Soviets would get all the credit. Not so. It seems to me that the U.S. would accomplish its objective of liberating Kuwait with virtually no U.S. casualties, and Bush could have proclaimed the New World Order a success with the U.S. and the Soviets working a sort of good cop/bad cop deal.

Lastly, to those who object to ending this war with Hussein still in control of his military machine, I would respond that we beat him once and we could do it again. Furthermore, most of his military infrastructure has been decimated, and if we don't sell him the stuff to rebuild (like we did last time), where is he going to get it? The Allies can keep a close eye on Hussein and, if we are really lucky, his own people will get rid of him. Most importantly, a United Nations force will have united to stop unprovoked aggression and averted a long and bloody war.

David Martin
UMass

Column is insulting and dangerous

I am writing in response to the editorial/opinion that you wrote for the February 25, 1991 Collegian. I feel that it is important to stand up for what you believe in. I believe that protesting may be effective. I also believe that writing to the Collegian is a responsible way of telling many people how you feel. However, what you have written has insulted me and many other people on this campus.

You wrote, 'When the folks decide to challenge the tide of blood-thirst and flag waving that is sweeping the nation, they do it together.' Are you trying to say that because I believe that this war is necessary, I am blood thirsty?

You wrote in anger "The Secretary of Defense is 'proud to be able to offer these opportunities to young African-Americans.' " I believe that if that quote had been taken in context, your readers would understand that he was saying that African-Americans can now defend there country equally. I don't think that the well respected Colin Powell, would overrepresent the Black population or concentrate them in the most dangerous jobs seeing how he himself is Black. When all young people, including the young African-Americans, sign up for the G.I. Bill they made a commitment; a commitment to serve in place for an opportunity to go to college. When they signed to receive the money and education, they decided on their future. They knew that if there was to be war, they could be called up to fight and they knew that when they decided which division of the services to join they were deciding how they preferred to fight. They received the opportunity of an education, and now, unfortunately, they have to pay for it. If they want to be respected Americans, then they must follow through with their duties!

You then write "The police filmed the whole thing. Then they left, returning in force clad in riot gear. They came in on the side of Business as Usual." Was there not a riot? What side should the police come in on? Is it not their job to defend the public and maintain peace? What right do the protesters have to infringe on the public's rights? You wrote that in order to take the prisoners to the police station "Log barricades had to be removed — a little gasoline might have helped. Scores of bodies formed a wall in front of the bus and it ground to a halt for a while — some large nails would've been useful." Is this what you want — riots, and war at home as well as in the Middle East?

You quoted a veteran in the middle of the editorial/opinion saying, "Veterans were disrespected by those who refused to listen to the reality of war." At the end of your writing you wrote "It seems that the United States does have some warriors to be proud of. Warriors fighting for peace and justice- in our own back yard." Mr. Levinson, are you first trying to imply that it is sad that the Vietnam Veterans were not respected and then suggesting that we should only be proud of the warriors at home?

Daniel Gordon
Sylvan

budget

CONTINUED FROM PAGE 1

monwealth," he said. "We're never going to turn around this thing until we stimulate the business industry."

Included in the package is a proposal to form a commission to study ways to cut spending on state-employee health insurance.

Rosenberg said there is the possiblity for "appreciable" savings in health insurance without placing the burden on state employees.

One solution might be to switch from a multi-provider system to a single-provider system but Rosenberg said there are many possibilities which the commission will research.

The package, which is now in the Senate and should be on Weld's desk by March 6, includes a provision to allow towns and cities to raise excise taxes on automobiles as well as some modifications to Proposition 2 1/2.

The House rejected the deferred salary plan, which would have asked state employees to work between two and 15 days without pay in return for compensation when they retired or left state service, was defeated partly because such a large loss of income would have hurt local economies, he said.

SAFA

CONTINUED FROM PAGE 3

should be considered as part of the reauthorization process, according to the policy.

Merit awards should not be considered as part of the financial aid programs and new definitions of the independent student status should not result in needy and qualified students being denied an educational opportunity, the policy says.

SAFA, as well as higher education suffered a loss recently with the death of Congressman Silvio O. Conte.

"Conte was not only a great friend of the University, he was a great friend of student financial aid," Cronin said. "Each year he not only met with SAFA members but was a big help in making arrangements in Washington."

Largest College Daily in New England
THE MASSACHUSETTS Established in 1890
DAILY COLLEGIAN
113 Campus Center

CORRESPONDENTS MEETING
TODAY
6:00 p.m.
IN THE NEWSROOM
All correspondents must attend.

AUDITIONS
TEN LITTLE INDIANS
An Agatha Christie Murder Mystery
A Production of UMASS Theatre Guild
March 3 & March 4
Campus Center Rm 101
7 pm
CALLBACKS: March 5
SHOW DATES: May 6, 7, 8

Amherst Fire Dept.
is now recruiting for
VOLUNTEER FIRE FIGHTERS
Join the student force
Engine Company 3
Gain Valuable Experience
Serve your Community
For information see our table in the Campus Center Concourse
February 27-March 1
call 256-4080

Experiemental Prototype Gallery of Tommorow an installation by
PEARSON/POST INDUSTRIES
at
THE STUDENT UNION ART GALLERY
February 28-March 21
OPENING NIGHT
Performance and Reception
Feb 28 7-9 pm
Sponsored in part by the UMass Arts Council

charlie's
1 Pray St., Amherst—549-5403 • Open 11am
7 days a Week
Kitchen open 'til midnight
Game Room with 2 pool tables
Tonight 10c Beer Steamed Baby Franks
9:00p.m. — 12:00 a.m.
Beer of the Month: MOLSON BOTTLES $1.85
Drink of the Week: Liquorice Shots $1.50
Food Giveaways
Mon. 10 cent Mozzarella Sticks 9pm-12am
Tues. 10 cent Buffalo Wings 9pm-12am
Wed. 25cent Pizza Slices and 99 cent Nachos 9pm-12am
Thurs 10 cent Beer Steamed Baby Franks 9pm-12am
Sunday 10 cent Potato Skins 9pm-12am
WE ACCEPT MC-VISA-AMEX

smoke detectors

CONTINUED FROM PAGE 2

specifically, and no later than one year, from the effective date of this act. That means one year from when the town adopted the law."

According to a census taken in 1985, Amherst had a population of 35,827, not including students who live on campus. Therefore, basing their decision on section four, Town Meeting gave building owners a one year compliance time.

"Go ahead and criticize the decision to allow landlords a year to comply with the regulation," Ritchie said. "That's the power of the First Amendment.

"To its credit, Amherst accepted this statute," he said. "There are a lot of towns that haven't even accepted this statute."

This confusion, however, has left many residents wondering whether a mistake has been made, and if so, whether the tragedy at 284 North Pleasant St. could have been avoided.

"We researched it with the town attorney and that is the advice we were given," Lalonde said.

Ritchie said: "If you're asking me if I remember talking about this, I don't recall what I said. I'd have to go back and look at my records."

"I believe that a year is required," according to the law, by the state statute," said Nancy Board, administrative assistant to the town of Amherst select board.

O'Sullivan said: "It makes sense to give a compliance date. It's my understanding that they could have set that date at any time which they felt appropriate."

Mt. TOM
Ski Area
STUDENT DISCOUNTS ! !
Great Skiing
Day & Night.
100% Snowmaking.
Expert Grooming.
&
So Close You Can See It!
$12.00 Midweek and Nights
$18.00 Weekends and Holidays
Bring Your Student I.D.
Mt. Tom Ski Area
Route 5 Holyoke MA 536-0416

TOWER Theaters
THE VILLAGE COMMONS • SOUTH HADLEY • 533-2663
"THE SEASON'S HAPPIEST SURPRISE!
'GREEN CARD' reinvents the romantic comedy and beautifully too.①
It's funny, romantic and charming.
The perfect love story.②"
GREEN CARD
From the Director of "DEAD POETS SOCIETY"
1 – CBS-TV, NEW YORK, Dennis Cunningham
2 – WOR-TV, NEW YORK, Pat Collins
Green Card
weekdays at 3, 7 and 9:15/Friday, Sat and Sun at 2:30, 4:45, 7 and 9:15
DANCES WITH WOLVES
Dances with Wolves
Daily at 2, 5:15 and 8:30 pm
THE ROCKY HORROR PICTURE SHOW midnight Friday

ALL AGES—ALL SHOWS
AT THE
COMEDY ZONE
FRIDAY & SATURDAY 8:30 pm
When you want the BEST*
Fried Rice • Spare Ribs • Buffet
•Live Comedy•
*Advocate 'Best of the Valley' reader poll 1990
Mon-Thurs 5pm-8pm
ALL YOU CAN EAT BUFFET
$5.99
11:30am-3pm
ALL YOU CAN EAT SUNDAY BRUNCH
$6.99
20%
OFF DINNER for Comedy Patrons
Comedy info & reservations 585-8615
北京園
PEKING GARDEN
Mandarin/Szechuen Cuisine
Open lunch & dinner- 7 days a week
Route 9-Russell St. Hadley 586-1202

FREE POOL
Tuesday Night Ladies Night Your choice of tables
ALL DAY EVERYDAY
21 and over
ROLLING ROCK BOTTLES
$1.75
• 9ft. Championship Tables
• Six Large Screen TVs with your favorite sports action
• Full Bar
• Drafts in ice cold mugs
• 25 cent hot dogs
• Pizza and burritos
• Full appetizer menu
• Weekly giveaways
• Great for couples
CASH PRIZES Pool Tournament Thursday Nights 7:30
Open:
Mon-Sat Noon-1am Sun 1pm-1am
MICHAEL'S
Billiard Room
And Sports Bar
Rt. 9, Amherst, 256-8284
(Next to Hunan Garden)

KATINA'S
THURSDAY SELECTROCUTION Feb 28
Electronic Flirtation Dance Party
FRIDAY MaxCreek March 1
SATURDAY Progressive Dance Party w/ WMUA's Christina Rosetti dance contest • prizes March 2
SUNDAY All Ages Welcome
Plastic X w/ Sensils Killin March 3
ng·upcoming·upcoming·upcoming·upco
March 6 Cocktail Party 6-7:30
March 8 Ronnie Earl & the Broadcasters w/Treat Her Right
ADVANCE TIX: Katina's, Strawberries, Hilton, Platterpuss, About Music, Main Music
ROUTE 9, HADLEY • 586-4463

NEW!
lite'n CRISPY
IT'S SKINFREE!
from KFC
Maple St., Rt 9, Hadley
next to the Hampshire Mall
586-5723
for $2.69
Meals include
2 pcs. of Chicken,
Garden Salad,
Mashed
Potatoes with Gravy
and Multi-Grain Roll

BARWA!
Southern African Choral Group
Freedom and Liberation Songs
(performed for Nelson Mandela at his Boston visit) will be performed at
The Ark Episcopal Chaplancy at UMASS
This Sunday, March 3rd, 7:00pm
All Welcome!
758 N. Pleasant St.
549-5929

housemates mourn deaths

CONTINUED FROM PAGE 1

tivities he loved, like skiing and hiking, Vernadakis said.

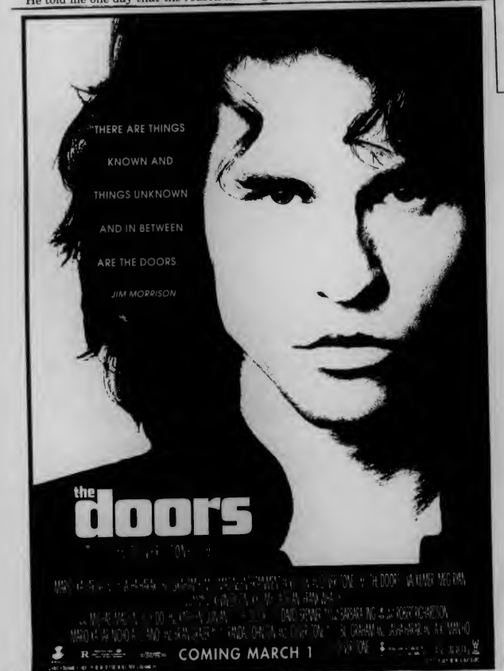
"He told me one day that the reason he was going to pursue chemistry instead of animal science was because he wanted to go out in the world to cure disease," Corley said. A fan of the music groups Yes and Phish, Pirog also exceled at yo-yo tricks.

As much as Pirog was gregarious, Peterson was quiet, preferring to observe those around him. "He was very bright," Corley said. "He didn't speak until absolutely necessary, but when he spoke he was right on the money."

Peterson, a former UMass student majoring in philosophy, dropped out two years ago to 'live his life,' Corley said. "He felt like he didn't want to go at such a young age," he said. "He hung out and did whatever he wanted. He was a free spirit."

When Peterson wasn't working as a mechanic at Sunoco, he read books, played the guitar and chess, Corley said. Also an avid Phish fan, Peterson often talked about moving West, said his girlfriend, Marybeth Molignano, a UMass sophomore.

A memorial service for Matt Peterson will be held at 3 p.m. Saturday at the Ashland Federation Church in Ashland. Services were held last week for Pirog in Framingham.



FREE ICE WITH KEGS

Sam Adams Double Bock 6 pk	$4.99*
Bud, Bud Lite & Dry 12-pk	$6.69*
Coors, Coors Lt & Gold 12 pk	$6.69*
Nathan Hale 6 pk	$4.99*
Sutter Home 750 ml	$3.99
Seagrams V.O. 750 ml	$9.89
Seagrams 7 750 ml	$7.69
Vodka 1.75 ml	$9.29
Gin 1.75 L	$9.29

*Plus Deposit
FOUR SEASONS
333 Russel St.
Hadley, MA 01035
"A New Family Owned Business"
Four Seasons WINES & LIQUORS
ROUTE 9, HADLEY, Between Burger King and Dunkin Donuts • 584-8174

SENIORS (and Super Seniors!)
The Yearly Countdown Begins at TWISTERS
PARTY, PARTY, PARTY, PARTY, PARTY, PARTY
Monday, March 11, 75 Days to Graduation CELEBRATION—.75c Specials
Sat, April 6, 50 Days to go! .50c Specials, ooohhh...
Wed, May 1, 25 Days to Graduation .25c Specials, Wow!
Thurs, May 16, 10 Days!!!! Drink and Food Specials
Proper I.D. & Attitude Required
30 Boltwood Walk, Downstairs, Amherst 253-2663

TWISTERS
NONONONONO no COVER nights
Tonight 28
9-10 Comedy with Larry Sullivan & Julie Wagner
Dance All Night with D.J.-W.D.
Fri 1
JUKEBOX PARTY
Sat 2
TRIBAL ETIKIT
Sun 3
UMASS Basketball on the Big Screen A-10 Playoffs
Drink Specials:
Miller Genuine Draft Pitchers $4.50
Rolling Rock & GD .91c
Mauie Wowie .91c
30 Boltwood Walk Amherst, MA

FREE 1991 Student Travel Catalog!
Everything you need to know about:
•Student Travel
• Air Fares
• Rail Passes
• Car Rental/Leasing
•Work Abroad
•Study Abroad
•Int'l Student & Teacher ID
& MUCH MORE!!!
CALL for your FREE copy!
Council Travel
79 So. Pleasant St.
Amherst
413-256-1261

Problem Skin?
come to
Aesthetics
For an alternative skin care treatment
Deep pore cleansing facials
Lash and brow tinting
Hair removal with wax
lip, brow, bikini, legs, etc.
34 Main St. • 253-9879

DOONESBURY
By GARRY TRUDEAU

SERGEANT B.D.?
YES, SIR?
I'M MAJOR B."BUZZ" FOGG. I'VE JUST BEEN CORTED IN A PRESS POOL...
YOUR LIEUTENANT TELLS ME YOU'VE BEEN AROUND, KNOW THE DRILL, ETC., SO I'D LIKE YOU TO BE THE DESIGNATED MP FOR THE REPORTERS.
MP? WHY WOULD THEY NEED A...
MEDIA PIGEON. JUST GEE-WHIZ 'EM UNTIL THE BUS GETS BACK.

THE FAR SIDE
By GARY LARSON

Giraffe tough guys

QUOTE OF THE DAY

"I don't want to become immortal through my work; I want to become immortal by not dying."
— Woody Allen

DAILY CROSSWORD PUZZLE
Edited By TRUDE MICHEL JAFFE

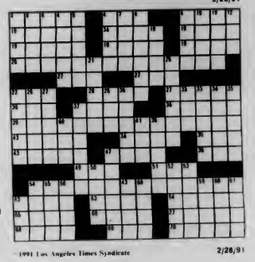
ACROSS
1 Name for a highland laddie
6 Nonsense!
9 Soliloquy starters
13 Brag
14 Drivel
16 Western Indians
17 "...Peter, pumpkin —"
18 Crater contents
19 The moon affects this
20 Movie starring Sean Connery
23 Fr. holy woman
24 Forty winks
25 Where to order a Manhattan
28 Ten. Pretix
31 LuPone's Tony winner
36 Midon of the ice
37 Actress Miles
38 Forbidden fruits
39 Movie starring Arnold Schwarzenegger
43 Kind of statesman
44 Physicist Niels
45 Pub quaff
46 Tempest
47 Movie starring Treat Williams
48 Ukraine or Georgia, Abbr.
49 Actress Balin
51 Regatta implement
54 Movie starring Paul Newman
62 Mare's baby
63 Sailor's direction
64 Help
65 Attack
66 "King Lear" role
67 Poe subjects
68 "The King and I" role
69 Parisian possessive
70 Fence-hopping steps

DOWN
1 Assist the perpetrator
2 Biblical shipbuilder
3 Admission receipts
4 Employers
5 Emulate the drum major
6 Containers: Abbr.
7 Jai —
8 Movie starring Robert Redford
9 Skirt for Coppélia
10 Skinner of the theater
11 Eliot's Adam
12 Compass pt.
15 Response to a joke
21 Passover feast
22 Letter —
25 Two-wheelers
26 Inclined
27 Certain composition
29 Energy unit
30 Shrine in Mecca
32 Otto — Bismarck
33 Indians of Peru
34 Useful items
35 Part of a plaster
37 Household pests
40 — Rosenkavalier
41 King of France
42 Pulsate
47 Movie starring Mel Gibson
50 Neighbor of Minn.
52 Natives of Yemen
53 Engross
54 Groan's companion
55 "— Man"
56 Alan of filmdom
57 Name for Monsieur
58 Tennis units
59 Spanish surrealist
60 Four fluid ounces
61 Otherwise
62 — Angelico

ANSWER TO PREVIOUS PUZZLE:

A	S	T	I	L		D	I	M	S		A	I	S	K	A
G	A	I	N		M	O	N		T	W	I	N
N	U	T	C	R	A	C	K	E	R		T	A	R	N
E	N	T	R	E	A	T		T	I	T	A	N	I	A
S	I	L		S	M	O	G		R	I	L
S	E	R	I		A	I	M		E	N	A	T	E
		U	N	E	A	S	I	L	Y		K	E	Y
P	I	C		S	T	E	N	D		M	I	L	E
A	D	O	R	E			E	G	E	S
L	A	P	S	E		S	L	A		L	E	A	F
		P	A	N	I	T		E	T	U	I		N	U
A	D	E	P	T		E	D		U	N	I	T	E	D
D	O	L	E		P	E	T	R	O	U	C	H	K	A
A	D	I	E		E	R	I	E	S		E	E	L	S
M	O	A	N		E	R	A	S			S	M	E	E

2/28/91

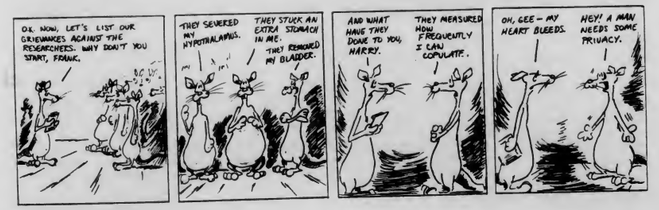


1991 Los Angeles Times Syndicate 2/28/91

CALVIN AND HOBBES
By BILL WATTERSON

WHAT HAVE YOU GOT TO SAY FOR YOURSELF?
DON'T TOUCH ANYTHING I'M LOOKING FOR CLUES
THE CLICK OF A HAMMER BEING COCKED BEHIND MY HEAD FOCUSED MY THOUGHTS LIKE ONLY A LOADED .38 CAN.
THE DAME HAD SET ME UP! SHE DIDN'T WANT ME TO SOLVE THE CASE AT ALL! SHE JUST WANTED A PATSY TO PIN THE CRIME ON!
WELL?
I DIDN'T LIKE THE WAY THIS STORY WAS SHAPING UP, SO I DECIDED TO WRITE A NEW ENDING WITH MY .45 AUTOMATIC AS CO-AUTHOR.

FROTTER
By GARRY PORTER



OK, NOW, LET'S LIST OUR GRIEVANCES AGAINST THE RESEARCHERS. WHY DON'T YOU START, FRANK.
THEY SEVERED MY HYPOTHALAMUS.
THEY STUCK AN EXTRA STOMACH IN ME.
THEY REMOVED MY BLADDER.
AND WHAT HAVE THEY DONE TO YOU, HARRY.
THEY MEASURED HOW FREQUENTLY I CAN COPULATE.
OH, GEE — MY HEART BLEEDS.
HEY! A MAN NEEDS SOME PRIVACY.

SNOOKY LANSON
By E. VEZINA & R. SHAUGHNESSY

1009
SMASH MY RECORDS AND I'LL SMASH YER HEAD!
BAP
GRAB HIM!
AND I WOULD'VE PULLED IT OFF IF IT WEREN'T FOR THOSE MEDDLING KIDS!
IT'S BOY GEORGE!

TANGELO PIE
By TIM SNIFFEN

—In he walks through the door, looking like Don Knotts after a bad fall. Whatever he was doing, it did not go well.
slam
"I ask for a study partner, I get a fist in the face!" he says angrily. I afford him my usual blank stare.
He retires to bed. Once again, he has attempted to understand Life a little better, + once again, Life has dumped a bowl of cold ziti on his head.
which all explains, of course, why I spend so much time with my plants.

MENU

LUNCH	DINNER
Pizza	Chicken Cutlet
Hot Beef Sandwich	Macaroni and Cheese
BASICS LUNCH	BASICS DINNER
Pizza	Chicken Cutlet
Cauliflower Eggplant Cass.	Mac & Cheese

YOUR DAILY HOROSCOPE
By JEANE DIXON

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22): Heed your own instincts. Your ability to foresee future trends serves you well in business today. Accept a relationship for what it is. Love blossoms anew!

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22): You may be able to wield more authority than you realize. However, play things safe by going about your business quietly. Let your intuition furnish the answers in romance.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21): A genial, open-minded approach will win people over to your side. Go after something important to your future. Your relatives and friends are very supportive. Repay favors as soon as you can.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21): World events have an ominous ring. Rely on your intuition when making travel decisions. As financial problems begin to subside, a close relationship heats up.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19): Showcase your special talents and you will impress those who really count. A raise or promotion could be in the works. Ignore stockmarket tips from well-intentioned friends; trust the experts!

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18): Adopt a give-and-take approach to sensitive people and situations. Loyal friends and associates do a lot to boost your spirits.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20): Use your tremendous expertise in business or science today. Others are happy to follow your lead. Express your gratitude to someone who has stood by you for years.

ARIES (March 21-April 19): Your business interests benefit from advertising. Be aware of your instinctive resistance to authority. You will be happiest working on your own. Pay closer attention to legal matters.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20): Do not keep your feelings bottled up inside. Stick to a healthy diet and regular exercise. You may not be getting enough rest.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20): Do everything possible to consolidate recent gains and joint ventures. Expensive plans merit further scrutiny. A new friendship deepens.

CANCER (June 21-July 22): Startling changes lead to a positive new attitude. Although domestic commitments could put a crimp in your social life, the sacrifices you make will be very worthwhile.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22): An older person could play havoc with your personal plans. Enjoy a social event without getting involved with a member of the opposite sex. Give a younger person a helping hand.

Scott's LIQUORS
OPEN MON-SAT 8 AM-11 PM Tel: 549-2692

Variety and Value, Scott's Liquors of Course!

Budweiser 24-12 oz. cans (2-12 pks) $12.99 +dep.

Southern Comfort 750 ml $8.49

Zarkoff Vodka 1.0 L $5.99

Golden Anniversary Beer — Koch's Golden Anniversary 24-12 oz cans $8.19 + dep.

Coors Reg-Light-Extra Gold 12-12 oz bots $6.99 +dep.

Sun Country Wine Collers All Flavors 2.0 L $3.99

WE WANT TO BE YOUR FAVORITE LIQUOR STORE!
Plenty of Free Parking • Diagonally Across from UMass Stadium
• Next to The Laundry Club
6 University Drive
at Newmarket Center, Amherst

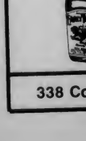
Tele-check for your personal check — Scott's Gift Certificates — Mass lottery Season tickets — MEGABUCKS We Have It — We now have all Mass Lottery games!

Not responsible for Typographical Errors

Rent One of Ours • Cars • Trucks • Cargo Vans
Rent by Day, Week or Month
Special Weekly and Weekend Rates
North Amherst Auto Rental
Rt. 63, 40 Montague Rd. North Amherst, MA
549-RENT (549-7368)
Most Major Credit Cards Accepted
On Bus Route

FRIENDLY ...service, ...people, ...prices. all under one roof.
Close to Brittany Manor and Rivergiade
RT PACKAGE STORE
505 West St. AMHERST 253-9742

Get Involved! with campus health issues



SHAB*
- Sponsor health projects
- Represent student health care concerns
- Review UHS budget
- Serve on UHS Search Committees
- Meet other students interested in health care

COME SEE WHAT IT'S ALL ABOUT

Meeting: Thursday, February 28, 1991
Where: UHS Room 302
Time: 5:00 pm

*Student Health Advisory Board (est. 1971)
University Health Services

Interested in a Career in Book Publishing?

A representative from the University of Denver Publishing Institute will give an information session at Mather Career Center on March 5 at 7:00 P.M. All seniors and graduate students with an interest in a book publishing career are encouraged to attend. For more information, contact the Career Center.

Spirit Haus Liquor Store

Red Tail Ale-Mendocino, California six pack $8.69

Labatt's Blue- 12-pk 12 oz bots $7.99

St. Pauli Girl case $14.99

Busch Beer 12-pk cans $5.99

Rolling Rock case 12oz bar bots $12.49

Canadian Mist Whisky 1.75 L $13.99

Smirnoff Vodka 80° 750 ml $7.49

Gilbey's Gin w/free Schweppes 1 L tonic water $6.99

Early Times Bourbon 1.75 L $13.49

338 College St. (Rt. 9) Amherst 253-5384

BOSTON BARTENDERS SCHOOL OF AMERICA

IF YOU ARE OVER 18 BE A BARTENDER!
LOCAL/NATIONAL PLACEMENT ASSISTANCE
DAY/EVENING ONE WEEK
Spend Spring Break with Us!
747-9888
1655 MAIN ST., SUITE 202, SPRINGFIELD, MA 01103

FREE RENT OPTION

Brandywine offers Country Living with convenience

- On UMass Bus Route • Nearby Shopping • Situated on well landscaped acres with pond.
- One and two bedroom apartments include fully equipped kitchen and wall to wall carpeting.
- Swimming pool, laundry facilities, responsive management.
- Stop and we'll show you what we have to offer.
- Affordable rents include gas, utilities (heat, hot water and stove).

BRANDYWINE AT AMHERST
16 Brandywine Drive, Amherst
Rental Office Open Daily 10-4
Limited Time Offer — 549-0600

Sox' newly-aquired Marshall: I've got nowhere to play

AP photo

CLARK CONNECTS — Boston Red Sox batter Jack Clark connects to drives the ball to right field during a morning practice at Chain O' Lakes Stadium in Winter haven, Fla., yesterday. Clark was signed as a free agent during the off season from the San Diego Padres.

By DAVE O'HARA
The Associated Press

WINTER HAVEN, Fla. — Mike Marshall is a baseball millionaire. He's also frustrated and puzzled heading into his 10th major-league season.

"They've had five months to trade me, and I'm kinda surprised and a little disappointed that I'm here right now," Marshall said yesterday after his first workout at the Boston Red Sox training camp.

Aquired from the New York Mets late last July, Marshall, a left fielder, right fielder and first baseman, said he's feels there's no way he can win a regular job. And he said, "I'm not a bench player. I'm not a pinch hitter."

Marshall said he has "really enjoyed playing for the red Sox, I love the city and I like the ballpark," but there's no place for him with the team.

He pointed out that Boston has signed left fielder Mike Greenwell for $12.25 million, right fielder Tom Brunansky to a contract that could total more than $8 million and free agent Jack Clark for a guaranteed $8.7 million.

"They've fortified left field and right field and the DH position, and they have two first basemen [Carlos Quintana and rookie Mo Vaughn], so why am I here?" Marshall said. "I'm not going to play left. They gave a big contract there. I'm not going to play right. They gave a big contract there. And I'm not going to DH. They gave a big contract there.

"And they've got two young first basemen, one a right-handed hitter and the other a left-handed hitter, and they didn't trade either of those guys during the winter. So where am I going to play?"

Marshall, 31, said he has not demanded a trade.

But he said that, after talking with manager Joe Morgan and general manager Lou Gorman after the 1990 season, "I would have though the situation would be rectified. But it's not."

"Time will tell," Morgan said when asked about Marshall's situation. "Things like that have a way of taking care of themselves."

"If we can trade him, we'll trade him," Gorman said. "And I've told him that five times."

Marshall, who is on the final year of a contract that will pay hi.. more than $1 million this year, has a major-league average of .270 with 147 homers and 511 runs batted in in a career marked by injuries. He has been on the disabled list seven times, five times with the Los Angeles Dodgers and twice with the Mets after being traded in December, 1989.

He said he fully recovered from an old back ailment and an upper gastrointestinal inflammation that sidelined him when he was with the Mets and then with Boston last season.

"I worked the hardest I ever have this winter and I'm probably in the best shape I've ever been in," he said. "There's no question in my mind that I should be starting here or starting somewhere. But that's not going to happen here, so there's really no reason for me to be here. I really don't plan on being here long."

Marshall said that with the Red Sox he's concerned about not getting enough playing time to prepare for the regular season.

"When the games start, I certainly can't get into shape to start the season by coming in in the seventh inning and getting one at bat, or going on road trips and just taking batting practice," he said. "That just can't happen."

Of a trade he said, "there's clubs that can use me." But he said any trade would not be, "some blockbuster deal," because the Red Sox got him for a couple of minor-league players.

"I'm very motivated, but right now my career is out of my hands," Marshall said. "I want to go someplace where I can get ready for the season."

He said he would also consider playing in Japan, adding: "If I went there for a couple of years, I'd come back at 33 years and still be able to make an impact in the big leagues. But if I sit around here for a couple of years, where would I be?"

CLASSIFIEDS

COME TO THE COLLEGIAN OFFICE—CC 113 MON — THURS 8:30-3:30 ● DEADLINE 2 DAYS PRIOR TO PUBLICATION ● CASH IN ADVANCE, 20¢/WORD/DAY FOR STUDENTS

ACTIVITIES

25 + CLUB: General meeting/social. Discuss activities, elections, socialize. Thursday, 2/28, Campus Center room 917 7:30pm. Dues $3 to vote.

BRANFORD MARSALIS TONIGHT! Fine Arts Center 8pm. Call UPC for info 545-2892

CLUB COMMUNICATION MEETING TODAY! 5:30pm, Mechmer-E37 All new members welcome!

LOOKING FOR AN ALTERNATIVE to the usual Friday night? Central Area Govt presents a Bluewall Coffeehouse for all UMass students on Friday March 1st 8pm-12pm. Tickets sold at the door. $2 Central residents, $3 all others Stop by for a most excellent time.

ANNOUNCEMENTS

"ASIAN AMERICAN ETHNIC TREACHERY": Come express your thoughts Concerning the Multicultural Affairs Article Thursday, February 28 7:00 PM Knowlton B-52

BED AND BREAKFAST- downtown ideal for visiting parents and friends 549-0733

AUDIO/VIDEO/TV

USED STEREO Components/VCRs/sColor TV's. We buy, sell & trade everything from budget systems to high end separates. Detailed list, 80 + items. Call anytime S/A/V Exchange 256-0941

AUTO FOR SALE

1975 SPITFIRE, Rebuilt motor, good body, free parts car, $900 -323-9470

1983 HONDA ACCORD 5-speed very good condition -AM/FM tape stereo -$2000 or BO. Eve. 549-8035

1987 JEEP WRANGLER V-6 automatic, 47,000 miles, med. blue w/ black top and interior. Much more. $7595 -546-3142

ENTERTAINMENT

LIVE FROM BOSTON Hear the hard driving alternative sound of The Many Live at the Hatch Thur Feb. 28th

RACK-A-DISC is still the best for DJ's and live entertainment. Call anytime 586-9900; ask about our specials

FOR RENT

1 BEDROOM APT in Pulfton. Take over lease in March. Option to renew. Steve 549-6203

AMHERST, 1 BEDROOM AVAILABLE IN 3 BEDROOM, NEW HOUSE ON BUS LINE. FIREPLACE. BEAUTIFUL!! AVAILABLE NOW CALL 8-4, 665-3326

WINTER SPECIAL: 1 month rent .99 cents with one year lease. 2 Bedroom- $450 3 Bedroom- $537 Sunderland, free bus route, laundry facilities, swimming pool, garden plots, short term lease available. 665-3856

FOR SALE

DIGITECH GSP-5 Signel processor analog dist. stereo effects $300/BO -Mike 6-4806

FUTONS Metawampe Top quality gold bond futons Delivery anywhere in U.S.A. Sleep with us and save! 1-800-3FUTON1

MAC 512KE & extra drive Software $600.00/BO call 548-9334

NEED SCUBA EQUIPMENT CHEAP? Call Amy at 256-1172

SANYO AM/FM TWO BAND STEREO Stereo integrated amplifier, semi-automatic, turn table, double-cassette deck with high speed dubbing, continuous play, synchronous dubbing, automatic level control system, counter, C.D.-outlet. GREAT STEREO!!! MUST SELL — Model GXT707 $90 Please call Theresa at 6-0923

SUNDAY RIVER Lift tix Two all-day reduced 549-7279

USED 12SPD TOURING bike for $95 Good condition Call 6-2571

FREE BRUNO'S PIZZA

BOOK A HOUSE/DORM party with RACKADISC and have free food -Call 586-9900 for details (limited to UMass & Amherst College)

FOUND

BRACELET, 2/22 in Studen Union Call 665-2227 to describe. Leave message.

HELP WANTED

AMUSEMENT PARKS, Holiday Resorts, Disneyland, 6 Flags, are hiring. Great fun and get paid too! Reserve position by calling 1-805-682-7555 Ext K-1370

CAPE SUMMER COD CAMP COED Need enthusiastic, dedicated people to work/live with kids. Beautiful location, excellent program, competitive salaries. Loads of fun. Call Doug/Chad at 546-2527 for more info and application

CHRISTMAS, SPRING BREAK, summer travel FREE Air couriers needed and cruise-ship jobs. Call 1-805-682-7555 Ext F-1426

DREAM JOBS NOW! Spring/Summer want a paid vacation in peradise? Hawaii, Calif., Fla, Cruise ships, Nat'l parks and more. 100's of addresses!-it guaranteed Call 1-900-226-2644 $3/min.

EARN $300 to $500 per week reading books at home Call 1-615-473-7440 Ext. B-281

EXCELLENT PAY making money with your personal computer. Free details. Call 1-803-709-0789 ext 23

GREAT SUMMER OPPORTUNITY Jewish co-ed residential camp seeks counselors and specialists Capitol Camps, located in the beautiful Catoctin Mountains, one hour from Washington DC offers tennis, water sports, netuve, arts, video, gymnastics, radio, drama, journalism, etc. If you are interested in the challenges and excitement of working with campers in grades 3-10, we want you on our team. Good salanes, great fun! Our director will be at the camp fair on March 5. For more information and an eppointment, call 1-800-783-2208

INTELLIGENCE JOBS. All branches US Customs, DEA ect. Now hiring Call 1-805-962-8000 Ext. K-9618

PRESTIGIOUS NORTHEAST SUMMER CAMPS neer NYC seeks specialists in sports, art, theatre, dance, music, magic, circus, science, waterfront, horsemanship. On campus interviews 3/5/91. Call 800-869-6083 or write French Woods, P.O. Box 800, Pomona, NY 10970

INSTRUCTION

EARN CREDIT learn to Scuba Dive. Basic Classes held Monday, Tuesday, Wednesday, and Thursday 7-10PM in Curry Hicks Pool. Open Water II class held during Spring Break in Key Largo, FLA. Advanced Class held in New England in April. For further information call 549-8401, or drop by Curry Hicks starting 2/4/91.

"LEGAL HELP"

QUESTIONS ABOUT YOUR lease/security deposit deductions? Questions about subletting/assigning leases? Questions about the condition of your new house or apartment? Contact the Legal Services Center, 922 Campus Center, 545-1995

LOST

BLACK-RIMMED EYEGLASSES in red case -Call Debbi at 546-2411

LOST CAT grey shorthaired white paws chest belly neutered male 665-4416

DIAMOND RING & WEDDING BAND in a purse. 545-2703 eves. 253-9431

EMBROIDERED JEAN JACKET Nov90 - Bring to Campus Center Info Desk ASAP

HEAVY SILVER BRACELET lost on 2/23 near 149 Brittney. If found please call Kristen 253-5474

OAKLEY SUNGLASSES: orenge mirror w/ sentimentel value Please call 546-0845 Lost lower Central area

POLO GLASSES Call 6-1259 Reword

REWARD$$$ Black & gold onyx earring lost Thursday night outside, near Washington 2-21-91 Please call 546-2426 Sentimental Value!!!

SILVER CHARM. Resembles flattened nickel Very sentimental. Please call 253-2282 -Reward

PERSONALS

AMY Good luck & congratulations I'm proud of you and always knew you could do it I Miss You I Love You Happy 4th on the 10th -Seamus

ATTENTION ALL PACKAGE STORES -Ed M. is now 21 and Chris C. will be raging because he's 19 Happy B-day Your Delta Chi Bro's

DIGGER Happy 21st Burrlioday Enjoy it with oclupi in equador Love from Large Woody Debris and the Snake Women

HAPPY BIRTHDAY SUSAN! Hope it's great! Never forget the posse. Love your favorite roommate, Jenn

HEY GEEK! Thanks for the toothbrush and soft pretzel You kill me! I know everything will be peachy, eventually Love, your favorite redhead

HEY HEATHER WORDEN -Happy 20th Birthday Love Pam -1

"JENNIFER CARBONE" Happy 19th Birthday!! Love, Monica and Jen

JGA JILL Here's your personal -get my number from Kim

LARA -Congratulations on getting pinned- Your sisters love you AXOXOXOXO

"MATT MILLER" Happy -21 Love-Rach

ON FEBRUARY 18, 1991 A person hi himself on fire in the name of Peace Please think about that today.

PAIGE HOOKWAY -Happy Birthday! Get ready to celebrate on Friday. Love, Your Big Sis.

PAM LEVINE! Happy Birthday Rocksteady The waffle cup sundae is on me! Love Amy

PETE KLEINMANN -Happy Birthday! Tone down those grandma eyes, it's collage time!

RICCO Roses are red Violets are blue Sorry about last year, but here's to 22! Happy B-day -Love Koney

SELINA- I can't find you. Please- another phone message- Tim

TO MY TALL, DARK MAN Thanks for a wonderful weekend! Your tiny dancer P.S. I Love You!

TO SIGMA KAPPA Sisters and pledges Only one more day until we do the hula. Get psiyched for the date party!

ROOMMATE WANTED

N. AMHERST, 5 minutes to UMass. Female to share 2 bedroom apt., $195. 549-4721

WOMAN WANTED FOR 3-bdrm. apt in Noho: 1 large bedroom, newly painted, bright place Available now! Call Jess at 584-2750

SERVICES

PREGNANT? Need a pregnancy test, information or support? Call for free and confidential services ALTERNATIVES 33 Main Sreen Northampton 586-3000 or Greenfield 774-6010

SERVICES/WORDPROCESSING

DISSERTATIONS, CASES, PAPERS, On-campus pickup. Fast! Accurate! Mac/Laser, Spellcheck Nancy 584-7924

SPRING BREAK

SPRING BREAK PARTY! Travel to Jamaica, Mexico! And Panama City Fl.! Concerts! Free Parties! Club discounts! And lots more! For Info call Denise 546-7156

SUBLET

GREAT APARTMENT 2 mi. off campus - North Amherst -Big yard, storage, perfect for two people. Available now! Call 549-8027

TRAVEL

CAN'T AFFORD SPRING BREAK? Guaranteed great prices! Space available to Jamaica, Mexico and Panama City Beach, Florida (the "new Daytona Beach")! MCVISA are accepted! Call Cindy at 549-3538 -please leave a message!

CLUB MED Enjoy your spring break!! Added value with each booking Call RENDEZVOUS TRAVEL 1-800-336-1002

FLORIDA'S NEWEST HOT SPOT Panama City-$139 ★★★★★★★★★★★★★★★★★★★★ World's biggest beach party Daytona Beach-$189 ★★★★★★★★★★★★★★★★★★★★ Call Erics or Julie- 546-2649 or Siobhen or Terri- 546-5079 March 8 deadline -March 6 deadline

SAVE $100 Spring break in Cencun! From Boston $379 -Call now Jean or Kathy 253-5140

TYPING

CAMPUS PICKUP AND DELIVERY, fast-cheap- accurate work -Lisa 256-8695

CHEAP RATES!, Fast!, Accurate!, Dependable!, Campus pickup and delivery Adam 253-9117

RESUMES, PAPERS, anything typed or typeset. Fast, professional service. Affordable rates. KCommunications, 256-6373

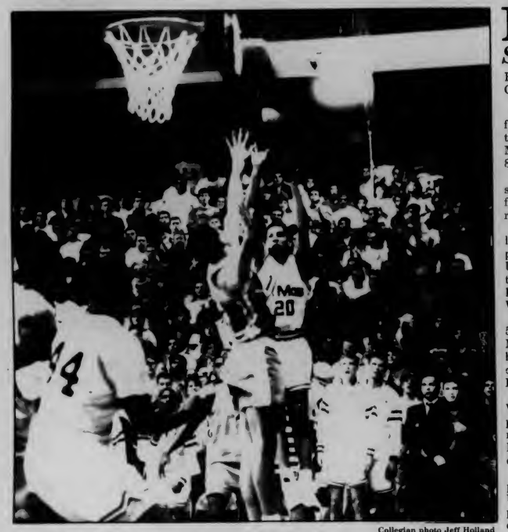
WORD PROCESSING SERVICES -Will type papers, manuscripts, etc. $1.50 per page. Excellent spelling and grammar guaranteed. References. Flexible hours - evenings weekends. For information -548-9753

WANTED

CASH FOR GOLD. Unwanted jewelry? Necklaces, watches, rings We buy anything containing gold. Call 548-3299

TIMBER LAKE CAMPS -located in NY's Catskill Mountains seek General Counselors, Athletic Instructors, and WSI S. On-campus Interviews. Top salaries/travel allowance 800-828-CAMP (9-4:30 weekdays)

SPORTS



Collegian photo Jeff Holland

Jim McCoy (20) and the Minutemen return to Amherst with a win over Rhode Island (82-70) and a sixth-place seed in the Atlantic 10 Basketball Tournament to be held in Philadelphia this weekend.

Minutemen win

Second-half effort demise of URI, 82-70

By SAM SILVERSTEIN
Collegian Staff

KINGSTON, R.I. — A 28-point night from Jim McCoy and a furious second-half team effort carried the University of Massachusetts men's basketball team to an 82-70 win over Rhode Island last night.

The win guaranteed UMass at least a sixth place finish in the Atlantic 10 Conference and a date in Sunday's quater final round at the Tournament in Philadelphia.

The Minutemen exploded out of the locker room at halftime with a 15-5 run punctuated twice by Will Herndon dunks. UMass paused for a pair of URI baskets then reeled off an 8-2 streak sealed by a Rafer Gile three-pointer and Harper Williams layup over Jeff Kent.

When the dust settled, UMass held a 56-43 lead with 9 minutes to play. The Minutmen quieted URI's attempts to get back into the game. McCoy answered a pair of Eric Leslie free throws and a Mike Brown three-pointer with a 17-foot jumper.

After another Brown three-pointer, Williams posted up Kent for a three-point play. Williams scored 19 points, grabbed 9 rebounds and blocked 4 shots for UMass. Herdon had 13 points and 8 rebounds. Andre Samuel scored 20 for Rhode Island.

"This is the first team in a long time we put away when we had them down," UMass coach John Calipari said. "We played great defense...it seems like we're coming together as a team."

Said McCoy, who closed within 26 points of breaking Lorrenzo Sutton's all-time UMass scoring record, "I think it was the best we've played this year."

UMass worked into an 18-10 lead in the first 8 minutes, 30 seconds, behind 7 points from McCoy and some defensive work by Williams. The Rams then rode a 15-6 swell capped by a Leslie (15pts) three-point play that tied it and a Samuel layup that gave URI its first lead of the game, 25-23, at 4:57. URI lead 32-29 at the half.

Game Notes The Minutemen were without Jeff Meyer (knee) and Ben Grodski (flu). Meyers is expected to be out through this weekend.

Tournament Notice The athletic development office is arranging charter bus service to the Atlantic 10 Basketball Tournament in Philadelphia. Busses will leave from campus. Round-trip fare is $34 with checks made payable to Athletic Development. Payment must be made in person in Boyden room 225B BY 2 P.M. TODAY.

UMass, 82-70

Massachusetts (82)
Barbee 4-9 2-4 10, Williams 6-13 7-8 19, Tate 1-4 1-4 3, A.Brown 0-2 0-0 0, McCoy 9-19 10-12 28, Williams 6-8 1-2 13, Giles 3-4 0-0 9. Totals 29-59 21-30 82.
Rhode Island (72)
M.Brown 5-13 0-0 14, Collins 0-2 0-2 0, Kent 6-13 0-1 13, Easterling 0-3 0-0 0, Leslie 6-14 3-3 15, Samuel 7-11 6-6 20, Moten 1-2 6-8 8, Keebler 0-0 0-0 0. Totals 25-58 15-20 70.
Halftime Massachusetts 29, Rhode Island 32. Fouled Out none. Three-point Goals Giles 3, M.Brown 4, Kent. Rebounds UMass 40 (Williams 9), URI 32 M.Brown 9). Assists UMass 17 (McCoy, Giles 4), URI 14 (Easterling 6). Total Fouls UMass 18, URI 21. A - 2,605.

Brown rose above doubt, racism to reign as dunk king

Last year, Boston Celtic rookie Dee Brown was lying face-down on a Wellesley sidewalk, held at gunpoint by Wellesley police who, in their ignorant racism, mistook him for a bank robbery suspect because he was black. They questioned him, frisked him, and detained him for questioning without legal counsel until realizing who he was. They searched and questioned his wife as well.

Now Dee Brown is Dee Brown, 1991 Slam Dunk Champion. His arrival in the Boston backcourt gave the Celtics much-needed speed and explosiveness, and is a major reason the Celts are on top of the National Basketball Association's Atlantic Division and battling for the top spot in the Eastern Conference.

As Johnny Most was fond of saying, "Justice prevails."

When the Celtics made Brown their first-round draft pick last year, I was among many who were skeptical about what he could do for a team that desperately needed capable guards. The scouts said he was quick, but could he score against NBA defenses?

"Look," I said to my friends, "Who did he play for in college? Jacksonville? There's no competition in the Sun Belt Conference. Why are the Celtics drafting him when they have Charles Smith, who proved himself against better competition? Why not draft an outside shooter? Why not draft a ballhandler?"

Brown disproved the cynics, including me. His defensive skills and athletic abilities have turned a slow, plodding club into an efficient running machine. And one can't help but be amazed at how well Brown gets up for a 6-foot-2 man.

Sports Commentary

Does he ever get up. He proved that long before the slam-dunk contest, as CNN's and ESPN's highlight reels showed. I recall one sequence in which he, on an offensive rebound, came out of nowhere, reached up with one hand and slammed the ball through the rim. I was stunned. I was also pleasantly surprised.

Brown showed just how simple it was for him to "get up" two weekends ago at the NBA All-Star Game's Slam Dunk and three-point shot contest. While established leapers like Kenny Smith, Rex Chapman and Otis Thorpe were falling by the wayside or choking under pressure, this rookie was demonstrating a combination of hang-time, power, finesse and creativity.

I was floored when Brown stuck a basketball on the back of the rim and lept up with a second ball, attempting to slam both. While he didn't get both cleanly, it was impressive. As good as that was, his last dunk — a "no-look" special in which he covered his eyes with his forearm while throwing the ball down through the rim — shook the crowded room in which I was watching the contest.

"Holy shit, did you see that?!" exclaimed the man behind me as the rest of the room let out a collective "Woahhh!" "I can't believe a Boston Celtic is going to win the dunk title," he continued. "Celtics aren't even supposed to be able to dunk. They're slow. They don't jump."

Conventional wisdom says that Derrick Coleman of New Jersey will win the NBA's Rookie of the Year Award. Coleman should win the award, to be certain, but were Coleman not a rookie, Brown would be a shoo-in. In reality, Brown will probably finish second in the balloting.

But considering what "Wellesley's Finest" did to Brown, one can't help but feel good for him. Justice prevails, indeed.

Greg Sukiennik is a Collegian staff member

Gymnasts sweep Springfield, URI but lose Marshall

By MICHAEL MORRISSEY
Collegian Correspondent

The University of Massachusetts womens' gymnastics team doubled up on Rhode Island and Springfield College last night, winning the meet but losing one of their best gymnasts.

The Minutewomen swept every event and scored 185.25 points, however, sophomore Tammy Marshall sprained her left ankle during the end of her floor routine.

Marshall placed third in the all-around (37.15 points) and won both the vault (9.6) and the beam (9.55). Marshall received a score of 9.35 for her routine. She is out indefinitely and is expected to miss the final home meet on Saturday against Rutgers.

The injury occurred three and a half weeks after senior Kristen Turmail sprained her knee against Pittsburgh and was lost for the year.

"I think she's going to be off of it for a while," coach Alfie 'litchell said of Marshall. "We can rest her for [Rutgers]. I think we're strong enough to take them."

Junior Kim Grady led UMass, placing first in the all-around competition with a 37.55. Grady won the floor exercise, posting a 9.55. Freshman Margaret Furtado placed second on the bars with a 9.35 for her routine.

Mitchell said he saw a great deal of improvement and was pleased with his team's performance.

"We did better on the vault," he said. "On the bars we did better, too, and on the beam. We had problems lately, but we hit our routines."

The competitive URI squad scored 182.45 points and kept the match close. They were led by Shannon Erwin, who finished second in the all-around (37.3) and Jodi Aliberto who won the uneven bars (9.4).

Springfield College coach Cheryl Raymond said she also was pleased with her team's performance, despite finishing third (177.75).

"I am proud of all of the gymnasts, every one of them," she said. Raymond added that her team broke their team-high record last night.

Collegian photo by Jeff Holland

Sophomore Tammy Marshall scored a 9.55 on the balance beam and placed third in the all-around competition against Springfield and URI last night. After her floor routine, Marshall limped off the mat with an injured left ankle. She will sit out the team's final home match Saturday against Rutgers.

THIS WEEK END

Mo' better Marsalis

By DANIELLE DOWLING
Collegian Staff

Mo' better or mo' hype?

This question, if it pertains to Branford Marsalis, is a valid one when taking into consideration that he is everywhere.

Hey look! There's Branford jamming with the Grateful Dead. Hey look! There's Branford in the latest Spike Lee project. Hey look! There's Branford playing that saxophone on the top of the Empire State Building with nothing but his undershorts on.

Jazz purists may bemoan the fact that Branford Marsalis is everywhere. They may charge that he is a jazz prodigy who would rather trapse about with the likes of Sting rather than concentrate on the traditions of the music.

On the other side of this argument, one could point out that the fact that he has played with so many other musicians outside of the jazz world is good in itself. So what if he has a commercial appeal, at least he doesn't have a broom stick up his bum. And there is no denying that the man has been involved in many projects and made many contributions for the duration of his career. That at least deserves some respect.

Marsalis was born in August 26, 1960 to a prominent New Orleans musical family. His first instrument was the piano at age four, then he moved on to the clarinet after two or three years so that he could be part of the school band. At 15, he made yet another move to the alto saxophone because his father considered it to be the hardest sax to play.

Marsalis studied at Southern University under clarinetist Alvin Batiste and at the Berklee School of Music in Boston. At Berklee, he secured a long-term gig with the Clark Terry band. After leaving the band, he survived the summer of 1981 in New York City on $10 a day. Just as he was about to give up and go back to his hometown of New Orleans, he was offered a job with Art Blakey. In August, he was off with his brother Wynton on tour with the Herbie Hancock Quartet.

Branford's debut LP, Scenes in the City was released in April of 1984. That was the same year that he recorded with the Irish alternative/pop quintet, Hothouse Flowers. In 1985, Branford reached the commercial arena when he joined with Sting to record Dream of the Blue Turtles. Subsequently, he toured with Sting along with Kenny Kirkland, bassist Daryl "Munch" Jones and drummer Omar Hakim. It was on this tour that he recorded his first classical LP for CBS Masterworks entitled, Romances For Saxophone, which was released in April of 1986. Branford's stint with Sting would go on to last four years.

Besides his work with his brother Wynton, Herbie Hancock and Sting, he is also known for his numerous grammy nominations, his occasional apperances on Letterman as well as appearances in films such as Throw Momma From the Train and Spike Lee's School Daze. Mo' recently, Branford and his quartet of keyboardist Kirkland, bassist Bob Hurst, drummer Jeff Watts and trumpeter Terence Blanchard, recorded the soundtrack for the recent Lee project, Mo' Better Blues. The quartet also concurrently released Crazy People Music, Branford's eighth release to date.

"In high school I played in funk bands and wanted to be a media superstar. But the more I practiced and listened to records and tapes, the more I got into jazz. It's much more of a challenge to do what Bird did than to do what Chuck Berry did. When I realized how much of a contribution jazz music and jazz musicians have made in the world, that's when I decided I really wanted to be a jazz musician," Marsalis was once quoted as saying. This quote could raise the eyebrows of Branford's detractors, since the man is everywhere.

The Duke Ellington Committee is pleased to present an evening with Branford Marsalis in conjunction with the Union Program Council. The show will tale place tonight at 8 p.m. at UMass in the Fine Arts Center. Tickets are $9 for UMass students and $12 for the general public and are available through the Fine Arts Center Box Office.

BRANFORD MARSALIS

Ladysmith Black Mambazo to bring a vision of peace

By PAUL DEGEORGES
Collegian Staff

Not long ago Ladysmith Black Mambazo released their third major album, Two Worlds One Heart and Joseph Shabalala is excited.

From the very start of the South African vocal group in the early sixties, Ladysmith Black Mambazo has found success in their home country. However, it was not until the advent of the group's highly lauded collaboration with Paul Simon on his 1986 hit album Graceland, that the whole world became familiar with their irresistable harmonies and inspiring presence. Of the tremendous positive response by both critics and fans for a sound which is at once traditional Zulu but at the same time completely original, Shabalala exclaims, "This is wonderful!"

Ladysmith Black Mambazo took its name from Shabalala's home town, and means "the Black Axe of Ladysmith," an epithet they earned thanks to the local singing competitions they used to compete in — and always win. They were so much in a class by themselves that they were eventually forbidden to even enter the competitions.

Still, Shabalala says "I felt that there was something missing. I tried to teach (the group) the music that I felt, but I failed until 1964 when a dream came to me. I always heard the harmony from the dream and I said, 'this is the harmony that I want.' " It was his belief in the message of the dream and persistent search for the unachieved harmonies which eventually gave way to the tremendous success of the group.

They found domestic success throughout the 70s and 80s. Then in 1985 Paul Simon approached the band with an idea to incorporate the "isicathamiya" sound (the traditional work songs of black South African miners) on a new project which, Shabalala claims, "opened the gate" for the band. Their work with Simon took them on tour to support Graceland and aside from unexpectedly creating a huge following, Shabalala says, "We have discovered many things outside of our homeland. We (travelled) all around the world and everywhere we go there is music — and the music is about the traditions that make people love their homes. It is something inside every one of us. I realized there are two worlds, but we share the same heart."

His observations on the Graceland tour inspired their latest work Two Worlds One Heart which sings of many worlds — a South African rave up called "Township Jive," a gospel collaboration with The Winans and an experimental Zulu-funk/rap with George Clinton, and, of course, the traditional a cappella song forms that have made Ladysmith Black Mambazo the "South African ambassadors of peace around the world — both of them."

Now the group is once again gracing our shores, and their latest concert tour brings a message of peace, delivered as usual with their absolutely mesmerizing harmonies. A show so full of positively wonderful music and so laden with Ladysmith Black Mamabazo's vision of unity and peace, promises to be a truly inspirational event.

Ladysmith Black Mambazo will be appearing at Pearl Street on Friday, March 1st. Doors open at 7:00 p.m. Tickets are $13 in advance, $15 at the door.

Quality You Can Afford

Sterling 90 Cartelian Lavaliere $42

Sterling Pin $102

silverscape designs
264 N. Pleasant St., Amherst 253-3324
177 Main St., Northampton 584-3324
Goldsmiths • Gem Gallery

You'll be amazed at our low, low prices!!
BEER WINE LIQUORS
Prices do not include deposit

MILLER GENUINE DRAFT $12.99 + DEP case of 2 12 pk. bottles
FALSTAFF & FALLSTAFF LIGHT $8.79 + DEP case of 24 12 oz. cans
CATAMOUNT AMBER, GOLD, PORTER $4.99 + DEP. 6 pk. bottles
GLACIER BAY IMPORTED FROM CANADA $10.99 + DEP case of 2-12 pk. bottles
COKE-DIET COKE SPRITE-DIET SPRITE 2L $1.09 + DEP.

GALLO SAUVIGNON BLANC $4.99 1.5L
INGLENOOK CHENIN BLANC, FRENCH COLOMBARD, RHINE, BURGUNDY, ROSE, CHABLIS, BLANC DE BLANC, BLUSH, WHITE GRENACHE $6.99 3L
LOUIS JADOT BEAUJOLAIS-VILLAGES $6.49 750 ML
SOUVERAIN WHITE ZINFANDEL $2.99 750ML
BACARDI Breezer $4.49 4 PK TROPICAL, PEACH, LIME, BERRY

Cossack VODKA $9.49 1.75 L
KENNEDY'S CANADIAN WHISKEY $11.49 1.75L
CASTILLO WHITE RUM $11.99 1.75L
THE FAMOUS GROUSE SCOTCH $24.99 1.75L
JAMESON IRISH WHISKEY $12.99 750 ML

not responsible for typographical errors

LIQUORS 44
HADLEY Campus Plaza/Route 9 253-9344
TWO LOCATIONS
HOLYOKE 30 Lincoln St. 534-4555
9am to 11pm Monday thru Saturday
SALE PRICES THURS. 2-28-91 THRU WED. 3-06-91
TeleCheck

Union Program Council and the Duke Ellington Committee Present:
AN EVENING OF JAZZ WITH
BRANFORD MARSALIS
(recently seen with Sting & the Grateful Dead)
THURS. FEB. 28
at 8 pm
in the UMass Fine Art Center
TIX available at the box office
$9 UMass students, $12 Others
charge at 545-2511

RÉSUMÉS
CopyCat Print Shop
• Great Service • Great Prices
228 Triangle St./Amherst 549-3840

COME CLEAN WITH US!
Campus Coin Op
107 Sunderland Road, North Amherst
Open 7 a.m.-10 p.m.
SPEEDWASH
11 Pray St., Amherst
NOW OPEN 24 HOURS!
South Towne Commons Laundromat
479 West St., South Amherst
Open 7 a.m.-10 p.m.

Clutch Weekend Stuff

THURSDAY

Mozart's Last Year, a lecture by Henry G Mushkin will be given at 12:15 in the Amherst College Music Center 3.
Admission is free.

The New German Cinema in Context series will present Aguirre der Zorn Gottes (Aguirre Wrath of God), a film directed by Werner Herzog, at Amherst College in Merrill 11 at 4 p.m. and 7:30 p.m. Admission is free.

Zen Poetry in Translation, a lecture by poet, translator and essayist, Sam Hamill, will be given at Amherst College in the Campus Center Frontroom at 4 p.m.

Contemporary Cinema Masterpieces Film Series will present Man of Marble, a Polish film on wide screen video projection, at Hampshire College in Adele Simmons Hall at 7 p.m.

The African Film Series will present Mapantulsa, a South African film, at Mount Holyoke College in Dwight 101. Admission is free.

Art and Artisans: A Celebration of the Margaret Mead Film Festival, the last of a four part series, will be shown at UMass in Herter Hall 227 at 7:30 p.m. Admission is free.

Emily Dickinson's Mount Holyoke, a lecture given by Christopher Benfey of MHC, will be given as part of the Historic Deerfield 1991 Winter Lecture Series at White Church Community Center on Memorial Street in Old Deerfield at 8 p.m. Admission is free.

UMass Student Dance Concert

Directing Studio Projects, The Vise and The Lover, directed by Amy Stevens and Tim Beittel respectively of Theater 46 at Amherst College, will be presented at Amherst College in Fayerweather Studio Theater at 8 p.m. with a repeat performance on Friday. Admission is free but reservations are necessary. Call 542-2277 in the afternoon.

An Evening With Branford Marsalis can be shared by all who purchase tickets, $12 for the general public; $9 UMass students, at UMass in the Fine Arts Center Concert Hall at 8 p.m.

Malcom Bilson will perform Mozart's piano sonatas in conjunction with the Mozart Spring Festival at Amherst College's Buckley Recital Hall at 8:15 p.m. Tickets $13 and $10 for the general public; $11 and $8 for students/elders. Reservations 542-2195.

Dance Party for ages eighteen and over at Pearl Street in Northampton.

The Many, a four piece alternative pop-rock group, will be performing at UMass in the Hatch this evening for a free, all ages show.

Who's Kiddin' Who play tonight at the Hadley Pub at 9 p.m. $3 admission. 21 and over.

The Shockers will be playing at Sheehan's in Northampton.

The Vestrymen will be playing at the Davis Student Center at Smith College at 10 p.m. Admission is Free and so are the "drinks and munchies."

Rockin' Dave and the Rent Party will play the Iron Horse Music Hall in Northampton as a part of the Nu-Wave Cafe series. This all-ages show will be opened by the band From Good Homes.

Student Dance Concert, Alive With Dance, will feature new works by UMass dance department students. Tickets are $5; $3 students, and are available at the UMass Fine Arts Center Box Office. The concert will be in Bowker Auditorium at 8 p.m. with repeat performances on Friday and Saturday.

The Golem, a play based on Jewish folktale, directed by Moira Cutler will be presented at Hampshire College in the Mainstage Theater at 8 p.m. with repeat performances on Friday and Saturday. Tickets cost $3 for the general public and $2.50 for students.

Blood Wedding, Frederico Garcia Lorca's dark and poetic drama about passion and vengeance in a small Spanish village, directed by Anna Dolan, will be presented at the UMass Fine Arts Center Curtain Theater at 8 p.m. with repeat performances and Friday and Saturday at the same time and a matinee at 2 p.m. on Saturday. Tickets can be purchased the FAC Box Office. $5 for the general public; $3 students/elders.

Blood Wedding

FRIDAY

Mo, a travelling extravaganza presented by the UMass Alterantive Theatre Group, will be performed at 12:15 p.m. at UMass in front of the Student Union Building.

Ladysmith Black Mambazo, acclaimed for their work with Paul Simon, now bring their message of peace and their vocal harmonies from South Africa to Pearl Street in Northampton. Doors open at 7 p.m. Tickets are $13 in advance, $15 at the door.

MFA Thesis Concert, choreographed by Tim Lewis and Marc Strauss, will be performed in the Scott Dance Studio at Smith College at 8 p.m. with a repeat performance on Saturday.

Sara Cytron brings her unique brand of "out" comedy to the Northampton Center for the Arts at 8 p.m.

Dream the Monkey Mountain, a play by Derek Walcott, directed by Cecile Simon, will be presented in Theater 14 at Smith College at 8 p.m. Admission is free.

Born Losers, the first Billy Jack film, will be shown at Hampshire College at 7 p.m. and 9:30 p.m. Admission is $1.

The Fringe, plus Human Feel, will perform at night of Neanderthal jazz for the patrons of the Iron Horse in Northampton. Doors open at 7 p.m. Tickets are $9.50 in advance.

Borderland will play the Hadley Pub at 9 p.m.

Max Creek will play at Katina's in Hadley.

SATURDAY

The Equalites, a favorite local reggae band, will be releasing their new record at Pearl Street in Northampton.

Fool's Cafe, a production of the Unitarian Society of Northampton, will feature Greg Adams and Love Minus Zero. Open Mike sign up by 7:30 p.m. All donations go to the Unitarian Homeless Fund. Show starts at 8 p.m.

Edutainment...The Lecture, to be given by rap artist KRS-ONE, will take place at UMass in the Fine Arts Center at 8 p.m. This is a presentation of the Black Mass Communications Project in continuation of African American History Month. Tickets are $3 and are available through the Fine Arts Center Box Office.

Aztec Two Step will play at the Iron Horse in Northampton. Doors open at 7 p.m. $10 at the door.

SUNDAY

Ape Weekend starts at 1 p.m. at Hampshire College. Four Planet of the Apes films, Planet of the Apes, Beneath the Planet of the Apes, Escape from the Planet of the Apes and Conquest of the Planet of the Apes, will be featured. Admission is $1.

Arts Unlimited will provide multidisciplinary lessons, evaluations and conferences at the Old Chapel at UMass.
Call 545-0519 to pre-register for the 3 p.m. sessions.

Sisters, a play written by Martha Jackson, will be presented by New WORLD Theater at UMass Bowker Auditorium at 8 p.m. The play is an insightful character study of two women. Tickets will cost $5 for the general public and $3 for students and senior citizens.

Auditions for Agatha Christie's Ten Little Indians will be held at the UMass Campus Center 101 at 7 p.m.

Gay, Lesbian and Bisexual Cafe, the third and final performance featuring singer/songwriter Erica Wheeler as well as theater and new poetry, will take place at UMass in the Hampden Theater at 8 p.m. Admission is free.

Rosenshontz will be giving a concert at 3 p.m. at the Fine Arts Center to benefit UMass Hillel and the Jewish Community of Amherst. Tickets are $8 and $6.

Plastic X/Senile Killin will play at Katina's in Hadley.

Joe Keenan and the Crows will play at the Iron Horse in Northampton. Doors open at 7 p.m. $5 at the door.

1991 SUMMER EMPLOYMENT
Camp Young Judea, Amherst, New Hampshire
(Resident, Co-ed, 1 hour from Boston) is in need of:
Administrators—Head Counselors, Program Director, Office Mgr., Department Directors, plus Activity Specialists Camp Counselors in:
Athletics, Archery, Riflery, Tennis, Arts and Crafts, Canoeing, Sailing, Wind Surfing, Water Skiing, Swim Inst. (WSI), Israeli Folk Song, Dramatica, Israeli Dance, Jewish Education, Radio Station, Computers, Nature/Ecology, Project Adventure, Nurse (RN), Photographer, Office Staff.
Excellent salary and fringe benefits.
CYJ will be represented at Camp Employment Day at UMass, Tuesday March 5
Please Contact: Dr. Charles B. Rotman, Director
81 Kingsbury St., Wellesley MA 02181
617-237-9410 or 508-877-6190

UMASS ARTS COUNCIL
BLOCK GRANT PROPOSAL DEADLINE
The next deadline for submission of grant proposals for Block Grants :
Friday, March 29
Guidelines and application forms are available at the Arts Council Office
UMass Arts Council
209 Hasbrouck Hall, 545-0202

WE ARE COMING!
Camps Pembroke, Tel Noar and Tevya will be conducting interviews for counselor positions at the UMASS Camps Day on Tuesday, March 5th
Wonderful summer opportunities await you at these leading NE Jewish camps. Call ahead collect to: (508) 881-1002 to set up an appointment. Join the fun in'91

Listen up maggots, Pearson Post to attack Student Union gallery

By LISA CURTIS
Collegian Staff

Tonight, at 17:00 hours E.S.T. in the Student Union Art Gallery, Pearson Post Industries will be giving a briefing pertaining to recent actions as a part of Operation Desert Cloud. No, that is not a typo. Desert Cloud.

Pearson Post Industries, a Rhode Island based video art studio, is the brainchild of Joshua Pearson and Gardener Post.

"My partner and I both went to the Rhode Island School of Design and graduated in 1982. We were inspired by (America's) awesome military technology. We've been collaborating since 1985," Pearson said.

Photo courtesy of Pearson Post Industries

Pearson Post will launch an attack against your funny bone tonight at UMass in the Student Union Art Gallery

"The show is a display of our three defense entertainment devices; it's a multi-media extravaganza. We've spent four or five years working on this," he added.

According to their press release, Pearson Post is offering, "Entertainment that combines the visual power of military technology with the explosive impact of live performance and the content of historical documentation."

In 1990, the Storefront for Art and Architecture, a nonprofit gallery, sponsored a competition seeking hypothetical suggestions for reusing 12 obsolete underground Atlas-missile silos located in upstate New York and northwestern Vermont. One of the 27 winning proposals belonged to Pearson Post Industries who created the idea for a "Nuclear Heritage Park" to link the 12 sites. A description of their proposal was found an issue of New Yorker magazine. "This mutant Disney World would offer, according to its kaleidoscopic video description, displays of weapons systems 'collected from around the world;' missile rides 'up, up and away, for a spectacular splash down in Lake Champlain!;' and a night club replica of the Pentagon's War Room."

"It was like watching CNN news on acid heavily laced with speed," claimed an article by Liam Liffey describing the Pearson Post Industries in action. "A curious melding of revival meeting and the 50's nuclear instruction film Duck and Cover, wouldn't be to far off the mark."

There will be a live performance by the duo featuring their systems: the Telepodium Launcher; the MMABS/Patriot Jr.; and the Gulfbag Recreational Air Defense System.

Pearson was hesitant to leak further details about the operation.

The Pearson Post Industries will perform tonight from 5 p.m.-7 p.m. at UMass in the Student Union Art Gallery. Admission is free.

N8873780

HELP SURVIVAL
Get a $10 Haircut
All proceeds go to the Amherst Survival Center
John Dellaria Studios
26 Main St., Amherst
Sunday, March 3rd
from 10-4 pm
sponsored by the Panhellenic Council

GRAND OPENING OF COLLEGE NIGHT at The Original NY COMEDY SHOP
AMERICA'S PREMIER COMEDY CLUB
HEADLINE ACTS DIRECT FROM NEW YORK CITY
YOU'VE SEEN THEM ON HBO-LETTERMAN AND ARSENIO HALL
NOW SEE THEM LIVE AT THE
NY COMEDY SHOP
YOU WON'T STOP LAUGHING
This Week
Joey Kola
As seen on: Evening at the Improv, Showtime Comedy Club Network
Jesse Emmett
A regular at Catch a Rising Star NYC
Mike Jackson
A regular at: Dangerfields
VIP CARD WILL BE ISSUED TO STUDENTS AT THE CLUB. VIP CARDS ARE VALID FOR ½ PRICE ADMISSION FOR 1 FULL YEAR. DON'T MISS THIS EVENT!
Showtimes:
Friday: 9:00
Saturday 8:00 & 10:00
for reservations call
(413) 534-0041
At the Holiday Inn across from Ingleside Mall
Holyoke, Mass.

Pearl Street
this week...
Thur., Feb. 28—8:30pm 18+
MINIBUS SANDWITCH
BORDERLAND
18+ Dance Party w/ DJ Michael Dolce
Fri., March 1 7:00pm WRSI
LADYSMITH BLACK MAMBAZO
Sat., March 2 8:30 pm
Record Release Party
THE EQUALITES
coming...
Thurs., March 14 8:30pm 18+
BOP HARVEY
Fri., March 15 8:30pm
THE BREAKDOWN
Sat., March 15 8:30pm
WHO'S KIDDIN' WHO
Mon., March 18 8:00pm 18+
ASWAD
Fri., March 22 7:00pm
KID CREOLE & THE COCONUTS
Mon., March 25 7:00 & 10:00pm
B.B. KING
next week...
Thurs., March 7 8:30pm 18+
Ska Dance Party
THE TOASTERS
The Mighty Mighty Bosstones
Fri., March 8 7:00 pm
NRBQ
The Blood-O-rama
Sat., March 9 8:30pm
ROOMFUL OF BLUES
Mon., March 11 8:00pm 18+
THE BUCK PETS
Pearl Street Cooperupstairs for dancing every Wednesday Night Thurs. 18+ Fri. and Sat. Top 40 Dance with DJ Johnny Advance Tix Available at Strawberries Record Stores. Ticket on (800) 262-8980 and For The Record in Amherst
413 584-7771
10 PEARL ST. NORTHAMPTON, MA

Main St RECORDS
SON OF Main St RECORDS
RECORDS • CASSETTES • COMPACT DISCS
IMPORTED, INDEPENDENT & DOMESTIC
MON—WED 9:30-6 SUN 12-5
THURS—SAT 9:30-9
213 MAIN ST. NORTHAMPTON
586-5726
COLLECTABLES • USED
MANUFACTURER'S OVER—STOCKS
MONDAY—SATURDAY 10-5:30
THURSDAYS 10-9 SUNDAY 12-5
21 STATE ST., NORTHAMPTON
586-1707

HUNAN GOURMET
京 CHINESE RESTAURANT 湘
ADVOCATE ★BEST OF THE VALLEY★ READER'S POLL 1990 1st PLACE
The aroma, sound & taste of authentic Chinese cuisine prepared Hunan, Szechuan, Mandarin or Cantonese style—especially for you!
• Ample Free Parking
• Major Credit Cards Accepted
• Full Liquor License
• Open 7 Days A Week
• Take-Out Service Available
• No MSG
585-0202 261 King St., Northampton, MA

Largest College Daily in New England

THE MASSACHUSETTS

Established in 1890

DAILY COLLEGIAN

VOLUME C | FRIDAY, MARCH 1, 1991 | ISSUE 92

UN sets about the task of securing peace

BAGHDAD (AP) — With word of the cease-fire, volleys of celebratory rifle and anti-aircraft fire split the smoke-filled skies over Baghdad.

Kuwaitis tempered their rejoicing as they surveyed the ruins of their reclaimed country.

"It's a catastrophe. It's indescribable," said Fahd el-Muhammed as he gazed at Kuwait City's waterfront, disfigured by twisted barbed wire and Iraqi fortifications.

On ships in the Persian Gulf, on sprawling air bases and in desert camps, more than a half-million U.S. troops — the biggest U.S. deployment since Vietnam — heard word of the halt to fighting.

The soldiers expressed elation and voiced a common wish.

"I'm anxious to get back to . . . my life," said Staff Sgt. Jesse Cruz, 24, of Detroit, a reservist working in Air Force medical supply in Saudi Arabia.

White House spokesperson Marlin Fitzwater said the first withdrawal of American troops could begin within a matter of days. But Bush said a permanent cease-fire depends on Iraq's actions.

"This war is now behind us," Bush said Wednesday night. "Ahead of us is the difficult task of securing a potentially historic peace."

Diplomats at the United Nations were setting about that task yesterday. The Security Council met yesterday morning, after the late-night drama of Iraq's agreement to abide by the council's resolutions on Kuwait.

The dozen Security Council resolutions passed after Iraq's Aug. 2 invasion of Kuwait include provisions on reparations and human rights violations, an arms embargo and the renunciation of Iraqi claims to Kuwait.

Iraq's promise to abide by the resolutions came in a letter addressed to the Security Council and signed by Iraqi Foreign Minister Tariq Aziz.

"The government of Iraq agrees to fully comply with U.N. Resolution 660 and all the other Security Council resolutions," it read in part.

Whatever the long-term postwar picture, the immediate terms of peace were being dictated by the victors on the battlefield. At the stroke of midnight Wednesday in Iraq, EST 8 a.m., allied forces ceased land, sea, and air attacks.

To help make sure the Iraqis knew of the cease-fire, the allies dropped leaflets on Iraqi troops and blasted the news over loudspeakers in Arabic.

AP photo

KUWAIT CITY — An Iraqi soldier lies dead in a sandy ditch on the outskirts of Kuwait City this week, after being killed as coalition forces moved in to liberate the city.

The Iraqis released few figures about casualties, but an Iraqi government official said 20,000 Iraqis had been killed and 60,000 wounded in first 26 days of the war, without specifying whether they were civilians or combatants or both.

Prince Bandar bin Sultan, the Saudi ambassador to the United States, was quoted by the Washington Post today saying Saudi military officers estimate Iraqi war dead and wounded at 85,000 to 100,000. At least 80,000 Iraqi troops were taken prisoner.

SGA decides it won't impeach Pres. Diephuis

By MARC ELLIOTT
Collegian Staff

Impeachment charges will not be filed against Student President Natasha Diephuis, as voted by the Undergraduate Student Senate Wednesday night, because the vote did not meet the requirements mandated by the Student Government Association's constitution, Attorney General Adam Scales said.

After Wednesday night's meeting, Scales discovered that for the Senate to bring impeachment charges to the Student Supreme Court the motion must pass with an "absolute majority." Originally, the Senate thought the motion would require a two-thirds majority of the senators present and voted to proceed with impeachment, 27 to nine with one abstention.

Scales said he is still studying the problem, but he believes that "absolute majority" means a majority, or 34 of the 66 existing senators, must support the motion.

President Diephuis said the move for impeachment did not worry her.

"I didn't really consider it a threat anyway," she said.

Sen. David Gagne (McNamara) said he would not waste the Senate's time on another impeachment attempt on a president with only a few weeks left in office.

"I would like to go through with it," he said. "However, the time might be better spent working on an issue for students."

The removal of Dan Chesnicka as the speaker and Karen Talbot as the treasurer is still valid. Director of Student Activities Irene Carew said the administration will not recognize Chesnicka and Talbot as SGA officers as reported in yesterday's Collegian, but both will still be on the Commission on Undergraduate Governance.

This commission, which has been charged by the administration to restructure the student government, met for the first time yesterday at 4 p.m., 15 minutes after the Student Senate Coordinating Committee chose three senators to represent the student body to the commission.

The remaining three student seats will be chosen by the committee today at 5 p.m. in the SGA office.

The coordinating committee selected senators Kevin Newnan (Johnson), David Gagne (McNamara), and Bob Monaghan (Moore) despite pleas by senators and committee members to elect a diverse representation.

Sen. Anthony Hines (Third World Caucus) encouraged the committee to include a minority voice.

"I'm sorry that the Senate was unable to elect a non-partisan diverse group," he said after the votes had

CONTINUED ON PAGE 4

Heart attack victim subject of controversy

Racism claimed factor of arrest in 1975 Hadley robbery

By MARK HENSLEY
Collegian Staff

The man who died Sunday after playing basketball in Boyden Gym, and who was misidentified by police and medical examiners, was convicted of armed robbery in 1975 in a contoversial trial regarding a McDonald's on Route 9 in Hadley.

Craeman J. Gethers, originally misidentified as Richard J. Roger, was found guilty of the robbery along with another Black University of Massachusetts student, in a trial which many said was tainted with racism, according to reports of local newspapers during that year.

Gethers was subsequently sentenced to eight to 12 years in prison, but was released early on parole.

In August 1974, Gethers and star UMass football player Robert Earl Brown were arrested for the robbery, in which witnesses said three Black men entered McDonald's, one of them with a shotgun, and robbed the restaurant of $1,100.

According to Collegian reports, Gethers was arrested after a witness identified him in a store. However, many people on campus felt that he had only been accused because he was Black.

As the Brown-Gether trial progressed, students and faculty held on-campus protests to proclaim the students' innocence.

Gethers, who witnesses said leapt over a counter during the robbery, was reported to have had medical records which proved he was on crutches with an injured ankle at the time of the incident.

In addition, police said they found a green turtleneck and a black overcoat, which witnesses who identified Gethers said he was wearing during the robbery, in an abandoned car, along with the shotgun used in the robbery.

Police had said earlier that at the time of Gethers' arrest, a green turtleneck and a black overcoat were found in his room.

Gethers, who at the time of his death was wanted for parole violations, was carrying a false Massachusetts driver's license.

Police also said that he had been holding a job in New York City under his assumed name of Richard J. Roger.

According to Springfield medical examiner Dr. Loren Mednick, Gethers died of a heart attack. He said no foul play was suspected and there were no signs of drug use.

BOG angered by lack of representation; chairperson wants seat on commission

By AMY HENRY
Collegian Staff

The commission set up by the administration to restructure the Student Government Association was lambasted at last night's Board of Governor's meeting for not including a representative from the Board.

Chairperson Sue Gordon said she would do everything in her power to get a seat on the commission.

"At the recent commission meeting they mentioned the Campus Center and the Student Union, but there's no one from the Board on the commission," she said. "Some of us have been here for years and have expertise on issues concerning the complex."

Gordon said there is clear intent by the commission to do something to the Board and Student Union without the Board's input. "The Board is a legitimate 'very recognized' body on campus," she said.

Gov. Bill Hewitt said, "Maybe we should have no part of it. We're not going to have any real power. If we are on it we'll be associated with whatever decision they make. Administrators often make their own decisions on student issues regardless of what students think."

Vice Chairperson Ed Corrigan said, "I don't think there's anyway we can procedurally fight this. We have no power."

In other business:

- The motion to reappoint the Lesbian Bisexual Gay seats with voting privileges to the Board was tabled.
- William Anheim was appointed to the Board from the Southwest area.
- A motion to place a lottery machine in the Campus Center was tabled to the Building Operations Committee.
- The Third World Caucus was given $200 last week to bring a speaker; Guy Glodis was given $200 for a talkshow.

INSIDE:

FRIDAY, MARCH 1, 1991

Page 3: MassPIRG to hold conference for environmental action.

Page 5: Bob Freeman praises soldiers who fought in Gulf War.

Page 12: Men's hoop faces Rutgers in quarter-finals of Atlanta-10 tourney Sunday in Philly.

WEATHER

Weather — Weatherina — the Weathstress — the Weathermeister — makin' clouds — makin' it cold — 40 degrees.

THE MASSACHUSETTS
DAILY COLLEGIAN

New England's largest college daily newspaper. Circulation: 19,000. Published every weekday during the calendar semester. The Massachusetts Daily Collegian is a Registered Student Organization of the University of Massachusetts.

113 Campus Center, Amherst, MA, 01003
Phone (413) 545-3500 FAX (413) 545-1592

STAFF

Editor in Chief — Tern Starmer
Managing Editor — Jody Cabin
Editorial Editor — Jeremy Levinson
News Editor — Gayle Long
Sports Editor — Adnen Natt
Arts Editor — Danielle Dowling
Photography Editor — K.A. Burke
Black Affairs Editor — Sondra Sutton
Women's Issues Editors — Risa Kells, Monique Tabon
Multicultural Affairs Editor — Alexander Nguyen
Third World Affairs Editor — Pratip Dasidar
Lesbian, Bisexual, Gay Issues Editor — Trysian Skeigh
Business Manager — Susan George
Advertising Manager — Dave Melnick
Finance Manager — Beth Patterson
Circulation Manager — Jim Winterbottom
Subscriptions Manager — Staces Rogers
Promotions Manager — Marc Pruskin
Production Manager — Nicole Dumas
Day Graphics Manager — Jenn Burns

PROFESSIONAL STAFF

Business — Brian Hannigton, Lori Black, Maureen Majerowski
Graphics — Rory Evans

TODAY'S STAFF

Night Editor — Sarah DeMaster
Copy Editor — Lavina Gammon
Layout Technician — Nicole Dumas
Photo Technician — Dondi Ahearn
Production Supervisor — Nicole Dumas
Typesetter — Kim Trisino
Production — Brad Hutchison, Chris Prell, Jason Torla

For Your Information

FRIDAY, MARCH 1

Jumaa Salat — Sponsored by the Muslim Student Organization in CC 805 at 12:30 p.m.

SATURDAY, MARCH 2

Organizational Meeting — All Registered Student Organizations should send representatives to an organizational meeting for the RSO Council at 12 p.m. Check the information desk for room number.

Relationship Seminar — At the College Church in Northampton. Will begin at 8:30 a.m. For more information, please call the church office at 586-0057.

Games Tournament and College Bowl — UMass will host the 1991 Northeast Regional Games Tournament and College Bowl through Sunday in CC Basement and the Student Union Ballroom. Admission is free.

March and Rally — in Springfield at Mason Square at 11 a.m. For more information, please call 584-8975.

Gay, Lesbian, and Bisexual Cafe — Featuring singer/songwriter Erica Wheeler, at Hampden Theatre at 8 p.m. For more information, call 545-4824.

Student Empowerment Workshop — Sponsored by the Commuter Area Government from 12 p.m. to 6 p.m. Check the information desk in the CC for room number.

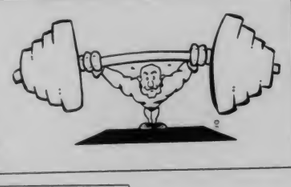
SUNDAY, MARCH 3

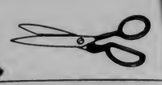
Five College Gulf Coalition Meeting — at 7:30 p.m. in the East Lecture Hall at Hampshire College. For information, please call 549-4625.

Auditions — Open call for the UMass Theatre Guild production of Agatha Christie's Ten Little Indians will be at 7 p.m. in CC 101. Call 545-0415 for more information.

Announcement

A story in yesterday's* Collegian *incorrectly named the day of a memorial service for Matthew Peterson. The service will be held at 3 p.m. on Sunday at the Ashland Federation Church in Ashland.





KATINA'S
MaxCreek 1 March
Progressive Dance Party w/ WMUA's Chelation Reveal dance contest • prizes
2 March
Plastic X w/ Sensils Kiln
3 March
March 6 Cocktail Party 8-7:30
March 8 Ronnie Earl & the Broadcasters w/Treat Her Right
ROUTE 9, HADLEY • 586-4463

Rent One of Ours
• Cars
• Trucks
• Cargo Vans
Rent by Day, Week or Month
Special Weekly and Weekend Rates
North Amherst Auto Rental
Rt. 63, 40 Montague Rd.
North Amherst, MA
549-RENT
(549-7368)
Most Major Credit Cards Accepted
On Bus Route

GLOBAL TICKET EXCHANGE
(413) 747-9922
INXS 2/26 Hartford | STING 3/8 Hartford
PAUL SIMON 3/6 Hartford
GRATEFUL DEAD Albany 3/23-25
RED SOX — BRUINS — WHALERS & CELTIC tickets.
All concerts — sports & theater tickets
1605 Main St. Springfield • (413) 747-9922

amc THEATRES
$3.50 TWILITE SHOW
MT. FARMS 6 — 584-9153
DANCES WITH WOLVES — KEVIN COSTNER
Fri at (5:00 at $3.50)8:30
Sat at 1:15(5:00 at $3.50)8:30
Sun at 1:15(4:45 at $3.50)8:30
Mon-Thurs at 8:15
sleeping with the enemy
Fri at (4:45 at $3.50)7:30, 10:15
Sat at 1:45(4:45 at $3.50)7:30, 10:15
Sun at 1:45(6:00 at $3.50)8:30
Mon-Thurs at (6:00 at $3.50)8:30
SCENES FROM A MALL
Fri at (5:00 at $3.50)7:45, 10:00
Sat at 1:45(5:00 at $3.50)7:45,10:00
Sun at 1:45(6:15 at $3.50)8:45
Mon-Thurs at (6:15 at $3.50)8:45
HAMPSHIRE 8 — 584-7550
the doors
Fri at (4:20 at $3.50)7:10, 9:50
Sat at 1:30(4:20 at $3.50)7:10, 9:50
Sun at 1:30(5:20 at $3.50)8:10
Mon-Thurs at(5:20 at $3.50)8:10
HE said, SHE said
L.A. STORY — STEVE MARTIN
Fri at (4:50 at $3.50)7:30, 10:10
Sat at 1:50(4:50 at $3.50)7:30, 10:10
Sun at 1:50(5:40 at $3.50)8:30
Mon-Thurs at(5:40 at $3.50)8:30
HOME ALONE
Fri at (4:30 at $3.50)7:10, 9:50
Sat at 1:40(4:30 at $3.50)7:10, 9:50
Sun at 1:40(5:30 at $3.50)8:10
Mon-Thurs at(5:30 at $3.50)8:10
JOHN GOODMAN — KING Ralph
Fri at (4:40 at $3.50)7:20, 10:00
Sat at (4:40 at $3.50)7:20,10:00
Sun at (5:30 at $3.50)8:20
Mon-Thurs at(5:30 at $3.50)8:20
Shipwrecked
THE NEVERENDING STORY II
Sat at 2:00
Sun at 2:00

Board of Governors
BOARD OF GOVERNORS B.O.G. Working Toward A Better Union
Campus Center/Student Union
Board of Governors
WELCOMES
PARTICIPANTS
Association of College Unions-International Northeast Region Recreation Games Tournament
March 2, 3 1991
BEST OF LUCK!!
Please use our University Store Hatch Cafeteria
Mini Store TOC Bar & Restaurant

You could get free tuition. Free books. A great job. All we ask is a piece of your mind.
Do you have the potential to be one of the best teachers in America? If so, the Kansas City Magnet Schools will pay for your education. All we ask in return is your 3-year commitment to teach in one of our exciting themes.
• Science/math • Foreign language
• Engineering • Reading
• Agribusiness • Communications
• Visual/performing arts • Montessori
If you're a U.S. college junior, senior or Master's candidate, complete and mail the coupon for complete information.
MAIL TO: TTAP COORDINATOR, Dept. A3
School District of Kansas City, Missouri
Human Resources Division, Room 801
1211 McGee, Kansas City, Missouri 64106
NAME
ADDRESS
CITY STATE ZIP
PHONE (AC)
COLLEGE ATTENDING
The Kansas City Magnet Schools
An equal opportunity employer. M/F/H/V

LOCAL

MassPIRG to hold action conference

By AMY HENRY
Collegian Staff

Students throughout the state are expected to come to the University of Massachusetts this weekend to learn how to turn their concern for the environment into action through the MassPIRG "Student Action Conference," said a MassPIRG spokesperson.

"This is the highlight of the year," said MassPIRG Treasurer Aaron Rome. "We are focusing on teaching skills so that students can learn how to work more effectively on campaigns."

Rome said he expects 170 students from all over Massachusetts plus 40 students from UMass to participate in the two-day conference.

"This is a great event because you'll have a lot of fun, meet different activists from across the state and learn about skills and issues from full-time staffpersons," he said.

Rome said this conference teaches students skills helpful in fighting any social cause, not just environmental issues.

"You can learn skills to help recycle on campus, or solve social inequality in the world, or share what you know about these issues," he said.

Some workshop titles are "Solid Waste Reduction," and "Pesticide Control." Skills sessions include "Planning Successful Campaigns," and "Lobbying Decision-makers."

MassPIRG is currently working on a campaign to gain support from businesses for the statewide recycling bill, he said.

Another campaign, the greenhouse reduction bill, involves students collecting signatures from science and economic professors statewide. Signatures for the bill will be presented to Sen. John Olver (D-Amherst), a sponsor, at 1:30 p.m. on Saturday.

The conference is March 1 to 3. Students can register today from 5 to 8 p.m. in Campus Center 163. The registration fee is $15 or $10 if you provide lodging for a student.

$74 million to be cut from Higher Ed.

Gov. Weld creates commission to study closing of colleges

BOSTON (AP) — Gov. William F. Weld has created an 11-member commission to study closing some of the state's public colleges to cut an anticipated budget deficit. Some educators question how much will be saved initially.

The Weld administration has said it will cut $74 million from the higher education budget for the next fiscal year, some from increasing tuition, converting scholarships into loans and administrative reorganization, but most of it from closing as many as five colleges.

The commission, created by executive order Monday, will be given 60 to 90 days to make recommendations, Weld's special assistant, Stephen Tocco, said.

"We're not trying to be uncooperative about this, but our studies indicate that in the very first year, the savings from closing a campus would be relatively minimal," said Peter Mitchell, the Board of Regents' vice chancellor for policy and planning.

There will be costs in laying off unionized faculty and administrators, Mitchell said.

Veteran tenured faculty must be given one year's notice or be compensated under their contract agreement.

Employees who agree to retire must be paid pensions, and many administrators and faculty can collect compensation for unused vacation and sick time.

Skeletal staffs will be needed to maintain closed campuses and keep them secure, and the state will have to pay outstanding bond obligations on dormitories and other facilities, he said.

There could also be long and costly suits over college closings, he said.

Tocco said the costs of closings have been taken into consideration and the administration's goal is realistic.

GLB Forum

FRIDAY, MARCH 1

Coffee Social — Sponsored by the Lesbian, Bisexual, Gay Alliance. 3 p.m. to 6 p.m., Campus Center 803.

SATURDAY, MARCH 2

Cafe — Sponsored by the GLB, the final cafe will feature singer/songwriter Erica Wheeler, and include performances by keyboardist and vocalist Kate Messmer, an original poetry reading by Chaia Heller, and an original performance piece by Amy Ford. 8 p.m., Hampden Theatre at UMass.

SUNDAY, MARCH 3

Poetry — "Performing Poetry" by Olga Broumas and Cheryl Clarke, 8 p.m., Wright Hall Auditorium at Smith.

MONDAY, MARCH 4

Discussion — A talk on "Domestic Partnership," by Paula Ettelbrick, 4 p.m., Neilson Library, at Smith.

TUESDAY, MARCH 5

Workshop — A discussion on "Being out in the world of work," by Smith alumnae, 4:30 p.m. to 6 p.m., Neilson Library Browsing Room at Smith.

Discussion — A talk on religious issues with representatives from Dignity and Am Tikvah, Seelye Hall 10, Smith.

Film — A movie "Longtime Companion," 7 p.m., Wright Hall Auditorium, at Smith.

WEDNESDAY, MARCH 6

Workshop — 'Fun with Latex: Workshop on Safe Sex in the Age of Aids," by She Viera, 4 p.m. to 6 p.m., Seelye Hall 10 at Smith.

Theater — "Performing A Gender: Lesbian and Gay Theater," by Kendall, 7 p.m. at Campus Center 165, at UMASS.

Forum — "Domestic Partners," 8 p.m., Wright Hall Auditorium at Smith.

THURSDAY, MARCH 7

Lecture — "Addressing Homophobia on Campus" with Jean and Jim Genasci of P-FLAG, 4 p.m. to 6 p.m., Hillyer 117, at Smith.

Film — A comedy film, "By Design," 7 p.m., Campus Center 803 at UMASS.

Performance — Rachel Alpert, .10 p.m., Davis Ballroom at Smith.

Professor dedicates life to Holocaust studies

By ALISON BUCKHOLTZ
Collegian Correspondent

When Professor James Young leaves his Bartlett Hall classroom for home, he ambles past the Robsham Center, through lot 34, past the sororities on Nutting Avenue, and turns left on Phillips Street. He checks for his keys and his mail and lets himself into his Amherst home: the University of Massachusetts Hillel House.

Young is the Five College Hillel scholar-in-residence, and when he goes home he becomes a different kind of teacher — and, once again, a student.

In "real life," Young lives in New York City. He taught at New York University for four years, and he now commutes to Amherst once a week to teach his Monday and Wednesday classes. During that period, he lives in the Hillel House, taking part in activities in the Jewish community.

Living among students in the Hillel House "is exactly as I remember my student life," he said. "Even down to the music. The nice part of being a scholar-in-residence is that dialogues on campus can get carried back home."

The arrangement is mutually beneficial, according to Hillel Rabbi Saul Perlmutter. "[Young] has been a wonderful addition to the House," he said. "I was thrilled to offer it to him."

Young, a professor in the English and Judaic Studies departments, specializes in representations of the Holocaust, the Jewish-American novel, and literary theory. He uses his own campus days as an undergraduate at the University of California at Santa Cruz as a model for his position in the Hillel House.

UCSC's "preceptors," based on Oxford's tutorial system, live with students in the dorms "and would invite us down for coffee or political discussions. We didn't have to distinguish between living and teaching and learning," he remembered. "That system is really important. For four years every student has this chance to read and write and learn — they have the rest of their lives to make a living."

But studying representations of the Holocaust in 1974, when Young began graduate school in English at Berkeley, seemed the least pragmatic way to earn a living at the time. "There was one slim book out on Holocaust literature then, and maybe one course on it at Brandeis," he said. "But I wanted to understand how this history was passed down to us. Because I was born after the war, I was dependent on the views of others — of Holocaust survivors, of army soldiers — to shape my own."

Young wanted to discover his own truths. But when he left Berkeley for Europe to "learn everything I could" about the Holocaust, picking up French and German, reading everything within reach, and digging through archives, he soon faced a similar realization. "What is remembered of the Holocaust depends on how it is remembered, and how events are remembered depends in turn on the text now giving it form," he stated in his first book, Writing and Rewriting the Holocaust.

Narrative subjectivity, he found, extended in every direction. "Even where you study the Holocaust is important," he said. "How I learned about it in Israel is different than in Europe. I found a different Holocaust in every country: at the Yivo Institute in New York, at Yad Vashem in Israel, in Berlin. I found a range of Holocaust memory, and sometimes no Holocaust at all."

Each location had a very narrow national perspective, he remembered. "But instead of negating these perspectives, I decided to incorporate them into my work."

Indeed, these different perspectives of the Holocaust became the core of his work, which has rewarded him with Fulbright, Guggenheim, and Rothschild Fellowships. It also introduced Young into an endless game of truth and consequences.

From the start, he found that the literary and historical truths of the Holocaust are inseparable. Though the facts may be objective, he said, narrative isn't; just the same, variations in the telling lead to solid consequences in the real world.

These consequences of education and understanding are important to Young, who pursues a theory of literary historiography because it considers the implications of interpretation in a post-Holocaust world.

Subjectivity of narrative truth, as well as the immediacy of its consequences, in his view produce world-altering results: "Interpreted versions of the Holocaust in its texts now lead us to our actions in the world in light of the Holocaust," he wrote. This belief has impelled his Holocaust study since Berkeley, which has taken him across Israel and Europe many times, for years at a stretch.

During the early years in Europe, "my aim was to see what I could learn on my own, since no one was able to direct me. I came back with a plan: to write on Holocaust literature." Back at Santa Cruz, Young studied with historical theorists, and during a year-long fellowship at the Yivo Institute, began formulating his dissertation. He received a Fulbright grant to study and teach at Hebrew University in Israel, where he remained from 1981-1983, and returned to live in 1988 and 1989.

"I felt very comfortable to be doing work in Israel," he remembered. "Holocaust studies in the U.S. tend to be done by conservatives, but in Israel it's more 'lefty,' aligned with the Labour party. Scholars there are doing it because they're humanists, they want to know how and why this can happen."

Living in Israel during the time of the Lebanon war impelled his work with the gravity of current events. "My dissertation was punctuated by the hourly news beeps," he said. "There's a link in what I wrote to what was happening at the time. It led me, in turn, to write the chapter about anti-war poetry in Israel, showing how Israel thinks of itself after the Holocaust. Which is to say, not always as the victim."

CONTINUED ON PAGE 4

James Young, scholar-in-residence Photo by Allen Berkowitz

■ James Young

CONTINUED FROM PAGE 3

In addition to the seminars at Hebrew University, Young also instructed at Yad Vashem's summer course for Holocaust instructors. "I taught how to teach Holocaust literature," he said, while constantly re-evaluating and revising his own study and discovering "different Holocausts."

"I taught mostly in English, but when I lectured to the soldiers in Hebrew, discussed the Holocaust in Hebrew, I found I was uncovering a different Holocaust," he said. As survivors in Israel die and knowledge is no longer passed down firsthand, a different view of the tragedy comes into being, he believes.

"Young Israeli soldiers were the least patient with the Holocaust; they don't understand a time when Jews couldn't defend themselves. About 70 percent of the younger generation in Israel are not children of survivors," he estimated, "and only understand the Holocaust as it is passed down to them at places like Yad Vashem."

In Israel, the importance of remembering the Holocaust, and its emphasis on how it is remembered, has escalated since the country's first years. "For a long time, the Holocaust was not discussed in Israel at all," he said. "Some of the earliest politicians, like Ben-Gurion, felt a certain shame — they didn't want past events infecting their new, proud nation."

A still-significant population of Holocaust survivors in Israel has changed how it is remembered and how its images can be used — and misused. "There is a critical consciousness of using Holocaust metaphors in Israel, and when they're wrong, lots of people are around to correct them," he said.

Writing and Rewriting the Holocaust, as well as Young's upcoming book about Holocaust memorials, The Texture of Memory, explores these metaphors, tropes, and archetypes of the Holocaust through diaries, memoirs, firsthand survivor stories, documentary fiction and theater, video and cinematographic testimony, and every other possible narrative form. But what may seem straightforward, he warns, is rarely so.

"There is a conflict between making the information accessible and representing it in all of its complex details. We have to allow for this struggle for balance," he said.

By the end of his UMass course, "Representing the Holocaust," students "understand these contradictions," he said. "Often in a course like this, they come in to have questions answered, but for every question I answer I probably ask three more. I try to provide a critical framework for these questions and answers."

The course "is not a matter of looking at the same Holocaust," according to Young, "but sensitizes people toward all suffering: the genocide of Jews, African-Americans, Native Americans, Armenians. The transmission of conflict has a cultural burden we must be aware of."

Present action, rather than past jealousies, guide Young's views of history. "We don't have to measure one catastrophe against another, but there are real consequences now in how we respond to the present in light of the past," he explained.

Although each student responds to the information differently, "it's inevitable that people see others' suffering in light of their own. It makes it real in our lives," he said.

Young remembered how one Native American student in the course at UMass, "became aware of how his own peoples' genocide had been related to him. He asked himself how he had learned it, inquired into his own memory and talked to his parents and grandparents."

Although many find Holocaust material emotionally upsetting, Young emphasizes the academic approach in his studies and teaching. "The emotionalization of the Holocaust interferes with learning about it," he said. "If a memorial just moves people without moving them to do something, it's illegitimate. I am against the emotional exploitation of the Holocaust for any cause. It's potent material; it doesn't need to be inflamed or exaggerated. As the museum curators say, 'Hot material demands a cool treatment.'"

Working with the Holocaust every day, nonetheless, necessitates certain "survival" tactics for one's own well-being. "People that work at Yad Vashem often have a very dark sense of humor as a survival method," Young remembered. "My academic emphasis allows me to keep it at arm's length even as I study it. It's my way of protecting myself."

Another outlet is his study of Jewish-American writers, a course he hopes to teach next year. His favorites, Henry Roth, Anzia Yezierska, Grace Paley, Cynthia Ozick, and Philip Roth, exceed the boundaries of categorization to become "truly great American writers. They're American precisely for the way they interrogate their own tradition," he said.

"American literature, as immigrant literature, wrestles with its ethnic tradition, tries to define it," he said. "The most American of all books are those by people like James Baldwin, Maya Angelou, Saul Bellow. They interrogate their own past: 'What does it mean to be American and Jewish? American and Italian? American and Black?'"

These definitions spark controversy and re-examination just as "[Holocaust material] passed down to us allows us to understand current conflicts," Young said. Truth and consequence are constantly struggling in these narrative studies, forcing him to ask, rather than answer, questions which assume a supreme importance in day-to-day life.

"There are consequences to how we interpret texts and the world around us," he stressed. "Representations of the world lead us to act, and we need to know how they do it."

Student Government Association

CONTINUED FROM PAGE 1

been counted.

Sen. Jen Lewis (Van Meter), who was the first to be nominated to the commission, said she felt the coordinating committee lacked the authority to make the decison.

"I don't feel I was judged by my peers," she said.

The Student Senate will either approve or invalidate the decisions made by the coordinating committee at the next Senate meeting on Wednesday.

NEW!
Lite'n CRISPY
IT'S SKINFREE!
from KFC
Maple St., Rt 9, Hadley
next to the Hampshire Mall
586-5723
for $2.69
Meals Include
2 pcs. of Chicken,
Garden Salad,
Mashed
Potatoes with Gravy
and Multi-Grain Roll

DELANO'S
57 North Pleasant Street
253-5141
Proper Identification a Must Come celebrate the month of March with us...

sunday	monday	tuesday	wednesday	thursday	friday	saturday
	DRINK SPECIALS WEEKLY	FOOD SPECIALS WEEKLY	Beer of the Month 60 oz Miller, Miller Lite Rolling Rock $4.50 pitchers		1 Friday Inflation Fighters Franks & Beans $1.99	2 LET'S
3 50s and 60s a cappella music Live THE 4 PLAYS 9-?	4	5 Taco Tuesday 9-? free taco bar	6	7	8 Meatball Sandwich $1.99	9 HAVE
10 LIVE THE 4 PLAYS 9-?	11	12 Taco Tuesday 9-? free taco bar	13	14 St. Patrick's Day Party free prizes and more Green Miller Lite $1.50	15 Hot Open Faced turkey sandwich with mashed potatos & gravy $1.99	16 FUN
17 LIVE!! 9-??? The 4 Plays	18 SPR	19 ING	20 BR	21 EAK	22 Grilled Cheese sandwich and cup of soup $1.99	23 SPRING
24 LIVE 9-??? The 4 Plays	25	26 Taco Tuesday 9-? free taco bar	27 Welcome Back Beach Party Prizes for best tan 9-??	28	29 Fish & Chips $1.99	30 '91

EDITORIAL/OPINION

The opinions on this page are those of the individual writer or cartoonist and do not necessarily reflect the views of the Collegian or the University unless otherwise noted.

Again, the U.S. brings justice

This has been America's finest hour since the storming of the beaches at Normandy and the resulting liberation of Europe in World War II. Once again, we answered the cries of a desperate and innocent people who were violently stripped of their freedom and dignity as human beings. To them we gave it back. For seven months they suffered untold and horrendous tragedies wrought upon them by someone who, as General Norman Schwarzkopf put it exactly, does not belong in the same human race as we do. The hell that the Kuwaitis experienced, they never should have. The threat that hung over the world, like the blade of a guillotine, never should have either. But it did. Due to our steadfastness to what was right, and that of many of our coalition partners, the chances of history repeating itself again have been greatly reduced.

Bob Freeman

To every American man and woman who participated in Operation Desert Storm, America and the world will forever be indebted to you. Your valiant actions and sacrifices are nothing less than the marks of heroes. And make no mistake about it, in the minds and hearts of America, you all are our heroes. To you we owe more than a thank-you and a congratulations; we owe you the highest respect, honor, and gratitude possible, for you did not just free the people of Kuwait. More importantly, you put an aggressor and a ruthless tyrant, who threatened the freedom and welfare of America and the world, in his place. God bless you all.

There is not one American who wanted it to turn out as it did, especially you. We did all that was possible to avoid war without forfeiting anything we should not have. For we were not the cause; we knew what was right and never wavered. Those who were in the wrong knew so, and had more than ample time to admit it. They did not heed the warnings and listen to the voices of reason. They failed to calculate correctly American will and determination to the cause of justice. They thought we would just talk tough and stand by while they murdered, pillaged, and raped Kuwait; while they taunted the rest of the world. They were mistaken. Push finally came to shove and the world turned to the brave men and women who so honorably served America. Because of them, tomorrow morning people everywhere will awaken to a sun shining brighter than it has since Aug. 2, 1990 — to a safer world. You have made us even prouder of being Americans. We salute you.

This victorious and historic accomplishment did not come without a tragic and high cost. Those who ought to be revered the most are Americans who lost their lives in the name of freedom. In the coming weeks and months, we will be overcome with joy and jubilation at seeing our brothers and sisters, sons and daughters, husbands and wives, setting foot on the soil of the United States once more. But let us all stop and remember those Americans who died for you and me. It is for them we grieve. Let us share in the pain and sorrow many are experiencing over the loss of loved ones. To the families, we offer you our sympathies and prayers. For the servicemen and women who lost their lives, we offer prayers and shed our tears. We know that you are in God's house as He is with your families in their time of need.

Bob Freeman is a UMass student

We can't forget the civilian dead

We can all rejoice that the Gulf War is over — a war that was unnecessary in the first place. If President Bush had not been intent on waging a punitive war against Saddam Hussein's invasion of Kuwait, diplomatic efforts or economic sanctions would have produced a peaceful alternative to war. In that case, no lives on either side would have been lost.

The punitive war caused an outrageously high number of civilian casualties on the Iraqi side. According to Ramsey Clark, former Attorney General of the United States, who visited Iraq in early February to observe the war damage, as of Feb. 6 there had occurred 6,000 to 7,000 civilian deaths from bombing, and another 6,000 deaths in hospitals from contaminated water, lack of medicine, or insufficient supplies of infant formula. These figures do not include casualties suffered in the last three weeks of the war. The figures were quoted to Clark by Dr. Ibrahim al-Nouri, president of the Iraqui Red Crescent (see Nation, March 11, 1991).

The mainstream press in the United States, kowtowing to the administration and enamored of the high-tech U.S. military weapons, have given little coverage to this grim side of the war. They have not publicized the fact that, according to Clark, the U.S. Air Force repeatedly bombed civilian areas lacking military targets. Clark noted that in small and large cities, central squares and adjoining shops and apartment houses had been hit, causing many civilian casualties.

In this postwar phase, the role of the media in presenting distorted reports on the war needs to be reviewed, evaluated, and criticized. Even the Daily Collegian is guilty. The lead headline in the Feb. 27 issue is "U.S. soldier wounded in Iraq." Need one say more about that, or "surgical strikes" and "collateral damage?"

Gerard Braunthal
Professor Emeritus of Political Science

"All governments are run by liars and nothing they say should be believed."
— I.F. Stone

"What luck for rulers that men do not think."
— Adolph Hitler

What have Americans died for?

Why did Saddam Hussein think he could get away with invading Kuwait?

We knew that Iraq was having a border dispute with Kuwait, and on July 25, 1990, according to the Jan. 16 Seattle Times, Ambassador April Glaspie received the following written instructions from the secretary of state, approved by the president, to deliver the following message to Saddam Hussein: "We will not become involved in your border dispute with Kuwait and we take no position on this dispute." According to Ohio Rep. Mary Rose Oakar, Ambassador Glaspie is now incommunicado.

Why did President Bush give the green light to Hussein in July and then a few weeks later start calling him "a Hitler"? Was Hussein set up by Bush?

Now President Bush wants the Emir of Kuwait restored to power (status quo ante). The Emir does not represent the American way of life — 70 wives, seven personal 747s, sole owner of Kuwaiti Oil Company with half of the oil money going into his own pocket. Are America's sons and daughters to be sacrificed for a guy like this?

Alan Rhodes
Willoughby, Ohio

Notes from the Campus Center Basement

Peace is at hand. At least 1,000 Iraqis are dead for each American — excluding probably tens of thousands of civilians. Regardless of the lies used to justify his war, George Bush has masterfully led the nation through what can only be described as cutting butter with a chainsaw.

• • •

The word is not to expect a "line in the sand" for Israel anytime soon. While the Kuwaitis who fought against Iraqi rule are Resistance fighters, those who struggle for the freedom of Palestine are terrorists. It's interesting how wealth and power can make the difference. "What if Kuwait's main product were broccoli . . . ?"

• • •

It's been so long since the federal government has had to deal with domestic problems. While free-lancing for colonial monarchies, the Bush Administration has tended to forget the 250 million of us here, at home. Concerned for 1.8 million formerly expatriated Kuwaitis, he neglected 4 million homeless Americans.

• • •

Who is going to be the first to tell the American public that no money is left to deal with domestic problems? No, I'm not talking about the mythological Peace Dividend. I'm talking about the federal budget. George Bush's lips will no doubt be called into question again as poor, working and middle-class Americans are asked to foot the federal bill.

• • •

Jeremy P. Levinson

I guess, however, that in the last analysis, we can hold our bloodied hands in the air, survey the devastation of Iraq and Kuwait and in unison exclaim: God bless the United States of America.

• • •

Provost Richard O'Brien joins the long list of University brass to investigate alternatives to employment at UMass. It's hard to take these folks seriously. At least it's amusing to watch them try and act authoritative as they pack their bags.

• • •

Wednesday night the undergraduate Senate managed to fire several of their officers. You know — the ones who asked the outgoing University administrators to take over student government. Student Affairs Office Director Irene Carew declared that the University would still consider them student government officers. Look Rene, you can declare the moon to be made of cheese if you want, but . . . Someone should probably tell her that she's out of the running for Denny Madson's job, so she can relax.

Said one of the SGA officers, "What they (the Senate) don't realize is that I'll be here for two years. And, right now the administration loves me."

• • •

Perhaps the most recent, amusing machination by that serpent Dennis Madson was the poll he authored that found 70 percent of undergrads in favor of the administration take-over. The question was, "Given that the constitutional convention could not occur within the Senate, do you agree with . . . This wording is analogous to asking: "Given that the Vice Chancellor of Student Affairs is incompetent and dishonest, should he be granted a raise?"

Even as you leave, Denny, you've got no self-respect.

Jeremy P. Levinson is a Collegian columnist

NOBODY'S PERFECT

Not even the best known specialty & department stores in the U.S. They make mistakes, too...That's when our buyers take advantage and pass the savings onto you!

SUPER SALE EVENT
6 DAYS ONLY...
Sunday March 3 to Friday March 8
UMass Campus Center-Room 101 Lower Level

SAVE • SAVE • SAVE • SAVE • SAVE • SAVE • SAVE • SAVE • SAVE

Ladies & Mens Short Sleeve TOPS reg. $22 & up $9.99

Ladies & Mens SHORTS reg. $28 & up $10.99

Ladies Sleeveless TOPS reg. $19 & up $6.99

Ladies & Mens Fleece TOPS reg. $34 & up $9.99

Ladies Sizes 1/2 to 15/16 Mens sizes 28-38

Ladies & Mens DENIM JEANS $12.99

Currently selling in one of the best specialty stores in the U.S. for $36-$42!

OPEN TO ALL STUDENTS

FIRST QUALITY & SLIGHT IRREGULARS

NOBODY'S PERFECT

Appearing Now At:
Umass Campus Center Room 101
Sunday March 3 thru Friday March 8
Save Big From 12 to 8 pm on Sunday and 8 am to 8 pm Monday thru Friday

ARTS & LIVING

Fringing on success

By BILL ROSENBLATT
Collegian Staff

The Fringe, a local trio from Boston, is coming to the Iron Horse in Northampton tonight. Now I know that many of you see the word "local" in this context and immediately lose interest. But take my word for it: this is an exception. If these guys weren't so interested in their families and day jobs, they would be famous in the jazz world.

The Fringe is a sax/bass/drums trio that explores as much musical territory as possible with that small lineup, in the tradition of Henry Threadgill's band Air and Sonny Rollins' classic Freedom Suite. However, instead of Air's historical homages and more delicate sensibilities, the Fringe emphasizes controlled tension and raw energy. And instead of Rollins' trio-leading virtuosics, the Fringe is definitely a cooperative band.

Valley Jazz

Most of the Fringe's music is totally improvised, relying on almost telepathic communication among the band members rather than pre-arranged tunes. Their incredible sensitivity is the result of playing together regularly for almost two decades.

The group was founded in 1972 by tenor saxophonist George Garzone and drummer Bob Gulotti, who were students at Boston's Berklee College of Music. They quickly became one of the few glorious exceptions to that school's reputation for turning out session hacks and fusion techno-robots. They got themselves a regular Wednesday night gig at the Willow Jazz Club in Sommerville in 1981 and have been playing there ever since. John Lockwood joined the group on bass in 1985, replacing original bassist Richard Appelman.

The group has released only five albums to date, all on their own small label. The latest, and by far the best, is The Return of the Neanderthal Man, the only Fringe album so far that comes close to capturing the experience of seeing the band live. The album became very popular in the Boston area; it spent several weeks in Boston Tower Records' jazz top ten.

In concert, The Fringe are capable of working the audience into a frenzy. They typically begin their improvised pieces in a pensive mood, and then they slowly build up the tension. They build it, and build it, and build it until the energy reaches majestic, cathartic proportions. The audience is totally drawn into the experience.

All three musicians are excellent, but I can't resist singling out Garzone as someone who has totally developed his own sound. He occupies roughly the same "free" area as Archie Shepp, Pharoah Sanders or post-1960 Coltrane, but his tone is smoother, more like Lester Young or Stan Getz. He has an

CONTINUED ON PAGE 8

Photo courtesy of the Iron Horse

The Fringe will play at the Iron Horse tonight. Doors open at 7 p.m. Tickets are $9.50 in advance.

Need some edutainment

By MARK ANDERSON
Collegian Correspondent

You Must Learn.

Granted, this pedagogical statement is hardly profound, especially within the confines of academia. But taken in the context of tommorrow's speech by guest lecturer, Kris Parker (aka KRS-ONE), those three words also embody the mindset and main priority of many in the new generation of rap. KRS-ONE — rapper, poet, philosopher and teacher — is considered by many to be the leader and spokesperson for the movement. And if you listen on Saturday night, You Will Learn.

Mr. Parker's words can be read on the New York Times' editorial page (9/9/89) and heard in the ivy-covered lecture halls of Harvard and Yale and on the not-so-ivy-covered set of the Arsenio Hall Show. The 25 year-old KRS-ONE and his band, Boogie Down Productions have recorded four albums (and a host of singles) since they unleashed their first record, South Bronx to a young, mostly New York rap audience in October, 1986. The group's most recent release, last year's EDUtainment is their best effort to date, although insightful and thought-provoking material abounds throughout their catalog.

Parker's life has not always been this ideal. From a homeless adolescence (a

CONTINUED ON PAGE 8

THIS FRIDAY 2-6 PM

THE TOC SEAFOOD BAR

PEEL 'N' EAT SHRIMP
$ 4.25/HALF DOZ

FRESH STEAMERS
$ 4.50/'BUCKET'

AND 12 OZ DRAFTS
MICHELOB $ 1.15
SAM ADAMS $ 1.45
(BOSTON ALE)

ONLY AT THE TOC LOUNGE
11th FLOOR CAMPUS CENTER

Short-term credit.

Earn credit in one, two, three, four, six, seven or eight weeks this summer.

Call 1-800-FINDS-NU (in Illinois, call 708/491-4114) or mail this coupon.

Name
School Address
City
State Zip
Home Address
City
State Zip

Northwestern University Summer Session '91 Think or swim.

I'm thinking. Send me a free copy of the Summer Session '91 catalog with financial aid and registration information (available in April).

Please send the catalog to ☐ my home ☐ my school.

Northwestern University Summer Session '91
2003 Sheridan Road Evanston, Illinois 60208-2650

Affordable & Elegant

silverscape designs
264 N. Pleasant St., Amherst 253-3324
177 Main St., Northampton 584-3324
Goldsmiths • Gem Gallery

Faculty exhibits at Hampden show effort put into them

By JENNIFER SAARINEN
Collegian Correspondent

Impressive and creative works by photographer Susan Eve Jahoda and sculptor Nancy Frommer La Point, two faculty members of the University of Massachusetts, are on exhibit in the Hampden Gallery.

Jahoda displays part of her on-going series of manipulated, blow-up photos entitled "Family Picture." She compliments 50s looking colorized photographs with moving stories, tearing down old myths surrounding the family unit.

All the photographs depict member's of Jahoda's own family and the prose originates from her journal entries written over a period of 18 years. Together they create a mood which is both personal and disturbing at the same time.

One picture, representing the breakdown of family communication, presents Jahoda standing next to her father. Both are gazing past each other although they are aware of the other's presence. She has a look of dispair, he has a look of mistrust. The photo itself is colorized except for the faces, which are sickly grey. In the background is what looks like a snake skin, perhaps representing the residue of the past which hangs above and between father and daughter.

Quoting the accompanying passage, "She could see his face pressed up against the window. It looked grey and distorted."

On a lighter note, LaPoint's clay sculptures are definitely worth a look. There is incredible detail in her work. From the inscriptions on her "Time Towers," to the rhinos and bears on her boat sculptures, to the tiny carvings on her boxes, you can tell the enormous amount of time she put into these pieces.

Her sculptures, which are richly colored and textured, draw from folk traditions and have an antique, almost metallic look about them. Some of her pieces even have a life-like qualities.

One such work is a box entitled "Pretty Jaws," which gives the impression of a brightly colored, smiling creature. The teeth hold the bottom of the box together in an upward swing which makes you want to rock it.

All of her work looks like it serves an ancient purpose, like a container, a toy, or in the case of her towers, a way to tell time. One set of her towers has the two hands of a clock, and the other has little clay pieces which move along a wire, resembling an abacus.

Jahoda's photographs and LaPoint's sculpture are both excellent groups of work, which show a great amount of time and thought. LaPoint's sculpture is amazing in its technique and detail. Jahoda's personal connection to her photographs make them powerful, as we can relate them to our own experiences.

The exhibition will be on display until March 8 in the Hampden Gallery located in the Southwest Residential Area of UMass.

Photo courtesy of Residential Arts

Jahoda's photograph of her and her father.

■ The Fringe

CONTINUED FROM PAGE 7

approach to pure sound, as opposed to virtuoso scale-running, that is a bit like Pharoah minus some of the blues edge.

The Fringe's music has been called "avant-garde," and that term carries an unfortunate connotation of "nobody can understand it." But the members of The Fringe know how to react to an audience as well as to each other.

Go and see them, and you will find yourself drawn into the music. Before you know what's going on, your hands will be red and sore from drumming on the table, and your voice will be hoarse from screaming.

Opening up for the Fringe tonight will be Human Feel, another Boston-based band that turned heads a couple of years ago with its own small-label debut. The band is a quintet of youngsters, some of whom have studied with members of the Fringe. As the Boston Phoenix put it, their music is "challenging enough for, say, the typical Art Ensemble of Chicago devotee; it's also perfect for the more timid listener who fears squealing saxophones but has a hankering for something that bends a few rules." It should be a great evening of music tonight at the Horse.

Correction

The GLB Cafe was listed in Calendar under Sunday events. Unfortunately, this event will take place Saturday at 8 p.m. at UMass in Hampden Theatre. We are sorry. We are not malicious beasties, just wicked scatterbrains.

■ KRS-ONE

CONTINUED FROM PAGE 7

runaway at 13, he was in and out of New York shelters for six years) to the tragic murder of his best friend (BDP's DJ Scott LaRock), the young Kris learned many of the harsh lessons that Reagan's America was (and is) so eager to teach its inner city children. He insists he is not bitter, but at the same time he is not about to forget his roots. One listen to any BDP album will prove that.

But it will not be KRS-ONE (acronym for 'Knowledge Reigns Supreme Over Nearly Everyone') the self-proclaimed Hip-Hop Blastmaster on the mic. (i.e. no dopejamz, sorry.) Instead, it will be Kris Parker, the intellectual and self-educated philosopher/orator who will address the Fine Arts' Center crowd tomorrow evening.

To borrow from George Clinton, the Hip-Hop world is truly One Nation Under A Groove. And with someone like Kris Parker at the helm, her course is far from determinate. However, even as acts like Vanilla Ice and MC Hammer continue to dilute and disfigure the potency and strength of Real Hip-Hop, individuals like KRS-ONE will (I hope) continue to educate as well as be educated, speak as well as listen and create as well as dispel. As long as there are Kris Parker's in the rap industry, I know at least this Hip-Hop fan will continue to find the movement among the most exciting and innovative in modern music.

Kris Parker (KRS-ONE) will give a lecture at UMass in the Fine Arts Center at 8 p.m. on Saturday. Tickets are $3.

fast friendly delivery
256-8911 HADLEY
535-1111 S. HADLEY
(Free Delivery to Mt. Holyoke)
Not valid in Northampton
DOMINO'S PIZZA

Clip And Save
Pick-Up Or Delivery
2 Medium Pizzas & 2 Toppings
$9.99
Order 2 medium Domino's Pizzas with 2 toppings and pay only $9.99. Sales tax where applicable.
Valid at participating stores only. Not valid with any other offer. Limited delivery areas to ensure safe driving. Customer pays sales tax where applicable. Drivers carry less than $20

Pick-Up Or Delivery
Clip And Save
Large Cheese & 1-Topping Pizza
Only $5.99
One Coupon Per Person
Offer Expires 3/31/91
DELIVERED IN 30 MIN. OR LESS
NOT GOOD WITH ANY OTHER OFFER
SC
DOMINO'S PIZZA

THE PUB
fun. food & spirits
Sample Our New Menu
Chicken Skewers
$2.00
Friday and Saturday
8:00pm — 10:00pm
Pitchers of Miller Lite
$4.50
Genuine Draft 12 oz. bottles
$1.25
Jello Shots $1.00
SINCE • 1968
15 EAST PLEASANT·AMHERST

INTERVIEW WITH SUCCESS
JC Penney
Ingleside Mall
Career Clothing Sale
Saturday, March 2, 1991
FOR WOMEN:
Large selection of women's dresses-50% OFF!
Originally $80-120.00 Now $39.99-59.99
Women's suits-Now 2 for $179.99. Regularly $99.99 each
FOR MEN:
Stafford Executive Suits-Now 2 for $325.00.
Regularly $325.00 each. Save 50% OFF original price!
"Come in before 12:00 pm and receive free gifts:"
For Women: Free Strand of pearls, free suit pin, and a free blouse.
For Men: A free Stafford tie.

DOONESBURY
By GARRY TRUDEAU

MAJOR, I DON'T KNOW HOW YOU PUT UP WITH THESE PEOPLE!
OH, YOU GET USED TO 'EM.
WITH THE PRESS, YOU JUST HAVE TO REMEMBER WHO'S IN CONTROL. YOUR SERGEANT SEEMS TO HAVE A REAL APTITUDE FOR IT, BY THE WAY...
THIS GUY HAS ALL THE MARKINGS OF A REAL PUBLIC AFFAIRS OFFICER!
SERGEANT, DO ANY OF YOU GUYS HAVE LIKE?
I'LL HAVE TO GET BACK TO YOU ON THAT BILL.

THE FAR SIDE
By GARY LARSON

QUOTE OF THE DAY

We must believe in luck. For how else can we explain the success of those we don't like?

Jean Cocteau

DAILY CROSSWORD PUZZLE
Edited By TRUDE MICHEL JAFFE

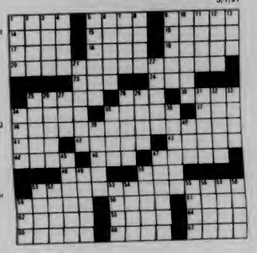
ACROSS
1 Make fun of
5 Mom's mom
9 Kind of apt. building
14 Russian range
15 Hindu princess
16 '— of star-cross'd lovers'
17 Restrain
18 Stoppers
19 Settle an I.O.U.
20 Type of Protestant church
23 Memorable Arden
24 Compass letters
25 Toil tediously
28 — crow, recanted
30 Flamboyance
34 Steps in a fence
35 Like lemon juice
37 Ark builder Var.
38 Feeling contrary
41 Lonely number
42 Bacchanalian cries
43 "Cannon King" of Essen
44 School segment
46 Stop
47 Ladies-in-waiting?
48 Bern's river
50 Hair style
51 Rightful or refreshing
59 God of Islam
60 Regimen
61 Minute opening
62 A Keaton
63 Asencio's department
64 Sicilian resort
65 Schwarzenegger role
66 Regan's father
67 Chuck-wagon chief

DOWN
1 Playwright Connelly
2 Butter substitute
3 Second man
4 Monarch
5 Mourn
6 Milieu for 67 Across
7 Tolstoi's Karenina
8 Heavy dew
9 Actress Leslie
10 Undid
11 California wine valley
12 Clock part
13 Place of or for Suffix
21 Midnight rider
22 Motionless
25 —-faced grave
26 Floating hotel
27 TV alien
28 Took a part
29 Afternoon socials
31 Invalidate
32 Daytime viewing
33 Hired hand
34 Man from Aberdeen
35 After a bit
36 Marshall Islands atoll
39 Out in the open
40 Hockey great
45 By-and-by in Barcelona
47 Rain drain
49 White-faced
50 — Vista Park, Yosemite
51 Muse of history
52 "The Good Earth" heroine
53 Pedestal occupant
54 Fatigue
55 Cartel letters
56 Words to Nanette
57 Florence's river
58 Unwitting disclosure
59 Gen.'s helper

ANSWER TO PREVIOUS PUZZLE:

A	N	G	U	S		B	A	M		T	O	B
B	O	A	S	T		B	L	A	H		U	T	E	S
E	A	T	E	N		A	M	A		T	I	D	E
T	I	G	R	U	S		L	I	A		O	U	S	E
		S	T	E			M	A	P
B	A	R		D	E	K	A		E	V	I	T	A
L	I	T	O		V	E	R	A		N	O	M	O	S
K	I	N	D	E	R	G	A	R	T	E	N	C	O	P
E	L	D	E	R		B	O	H	R		A	L	E
S	T	O	R	M		H	A	L		S	S	I	S
		L	I	A			O	A	R
M	A	N	D	R	I	S	B	R	I	D	G	E
F	O	A	L		A	L	E	E		A	V	A	I	L
R	A	I	D		G	E	M		B	E	L	L	S
A	N	N	A			T	E	S		S	T	I	L	E

3/1/91



MENU

LUNCH
Meatball grinder
Tuna melts

DINNER
Seafood pasta primavera
Savory baked chicken

BASICS LUNCH
Vegetable grinder
Tofu pasta primavera

BASICS DINNER
Tuna melts
Savory baked chicken

CALVIN AND HOBBES
By BILL WATTERSON

I INTRODUCED THE DAME TO A FRIEND WHOS VERY CLOSE TO MY HEART. JUST A LITTLE DOWN AND LEFT, TO BE SPECIFIC.
MY FRIEND IS AN ELOQUENT SPEAKER. HE MADE THREE PROFOUND ARGUMENTS WHILE I EXCUSED MYSELF FROM THE ROOM. I ALWAYS LEAVE WHEN THE TALK GETS PHILOSOPHICAL.
YOU'RE IN REAL TROUBLE NOW, YOUNG MAN!!

TANGELO PIE
By TIM SNIFFEN

I think this shirt's too shallow for my taste, Marcus... I'm gonna exchange it.
you know, it always fascinates me to watch some people continually discard some "shallow" object from their life, hoping to come one step closer to perfection...
-and yet continually fail to realize that the truly shallow thing around is in fact their OWN SHALLOW EXISTENCE!
Theoretically speaking, of course.
May I stamp on your theoretical feet?

SNOOKY LANSON
By E. VEZINA & R. SHAUGHNESSY

HEY! WAIT UP!
BUS STOP
I DON'T BELIEVE IT! I MISSED THE LAST BUS!
BUS SCHEDULE
NO PROBLEM! I'M SURE ONE OF MY FRIENDS WILL COME GET ME.
PHONE
PHONE

FROTTER
By GARRY PORTER

JOE, WHAT'D THEY DO TO YOU?
THEY CONNECTED AN ELECTRODE TO MY BRAIN TO CAUSE STIMULATION.
GOD, THAT'S AWFUL.
OH, IT'S NOT SO BAD, REALLY, CONSIDERING THE ALTERNATIVE.
WHAT DO YOU MEAN JOE?
OH JOE! JOEY DEAR! COME BACK HOME, JOE! I'M WAITING FOR YOU —
SHE'S NOT AS YOUNG AS SHE USED TO BE.

YOUR DAILY HOROSCOPE
By JEANE DIXON

ARIES (March 21-April 19): If a business venture turns sour, grin and bear it. Recycling an old project will bring new profits. A family reunion provides a terrific opportunity to see former friends. Write overdue letters.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20): Sort out fact from fiction before reaching a final decision. Do not be tempted to slack off on the job. You will only have to redouble your efforts later! Plan a romantic outing.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20): Your instincts may not be as good as usual now. Go slow. Respect the judgement of your loved ones and close associates. Finishing an important assignment on time should be your top priority.

CANCER (June 21-July 22): You gain in prestige by participating in community projects. A member of the opposite sex may be involved. Share your creative resources. Higher-ups are receptive to new ideas.

LEO (July 23-Aug 22): Do not try to force issues! Delay will work in your favor. Stop thinking that you are always right and the other person wrong. Get back on track with your exercise program.

VIRGO (Aug 23-Sept 22): A recent decision may no longer seem practical. Take the initiative in getting things done at work. Steer clear of hazy business deals. Do not try to rush things in romance!

LIBRA (Sept 23-Oct 22): A clever career move wins you new admiration and clout. Begin a long-term relationship on honest footing. An older person continues to play an important role in your success.

SCORPIO (Oct 23-Nov 21): Finish what you start and you will develop a better understanding with those in authority. A former employee can help you cut through red tape. A humanitarian project will improve your image.

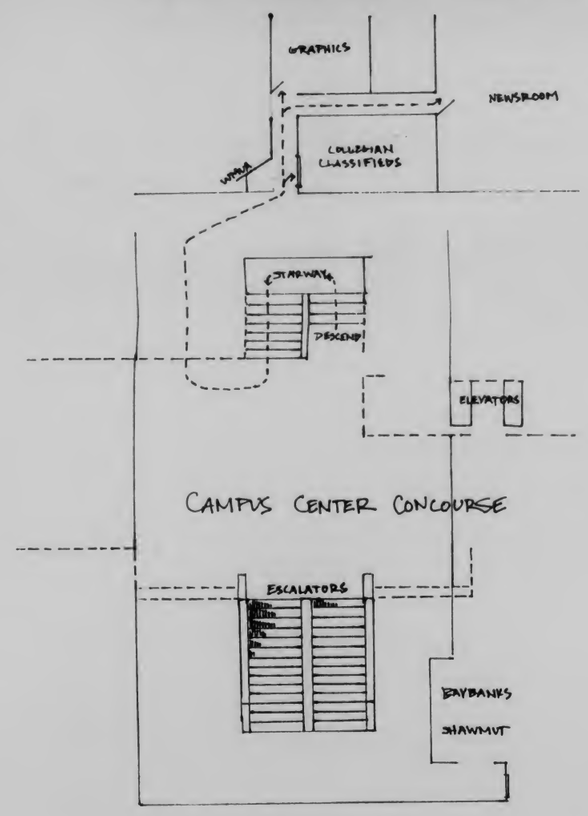
SAGITARIUS (Nov 22-Dec 21): A new approach brings the desired result. Your position is stronger than you thought. A festive social gathering puts you in touch with a fascinating member of the opposite sex.

CAPRICORN (dec 22-Jan 19): Follow through on a hunch. Attend important meetings, but play a less visible role in decision-making. Loved ones provide the emotional support you need. Avoid confiding in outsiders.

AQARIUS (Jan 20-Feb 18): You can play a major role in changing certain domestic arrangements. A new residence could be involved. Tactful queries will bring the desired answers. You feel much more energetic.

PISCES (Feb 19-March 20): Be prepared for a sudden lifting of restrictions. The pace at work accelerates. A partner's need could outweigh your own desires. Adjust your schedule in order to lend a helping hand.

We know how to reach you...
Do you know how to find us?



The Massachusetts Daily Collegian
113 Campus Center
University of Massachusetts
Amherst, MA 01003 545-3500

■ women's track

CONTINUED FROM PAGE 12

qualified for the meet just last week.

Juniors Samone Marrisua and Diane Ozzolek will compete in the the shot and the 20-pound weight, respectively.

Overall, LaFreniere said she does not see UMass scoring in events, but instead making the finals.

"To make the finals, my kids will have to run and throw for personal bests," LaFreniere said. "Without Lee Ann we probably won't score, but you never know. This is a young team and they are not afraid to run with people they shouldn't be running with."

■ women's hoop

CONTINUED FROM PAGE 12

Defensively, UMass will have to contend with URI's up-tempo style. Fastbreak teams have wreaked havoc on the Minutewomen all season, but McCleary says that UMass will respond, this time, with defensive pressure of their own.

Meanwhile, McCusker is hopeful that this, her last home game at the Cage, can result in a victory.

"I guess it won't hit me until well after it's over that this is my last home game," the 6-foot-2 McCusker reflected. "It's been such a major part of my life for four years. This is a major reality check for me."

"First and foremost, I'd like to win this game," said the senior from Pittsfield. "It would make this season worth it.

Sports Notice

1991 Northeast Regional Games Tournament and College Bowl Competition The Association of College Unions is sponsoring this year's competition in billiards, bowling, backgammon, table soccer, table tennis and chess. Events will be held on Saturday afternoon and Sunday morning, March 2 and 3 in the Campus Center Basement and Student Union Ballroom. Campus Center Director William Harris and Games Room Manager Martin Fallon are co-hosting the event. Admission is FREE and the campus community is invited.

Gymnasts face Flames, Orangemen

By MICHAEL MORRISSEY
Collegian Correspondent

For the second time in three weeks, the University of Massachusetts mens' gymnastics team will face off against nationally-ranked competition, hoping to pull off an upset.

This Saturday, they face both Syracuse (No. 23) and Illinois-Chicago (No. 15) at 7 p.m. in Boyden Gym. Circumstances are different this time around. UMass is peaking, and is coming off a huge double victory against Army and Air Force, in which they broke many team and personal records.

Sophomore Steve Christensen broke his personal record on the all-around, with a score of 54.4, and he broke the team's pommel horse record with a 9.6. In addition, Joe Haran set the new freshman record on the all-around with a 54.1.

The Minutemen concede they are underdogs, but they still feel they can beat both teams, according to head coach Roy Johnson.

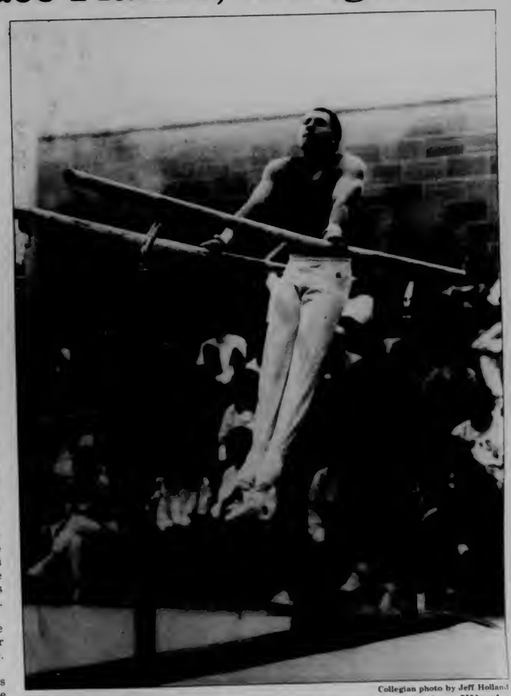
This meet may be more difficult without Christensen, however. Christensen missed practice yesterday and has been sick for almost two months. He is the team's top all-around gymnast.

Syracuse is probably the favorite of the three, although they are below Illinois-Chicago in the national rankings. The Orangemen (5-1) have averaged 270.5 points in their last two meets, beating Navy and Southern Connecticut. They have a five-meet winning streak.

Syracuse's Chris Kirby is eighth in the country in the individual all-around. The sophomore averages 55.72 points and is undefeated this year. Another top Syracuse gymnast is Steve Radt, whose still rings routine (9.6 avg.) has earned him the No. 9 spot in the nation.

Illinois-Chicago may be slipping. The Flames (6-5), who average 272.87 points per meet, scored only 265 against Kent State. They have lost four meets in a row.

Nevertheless, they are led by the nation's No. 1 all-around gymnast, sophomore Barry McDonald. McDonald, originally from Dublin, Ireland, averages 56.82 points per meet, and is fourth in the country on the parallel bars (9.65 avg.).



Collegian photo by Jeff Holland

Senior Bill Sayman will perform on the horizontal bars against Illinois-Chicago and Syracuse this weekend. This will be the second time in three weeks the team has faced nationally-ranked competition.

CLASSIFIEDS

COME TO THE COLLEGIAN OFFICE—CC 113 MON — THURS 8:30-3:30 ● DEADLINE 2 DAYS PRIOR TO PUBLICATION ● CASH IN ADVANCE, 20¢/WORD/DAY FOR STUDENTS

ACTIVITIES

BRANFORD MARSALIS TONIGHT! Fine Arts Center 8pm Call UPC for info 545-2892

CELEBRATE INTERNATIONAL WOMEN'S DAY Friday, March 8th in the Cape Cod Lounge. 8am-1pm. Food, art, music, and poetry

JOIN UPC, the concert production company of UMass -Learn how to produce concerts & make great friends. Meetings every Tues at 6:30 Call 545-2898 for info

NEED A DATE? Call the dating game every Friday from 6-7 Listen to WMUA 91.1 FM and call in to love

LOOKING FOR AN ALTERNATIVE to the usual Friday night? Central Area Govt presents a Bluewall Coffeehouse for all UMass students on Friday March 1st 8pm-12pm Tickets sold at the door. $2 Central residents, $3 all others Stop by for a most excellent time.

PAGEN STUDENTS -meeting Sunday at 7:00 in Campus Center room 805-809. All are welcome

PLASTER POSTER PARTY! Join the UMass Juggling Club as we cover the Valley with flyers! Meet on the CC Concourse, 3:00

"RUN FOR RUNAWAYS!" Next staff meeting- Sunday, March 3, 8:15pm Newman Center Classroom One (only 5 weeks 'til race day)

STUDENT EMPOWERMENT WORKSHOP Saturday, March 2 in the Campus Center from 12-6pm. Check at the info desk for room number HAIGIS HOOPLA IS COMING Get some friends together and start practicing for Haigis Hoopla, an out door 3-on-3 basketball festival sponsored by the UMass Sport Menegement Program and WHMP FM. Festival will take place April 26-28. Look for registration materials in the coming month and prepare for a weekend of fun, friends, food and basketball!

ANNOUNCEMENTS

BENEFIT For Necessities/Necessidades Featuring: Fugazi The Brood Zu-Zu's Petals Tri-proction by Power/UPC/AMC March 9 SUB 8:00pm

BED AND BREAKFAST- downtown ideal for visiting parents and friends. 549-0733

GOLDEN KEY MEMBERS General meeting Monday March 4 Room 904 - 906 C.C. 7:30 A very important meeting Refreshments too

OCHO will be closed Monday March 4 after 1pm and all day on Tuesday March 5. Sorry for the inconvenience.

OIL CO-OP -Join OCHO OIL CO-OP and save money. Register at 428 Student Union or call 545-0865

HELP AMHERST SURVIVAL CENTER- $10 haircuts Sunday 3/3 at John Dellaria Amherst. 10-4pm Sponsored by the Panhellenic Council

AUDIO/VIDEO/TV

USED STEREO Components/VCRs/ s/Color TV's/ We buy, sell & trade everything from budget systems to high end separates. Detailed list. 80 + items. Call anytime S/A/V Exchange 256-0941

AUTO FOR SALE

1975 SPITFIRE, Rebuilt motor, good body, free parts car, $900 -323-9470

1983 HONDA ACCORD 5-speed very good condition. AM/FM tape stereo -$2000 or BO Eve -549-8035

1987 JEEP WRANGLER V-6 automatic, 47,000 miles, mud, blue w/ black top and interior. Much more. $7595 -546-3142

DRUMMERS

HARD WORKING COMPETENT drummer needed ASAP for working band. We have all the necessities. Call 253-2712

ENTERTAINMENT

RACK-A-DISC is still the best for DJ's and live entertainment. Call anytime 586-9900. ask about our specials

FOR RENT

4 or 5 Bedroom Apt. in N'ton. Off South St -15 min. walk to town. Parking garage option, quiet neighborhood. Avail now. 585-5745 or 508-840-3460. $790/month

AMHERST, 1 BEDROOM AVAILABLE IN 3 BEDROOM, NEW HOUSE ON BUS LINE FIREPLACE, BEAUTIFUL!! AVAILABLE NOW CALL 8-4, 665-3326

WINTER SPECIAL: 1 month rent .99 cents with one year lease 2 Bedroom- $450 3 Bedroom- $537 Sunderland, free bus route, laundry facilities, swimming pool, garden plots short term lease available. 665-3856

FOR SALE

DIGITECH GSP-5 Signal processor analog dist. stereo effects $300/BO -Mike 6-4808

FUTONS Metawampe Top quality gold bond futons Delivery anywhere in U.S.A. Sleep with us and save! 1-800-3FUTON1

IBM COMPATIBLE XT10 COMPUTER: Includes 1 floppy drive, 33 Meg. hard drive, monitor, keyboard, lots of software included. Call Phil at 253-7157. Make me an offer.

MAC 512K & extra drive. Software $600.00/BO call 548-9334

SANYO AM/FM TWO BAND STEREO Stereo integrated amplifier, semi-automatic, turn table, double-cassette deck with high speed dubbing, continuous play, synchronous dubbing, automatic level control system, counter, C.D -outlet. GREAT STEREO!!! MUST SELL — Model GXT707 $90 Please call Theresa at 6-0923

USED 12SPD TOURING bike for $95. Good condition Call 6-2571

FREE BRUNO'S PIZZA

BOOK A HOUSE/DORM party with RACKADISC and have free food -Call 586-9900 for details (limited to UMass & Amherst College)

HELP WANTED

CAPE SUMMER COD CAMP COED Need enthusiastic, dedicated people to work/live with kids. Beautiful location, excellent program, competitive salaries. Loads of fun. Call Doug/Chad at 546-2527 for more info and application

EARN $300 to $500 per week reading books at home. Call 1-615-473-7440 Ext. B-281

EXCELLENT PAY making money with your personal computer. Free details. Call 1-803-739-0789 ext. 23

GREAT SUMMER OPPORTUNITY Jewish co-ed residential camp seeks counselors and specialists. Capitol Camps, located in the beautiful Catoctin Mountains, one hour from Washington DC offers tennis, water sports, nature, arts, video, gymnastics, radio, drama, journalism, etc. If you are interested in the challenges and excitement of working with campers in grades 3-10, we want you on our team. Good salaries, great fun! Our director will be at the camp fair on March 5. For more information and an appointment, call 1-800-783-2208

INTELLIGENCE JOBS. All branches. US Customs, DEA ect. Now hiring. Call 1-805-962-8000 Ext. K-9616.

WORK STUDY STUDENT- Needed Tu & Th am for SOM Coffee Shop in SBA -Karen 549-3677

INSTRUCTION

BEGINNING GUITAR LESSONS Call Steve 548-4493

EARN CREDIT learn to Scuba Dive. Basic Classes held Monday, Tuesday, Wednesday, and Thursday 7-10PM in Curry Hicks Pool. Open Water II class held during Spring Break in Key Largo, FLA. Advanced Class held in New England in April. For further information call 549-6401, or drop by Curry Hicks starting 2/4/91.

LOST

GOLD HOOP EARRING. Possibly near Melville. Please help! Sentimental value 546-6770

HELP I LOST my keys 2/27 -Hasbrook 20/134 Stew 253-0964

LOST CAT grey shorthaired white paws chest belly neutered male -665-4418

DIAMOND RING & WEDDING BAND in a purse 545-2703 eves 253-9431

HEAVY SILVER BRACELET lost on 2/23 near 149 Brittney If found please call Kristen 253-5474

OAKLEY SUNGLASSES: orange mirror w/ sentimental value Please call 546-0845 Lost lower Central area

POLO GLASSES Call 6-1259 Reward

REWARD$$$ Black & gold onyx earring lost Thursday night outside, near Washington 2-21-91 Please call 546-2426 Sentimental Value!!!

YSL SUNGLASSES somewhere between the Hatch and Frenkin DC -$Reward$ please please call 8-2131 Jenya

PERSONALS

*ALPHA CHI OMEGA****
--Sisters and Pledges--
Happy Hera Day!
Let's show our pride!
Sometimes the pin does make the chick
Love, Margo

DAVE E.
Seen you around-
Would like to meet you.
-SA-

HAPPY BIRTHDAY KIKI!!
Have an awesome time
Love,
The pledges of Chi Omega

HAPPY BIRTHDAY Stacey and Timbo!!

HEY BLUEWALL BOY -get rid of the maroon sweater!

HEY CRAIG
It's been a year since...um...that night. How about doing it again? I know the stadium is in perfect condition for it. Anyway, thanks for being there especially when I need you -I just wanted to let you know I LOVE THEE, THEE, THEE
HAPPY 1 YEAR?!?
-ME-

HEY GEOLOGY GEORGE III
You looked good playing pool in Tuesday's paper! I hope you can chalk me up some day. I will look for you in Morrill!
-Chrissy-

HEY- Tri-Sigma's and their dates- Get ready for "a roll in the hay" tomorrow! Get Psyched! Have a blast!

JEESUS
It's Tim Valas B-day
You're weird and your friends are weird
Love Always
Your Neighbors

JIM
Thanks for a great year
Love Donna

PAUL
You have filled the last year with happiness
Happy Anniversary!
I LOVE YOU!
KIM

ON FEBRUARY 18, 1991 A person lit himself on fire in the name of Peace. Please think about that today

SELINA- I can't find you. Please- another phone message- Tim

SWM seeks SSF. Arrogant, moody, caring, sensitive genius with interests in music, literature, ethics, the martial arts, massage, and science desires attractive, mature, innocent, intelligent woman for intensely emotional and physically experimentative relationship. Ability to converse at length a must. Catholicism and unpronounceable surnames will by tolerated. MJZ-BPH

TO THE BIG Boobie in Emerson Happy 22nd Birthday! From the little boobies

TRI-SIGMA proudly welcomes its newest pledges Paige, Val, Jeanine, Melissa, Denise and Tammie. Congratulations! Love -The Sisters

WEIRD LEGS AND BOOFET Thank you for the card We had a great time too! Laura and Wendy

ROOMMATE WANTED

N. AMHERST, 5 minutes to UMass. Female to share 2 bedroom apt., $195. 549-4721

SERVICES

LEGAL QUESTIONS? The Legal Services Center offers free legal assistance to fee-paying students. Contact us at 922 Campus Center. 545-1995.

SERVICES/WORDPROCESSING

DISSERTATIONS, CASES, PAPERS. On-campus pick-up. Fast! Accurate! Mac/Laser, Spellcheck Nancy 584-7924

SPRING BREAK

SPRING BREAK PARTY! Travel to Jamacia, Mexico! And Panama City! Concerts! Free Parties! Club discounts! And lots more! For info call Denise 548-7158.

SUBLET

GREAT APARTMENT 2 mi. off campus. North Amherst. Big yard, storage, perfect for two people. Available now! Call 549-6027

TRAVEL

CAN'T AFFORD SPRING BREAK? Guaranteed great prices! Space available to Jamaica, Mexico and Panama City Beach, Florida (the new Daytona Beach)! MC/VISA are accepted! Call Cindy at 549-3538 -please leave a message!

CLUB MED Enjoy your spring break!! Added value with each booking Call RENDEZVOUS TRAVEL 1-800-336-1002

FLORIDA'S NEWEST HOT SPOT Panama City-$139.
World's biggest beach party
Daytona Beach-$189
Call Erica or Julie- 546-2649 or Siobhan or Terri- 546-5079
March 8 deadline -March 6 deadline

TYPING

CAMPUS PICKUP AND DELIVERY, fast-cheap- accurate work -Lisa 256-6695

CHEAP RATES!, Fast!, Accurate!, Dependable!, Campus pickup and delivery. Adam 253-9117

FAST, ACCURATE TYPING w/ spellcheck and boldface. $1.45/pg. call Greg 546-0259

RESUMES, PAPERS, anything typed or typeset. Fast, professional service. Affordable rates. KCommunications. 256-6373

WANTED

CASH FOR GOLD. Unwanted jewelry? Necklaces, watches, rings...We buy anything containing gold. Call 546-3399

GRATEFUL DEAD TICKETS We have 4 tix for Nassau on 3-29 Fri. Looking to trade for Sat. or Sun. Albany. Call 253-3904

WANTED TO RENT

LOOKING FOR A 3 Bdrm Apt in Puffton for the fall. We'll take your lease. Contact Lisa 546-5765 or Beth 546-3494

SPORTS

Minutemen eye prize at wide-open tourney

Collegian photo by Carrie Wyeth

Minutemen [from far left] Jim McCoy, Harper Williams, Tony Barbee and Will Herndon (34) discuss game play in Keaney Gymnasium during Wednesday night's match against Rhode Island.

By SAM SILVERSTEIN
Collegian Staff

The University of Massachusetts men's basketball team will face George Washington in the Quarterfinals of the Atlantic 10 Tournament Sunday in Philadelphia. Tipoff is 3:30 p.m.

The Minutemen drew the fifth seed in the tournament; the Colonials are seeded fourth. Both teams finished the regular season 17-10 overall, 10-8 in the A-10.

UMass and GW split their two regular-season dates, with the Minutemen taking an 82-70 win in early December, and George Washington coming from behind to post a 61-59 win in Washington, D.C., Jan. 26.

The Minutemen were seeded fifth last year as well, then streaked to the Championship game with a pair of wins and came within a bucket of upsetting Temple and stealing an automatic NCAA berth.

And, as was the case last year, the Minutemen have played their best basketball of a peek-a-boo season in the last two weeks. UMass blew out Rhode Island in the regular season finale Wednesday night with a devastating second-half performance in which every UMass player played a role.

When URI overplayed hot-handed Jim McCoy, Harper Williams posted up inside and Rafer Giles canned a pair of 3-pointers. Harper Williams and Will Herndon blocked four shots each. UMass players flopped on the floor after loose balls and outrebounded the Rams 18-11.

"I think we're in the right frame of mind," said John Tate. "If we had gotten that kind of effort all season we'd be in first place in the conference."

"That showed that when we play with aggressiveness, we can compete with anybody," Herndon said.

There are a slew of teams in the A-10 this season that can make the same claim.

Top-seeded Rutgers won 12 of its last 14 games. No. 2 Temple will have Mark Macon back after a two-week layoff with a gimpy ankle. Duquesne swept Rutgers and beat Temple in the regular season. Penn State has an experienced backcourt in the league. West Virginia has Chris Brooks and talented freshmen who now have 30 games under their belt . . .

McCoy heads to Philadelphia 26 points shy of breaking Lorenzo Sutton's all-time school scoring mark, a feat that seemed out of reach this season as recently as early February. McCoy has caught fire since, however, hitting more than 60 percent of his shots and averaging almost 25 points in his last five games.

Game Notes: Sunday's game will be broadcast on WMUA 91.1 FM and WHMP 99.3 FM .

ATLANTIC 10 TOURNAMENT SCHEDULE

First Round	Quarterfinals	Semifinals	Championship
March 2, 1991	March 3, 1991	March 4, 1991	March 7, 1991
Palestra	Palestra	Palestra	Highest-Seeded Remaining Team

Track goes to ECACs

By DAN WETZEL
Collegian Staff

The University of Massachusetts women's track team will be without its top runner when traveling to Yale for the Eastern Collegiate Athletic Conference Championships.

Junior star Lee Ann Ambrose has been scratched from the meet due to a severe asthma problem and an infection in her bronchial tube, according to coach Julie LaFreniere. Ambrose was forced to miss the finals of the 400-meter race last week at the New England Championships. Ambrose had been the defending champion.

"Losing Lee Ann is very disappointing, but it is the best thing for her," LaFreniere said. "She just returned to Amherst [yesterday] and she is barely able to breathe normally. She is on all sorts of medications so we are trying to get her better for the outdoors. Lee Ann is devastated, but it is for her own good."

LaFreniere will send four other runners and two throwers down to New Haven, Conn., on Saturday. Leading the way will be sophomore Becky Johnson, who will run in the 800-meters.

"Becky is still recovering from a virus that held her out a month, but she is getting sharper and the shorter distance [from the 1,000-meters] will help her out.

Lennice Johnson will, according to LaFreniere, also benefit from a shorter race, the 500-meter. Johnson ran the 600 last week.

"Lennice has also been out [tendinitis] and last week she was in second [place] until the last 50 meters and then people started passing her," LaFreniere said. "This week, with a shorter distance, maybe she can hold on."

Freshman Kelly Liljeblad will run the mile this week. Last week Liljeblad ran well but did not score due to an extremely talented field of runners. This week should be the same.

"The field may not be as strong as last week's, but it is still very tough," LaFreniere said.

In the 5,000-meters LaFreniere is looking to sophmore Mo Meldrim, who

CONTINUED ON PAGE 11

Women's hoop faces Rutgers

By GREG SUKIENNIK
Collegian Staff

Saturday afternoon means two things to the University of Massachusetts women's basketball team.

Firstly, it's the Minutewomen's last chance for a regular-season win. It's also senior Keyburn McCusker's last home game. A win would be really nice.

Both scenarios could actually come true tomorrow. The Minutewomen, 0-25 overall and 0-16 in the Atlantic-10 Conference are looking at their best chance to pick up that elusive first win.

URI, currently 6-20 overall and 2-15 in the Atlantic-10 Conference, are the team UMass came closest to defeating all season, and with that in mind, the Minutewomen are looking forward to tomorrow afternoon's contest.

On Feb. 19, in Kingston, R.I., UMass came back from a 41-26 halftime deficit and was down by only five points with eight minutes to go before faltering.

Keyburn McCusker owned URI all night, scoring 25 points on 12 of 18 shooting from the field, and assistant coach Louise McCleary noted that McCusker will again be UMass' primary offensive weapon in her last-ever appearance at the Cage.

"Keyburn has been playing well of late," noted McCleary, "and we need to get her the ball and exploit Rhode Island's lack of height. We didn't go to her enough the first time [against URI]."

Another area of improvement for UMass as of late has been point production from their perimeter players. Both Cherrie Muza and Trish Hessel seem to have found their shooting touch, and McCleary hopes that can translate into scoring balance for the Minutewomen come Saturday.

"When Rhody tries to close off our inside game, we need to be able to stick the open jumper," McCleary said. "If we get good ball movement, that jumper will be open for us and Trish and Cherrie have really picked up their scoring for us recently."

CONTINUED ON PAGE 11

Largest College Daily in New England

THE MASSACHUSETTS DAILY COLLEGIAN Established in 1890

VOLUME C MONDAY, MARCH 4, 1991 ISSUE 93

Duffey accepts American U. post

Collegian file photo

President-Chancellor Joseph Duffey

By MARK HENSLEY
Collegian Staff

After months of speculation regarding his candidacy, University of Massachusetts President-Chancellor Joseph Duffey was named Friday as the new president of American University in Washington D.C. and is expected assume that position in July.

Duffey, who is returning from Washington today, said he was leaving UMass "with some sadness" and that during his eight and a half years at the University he had built up a "great affection" for the school.

"UMass is an excellent school and a wonderful place," Duffey said but added that the presidency at American was "an excellent opportunity to start a new chapter."

According to an American University press release, Edward R. Carr, chair of the Board of Trustees at American University, made the announcement at the board's regularly scheduled spring meeting.

"The appointment of Joseph Duffey commences a bright and exciting future at The American University," Carr said. "In just two years we will be celebrating the university's centennial. We are delighted that a man of Joseph Duffey's stature and demonstrated intellect and administrative capabilities will be at the helm during such an inspiring time in our history."

As of yesterday, it was unknown who would replace Duffey but a UMass press official said a replacement would be found or an interim chancellor named before Duffey leaves.

Former interim chancellor of the Massachusetts Board of Regents and former UMass Chancellor Randolph Bromery has said he would consider one or both of the positions if it is offered to him. Provost Richard O'Brien and Thomas O'Brien, dean of the School of Management have also been said to be candidates for the job.

Provost O'Brien termed Duffey's appointment as simply "our loss and their gain."

Duffey, who was appointed chancellor of UMass-Amherst in 1982, currently heads the entire UMass system which includes the Amherst campus, the Boston campus and the health and medical center in Worcester.

Duffey, who will be the twelth president at American, will replace Richard Berendzen, who resigned last April after pleading guilty to misdemenor charges of making obscene phone calls from his university office.

Duffey said he was pleased to be moving to Washington not only because his wife, Anne Wexler, is there but also because he has many friends there.

American was established in 1892 and now consists of 500 full-time faculty, 700 adjunct faculty, 11,500 students and has an operating budget of $149 million.

During his career, Duffey has held many top level positions in higher education. In 1974 he became the chief administrator for the American Association of University Professors.

Duffey jumps ship, UMass left floating

By PRESTON P. FORMAN
Collegian Staff

The trial balloons floated by President-Chancellor Joseph Duffey the past few years finally took off last week.

It came as a surprise to few. Last spring Duffey was mentioned as one of the top candidates for the presidency of the University of Maryland. He took his name out of the running for that post and soon after was appointed president of the three University of Massachusetts schools in addition to his chancellorship here. He would call "an experiment" at the time.

News Analysis

Then late last semester the official University of Massachusetts rumor mill, comprised of administrators and student leaders in-the-know, started working overtime. No one knew what school he was jumping ship to but all agreed that March 1 was the day.

During a summer interview with a Collegian reporter, Duffey was asked if he would be available for a similar interview next summer and, indeed, if he would still be chancellor of the University of Massachusetts next July.

In his usual fashion when asked a question by the press that he does not want to address, he replied vaguely, "Well, all options need to be open, am I right?" Well, after July 1 the question is mute.

Many administrators contacted by the Collegian said Duffey was blessed by good fortune when he took over the reigns of the University in 1982. The University and the state were growing, applications were booming and the University ranked high on national academic polls.

Then the budget cuts began. Provost Richard O'Brien, the second in command at the University and a likely candidate for the interim chancellor post, said yesterday that the dramatic changes wrought by Boston turned a campus on the uprise into one foundering in disillusionment.

Ricardo Townes, associate dean of academic support services, echoed this thought. "In many ways this was the rise and fall of the university," he said. "He tasted both success and failure."

Townes said that like a winning coach Duffey deserves credit for the change in atmosphere he brought to the University. He said this charged environment drew top quality professors and administrators like Thomas O'Brien, the dean of the School of Managament and biologist Lynn Margulis.

But there were failures. Notably, the failure to address many issues like the unresolved crisis in the Student Government Association which has lingered for years, Townes cited. Other administrators said that problems — especially racial — were often ignored until it was too late such as the 1986 World Series brawl in Southwest.

Townes said the University has lost a statewide voice. "He tried to stop the bleeding."

AP photo

PRAY AT MASS GRAVES — Two Kuwaitis pray at a marker in the area of mass graves near Kuwait City Sunday. The markers locate where the groups of people who died during the Iraqi occupation are buried.

INSIDE:

MONDAY, MARCH 4, 1991

Page 3: The next Oprah! Guy Glodis takes to the mic at his own talk show tomorrow.
Page 5: Pamela McCarthy says sex sells.
Page 12: UMass' Jim McCoy broke Lorenzo Sutton's all-time scoring record in a bittersweet overtime loss to George Washington, 84-83.

WEATHER

Lightning strikes again. It will windy, rainy and warm with temperatures in the 50s.

Berkeley ethnic historian begins series

By ALEXANDER NGUYEN
Collegian Staff

The five-college community will have four opportunities this week to hear University of California at Berkeley professor Ronald Takaki, one of the United States' premier ethnic historians, speak on issues concerning Americans of Asian descent.

Takaki is scheduled to give four lectures beginning at 7:30 p.m. tonight at Amherst College in the Babbott Room on "The Roots of Asian American Identity."

On Tuesday, Takaki will speak at 7 p.m. in the University of Massachusetts Campus Center about "The Myth of the Model Minority" followed by a book signing reception for his most recent book, Strangers From a Different Shore: A History of Asian Americans, which has been nominated for the Pulitzer Prize.

"Japan Bashing and It's Impact on Asian Americans" is the subject of Wednesday's discussion in Hampshire College's West Lecture Hall at 7 p.m. Takaki will finish his four-day lecture series discussing "After Iron Cages" on Thursday at Smith College in Seelye Hall at 8 p.m.

Takaki is also giving a discussion for faculty members on Tuesday at 10:30 a.m. in the UMass Campus Center about diversifying the curriculum in American education.

Takaki is currently the graduate advisor of Berkeley's New Ethnic Studies program which is the first of its kind in the country. In the early seventies he taught the University of California at Los Angeles' first Black history course.

In 1987 Takaki was invited by the Academy of Sciences of the Soviet Union to Armenia to present a paper comparing race and ethnicity in the United States and the Soviet Union. In 1988 he was awarded the Goldwin Smith University Lectureship at Cornell University. He has also been honored with the Distinguished Teaching Award by the Berkeley faculty.

Some of Takaki's earlier works include Iron Cages and A Pro-Slavery Crusade.

For Your Information

MONDAY, MARCH 4

Spirit songs — A process of using voice for self-expression and healing. From 7 p.m. - 10 p.m. at Hampshire Centron Gallery.

Papers Reception — Emma Goldman will be honored at a papers reception at 5 p.m. at Collacott Room Neilson Library.

Anti-Administration Rally — Sponsored by the Republican Club, Young Americans for Freedom, The Minuteman, and New Americans. On the Student Union Steps from 12 p.m. - 1 p.m.

Auditions — "Ten Little Indians," sponsored by the UMass Theater Guild in Campus Center 165-69 from 7 p.m - 1 a.m.

Lecture — "Catholic - Jewish Relations," sponsored by the Newman Students Association at Amherst College. The lecture will by at 7:30 p.m. in the red Room of Converse Hall at Amherst College.

Public Talk — "What Does It Mean to Be Myself" will be given at the First Churches of Northampton at the corner of Main and Center Streets at 8 p.m. Sponsored by the Pioneer Valey Society for Continuous Education.

Lecture — Professor Ronald Takaki, in the Babbott Room of the Octogon Building at 7:30 p.m. Sponsored by the Asian Students Association.

TUESDAY, MARCH 5

Auditions — The University of Massachusetts Theater Department is presenting "The Black Women's Survival Kit". Auditions for the roles of six women, a multicultural cast, will be from 7 p.m. - 11 p.m. in Room 206 Fine Arts Center.

Talk Show — The Guy Glodis Talk Show will be in the Camous Center Auditorium, sponsored by the Repubhcan Club, from 7 p.m. - 9 p.m.. Admission is free.

Workshop — Date Rape workshop is being offered by the educator/advocates of the Everywoman's Center on the 4th floor of Cance from 7 p.m. - 9 p.m.

Rally — "Support the Troops," sponsored by the Republican Club and Young Americans for Freedom on the steps of the Student Union at 12 p.m.

WEDNESDAY, MARCH 6

Forum — "Domestic Partner Benefits: Know What You're Not Getting." Sponsored by rhe Faculty/Staff Group for Gay, Lesbian, and Bisexual Concerns, The Office of Human Relations, and the Everywoman's Center from 7 p.m. - 8:30 p.m. in CC 165.

Lecture — Professor Ibrahim Abu-Lughod will present "The Future of the Middle East" in the Johnston Chapel at Amherst College at 8 p.m. Sposored by PAWSS.

Assertiveness and Self Defense Training — For women in the East Lecture hall at Hampshire College from 7 p.m. 9 p.m.

Speaker — Sponsored by the Center for Jewish Studies, Howard Adelman, speaking on "Women and Men in Jewish History," at 12:30 p.m. in the Hillel House Conference Room.

Lecture — The School of Nursing presents Karen Zander in CC 904-908 from 4p.m. - 6p.m.

Brown Bag Lunch Series — The Women's Studies Department sponsor Norma Dana and Nancy Fish, "Welfare Mothers and Education," in CC 904-908 at 12:15 p.m.

Rally — "Pro-Life Rally," sponsored by the Republican Club and the Young Americans for Freedom on the steps of the Student Union from 12 p.m. - 1p.m.

THURSDAY, MARCH 7

Lecture — "Orthodox Feminism in Israel: Reflections on Advancements and restraints" with Leah Shakdiel at 4:15 p.m. in the Red Room in Converse Hall at Amherst College.

Film — "Leila and the Wolves," sponsored by the UMass History Department at 7 p.m. in Herter 231. Followed by discussion.

Speaker — Hillel and UMass POWER present Susan Day, speaking on "Women's Roles on Judaism from a Feminist Perspective."

Lecture — "Jewish Emancipation, Apostasy, Espionage, and the Idea of Arab Nationalism," by Professor Benjamin Braude will be at 4:15 p.m. in the Neilson Browsing Room at Smith College. Sponsored by the Program in Jewish Studies.

Residential Recycling — Education Volunteers will meet at 6:30 p.m. in CC 903 and promotion volunteers will meet at 8 p.m. in the same room.

Casino Night — Sponsored by the Program Council of the Board of Governors from 8 p.m. - 1 a.m. The cost is $5.

Rally — "Straight Pride" rally sponsored in conjunction with Conservative Awareness Week at 12 p.m. on the steps of the Student Union.

FRIDAY, MARCH 8

Forum — An International Women's Day Forum sponsored by the Central American Working Group of the American Friends Service Committee at 7:30 p.m. in Stoddard Auditorium at Smith College.

International Women's Day Celebration — Sponsored by the Women's Penatgon Action presents a celebration at the Unitarian Society Meeting House at 220 Main Street Northampton at 5:30 p.m. Supper will be served; the cost is $3.50. Childcare available. Call 586-9809 for more information.

Play — "The Hobbit" will be performed by the Children's Magical Mystical Theater at the Munson Memorial Hall on the South Amherst Common at 10:30 a.m. For more information please call 256-4095.

SATURDAY, MARCH 9

Benefit — For Necessities/Necessidades, a shelter for battered women. Featuring FUGAZI, THE BROOD and ZUZU'S PETALS. Sponsored by POWER, University Production Center and AMC in the Student Union Ballroom at 8 p.m.

SUNDAY, MARCH 10

Auction — The Abortion Rights Fund of Western Massachusetts will hold it's second annual art and service auction at 2 p.m. at the East Street Dance Studio in Hadley.

THE MASSACHUSETTS
DAILY COLLEGIAN
New England's largest college daily newspaper Circulation 19,000. Published every weekday during the calendar semester The Massachusetts Daily Collegian is a Registered Student Organization of the University of Massachusetts
113 Campus Center, Amherst, MA. 01003
Phone (413) 545-3500 FAX (413) 545-1592

STAFF

Editor in Chief — Terry Starmer
Managing Editor — Jody Gabin
Editorial Editor — Jeremy Levinson
News Editor — Gayle Long
Sports Editor — Adrien Matt
Arts Editor — Danielle Dowling
Photography Editor — K.A. Burke
Black Affairs Editor — Sondra Sutton
Women's Issues Editors — Risa Kelly, Monique Tabon
Multicultural Affairs Editor — Alexander Nguyen
Third World Affairs Editor — Pratip Dasgupta
Lesbian, Bisexual, Gay Issues Editor — Trystan Sleigh
Business Manager — Susan George
Advertising Manager — Dave Tetlick
Printer Manager — Beth Patterson
Circulation Manager — Jim Winterbottom
Subscriptions Manager — Stacey Rogers
Promotions Manager — Marc Prushan
Production Manager — Nicole Dumas
Dan Graphics Manager — Jenn Burns

PROFESSIONAL STAFF

Business — Brian Harrington, Lori Black, Maureen Magerowski
Graphics — Rory Evans

Correction

In the GLB Schedule published in Friday's Collegian, an error was made concerning events scheduled for Tuesday, March 5 and Wednesday, March 6.

On Tuesday there will be a presentation "Beyond Positive Images: Theorizing TV's representation of Lesbians and Gays" by Sasha Torres, Mendenhall Fellow, at Seelye 16, Smith College, 4:30 - 6 p.m.

On Wednesday at Smith College there will be a presentation "Why Can't Sharon Kowalski Come Home" by Karen Thompson at 8 p.m. at Wright Hall auditorium.

Also on Wednesday at 7 p.m. at in the Campus Center 803 there will be a forum on "Domestic Partners" which will include a discussion about legal/financial concerns facing those in same-sex relationships.

Quality You Can Afford
silverscape designs
Goldsmiths • Gem Gallery

RÉSUMÉS
CopyCat Print Shop
• Great Service • Great Prices
228 Triangle St./Amherst 549-3840

Bucci
HAIRCUTS ALWAYS $10
A HAIR SPACE
25 N. Pleasant Street • Amherst • 256-0733

EUROPE by CAR
RENT or BUY
LOWEST PRICES
FOR STUDENTS, TEACHERS
EUROPE BY CAR
One Rockefeller Plaza
New York, NY 10020
Phone (212) 581-3040
Mail this ad for Special Student/Teacher Tariff.
☐ RENTAL ☐ LEASE ☐ PURCHASE

Auto Glass Center
American & Foreign
• SAME DAY SERVICE
• BILLED DIRECTLY TO INSURANCE COMPANY
• WINDSHIELDS REPLACED
North Amherst Motors
78 Old Sunderland Rd
North Amherst, MA.
549-2880
Most Major Credit Cards Accepted

DIFFERENT RESUMES
Complete Resume Service
- Laser Printed -
17 Fonts to Choose From One-Page Resumes $15 on the CAMPUS CENTER CONCOURSE
Tuesday, March 5
Thursday, March 7
9 a.m. to 4:30 p.m.
(space permitting)

MAGIC LANTERN
LADIES ONLY
Wed Night: March 6th
FEATURING
The Dance Group
'BAD BOYS FROM BOSTON'
Starring: ★NICKO
•Students with college I.D.
FREE ADMISSION
Take Rt 9 to Belchertown to Rt 181 to Rt 20 West-Palmer, MA
283-9275

WRITE FOR THE COLLEGIAN

LOCAL

Collegian photo by Yana Diugy

Collegian photo by Yana Diugy

COLOR BY NUMBERS — Sign painters for the Springfield Advertising Co. brave new heights to finish a billboard in Hadley last week. "It's a big people's coloring book," according to Johnathan Bronsberg (the one holding the ladder).

Committee choice causes controversy

By MARC ELLIOTT
Collegian Staff

One of three applicants chosen by the Student Senate's Coordinating Committee Friday to be on the administration's Commission on Undergraduate Governance was asked to resign from his position as Senate Budgets Committee Chairman three years ago for misusing student funds.

Student Government Association Coordinating Committee asked Gil Penchina to resign in the fall of 1988 as Budgets Committeee Chairman after he issued them a statement detailing how he was able to misuse Student Activity Trust Fund monies during the summer of 1988 without being caught.

Penchina said that he misused the funds to prove to the Student Activities Office that it could be done.

"It's just the point that nobody checks," Penchina told the Collegian shortly after the scandal surfaced. "People can go around doing little things, pilfering."

Penchina said he got away with putting extra hours on his pay slip, buying an unneeded lamp and electric stapler for the Budgets office, and using student monies for the personal use of a photocopier.

"This whole issue is about four dollars of photocopies," he said, "the Student Activities Office denied that the extra hours and equipment were a violation to avoid responsibility for their continuing practice of fiscal mismanagment."

"I was on such a mission when I was a freshman," said Penchina, who is now a senior. "I was going to save the system."

Director of SAO, Irene Carew, said that Penchina acted irresponsibly.

"When you have a leadership position such as Budget's chair, you have to be responsible," she said. "Gil's actions were irresponsible."

The Coordinating Committee selected Penchina by secret ballot after reviewing his application in a closed meeting Friday evening. He was choosen to represent the student body to the Commission on Undergraduate Governance which has been charged by the administration with the task of restructuring student government.

Interim Senate Speaker Jeffrey Turco said that someone on the committee knew of rumors of Penchina's past but nothing else.

Turco went on to say that Penchina may have been falsely accused.

"He was elected on the merits of his application and what we were told by people that knew him," Turco said.

Sen. Daniel Cohen (Third World Causus) said that the Coordinating Committee had no knowledge of Penchina's controversial past when they picked him.

"None of us knew about it when we voted," explained Cohen, "but if we did maybe the vote would have been different."

Penchina may not be on the Commission long enough to attend a single meeting according to Sen. Kenneth Parker (Commuters).

"The decisions made by the Coordinating Committee on Thursday and Friday are subject to the senate's approval," Parker said. "I suspect that the senate will be asked not to approve."

Also elected to the commission friday were Sen. Gretchen White (Commuters) and interim Senate Speaker Jeffery Turco.

Turco, as the interim speaker, is also chairman of the coordinating committee, the same committee that voted to put him on the commission. Parker and Cohen, both committee members, were also applying for

CONTINUED ON PAGE 4

Solid waste problem gets messy in the United States

Editor's Note: This is the first of a three-part series examining the solid waste crisis.

By DAVID MASSEY
Collegian Correspondent

Americans are beginning to drown in their own garbage. The "throwaway" mentality is taking its toll on the already fragile environment, according to solid waste experts.

As landfills across the country reach capacity and the prospect of burning all our waste becomes more and more unreasonable, a solid waste crisis is emminant.

The United States produces more garbage than anyone else on Earth. As every year passes, Americans throw out 7.6 billion tons of industrial waste and 160 to 180 million tons of municipal solid waste. A flyer from MassPIRG said Americans make up 5 percent of the world's population but contribute half of all the world's waste.

The amount of solid waste produced has grown by about 80 percent since 1960 and is expected to rise another 20 percent in the next 10 years. Garbage has become serious business as we usher in the twenty-first century.

